PARAGRAPHS IN LIEU OF A PREFACE BY WHITNEY

[Announcement of this work. — The following paragraphs from the pen of Professor Whitney, under the title, "Announcement as to a second volume of the Roth-Whitney edition of the Atharva-Veda," appeared about two years before Mr. Whitney's death, in the Proceedings for April, 1892, appended to the Journal of the American Oriental Society, volume xv., pages clxxi-clxxiii. They show the way in which the labor done by Roth and Whitney upon the Atharva-Veda was divided between those two scholars. Moreover, they state briefly and clearly the main purpose of Whitney's commentary, which is, to give for the text of this Veda the various readings of both Hindu and European authorities (living or manuscript), and the variants of the Kashmirian or Pāippalāda recension and of the corresponding passages of other Vedic texts, together with references to, or excerpts from, the ancillary works on meter, ritual, exegesis, etc. They are significant as showing that in Mr. Whitney's mind the translation was entirely subordinate to the critical notes. Most significant of all—the last sentence makes a clear disclaimer of finality for this work by speaking of it as "material that is to help toward the study and final comprehension of this Veda."—C. R. L.]

When, in 1855-6, the text of the Atharva-Veda was published by Professor Roth and myself, it was styled a "first volume," and a second volume, of notes, indexes, etc., was promised. The promise was made in good faith, and with every intention of prompt fulfilment; but circumstances have deferred the latter, even till now. The bulk of the work was to have fallen to Professor Roth, not only because the bulk of the work on the first volume had fallen to me, but also because his superior learning and ability pointed him out as the one to undertake it. It was his absorption in the great labor of the Petersburg Lexicon that for a long series of years kept his hands from the Atharva-Veda—except so far as his working up of its material, and definition of its vocabulary, was a help of the first order toward the understanding of it, a kind of fragmentary translation. He has also made important contributions of other kinds to its elucidation: most of all, by his incitement to inquiry after an Atharva-Veda in Cashmere, and the resulting discovery of the so-called Pāippalāda text, now well known to all Vedic scholars as one of the most important finds in Sanskrit literature of the last half-century, and of which the credit belongs in a peculiar manner to him. I have also done something in the same direction, by publishing in the Society's Journal in 1862 (Journal, vol. vii.) the Atharva-Veda Prātiçākhyā, text, translation, notes, etc.; and in 1881 [Journal, vol. xii.] the Index Verborum — which latter afforded me the opportunity to give the pada-readings complete, and to report in a general way the corrections made by us in the text at the time of its first issue. There may be mentioned also the index of pratikas, which was published by Weber in his Indische Studien, vol. iv., in 1857, from the slips written by me, although another (Professor Ludwig) had the tedious labor of preparing them for the press.

I have never lost from view the completion of the plan of publication as originally formed. In 1875 I spent the summer in Germany, chiefly engaged in further collating, at Munich and at Tübingen, the additional manuscript material which had come to Europe since our text was printed; and I should probably have soon taken up the work seriously save for having been engaged while in Germany to prepare a Sanskrit grammar, which fully occupied the leisure of several following years. At last, in 1885-6, I had fairly started upon the execution of the plan, when failure of health reduced my working capacity to a minimum, and rendered ultimate success very questionable. The task, however, has never been laid wholly aside, and it is now so far advanced that, barring further loss of power, I may hope to finish it in a couple of years or so; and it is therefore proper and desirable that a public announcement be made of my intention.

[Statement of its plan and scope and design.] — My plan includes, in the first place, critical notes upon the text, giving the various readings of the manuscripts, and not alone of those collated by myself in Europe, but also of the apparatus used by Mr. Shankar Pandurang Pandit in the great edition with commentary (except certain parts, of which the commentary has not been found) which he has been for years engaged in printing in India. Of this extremely well-edited and valuable work I have, by the kindness of the editor, long had in my hands the larger half; and doubtless the whole will be issued in season for me to avail myself of it throughout. Not only his many manuscripts and çrotriyas (the living equivalents, and in some respects the superiors, of manuscripts) give valuable aid, but the commentary (which, of course, claims to be "Sāyaṇa's") also has very numerous various readings, all worthy to be reported, though seldom offering anything better than the text of the manuscripts. Second, the readings of the Pāippalāda version, in those parts of the Veda (much the larger half) for which there is a corresponding Pāippalāda text; these were furnished me, some years ago, by Professor Roth, in whose exclusive possession the Pāippalāda manuscript is held. Further, notice of the corresponding passages in all the other Vedic texts, whether Saṁhitā, Brāhmaṇa, or Sūtra, with report of their various readings. Further, the data of the Anukramaṇī respecting authorship, divinity, and meter of each verse. Also, references to the ancillary literature, especially to the Kāuṣṭhika and Vāitāna Sūtras (both of which have been competently edited, the latter with a translation added), with account of the use made in them of the hymns and parts of hymns, so far as this appears to cast any light upon their meaning. Also, extracts from the printed commentary, wherever this seems worth while, as either really aiding the understanding of the text, or showing the absence of any helpful tradition. Finally, a simple literal translation; this was not originally promised for the second volume, but is added especially in order to help "float" the rest of the material. An introduction and indexes will give such further auxiliary matter as appears to be called for.

The design of the volume will be to put together as much as possible of the material that is to help toward the study and final comprehension of this Veda.

[The purpose and limitations and method of the translation. — In a critique published some six years earlier, in 1886, in the American Journal of Philology, vii. 2-4, Whitney discusses several ways of translating the Upanishads. His remarks on the second "way" leave no doubt that, in making his Veda-translation as he has done, he fully recognized its provisional character and felt that to attempt a definitive one would be premature. His description of the "third way," mutatis mutandis, is so good a statement of the principles which have governed him in this work, that, in default of a better one, it is here reprinted. — C. R. L.]

One way is, to put one's self frankly and fully under the guidance of a native interpreter. . . . Another way would be, to give a conspectus, made as full as possible, of all accessible native interpretations — in connection with which treatment, one could hardly avoid taking a position of critical superiority, approving and condemning, selecting and rejecting, and comparing all with what appeared to be the simple meaning of the text itself. This would be a very welcome labor, but also an extremely difficult one; and the preparations for it are not yet sufficiently made; it may be looked forward to as one of the results of future study.

A third way, leading in quite another direction, would be this: to approach the text only as a philologist, bent upon making a version of it exactly as it stands, representing just what the words and phrases appear to say, without intrusion of anything that is not there in recognizable form: thus reproducing the scripture itself in Western guise, as nearly as the nature of the case admits, as a basis whereon could afterward be built such fabric of philosophic interpretation as should be called for; and also as a touchstone to which could be brought for due testing anything that claimed to be an interpretation. The maker of such a version would not need to be versed in the subtleties of the later Hindu philosophical systems; he should even carefully avoid working in the spirit of any of them. Nor need he pretend to penetrate to the hidden sense of the dark sayings that pass under his pen, to comprehend it and set it forth; for then there would inevitably mingle itself with his version much that was subjective and doubtful, and that every successor would have to do over again. Working conscientiously as Sanskrit scholar only, he might hope to bring out something of permanent and authoritative character, which should serve both as help and as check to those that came after him. He would carefully observe all identities and parallelisms of phraseology, since in texts like these the word is to no small extent more than the thing, the expression dominating the thought: the more the quantities are unknown, the less will it answer to change their symbols in working out an equation. Of all leading and much-used terms, in case the rendering could not be made uniform, he would maintain the identity by a liberal quotation of the word itself in parenthesis after its translation, so that the sphere of use of each could be made out in the version somewhat as in the original, by the comparison of parallel passages; and so that the student should not run the risk of having a difference of statement which might turn out important covered from his eyes by an apparent identity of phrase — or the contrary.

Nothing, as a matter of course, would be omitted, save particles whose effect on the shading of a sentence is too faint to show in the coarseness of translation into a strange tongue; nor would anything be put in without exact indication of the intrusion. The notes would be prevailingly linguistic, references to parallel passages, with exposition of correspondences and differences. Sentences grammatically difficult or apparently corrupt would be pointed out, and their knotty points discussed, perhaps with suggestions of text-amendment. But it is needless to go into further detail; every one knows the methods by which a careful scholar, liberal of his time and labor toward the due accomplishment of a task deemed by him important, will conduct such a work.

EDITOR'S PREFACE

Whitney's labors on the Atharva-Veda. — As early as March, 1851, at Berlin, during Whitney's first semester as a student in Germany, his teacher Weber was so impressed by his scholarly ability as to suggest to him the plan of editing an important Vedic text.¹ The impression produced upon Roth in Tübingen by Whitney during the following summer semester was in no wise different, and resulted in the plan for a joint edition of the Atharva-Veda.² Whitney's preliminary labors for the edition began accordingly upon his return to Berlin for his second winter semester. His fundamental autograph transcript of the Atharva-Veda Saṁhitā is contained in his Collation-Book, and appears from the dates of that book³ to have been made in the short interval between October, 1851, and March, 1852. The second summer in Tübingen (1852) was doubtless spent partly in studying the text thus copied, partly in planning with Roth the details of the method of editing, partly in helping to make the tool, so important for further progress, the index of Rig-Veda pratikas, and so on; the concordance of the four principal Saṁhitās, in which, to be sure, Whitney's part was only "a secondary one," was issued under the date November, 1852. During the winter of 1852-3 he copied the Prātiçākhyā and its commentary contained in the Berlin codex (Weber, No. 361), as is stated in his edition, p. 334. As noted below (pp. xlv, 1), the collation of the Paris and Oxford and London manuscripts of the Atharvan Saṁhitā followed in the spring and early summer of 1853, just before his return (in August) to America. The copy of the text for the printer, made with exquisite neatness in nāgarī letters by Mr. Whitney's hand, is still preserved.

The Edition of the text or "First volume." — The first part of the work, containing books i.-xix. of the text, appeared in Berlin with a provisional preface dated February, 1855. The provisional preface announces that the text of book xx. will not be given in full, but only the Kuntāpa-hymns, and, for the rest of it, merely references to the Rig-Veda; and promises, as the principal contents of the second part, seven of the eight items of accessory material enumerated below. — This plan, however, was changed, and the second part appeared in fact as a thin Heft of about 70 pages, giving book xx. in full, and that only. To it was prefixed a half-sheet containing the definitive preface and a new title-page. The definitive preface is dated October, 1856, and adds an eighth item, exegetical notes, to the promises of the provisional preface. The new title-page has the words "Erster Band. Text," thus implicitly promising a second volume, in which, according to the definitive preface, the accessory material was to be published.

Relation of this work to the "First volume" and to this Series.—Of the implicit promise of that title-page, the present work is intended to complete the fulfilment. As most of the labor upon the first volume had fallen to Whitney, so most of the labor upon the projected "second" was to have been done by Roth. In fact, however, it turned out that Roth's very great services for the criticism and exegesis of this Veda took a different form, and are embodied on the one hand in his contributions to the St. Petersburg Lexicon, and consist on the other in his brilliant discovery of the Kashmirian recension of this Veda and his collation of the text thereof with that of the Vulgate. Nevertheless, as is clearly apparent (page xvii), Whitney thought and spoke of this work¹ as a "Second volume of the Roth-Whitney edition of the Atharva-Veda," and called it "our volume" in writing to Roth (cf. p. lxxxvi); and letters exchanged between the two friends in 1894 discuss the question whether the "second volume" ought not to be published by the same house (F. Dümmler's) that issued the first in 1856. It would appear from Whitney's last letter to Roth (written April 10, 1894, shortly before his death), that he had determined to have the work published in the Harvard Series, and Roth's last letter to Whitney (dated April 23) expresses his great satisfaction at this arrangement. This plan had the cordial approval of my friend Henry Clarke Warren, and, while still in relatively fair health, he generously gave to the University the money to pay for the printing.

External form of this work.—It is on account of the relation just explained, and also in deference to Whitney's express wishes, that the size of the printed page of this work and the size of the paper have been chosen to match those of the "First volume." The pages have been numbered continuously from 1 to 1009, as if this work were indeed one volume; but, since it was expedient to separate the work into two halves in binding, I have done so, and designated those halves as volumes seven and eight of the Harvard Oriental Series.¹ The volumes are substantially bound and properly lettered; the leaves are open at the front; and the top is cut without spoiling the margin. The purpose of the inexpensive gilt top is not for ornament, but rather to save the volumes from the injury by dirt and discoloration which is so common with ragged hand-cut tops. The work has been electrotyped, and will thus, it is hoped, be quite free from the blemishes occasioned by the displacement of letters, the breaking off of accents, and the like.

General scope of this work as determined by previous promise and fulfilment.—Its general scope was determined in large measure by the promise of the definitive preface of the "First volume." The specifications of that promise were given in eight items as follows:

- | | |
|--|----------------------------------|
| 1. Excerpts from the Prātiçākhyā; | 5. Excerpts from the Anukramaṇī; |
| 2. Excerpts from the Pada-pāṭha; | 6. General introduction; |
| 3. Concordance of the AV. with other Saṁhitās; | 7. Exegetical notes; |
| 4. Excerpts from the ritual (Kāuçika); | 8. Critical notes. |

Of the above-mentioned promise, several items had meantime been more than abundantly fulfilled by Whitney. In 1862 he published the Prātiçākhyā (item 1), text, translation, notes, indexes, etc. Of this treatise only excerpts had been promised. In 1881 followed the (unpromised) Index Verborum,² in which was given a full report of the pada-readings (item 2). The Table of Concordances between the several Vedic Saṁhitās (1852) and the Index of pratikas of the Atharva-Veda (1857),—the first in large measure, the second in largest measure, the work of Whitney,—went far toward the accomplishment of the next item (item 3). Pupils of the two editors, moreover, had had a share in its fulfilment. In 1878 Garbe gave us the Vāitāna-Sūtra in text and translation; and that was followed in 1890 by Bloomfield's text of the Kāuçika-Sūtra. The inherent difficulties of the latter text and the excellence of Bloomfield's performance make us regret the more keenly that he did not give us a translation also. The material for report upon the ritual uses of the verses of this Veda (preparative for item 4) was thus at hand.

² The published Index gives only the words and references. It is made from a much fuller manuscript Index, written by Whitney on 1721 quarto pages, which quotes the context in which the words appear, and which for the present is in my hands.

While making his London collations in 1853 (see below, p. lxxii), Whitney made also a transcript of the Major Anukramaṇī, and subsequently he added a collation of the Berlin ms. thereof (preparative for item 5). — In the course of his long labors upon Atharvan texts, Whitney had naturally made many observations suitable for a general introduction (item 6). Roth had sent him a considerable mass of exegetical notes (item 7). — Furthermore, during the decades in which Whitney had concerned himself with this and the related texts, he had noted in his Collation-Book, opposite each verse of the Atharvan Samhitā, the places in the other texts where that verse recurs, in identical or in similar form, in whole or in part; thus making a very extensive collection of concordances, with the Atharvan Samhitā as the point of departure, and providing himself with the means for reporting upon the variations of the parallel texts with far greater completeness than was possible by means of the Table and Index mentioned above under item 3.

The critical notes. — Of all the eight promised items, the one of most importance, and of most pressing importance, was doubtless the eighth, the critical notes, in which were to be given the various readings of the manuscripts. In his Introductory Note to the Atharvan Ṛātiçākhyā (p. 338 : year 1862), Whitney says :

The condition of the Atharvan as handed down by the tradition was such as to impose upon the editors as a duty what in the case of any of the other Vedas would have been an almost inexcusable liberty—namely, the emendation of the text-readings in many places. In so treating such a text, it is not easy to hit the precise mean between too much and too little; and while most of the alterations made were palpably and imperatively called for, and while many others would have to be made in translating, there are also a few cases in which a closer adherence to the manuscript authorities might have been preferable.

The apparatus for ascertaining in any given passage just what the mss. read was not published for more than two decades. Complaints on this score, however, were surely estopped by the diligence and effectiveness with which both editors employed that time for the advancement of the cause of Indic philology. In his Introduction to the Index Verborum (p. 2 : year 1880), Whitney says :

There will, of course, be differences of opinion as to whether this [course of procedure] was well-advised — whether they [the editors] should not have contented themselves with giving just what the manuscripts gave them, keeping suggested alterations for their notes; and, yet more, as to the acceptableness of part of the alterations made, and the desirableness of others which might with equal reason have been made. . . . It is sought [in the Index] simply to call attention to all cases in which a published reading differs from that of the manuscripts, as well as to those comparatively infrequent ones where the manuscripts are at variance, and to furnish the means . . . for determining in any particular case what the manuscripts actually read.

Thus the eighth item of the promise also (as well as the second) was fulfilled by the Index. — Desirable as such critical notes may be in connection with the Index, a report of the variants of the European mss. of the Vulgate recension in the sequence of the text was none the less called for. The report is accordingly given in this work, and includes not only the mss. of Berlin, Paris, Oxford, and London, collated before publishing, but also those of Munich and Tübingen, collated twenty years after (see below, p. xlv, note 5, p. lxiv).

Scope of this work as transcending previous promise. — The accessory material of this work, beyond what was promised by the preface of the text-edition, is mentioned in the third paragraph of Whitney's "Announcement," p. xviii, and includes the reports of the readings of the Kashmirian recension and of S. P. Pandit's authorities, extracts from the native commentary, and a translation. For the first, Roth had performed the long and laborious and difficult task of making a careful collation of the Pāippalāda text, and had sent it to Whitney. In his edition published in Bombay, S. P. Pandit had given for the Vulgate recension the variants of the authorities (Indian: not also European) accessible to him, and including not only the variants of manuscripts, but also those of living reciters of the text. The advance sheets of his edition he had sent in instalments to Whitney, so that all those portions for which Pandit published the comment were in Whitney's hands in time to be utilized by him, although the printed date of Pandit's publication (1895-8) is subsequent to Whitney's death.

Evolution of the style of the work. — To elaborate all the varied material described in the foregoing paragraphs into a running commentary on the nineteen books was accordingly Whitney's task, and he was "fairly started" upon it in 1885-6. As was natural, his method of treatment became somewhat fuller as he proceeded with his work. There is in my hands his prior draft of the first four or five books, which is relatively meagre in sundry details. It was not until he had advanced well into the second grand division (books viii.-xii.) that he settled down into the style of treatment to which he then adhered to the end.

Partial rewriting and revision by Whitney. — Thereupon, in order to carry out the early books in the same style as the later ones, it became necessary to rewrite or to revise the early ones. He accordingly did rewrite the first four (cf. p. xcvi below), and to the next three (v., vi., vii.) he gave a pretty thorough revision without rewriting; and at this point, apparently, he was interrupted by the illness which proved fatal. The discussion of the ritual uses in book viii. (supplied by me) would doubtless have been his next task. Not counting a lot of matter for his General Introduction, Whitney's manuscript of his commentary and translation, as he left it at his death in 1894, consisted of about 2500 folios. Had Whitney lived to see it printed, the editor of this Series would probably have read one set of proofs, and made suggestions and criticisms freely on the margins, which the author would then have accepted or rejected without discussion; and the whole matter, in that case a very simple one, would have been closed by a few lines of kindly acknowledgment from the author in his preface.

Picking up the broken threads. — It is, on the other hand, no simple matter, but rather one of peculiar difficulty and delicacy, to edit such a technical work as this for an author who has passed away, especially if he has been the editor's teacher and friend. The difficulty is increased by the fact that, in the great mass of technical details, there are very many which have to be learned anew by the editor for himself, and others still, which, through long years of labor, have grown so familiar to the author that he has hardly felt any need of making written memoranda of them, and which the editor has to find out as best he can.

Relation of the editor's work to that of the author. — Although Whitney's manuscript of the main body of the work was written out to the end, it was not systematically complete. Thus he had written for book i. (and for that only) a special introduction, showing that he meant to do the like for the other eighteen. Of the General Introduction as it stands, only a very few parts were worked out; for some parts there were only rough sketches; and for very many not even that. And in unnumbered details, major and minor, there was opportunity for long and patient toil upon the task of systematically verifying all references and statements, of revising where need was, and of bringing the whole nearer to an ideal and unattainable completeness. What these details were, the work itself may show. But besides all this, there was the task of carrying through the press a work the scientific importance of which called for the best typographical form and for the utmost feasible accuracy in printing.

Parts for which the author is not responsible. — No two men are alike in the various endowments and attainments that make the scholar; and, in particular, the mental attitude of any two towards any given problem is wont to differ. It is accordingly not possible that there should not be, among the editorial additions to Whitney's manuscript or changes therein, many things which he would decidedly have disapproved. They ought certainly therefore to be marked in such a way that the reader may easily recognize them as additions for which the editor and not the author is responsible; and for this purpose two signs have been chosen, [ and ], which are like incomplete brackets or brackets without the upper horizontal strokes, and which may be called "ell-brackets" and suggest the initial letter of the editor's name (cf. p. c). Besides the marked additions, there are others, like the paragraphs beginning with the word "Translated," which are not marked. It is therefore proper to give a general systematic account of the editorial additions and changes.

The General Introduction. — This consists of two parts: the first, by the editor; the second, elaborated in part from material left by the author. — Part I. — Besides the topics which unquestionably belong to the General Introduction and are treated in Part II., there are a good many which, but for their voluminousness, might properly enough have been put into the editor's preface. Such are, for example, the discussions of the various critical elements which form the bulk of Whitney's Commentary. I have printed them as Part I. of the General Introduction. The form of presentation is, I trust, such that, with the help of the Table of Contents, the student will be able to find any desired topic very quickly.

The General Introduction: Part II. — Certain general statements concerning the manuscripts and the method of editing, and concerning the text of the Atharva-Veda Saṁhitā as a whole, must needs be made, and are most suitably presented in the form of a general introduction prefixed to the main body of the work. For this Introduction, Whitney left a considerable amount of material. Parts of that material were so well worked out as to be nearly or quite usable for printing: namely, the brief chapter, 8, on the metrical form of the Saṁhitā, and (most fortunately!) nearly all of the very important chapter, 1, containing the description of his manuscripts. The like is true, as will appear from the absence of ellipses, of considerable portions of chapter 10, on the extent and structure of the Saṁhitā. — Chapters 2 and 3 (concerning the stanza çām no devîr abhiçtaye and the Collation-Book) might have been put in Part I., as being from the editor's hand; but, on the ground of intrinsic fitness, they have been put immediately after the description of the mss.

For chapters 4 and 5 and 6 (on repeated verses, on refrains, and on accent-marks) and chapter 9 (on the divisions of the text), Whitney left sketches, brief and rough, written with a lead-pencil and written (it would seem) in the days of his weakness as he lay on a couch or bed. I have made faithful use of these sketches, not only as indicating in detail the topics that Whitney most desired to treat, but also as giving, or at least suggesting, the language to be used in their treatment. Nevertheless, they have been much rewritten in parts, and in such a way that it is hardly feasible or even worth while to separate the author's part from the editor's. The final result must pass for our joint work. The sketch for chapter 7 (on the orthographic method of the Berlin text) was also a lead-pencil draft; but it was one that had evidently been made years before those last mentioned, and its substance was such as to need only recasting in form, and expansion, — a work which I have carried out with free use of the pertinent matter in Whitney's Prātiçākhyas (cf. p. cxxiii, note).

To revert to chapters 9 and 10 (on the divisions of the text, and on its extent and structure), they are the longest of all, and, next after chapter 1 (on the mss.), perhaps the most important, and they contain the most of what is new. After putting them once into what I thought was a final form, I found that, from the point of view thus gained, I could, by further study, discover a good many new facts and relations, and attain to greater certainty on matters already set forth, and, by rewriting freely, put very many of the results in a clearer light and state them more convincingly. The ell-brackets distinguish in general the editor's part from the author's. If, in these two chapters, the latter seems relatively small, one must not forget its large importance and value as a basis for the editor's further studies.

With the exceptions noted (chapters 2 and 3), it has seemed best, in elaborating this part of the General Introduction, to restrict it to the topics indicated by Whitney's material, and not (in an attempt at systematic completeness) to duplicate the treatise which forms Bloomfield's part of the Grundriss. Bloomfield's plan is quite different; but since a considerable number of the topics are indeed common to both, it seemed better that the treatment of them in this work should proceed as far as possible independently of the treatment in the Grundriss.

The editor's special introductions to the eighteen books, ii.-xix. — Since Whitney's manuscript contained a brief special introduction to the first book, it was probably his intention to write one for each of the remaining eighteen. At all events, certain general statements concerning each book as a whole are plainly called for, and should properly be cast into the form of a special introduction and be prefixed, one to each of the several books. These eighteen special introductions have accordingly been written by the editor, and are, with some trifling exceptions (cf. pages 471-2, 739, 792, 794, 814) entirely from his hand. The paryāya-hymns (cf. p. 471) and the divisions of the paryāya-material (pages 628, 770, 793) called for considerable detail of treatment; similarly the discrepancies between the two editions as respects hymn-numeration (pages 389, 610) and the paryāya-divisions (pages 771, 793); likewise the subject-matter of book xviii. (p. 813); while the supplementary book xix., on account of its peculiar relations to the rest of the text and to the ancillary treatises, called for the most elaborate treatment of all (p. 895).

The special introductions to the hymns: editor's bibliography of previous translations and discussions. — These are contained in the paragraphs beginning with the word "Translated." — In the introduction to each hymn, in a paragraph immediately following the Anukramaṇi-excerpts, and usually between a statement as to where the hymn is "Found in Päipp." or in other texts, and a statement as to how the hymn is "Used in Kāuḥ," Whitney had given in his manuscript a statement as to where the hymn had been previously translated by Ludwig or Grill or some other scholar. For Weber's and Henry's translations of whole books, he had apparently thought to content himself by referring once and for all at the beginning of each book to the volume of the Indische Studien or of the Traduction. By a singular coincidence, a very large amount of translation and explanation of this Veda (by Deussen, Henry, Griffith, Weber, Bloomfield: see the table, p. cvii) appeared within three or four years after Whitney's death. The version of Griffith, and that alone, is complete. As for the partial translations and discussions, apart from the fact that they are scattered through different periodicals and independent volumes, their multiplicity is so confusing that it would be very troublesome in the case of any given hymn to find for oneself just how many of the translators had discussed it and where. I have therefore endeavored to give with all desirable completeness, for every single one of the 588 hymns of books i.—xix. (save ii. 20—23), a bibliography of the translations and discussions of that hymn up to the year 1898 or thereabout. For some hymns the amount of discussion is large: cf. the references for iv. 16; v. 22; ix. 9; x. 7; xviii. 1; xix. 6. At first blush, some may think it "damnable iteration" that I should, for hymn-translations, make reference to Griffith some 588 times, to Bloomfield some 214, to Weber some 179, or to Henry some 167 times; but I am sure that serious students of the work will find the references exceedingly convenient. As noted above, they are given in the paragraphs beginning with the word "Translated." Although these paragraphs are almost wholly editorial additions, I have not marked them as such by enclosing them in ell-brackets.

I have always endeavored to give these references in the chronological sequence of the works concerned (see the table with dates and explanations at p. cvii). These dates need to be taken into account in judging Whitney's statements, as when he says "all the translators" understand a passage thus and so. Finally, it is sure to happen that a careful comparison of the views of the other translators will often reveal a specific item of interpretation which is to be preferred to Whitney's. Here and there, I have given a reference to such an item; but to do so systematically is a part of the great task which this work leaves unfinished.

Added special introductions to the hymns of book xviii. and to some others. — The relation of the constituent material of the four so-called "hymns" of book xviii. to the Rig-Veda etc. is such that a clear synoptic statement of the provenience of the different groups of verses or of single verses is in the highest degree desirable; and I have therefore endeavored to give such a statement for each of them, grouping the verses into "Parts" according to their provenience or their ritual use or both. An analysis of the structure of the single hymn of book xvii. also seemed to me to be worth giving. Moreover, the peculiar contents of the hymn entitled "Homage to parts of the Atharva-Veda" (xix. 23) challenged me to try at least to identify its intended references; and although I have not succeeded entirely, I hope I have stated the questionable matters with clearness. I have ventured to disagree with the author's view of the general significance of hymn iii. 26 as expressed in the caption, and have given my reasons in a couple of paragraphs. The hymn for use with a pearl-shell amulet (iv. 10) and the hymn to the lunar asterisms (xix. 7) also gave occasion for additions which I hope may prove not unacceptable.

Other editorial additions at the beginning and end of hymns.—Whitney's last illness put an end to his revision of his work before he reached the eighth book, and reports of the ritual uses of the hymns of that book from his hand are insufficient or lacking. I have accordingly supplied these reports for book viii., and further also for x. 5 and xi. 2 and 6, and in a form as nearly like that used by Whitney as I could; but for viii. 8 ("army rites") and x. 5 ("water-thunderbolts"), the conditions warranted greater fulness.¹ Whitney doubtless intended to give, throughout his entire work, at the end of anuvākas and books and prapāṭhakas, certain statements, in part summations of hymns and verses and in part quotations from the Old Anukramaṇī. In default of his final revision, these stop at the end of book vii. (cf. p. 470), and from that point on to the end I have supplied them (cf. pages 475, 481, 516, 737, and so on).

Other additions of considerable extent.—Of the additions in ell-brackets, the most numerous are the brief ones; but the great difficulties of books xviii. and xix. have tempted me to give, in the last two hundred pages, occasional excursuses, the considerable length of which will, I hope, prove warranted by their interest or value. The notes on the following topics or words or verses may serve as instances: twin consonants, p. 832; añjoyānāis, p. 844; su-śānsa, p. 853; āitat, p. 860; ḍva cikṣīpan, p. 875; the pitṛnidhāna ("eleven dishes"), p. 876; vānyā etc., p. 880; saṁcṛitya, p. 886; on xviii. 4. 86–87; xix. 7. 4; 8. 4; 26. 3; 44. 7; 45. 2 (suhār etc.); 47. 8; 55. 1, 5.

