The most critical spiritual tool at the Kabbalah Centre, bar none, is the Zohar--the literary source for the entire radiance of all Kabbalistic knowledge. It is the foundation for the millennia-old tradition, which, in modern times, has been passed down to Kabbalist Rav Berg, the latest in a long lineage of great Kabbalistic masters. The Zohar is a 2000 year-old sacred text that is the indispensable guide to the cosmic laws that govern the dual-aspects of the One Creation: the invisible and the visible, the "spiritual" and the "physical". It describes, with absolute spiritual precision, the true meaning of life, explaining the seeming "randomness" that we encounter in our daily lives, as really a complicated (though essentially simple) system of "cause" and "effect".

The Zohar actually decodes the Bible, penetrating deep beneath the surface of its letters and words to reveal its inner mystery. With the help of the Zohar's spiritual insight, the Bible can be understood as the "blueprint" behind the entire Creation of the world, indeed, the spiritual system which is at the root of everything.

Moreover, the Zohar itself has its own profound, spiritual power. It has been known to bestow protective powers upon all those who possess it. The Zohar can help deepen your meditations, enhancing the experience, and making the connection to the Divine even more profound. It could actually be said to be the concentrated Light of the Creator. In fact, the Light within the Zohar shines so brightly, that the Zohar is often described as a "living entity". By connecting to the Light of this sacred text, one can achieve heightened levels of awareness. Just an innocent visual connection to the letters of the Zohar have been known to induce greater focus, clarity, purpose and sense of inner peace.

In the 1950's The Kabbalah Centre, then under the leadership of Rabbi Yehuda Ashlag, completed the first translation of the Zohar from its ancient Aramaic to modern Hebrew. Continuing this tradition today, under the direction of Rav Berg, The Kabbalah Centre is proud to offer the first-ever complete English translation with full commentary of the Zohar which will make this core foundational text truly accessible to all of humankind. The full 22-volume set is now available.

Without the Zohar, Kabbalistic tradition would have been lost to the world. Without the Zohar, it will be lost to you.