The seven tables appended to the latter volume of this work.—The list of non-metrical passages is taken from the introduction to Whitney's Index Verborum, p. 5.—The list of hymns ignored by Kāuṣṭhika, p. 1011, is taken from memoranda in Whitney's hand-copy of Kāuṣṭhika.—The concordance of the citations of Kāuṣika by the two methods, I have made for those who wish to look up citations as made in the Bombay edition of the commentary. The same purpose is better served by writing the number of each adhyāya, and of each kaṇḍikā as numbered from the beginning of its own adhyāya, on the upper right-hand corner of each odd page of Bloomfield's text. — The concordance of discrepant Berlin and Bombay hymn-numbers I have drawn up to meet a regrettable need. — The concordance between the Vulgate and Kashmirian recensions is made from notes in the Collation-Book, as is explained at p. lxxxv, and will serve provisionally for finding a Vulgate verse in the facsimile of the Kashmirian text. — The table of hymn-titles is of course a mere copy of Whitney's captions, but gives an extremely useful conspectus of the subjects in general. — The index of the names of the seers is a revised copy of a rough one found among Whitney's papers. To it I have prefixed a few paragraphs which contain general or critical observations.

The unmarked minor additions and other minor changes. — These are of two classes. The first includes the numerous isolated minor changes about which there was no question, namely the correction of mere slips, the supplying of occasional omissions, and the omission of an occasional phrase or sentence. Of the mere slips in Whitney's admirable manuscript, some (like "thou has" at ii. 10. 6, or the omission of "be brought" near the end of the note to ii. 13. 5) are such as the care of a good proof-reader would have set right; but there were many which could be recognized as slips only by constant reference to the original or to the various books concerned. Such are "cold" instead of "heat" for ghraṁsā at xiii. 1. 52 and 53; "hundred" (life-times) for "thousand" at vi. 78. 3; "Mercury" for "Mars" at xix. 9. 7; "kine" for "bulls" at iii. 9. 2 and "cow" for "bull" at i. 22. 1; vācān for 'vācān at xviii. 2. 13. At vi. 141. 3 his version read "so let the Aṣvins make," as if the text were kr̥ṇutām aṣvīnā. At the end of the very first hymn, Whitney's statement was, "The Anukr. ignores the metrical irregularity of the second pāda"; here I changed "ignores" to "notes." — He had omitted the words "the parts of" at iv. 12. 7; "a brother" at xviii. 1. 14; "which is very propitious" at xviii. 2. 31; "the Fathers" at xviii. 2. 46. Such changes as those just instanced could well be left unmarked.

The second class has to do with the paragraphs, few in number, the recasting or rewriting of which involved so many minor changes that it was hardly feasible to indicate them by ell-brackets. The note to xviii. 3. 60 is an example. Moreover, many notes in which the changes are duly marked contain other changes which seemed hardly worth marking, as at xix. 49. 2 or 55. 1: cf. p. 806, ¶ 5.

The marked minor additions and other minor changes. — In a work like this, involving so great a mass of multifarious details, it was inevitable that a rigorous revision, such as the author could not give to it, should detect many statements requiring more or less modification. Thus at xix. 40. 2, the author, in his copy for the printer, says: "We have rectified the accent of sumedhās; the mss. and SPP. have sumédhās." In fact, the edition also has sumédhās, and I have changed the statement thus: "[in the edition] we [should have] rectified the accent [so as to read] sumedhās." The changes in the last two books are such that it was often best to write out considerable parts of the printer's copy afresh: yet it was desirable, on the one hand, to avoid rewriting; and, on the other, to change and add in such a way that the result might not show the unclearness of a clumsily tinkered paragraph. To revise and edit between these two limitations is not easy; and, as is shown by the example just given, there is no clear line to be drawn between what should and what should not be marked. As noted above, it is evident that all these matters would have been very simple if the author could have seen the work through the press.

The revision of the author's manuscript. Verification. — The modifications of the author's manuscript thus far discussed are mostly of the nature of additions made to carry out the unfinished parts of the author's design, and are the modifications referred to on the title-page by the words "brought nearer to completion." The work of revision proper has included a careful verification of every statement of every kind in the commentary so far as this was possible, and a careful comparison of the translation with the original. This means that the citations of the parallel texts have been actually looked up and that the readings have been compared anew in order to make sure that the reports of their variations from the Atharvan readings were correct. This task was most time-consuming and laborious; as to some of its difficulties and perplexities, see below, p. lxiv. Verification means further that the notes of Whitney's Collation-Book and of the Bombay edition and of Roth's collation of the Kashmirian text were regularly consulted to assure the correctness of the author's reports of variants within the Atharvan school; further, that the text and the statements of the Major Anukramaṇī were carefully studied, and, in connection therewith, the scansion and pāda-division of the verses of the Saṁhitā; and that the references to the Kāuṣika and Vāitāna Sūtras were regularly turned up for comparison of the sūtras with Whitney's statements. Many technical details concerning these matters are given on pages lxiv ff. of the General Introduction. Since the actual appearance of Bloomfield and Garbe's magnificent facsimile of the birch-bark manuscript of the Kashmirian text antedates that of this work, the reasons why the facsimile was not used by me should be consulted at p. lxxxv.

Accentuation of Sanskrit words. — In the reports of the readings of accented texts, the words are invariably accented. The Kashmirian text is reckoned as an unaccented one, although it has occasional accented passages. The author frequently introduces Sanskrit words, in parentheses or otherwise, into the translation, and usually indicates their accent. The editor has gone somewhat farther : he has indicated in the translation the accent of the stems of words which happen to occur in the vocative (so sadānvās, ii. 14. 5), except in the cases of rare words whose proper stem-accent is not known (examples in ii. 24) ; and, in cases where only one member of a compound is given, he has indicated what the accent of that member would be if used independently (so -nīthā at xviii. 2. 18, as part of sahāsrānīthā ; -kṣētra at iii. 3. 4, as part of anyakṣētrā ; cf. ii. 8. 2).

Cross-references. — Apart from the main purpose of this work, to serve as the foundation of more nearly definitive ones yet to come, it is likely to be used rather as one of consultation and reference than for consecutive reading. I have therefore not infrequently added cross-references from one verse or note to another, doing this even in the case of verses which were not far apart : cf., for example, my reference from vii. 80. 3 to 79. 4 or from vi. 66. 2 to 65. 1.

Orthography of Anglicized proper names. — The translation is the principal or only part of this work which may be supposed to interest readers who are without technical knowledge of Sanskrit. In order to make the proper names therein occurring more easily pronounceable, the author has disregarded somewhat the strict rules of transliteration which are followed in the printing of Sanskrit words as Sanskrit, and has written, for example, Pūshan and Purandhi instead of Pūṣan and Puraṁdhi, sometimes retaining, however, the strange diacritical marks (as in Aṅgīras or Varuṇa) where they do not embarrass the layman. To follow the rules strictly would have been much easier ; but perhaps it was better to do as has been done, even at the expense of some inconsistencies (cf. Vritra, Vṛitra, Vṛtra ; Savitar).

Editorial short-comings and the chances of error. — Labor and pains have been ungrudgingly spent upon Whitney's work, to ensure its appearance in a form worthy of its great scientific importance ; but the work is extensive and is crowded with details of such a nature that unremitting care is needed to avoid error concerning them. Some striking illustrations of this statement may be found in the foot-note below.¹ Despite trifling inconsistencies of orthography or abbreviation, I trust that a high degree of accuracy in the real essentials has been attained. I dare not hope that my colleagues will not discover blemishes and deficiencies in the work; but I shall be glad if they do not cavil at them. India has much to teach the West: much that is of value not only for its scientific interest, but also for the conduct of our thought and life. It is far better to exploit the riches of Indian wisdom than to spend time or strength in belittling the achievements of one's fellow-workers or of those that are gone.

The biographical and related matter.—*The First American Congress of Philologists devoted its session of Dec. 28, 1894 to the memory of Whitney. The Report of that session, entitled "The Whitney Memorial Meeting," and edited by the editor of this work, was issued as the first half of volume xix. of the Journal of the American Oriental Society. The edition was of fifteen hundred copies, and was distributed to the members of the Oriental Society and of the American Philological Association and of the Modern Language Association of America, to the libraries enrolled on their lists, and to some other recipients. Besides the addresses of the occasion, the Report contains bibliographical notes concerning Whitney's life and family, and a bibliography of his writings: but since, strictly speaking, it contains no biography of Whitney, I have thought it well to give in this volume (p. xliii) a brief sketch of his life; and in preparing it, I have made use, not only of the substance, but also, with some freedom, of the form of statement of the autobiography which Whitney published in 1885 (see p. lx). Moreover, since the people into whose hands this work will come are for the most part not the same as those who received the Report, it has been thought advisable to reprint therefrom the editor's Memorial Address (p. xlvi) as a general estimate of Whitney's character and services, and to give, for its intrinsic usefulness, a select list of his writings (p. lvi), which is essentially the list prepared by Whitney for the "Yale Bibliographies" (List, 1893).

at last in time for correction. — At xix. 27. 7, I had added suryam as the Kashmirian reading for the Vulgate sūryam, simply because Roth's Collation gave suryam; but on looking it up in the facsimile, last line of folio 136a, I found, after the plates were made, that the birch-bark leaf really has sūryam and that the slip was Roth's. — In regard to xix. 24. 6 b, the Fates seemed to have decreed that error should prevail. Here the manuscripts read vāpīnām. This is reported in the foot-note of the Berlin edition as vāpīnām (1st error). The editors intended to emend the ms. reading to vaçānām, which, however, is misprinted in the text as vaçānām (2d error). [The conjecture vaçānām, even if rightly printed, is admitted to be an unsuccessful one.] In the third line of his comment, Whitney wrote, "The vāçānām of our text" etc. (3d error). This I corrected to vaçānām, and added, in a note near the end of the paragraph, that the conjecture was "Misprinted vaçānām." My note about the misprint was rightly printed in the second proof; but in the foundry proof, by some mishap, it stood "Misprinted vaçānam." (4th error). The fourth error I hope to amend successfully in the plate.

General significance of Whitney's work. — Its design, says Whitney (above, p. xix, Announcement), is "to put together as much as possible of the material that is to help toward the study and final comprehension of this Veda." Thus expressly did the author disavow any claim to finality for his work. As for the translation, on the one hand, the Announcement shows that he regarded it as wholly subordinate to his commentary; and I can give no better statement of the principles which have guided him in making it, than is found in the extracts from a critical essay by Whitney which I have reprinted (above, p. xix), and from which moreover we may infer that he fully recognized the purely provisional character of his translation. I am sorry that infelicities of expression in the translation, which are part and parcel of the author's extreme literalness (see p. xciv) and do not really go below the surface of the work, are (as is said below, p. xcvi) the very things that are the most striking for the non-technical reader who examines the book casually.

As for the commentary, on the other hand, it is plain that, taking the work as a whole, he has done just what he designed to do. Never before has the material for the critical study of an extensive Vedic text been so comprehensively and systematically gathered from so multifarious sources. The commentary will long maintain for itself a place of first-rate importance as an indispensable working-tool for the purposes which it is designed to serve. I have put together (below, pages xcii-xciii) a few examples to illustrate the ways in which the commentary will prove useful. A variety of special investigations, moreover, will readily suggest themselves to competent students of the commentary; and the subsidiary results that are thus to be won (the "by-products," so to say), are likely, I am convinced, to be abundant and of large interest and value. Furthermore, we may confidently believe that Whitney's labors will incidentally put the whole discipline of Vedic criticism upon a broader and firmer basis.

Need of a systematic commentary on the Rig-Veda. — Finally, Whitney seems to me to have made it plain that a similar commentary is the indispensable preliminary for the final comprehension of the Rig-Veda. That commentary should be as much better and as much wider in its scope as it can be made by the next generation of scholars; for it will certainly not be the work of any one man alone. It is a multifarious work for which many elaborate preparations need yet to be made. Thus the parallel passages from the Rig-Veda and the other texts must be noted with completeness on the margin of the Rik Saṁhitā opposite the pādas concerned; for this task Bloomfield's Vedic Concordance is likely to be the most important single instrument. Thus, again, Brāhmaṇa, Çrāuta, Gṛhya, and other texts appurtenant to the Rig-Veda, together with Epic and later texts, should all be systematically read by scholars familiar with Vedic themes and diction, and with an eye open to covert allusion and reference, and should be completely excerpted with the Rik Samhitā in hand and with constant references made opposite the Rik verses to the ancillary or illustrative passages which bear upon them. It is idle folly to pretend that this last work would not be immensely facilitated by a large mass of translations¹ of the more difficult texts, accurately made, and provided with all possible ingenious contrivances for finding out quickly the relations between the ancillary texts and the fundamental ones. Thus to have demonstrated the necessity for so far-reaching an undertaking, may prove to be not the least of Whitney's services to Vedic scholarship.

The Century Dictionary. — Doubtless much of the best of Whitney's strength through nearly ten of his closing years was given to the work devolving on him as editor-in-chief of The Century Dictionary, an Encyclopedic Lexicon of the English Language (see p. lx, below). But for that, he might perhaps have brought out this commentary himself. Since I, more than any one else, have personal reasons to regret that he did not do so, there is perhaps a peculiar fitness in my saying that I am glad that he did not. Whoever has visited for example the printing-offices which make the metropolitan district of Boston one of the great centers of book-production for America, and has seen the position of authority which is by them accorded to that admirable work, and has reflected upon the powerful influence which, through the millions of volumes that are affected by its authority, it must thus exercise in the shaping of the growth of our English language, — such an one cannot fail to see that Whitney was broad-minded and wise in accepting the opportunity of superintending the work of its production, even at the risk of not living to see the appearance of the already long-delayed Atharva-Veda. Perhaps his most potent influence upon his day and generation is through his labors upon the Century Dictionary.

Acknowledgments. — I desire in the first place to make public acknowledgment of my gratitude to the late Henry Clarke Warren of Cambridge. He had been my pupil at Baltimore; and, through almost twenty years of intimate acquaintance and friendship, we had been associated in our Indian studies. To his enlightened appreciation of their value and potential usefulness is due the fact that these dignified volumes can now be issued; for during his lifetime he gave to Harvard University in sundry instalments the funds with which to pay for the printing of Whitney's commentary. Whitney was professor at Yale; the editor is an alumnus of Yale and a teacher at Harvard; and Warren was an alumnus of Harvard. That the two Universities should thus join hands is a matter which the friends of both may look upon with pleasure, and it furnishes the motif for the dedication of this work. But I am glad to say that learning, as well as money, was at Mr. Warren's command for the promotion of science. Before his death there was issued his collection of translations from the Pāli which forms the third volume of this Series and is entitled "Buddhism in Translations," a useful and much-used book. Moreover, he has left, in an advanced state of preparation for press, a carefully made edition and a partial translation of the Pāli text of Buddhaghosa's famous encyclopedic treatise of Buddhism entitled "The Way of Purity" or Visuddhi-Magga. It is with gladness and hope that I now address myself to the arduous and happy labor of carrying Mr. Warren's edition through the press.

Next I desire to express my hearty thanks to my former pupil, Dr. Arthur W. Ryder, now Instructor in Sanskrit at Harvard University, for his help in the task of verifying references and statements and of reading proofs. He came to assist me not long after the close of his studies with Professor Geldner, when I had got through with a little more than one third of the main body of Whitney's commentary and translation. For books i.-vii., I had revised the manuscript and sent it to press, leaving the verification to be done with the proof-reading and from the proof-sheets. Dr. Ryder's help began with the verification and proof-reading of the latter half of book vi.; but from the beginning of book viii., it seemed better that he should forge ahead and do the verification from the manuscript itself, and leave me to follow with the revision and the supplying of the missing portions and so on. His work proved to be so thoroughly conscientious and accurate that I was glad to trust him, except of course in cases where a suspicion of error was aroused in one or both of us. A few times he has offered a suggestion of his own; that given at p. 739 is so keen and convincing that greater boldness on his part would not have been unwelcome. To my thanks I join the hope that health and other opportunities may long be his for achieving the results of which his literary sense and scholarly ideals give promise.

Mrs. Whitney, upon turning over to me her husband's manuscript of this work, together with his other manuscript material therefor, was so kind as to lend me a considerable number of his printed books, some of which, in particular his copy of the Kāuṣika Sūtra, have been a great convenience by reason of their manuscript annotations. It is a pleasure to be able to make to Mrs. Whitney this public expression of my thanks.

To my neighbor, Miss Maria Whitney, I am indebted for the loan of the medallion from which the noble portrait of her brother, opposite page xliii, has been made. The medallion is a replica of the one in the Library of Yale University, and is a truthful likeness.

Of an occasional friendly turn from Professors Theobald Smith, George F. Moore, and Bloomfield, and from Dr. George A. Grierson, I have already made note (see pages 242, 756, 983, 243). Professors Bloomfield and Garbe allowed me to reproduce here a specimen leaf from their beautiful facsimile of the Kashmirian text. Professors Cappeller and Hopkins and Jacobi were so good as to criticize my Sanskrit verses.¹ In particular, I thank my colleague, Professor Morris H. Morgan, for his kindness in putting the dedication into stately Latin phrase.

It is with no small satisfaction that I make public mention of the admirable work of the Athenæum Press (situated in Cambridge) of Messrs. Ginn and Company of Boston. The Hindus sometimes liken human effort to one wheel of a cart. Fate, indeed, may be the other; but our destiny, they say, is not accomplished without both elements, just as there is no progress without both wheels. It is so with a book: good copy is one wheel; and a good printing-office is the other. Whitney's long experience was guarantee for the prior requisite; and the other I have not found lacking. The way has been a long one, with plenty of places for rough jolting and friction; but the uniform kindness and the alert and intelligent helpfulness of all with whom I have had to do at the Press have made our progress smooth, and I am sincerely grateful.

Human personality and the progress of science. — Had Whitney lived to see this work in print and to write the preface, his chief tribute of grateful acknowledgment would doubtless have been to his illustrious preceptor and colleague and friend whose toil had so largely increased its value, to Rudolph Roth of Tübingen. Whitney, who was my teacher, and Roth, who was my teacher's teacher and my own teacher, both are passed away, and Death has given the work to me to finish, or rather to bring nearer to an ideal and so unattainable completeness. They are beyond the reach of human thanks, of praise or blame: but I cannot help feeling that even in their life-time they understood that Science is concerned only with results, not with personalities, or (in Hindu phrase) that the Goddess of Learning, Sarasvatī or Vāc, cares not to ask even so much as the names of her votaries; and that the unending progress of Science is indeed like the endless flow of a river.

¹ These, I trust, will not be wholly displeasing to my pundit-friends in India, who, as they will find the thought in part un-Indian, will not, I hope, forget that it was primarily and designedly conceived in Occidental form. Their great master, Daṇḍin, has a kind word for men in my case at the close of the first chapter of his Poetics.

Teacher and teacher's teacher long had wrought
Upon these tomes of ancient Hindu lore,
Till Death did give to one whom both had taught
The task to finish, when they were no more.

'Tis finished,—yet unfinished, like the flow
Of water-streams between their banks that glide;
For Learning's streams, that down the ages go,
Flow on for ever with a swelling tide.

Here plodding labor brings its affluent brook;
There genius, like a river, pours amain:
While Learning—ageless, deathless—scarce will look
To note which ones have toiled her love to gain.

Alike to her are river, brook, and rill,
That in her stately waters so combine,
If only all who choose may drink their fill,
And slake the thirst to know, the thirst divine.

The Gītā's lesson had our Whitney learned—
To do for duty, not for duty's meed.
And, paid or unpaid be the thanks he earned,
The thanks he recked not, recked alone the deed.

Here stands his book, a mighty instrument,
Which those to come may use for large emprise.
Use it, O scholar, ere thy day be spent.
The learner dieth, Learning never dies.

WILLIAM DWIGHT WHITNEY
1827-1894

BRIEF SKETCH OF WHITNEY'S LIFE

BY THE EDITOR

William Dwight Whitney was born at Northampton, Massachusetts, February 9, 1827, and died at New Haven, Connecticut, on Thursday, June 7, 1894, aged sixty-seven years and nearly four months. He was son of Josiah Dwight and Sarah (Williston) Whitney. The father, Josiah Dwight Whitney (1786-1869), was born in Westfield, oldest son of Abel Whitney (Harvard, 1773) and of Clarissa Dwight, daughter of Josiah Dwight. The mother was daughter of the Rev. Payson Williston (Yale, 1783) of Easthampton, and sister of the Hon. Samuel Williston, the founder of Williston Seminary. The father was a business man in Northampton, and later manager, first as cashier and then as president, of the Northampton Bank, and was widely and honorably known for his ability and integrity. William was one of a goodly family of children, of whom may be named, as devoted to scientific and literary pursuits, the eldest, Josiah Dwight Whitney (Yale, 1839), for a long time the head of the Geological Survey of California and from 1865 to 1896 Professor of Geology in Harvard University; Miss Maria Whitney, the first incumbent of the chair of Modern Languages in Smith College; James Lyman Whitney (Yale, 1856), since 1869 a member of the Administrative Staff of the Boston Public Library and its head from 1899 to 1903; and Henry Mitchell Whitney (Yale, 1864), from 1871 to 1899 Professor of English in Beloit College.

Whitney made his preparation for college entirely in the free public schools of his native town, entered the Sophomore class of Williams College in 1842, and was graduated in 1845. He then spent three full years in service in the bank, under his father. Early in 1848 he took up the study of Sanskrit. In the spring of 1849 he left the bank; spent the summer as assistant in the Geological Survey of the Lake Superior region, and in the autumn went for a year to New Haven, to continue his Sanskrit studies under Professor Edward E. Salisbury and in company with James Hadley, and to prepare for a visit to Germany, already planned. On May 22, 1850, he was elected a corporate member of the American Oriental Society. He sailed (for Bremen) September 20, 1850. The next three winters were passed by him in Berlin and the summers of 1851 and 1852 in Tübingen, chiefly under the instruction of Professors

Albrecht Weber¹ and Rudolph Roth respectively, but also of Professor Lepsius and others. Already during his first summer with Roth, the edition of the Atharva-Veda was planned.² In October, 1851, he began copying the Berlin manuscripts of the text, and finished that work in March, 1852. Leaving Berlin³ in March, 1853, he stayed seven weeks in Paris, three in Oxford, and seven in London (collating Sanskrit manuscripts), and then returned to America, arriving in Boston August 5.

Before quitting Germany, he received an invitation to return to Yale College as Professor of Sanskrit, but not until August, 1854, did he go there to remain. His election was dated May 10, 1854, so that his term of service exceeded forty years. The events of such a life as his are, so far as they concern the outside world, little else than the succession of classes instructed and of literary labors brought to a conclusion. It may be noted, however, that very soon after their marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Whitney went, partly for health and partly for study,⁴ to spend somewhat less than a year in France and Italy (November, 1856 to July, 1857), passing several months at Rome. In 1873 he took part in the summer campaign of the Hayden exploring expedition in Colorado, passing two full months on horseback and under canvas, coursing over regions which in good part had been till then untrodden by the feet of white men, and seeing Nature in her naked grandeur — mounting some nine times up to or beyond the altitude of 14,000 feet. In the summer of 1875 Mr. Whitney visited England and Germany,⁵ mainly for the collection of further material for the Atharva-Veda. In 1878 he went to Europe with his wife and daughters, to write out his Sanskrit Grammar and carry it through the press, and spent there fifteen months, chiefly at Berlin and Gotha.

¹ In a letter to Salisbury from Weber (see JAOS. iii. 215), dated Berlin, March 29, 1851, Weber writes: "I have already had the pleasure of instructing two of your countrymen in Sanskrit, Mr. Wales and Mr. Whitney. Mr. Whitney certainly entitles us to great hopes, as he combines earnestness and diligence with a sound and critical judgment. I hope to induce him to undertake an edition of the Tāittiriya-Āraṇyaka, one of the most interesting Vedic Scriptures." Whitney's fellow-student was Dr. Henry Ware Wales (Harvard, 1838), who had already, nearly two years before, by a will dated April 24, 1849, provided for the endowment of the Wales Professorship of Sanskrit in Harvard University, which was established in due course January 26, 1903, and to which the editor of these volumes was elected March 23, 1903.

Of Whitney's scientific writings, the most important ones¹ (since they are scattered among many other bibliographical items: pages lvi to lxi) may here be briefly enumerated in several groups of related works. — 1. The edition of the Atharva-Veda; the Alphabetisches Verzeichniss der Versanfänge der Atharva-Samhitā; the Atharva-Veda Prātiçākhyā; the Index Verborum; to which must now be added the two present volumes of critical commentary and translation. In the same general category belongs his Tāittirīya Prātiçākhyā. As a part of the fruit of his Sanskrit studies must be mentioned also the Sūrya-Siddhānta; and, finally, his Sanskrit Grammar, with its Supplement, The Roots, Verb-forms, and Primary Derivatives of the Sanskrit Language. — 2. His chief contributions to general linguistics are comprised in his Language and the Study of Language and in the two series of Oriental and Linguistic Studies and in his Life and Growth of Language. Here may be mentioned his article on "Language" in Johnson's Cyclopædia (vol. ii., 1876) and that on "Philology" in the Encyclopædia Britannica (vol. xviii., 1885). — 3. His principal text-books are his German Grammars (a larger and a smaller) and Reader and Dictionary, his Essentials of English Grammar, and his French Grammar. Important as an influence upon the conservation and growth of the English language is his part in the making of The Century Dictionary (see p. xxxviii).

Of Whitney's minor writings, those which he included in the Yale Bibliographies (p. lvi, below) extending to 1892, with a few others, are enumerated in the List below. A much fuller list, comprising 360 numbers, was published in the Memorial Volume, pages 121-150. One reason for putting some of the lesser papers into the last-mentioned list was to show the versatility of Mr. Whitney's mind and the wide range of his interests.

Mr. Whitney's services to science were recognized by scholars and learned corporations. Thus he received the honorary degree of Doctor of Philosophy from the University of Breslau in 1861; that of Doctor of Laws from Williams College in 1868, from the College of William and Mary (Virginia) in 1869, from the University of St. Andrews (Scotland) in 1874, from Harvard in 1876, and from the University of Edinburgh in 1889. He was a member of the American Philosophical Society (Philadelphia) and of the National Academy of Sciences (Washington). He was an honorary member of the Oriental or Asiatic societies of Great Britain and Ireland, of Japan, of Germany, of Bengal, of Peking, and of Italy; and of the Philological Society of London. He was a member or correspondent of the Royal Academy of Berlin, of the Royal Irish Academy, of the Imperial Academy of St. Petersburg, of the Institute of France, of the Royal Academy in Turin, of the Lincei in Rome, of the Royal Danish Academy, and so on. He was a Fellow of the Royal Society of Edinburgh. In 1881 he was made a Foreign Knight of the Prussian Order pour le mérite, being elected to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of Thomas Carlyle.

On the 27th of August, 1856, Mr. Whitney married Miss Elizabeth Wooster Baldwin, daughter of Roger Sherman and Emily (Perkins) Baldwin of New Haven. Mr. Baldwin, a lawyer of the highest rank, had been Governor of Connecticut and Senator in Congress, and inherited his name from his grandfather, Roger Sherman, a signer of the Declaration of Independence, and one of the committee charged with drawing it up. Miss Baldwin was a great-great-granddaughter of Thomas Clap, President of Yale from 1740 to 1766. Mr. and Mrs. Whitney had six children, three sons and three daughters. The daughters, Marian Parker and Emily Henrietta and Margaret Dwight, with their mother, survive their father; as does also one son, Edward Baldwin, a lawyer of New York City, Assistant Attorney-General of the United States from 1893 to 1897. He married Josepha, daughter of Simon Newcomb, the astronomer, and one of their children, born August 26, 1899, bears the name of his grandfather, William Dwight Whitney.

MEMORIAL ADDRESS

Delivered by the Editor at the First American Congress of Philologists, Whitney Memorial Meeting, December, 1894

AN ESTIMATE OF WHITNEY'S CHARACTER AND SERVICES

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN, — There are some among us who can remember the time when "a certain condescension in foreigners" easily gave us pain. There was little achievement behind us as a people to awaken us to national self-consciousness and to a realizing sense of our own great possibilities. Time is changing all that. The men have come, and some, alas! are already gone, of whose achievements we may well be proud wherever we are. In the battles for the conquests of truth there are no distinctions of race. It needs no international congress to tell us that we belong to one great army. But to-night — as the very titles of these gathered societies show — Science has marshalled us, her fifties and her hundreds, as Americans. We look for the centurion, for the captain of the fifties; and he is no more! And we call, as did David, lamenting for Abner, "Know ye not that there is a prince and a great man fallen this day in Israel," yea, and like Jonathan, "in the midst of the battle?"

It is in the spirit of generous laudation that we are assembled to do honor to our illustrious countryman. And it is well. We may praise him now; for he is gone. But I cannot help thinking of a touching legend of the Buddha. Nigh fifty years he has wandered up and down in Ganges-land, teaching and preaching. And now he is about to die. Flowers fall from the sky and heavenly quires are heard to sing his praise. "But not by all this," he answers, — "but not by all this, O Ananda, is the Teacher honored; but the disciple who shall fulfil all the greater and lesser duties, — by him is the Teacher honored." It is fitting, then, that we pause, not merely to praise the departed, but also to consider the significance of a noble life, and the duties and responsibilities which so great an example urges upon us, — in short, the lesson of a life of service.

It would be vain to endeavor, within the narrow limits which the present occasion imposes, to rehearse or to characterize with any completeness the achievements that make up this remarkable life. Many accounts¹ of it have been given of late in the public prints. Permit me rather to lay before you, by way of selection merely, a few facts concerning Mr. Whitney which may serve to illustrate certain essential features of his character and fundamental motives of his life.

And indubitably first in importance no less than in natural order is the great fact of his heredity. William Dwight Whitney was born, in 1827, at Northampton, Massachusetts, and in his veins flowed the best blood of a typical New England community, of the Dwights and the Hawleys, — heroes of the heroic age of Hampshire. His stock was remarkable for sturdy vigor, both of body and of intellect, and was in fact that genuine aristocracy which, if it be true to its traditions, will remain — as for generations it has been — one of the prime guarantees of the permanence of democracy in America. Few places in this land have produced a proportionately greater number of distinguished people than has Northampton. Social advantages were thus added to those of birth, and to all these in turn the advantages of dwelling in a region of great natural beauty.

It was in William Whitney's early infancy that his father moved into a dwelling built on the precise site of the Jonathan Edwards house. This dwelling was the second in a row of six neighboring houses, all of which could boast of more or less notable occupants. In the first lived Dr. Seeger, who was educated at the same school and time as Schiller, at "the Solitude." Beyond the Whitneys' was the house in which lived Lewis S. Hopkins, the father of Edward W. Hopkins, the Sanskrit scholar of Bryn Mawr. The fourth was the original homestead of the Timothy Dwights, in which the first Yale President of that name, and Theodore, the Secretary of the Hartford Convention and founder of the New York "Daily Advertiser," were born, both grandsons of Jonathan Edwards. The adjoining place was the home of the elder Sylvester Judd, and of his son Sylvester, the author of "Margaret;" and the sixth house was occupied by the Italian political exile, Gherardi, and later by Dr. William Allen, ex-President of Bowdoin College.

Whitney was a mere boy of fifteen when he entered Williams College as a sophomore. Three years later (in 1845) he had easily outstripped all his classmates and graduated with the highest honors; and with all that, he found ample time to range the wooded hills of Berkshire, collecting birds, which he himself set up for the Natural History Society. The next three or four years were spent by him as clerk in the Northampton Bank, with accounts for his work, German and Swedish for his studies, ornithology and botany for his recreations, and music for his delight, — unless one should rather say that all was his delight. These oft-mentioned studies in natural history I should not linger over, save that their deep significance has hardly been adverted upon in public. They mean that, even at this early age, Whitney showed the stuff which distinguishes the genuine man of science from the jobbers and peddlers of learning. They mean that, with him, the gift of independent and accurate observation was inborn, and that the habit of unprejudiced reflection upon what he himself saw was easily acquired.

This brings us to a critical period in the determination of his career. In the encyclopedias, Whitney is catalogued as a famous Indianist, and so indeed he was. But it was not because he was an Indianist that he was famous. Had he devoted his life to the physical or natural sciences, he would doubtless have attained to equal, if not greater eminence. Truly, it is not the what, but the how! That he did devote himself to Indology appears to be due to several facts which were in themselves and in their concomitance accidental. First, his elder brother, Josiah, now the distinguished professor of geology in Harvard University, on his return from Europe in 1847, had brought with him books in and on many languages, and among them a copy of the second edition of Bopp's Sanskrit Grammar. Second, it chanced that the Rev. George E. Day, a college-mate at Yale of Professor Salisbury, was Whitney's pastor. And third, he met with Eduard Desor.

There is in possession of Professor Whitney of Harvard a well-worn volume of his father's called the Family Fact-book. It is, I am sure, no breach of confidence if I say, in passing, that this book, with its varied entries in all varied moods and by divers gifted hands, is the reflex of a most remarkable family life and feeling. In it, among many other things, are brief autobiographic annals of the early life of William Whitney, and in its proper place the following simple entry: "In the winter of 1848-49 commenced the study of Sanskrit, encouraged to it by Rev. George E. Day. In June, 1849, went out with Josiah to Lake Superior as 'assistant sub-agent' on the Geological Survey." To William Whitney were intrusted the botany, the barometrical observations, and the accounts. And although the ornithology was not formally intrusted to him, there is abundant evidence that he was habitually on the look-out for the birds, with keen eye and with attentive ear. He must, already, in the spring, have made substantial progress by himself in Sanskrit; for his article (almost the first that he published) entitled "On the Sanskrit Language," a translation and abridgment of von Bohlen, appeared in the August number of the "Bibliotheca Sacra" for 1849, and must therefore have been finished before he left home. With him, accordingly, he took his brother's copy of Bopp.

Besides the two brothers, there was a third man-of-power in the little company that spent the summer among the swamps and mosquitoes of the great copper region. That man was Eduard Desor, already a young naturalist of distinction, and afterward famous both in science and in public life in Switzerland. He had come only a short time before, with Agassiz, and as his friend and intimate associate in scientific undertakings, from Neuchâtel to Cambridge. He was by nature full of the purest love for science; and that love had been quickened to ardent enthusiasm by his own work, and by his intercourse with other bright minds and eager workers whom he had known in Paris and Neuchâtel and in the Swiss glacier-camps of Agassiz. Small wonder if the intimate relations of that summer's camp-life in common gave opportunity for potent influence of the brilliant young Huguenot upon the brilliant young Puritan. It is to Desor, and to his words and example, that my Cambridge colleague attributes in large measure his brother's determination to devote himself to a life of science rather than to business or to one of the learned professions. That the chosen department was Sanskrit may be ascribed in part to the accident of the books thrown in his way; in part to the interest of the language and antiquities of India, intrinsically and as related to our own; and in part to the undeniable fascination which the cultivation of the virgin soil of an almost untrodden field has for a mind of unusual energy, vigor, and originality.

William Whitney has left a full and interesting journal of this summer. Tuesday, July 24, while waiting for the uncertain propeller to come and rescue them from the horrible insect pests, he writes from Copper Harbor: "For my part, I intend attacking Sanskrit grammar to-morrow." And then, on Wednesday: "I have, after all, managed to get thro the day without having recourse to the Sanskrit, but it has been a narrow escape." And five weeks later, from Carp River: "Another day of almost inaction, most intolerable and difficult to be borne. How often have I longed for that Sanskrit grammar which I so foolishly sent down before me to the Sault!"

The autumn of 1849, accordingly, found him at New Haven, and in company with Professor Hadley, studying under Edward Elbridge Salisbury, the Professor of the Arabic and Sanskrit Languages and Literature. The veteran Indologist of Berlin, Professor Weber, has said that he and Professor Roth account it as one of their fairest honors that they had Whitney as a pupil. To have had both a Whitney and a Hadley at once is surely an honor that no American teacher in the departments here represented this evening can match. In a man whose soul was beclouded with the slightest mist of false pretension or of selfishness, we may well imagine that the progress of such pupils might easily have occasioned a pang of jealousy. But Mr. Salisbury's judgment upon them illuminates his own character no less than that of his pupils when he says, "Their quickness of perception and unerring exactness of acquisition soon made it evident that the teacher and the taught must change places."

We have come to the transition period of Whitney's life. He is still a pupil, but already also an incipient master. "1850, Sept. 20. Sailed for Germany in the steamer Washington. Spent three winters in Berlin, studying especially with Dr. Weber, and two summers in Tübingen, Württemberg, with Professor Roth." Thus runs the entry in the Fact-book. A few lines later we read: "Leaving Berlin in April, 1853, stayed six weeks in Paris, three in Oxford, and seven in London (collating Sanskrit manuscripts), and then returned in the steamer Niagara, arriving in Boston Aug. 5." Such is the modest record that covers the three momentous years of the beginning of a splendid scientific career. For in this brief space he had not only laid broad and deep foundations, by studies in Persian, Arabic, Egyptian, and Coptic, but had also done a large part of the preliminary work for the edition of the Atharva-Veda,—as witness the volumes on the table before you, which contain his Berlin copy of that Veda and his Paris, Oxford, and London collations.

Meantime, however, at Yale, his honored teacher and faithful friend, Professor Salisbury, "with true and self-forgetting zeal for the progress of Oriental studies" (these are Mr. Whitney's own words), had been diligently preparing the way for him; negotiating with the corporation for the establishment of a chair of Sanskrit, surrendering pro tanto his own office, and providing for the endowment of the new cathedra; leaving, in short, no stone unturned to insure the fruitful activity of his young colleague. Nor did hope wait long upon fulfilment; for in 1856, only a trifle more than two years from his induction, Whitney had, as joint editor with Professor Roth, achieved a most distinguished service for science by the issue of the editio princeps of the Atharva-Veda, and that before he was thirty.

In September, 1869,—that is to say, in the very month in which began the first college year of President Eliot's administration,—Whitney was called to Harvard. It reflects no less credit upon Mr. Eliot's discernment of character and attainments than upon Mr. Whitney's surpassing gifts that the youthful president should turn to him, among the very first, for aid in helping to begin the great work of transforming the provincial college into a national university. The prospect of losing such a man was matter of gravest concernment to all Yale College, and in particular to her faithful benefactor, Professor Salisbury. Within a week the latter had provided for the endowment of Mr. Whitney's chair upon the ampler scale made necessary by the change of the times; and the considerations which made against the transplanting of the deeply rooted tree had, unhappily for Harvard, their chance to prevail, and Whitney remained at New Haven.

It was during his studies under Mr. Salisbury, in May, 1850, that he was elected a member of the American Oriental Society. Mr. Salisbury was the life and soul of the Society, and, thanks to his learning, his energy, and his munificence, the organization had already attained to "standing and credit in the world of scholars." Like him, Mr. Whitney was a steadfast believer in the obligation of which the very existence of these assembled societies is an acknowledgment,—the obligation of professional men to help in "co-operative action in behalf of literary and scientific progress;" and, more than that, to do so at real personal sacrifice.

The first meeting at which Mr. Whitney was present was held October 26, 1853. More than thirty-three years passed, and he wrote from the sick-room: "It is the first time in thirty-two years that I have been absent from a meeting of the American Oriental Society, except when out of the country." His first communication to the Society was read by Mr. Salisbury, October 13, 1852; and his last, in March, 1894, at the last meeting before his death. Of the seven volumes, vi.—xii., of the Society's Journal, more than half of the contents are from his pen, to say nothing of his numerous and important papers in the Proceedings. In 1857, the most onerous office of the Society, that of Corresponding Secretary, which from the beginning carried with it the duty of editing the publications, was devolved upon him; and he bore its burdens for twenty-seven years. Add to this eighteen years as Librarian and six as President, and we have an aggregate of fifty-one years of official service. The American Philological Association, too, is under deep obligation to Whitney. He was one of its founders, and, very fittingly, its first president. For many years he was one of the most constant attendants at its meetings, a valued counsellor, and one of its most faithful helpers and contributors.

Some might think it a matter of little importance, but it is certainly a significant one, that, after paying his Oriental Society assessments for about thirty-five years, at last, and when facing mortal illness, he paid over the considerable sum required to make himself a life member. A little later, — for the candle still burned, — and with strictest injunction of secrecy during his lifetime, he sent to the Treasurer his check for a thousand dollars of his modest savings, to help toward defraying the Society's expenses of publication, and in the hope that it might serve as a "suggestion and encouragement to others to do likewise."

Added to all this was his service in keeping up the very high scientific standard of the Society's publications. The work of judging and selecting required wide knowledge, and the making of abstracts much labor; while the revision or recasting of the papers of tyros unskilled in writing demanded endless painstaking, not always met by gratitude and docility. All this cost him a lavish bestowal of time, of which hardly any one in the Society knew, and that for the reason that he took no steps to have them know. So exemplary was his freedom from self-seeking in all his relations with the Society.

The rehearsal of the titles of Mr. Whitney's books and treatises would give to this address too much the character of a bibliographical essay; and, besides, it would merely tend to impress hearers who are accustomed to count volumes rather than to weigh them. His distinguishing qualities, as reflected in his work, are everywhere so palpable that it is not hard to describe them. Perhaps the most striking and pervading one is that which Professor Lounsbury calls his "thorough intellectual sanity." In reading his arguments, whether constructive or critical, one can hardly help exclaiming, How near to first principles are the criteria of the most advanced theories and high-stepping deliverances! With him, the impulse to prick the bubble of windy hypothesis upon the diamond-needle (as the Hindus call it) of hard common-sense was often irresistible, and sometimes irresistibly funny. Witness this passage from his boyish journal: "On entering the river [the St. Mary's], we found ourselves in an archipelago of small islands, which stretches from the Sault down to the foot of the Georgian Bay. — says [that] — actually visited thirty-six thousand such islands, . . . which in my opinion is a whopper. To have done it, he must have stopped upon ten a day, every day for ten years." This may seem trivial. In fact, it is typical. It is in essence the same kind of treatment that he gave in later life to any loose statement or extravagant theory, although printed in the most dignified journal and propounded by the most redoubtable authority.

Breadth and thoroughness are ever at war with each other in men, for that men are finite. The gift of both in large measure and at once, — this marks the man of genius. That the gift was Whitney's is clear to any one who considers the versatility of his mind, the variousness of his work, and the quality of his results. As professor of Sanskrit, technical work in grammar, lexicography, text-criticism, and the like, lay nearest to him; but with all this, he still found strength to illuminate by his insight many questions of general linguistic theory, the origin of language, phonetics, the difficult subject of Hindu astronomy and the question of its derivation, the method and technique of translation, the science of religion, mythology, linguistic ethnology, alphabets, and paleography, and much else. Astonishing is the combination of technical knowledge in widely diverse fields which appears in his elaborately annotated translation of the famous Sanskrit astronomical treatise called Sūryasiddhānta, and which, again, he brought to bear upon his criticisms of earlier and later attempts to determine the age of the Veda by its references to solar eclipses, and by its alleged implications respecting the place of the equinoctial colures.

But not only in respect of contents were Whitney's writings of conspicuous merit ; he had also the sense of form and proportion, — that sense for lack of which the writings of many a scholar of equal learning are almost nugatory. At twenty-two, his English style had the charms of simplicity, clearness, and vigor, and they held out to the last. And what could be more admirable than his beautiful essay, — a veritable classic, — "The Vedic Doctrine of a Future Life"? His subjects, indeed, if treated seriously, do not lend themselves to the graces of rhetorical or ornate writing ; and his concise and pregnant periods sometimes mock the flippant or listless reader. But his presentation, whether of argument or of scientific generalization, is always a model of lucidity, of orderly exposition, and of due subordination of the parts. This was a matter on which he felt deeply ; for his patience was often sorely tried by papers for whose slovenliness in diction, arrangement, and all the externals of which he was a master, the authors fondly thought that their erudition was forsooth an excuse.

Indeed, for the matter of printer's manuscript, more than once has Boehlingk, the Nestor of Indianists, taxed him home with making it too good, declaring it a wicked sin to put time on such things, though playfully admitting the while that he had killed off with his own desperate copy I cannot remember how many luckless type-setters in the office of the Russian Academy.

Where there was so much of the best, it is not feasible to go into details about all. Yet I cannot omit mention of some of his masterpieces. Very notable is his "Language and the Study of Language," — a work of wide currency, and one which has done more than any other in this country to promote sound and intelligent views upon the subjects concerned. It deals with principles, with speculative questions, and with broad generalizations, — the very things in which his mastery of material, self-restraint, even balance of mind, and rigorous logic come admirably into play.

Of a wholly different type, but not one whit inferior withal, are his Prātiçākhyas. These are the phonetico-grammatical treatises upon the text of the Vedas, and are of prime importance for the establishment of the text. Their distinguishing feature is minutiae, of marvellous exactness, but presented in such a form that no one with aught less than a tropical Oriental contempt for the value of time can make anything out of them as they stand. Whitney not only out-Hindus the Hindu for minutiae, but also — such is his command of form — actually recasts the whole, so that it becomes a book of easy reference.

As for the joint edition of the Atharva-Veda, it is a most noteworthy fact that it has held its own now for thirty-eight years as an unsurpassed model of what a Vedic text-edition ought to be. His "Index Verborum to the Atharva-Veda," a work of wonderful completeness and accuracy, is much more than its name implies, and may not pass without brief mention, inasmuch as its material formed the basis of his contributions to the Sanskrit-German lexicon published by the Imperial Academy of Russia. This great seven-volumed quarto, whose steady progress through the press took some three and twenty years, is the Sanskrit Stephanus. Americans may well be proud of the fact that to Whitney belongs the distinguished honor of being one of the four "faithful collaborators" who, next to the authors, Boehtlingk and Roth, contributed most to this monumental work.

Of all his technical works, his "Sanskrit Grammar," with its elaborate supplement, "The Roots, Verb-forms, and Primary Derivatives of the Sanskrit Language," forms the crowning achievement. Here he casts off the bonds of tradition wherever they might hamper his free scientific procedure, and approaches the phenomena of language in essentially the same spirit and attitude of mind as that in which Darwin or Helmholtz grappled the problems of their sciences. The language is treated historically, and as the product of life and growth; and the work is filled with the results of scores of minute and far-reaching special investigations. The amount of material which is here subjected to rigorous and original methods of classification and scientific induction is enormous; and none but those who were familiar with his writing-table can well realize the self-restraint that he used in order to bring his results into moderate compass.

In all these technical works there is little that appeals to the popular imagination, and absolutely nothing to catch the applause of the groundlings; but much, on the other hand, to win the confidence of the judicious. It was therefore natural that Whitney should be sought as editor-in-chief for what is in every sense by far the greatest lexicographical achievement of America, "The Century Dictionary." And despite the ability and size of the editorial staff, we may well believe that this office was no sinecure; for the settlement of the principles of procedure demanded the full breadth of learning, the largeness of view, and the judicial temper of a master mind. Among the great body of his countrymen, this will be Whitney's best-known monument.

Mr. Whitney was a genuine lover of nature and of the world out of doors no less than of his books; and so, with his keen sense of humor and love of fun, he was a charming companion for the woods and hills. Physical courage, too, abounded, often with a daring impulse to meet bodily risk and danger, as when he climbed the so-called Look-off Pine, about one hundred and thirty feet high, a monarch overtopping the primeval forests of the Ontonagon River, and broke off its top as a trophy; or as when, with his brother, he indulged in the youthful escapade of passing the forbidden point of the spire of Strasburg Cathedral by clambering out and around the point of obstruction on the outside, and of mounting thence toward the summit as far as there was any opening within the spire large enough to contain a man's body. He was intensely American, in the best sense of the word; and his patriotism, aside from its loftier manifestations (of which a moment later), showed itself in some lesser ways not unpleasing to recall. In describing his passage through the wilds of the Detroit River, he says in that youthful journal, "There was little difference in the appearance of the two sides; but I endeavored to persuade myself that the American offered evidence of more active and successful industry than the British."

I venture to quote in part the words and in part the substance of a recent letter from one of his old pupils. There is no one, said this pupil, whose privilege it was to know him more intimately, who could not speak of the deep tenderness underlying his ordinary reserve, of his profound sympathy with difficulty and misfortune, and of his ever-steadfast loyalties. Of the last a touching illustration is found in his remembrance of the Schaal family, in whose house auf dem Graben he lodged during his Tübingen summers of 1851 and 1852. Nearly forty years later he wrote to this pupil, then in Tübingen, asking him to seek out the Schaals, and to be the bearer of kindly messages to them. Fräulein Schaal spoke of the delight her mother and herself had felt at the messages sent them by the professor who had become so celebrated, but who had not forgotten them, and showed the visitor Professor Whitney's room, all unchanged, a typical Studentensimmer; in the middle, a long plain table, and by it an uncushioned arm-chair. That, said she, was Professor Whitney's chair, and in it he used to sit for hours at that table, almost without moving. When he moved the chair more than a little, I knew that it was time for me to take him his mug of beer, and perchance a bit of bread. And, as a very small girl then, I wondered at the table, which was covered with little bits of paper, which he had arranged in a certain order, and was very particular that no one should disturb. The only adornment which he had in the room was an American flag draped over the mirror; and on the Fourth of July he said he would work an hour less than usual, as it was the anniversary of American independence. The flag was the symbol of a true passion; and in his toils for truth he felt that he was working, first for the welfare, and second for the glory of his country. And as for the latter, how many an American student in Germany has been proud of the generous recognition of Whitney's success! Years ago, continues the letter, I was exchanging a few words with a famous Orientalist. The Herr Professor kindly asked me from what part of America I came. New Jersey, I told him, and his face grew very blank. I know Connecticut, said he. And he knew Connecticut, as did his colleagues, largely because he knew Whitney. So much for the letter of a loving and beloved pupil.

It suggests withal an inquiry: What was the secret of Whitney's great productivity? In the first instance,—it is almost needless to say,—his native gifts. But it is far from true that native gifts are always fruitful. Next to them came his power of discerning what was the really important thing to do, and his habit—self-imposed, and enforced with Spartan rigor—of doing something every working-day upon that really important thing, and, above all, of doing that something first. Such was his regularity that even the dire necessity—which arose in 1882—of moving from one dwelling-house into another did not break it. "Even moving," he writes, "I expect to find consistent with regular doses of Talavakāra, etc." The "art of judicious slighting" was a household word in his family, a weapon of might; its importance to the really great is equalled only by its perilousness in the hands of the unskilful. His plans were formed with circumspection, with careful counting of the cost, and then adhered to with the utmost persistence, so that he left behind him nothing fragmentary. We may change Goldsmith's epitaph to suit the case, and say that Whitney put his hand to nothing that he did not carry out,—nihil quod incepit non perfecit.

And what shall I say of the lesser virtues that graced him? As patient as the earth, say the Hindus. And endless patience was his where patience was in place. And how beautiful was his gentleness, his kindness to those from whom he looked for nothing again, his gratitude to those who did him a service! And how especially well did the calm dignity which was ever his wont become him when he presided at the meetings of learned societies! How notable the brevity with which he presented his papers! No labored reading from a manuscript, but rather a simple and facile account of results. An example, surely! He who had the most to say used in proportion the least time in saying it. And this was indeed of a piece with his most exemplary habit, as editor of the publications of the Oriental Society, of keeping his own name so far in the background. For how genuine was his modesty of bearing, of speech, and of soul!

And in harmony therewith was his reverence for things hallowed.

He counted not himself to have attained,
This doughty toiler on the paths of truth;
And scorned not them who lower heights had reached.

As was his attitude toward things sacred, so also was it toward those who went before him in science. He did not speak sneeringly of what they, with lesser light, had achieved. And to him Aristotle was none the less a giant because some dwarf on a giant's shoulders can see farther than the giant himself.

If I may cite my own words used on a former occasion, Whitney's life-work shows three important lines of activity,—the elaboration of strictly technical works, the preparation of educational treatises, and the popular exposition of scientific questions. The last two methods of public service are direct and immediate, and to be gainsaid of none; yet even here the less immediate results are doubtless the ones by which he would have set most store. As for the first, some may incline to think the value of an edition of the Veda or of a Sanskrit grammar—to say nothing of a Prāṭiçākhyā—extremely remote; they certainly won for him neither money nor popular applause; and yet, again, such are the very works in which we cannot doubt he took the deepest satisfaction. He realized their fundamental character, knew that they were to play their part in unlocking the treasures of Indian antiquity, and knew that that antiquity has its great lessons for us moderns; further, that the history of the languages of India, as it has indeed already modified, is also yet to modify, and that profoundly, the whole teaching of classical and Germanic philology, both in method and in contents; and that the history of the evolution of religions in India is destined to exert a powerful influence for good upon the development of religious thought and life among us and our children. He labored, and other men shall enter into his labors. But it is this "faith, the assurance of things hoped for," — πίστις ἐπιζομένων ὑπόστασις,— which is one of the most vital attributes of the true scholar.

In the autumn of 1886 came the beginning of the end, an alarming disorder of the heart. Adhering closely to a strictly prescribed physical regimen, he labored on, according to his wavering strength, heaping, as it were, the already brimming measure of his life-work. His courage, his patient learning of the art of suffering, his calm serenity in facing the ever-present possibility of sudden death,—this was heroic. And through it all forsook him not the two grand informing motives of his life,—the pure love of truth, and an all-absorbing passion for faithful service.

With this love of truth, this consuming zeal for service, with this public spirit and broad humanity, this absolute truthfulness and genuineness of character, is not this life an inspiration and an example more potent by far than years of exhortation? Is not this truly one of the lives that make for righteousness?

And what then? On the tympanum of the theatre at Harvard are inscribed in the Vulgate version those noble words from the book of Daniel :—

QVI·AVTEM·DOCTI·FVERINT
FVLGEBVNT·QVASI·SPLENDOR·FIRMAMENTI
ET·QVI·AD·IVSTITIAM·ERVDIVNT·MVLTOS
QVASI·STELLAE·IN·PERPETVAS·AETERNITATES

We may say them of him: And they that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament; and they that turn many to righteousness, as the stars for ever and ever.

SELECT LIST OF WHITNEY'S WRITINGS

This list is reprinted with unimportant modifications from the one compiled by Whitney and published at New Haven, 1893, as his part of the Bibliographies of the Present Officers of Yale University. GENERAL INTRODUCTION, PART I.

BY THE EDITOR

General Premises

Scope of this Part of the Introduction. — As stated above, p. xxix, this Part contains much that might, but for its voluminousness, have been put into a preface. The main body of the present work consists of translation and commentary. Of the latter, the constituent elements are mainly text-critical, and their sources may be put under ten headings, as follows :

- | | |
|-------------------------------------|---|
| 1. Vulgate. European mss. | 6. Vulgate. Prātiçākhyā and its comm. |
| 2. Vulgate. Indian mss. | 7. Vulgate. The Anukramaṇīs. |
| 3. Vulgate. Indian reciters. | 8. Vulgate. Kāuçika and Vāitāna. |
| 4. Vulgate. Commentator's readings. | 9. Kashmirian recension. Pāippalāda ms. |
| 5. Vulgate. Pada-readings. | 10. Parallel texts. |

Of these sources, nine concern the Atharva-Veda, and the tenth concerns the parallel texts. Of the nine concerning the Atharva-Veda, eight concern the Vulgate or Çāunakan recension, and the ninth concerns the Kashmirian or Pāippalāda recension. Of the eight concerning the Vulgate, the first four concern both the saṁhitā and the pada-pāṭhas,¹ and the second four concern the ancillary texts.

Partly by way of indicating what may fairly be expected in the case of each of these elements, and partly by way of forestalling adverse criticism, it will be well to make certain observations upon them seriatim, under the ten headings. Under an eleventh, I desire to add something to what was said in the preface, p. xxxvii, about the commentary as a whole; and, under a twelfth, to add a few necessary remarks concerning the translation. Under a thirteenth, the explanation of abbreviations etc. may be put; and finally, under a fourteenth, a tabular view of previous translations and comments.

Scope of the reports of variant readings. — By "variant readings" are here meant departures from the printed Berlin text.² Absence of report means in general that the mss. present no true variants, albeit Whitney does not rehearse every stupid blunder of every ignorant scribe. There is of course no clear line to be drawn between such blunders and true variants; and in this matter we must to a certain degree trust the discrimination of the learned editors.

¹ Doubtless the pada-pāṭha also is an ancillary text, and these headings are therefore not quite logical; but they will serve.

² Here it is to be noted that, by reason of breakage of type, the last part of the "run" (as the printers say) is not always like the first; in other words, that not every copy of the Berlin edition is like every other (cf. note to i. 18. 4).

The term "manuscripts" often used loosely for "authorities," that is, manuscripts and oral reciters. — S. P. Pandit, in establishing his text, relied not only upon the testimony of written books, but also upon that of living reciters of the Veda. Accordingly, it should once for all here be premised that Whitney in the sequel has often used the word "manuscripts" (or "mss.") when he meant to include both mss. and reciters and should have used the less specific word "authorities." I have often, but not always,¹ changed "mss." to "authorities," when precise conformity to the facts required it.

The difficulty of verifying statements as to the weight of authority for a given reading may be illustrated by the following case. At iii. 10. 12 c, Whitney's first draft says, "The ṣ of vy āsahanta is demanded by Prāt. ii. 92, but SPP. gives in his text vy āsahanta, with the comm., but against the decided majority of his mss., and the minority of ours (H.O., and perhaps others: record incomplete)." The second draft reads, "SPP. gives in his text vy ās-, against the decided majority of all the mss." Scrutinizing the authorities, written and oral, for the samhitā (since for this variant pada-mss. do not count), I find that Whitney records H.O., and that SPP. records Bh.K.A.Sm.V., as giving ṣ, in all, seven authorities; and that Whitney records P.M.W.E.I.K., and that SPP. records K.D.R., as giving s, in all, nine authorities. Whitney's record is silent as to R.T.; and SPP's report of K. is wrong either one way or else the other. The perplexities of the situation are palpable. I hedged by altering in the proof the words of the second draft so as to read "against a majority of the mss. reported by him."

1. Readings of European Mss. of the Vulgate Recension

The reports include mss. collated, some before publication of the text, and some thereafter. — To the prior group belong Bp.B.P.M.W.E.I.H.; to the latter, collated some twenty years after publication,² belong O.R.T.K. Op.D.Kp. Whitney's description of the mss. is given in Part II. of the Introduction (p. cxi), and to it are prefixed (pp. cx–cxi) convenient tabular views of the mss. The immediate source of these reports is his Collation-Book: see pages cxvii to cxix. In the Collation-Book, the Berlin and Paris readings (B.P.) are in black ink; the Bodleian readings (M.W.) are in red; the London or "E.I.H." readings are in blue; and, excepting the variants of K.Kp. (which are also in blue), those of the mss. collated after publication (O.R.T.Op.D.) are in violet. The writing is a clear but small hand. The indications of agreement with the fundamental transcript are either implicit (the absence of any recorded variant), or else made explicit by the use of very small exclamation-points. The differences of method in recording are duly explained at the beginning of the Collation-Book, as are also the meanings of the various colored inks: and Whitney's procedure throughout the Book conforms rigorously to his prefatory explanations.

¹ Thus in the note to iii. 7. 2, "a couple of SPP's mss." means two men, not books. Cf. notes to xix. 32. 8; 33. 1.

² In discussing iii. 23. 6, Whitney says in the Prāt. (p. 442), "Every codex presents dyāuh"; while in this work (below, p. 128) he reports O. as reading dyāuṣ. Since "every codex" means every codex collated before publication, this is no contradiction.

The interpretation of a record so highly condensed and not always complete was sometimes an occasion of error, even for Whitney who made the record and knew the circumstances of its making; and, as may well be imagined, such interpretation was positively difficult and embarrassing for the editor (who had not this knowledge), especially in cases where, after the lapse of years, the colors of the inks were somewhat faded. — Thus Whitney misinterprets his notes of collation at vi. 36. 2, where it is P.I.K. (and not Bp.²I.K., as he wrote it in his copy for the printer) that read viçvāh. — Again, at vi. 83. 3, it is W.O.D. (and not H.O.R., as he wrote it for the printer) that read galantās. — Again, in writing out his commentary for the printer so many years after making his collation, he frequently forgot that there was no Op. for books v.–xvii., and has accordingly often reported a reading in violet ink as a reading of Op. when he should have reported it as a reading of D. This slip happened occasionally through several hundred type-pages and remained unnoticed even until the electroplates were made; but I believe I have had all the instances of this error rectified in the plates. — Likewise, in writing out for the printer, the fact seems to have slipped from his mind that he had made his fundamental transcript of book v. from codex Chambers 109 (= Bp.²) and not, like all the rest of the first nine books, from Chambers 8 (= Bp.). I have accordingly had to change "Bp." into "Bp.²," or vice versa, some ten times in book v. (at 6. 8; 7. 3; 8. 3; 24. 3, 14; 27. 10; 30. 11). — I may add that in (the often critically desperate) book xix., Whitney seems to use such an expression as "half the mss." loosely in the sense of "a considerable part of the mss.": so at xix. 29. 1, where the record is presumably not complete for Whitney's authorities, and where "half" is not true for SPP's. — For my own part, in consulting the Collation-Book for manuscript readings, I have exercised all reasonable care, using a magnifying glass regularly and referring frequently to the prefatory explanations.

2. Readings of Indian Manuscripts of the Vulgate

By "Indian mss." are meant those used by S. P. Pandit. — No other Indian authorities are intended, in this section and the next, than those given in S. P. Pandit's edition; they include, as is fully and most interestingly explained in his preface, not merely manuscripts, but also oral reciters. Whitney had only the advance sheets of the parts with comment (books i.–iv., vi.–viii. 6, xi., and xvii.–xx. 37); but, although the remaining parts were accessible to me, I did not attempt for those remaining parts to incorporate S. P. Pandit's apparatus criticus into Whitney's work. I refrained with good reason, for such an attempt would have involved far too much rewriting of Whitney's copy for the printer.

S. P. Pandit's reports not exhaustive. — It is far from being the case that S. P. Pandit always reports upon all his authorities. For books i.–xvii. he had 12 saṃhitā and 6 pada authorities, besides the incomplete comm.; but at ii. 36. 4, note 2, for instance, he reports only 6 out of 13 authorities.¹ In summarizing SPP's reports, Whitney often says "all of SPP's mss.," "all but one," "the majority," "half," and so on; and it must therefore here be noted that these expressions refer not to the totality of SPP's authorities concerned, but rather to the totality of those concerned and reported upon by SPP. in any given instance. Compare Whitney's notes to iii. 4. 5 (line 2 of the note); iv. 7. 3 (line 6); iv. 26. 5 and iii. 30. 3; ii. 36. 4 (line 9), with SPP's critical notes on the same verses.

3. Readings of Indian Oral Reciters of the Vulgate

By "Indian oral reciters" are meant those employed by S. P. Pandit. — It was from the lips of three living authorities that the Bombay editor took much of the testimony which he used in the establishment of his text. His Vaidikas were Bāpujī Jīvaṅṛām (cited as Bp.), Keçava Bhaṭ bin Dāji Bhaṭ (K.), and Venkaṅ Bhaṭjī (V.), "the most celebrated Atharva Vaidika in the Deccan." The last two were authorities for the whole text in both pāṭhas, saṃhitā and pada. The remarks made in the preface to the Bombay edition by S. P. Pandit concerning his reciters are extremely interesting and suggestive.

Errors of the eye checked by oral reciters. — The student should bear in mind the especial weight of the oral testimony in cases where errors of the eye, as distinguished from errors of the ear, are probable. Thus the testimony of the reciters, at ix. 8 (13). 20, establishes the reading visalpa-, as against visalya- of the Berlin text. Save in AV., the word is otherwise unknown, and, as the ms.-distinction between lya and lpa in such a case is worthless, the instance is a typical one to show the value of the reciters' reading: see W's note to vi. 127. 1. The case is somewhat similar at iii. 12. 3, āsyand-, as against āspand- (see the note and my addition); so also at viii. 6. 17, spandanā, as against syandanā, where, although only V. is cited, his testimony is abundantly confirmed by the sense (see note). At xix. 66. 1 (see note), as between those mss. which give pāhi and the Vaidikas K. and V., who recited yāhi, there can be no question that we ought to follow the latter, although SPP. strangely rejects their evidence. Cf. the notes on çāyaya, at iv. 18. 4, and samuṣpalā, at vi. 139. 3. One of the clearest errors of visual or graphical origin is "Sāyaṇa's" idam, at vi. 37. 2, for hradam or hṛdam of the authorities, including K. and V. (cf. W's and SPP's notes). If this comm. was the real Sāyaṇa, the blunder does him no credit. At viii. 2. 1, çruṣṭi is established (as against çruṣṭi) by the testimony of all the reciters; although the case is less clear at iii. 17. 2 and 30. 7 (see the notes). Upon their testimony, at x. 7. 16 (see notes), we ought to accept as the true Atharvan reading, prapyaśās, albeit ἄπαξ λεγόμενον and of questionable meaning.

4. Readings of the Hindu Commentator

The critical value and the range of his variant readings. — Whitney has given full and well-reasoned expression to his low opinion of the exegetical value of the commentary and of the range and critical value of its variant readings, in an article in the Festgruss an Roth, pages 89-96. To that article, with its abundant lists and details, I call, as in duty bound, the especial attention of the reader. The commentator does indeed correct a good many surface-blunders, part of which the Berlin editors had also corrected; and his readings are occasionally supported (as against the two editions) by a parallel text:¹ but his variants "consist almost exclusively of single words or forms," and of real critical insight he exhibits almost none.

Thus he fails to recognize the fact that the ordinary usage of the mss. makes no distinction between double consonants in groups where the duplication is phonetic, and those in groups where the duplication is etymological (cf. W's Grammar, § 232); and is accordingly so obtuse as to misunderstand and explain tādyāmeti, at iv. 19. 6, as tād yām eti, although the slightest heed for the rules of accent would have shown him that it is impossible for the combination to mean anything but tād dyām eti. Similarly at iv. 28. 3, again with utter disregard of accent, he makes out of stuvānmemi (that is stuvān emi: cf. Festgruss, p. 90–91) an untranslatable stuvān nemī: here, it is true, one of the wildest blunders of the pada-kāra was before him; but even a modicum of insight should have kept him out of that pitfall. Again, he seems never to have observed that past passive participles with a preposition accent the preposition (cf. Grammar, § 1085 a), and accordingly takes sainvṛtas at xviii. 3. 30 as if it were sāinvṛtas. Despite accent and pada-kāra, he takes rajasā, p. -sāh, at xi. 2. 25, as instr. of rājas! And so on.

The text used by the commentator is nevertheless notably different from that given by the mss. used for the Berlin edition, and from that given by S. P. Pandit's authorities. In books i.–iv. Whitney counts over three hundred peculiarities of the commentator's text, and in the Festgruss he gives several lists of them. He has intended in the present work to report all variants of the commentator's text throughout, and I trust that those which may have escaped his notice (or his and mine) will prove to be few indeed.

Was the commentator of the Atharva-Veda identical with the Sāyaṇa of the Rig-Veda?—I suggest that it might prove to be an interesting and by no means fruitless task to institute a systematic and critical comparison of the Mādhaviya-vedārtha-prakāṣa (or RV.-bhāṣya) with the bhāṣya on the AV., with special reference to the treatment of the accent in the two works, and to the bearings of these comparisons upon the question of the identity of the Sāyaṇa of the RV. with the "Sāyaṇa" of the AV. The latter¹ does indeed sometimes heed his accents; but the occasions on which he takes notice of them expressly are of utmost rarity (see W's note to xix. 13. 9 and mine to verse 4).

If, by way of comparing the two comments, we take the accusative plural yamārājñas, we find that at RV. x. 16. 9 Sāyaṇa explains it quite rightly as a possessive compound, yamo rājā yeṣām, tān; while at AV. xviii. 2. 46, on the other hand, in the half-verse addressed to the dead man, 'by a safe (?) road, go thou to the Fathers who have Yama as their king,' āparipareṇa pathā yamārājñah pitṛn gacha, "Sāyaṇa" makes of the very same form a gen. sing. and renders 'by a safe road belonging to king Yama (tasya svabhūtena mārgena) go thou to the Fathers'! Evidently, so simple a matter as the famous distinction between indra-çatru and the blasphemous indra-çatru (cf. Whitney on TPr. xxiv. 5; Weber, Ind. Stud. iv. 368) was quite beyond his ken. Such bungling can hardly be the work of a man who knew his Rig-Veda as the real Sāyaṇa did.

¹ A remark in his comment on ii. 4. 1 (Bombay ed., i. 210¹⁶), to the effect that the janṅgida is a kind of tree familiarly known in Benares, suggests the surmise that his bhāṣya may have been written in that city.

5. Readings of the Pada-pāṭha

These were reported in the Index, and have since been published in full. — As elsewhere noted, these have been reported in the Index Verborum in such wise (see Index, p. 4) as to enable us to determine the pada-form of every item of the Atharvan vocabulary. An index, however, is an inconvenient vehicle for such information, and the complete pada-pāṭha, as published by S. P. Pandit, is accordingly most welcome. Some of his occasional errors of judgment in the establishment of that text are pointed out by Whitney in the places concerned; but the pada-pāṭha has deeper-seated faults, faults which are doubtless original with its author and not simple errors of transmission.¹ Here again I may make a suggestion, namely, that a critical and systematic study of the palpable blunders of the pada-pāṭha would be an interesting and fruitful task. Even the pada-text of books i.–xviii. stands on a very different plane from that of the RV. (cf. Geldner, Ved. Stud., iii. 144). A critical discussion of its character is not called for here; but several illustrative examples may be given.

Illustrations of the defects of the Pada-pāṭha. — Verb-compounds give occasion for several varieties of errors. Thus, first, as respects accentuation, we find, on the one hand, incorrect attribution of accent to the verbal element (cf. v. 22. 11); and, on the other, denials of accent which are quite intolerable, as at xiv. 2. 73 (yé : ā : agaman instead of ā-āgaman) and xiv. 1. 9 (yāt : savitā : adadāt : where Çākalya resolves aright savitā : ādadāt).²

Secondly, as respects details of division, we find gross violation of the rule. The rule (a very natural one) for compounds with finite verb-forms is that the preposition, if accented, is treated as an independent word and has the vertical mark of interpunction (here represented by a colon) after it; but that, if accentless (proclitic), it is treated, not as an independent word, but as making a word-unit with the verb-form, and is accordingly separated therefrom only by the minor mark of separation or avagraha (here represented by a circle). Thus in AV. i. 1, we have nī : ramaya and pari-yānti. Such a division as nī-ramaya or pari : yānti would be wholly erroneous; and yet we find errors of the first type at vi. 74. 2 (sám-ñāpāyāmi), 114. 2 (ūpa-çekima), xiii. 3. 17 (vī-bhāti), xviii. 2. 58 (pāri-ñkhayātāi), 4. 53 (vī-dadhat).³

³ In some of these cases, the rationale of the error is discernible: cf. the notes, especially the note to xiii. 3. 17.

Various combinations.— The combination of e or o (final or initial) with other vowels gives rise to errors. Thus at viii. 2. 21 cd = i. 35. 4 cd, ténu (= te ánu) is resolved by the pada-kāra as té ánu, and the comm. follows him in both instances. In matters concerning the combination of accents he is especially weak, as when he resolves saptāsyāni into saptā āsyāni at iv. 39. 10 (see note). The errors in question are of considerable range, from the venial one of not recognizing, at xiv. 1. 56, that ánvar-tiṣye means ánu : vartīṣye,¹ to the quite inexcusable ones of telling us that yá stands for yāḥ in the verse x. 10. 32, yá evám vidūṣe dadūs, té etc., or that māyā stands for māyāḥ as subject of jajñe in viii. 9. 5. Perhaps his tát : yām : eti (iv. 19. 6) and stuván : nemi (iv. 28. 3), already noticed (p. lxvii) in another connection, may be deemed to bear the palm. Beside the former we may put his resolution² of sómātvám (= sómāt tvám), at iv. 10. 6, into sómā : tvám.

6. The Prātiçākhyā and its Commentary

Character of Whitney's editions of the Prātiçākhyas.— In the preface to his edition of the Tāittiriya Saṁhitā, Weber speaks with satisfaction of the service rendered him in the task of editing that Saṁhitā by Whitney's critical edition of the appurtenant Prātiçākhyā. Whitney's edition of that treatise is indeed a model; but even his earlier edition of the Atharvan Prātiçākhyā was buttressed by such elaborate studies of those actual facts which form the topics of the Prātiçākhyā, and by such complete collections of the different classes of those facts, that he could speak with the utmost authority in criticism of the way in which the maker of the Prātiçākhyā, or of the comment thereon, has done his work, and could pronounce weighty judgment concerning the bearing of the treatise in general upon the constitution of the Atharvan text.

Bearing of the Atharvan Prātiçākhyā upon the orthography and criticism of the text.— First, as for the orthography, a discussion of the importance of the Prātiçākhyā for that purpose is superfluous for any student acquainted with the nature of the treatise; but the orthographic method pursued by the editors of the Berlin text and the relation of that method to the actual prescriptions of the Prātiçākhyā are made the subject of a special chapter, below, p. cxxiii. — Secondly, the treatise does bear upon the general criticism of the text. That it ignores the nineteenth book is a weighty fact among the items of cumulative evidence respecting the original make-up of the text and the supplementary character of that book : see p. 896, line 6. In matters of detail also, the treatise or its comment is sometimes of critical value : thus the non-inclusion of iḍas pade among the examples of the comment on APr. ii. 72 (see note) arouses the suspicion that vi. 63. 4 (see note) was not contained in the commentator's AV. text.

² Cf. note to xix. 50. 1, where nirjāyāstēna tāni ārupadē jāhi, doubtless meaning nir jāhi and ā stenām ārupadē jāhi, is resolved as nīḥ : jāhyāḥ : tēna.

Utilization of the Atharvan Prātiçākhyā for the present work. — Whitney's edition is provided with three easily usable indexes (not blind indexes) : one of Atharvan passages, one of Sanskrit words, and a general index. The first gives in order some eight or nine hundred Atharvan passages, and gives nearly twelve hundred references to places in the Prātiçākhyā or the comment or Whitney's notes, in which those passages are discussed. Whitney has transferred the references of the first index with very great fulness, if not with absolute completeness, to the pages of his Collation-Book, entering each one opposite the text of the verse concerned. Very many or most of them, after they have once been utilized in the constitution of the text of the Samhitā, are of so little further moment as hardly to be worth quoting in the present work ; the rest will be found duly cited in the course of Whitney's commentary, and their value is obvious.

7. The Anukramaṇī : "Old" and "Major"

More than one Anukramaṇī extant. — At the date of the preface to the Berlin edition, it was probably not clearly understood that there was more than one such treatise. The well-known one was the Major Anukramaṇī, the text of which was copied by Whitney from the ms. in the British Museum in 1853, as noticed below, p. lxxii. In making his fundamental transcript of the Atharvan text, certain scraps, looking like extracts from a similar treatise, were found by Whitney in the colophons of the several divisions of the mss. which he was transcribing, and were copied by him in his Collation-Book, probably without recognizing their source more precisely than is implied in speaking of them as "bits of extract from an Old Anukramaṇī, as we may call it" (see p. cxxxviii).

The Pañcapāṭalikā. — The Critical Notice in the first volume of the Bombay edition made it clear that the source of those scraps is indeed an old Anukramaṇī, and that it is still extant, not merely as scattered fragments, but as an independent treatise, and that its name is Pañcapāṭalikā. That name is used by "Sāyana" when he refers to the treatise in his comm. to iii. 10. 7. In the main body of this work the treatise is usually styled the "quoted Anukr." or the "old Anukr." The word "old" means old with reference to the Major Anukramaṇī ; and since the dependence of the latter upon the former is now evident (see p. 770, ¶ 4, end, p. 793, ¶ 1, end) it appears that the word "old" was rightly used. The excerpts from the treatise, scattered through Whitney's Collation-Book, have been gathered together on six sheets by him. I was tempted to print them off together here for convenience; but several considerations dissuaded me: they are after all only fragments; they are all given in their proper places in the main body of this work; and, finally, the Bombay editor (see his Critical Notice, pages 17-24) gives perhaps more copious extracts from the original treatise than do the colophons of Whitney's mss. For some of the excerpts in their proper sequence and connection, see below, pages 770-1, 792-3, and cf. pages 632, 707, 737, 814.

Manuscripts of the Pañcapāṭalikā. — Doubtless S. P. Pandit had a complete ms. of the treatise in his hands; and, if its critical value was not exhausted by his use of it, it may yet be worth while to make a critical edition of this ancient tract. It is not unlikely that the ms. which S. P. Pandit used was one of those referred to by Aufrecht, Catalogus catalogorum, p. 315, namely, Nos. 178-9 (on p. 61) of Kielhorn's Report on the search for Sanskrit mss. in the Bombay Presidency during the year 1880-81. Both are now listed in the Catalogue of the collections of mss. deposited in the Deccan College (Poona), p. 179. According to Garbe's Verzeichniss der Indischen Handschriften (Tübingen, 1899), p. 90, Roth made a copy of the treatise from a Bikaner ms., which copy is now in the Tübingen Library.

The Bṛhatsarvānukramaṇī. — This treatise is usually styled in the sequel simply "the Anukr.," but sometimes "the Major Anukr." The excerpts from the treatise which are given at the beginning of the introductions to the several hymns in this work are taken from Whitney's nāgarī transcript which he made in London in 1853 on the occasion of his visit there to make his London collations (p. xlv). The transcript is bound in a separate volume; and the edited excerpts are so nearly exhaustive that relatively little work remains for an editor of the treatise to do.

Manuscripts of the Bṛhatsarvānukramaṇī. — Whitney made his transcript from the Polier ms. in the British Museum which is now numbered 548 by Bendall in his Catalogue of the Sanskrit mss. in the British Museum of 1902. The ms. forms part of Polier's second volume described below, p. cxiii, under Codex I; and it is the one from which was made the ms. transcribed for Col. Martin and numbered 235 by Eggeling (see again p. cxiii). Whitney afterwards, presumably in 1875, collated his London transcript with the Berlin ms. described by Weber, Verzeichniss, vol. ii, p. 79, No. 1487, and added the Berlin readings in violet ink. The Berlin ms. bears the copied date śamvat 1767 (A.D. 1711): it is characterized by Weber, Ind. Stud. xvii. 178, as "pretty incorrect"; but my impression is that it is better than the ms. of the British Museum.

Text-critical value of the Anukramaṇīs. — The most important ancillary treatise that an editor needs to use in establishing the text of the śamhitā, is the Prāṭiśākhya; but the Anukramaṇīs are also of some importance, especially for the settlement of questions concerning the subdivisions of the text (cf., for example, pages 611, 628: or note to iv. 11. 7), as has been practically shown by S. P. Pandit in his edition, and in his Critical Notice, pages 16–24. — The pronouncements of the Anukramaṇīs concerning the verse-norms of the earlier books (see p. cxlviii) are also of value in discussing general questions as to the structure of the śamhitā. In particular questions, also, the statements of the Major Anukr. are sometimes of critical weight. Thus iii. 29, as it stands in our text, is a hymn of 8 verses; but our treatise expressly calls it a śadyca, thus supporting most acceptably the critical reduction (already sufficiently certain: see note to vs. 7) of the hymn to one of 6 verses, the norm of the book. — Here and there are indications that suggest the surmise that the order of verses (cf. p. 739) or the extent of a hymn (cf. p. 768), as contemplated by the Anukr., may be different from that of our text. — Its statements as to the "deity" of a given hymn are sometimes worth considering in determining the general drift of that hymn; and its dicta regarding the "seers" of the hymns are of interest in certain aspects which are briefly noticed below, pp. 1038 ff. — Then too, the manuscripts of the Anukr. may sometimes be taken as testimony for the readings of the cited prāṭīkas (cf. note to iv. 3. 3). And it happens even that the authority of the Major Anukr. may be pressed into service at x. 5. 49 (see the notes) to determine which pair of verses (whether viii. 3. 12–13 or vii. 61. 1–2) is meant by the yād aṅga īti dvé of the mss. (see below, p. cxx: and cf. the case at xix. 37. 4).

The author of the Major Anukramaṇī as a critic of meters. — The author shows no sense for rhythm. His equipment as a critic of meters hardly goes beyond the rudimentary capacity for counting syllables. Thus he calls ii. 12. 2 jagatī; but although pāda a has 12 syllables, its cadence has no jagatī character whatever. To illustrate the woodenness of his methods, we may take ii. 13. 1: this he evidently scans as 11 + 11 : 10 + 12 = 44, and accordingly makes it a simple triṣṭubh, as if the "extra" syllable in d could offset the deficiency in c! For the spoiled c of the Vulgate, the Ppp. reading pibann amṛtam (which is supported by MS.) suggests the remedy, and if we accept that as the true Atharvan form of the verse, it is then an example of the mingling (common in one and the same verse) of acatalectic jagatī pādas with catalectic forms thereof. So far, indeed, is he from discerning matters of this sort, that his terminology is quite lacking in words adequate for their expression.¹

If the author of the Major Anukr. showed some real insight into Vedic meters, his statements might, as can easily be seen, often be of value in affecting our critical judgment of a reading of the samhitā or in determining our choice as between alternative readings. The contrary, rather, is wont to be the case. Thus at iv. 15. 4, his definition, virāṭpurastād-br̥hatī, implies the division (given also by the pada-mss.) 10 + 8 : 8 + 8, thus leaving the accentless parjanya stranded at the beginning of a pāda! An excellent illustration of the way in which he might help us, if we could trust him, is offered by iv. 32. 3 b, which reads tāpasā yujā vi jahī gātrūn. Here Ppp. makes an unexceptionable triṣṭubh by reading jahīha, and the author of the Anukr. says the verse is triṣṭubh. His silence respecting the metrical deficiency in the Vulgate text would be an additional weighty argument for judging the Ppp. reading to be the true Atharvan one, if only we could trust him—as we cannot. Cf. end of W's note to iv. 36. 4.

Such as it is, his treatment of the meters is neither even nor equably careful. Thus he notes the irregularity of vii. 112. 1, while in treating the repetition of the very same verse at xiv. 2. 45 (see note), he passes over the bhurikṭvam in silence. Throughout most of the present work, Whitney has devoted considerable space to critical comment upon the treatment of the meters by the Anukr. Considering the fact, however, that the principles which underlie the procedure of the Hindu are so radically different from those of his Occidental critic, no one will be likely to find fault if the criticisms of the latter prove to be not entirely exhaustive.

His statements as to the seers of the hymns. — The ascriptions of quasi-authorship, made by the author of the Major Anukr. and given in the Excerpts, are set forth in tabular form at p. 1040 and are critically discussed at p. 1038, which see.

8. The Kāuṣika-Sūtra and the Vāitāna-Sūtra

The work of Garbe and Bloomfield and Caland. — As elsewhere mentioned (p. xxv), the Vāitāna has been published in text and translation by Garbe, and the text of the Kāuṣika (in 1890) by Bloomfield. Since 1890, a good deal of further critical work upon the Kāuṣika has been done by ¹ For the reader's convenience it may be noted that verses deficient by one or two syllables, respectively, are called by him nicṛt and virāj; and that verses redundant by one or two are called bhurij and svarāj.

Bloomfield¹ and by Caland.² — The value of these Sūtras is primarily as a help to the understanding of the ritual setting and general purpose of a given hymn, and so, mediately, to its exegesis. From that aspect they will be discussed below (p. lxxvii). Meantime a few words may be said about their value for the criticism of the structure of the Saṁhitā.

Bearing of the ritual Sūtras upon the criticism of the structure and text of the Saṁhitā. — Bloomfield himself discusses this matter in the introduction to his edition of Kāuṣika, p. xli. He there points out instances in which briefer independent hymns have been fused into one longer composite hymn by the redactors of the Saṁhitā, and shows that the Sūtras recognize the composite character of the whole by prescribing the employment of the component parts separately. Thus (as is pointed out also by Whitney), iv. 38 is made up of two independent parts, a gambling-charm (verses 1-4) and a cattle-charm (verses 5-7). The Sūtra prescribes them separately for these wholly different uses, the former with other gambling-charms; and to the latter it gives a special name. Bloomfield's next illustrations, which concern vii. 74 and 76, have in the meantime given rise to the critical question whether vii. 74. 1-2 and 76. 1-2 did not form one hymn for Keçava.³

The mss. of the Sūtras may sometimes be taken as testimony for the readings of the cited pratikas. The like was said (p. lxxiii) of the mss. of the Anukramaṇis. The mss. of the Kāuṣika (cf. Bloomfield's Introduction, p. xxxix) are wont to agree with those of the Vulgate, even in obvious blunders.

Grouping of mantra-material in Sūtra and in Saṁhitā compared. — Many instances might be adduced from the Kāuṣika which may well have a direct bearing upon our judgment concerning the unitary character of hymns that appear as units in our text. To cite or discuss them here would take us too far afield, and I must content myself once more with a suggestion, namely, that a systematic study of the grouping of the mantra-material in the ritual, as compared with its grouping in the Saṁhitā, ought to be undertaken. At Kāuṣ. 29. 1-14 the verses of AV. v. 13 are brought in for use, all of them and in their Vulgate order. The like is true of AV. ix. 5. 1-6 at Kāuṣ. 64. 6-16. Whether it would lead to clear-cut results is doubtful; but the relation of the two groupings is a matter no less important than it is obscure. The obscurity is especially striking in book xviii., where the natural order of the component rites of the long funeral ceremony is wholly disregarded by the diaskeuasts in the actual arrangement of the verses of the Saṁhitā. Thus xviii. 4. 44, which accompanies the taking of the corpse on a cart to the pyre, ought of course to precede xviii. 2. 4, which accompanies the act of setting fire to the pile. See my remark, below, page 870, lines 7-9, and my discussion, pages 870-1, of "Part III." and "Part V." of xviii. 4. As is noted at xviii. 1. 49 and 2. 1, the ritual group of verses that accompany the oblations to Yama in the cremation-ceremony wholly disregards even so important a division as that between two successive anuvāka-hymns. It is pointed out on p. 848 that verse 60 of xviii. 3 is widely separated from what appears (most manifestly and from various criteria) to be its fellow, to wit, verse 6.

² See his Altindisches Zauberritual, and his eight papers Zur Exegese und Kritik der rituellen Sūtras (ZDMG. li.-lvii.). Of the papers, those most important for the Kāuṣika are the ones contained in vol. liii. See also WZKM. viii. 367.

³ See Bloomfield's note, SBE. xlii. 558; Whitney's introduction to vii. 74, and the note added by me at p. 440, top; and Caland's note 5 to page 105 of his Zauberritual. Hymn 76 of the Berlin ed. is in no wise a unity: see the introduction thereto.

Many difficulties of the Kāuṣika yet unsolved.—It will very likely appear that Whitney has misunderstood the Kāuṣika here and there; as also, on the other hand, he has in fact here and there corrected the text or the interpretation of Garbe or of Bloomfield. At the time of Whitney's death, Bloomfield's chief contributions (SBE. xlii.) to the interpretation of Kāuṣika had not yet appeared, nor yet those of Caland. As I have more than once said, no one ought to be so well able to give a trustworthy translation of a difficult text as the man who has made a good edition of it; and for this reason one must regret that Bloomfield did not give us—in the natural sequence of the sūtras—as good a version as he was at the time able to make, instead of the detached bits of interpretation which are scattered through the notes of SBE. xlii. Caland observes, in the introduction to his Zauberritual, p. IV, that in using the Kāuṣika he soon found that, in order to comprehend even a single passage, it is necessary to work through the whole book. The like is, of course, equally true of the Prātiṣākhya. A commentator upon the Saṁhitā who wishes (as did Whitney) to combine in his comment the best of all that the subsidiary treatises have to offer, cannot of course stop to settle, en passant, a multitude of questions any one of which may require the investigation of a specialist. Thus Whitney, in his note to x. 5. 6, said in his ms. for the printer, "The Kāuṣ. quotes the common prāṭika of the six verses at 49. 3, in a witchcraft-ceremony, in connection with the releasing of a bull." If Caland is right (Zauberritual, p. 171), the hocus-pocus with the "water-thunderbolts" does not begin until 49. 3, and the svayam is to be joined to the preceding sūtra (ZDMG. liii. 211), and the letting loose of the bull (49. 1) has nothing to do with the uses of x. 5. This is just the kind of error which we cannot fairly blame Whitney for making. Special difficulties of this sort should have been settled for him by the sūtra-specialists, just as he had settled the special difficulties of the Prātiçākhyā when he edited that text.

Value of the ritual Sūtras for the exegesis of the Saṁhitā. — Estimates of the value of these Sūtras as casting light upon the original meaning of the mantras have differed and will perhaps continue to differ. The opinion has even been held by a most eminent scholar that there is, on the whole, very little in the Kāuṣika which really elucidates the Saṁhitā, and that the Kāuṣika is in the main a fabrication rather than a collection of genuine popular practices. The principal question here is, not whether this opinion is right or wrong, but rather, to what extent is it right or wrong. It is, for example, hard to suppose that, upon the occasion contemplated in kaṇḍikā 79 of the Kāuṣika, a young Hindu, still in the heyday of the blood, would, at such an approach of a climax of feeling as is implied in the acts from the talpārohaṇa to the actual nidhuvana (79. 9) inclusive, tolerate — whether patiently or impatiently — such an accompaniment of mantras as is prescribed in sūtras 4 to 9. Whatever philological pertinence may be made out for them (cf. Whitney's note to xiv. 2. 64), their natural impertinence to the business in hand seems almost intolerable.

To this it may be answered that the Sūtra often represents an ideal prescription or ideale Vorschrift,¹ compliance with which was not expected by any one, save on certain ceremonial occasions, the extreme formality of which was duly ensured by elaborate preparation and the presence of witnesses.

The data of the Kāuṣika no sufficient warrant for dogmatism in the exegesis of the Saṁhitā. — There is every reason to suppose that the actual text of the saṁhitās is often a fragmentary and faulty record of the antecedent (I will not say original) oral tradition; and that the stanzas as we find them have often been dislocated and their natural sequence faulted by the action of the diaskeuasts. It is moreover palpable that questions of original sequence, so far from being cleared up, are often complicated all the more by the comparison of the sequences of the ritual texts (see p. lxxv). In these days of rapid travel and communication, it is hard to realize the isolation of the Indian villages (grāmas) and country districts (janapadas) in antiquity. That isolation tended to

¹ I owe this suggestion to Professor Delbrück of Jena, who was my guest while I had this chapter in hand and was so kind as to criticize it. As a curious parallel to the case above cited, he told me of the verses prescribed for use in the Brüdergemeine of Count Zinzendorf:

Mein mir von Gott verliehenes Weib!
Anitz besteig' ich deinen Leib.
Empfange meinen Samen
In Gottes Namen. Amen.

conserve the individuality of the several localities in respect of the details, for example, of their nuptial and funeral customs; so that the local diversities are sometimes expressly mentioned (uccāvaca janapadadharmā grāmadharmāḥ ca: AGS. i. 7¹). Astonishingly conservative as India is (see my remarks in Karpūramañjarī, p. 206, ¶ 2, p. 231, note 2), it can nevertheless not be doubtful that her customs have changed in the time from the date of the hymns to that of the ritual books. Evidently, there are divers general considerations which militate strongly against much dogmatism in the treatment of these matters.¹

Integer vitae as a Christian funeral-hymn.—During the last twenty-four years, I have often been called to the University Chapel to pay the last tribute of respect to one or another departed colleague or friend. On such occasions, it frequently happens that the chapel choir sings the first two stanzas of the Horatian ode (i. 22), integer vitae scelerisque purus, to the solemn and stately music of Friedrich Ferdinand Flemming. Indeed, so frequent is the employment of these words and this music, that one might almost call it a part of the “Funeral Office after the Harvard Use.” The original occasion of the ode, and the relation of Horace to Aristius Fuscus to whom it is addressed, are fairly well known. The lofty moral sentiment of the first two stanzas, however seriously Horace may have entertained it, is doubtless uttered in this connection in a tone of mock-solemnity. Even this fact need not mar for us the tender associations made possible by the intrinsic appropriateness of these two pre-Christian stanzas for their employment in a Christian liturgy of the twentieth century. But suppose for a moment that the choir were to continue singing on to the end, even to Lalagen amabo, dulce loquentem! what palpable, what monstrous ineptitude! If only the first two stanzas were extant, and not the remaining four also, we might never even suspect Horace of any arrière-pensée in writing them; and if we were to interpret them simply in the light of their modern ritual use, how far we should be from apprehending their original connection and motive!

Secondary adaptation of mantras to incongruous ritual uses.—Let no one say that this case is no fair parallel to what may have happened in India. On the contrary: instances—in no wise doubtful and not a whit less striking—of secondary adaptation of a mantra to similarly incongruous uses in the ritual may there be found in plenty. This secondary association of a given mantra with a given practice has often been determined by some most superficial semblance of verbal pertinence in the mantra, when in fact the mantra had no intrinsic and essential pertinence to the practice whatsoever. For example, ÇGS. prescribes the verse ākṣan for use when the bride greases the axle of the wedding-car; here, I think, there can be no doubt¹ that the prescription has been suggested by the surface resemblance of ākṣan 'they have eaten' to ākṣam 'axle.' Or, again, to take an example which has been interestingly treated by Bloomfield, the verses xiv. 2. 59-62 doubtless referred originally to the mourning women, who, with dishevelled hair, wailed and danced at a funeral; and they were presumably used originally as an expiation for such noisy proceedings. Secondly, they have been adapted for use in connection with the wedding ceremonies, "in case a wailing arises," and doubtless for no better reason than that they contained the word for "wailing"; and they have accordingly been placed by the diaskeuasts among the wedding verses, where we now find them. See Bloomfield, AJP. xi. 341, 338: and cf. vii. 466.

9. Readings of the Kashmirian or Pāippalāda Recension of the Atharva-Veda Saṁhitā

General relations of this recension to the Vulgate or Çāunakan recension.²
— Just as, on the one hand, the minute differences between two closely related manuscripts of the same recension (for example, between Whitney's P. and M.) represent upon a very small scale the results of human fallibility, so, upon the other hand, do the multitudinous and pervading differences between the general readings of the manuscripts of the Vulgate and those of the birch-bark manuscript of the Kashmirian recension truly represent in like manner the fallibility of human tradition, but on a very large scale. The Çāunakan or Vulgate recension represents one result of the selective process by which the Indian diaskeuasts took from the great mass of mantra-material belonging to the oral tradition of their school a certain amount, arranging it in a certain order; the Kashmirian recension represents another and very different result of a similar process.

Since the birch-bark manuscript has thus far maintained its character as a unique, we shall perhaps never know how truly it represents the best Kashmirian tradition of this Veda; it is quite possible that that tradition was vastly superior to the written reflex thereof which we possess in the birch-bark manuscript, and which, although excellent in many places, is extremely incorrect in very many. Systematic search will doubtless reveal the fact that the Pāippalāda recension, even in the defective form in which it has come down to us, often presents as its variant a reading which is wholly different, but which, as a sense-equivalent, yields nothing to the Vulgate in its claim for genuineness and originality: thus for the Vulgate readings tātas (x. 3. 8), iyāja (x. 7. 31), yā ca (x. 8. 10), kṣiprām (xii. 1. 35), amā ca (xii. 4. 38), respectively, the Pāipp. presents the sense-equivalents tasmāt, jagāma, yota, oṣam, and grheṣu.

The material selected by the makers of the two recensions is by no means coincident. The Kashmirian text is more rich in Brāhmaṇa passages and in charms and incantations than is the Vulgate.¹ The coincident material, moreover, is arranged in a very different order in the two recensions (cf. p. 1015); and it will appear in the sequel that even the coincident material, as between the Kashmirian and the Vulgate forms thereof, exhibits manifold differences of reading, and that the Kashmirian readings are much oftener pejorations than survivals of a more intelligent version.

This, however, is not always the case: thus, of the two recensions, the Kashmirian has the preferable reading at xii. 2. 30 d. Or again, at v. 2. 8 and xiv. 1. 22, the Kashmirian recension agrees with the Rig-Veda, as against the Vulgate, and, at xi. 2. 7, with the Kaṭha reading. In this connection it is interesting to note that the conjectures of Roth and Whitney for the desperate nineteenth book are often confirmed in fact by the Kashmirian readings: instances may be found at xix. 27. 8; 32. 4, 5, 8; 44. 2; 46. 3 (two); 53. 5; 56. 4.

The unique birch-bark manuscript of the Pāippalāda text. — This is described by Garbe in his Verzeichniss as No. 14. It consisted of nearly three hundred leaves, of which two are lost and eight or more are defective. They vary in height from 14 to 21 centimeters; and in width, from 11 to 16; and contain from 13 to 23 lines on a page. The ms. is dated samvat 95, without statement of the century. If the year 4595 of the Kashmirian loka-kāla is meant, the date would appear to be not far from A.D. 1519. A description of the ms., with a brief characterization of some of its peculiarities, was given by Roth at Florence in Sep. 1878, and is published in the Atti del IV Congresso internazionale degli Orientalisti, ii. 89–96. Now that the facsimile is published, further details are uncalled for. A specimen of the plates of the facsimile is given in the latter volume of this work. The plate chosen is No. 341 and gives the obverse of folio 187, a page from which have been taken several of the illustrative examples in the paragraphs which follow.

Roth's Kashmirian nāgarī transcript (Nov. 1874). — A nāgarī copy of the original birch-bark manuscript was made at Ṣrīnagara in 1873. This copy is No. 16 of Garbe's Verzeichniss, and we may call it Roth's Kashmirian nāgarī transcript. It came into Roth's hands at the end of November, 1874. The year of its making appears from Roth's essay, Der Atharvaveda in Kaschmir, pages 13-14; and the date of its arrival in Tübingen, from p. 11 of the same essay. With great promptness, Roth gave an account of it in his essay, just mentioned, which was published as an appendix to an invitation to the academic celebration of the birthday (March 6, 1875) of the king.¹ — It would appear that Roth's Kashmirian transcript was not the only one made from the birch-bark original in India: S. P. Pandit seems also to have had one; for he cites the Pāippalāda in his edition, vol. iv., p. 369. The copy used by him is doubtless the nāgarī copy procured by Bühler, and listed as VIII. 1 of the collection of 1875-76, on p. 73 of the Catalogue of the Deccan College manuscripts. See also Garbe's Verzeichniss, under No. 17, for the description of another copy (incomplete).

Arrival of the birch-bark original in 1876 at Tübingen. — The original seems to have come into Roth's hands in the early summer of 1876. The approximate date of its arrival appears from Whitney's note to p. xiii of the pamphlet containing the Proceedings of the Am. Oriental Society at the meetings of May and Nov., 1875, and May, 1876 (= JAOS. x., p. cxix): "As these Proceedings [that is, the pamphlet just mentioned] are going through the press, it is learned from Professor Roth that the original of the Devanāgarī copy, an old and somewhat damaged ms. in the Kashmir alphabet, on highly fragile leaves of birch-bark, has reached him, being loaned by the Government of India, which had obtained possession of it. It corrects its copy in a host of places, but also has innumerable errors of its own. It is accented only here and there, in passages."

Roth's Collation (ended, June, 1884) of the Pāippalāda text. — This is written on four-page sheets of note-paper numbered from 1 to 44 (but sheet 6 has only two pages); the pages measure about $5\frac{1}{2} \times 8\frac{1}{2}$ inches, and there are some 9 supplementary pages (see p. lxxxii, top), sent in answer to specific inquiries of Whitney. As appears from the colophon added by Roth (see below, p. 1009), this Collation was finished June 25, 1884. Since Roth's autograph transcript described in the next paragraph was not made until some months later, I see little chance of error in my assuming that Roth made his Collation for Whitney from his Kashmirian nāgarī transcript, and that he used the birch-bark original to some extent to control the errors of the copy.¹ Occasional suspicions of error in the Collation were not unnatural, and they led Whitney to ask Roth to reëxamine the manuscript upon certain doubtful points. Whitney's questions extend over books i. to v., and others were noted, but never sent. Roth's answers form a valuable supplement to his Collation, and end in April, 1894.

Roth's autograph nāgarī transcript (Dec. 1884). — The end of the Collation which Roth made for Whitney was reached, as just stated, June 25, 1884. After the following summer vacation, Roth made a new transcript from the birch-bark, as appears from his letter to Whitney, dated Jan. 11, 1893: "Von Pāippalāda habe ich devanāgarī Abschrift, aber nicht vollständig. Die mit Vulgata gleichlautenden Verse, die nur durch Fehler Eckel erregen, habe ich blos citiert, z.B. die vielen aus RV., nehme mir aber doch vielleicht noch die Mühe, sie nachzutragen. Ich habe an der Abschrift unermüdlich vom 19. Sept. bis 28. Dez. 1884 geschrieben und diese Leistung als eine ungewöhnliche betrachtet." This transcript is doubtless far more accurate than the one used for the Collation. The badness of the latter and the fragility of the birch-bark original were doubtless the reasons that determined Roth to make his autograph nāgarī transcript: see p. lxxxv, top. [See p. 1045.]

The facsimile of the Tübingen birch-bark manuscript (1901). — A magnificent facsimile of the birch-bark manuscript has now been published by the care and enterprise of Bloomfield and Garbe.² The technical perfection of the work is such as to show with marvellous clearness not only every stroke of the writing and every correction, but even the most delicate veinings of the bark itself, with its injuries and patches. Even if other things were equal, the facsimile is much better than the original, inasmuch as a copy of each one of 544 exquisitely clear and beautiful chromo-photographic plates, all conveniently bound and easy to handle and not easily injured and accessible in many public and private libraries throughout the world, is much more serviceable than the unique original, written on leaves of birch-bark, fragile with age, easily injured, requiring the utmost caution in handling, and accordingly practically inaccessible except to a very few persons: but other things are not equal; for the transitory advantage of the brilliantly heightened contrast of color which is gained by wetting the birch-bark original, and which passes away as soon as the leaf is dry, is converted into a permanent advantage by the chromophotographic process, in which the plates are made from the freshly wetted original. Moreover, the owner of a facsimile is at liberty to use it at home or wherever he pleases, and to mark it (with pen or pencil) as much as he pleases. The facsimile may therefore truly be said to be in many respects preferable to the original.

² The Kashmirian Atharva-Veda (School of the Pāippalādas). Reproduced by chromo-photography from the manuscript in the University Library at Tübingen. Edited under the auspices of the Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore and of the Royal Eberhard-Karls-University in Tübingen, Württemberg, by Maurice Bloomfield, Professor in the Johns Hopkins University, and Richard Garbe, Professor in the University of Tübingen. Baltimore. The Johns Hopkins Press. 1901. The technical work by the firm of Martin Rommel & Co., Stuttgart.

Roth's Collation not exhaustive.— Now that the superb facsimile is published, it is possible for a competent critic to test Roth's Collation in respect 1. of its completeness, and 2. of its accuracy. As, first, for its completeness, it is sufficiently apparent from several expressions used by Roth,¹ that he saw plainly that it would be the height of unwisdom to give with completeness the Kashmirian variants as incidental to a work like this one of Whitney's, whose main scope is very much broader. Roth was a man who had a clear sense of the relative value of things—a sense of intellectual perspective; and he was right.

Faults of the birch-bark manuscript.— The birch-bark manuscript is indeed what we may call in Hindu phrase a veritable 'mine of the jewels of false readings and blunders,' an apapāṭhaskhalitaratnākara, a book in which the student may find richly-abounding and most instructive illustrations of perhaps every class of error discussed by the formal treatises on text-criticism. Thus it fairly swarms with cases of haplography (the letters assumed, on the evidence of the Vulgate, to be omitted, are given in brackets): tām tvā çāle sarvavīrās suvīrā [ariṣṭavīrā] abhi sañ carema: ihāiva dhruvā prati [ti]ṣṭha çāle, folio 54 b³⁻⁴ = iii. 12. 1 c, d, 2 a; vaṣaṭkāre yathā yaçah: [yathā yaças] somapīthe, folio 187 a¹⁵⁻¹⁶ = x. 3. 22 b, 21 a; āditye ca [nṛca]kṣasi, folio 187 a¹⁷ = x. 3. 18 b; *apa stedam*² vāsama-tham gotham uta [ta]skaram, folio 158 b¹ = xix. 50. 5 a, b. Confusions as between surd and sonant (cf. p. 749, p. 57) and between aspirate and non-aspirate and between long and short vowels are so common as hardly to be worth reporting: cf. uṣase naṣ pari dhehi sarvān rātrī anākaṣah, which is found at folio 158 b⁴ = xix. 50. 7 a, b, and exemplifies all three cases

² To judge from stedam for stenam, we might suppose that the ms. at this point was written down by a scribe at the dictation of a reciter with a bad cold in his head.

Collation not controlled by constant reference to the birch-bark ms. — Secondly, as for the accuracy of Roth’s Collation in the variants which he does give, — I do not suppose that Roth attempted to control his Kashmirian nāgarī transcript (No. 16, Garbe) on which he based his Collation, by constant reference to the original. Thus far, I have hardly come upon inaccuracies myself; but it is not improbable that occasional slips¹ on his part may yet come to light. It is proper here, therefore, partly by way of anticipating ill-considered criticism, to explain the situation.

Such reference would have ruined the birch-bark ms. — As any one can see from the table, pages 1018 to 1023, the Kashmirian correspondents of the Vulgate verses are to be found in the birch-bark manuscript in an entirely different order. Thus, if we take for example the six Vulgate verses iii. 12. 1, 6, 8; 13. 1; 14. 1; 15. 1, we shall find their Kashmirian correspondents at the following places (leaf, side, line) respectively: 54 b 2, 276 b 7, 225 a 10, 50 a 1, 32 b 8, 264 b 5. From this it is evident that the mechanical process of referring, as one proceeds verse by verse through the Vulgate, to the parallel verses of the birch-bark original, for the purpose of checking step by step the transcript used for the Collation, would have involved an amount of handling of the fragile birch-bark leaves (nearly 300 in number) which would have ruined them. The leaves are now about 400 years old, and some idea of their fragility may be gained from the remarks in the preface to the facsimile, page II. It was doubtless this difficulty that impressed upon Roth the necessity of making a copy which should be at once accurate, and also strong enough to endure handling without injury. To copy the birch-bark leaves in their proper order is a process by which they need suffer no harm; and this is precisely what Roth did (see p. lxxxii) as soon as possible after finishing the pressing task of making the Collation for Whitney. [See p. 1045.]

Care taken in the use of Roth's Collation. Word-division. — In carrying this work through the press, I have constantly and with the most scrupulous pains utilized Roth's original Collation and his supplementary notes thereto, endeavoring thus to check any errors concerning the Kashmirian readings that might have crept into Whitney's copy for the printer. Since Roth's system of transliteration differs considerably from Whitney's, the chances for mistakes arising through confusion of the two systems were numerous; and I have taken due care to avoid them. It may here be noted that Whitney's system transliterates anusvāra before a labial by m and not by ṃ;¹ but that in printing the Kashmirian readings, I have followed the Collation in rendering final anusvāra by ṃ (or ṛ), save before vowels. Furthermore, in making use of Roth's Collation, Whitney has habitually attempted to effect a satisfactory word-division. In many cases this is hardly practicable; and in such cases it was probably a mistake to attempt it. For examples, one may consult the readings at v. 29. 2, 'syatamo; vi. 44. 2, sarogaṇaṃ; 109. 1, jīvātavā yati; 129. 3, vṛkṣe sārpiṭaḥ intending vṛkṣeṣv ār-; vii. 70. 1, dr̥ṣṭā rājyo, intending dr̥ṣṭād āj-.

The Kashmirian readings have not been verified directly from the facsimile by the editor. — As the facsimile appeared in 1901, it is proper for me to give a reason for my procedure in this matter. In fact, both my editorial work and the printing were very far advanced² in 1901, so that a change of method would in itself have been questionable; but an entirely sufficient and indeed a compelling reason is to be found in the fact that it would have been and still is a task requiring very much labor and time to find the precise place of the Kashmirian parallel of any given verse of the Vulgate, a task which can no more be done en passant than can the task of editing a Prātiçākhyā,—all this apart from the difficulties of the Çāradā alphabet.

Provisional means for finding Vulgate verses in the facsimile.—Whitney noted in pencil in his Collation-Book, opposite each Vulgate passage having a Kashmirian parallel, the number of the leaf of the Kashmirian text on which that parallel is found, adding a or b to indicate the obverse or the reverse of the leaf. These numbers undoubtedly refer to the leaves of Roth's Kashmirian nāgarī transcript (No. 16, Garbe) from which Roth made his Collation; but as there was no prospect of their being of any use, Whitney has not given them in this work.

¹ I am sorry to observe that the third (posthumous) edition of his Grammar (see pages 518-9) misrepresents him upon this point.

² The main part of this book was in type as far as page 614 (xi. 1. 12) in Dec. 1901. The remainder (as far as p. 1009, the end) was in type Dec. 13, 1902.

One of Roth's first tasks, after the arrival of the birch-bark original, was doubtless to find the place therein corresponding to the beginning of each leaf of his Kashmirian nāgarī transcript. These places he has indicated by writing over against them on the side margin of the bark leaf the number of the leaf (with a or b) of that transcript.

This was most fortunate; for the added numbers, in Roth's familiar handwriting, although sometimes faint or covered up by a patch used in repairing the edges of the bark leaf, are for the most part entirely legible in the facsimile: and it has given me much pleasure during the last few days (to-day is April 21, 1904) to assure myself of the fact which I had previously surmised, that these pencilled numbers afford us an exceedingly useful, albeit roundabout, means of finding the place of any Kashmirian parallel in the facsimile, — useful at least until they are superseded by the hoped-for edition of an accurate transliteration of the facsimile with marginal references to the Vulgate. Whitney's pencilled reference-numbers were arranged by Dr. Ryder in the form of a table, which I have recast and given below: see pages 1013 ff.

What ought an "edition" of the Kashmirian text to be?—This question was privately discussed by Whitney and Roth in the letters¹ exchanged between them in 1893. Whitney hoped that all that was peculiar to the Kashmirian text might be printed in transliteration in the Kashmirian order and interspersed with references to the Vulgate parallels of the remainder, also in the Kashmirian order, the whole to form an appendix to the present work. Roth's hope was that Whitney's strength might hold out long enough for him to finish this work without such a burdensome addition. Neither hope was fulfilled; and at that time, doubtless, even the thought of a facsimile reproduction was not seriously entertained. Bloomfield's difficult task of securing the needed funds once accomplished, the next step, unquestionably, was to issue the facsimile without any accessory matter. That too is now an accomplished fact; but the facsimile, apart from its large paleographic interest, is still, in default of certain accessories, a work of extremely limited usefulness. As to what should next be done, I have no doubt.

1. A rigorously precise transliteration. — First, the whole text, from A to izzard (as Roth says), should be printed in a rigorously precise transliteration. Conventional marks (other than those of the original), to indicate divisions between verses and pādas and words, need not be excluded from the transliteration, if only the marks are easily recognizable as insertions of the editor.

As to minor details, I am in doubt. In the prose parts, the transliteration might correspond page for page and line for line with the birch-bark original: the metrical parts might either be made to correspond in like manner line for line with the original; or else they might be broken up so as to show fully the metrical structure (and at the same time, with a little ingenuity, the Kashmirian vowel-fusions), in which case the beginning of every page and line of the bark leaves should be duly indicated by a bracketed number in its proper place. In case the transliteration corresponds with the original line for line throughout, then the obverse and reverse of each bark leaf might well be given together in pairs, the obverse above, and the reverse below it, on each page of the transliteration, since this would be especially convenient and would yield a page of good proportion for an Occidental book.

2. Marginal references to the Vulgate parallels. — Secondly, on the margin throughout, and opposite every Kashmirian verse that corresponds to a verse of the Vulgate, should be given the reference to the place in the Vulgate where the corresponding Vulgate verse is found.

3. Index of Vulgate verses thus noted on the margin. — Thirdly, in an appendix should be given, in the order of the Vulgate text, an index of all the Vulgate verses thus noted on the margin, with a reference to the birch-bark leaf and side (obverse or reverse — a or b) and line where its Kashmirian correspondent may be found.

These I conceive to be the essential features of a usable edition of the Kashmirian text, and I hold them to be absolutely indispensable. The text is often so corrupt that one cannot emend it into intelligibility without sacrificing too greatly its distinctive character. All conjectures, accordingly, should be relegated to a second and separately bound volume.

4. Accessory material: conjectures, notes, translations. — The accessory material of the second volume should be arranged in the form of a single series of notes and in the sequence of the Kashmirian original, and it should have such numbers and letters at the outside upper corners in the head-lines, that reference from the original to the notes and from the notes to the original may be made with the very utmost ease and celerity. This accessory material should comprehend all conjectures as to the more original Kashmirian form of manifestly corrupt words or passages, in so far as they point to readings not identical (compare the next paragraph) with those of the Vulgate; indications of word-division, especially the word-division of corrupt phrases and the resolution of the very frequent double sandhi; a running comment, proceeding verse by verse, giving any needed elucidatory matter, and explaining the rationale of the blunders of the Kashmirian version where feasible (as is often the case), pointing out in particular its excellences, and the many items in which it serves as a useful corrective of the Vulgate or confirms the conjectural emendations of the latter made in the edition of Roth and Whitney; — and all this in the light of the digested report of the variants of the parallel texts given by Whitney in the present work and in the light of the other parallels soon to be made accessible by Bloomfield's Vedic Concordance. An occasional bit of translation might be added in cases where the Kashmirian text contains something peculiar to itself or not hitherto satisfactorily treated.

For the cases (hinted at in the preceding paragraph) where corrupt Kashmirian readings point simply to readings identical with those of the Vulgate, a simple reference to the latter will sometimes suffice to show the true reading and sense of what the Kashmirian reciters or scribes have corrupted into gibberish. Thus the Kashmirian form of xii. 3. 36 b, found at folio 226 b¹³, is yāvantaḥ kāmān samitāu purasthāt. Apart from the aspiration (overlooked by Roth) of the prior dental of purastāt, each of these four words by itself is a good and intelligible Vedic word; but taken together, they yield far less meaning than do the famous Jabberwock verses of Through the Looking-glass.¹ Their presence in the Kashmirian text is explained by their superficial phonetic resemblance to the Vulgate pāda yāvantaḥ kāmāḥ sām atīrṣas tān, of which they are a palpable and wholly unintelligent corruption. It is evident that, with the Vulgate before us, conjectural emendation of the Kashmirian text in such cases is an entirely gratuitous procedure. And as for such grammar as kene-dam bhūmir nihataḥ (a feminine noun, with neuter adjective pronoun and masculine predicate participle: folio 186 a¹⁵ = x. 2. 24^a), — to mend that would be to rob the Kashmirian text of its piquancy; and why should we stop with the genders, and not emend also the senseless nihā- to the intelligible vihī-? Let all this be done, and we have the Vulgate text pure and simple.

10. Readings of the Parallel Texts

The texts whose readings are reported. — The principal texts included in these reports are: of the Samhitās, the Rig-Veda, Tāittiriya, Māitrāyaṇī, Vājasaneyi-, Sāma-Veda, and Atharva-Veda; of the Brāhmaṇas, the Āitareya, Kāuṣītaki, Tāittiriya, Ṣatapatha, Pañcaviṅṇa, and Gopatha; of the Āraṇyakas, the Āitareya and Tāittiriya; of the Upanishads, the Kāuṣītaki, Kaṭha, Bṛhadāraṇyaka, and Chāndogya; of the Ṣrāuta-Sūtras, the Āṣvalāyana, Ṣāṅkhāyana, Āpastamba, Kātyāyana, and Lātyāyana; of the Gṛhya-Sūtras, the Āṣvalāyana, Ṣāṅkhāyana, Āpastamba, Hiraṇyakeṇi-, Pāraskara, and Gobhila. Other texts are occasionally cited: so the Kāṭhaka and the Kapiṣṭhala Samhitā, and the Jāiminiya Brāhmaṇa; and the names of some others may be seen from the List of Abbreviations, pages ci ff. I have added references to some recently edited parallel texts, without attempting to incorporate their readings into the digested report of the variants: such are the Mantra-pāṭha, von Schroeder's "Kaṭhahandschriften," and Knauer's Mānava-Gṛhya-Sūtra. Von Schroeder's edition of Kāṭhaka i. came too late. The information accessible to Whitney concerning the then unpublished Black Yajus texts was very fragmentary and inadequate; this fact must be borne in mind in connection with implied references to the Kāṭhaka and Kapiṣṭhala (cf. his notes to iii. 17; 19; 20; 21; v. 27; vii. 89).

The method of reporting the readings aims at the utmost possible accuracy. — Whitney has constantly striven for three things: that his reports should be characterized, 1. and 2., by the utmost attainable accuracy and completeness; and, 3., that they should be presented in a thoroughly well-digested form. First, as to the accuracy, little need be said. It may be well to remind the reader, however, that Whitney has used the most methodical precision in this matter, and that, accordingly, if, under a given AV. verse, he cites a parallel text without mention of variant, his silence is to be rigorously construed as meaning positively that the parallel text reads as does the AV. verse in question. As a matter of fact, I believe that it will be found possible in nearly every case to reconstruct the parallel texts with precision from the data of Whitney's reports.

It needs here to be noted that Whitney, in reporting variants from the Māitrāyaṇī, has disregarded what are (as explained by von Schroeder in his introduction, pages xxviii–xxix) mere orthographical peculiarities of that text. Accordingly, at iii. 14. 3, he treats the nā (= nas) ā gata of MS. as if it were na ā gata. Again, the MS. correspondent of iii. 19. 3 has, in saṁhitā, svān, and in pada, svān; Whitney reports svān, and quite properly, although it is neither the one thing nor the other. So at ii. 34. 3, he reports ṭān, although MS. has, in s., tān, and in p., tān.

The completeness of the reports far from absolute. — Secondly, as for its completeness, it may be asked whether Bloomfield's great work, the Vedic Concordance, will not show Whitney's parallels to be far from exhaustive. To this I reply that the primary purpose of Bloomfield's Concordance is to give the concordances, and to do so with as near an approach to completeness as possible, even for the less important texts, a task of which the preliminaries have required the assiduous labor of years. In Whitney's work, on the other hand, the giving of concordances is only one of many related tasks involved in his general plan, and is, moreover, only incidental to the discussion of the variants. I have tested the two works by comparison of random verses in the proof-sheets, and find (as I expected) that Bloomfield does indeed give very many references which are not given by Whitney; but that these references (apart from the Kāṭhaka) are concerned prevaillingly with the numerous subsidiary or less important texts which fall within the purview of the Concordance. Whitney had excerpted all the texts, so far as published (see the list, above), which were of primary importance for his purpose. The parallels to which Bloomfield's additional references guide us will have to be reckoned with in due course by Whitney's successors; but I surmise that they are not likely upon the whole greatly to affect the sum of our critical judgments respecting the Atharvan text.¹

The reports are presented in well-digested form. — Thirdly, as to the form of the reports. It is one thing to give numerical references to the places where the pādas and their variants are to be found.² It is another to rehearse, in full for each text concerned, the readings containing variants; and the result of this process is in a high degree space-consuming and repetitious for the author, and time-consuming and confusing for the user. It is yet another and a very different thing to compare these readings carefully, to note the points of agreement, and to state briefly and clearly the points on which they differ.³ The result of this last procedure is a well-digested report of the variants which is easily and quickly usable for the purpose of critical study. I call especial attention to this valuable feature of Whitney's work, partly because of its practical importance, and partly because it shows the author's power of masterly condensation and of self-restraint.

¹ In spite of its intrinsic importance, such is the case, I believe, with the ÇB., to which Whitney makes, I think, rather meagre reference.

² And it is a large achievement to do it on such a scale as does the Concordance.

³ Whoever doubts it, let him take so very simple a case as AV. ii. 29. 3 or iv. 14. 1, write out the AV. text in full and then the three parallel Yajus-texts beneath it, compare them,

11. Whitney's Commentary: Further Discussion of its Critical Elements

Comprehensiveness of its array of parallels. — I have already called attention (p. xxxvii) to the fact that the Commentary expressly disavows any claim to finality; and have spoken briefly of its importance as a tool, and of its comprehensiveness. In respect of the comprehensiveness of its array of parallels, it answers very perfectly one of the requirements set by Pischel and Geldner in the Introduction (p. xxx) to the Vedische Studien: "Das gesamte indische Altertum kann und muss der vedischen Exegese dienstbar gemacht werden. In vorderster Linie wollen auch wir den Veda aus sich selbst erklären durch umfassenderes Aufsuchen der Parallelstellen und Combinieren zusammengehöriger aber in verschiedenen Teilen des Veda zerstreuter Gedanken." That Whitney's work will prove to be an instrument of great effectiveness in the future criticism and exegesis of the Veda I think no one can doubt. It will easily be seen that often, in the cases where the older attempts have failed, the fault is to be laid not so much to the learning and ingenuity of the scholars concerned, as to the lack of powerful tools. Such a powerful tool is this; such is Bloomfield's Concordance; and other such helpful tools are sure to be invented and made in the next few decades. The pratika-indexes of Pertsch, Whitney, Weber, Aufrecht, and von Schroeder are admirable; and without them Whitney's work could not have been made. Their main use is to make feasible the systematic comparison of the texts one with another. This is what Whitney has done here, with the Atharvan text as starting-point, and the results of his comparison lie before us in the conveniently digested reports of the variants.

Criticism of specific readings. — Examples abound showing how the reports may be used for this purpose. They enable us to recognize the corruptness of a reading, which, although corrupt, is nevertheless to be deemed the genuine Atharvan reading, as in the case of yaç çarati at underscore in red ink the points of difference, and then state them with brevity and clearness. Then let him examine Whitney's reports, and I think he will freely admit that they are indeed well-digested and are models of masterly condensation. More difficult cases are ii. 1. 3; 13. 1; iii. 10. 4; 12. 7; 19. 8; vii. 83. 2; 97. 1; xiv. 2. 71. The amount and intricacy of possible variation is well exemplified by vi. 117. 1. Perhaps Whitney has erred in the direction of over-condensation in his note to vii. 29. 2.

iv. 5. 5 over against the yāç ca cāratī of RV. vii. 55. 6; or, again, to discover with certainty the true intention (cf. TB. ii. 4. 7¹⁰) of a lot of wavering variants, as in the case of those that disguise the svāraṇo mitāḥ of xix. 42. 1. They show us that the vastly superior tradition of the RV. corrects that of the AV. in many places (cf. the accentless asahanta of xi. 1. 2); but that the AV. occasionally scores a point even against the RV., as in the case of maghāsu at xiv. 1. 13 (RV. aghāsu), or as in the case of nāu . . . nāu at xviii. 1. 4 (RV. no . . . nāu). What a puzzle is the phrase (xiv. 2. 72) janiyānti nāv āgravaḥ, 'The unmarried [plural] of us two [dual] seek a wife,' by itself, involving, as it does, a breach of the mathematical axiom that the whole is greater than any of its parts! but the comparison of RV. vii. 96. 4, with its nū for nāu, teaches us that the error lies in the nāu, even if it does not show us with certainty how that error is to be emended. Even with all the array of variants, we are (as Whitney notes at iv. 8. 1; vi. 22. 3; 31. 3) at times forced to the conclusion that certain verses were hopelessly spoiled before ever any of the various text-makers took them in hand.

Illustrations of classes of text errors.—I have already hinted at the variety of special investigations to which the mass of critical material here assembled invites. The various occasions of probable error in the transmission of Indic texts have not yet been made the object of a systematic and formal treatise. Here we have, conveniently presented, the very material needed for such an advance in the progress of Vedic criticism. By grouping suspected readings into clearly defined classes, it will become possible to recognize suspected readings as real errors with a far greater degree of certainty than ever before. Illustrations of this matter are so abundant as easily to lead us far afield; but several may be given.¹

Auditory errors.—A most striking example of a variation occasioned by the almost complete similarity of sound of two different readings is presented by the prātīya of AGS. iii. 10. 11, as compared with the prātīcaḥ of AV. vi. 32. 3. Compare dyām of HGS. i. 15. 3, with jyām of AV. vi. 42. 1. — Confusion of surd and sonant is exemplified in the variant version of part of the familiar RV. hymn, x. 154, given at AV. xviii. 2. 14, where we have yēbhyo mādhu pradhāv ādhi, 'for whom honey [is] on the felly.' This may or may not be the genuine Atharvan reading; but it is certainly an unintelligent corruption of the pradhāvati of the RV.: and it is very likely that we have the same blunder at vi. 70. 3, where the occasion for the corruption is palpable.² The simplification of twin consonants is exemplified at xviii. 3. 3, where the editors of the Berlin text gave, with the support of all the mss. then accessible, the reading jīvām ṛtébhyas: that this is an error for mṛtébhyas is shown beyond all doubt by the TA. variant mṛtāya jīvām (cf. the note on p. 832).

Visual errors. — Several classes of errors are chargeable to “mistakes of the eye.” Confusions such as that between pāhi and yāhi are simple enough, and are sometimes to be controlled by the evidence of oral reciters (cf. p. lxvi); but, considering the fragmentariness of our knowledge of Indic paleography, who may guess all the more remote occasions for error of this kind? — Of errors by haplography, yā āste yāç cārati (just mentioned) is a good type: this is undoubtedly the true Atharvan reading, and it is undoubtedly wrong, as is shown by the meter, and the comparison of RV., which has yāç ca cārati: cf. notes to iv. 5. 5; vi. 71. 1; vii. 81. 1; xix. 42. 3; 55. 3. For a most modern case, see note to xiii. 2. 35.

Metrical faults. Hypermetric glosses and so forth. — Our suspicions of hypermetric words as glosses are often confirmed by the downright absence of those words in the parallel texts. Instances are: hástābhyām at AV. iv. 13. 7 (cf. RV. x. 137. 7); devó at RV. x. 150. 4¹ (cf. RV. iii. 2. 8); asmābhyam at TS. ii. 6. 12² (cf. naḥ at RV. x. 15. 4); imām at AV. xiv. 2. 40 (cf. RV. x. 85. 43). — On the other hand, the damaged meter of our text often suggests a suspicion that some brief word has fallen out or that some briefer or longer or otherwise unsuitable form has been substituted for an equivalent suitable one; and the suspicion is borne out by the reading of the parallel texts. Thus in divó [vā] viṣṇa utá vā pṛthivya, mahó [vā] viṣṇa urór antárikṣāt, the bracketed vā's, missing at AV. vii. 26. 8, are found in their proper places in the TS. and VS. parallels. The pātu and iyús of AV. xviii. 2. 55 quite spoil the cadences of a and c, which cadences are perfect in their RV. original at x. 17. 4.

Blend-readings. — The blend-readings, as I have called them, stand in yet another group. A good example is found, at AV. xiv. 2. 18 (see note), in prajāvatī vīrasūr devīkāmā syonā; its genesis is clear, as is also the intrusive character of syonā, when we compare the Kashmirian reading prajāvatī vīrasūr devīkāmā with that of the RV., vīrasūr devīkāmā syonā (11 syllables). The like is true of asyá at VS. xii. 73, áganma támasas pāram asyá: cf. the oft-recurring dtāriṣma támasas pāram asyá with the aganma tamasas pāram of the Kāthaka, xvi. 12, p. 235³. — The above-given examples suffice to show how rich is the material gathered in this work for an illuminating study of the fallibilities of human tradition in India.

12. Whitney's Translation and the Interpretative Elements of the Commentary

The Translation: general principles governing the method thereof. — The statements concerning the principles involved in the translating of the Upanishads, as propounded by Whitney in his review of a translation of those texts, apply — mutatis mutandis — so well to the translation of this Veda, that I have reprinted them (above, p. xix: cf. p. xxxvii); and to them I refer the reader.

The translation not primarily an interpretation, but a literal version. — Whitney expressly states (above, p. xix) that the design of this work is "to put together as much as possible of the material that is to help toward the study and final comprehension of this Veda"; accordingly, we can hardly deny the legitimacy of his procedure, on the one hand, in making his version a rigorously literal one, and, on the other, in restricting the interpretative constituents of the work to narrow limits. He recognized how large a part the subjective element plays in the business of interpretation; and if, as he intimates, his main purpose was to clear the ground for the interpreters yet to come, his restriction was well motivated. It is, moreover, quite in accord with his scientific skepticism that he should prefer to err on the side of telling less than he knew, and not on the side of telling more than he knew: a fact which is well illustrated by his remark at viii. 9. 18, where he says, "The version is as literal as possible; to modify it would imply an understanding of it."

A literal version as against a literary one. — Let no one think that Whitney was not well aware of the differences between such a version as he has given here, and a version which (like that of Griffith) makes concessions to the demands of literary style and popular interest. Whitney's version of xviii. 1. 50, as given below, reads: 'Yama first found for us a track; that is not a pasture to be borne away; where our former Fathers went forth, there [go] those born [of them], along their own roads.' With this compare his version of 1859 (O. and L. S., i., p. 58):

Yama hath found for us the first a passage;
that's no possession to be taken from us;
Whither our fathers, of old time, departed, thither their offspring, each his proper pathway.

Each version has its own quality; each method has its justification: to make a complete translation after the second method, one must inevitably waive the consideration of philological difficulties, a thing by no means licit for Whitney in such a work as this. The admirable version of Griffith illustrates the advantages of the second method, and also its inherent limitations.¹

Interpretative elements: captions of the hymns.— The preponderating elements of the commentary are of a critical nature, and these have been discussed by me at length in chapters I to II of this Part I. of the General Introduction (above, pages lxiv to xciii); of the interpretative elements a few words need yet to be said. And first, it should be expressly stated that the English titles of the hymns (the captions or headings printed in Clarendon type throughout, just before the Anukramaṇī-excerpts) constitute, for the books of short hymns at least, a most important part of the interpretative element of this work. They have evidently been formulated by Whitney with much care and deliberation, and are intended by him to give briefly his view of the general purport of each hymn. In a few cases these captions were lacking, and have been supplied by me from his first draft (so at i. 35) or otherwise (so at ii. 12; v. 6; vii. 109: cf. books xv., xvi., and xviii., and p. 772, end). These captions are given in tabular form near the end of the work: see volume viii., p. 1024.

Interpretations by Whitney.— Where the text is not in disorder, a rigorously literal version is in many (if not in most) cases fairly intelligible without added interpretation. The need of such additions Whitney has occasionally, but perhaps not often, recognized. Thus after rendering the pādas i. 2. 3 ab by the words 'when the kine, embracing the tree, sing the quivering dexterous reed,' he adds, "that is, apparently, 'when the gut-string on the wooden bow makes the reed-arrow whistle.'" Similarly at vi. 125. 1. The text speaks at xviii. 1. 52 of an offense done puruṣdātā: Whitney renders 'through humanity,' and adds "that is, through² human frailty." Cf. note to vii. 33. 1.

It may be noted in this place (for lack of a better one) that Whitney, in reporting the conjectures or interpretations of his predecessors, passes over some in silence. Sometimes this appears to have been done intentionally and because he disapproved them. Thus at iv. 37. 3, he notes in his first draft the suggestions of BR. and OB. concerning avaṣvasām:

¹ It would be idle presumption in me to praise the work of a man whose knowledge of the literature and customs and spirit of India is so incomparably greater than my own; but I may be allowed to repeat the judgment of my revered and beloved friend, M. Auguste Barth, concerning Griffith's Veda-translations: Elle [the RV. translation] se présente ainsi sans aucun appareil savant, ce qui, du reste, ne veut pas dire qu'elle n'est pas savante. L'auteur, qui a longtemps dirigé le Benares College, a une profonde connaissance des langues, des usages, de l'esprit de l'Inde, et, pour maint passage, on aurait tort de ne pas tenir grandement compte de cette version en apparence sans prétentions (Revue de l'histoire des religions, year 1893, xxvii. 181). Elle [the AV. translation] . . . mérite les mêmes éloges (Ibidem, year 1899, xxxix. 25).

but ignores them in his second. Similarly, at ii. 14. 3, he omits mention of a translation of the verse given by Zimmer at p. 420.

Exegetical notes contributed by Roth.— It appears from the letters between Roth and Whitney that the former had written out a German version of this Veda, and that, although it was complete, its author did not by any means consider it as ready for publication. In order to give Whitney the benefit of his opinion on doubtful points, Roth made a brief commentary upon such selected words or phrases (in their proper sequence) as seemed to him most likely to present difficulties to Whitney. The result is a parcel of notes, consisting of 250 pages in Roth's handwriting, which is now in my keeping. From these notes Whitney has incorporated a considerable amount of exegetical matter into his commentary. It is yet to be considered whether the notes contain enough material unused by Whitney to warrant their publication, if this should appear upon other grounds to be advisable.

The translation has for its underlying text that of the Berlin edition.— With certain exceptions, to be noted later, the translation is a literal version of the Vulgate Atharvan text as given in the Berlin edition. For the great mass of the text, this is, to be sure, a matter of course. It is also a matter of course in cases where, in default of helpful variants to suggest an emendation of a desperate line, we are forced to a purely mechanical version, as at xii. 1. 37 a, 'she who, cleansing one, trembling away the serpent,' or at vi. 70. 2 ab. Even in the not infrequent cases where (in spite of the lack of parallel texts) an emendation is most obvious, Whitney sticks to the corrupted text in his translation, and reserves the emendation for the notes. Thus, at iv. 12. 4, ásṛk te ásthi rohatu mānsám mānséna rohatu, he renders 'let thy blood, bone grow,' although the change of ásṛk to asthnā would make all in order.

The translation follows the Berlin text even in cases of corrigible corruptions.— On the other hand, it may seem to some to be not a matter of course that Whitney should give a bald and mechanically literal version of the true Atharvan text as presented in the Berlin edition in those very numerous cases where the parallel texts offer the wholly intelligible readings of which the Atharvan ones are palpable distortions. Granting, however, that they are, although corrupt, to be accepted as the Atharvan readings, and considering that this work is primarily a technical one, his procedure in faithfully reproducing the corruption in English is entirely justified.

A few examples may be given. Whitney renders tám tvā bhaga sárva éj johavīmi (iii. 16. 5) by 'on thee here, Bhaga, do I call entire,' although RV.VS. have johavīti, 'on thee does every one call.' At v. 2. 8, túraç cid víçvam arnavat tápasvān is rendered 'may he, quick, rich in fervor, send(?) all,' although it is a corruption (and a most interesting one) of the very clear line dūraç ca viçvā avṛṇod āpa svāḥ. So purudāmāso (vii. 73. 1), 'of many houses,' although the Çrāuta-Sūtras offer purutamāso. At RV. vi. 28. 7 the cows are spoken of as 'drinking clear water and cropping good pasture,' sūyāvasam riçāntīḥ: the AV. text-makers, at iv. 21. 7, corrupt the phrase to -se ruçāntīḥ, but only in half-way fashion, for they leave the RV. accent to betray the character of their work. Even here Whitney renders by 'shining (riçāntīḥ) in good pasture.' The AV., at xviii. 4. 40, describes the Fathers as āsīnām ūrjam ūpa ye śacante; Whitney is right in rendering the line by 'they who attach themselves unto a sitting refreshment,' although its original intent is amusingly revealed by HGS., which has (juṣantām) māsī mām¹ ūrjam uta ye bhajante, 'and they who partake of this nourishment every month.' For other instances, see the notes to iv. 21. 2 a; iii. 3. 1; iv. 16. 6 (riçantas for ruçantas), 8 (vāruṇo); 27. 7 (viditām); vi. 92. 3 (dhāvatu); ii. 35. 4; iii. 18. 3; iv. 2. 6; 15. 5; vii. 21. 1; and so on.

Cases of departure from the text of the Berlin edition. — These are always expressly stated by Whitney. They include, first, cases in which the Berlin edition does not present the true Atharvan text. An example may be found at xix. 64. 1, where the editors had emended wrongly to āgre and the version implies āgne. At xix. 6. 13, the editors, following the suggestion of the parallel texts, had emended to chāndānsi the ungrammatical corruption of the AV. chāndo ha (jajñire tasmāt); but since Whitney held that the latter reading "has the best right to figure as Atharvan text," his intentionally ungrammatical English 'meter were born from that' is meant to imply that reading.

Here are included, secondly, cases in which the Berlin reading, although it has to be recognized as the true Atharvan reading, is so unmanageable that Whitney has in despair translated the reading of some parallel text or an emended reading. Thus at vii. 57. 2 c it is assumed that ubhé id asyo 'bhé asya rājataḥ is, although corrupt, the true Atharvan reading. The corruption is indeed phonetically an extremely slight distortion, for the RV. has ubhé id asyo 'bhāyasya rājataḥ; and from this the translation is made. — Other categories might be set up to suit the slightly varying relations of mss. and edition and version: cf. xix. 30. 1; xviii. 4. 87; and so on.

Whitney's growing skepticism and correspondingly rigid literalness. — At xiii. 4. 54, Whitney says: "Our rendering has at least concinnity — unless, indeed, in a text of this character, that be an argument against its acceptance." The remark is just; but one does not wonder that its author has been called der grosse Skeptiker der Sprachwissenschaft. That his skepticism grew with the progress of his work is clear from a comparison of the unrevised with the revised forms (cf. p. xxvii) of the early books. Thus at vi. 57. 2, as a rendering of jālāśā, his manuscript at first read 'healer'; but on the revision he has crossed this out and put the Vedic word untranslated in its stead. With his skepticism, his desire for rigid literalness seems to have increased. At ii. 33. 5, the first draft translates prāpada very suitably by 'fore parts of the feet'; but the second renders it by 'front feet.' Similarly, at vi. 42. 3, there is no reasonable doubt that pārṣṇyā prāpadena ca means [I trample] 'with heel and with toe' (cf. viii. 6. 15; vi. 24. 2); but again he renders by 'front foot.' At iii. 15. 7, his prior draft reads 'watch over our life': 'life' is an unimpeachable equivalent of 'vital spirits' or prāṇās; but the author has changed it to 'breaths' in the second draft.

His presumable motive, a wish to leave all in the least degree doubtful interpretation to his successors, we can understand; but we cannot deny that he sometimes goes out of his way to make his version wooden. Thus he renders ōhr, when used of skins or amulets (viii. 6. 11; 5. 13) by 'bear' instead of 'wear.' At iv. 21. 1, he speaks of cows as 'milking for Indra many dawns,' although 'full many a morning yielding milk for Indra' can hardly be called too free. Cf. his apt version of úttarām-uttarām sámām at xii. 1. 33, 'from one year to another,' with that given at iii. 10. 1; 17. 4, 'each further summer.' In a charm to rid the grain of danger, vi. 50. 1 d, 'make fearlessness for the grain' is needlessly inept. It is easy for Sanskritists, but not for others, to see that 'heroism' (vīryā), as used of an herb at xix. 34. 8, means its 'virtue' (and so he renders it at xii. 1. 2); that 'bodies' of Agni at xix. 3. 2 are his 'forms' (çivās or ghorās); and so on; but to others, such versions will hardly convey the intended meaning. The fact that svastībhis, in the familiar refrain of the Vasiṣṭhas, is a plural, hardly justifies the infelicity of using such a plural as 'well-beings' to render it at iii. 16. 7; and some will say the like of 'wealths' (iv. 13. 5), 'wealths,' and 'marrows.'

It lies entirely beyond the province of the editor to make alterations in matters of this kind. It is perhaps to be regretted that these infelicities, which do not really go below the surface of the work, are the very things that are the most striking for persons who examine the book casually and without technical knowledge; but the book is after all primarily for technical study.

Poetic elevation and humor. — The places in which the AV. rises to any elevation of poetic thought or diction are few indeed. Some of the funeral verses come as near it as any (among them, notably, xviii. 2. 50); and some of the philosophic verses (especially of x. 8 under Deussen's sympathetic treatment) have an interest which is not mean. The motive of xix. 47 is an exceptionally coherent and pleasing one. I presume that the idea of sending the fever as a choice present to one's neighbors (v. 22. 14) is intended to be jocose. Witchcraft and healing are serious businesses. If there is anything else of jocular tone in this extensive text, I do not remember that any one has recognized and noted it. The gravity of Whitney's long labor is hardly relieved by a gleam of humor save in his introduction to ii. 30 and his notes to vi. 16. 4 and 67. 2 and x. 8. 27, and the two cited at p. xcvi, line 4 from end, and p. xciv, l. 23.

13. Abbreviations and Signs explained

General scope of the list. — The following list is intended not only to explain all the downright or most arbitrary abbreviations used in this work, but also to explain in the shortest feasible way all such abbreviated designations of books and articles as are more or less arbitrary. The former generally consist of a single initial letter or group of such letters; the latter, of an author's name or of the abbreviated title of a work.

The downright abbreviations. — These are for the most part identical with those used by Whitney in his Grammar and given and explained by him on p. xxvi of that work: thus AA. = Āitareya-Āraṇyaka. — Whitney's omission of the macron proper to the A in AA., AB., AÇS., AGS., BAU., and TA. was doubtless motived by a purely mechanical consideration, the extreme fragility of the macron over a capital A; that he has not omitted it in Āpast. or Āp. is a pardonable inconsistency. — The sigla codicum are explained at p. cix, and only such of them are included here as have more than one meaning: thus, W. = Wilson codex and also = Whitney.

Abbreviated designations of books and articles. — For these the list is intended to give amply sufficient and clear explanations, without following strictly any set of rules of bibliographers. In the choice of the designations, brevity and unambiguousness have been had chiefly in mind. — An author's name, without further indication of title, is often used arbitrarily to mean his most frequently cited work. Thus "Weber" means Weber's Indische Studien. With like arbitrariness are used the names of Bloomfield, Caland, Florenz, Griffith, Grill, Henry, Ludwig, Muir, Winternitz, and Zimmer: cf. the list. — Where two coördinate reference-numbers, separated by a comma, are given (as in the case of Bloomfield, Grill, and Henry), the first refers to the page of the translation, and the second to the page of the commentary. Of similar numbers, separated by "or" (as on p. 286), the first refers to the original pagination, and the second to the pagination of the reprint.¹

¹ Here let me protest against the much worse than useless custom of giving a new pagination or a double pagination to separate reprints. If an author in citing a reprinted article does

Explanation of arbitrary signs. — The following signs (and letters) are used in the body of this work more or less arbitrarily.

Parentheses are used in the translation to enclose the Sanskrit original of any given English word (see above, p. xx), such indications being often most acceptable to the professional student. For numerous instances, see xii. 1, where the added bhūmi or pṛthivī (both are added in vs. 7) shows which of these words is meant by the English earth. They are also used to enclose an indication of the gender (m. f. n.) or number (du. pl.) of a Vedic word whose gender or number cannot otherwise be shown by the version.

Square brackets are employed to enclose some of the words inserted in the translation for which there is no express equivalent in the original.

Ell-brackets, or square brackets minus the upper horizontal stroke (thus: $\lfloor \rfloor$), were devised by the editor to mark as portions of this work for which Whitney is not responsible such additions or changes as were made by the editor (cf. p. xxviii, end). These types were devised partly because the usual parentheses and brackets were already employed for other purposes, and partly because they readily suggest the letter ell, the initial of the editor's name.

Hand. — In order to avoid the expense of alterations in the electroplates, all considerable additions and corrections have been put together on pages 1045–46, and reference is made to them in the proper places by means of a hand pointing to the page concerned (thus, at p. 327, line 11:  See p. 1045).

The small circle (thus: \circ) represents the avagraha or division-mark of the pada-texts. This use of the circle is common in the mss. (as explained at p. cxxii) and has been followed in the Index Verborum (see p. 4).

The Italic colon (:) is employed as equivalent of the vertical stroke used in nāgarī to separate individual words or padas. Both circle and colon are used in the note to vi. 131. 3. I regard both the circle and the colon as extremely ill adapted for the uses here explained.

The letters a, b, c, d, e, f, etc., when set, as here, in Clarendon type, are intended to designate the successive pādas of a Vedic stanza or verse.

Alphabetic list of abbreviations. — The downright abbreviations and the abbreviated designations of books and articles follow here, all in a single alphabetically arranged list.

not give each reference thereto in duplicate, or if his reader does not have at hand both the original and the reprint (and either of these cases is exceptional), the seeker of a citation is sure to be baffled in a large proportion of the instances concerned. It is amazing that any author or editor can be so heedless as to tolerate this evil practice.

14. Tabular View of Translations and Native Comment

Previous translations. — Native commentary. — It may prove useful to have, in convenient tabular form, a list of the most important or comprehensive previous translations, with dates; and also a list of those parts of the text upon which the native commentary has been published in the Bombay edition. The dates are taken from the title-pages of the volumes concerned; the dates of the prefaces, or of the parts of the volumes concerned, are sometimes considerably earlier. For bibliographical details, see the List, pages ci-cvi. The braces at the right show which of SPP's four volumes contains the text, or the text with comment, of any given book.

I. Translation of the whole text.

II. Translations of a mass of selected hymns.

Bloomfield, 1897: see p. ci. Ludwig, 1878: see p. civ. Grill, 1888: see p. cii.

Chronologic sequence of previous translations and discussions.— In judging between the translations or opinions of different exegetes, it is desirable to know their chronological sequence. In giving the detailed bibliographical minutiae below, at the beginning of each hymn, I have always endeavored to arrange them chronologically; but the following brief table in addition will not be superfluous. The difference in time of the printing of the translations of Griffith and Bloomfield and Henry (x.-xii.) was so small that they must have been each independent of the others. For the places of publication etc., see the List, pages ci-cvi.

GENERAL INTRODUCTION, PART II.

ELABORATED BY THE EDITOR, IN LARGE PART FROM WHITNEY'S MATERIAL

General Premises

[Contents of this Part.— While Part I. contains much that might be presented in a preface, the contents of Part II. are more strictly appropriate for an introduction. The contents of Part I. are briefly rehearsed at p. lxiii; and the contents of both Parts, I. and II., are given with more detail and in synoptic form at pages x–xv, which see. As was the case with the ten text-critical elements of the commentary in Part I., the subject-matter of Part II. also may be put under ten headings as follows:

1. Description of the manuscripts.
2. Their opening stanza.
3. Whitney's Collation-Book.
4. Repeated verses in the mss.
5. Refrains and the like in the mss.
6. Accentuation-marks in the mss.
7. Orthographic method of Berlin text.
8. Metrical form of the Atharvan saṁhitā.
9. Divisions of the text.
10. Its extent and structure.]

1. Description of the Manuscripts used by Whitney

[The brief designations of his manuscripts (sigla codicum).— The sigla O. and L. seem to be arbitrary. It is helpful to note that Whitney apparently intended that all the rest should be suggestive. Thus B., P., R., T., and D. are the initials respectively of Berlin, Paris, Roth, Tanjore, and Deccan; small p. of course means pada-text; and small s. means saṁhitā-text; and K. was the first letter of Bikaner not previously employed as siglum. M. and W., which designate the mss. of the Mill collection and Wilson collection of the Bodleian, were chosen as being initials of Mill and Wilson. The letters E. I. H., as designating the mss. of the Library of the India Office in London, were plainly meant to suggest the name East India House, the designation of the London establishment of the Hon. East India Company previous to 1858. Observe that Whitney's "I." was first used by him to designate E.I.H. ms. No. 2142 (Eggeling's No. 234), but only until he discovered that that ms. was a mere copy of the Polier ms. in the British Museum; after that time Whitney collated the Polier original, retaining for it, however, the designation "I." The sigla of the mss. used by Whitney before publication are essentially the same as those given by him at the end of his Introductory Note to the AV.Pr., p. 338, which see.]

[Synoptic table of the manuscripts used by Whitney. — It will be convenient to have, in addition to Whitney's description of his mss., a synoptic table of them, cast in such a form that the reader may easily see just what ones were available for any given book. The following table is essentially the same as one which Whitney made for his own use.]

gives the sigla used by Whitney, but with some marks (a, b, c, ', ") added for convenience of reference to or from the preceding table. The second column shows which books any given ms. contains. The third gives the numbers of the mss. as they stand in Weber's Catalogue; and the fourth gives the old numbers assigned to those mss. when they formed a part of the collection of Sir Robert Chambers. [Manuscripts used by Whitney before publication of the text. — The following descriptions were written out by Whitney in such form as to require almost no changes.]

Bp. Under this designation are, for convenience's sake, grouped two Berlin pada-manuscripts, making together a complete pada-text to books i.-xviii. The first manuscript, Bp.^a (Chambers, No. 8; Weber, No. 332), is described on pp. 82-83 of Weber's Catalogue of the Berlin Sanskrit mss. It contains books i.-ix., written in a clear but rather rude hand, quite fairly correctly, and accented throughout in a uniform manner. At the end of book ii. is a colophon (given in full by Weber), stating the date as A.D. 1593-4; but this is probably copied from the scribe's original. At the end of the fourth book was perhaps another colophon; but, if so, it is lost, with the last word of the last verse in the book, by the omission of a leaf (leaf 125). The second manuscript, Bp.^b (Chambers, No. 108; Weber, No. 335; see Weber's Catalogue, pp. 83-84), containing books x.-xviii., is defective at the end, lacking the last two verses of xviii. (except the first word of 4. 88), and of course also the colophon. It is written in three different hands, with fair correctness (Weber's note, "by the same hand as 334," is a mistake). It is accented in the same manner as No. 332.

Bp.² This designation also applies to more than one manuscript: the first manuscript, Bp.^{2a}, contains only book i. (Chambers, No. 117; Weber, No. 331; Cat., p. 82), is handsomely and very accurately written, and is quite independent of Bp. It is dated A.D. 1632. Its mode of accentuation changes soon after the beginning (see below, p. cxxi). The second manuscript, Bp.^{2b}, contains books v.–ix. This manuscript, though one in paper, size, and hand, has by some means become separated into two parts, the one (Chambers, 109; Weber, 333) containing only book v., and the other (Chambers, 107; Weber, 334: both p. 83 of Cat.) containing books vi.–ix. They are less independent than Bp.^{2a}, representing the same proximate original as Bp. (though they are not copied from Bp., nor are they its original); but they are decidedly more accurate than Bp., and also more carefully corrected since copying. There is no colophon to either part, but they are as old, apparently, as Bp.^{2a}, or as Bp.; their mode of accentuation agrees throughout with that of the latter.

B. or Bs. This is the Berlin manuscript (Chambers, 115; Weber, 338: pp. 84–85 of Cat.) of books xi.–xx. in samhitā-text. It is rather incorrect and somewhat worm-eaten. It bears the date A.D. 1611. In the Berlin Library is (Chambers, 120; Weber, 339: p. 85 of Cat.) a modern copy [B."'] of it, having value only as having been made before its original was so much worm-eaten as at present.

P. and M. These are virtually one manuscript, being two copies of the same original, by the same hand, and agreeing precisely in form and style. P. is in the Paris Library, and is in two volumes, marked D 204 and D 205. M., also in two volumes, belongs to the Mill collection in the Bodleian Library at Oxford.¹ By some curious and unexplained blunder, the copy of books vii.–x. that belonged to M. was sent by mistake to Paris with P., so that P's first volume contains books i.–x., and its second vii.–xx., while of M. the first volume contains i.–vi., and the second xi.–xx. In the references made in the notes below, the copy of vii.–x. included in the first² volume of P. is accounted as M. The differences of the two are not altogether such as are due only to the last copyist; since P. has been collated and corrected (winning thereby some false readings). P. is also more carefully copied than M., but both are rather inaccurate reproductions of a faulty original. A colophon copied in both at the end of book xi. gives sarvat 1812 (A.D. 1756) as the date, doubtless of the original; the copies are recent, probably since the beginning of the nineteenth century. Their mode of accentuation is by strokes, not dots; that of P. is defective from xiii. 1 to xix. 10.

W. This also, like M., belongs to the Bodleian Library at Oxford,³ and is a samhitā-manuscript of the whole Atharvan, excepting only book xviii. It has no colophon at the end, but is a modern copy, on European paper, and in part made from the same original as P. and M., as is shown both by accordances in minute peculiarities and errors of reading, and by containing at the end of book xi. the same colophon as they. In certain of the books, namely i., ii., vi.-x., xvi., xvii., it shows signs of greater independence. It is by far the most faulty and least valuable of all the manuscripts collated. Only the first book is accentuated, nearly in the familiar RV. method.

² [The printer's copy of this paragraph in Whitney's handwriting says clearly "second volume"; but the original description of the mss. (made by him probably in 1853) says clearly "first volume": I feel sure that the original is right and have altered the proof to correspond therewith.]

E. This is a samhitā-manuscript of all the twenty books (except the latter half of xviii., from 3. 6 on), belonging to the India Office Library in London. It is described in Eggeling's Catalogue on p. 37 (now numbered 229 and 230; formerly 682 and 760 or 113). It has no date; Eggeling reckons it as of the 17th century. It is written on coarse rough paper, in a large and irregular hand, apparently by a scholar for his own use, and is fairly correct. The text is here and there a little mutilated at the edges by the reprehensible carelessness of the binder; otherwise it is in good preservation. Its method of accentuation is very various: see below, p. cxxii.

I. This is a complete copy of the samhitā-text, in large form (14¾ × 6¾ in.), being one of the set of Vedic manuscripts brought to Europe by Col. Polier, and now belonging to the British Museum in London. The Atharvan material is contained in two volumes: vol. i. gives first book xix., then xx., then i.-x.; vol. ii. gives the Anukramaṇī, then the Gopatha Brāhmaṇa, then books xi.-xvii., then xviii. — each division, in both volumes, being separately paged. There is no colophon; but the whole is evidently a modern copy, made for Col. Polier himself. It is on smooth paper, well written, and not especially inaccurate. It contains the verse çāin no devīr etc. prefixed at the beginning, like some of the manuscripts compared later (see p. cxvi).

Of all this Atharvan material of Polier's, a copy was made for Col. Martin while it remained in the latter's keeping (as Prof. H. H. Wilson informed me that he personally knew it to have been for a time); and this copy now constitutes Nos. 233-236 of the India Office collection, being credited as presented by R. Johnson (No. 234, containing Books xi.-xviii., has W. D. W.'s note to this effect reported in the Catalogue; but Prof. Eggeling fails to notice that the other volumes are of the same character). The collation of No. 234 was begun, but abandoned on the discovery of its origin. Doubtless No. 232 (old number 901) is another copy of the Polier first volume, made at the same time for Colebrooke, or else [made for Martin and] later given [to Colebrooke] by Martin, as it is stamped "Claud Martin"; [at all events, the one who gave it to the Library was Colebrooke].

H. This manuscript, again, belongs to the India Office Library (No. 231; old No. 1137; Catalogue, p. 37). It contains only the first six books, and is handsomely but rather incorrectly written. It has no date, but its accentuation was added in A.D. 1708. Its mode of marking the accent varies: see below.

[Manuscripts collated after publication of the text.—The following descriptions also were written out by Whitney, except those of mss. R. and T., which have been supplied by the editor.]

The above are all the manuscripts known to have been in Europe in 1853; and upon them alone, accordingly, the printed text was founded. Those that follow have been since collated, and their readings are reported in the notes to the translation.

O. In the possession at present of the Munich Library, but formerly of Prof. M. Haug (to whom they belonged at the time of their collation), are a parcel of Atharvan manuscripts containing a complete samhitā-text, with a pada-text of six books, variously divided and bound together, and in part mixed with other texts. The samhitā-text is designated as above: it is in five parts: 1. books i.–v., on European paper, $8\frac{1}{4} \times 3$ in., each book separately paged. The date at the end, çake 1737 (= A.D. 1815) may be that of the original from which this copy is made. It is written in a small but neat and clear hand. 2. Books vi.–xvii., $8\frac{3}{4} \times 3\frac{3}{4}$ in., written in a good sizeable hand, by a Māmnajī; dated samvat 1690 (A.D. 1634); the paper is in parts badly damaged, so as hardly to hold together, and of two leaves in book xii. only fragments remain. It makes great use of the virāma, and of \smile as anusvāra-sign. It numbers the verses only in vargas, making no account of the hymns (sūktas); nor does it notice the prapāṭhaka division. 3. Book xviii., $9\frac{1}{4} \times 5$ in.; in a large regular hand; dated çake 1735 (A.D. 1813). When collated, it was bound in one volume with pada-ms. of i.–iii. before it, and samhitā of xx. after it. 4. Book xix., bound up with 1. (samhitā i.–v.), and in all respects agreeing with it, save that the (copied?) date is two years later; both are works of the same copyist. 5. Book xx., bound in (as above noted) after 3. The size is $8\frac{3}{4} \times 4\frac{1}{2}$ in., and it is dated çake 1735 (A.D. 1813).

Op. This designates the pada-text of the Haug or Munich manuscripts, as above described. They include books i.–iv., xviii., and xx., in three divisions: 1. books i.–iii., bound up (as noted above) with the samhitā-text of xviii. and xx. The books are paged separately, but all written by one hand; the date at the end is çake 1733 (A.D. 1811); size $9 \times 4\frac{3}{4}$ in. The hand is large and clear, and the text (corrected by the accentuator) very correct. 2. Book iv.: size 8×4 in.; date çake 1736 (A.D. 1814). 3. Books xviii. and xx., bound with the preceding, and of same size; separately paged; date çake 1762 (A.D. 1840). From xx. are omitted the peculiar Atharvan parts, except hymn 2.

O. and Op. were not collated word by word throughout, because use of them was allowed only for the time of a limited stay in Munich. Books xv.–xix., and the peculiar parts of xx., also the parvāya hymns in the preceding books, and the pada-text, were collated thoroughly; in the metrical parts of vi.–xiv. the comparison was made by looking through the transliterated copy and noting readings on all doubtful points.

[These mss. are described in the Verzeichniss der orientalischen Handschriften aus dem Nachlasse des Professor Dr. Martin Haug in München, München, T. Ackermann, 1876. By the siglum O. are designated the mss. there numbered 12, 13, and 14; by Op., those numbered 15 and 17. The dimensions there given differ in part a little from those given by Whitney. It is worth while to report from JAOS. x., p. cxviii, W's critical remark about this material: "all in good and correct manuscripts, made by and for Hindu scholars (not copies by professional scribes for the use of Europeans)."]

R. [This is a complete samhitā-ms., belonging at the time of its collation (1875) to Roth, and now in the Tübingen University Library. It is described by Roth, Der Atharvaveda in Kaschmir, p. 6, and by Garbe, in his Verzeichniss, as No. 12, p. 11. It is bound in two volumes, the one containing books i.–x., and the other, books xi.–xx. In the colophons to a number of the books (so viii., ix., x., xiv., xix.) is the date çake 1746 (A.D. 1824); but at the end of xx. is the date samvat 1926 (A.D. 1870). It was bought for Roth from a Brahman in Benares by Dr. Hoernle, and Roth judged from the name of the scribe, Paṭuvaradhana Viṭhala, that it originated in the Deccan. Whitney says (JAOS. x., p. cxviii, = PAOS. Nov. 1875) that it has special kindred with the Haug mss. Roth adds that it is written and corrected throughout with the most extreme carefulness and is far more correct than the AV. mss. are wont to be.]

T. [This also is a complete samhitā-ms., a transcript made from the Tanjore-mss. described on p. 12 of A. C. Burnell's Classified index to the Sanskrit mss. in the palace at Tanjore and numbered 2526 and 2527. The transcript was sent to Roth by Dr. Burnell and is described by Roth and by Garbe in the places just cited under codex R. Books i.–iv. of the transcript are unaccented; the rest are accented. According to Burnell, No. 2526 contains books i.–xx., is unaccented, and was written about A.D. 1800; and No. 2527 contains books v.–xx., is accented, and was written A.D. 1827 at Benares. I find no note stating the relation of Roth's transcript to its Tanjore originals: presumably the transcript of the unaccented books, i.–iv., was taken from the unaccented No. 2526; and that of the accented books, v.–xx., from No. 2527.]

D. This is a pada-manuscript belonging to the Deccan College at Poona, collated while in Roth's possession at Tübingen. It is unaccented in book xviii. It is very incorrectly written, and its obvious errors were left unnoted. It gives a pada-text even for book xix., but not for the peculiar parts of xx. [The Index to the Catalogue of 1888 of the Deccan College mss. gives only two complete pada-mss. of the AV., to wit, the ms. listed as III. 5 on p. 13, and the one listed as XII. 82 on p. 174. The Catalogue gives as date of the latter saṃvat 1720; and as date of the former, saṃvat 1741. In the Collation-Book, Whitney gives at the end of book xx. the colophon of his D. with the dates saṃvat 1741, çake 1606. This agreement in date seems to identify his D. with the ms. III. 5. That ms. is a part of the collection of 1870-71, made by Bühler; it is booked as consisting of 435 pages and as coming from Broach or Bharūch.]

L. A pada-manuscript of xix. in the Berlin Library was apparently copied from D. while it was still in India (this copy is denoted by L.). [It is described by Weber, Verzeichniss, vol. ii., p. 79, under No. 1486, with details confirmatory of the above.]

K. By this sign is meant a manuscript from Bikaner containing the complete saṃhitā-text; it was for some time in the hands of Roth at Tübingen, and was consulted by means of a list of some 1200 doubtful readings sent to Tübingen and reported upon. These concerned books i.-xviii. alone; xix. and the peculiar parts of xx., not admitting of treatment in that way, did not get the benefit of the collation. The manuscript claims to be written in saṃvat 1735, çake 1600 (A.D. 1678-9), by Emmuvā-gaṇeça, under king Anūpasiṅha, at Pattana-nagara.

Accompanying this is a pada-manuscript written by the same scribe, but without accents. Where there is occasion for it, this is distinguished by the designation Kp.

2. The Stanza çām no devīr abhiṣṭāye as Opening Stanza

[It was doubtless the initial stanza of the text in the Kashmirian recension. — This stanza, which appears as i. 6. 1 of the Vulgate, doubtless stood at the beginning of the Pāippalāda text. In 1875, Roth, in his AV. in Kaschmir, p. 16, remarks upon the general agreement in the tradition according to which çām no etc. was the initial stanza of Pāipp., and not yé triṣaptāḥ as in the Vulgate; and regrets all the more on that account that the first leaf of the Pāipp. ms. is lost.]

[Çām no as initial stanza of the Vulgate text. — Whitney notes that this stanza is also found prefixed to the text of the Vulgate in four of the mss. used by him, to wit, I. and R. and O. and Op. Thus at the beginning of I. we have the stanza çām no devīr abhiṣṭāye entire, and then yé triṣaptāḥ.]

[In 1871, Haug had noted, p. 45 of his Brahma und die Brahmanen, that the Mahābhāṣya, in rehearsing the beginnings of the four Vedas, gives çam etc. as the beginning of the AV.,¹ and that both of his mss. (our O. and Op., as just stated) prefix the stanza. In 1873, Ind. St. xiii. 431-3, Weber again called attention to the fact concerning the Mahābhāṣya, and to a similar one concerning the Gopatha Brāhmaṇa. In 1874, Indian Antiquary, iii. 132, Bhandarkar speaks of our stanza as representative pratîka of the AV. in the Brahmajājña or daily devotional recitation of the Hindus. For further discussion of the matter, see Bloomfield, Kāuçika, Introduction, pages xxxvii and xxxviii, and the references there given, and his note to 9. 7, and his §§ 13-14 in the Grundriss, p. 14. We may add that in 1879 Burnell observed, on p. 37 b of his Tanjore Catalogue, that the real South Indian mss. of the Mahābhāṣya ignore the AV. and omit the çam no devîr.]

3. Whitney's Collation-Book and his Collations

[Description of the two volumes that form the Collation-Book. — The Collation-Book is the immediate source of the statements of this work concerning the variants of the European mss. of the Atharva-Veda. It contains, in Whitney's handwriting, the fundamental transcript (in Roman transliteration) of the text, and the memoranda of the subsequent collations. It is bound in two volumes: of these, the second, comprehending books x.-xx., appears to have been written first, since it is dated "Berlin, Oct 1851-Jan 1852"; while the first, comprehending books i.-ix., is dated "Berlin, Jan-March 1852," and thus appears to have been written last. The volumes are of good writing-paper (leaves about 8 by 10 inches in size), the first containing 334 leaves, and the second, 372.]

[Whitney's fundamental transcript of the text. — In copying book x. (the first book copied), Whitney has written the text on both sides of the leaf; but for the books subsequently copied, books xi.-xx. and i.-ix., he has written the text on the verso only and used the recto of the next leaf for various memoranda. For all the first eighteen books except book v., this fundamental copy is a transcript of the pada-text contained in the two Berlin pada-mss. (see the table on page cxi), called Chambers, 8 and 108, and designated above as Bp. For book v., he copied from one of the four mss. to which the designation Bp.² is applied, to wit from Chambers, 109.]

[The fundamental copy of book xix. was made by Whitney from the samhitā-ms. Chambers, 115 = B. He appears to have copied the text first on the recto, without word-division, and using Roman letters, although applying to them the vertical and horizontal accent strokes as if to nāgarī; and afterwards to have written out the text on the opposite page, the verso of the preceding leaf, with word-division, and with accents marked in the usual European way. At xix. 27. 6 Whitney makes the note, "acc. from Paris ms. to the end of the book." — For book xx., the transcript was made from Chambers, 114 = Bp.^o.]

[The Paris and Oxford and London collations. — These, made in the months of March to July, 1853, were the last collations before the printing of the text. They were made in the order as named, and their sequence appears from the biographical sketch¹ above, p. xlv.]

[Collations made after publication (that is, made in 1875 or later.) — Twenty years or more after the issue, in Feb. 1855, of the printed text of books i.–xix., were made the collations of the mss. enumerated below. See above, page xlv, and JAOS. x., p. cxviii.]

[Collation of the Haug, Roth, Tanjore, and Deccan mss. — The collation with the Haug mss., O. and Op., was made at Munich, in June and July, 1875. Then followed, at Tübingen, the collations with the mss. D. and T. and R.]

[The collation with the Bikaner ms., K. — This, as stated above, p. cxvi, was made by means of a list of doubtful readings sent by Whitney to Roth and reported upon.]

[Other contents of the Collation-Book. — The various memoranda (mentioned above, p. cxvii, ¶ 3) are usually written on the blank page opposite the hymn or verse concerned. They include the excerpts from the Major Anukramaṇī, the citations of concordant passages gathered from an exceedingly comprehensive study of the other Vedic texts, very full

references to the AV. Prātiçākhyā and to the Kāuçika and Vāitāna Sūtras, references to the writings of Occidental Vedic scholars in which a given verse or hymn has been treated by way of translation or comment, schemes of the meters and criticism thereof, and finally miscellaneous notes. — I may add here that Whitney left a Supplement to his Collation-Book. It consists of 19 loose leaves containing statements of the variants of B.P.M.W.E.I.H. in tabular form. With it are about a dozen more leaves of variants and doubtful readings etc.]

4. Repeated Verses in the Manuscripts¹

Abbreviated by pratīka with addition of ity ekā etc. — There are 41 cases of a repeated verse or a repeated group of verses occurring a second time in the text and agreeing throughout without variant with the text of the former occurrence. These in the mss. generally, both saṁhitā and pada, are given the second time by pratīka only, with ity ekā (sc. īk) or iti dvē or iti tisrāḥ added and always accented like the quoted text-words themselves. Thus ix. 10. 4 (= vii. 73. 7) appears in the mss. as ūpa hvaya ity ekā. On the other hand, the very next verse, although it differs from vii. 73. 8 only by having 'bhyāgāt for nyāgan, is written out in full. So xiii. 2. 38 (= x. 8. 18) appears as sahasrāhnyām ity ekā; while xiii. 3. 14, which is a second repetition of x. 8. 18 but contains further the added refrain tāsya etc., is written out in full as far as tāsya. The like holds good of xiii. 3. 18. See note to xiii. 3. 14.

List of repeated verses or verse-groups. — The 41 cases of repetition involve 52 verses. The list of them is given on p. 3 of the Index Verborum (where xix. 23. 20 is a misprint) and is given with the places of first occurrence. The list is repeated here, but without the places of first occurrence, which may always be ascertained from the commentary below. It is: iv. 17. 3; v. 6. 1 and 2; 23. 10-12; vi. 58. 3; 84. 4; 94. 1-2; 95. 1-2; 101. 3; vii. 23. 1; 75. 1; 112. 2; viii. 3. 18, 22; 9. 11; ix. 1. 15; 3. 23; 10. 4, 20, 22; x. 1. 4; 3. 5; 5. 46-47, 48-49; xi. 10. 17; xiii. 1. 41; 2. 38; xiv. 1. 23-24; 2. 45; xviii. 1. 27-28; 3. 57; 4. 25, 43, 45-47, 69; xix. 13. 6; 23. 30; 24. 4; 27. 14-15; 37. 4; 58. 5.

Further details concerning the pratīka and the addition. — The pratīka embraces the first word, or the first two, [or even the first three, when one or two of them are enclitics: so vi. 94. 1; 101. 3; viii. 3. 22; ix. 1. 15]; but at xix. 58. 5 the whole first pāda is given with ity ekā added. Occasionally, in one or another ms., the repeated verse or group is given in full: thus by O.R. in the cases of repetitions in book xviii. Both editions give all the repeated verses in full.

The addition is lacking at v. 6. 1 and v. 6. 2 ; although these are consecutive verses, it is clear from the separate giving of two pratīkas that here repetitions of non-consecutive verses are intended, and that the addition in each case would be īty ekā. The addition is also lacking at xiv. 1. 23-24 ; where, however, the repetition of consecutive verses, vii. 81. 1-2, is intended. Here again the mss. give two pratīkas separately, pūrvāparām (= vii. 81. 1 and xiii. 2. 11) and nāvonavaḥ (= vii. 81. 2) ; and they do this instead of giving pūrvāparām īti dvé, because the latter procedure would have been ambiguous as meaning perhaps also xiii. 2. 11-12.

The addition īti pūrvā is made where the pratīka alone might have indicated two verses with the same beginning. This happens at xiii. 1. 41 (where avāḥ pāreṇa might mean either ix. 9. 17 or 18 : see note, p. 716) and at xviii. 4. 43 (but as to this there is disagreement : see note). — By lack of further addition, the intended repetition is doubtful at x. 5. 48-49, where yād agna īti dvé might mean either viii. 3. 12-13 or vii. 61. 1-2 (see note, p. 585) ; there is doubt also at xix. 37. 4 (the case is discussed fully at p. 957).

5. Refrains and the like in the Manuscripts

Written out in full only in first and last verse of a sequence. — For the relief of the copyists, there is practised on a large scale in both the samhitā- and the padu-mss. the omission of words and pādas repeated in successive verses. In general, if anywhere a few words or a pāda or a line or more are found in more than two successive verses, they are written out in full only in the first and last verses and are understood in the others [cf. p. 793, end]. For example, in vi. 17, a hymn of four verses, the refrain, being c, d of each of the four, is written out only in 1 and 4. Then, for verse 2 is written only mahī dādihāre mān vānaspatīn, because yāthe 'yām pṛthivī at the beginning is repeated. [That is, the scribe begins with the last one of the words which the verse has in common with its predecessor.] Then, because dādihāra also is repeated in 2-4, in verse 3 mahī also is left out and the verse reads in the mss. simply dādihāra pārvatān girīn — and this without any intimation of omission by the ordinary sign of omission. — Sometimes the case is a little more intricate. Thus, in viii. 10, the initial words só 'd akrāmat are written only in verses 2 and 29, although they are really wanting in verses 9-17, paryāya II. (verses 8-17) being in this respect treated as if all one verse with subdivisions [cf. p. 512 top].

Such abbreviated passages treated by the Anukramaṇī as if unabbreviated. — The Anukramaṇī generally treats the omitted matter as if present, that is, it recognizes the true full form of any verse so abbreviated. In a few instances, however, it does not do so : such instances may be found at xv. 2, where the Anukr. counts 28 instead of 32 or 4×8 ; at xv. 5 (16 instead of 7×3) ; at xvi. 5 (10 instead of 6×3) ; at xvi. 8 (33 instead of 108 or 27×4) : cf. the discussions at p. 774, ¶ 2, p. 772, ¶ 3, p. 793 end, p. 794 top. Such treatment shows that the text has (as we may express it) become mutilated in consequence of the abbreviations, and it shows how old and how general they have been. — One and another ms., however, occasionally fills out some of the omissions — especially R., which, for example, in viii. 10 writes só'd akrāmat every time when it is a real part of the verse.

Usage of the editions in respect of such abbreviated passages. — Very often SPP. prints in full the abbreviated passages in both samhitā and pada form, thus presenting a great quantity of useless and burdensome repetitions. Our edition takes advantage of the usage of the mss. to abbreviate extensively ; but it departs from their usage in so far as always to give full intimation of the omitted portions by initial words and by signs of omission. In all cases where the mss. show anything peculiar, it is specially pointed out in the notes on the verses.

6. Marks of Accentuation in the Manuscripts

Berlin edition uses the Rig-Veda method of marking accents. — The modes of marking the accent followed in the different mss. and parts of mss. of the AV. are so diverse, that we were fully justified in adopting for our edition the familiar and sufficient method of the RV. That method is followed strictly throughout in books i.–v. and xix. of the Haug ms. material described above at p. cxiv under O. 1 and 4, but only there, and there possibly only by the last and modern copyist. [Whitney notes in the margin that it is followed also in book xviii. of O., and in books i.–iii. and iv. of Op., and in part of Bp.^{2a}. In this last ms., which is Chambers, 117, of book i., the] method of accentuation is at the beginning that of the Rik, but soon passes over to another fashion, precisely like that of Bp. [see next ¶] saving that horizontal lines are made use of instead of dots. The method continues so to the end.

Dots for lines as accent-marks. — The use of round dots instead of lines as accent-marks is a method that has considerable vogue. It is applied uniformly in the pada-mss. at Berlin (except in Bp.^{2a} as just stated) : a dot below the line is the anudāttatara-sign, in its usual place ; then the sign of the enclitic svarita is a dot, usually not above, but within the akṣara ; and the independent svarita is marked either by the latter method or else by a line drawn transversely upward to the right through the syllable. The dots, however, are unknown elsewhere, save in a large part of E. (from near the end of vi. 27 to the end of xix.) and also in large parts of H.

Marks for the independent svarita. — It was perhaps in connection with the use of the dots that the peculiar ways of marking the independent svārīta arose. The simplest way, used only in parts of the mss., is by a line below, somewhat convexed downwards. Or, again, we find just such a line, but run up into and more or less through the akṣara, either below or through the middle. [From this method was probably developed the method of] starting with a horizontal bit below and carrying it completely through the akṣara upwards and with some slant to the right and ending with a bit of horizontal above. [Cf. SPP's Critical Notice, p. 9.] This fully elaborated form is very unusual, and found only in three or four mss. (in part of Bp.^{2a} = Ch. 117, in D. and L., and occasionally in Kp.); [its shape is approximately that of the "long f" : cf. SPP's text of ii. 14 and my note to iii. 11. 2].

Horizontal stroke for svarita. — A frequent method is the use of the anudāttatara line below, just as in the RV., but coupled with the denotation of the enclitic svārīta by a horizontal stroke across the body of the syllable, and of the independent svārīta by one of the signs just noted. But even the independent svārīta is sometimes denoted by the same sign as the enclitic svārīta, to wit, by a dot or a horizontal line in the syllable itself. The last method (independent svārīta by horizontal) is seen in the old ms. of book xx., Bp.^c, dated A.D. 1477, and in B'.

The udātta marked by vertical stroke above, as in the Mātrāyaṇī. — It is a feature peculiar to E. among our AV. mss. that, from the beginning of book vi. on, it marks the udātta syllable by a perpendicular stroke above,* while the enclitic svārīta, as in other mss., has the horizontal stroke in the akṣara; but just before the end of vi. 27, both these strokes are changed to dots, as is also the anudāttatara-stroke; while in xx. the accentuator goes back to strokes again for all three. *[Note that in SPP's mss. A. and E. the udātta is marked by a red ink dot over the proper syllable.]

Accent-marks in the Bombay edition. — SPP., in his edition, adopts the RV. method, with the sole exception that he uses the fully elaborated peculiar f-sign, given by the small minority of the mss.,* for the independent svārīta. No ms., I believe, of those used by us, makes this combination of methods; and it may safely be claimed that our procedure is truer to the mss., and on that as well as on other accounts, the preferable one. *[See, for example, his Critical Notice, p. 14, description of Cp.]

Use of a circle as avagraha-sign. — As a matter of kindred character, we may mention that for the sign of avagraha or division of a vocable into its component parts, a small circle is used in all our pada-texts, even of book xx., excepting in the Munich text of xviii. and xx., as stated on p. 4 of the Index Verborum. [It is used also in SPP's pada-mss.: see his Critical Notice, pages 11-14.] This special AV. sign has been imitated in our transliteration in the Index and in the main body of this work [cf. page c]; but it may be noted that SPP. employs in his pada-text the sign usual in the RV.

7. Orthographic Method pursued in the Berlin Edition¹

Founded on the manuscripts and the Prātiçākhyā. — Our method is of course founded primarily upon the usage of the manuscripts; but that usage we have, within certain limits, controlled and corrected by the teachings of the AV. Prātiçākhyā.

That treatise an authority only to a certain point. — The rules of that treatise we have regarded as authority up to a certain point; but only up to a certain point, and for the reason that in the AVPr., as in the other corresponding treatises, no proper distinction is made between those orthographic rules on the one hand which are universally accepted and observed, and those on the other hand which seem to be wholly the outcome of arbitrary and artificial theorizing, in particular, the rules of the *varṇa-krama*² or dirgha-pāṭha. [Cf. Whitney's notes to AVPr. iii. 26 and 32 and TPr. xiv. 1.]

Its failure to discriminate between rules of wholly different value. — Thus, on the one hand, we have the rule [AVPr. iii. 27: see W's note] that after a short vowel a final \bar{n} or \bar{r} or \bar{z} is doubled before any initial vowel, a rule familiar and obligatory³ not only in the language of the Vedas but in the classical dialect as well; while, on the other hand, we have, put quite upon the same plane and in no way marked as being of a wholly different character and value, such a rule as the following:

The rule [iii. 31] that after r or h an immediately following consonant is doubled; [as to these duplications, the Prātiçākhyās are not in entire accord, Pāṇini is permissive, not mandatory, and usage differs greatly, and the h stands by no means on the same footing as the r : cf. W's Grammar, § 228; his note to Pr. iii. 31; and Pāṇini's record, at viii. 4. 50-51, of the difference of opinion between Çākaṭāyana and Çākalya.]

Another such rule is the prescription that the consonant at the end of a word is doubled, as in triṣṭuṣṭ, vidyutt, godhukk; this is directly contravened by RPr., VPr., TPr. — Yet another is the prescription that the first consonant of a group is doubled, as in aggnih, vṛkṣah, etc. [See W's notes to these rules, at iii. 26 and 28.] ["The manuscripts of the AV., so far as known to me, do not, save in very infrequent and entirely sporadic cases, follow any of the rules of the varṇakrama proper, excepting the one which directs duplication after a r; and even in this case, their practice is as irregular as that of the manuscripts of the later literature." So Whitney, note to iii. 32.]

²Cf. p. 832, ¶ 4, below.

Items of conformity to the Prātiçākhyā, and of departure therefrom. — Without including those general euphonic rules the observance of which was a matter of course, we may here state some of the particulars in which the authority of the Prātiçākhyā has served as our norm.

Transition-sounds: as in tān-t-sarvān. — Pr. ii. 9 ordains that between n̄, n, n and ç, ç, s respectively, k, t, t be in all cases introduced: the first two thirds of the rule never have an opportunity to make themselves good, as the text offers no instance of a conjunction of n̄ with ç or of n with ç; that of final n with initial s, however, is very frequent, and the t has always been introduced by us (save [by inadvertence] in viii. 5. 16 and xi. 2. 25). — The usage of the mss. is slightly varying ["exceedingly irregular," says W. in his note to ii. 9, p. 406, which see]: there is not a case perhaps where some one of them does not make the insertion, and perhaps hardly one in which they all do so without variation.

Final -n' before ç- and j-: as in paçyañ janmāni. — Pr. ii. 10 and 11 prescribe the assimilation of -n before a following palatal (i.e. its conversion into -n̄), namely, before ç- (which is then converted by ii. 17 into çh-), and before a sonant, i.e. before j- (since jh- does not occur). In such cases we have written for the converted -n an anusvāra; there can hardly arise an ambiguity † in any of the instances. [A few instances may be given: for -n j-, i. 33. 2*; ii. 25. 4, 5; iv. 9. 9*; 36. 9*; v. 8. 7; 22. 14*; vi. 50. 3; viii. 2. 9*; xii. 5. 44; for -n ç-, i. 19. 4*; iii. 11. 5; iv. 8. 3; 22. 6, 7; xviii. 4. 59. The reader may consult the notes to those marked with a star. — SPP. seems to allow himself to be governed by his mss.; this is a wrong procedure: see notes to viii. 2. 9; i. 19. 4; iv. 9. 9.] †[But see xiii. 1. 22.]

Final -n before c-: as in yāñç ca. — Rule ii. 26 virtually ordains the insertion of ç. Owing to the frequency of the particle ca, the cases are numerous, and the rule is strictly followed in all the Atharvan mss. and so of course in our edition. This is not, however, the universal usage of the Rik: cf. for example ii. 1. 16, asmāñ ca tāñç ca, and see RPr. iv. 32.

Final -n before t-: as in tāns te. — The same rule, ii. 26, ordains the insertion of s. As in the other Vedas, so in the AV., a s is sometimes inserted and sometimes not; its Pr. (cf. ii. 30) allows and the mss. show a variety of usage. Of course, then, each case has been determined on the authority of the mss., nor do there occur any instances in which this is wavering and uncertain. [The matter is fully discussed in W's note to ii. 26, and the 67 cases of insertion and the 28 cases of non-insertion are given on p. 417. Cf. also note to AV. i. 11. 2.]

Final -t before ç: as in asmac charavas. — By the strict letter of rules ii. 13 and 17, the ç is converted into ch- and the preceding final -t is then assimilated, making -ch-. In such cases, however, we have always followed rather the correct theory of the change, since the -t and ç by their union form the compound -ch-, and have written simply -ch-, as being a truer representation of the actual phonetic result. The mss., with hardly an exception, do the same. [The procedure of the edition and of the mss. is, I believe, uniformly similar also in cases like rchāt, gacha, yacha, etc.]

Abbreviation of consonant-groups: as in pañkti and the like. — By ii. 20 a non-nasal mute coming in the course of word-formation between a nasal and a non-nasal is dropped: so pañti; chintam and rundhi instead of chinttam and runddhi; etc. The mss. observe this rule quite consistently, although not without exceptions; and it has been uniformly followed in the edition. At xii. 1. 40, anuprayuñktām is an accidental exception; and here, for once, the mss. happen to agree in retaining the k. [Cf. the Hibernicisms stren'th, len'th, etc.]

Final -m and -n before l: as in kañ lokam and sarvāñ lokān. — Rule ii. 35 prescribes the conversion of -m and of -n alike into nasalized -l. In either case, the resultant combination is therefore, according to the prescription of the Pr., nasalized -l + l, or two l's of which the first is nasalized. Thus kam lokam becomes ka + nasalized l + lokam, a combination which we may write as kāl lokam or as kāil lokam or as kañ lokam.

[It is merely the lack of suitable Roman type that makes the discussion of this matter troublesome. In nāgarī, the nasalized l should properly be written by a l with a nasal sign over it. In Roman, it might well be rendered by an l with a dot as nearly over it as may be (thus l̇); in practice, a ñ is made to take the place of the dot alone or else of the dot + l, so that for the sound of "nasalized l" we find either ñl or simply ñ.]

For the combination resultant from -m l, the mss. are almost unanimous in writing [not what the Pr. ordains, but rather] a single l with nasal sign over the preceding vowel, as in kañ lokam at xi. 8. 11; this usage is followed by the Berlin text.

For the resultant from -n l, the mss. follow the Pr., not without exceptions, and write doubled l with nasal sign over the preceding vowel, as in sarvāñ lokān, x. 6. 16, etc., asmiñ loke, ix. 5. 7, etc.; this usage also has been followed in the Berlin text (but not with absolute uniformity). — It would probably have been better to observe strictly the rule of the Pr. and to write both results with double l and preceding nasal sign.

Visarga before st- and the like: as in ripu stena steyakṛt, viii. 4. 10 = RV. vii. 104. 10. Our Pr. [see note to ii. 40] contains no rule prescribing the rejection of a final visarga before an initial sibilant that is followed by a surd mute. The mss. in general, although with very numerous and irregularly occurring exceptions, practice the rejection of the ḥ, and so does the Rik [cf. RPr. iv. 12; TPr. ix. 1; VPr. iii. 12]; and the general usage of the mss. has been followed by us. [For examples, see x. 5. 1-14: cf. also notes to iv. 16. 1 (ya stāyat: SPP. yas tāyat), i. 8. 3, etc.]

The kampa-figures 1 and 3. — Respecting the introduction of these figures between an independent circumflex and an immediately following acute accent in the samhitā, our Pr. is likewise silent. The usage of the mss. is exceedingly uncertain and conflicting: there is hardly an instance in which there is not disagreement between them in respect to the use of the one or of the other; nor can any signs of a tendency towards a rule respecting the matter be discovered. There are a few instances, pointed out each at its proper place in the notes, in which a short vowel occurring in the circumflexed syllable is protracted before the figure by all the samhitā-mss.* Such cases seemed mere casual irregularities, however, and we could not hesitate to adopt the usage of the Rik, setting 1 after the vowel if it were short in quantity, and 3 if it were long. [This matter is discussed with much detail by W. in his notes to APr. iii. 65, pages 494-9, and TPr. xix. 3, p. 362.] * [See APr., p. 499, near end, and notes to AV. vi. 109. 1 and x. 1. 9.]

The method of marking the accent. — With respect to this important matter, we have adapted the form of our text to the rules of the Rik rather than to the authority of the mss. As to the ways of marking the accent, a wide diversity of usage prevails among the Atharvan mss., nor is there perhaps a single one of them which remains quite true to the same method throughout. Their methods are, however, all of them in the main identical with that of the Rik, varying only in unimportant particulars. [The details have been discussed above (see p. cxxi), and with as much fulness as seemed worth while.]

8. Metrical Form of the Atharvan Samhitā

Predominance of anuṣṭubh. — The two striking features of the Atharva-Veda as regards its metrical form are the extreme irregularity and the predominance of anuṣṭubh stanzas. The stanzas in gāyatrī and triṣṭubh are correspondingly rare, the AV. in this point presenting a sharp contrast with the Rig-Veda. The brief bits of prose interspersed among metrical passages are given below, at p. 1011, as are also the longer passages in Brāhmaṇa-like prose. [In the Kashmirian recension, the latter are even more extensive than in the Vulgate: see p. lxxx.]

Extreme metrical irregularity. — This is more or less a characteristic of all the metrical parts of the Vedic texts outside of the Rig-Veda (and Sāma-Veda). In the saṁhitās of the Yajur-Veda, in the Brāhmaṇas, and in the Sūtras, the violations of meter are so common and so pervading that one can only say that meter seemed to be of next to no account in the eyes of the text-makers. It is probable that in the Atharvan saṁhitā the irregular verses outnumber the regular.

Apparent wantonness in the alteration of RV. material. — The corruptions and alterations of Rig-Veda verses recurring in the AV. are often such as to seem downright wanton in their metrical irregularity. The smallest infusion of care as to the metrical form of these verses would have sufficed to prevent their distortion to so inordinate a degree.

To emend this irregularity into regularity is not licit. — In very many cases, one can hardly refrain from suggesting that this or that slight and obvious emendation, especially the omission of an intruded word or the insertion of some brief particle or pronoun, would rectify the meter. It would be a great mistake, however, to carry this process too far, and by changes of order, insertions, and various other changes, to mend irregularity into regularity. The text, as Atharvan, never was metrically regular, nor did its constructors care to have it such; and to make it so would be to distort it.

9. The Divisions of the Text

[Summary of the various divisions. — These, in the order of their extent, are: pra-pāṭhakas or 'Vor-lesungen' or 'lectures,' to which there is no corresponding division in the RV.; kāṇḍas or 'books,' answering to the maṇḍalas of the RV.; and then, as in the RV., anu-vākas or 're-citations,' and sūktas or 'hymns,' and ṛcas or 'verses.' The verses of the long hymns are also grouped into 'verse-decads,' corresponding to the vargas of the RV. Besides these divisions, there are recognized also the divisions called artha-sūktas or 'sense-hymns' and pariyāya-sūktas or 'period-hymns'; and the subdivisions of the latter are called pariyāyas. In the pariyāya-hymns, the division into gaṇas (or sometimes daṇḍakas: p. 628) is recognized, and the verses are distinguished as avasānarcas and gaṇāvasānarcas (see p. 472). A great deal of detail concerning the divisions of the books (the later books especially) may be found in the special introductions to the several books.]

[The first and second and third grand divisions of books i.-xviii. — A critical study of the text reveals the fact that the first eighteen books are divided (see p. xv) into three grand divisions: the first (books i.-vii.) contains the short hymns of miscellaneous subjects; the second (books viii.-xii.) contains the long hymns of miscellaneous subjects; and the third consists of the books (xiii.–xviii.) characterized each by unity of subject. These divisions, although not clearly recognized in name (but cf. page clvii, below) by the text-makers, are nevertheless clearly recognized in fact, as is shown by the general arrangement of the text as a whole and as is set forth in detail in the next chapter, pages cxi–clxi. Concerning their recognition by the Old Anukr., see the paragraphs below, pages cxxxix f. In this chapter will be treated the divisions commonly recognized by the native tradition.]

The division into prapāṭhakas. — The literal meaning of pra-pāṭhaka is ‘Vor-lesung’ or ‘lesson’ or ‘lecture.’ This division, though noticed in all the mss., is probably a recent, and certainly a very secondary and unimportant one. It is not recognized by the commentary, and it does not appear in the Bombay edition. No ms. gives more than the simple statement, “such and such a prapāṭhaka finished”; no enumeration of hymns or verses is anywhere added. There are 34 prapāṭhakas, and they are numbered consecutively for the whole text so far as they go, that is, from book i. to book xviii. inclusive. The prapāṭhaka-division is not extended into books xix. and xx.

Prapāṭhakas: their number and distribution and extent. — First grand division (books i.–vii.): in each of the books i.–iii. there are 2 prapāṭhakas; in each of the books iv.–vi. there are 3; and in book vii. there are 2: in all, $(6 + 9 + 2 =) 17$. — Second grand division (books viii.–xii.): in each of the five books viii.–xii. there are 2 prapāṭhakas: in all, 10. — Third grand division (books xiii.–xviii.): each of the first five books, xiii.–xvii., forms 1 prapāṭhaka, while the sixth and last, book xviii., forms 2: in all, 7. — Sum for the three divisions, $(17 + 10 + 7 =) 34$. — In book iv. the division is very uneven, the first of the 3 prapāṭhakas containing 169 verses or over half the book; while in xii., on the other hand, in order to make an even division of the 304 verses as between the 2 prapāṭhakas, the end of the first is allowed to fall in the middle of a hymn (just after 3. 30), thus giving 148 verses to the first and 156 to the second. [On comparing the verse-totals of the books of the first grand division with the number of prapāṭhakas in each book, an attempt towards a rough approximation to equality of length among them will appear. The like is true in the second grand division; and also in the third (note especially book xviii.), so far as is feasible without making a prapāṭhaka run over more than one book.]

Their relation to the anuvāka-divisions. — The prapāṭhaka-divisions mostly coincide with the anuvāka-divisions. Exceptions are as follows: prapāṭhaka 11 begins with v. 8, in the middle of the second anuvāka of book v.; 19 begins with viii. 6, in the middle of the third anuvāka of book viii.; 21 begins with ix. 6, in the middle of the third anuvāka of book ix. ; 23 begins with x. 6, in the third anuvāka of book x. ; 25 begins with xi. 6, in the third anuvāka of book xi. ; and 27, as already noted, begins in the middle of the third hymn (and conterminous anuvāka) of book xii.

The division into kāṇḍas or 'books.' — [The word kāṇḍa means literally 'division' or 'piece,' especially the 'division of a plant-stalk from one joint to the next,' and is applied to the main divisions of other Vedic texts (TS., MS., ÇB., etc.). The best and prevailing rendering of the word is 'book.' As to the length of the kāṇḍas and their arrangement within their respective grand divisions, see p. cxliii, below.] The division into kāṇḍas is of course universal, and evidently fundamental.

The division into anuvākas. — The anu-vākas, literally 're-citations,' are subdivisions of the individual book, and are numbered continuously through the book concerned. They are acknowledged by the mss. in very different manner and degree. There is usually added to the anuvāka a statement of the number of hymns and verses contained in it, [and those statements are reproduced in this work in connection with the comment.] [From these it appears that the anuvāka-divisions are sometimes very unequal: thus the last anuvāka of book vi., where the average is 35 verses, has 64.] [In the course of the special introductions to the books, there is given for each of the books vii.–xix. (except xiv. and xvii.) a table showing the number of hymns and the number of verses in each anuvāka: see pages 388 and so on. For xiv. and xvii. also the facts are duly stated, but not in tabular form, which was needless.] The enumeration of verses is often made continuously through the anuvāka (cf. p. 388, end).

[Their number, and distribution over books and grand divisions. — The pertinent facts may be shown by a table with added statements. In the table, the first couple of lines refers to the first grand division; the second, to the second; and the last, to the third.

Books	i.	ii.	iii.	iv.	v.	vi.	vii.	contain
respectively	6	6	6	8	6	13	10	anuvākas .
Books	viii.	ix.	x.	xi.	xii.*			contain
respectively	5	5	5	5	5			anuvākas .
Books	xiii.*	xiv.*	xv.	xvi.	xvii.*	xviii.*		contain
respectively	4	2	2	2	1	4		anuvākas .

Thus the first grand division has 55 anuvākas; the second has 25; and the third has 15: sum, 95. Moreover, book xix. contains 7, and xx. contains 9. In the colophon to book xvii., neither printed edition has the note prathamo 'nuvākaḥ; but it is found (cf. p. 812) in the mss. Each of the books viii.–xi. has ten hymns (p. 472), and so each anuvāka there consists of just two hymns. In book xii., of five hymns, the anuvāka is coincident with the hymn. The like is true in books xiii., xiv., xvii., and xviii. (p. 814). In the table, these five books are marked with a star. But furthermore: if, as seems likely (see p. cxxx, below), books xv. and xvi. are to be reckoned each as a book of two hymns (and not as of 18 and 9 respectively), then all the books from xii. on, to xviii., are to be starred, and regarded as having their anuvākas and hymns conterminous.]

[It is noted at p. 898, ¶ 2, that in book xix. there appears an attempt to make the anuvāka-divisions coincide with the sense-divisions or divisions between the subject-groups. I do not know whether the same is true in books i.-xviii., not having examined them with regard to this point; it is true in the case of the last anuvāka of book ix. (= RV. i. 164 = AV. ix. 9 and 10), where, as the RV. shows, the true unit is the anuvāka and not the AV. hymn. On the other hand, Whitney observes (at p. 194) that an anuvāka-division falls in the middle of the Mṛgāra-group, and (at p. 247) that another falls between v. 15 and 16 with entire disregard of the close connection of the two hymns.]

[Their relation to the hymn-divisions in books xiii.-xviii. — In these books and in xii., the anuvāka is, as noted above, admittedly conterminous with the hymn everywhere except in the two paryāya-books, xv. and xvi. In the colophon to xiv. 1, a ms. of Whitney's speaks of the hymn as an anuvāka-sūkta; and it is possible that, for book xiv., at least, the author of the Anukr. did not recognize the hymn-divisions (see p. 739). That they signify very much less in books xiii.-xviii. than they do in the earlier books is very clear (see the third paragraph of p. cxxxi, and the third of p. clx); so clear, that it is not unlikely that they are of entirely secondary origin.]

[It is at the beginning of book xii. that the anuvāka-divisions begin to coincide with the hymn-divisions; and it is precisely at the corresponding point in the Anukr. (the beginning of paṭala viii.) that the author of that treatise apparently intends to say athā 'nuvākā ucyante. From book xii. on, therefore, it would seem that the samhitā was thought of by him as a collection of anuvākas, or that the subordinate division below the kāṇḍa which was alone worthy of practical recognition, was in his opinion the anuvāka and not the sūkta.]

[If this be right, then it would seem as if, in the series of books xii.-xviii., the books xv. and xvi. ought not to be exceptions. In them, also, the groups of individual paryāyas or paryāya-groups should be conterminous with the anuvākas. Book xv. will fall, accordingly, into two groups of 7 and 11 paryāyas respectively; and book xvi. into two groups of 4 and 5. This method of grouping the paryāyas receives some support from the fact that hymn xix. 23 refers to book xv. as "two anuvākas" (see note to xix. 23. 25), and from the fact that the Pañcapaṭalikā makes similar reference to book xvi. (see p. 792, ¶ 4, to p. 793), and speaks of our xvi. 5 as ādya, that is, 'the first' of the second group (p. 793). Moreover, the treatment of books xv. and xvi. by the makers of the Pāipp. text (see p. 1016, line 12) would indicate that the anuvāka is here the practically recognized unit subordinate to the kāṇḍa. As for the bearing of this grouping upon the citation of the text concerned and upon the summations, cf. p. cxxxvii, top, and p. cxlv, table 3, both forms.]

[The division into sūktas or 'hymns.' — The hymn may well be called the first considerable natural unit in the rising scale of divisions. Of the hymn, then, verses and pādas are the natural subdivisions, although single verses or even stock-pādas may also be regarded as natural units. Book and hymn¹ and verse are all divisions of so obviously and equally fundamental character, that it is quite right that citations should be made by them and not otherwise. However diverse in subject-matter two successive sūktas may be, we rightly expect unity of subject within the limits of what is truly one and the same sūkta. It is this inherent unity of subject which justifies the use of the term artha-sūkta (below, p. cxxxiii) with reference to any true metrical hymn; and our critical suspicions are naturally aroused against a hymn that (like vii. 35) fails to meet this expectation. The hymn, moreover, is the natural nucleus for the secondary accretions which are discussed below, at p. cliii.]

[The hymn-divisions not everywhere of equal value. — It is matter of considerable critical interest that the hymn-divisions of different parts of our text are by no means of equal value (cf. p. clx). Thus it is far from certain whether there is any good ground at all for the division of the material of book xiv. into hymns (the question is carefully examined at pages 738–9). And again, the material of book xviii. is of such sort as to make it clear that the hymn-divisions in that book are decidedly mechanical and that they have almost no intrinsic significance (see p. 814, ¶ 6, p. 827, ¶ 2, p. 848, ¶ 8). The familiar Dirghatamas-hymn of the Rig-Veda has been divided by the Atharvan text-makers into two (ix. 9 and 10), and doubtless for no other reason than to bring it into an approximate uniformity in respect of length with the hymns of books viii.–xi. (p. clvi). As Whitney notes, hymns xix. 53 and 54 are only two divided parts of one hymn: so 10 and 11; 28 and 29.]

[The division into ṛcas or 'verses.' — This division is, of course, like the division into books and hymns, of fundamental significance. It is maintained even in the non-metrical passages; but the name is then usually modified by the prefixion of the determinative avasāna, so that the prose verses in the paryāya-hymns are called avasānarcas (p. 472).]

[Subdivisions of verses : avasānas, pādas, etc. — Concerning these a few words may be said. Avasāna means ‘stop,’ and so ‘the verse-division marked by a stop.’ The verse usually has an avasāna or ‘stop’ in the middle and of course one at the end. Occasionally, however, there are, besides the stop at the end, two others : and the verse is then called try-avasāna. Moreover, we have verses with more than three stops, and sometimes a verse with only one (ekāvasāna). — The next subordinate division is the pāda or ‘quarter.’ As the name implies, this is commonly the quarter of a four-lined verse or verse with two avasānas; but sometimes, as in a verse with an odd number of pādas (like the gāyatrī), a pāda may be identical with an avasāna. The division into pādas is recognized by the ritual, which sometimes prescribes the doing of a sequence of ceremonial acts to the accompaniment of a verse recited pāda by pāda (pacchas) in a corresponding sequence. — Even the pāda is not the final possible subdivision, as appears from KB. xxvi. 5, ṛcaṁ vārdharcaṁ vā pādāṁ vā pādāṁ vā varṇāṁ vā, where the verse and all its subdivisions receive mention.]

Numeration of successive verses in the mss. — In this matter, the mss. differ very much among themselves, and the same ms. differs in different books, and even in different parts of the same book; so that to give all details would be a long, tedious, and useless operation. A few may be given by way of specimen. In books iii. and v. the enumeration in our mss. is by hymns only. [Sometimes it runs continuously through the anuvāka: above, p. cxxix.] In vi. it is very various: in great part, 2 hymns are counted together; sometimes 4; also 10 verses together, or 9, or 8. In book vii., some mss. (so P. and I.) number by decads within the anuvāka, with total neglect of real sūktas; and the numbering is in all so confused and obscure that our edition was misled in several cases so as to count 5 hymns less in the book than does the Anukr., or than SPP’s edition. The discordance is described at p. 389 and the two numberings are given side by side in the translation.

[Groupings of successive verses into units requiring special mention. — The grouping of verses into units of a higher degree is by no means so simple and uniform in the mss. as we might expect. It is desirable, accordingly, to discriminate between decad-sūktas and artha-sūktas and paryāya-sūktas. The differences of grouping are chargeable partly to the differences of form in the text (now verse, now prose) and partly to the differences in length in the metrical hymns.]

Decad-sūktas or ‘decad-hymns.’ — With the second grand division begins (at book viii.) a new element in the subdividing of the text: the metrical hymns, being much longer than most of those in the first division, are themselves divided into verse-decads or groups of ten verses, five or more odd verses at the end of a hymn counting as an added decad. The numbers in the final group thus run from five to fourteen : cf. pages 388, end, and 472, ¶ 5. Book xvii. divides precisely into 3 decads : p. 805. The average length of the decad-sūktas is exactly ten verses in book x. (35 decads and 350 verses : p. 562), and almost exactly ten in book xviii. (28 decads and 283 verses : p. 814). In the summations, these decads are usually called sūktas and never by any other name (as daṣatayas), while the true hymns are called artha-sūktas.

[Although known to the comm. and to some mss. in book vii. (p. 388), the decad-division really begins with book viii.; and it runs on through book xviii. (not into xix. : p. 898, line 6), and continuously except for the breaks occasioned by the paryāya-hymns (p. 471, end) and paryāya-books (xv. and xvi. : pages 770, 793). In book vii., this grouping is carried out so mechanically as to cut in two some nine of the short sense-hymns of the Berlin edition. The nine are enumerated at p. 389, line 8; but in the case of five of them (45, 54, 68, 72, 76), the fault lies with the Berlin edition, which has wrongly combined the parts thus separated.]

[In the summations, as just noted, the decads are usually called sūktas; and they and the paryāya-sūktas are added together, like apples and pears, to form totals of "hymns of both kinds" (p. 561, line 8). The summations of the decad-sūktas and paryāya-sūktas for books viii.–xviii. are duly given below in the special introduction to each book concerned, and these should be consulted; but for convenience they may here be summarized.

Decads	24	21	35	27	23	14	14			3	28
Paryāyas	6	7		3	7	6		18	9]

Artha-sūktas or 'sense-hymns.' — [This technical term might be rendered, more awkwardly, but perhaps more suitably, by 'subject-matter hymns.' It is these that are usually meant when we speak of "hymns" without any determinative. The comm. very properly notes that hymns xix. 47 and 48 form a single artha-sūkta, and that the next two form another. The determinative artha- is prefixed in particular to distinguish the sense-hymns from the paryāya-hymns (p. 611, ¶ 5), and there is little occasion for using it of the short hymns of the first grand division.] The verses of the artha-sūkta are sometimes numbered through each separate component decad or sūkta, and sometimes through the whole artha-sūkta, the two methods being variously mingled. In books xii.–xiv. and xvii. and xviii., as already noted, the artha-sūktas and anuvākas are coincident, the mss. specifying their identity.

They are divided into what are called paryāyas, or also paryāya-sūktas, but never into decads. [The term paryāya-sūkta is thus somewhat ambiguous, and has a wider and a narrower meaning as designating, for example, on the one hand, the whole group of six paryāyas that compose our ix. 6, or, on the other, a single one of those six (e.g. our ix. 6. 1-17). To avoid this ambiguity, it is well to use paryāya only for the narrower meaning and paryāya-sūkta only for the wider. The hymn ix. 7 is a paryāya-sūkta consisting of only one paryāya. For the word paryāya (root i: literally Um-gang, circuit, περίοδος) it is indeed hard to find an English equivalent: it might, with mental reservations, be rendered by 'strophe'; perhaps 'period' is better; and to leave it (as usual) untranslated may be best.]

[The paryāya-hymns number eight in all, five in the second grand division (with 23 paryāyas), and three in the third grand division (with 33 paryāyas). They are, in the second division, viii. 10 (with 6 paryāyas); ix. 6 (with 6) and 7 (with 1); xi. 3 (with 3); and xii. 5 (with 7); and, in the third division, xiii. 4 (with 6); book xv. (18 paryāyas); and book xvi. (9 paryāyas). The paryāya-sūktas are marked with a P in tables 2 and 3. For further details, see p. 472.]

[It will be noticed that two books of the third division, xv. and xvi., consist wholly of paryāyas; and, further, that each book of the second division has at least one of these hymns (ix. has two such, and contiguous), except book x. Even book x. has a long hymn, hymn 5, consisting mostly of prose, but with mingled metrical portions; but despite the fact that the Anukr. divides the hymn into four parts, which parts are even ascribed to different authors (p. 579), it is yet true that those parts are not acknowledged as paryāyas. Moreover, the hymn is expressly called an artha-sūkta by at least one of Whitney's mss.]

[Differences of the Berlin and Bombay numerations in books vii. and xix. — As against the Berlin edition, the Bombay edition exhibits certain differences in respect of the numeration of hymns and verses. These are rehearsed by SPP. in his Critical Notice, vol. i., pages 16-24. Those which affect book vii. are described by me at p. 389, and the double numberings for book vii. are given by Whitney from vii. 6. 3 to the end of vii. The Bombay numberings are the correct ones (cf. p. 392, line 4 from end). Other discrepancies, which affect book xix., are referred to at p. 898.]

[Differences of hymn-numeration in the paryāya-books. — These are the most important differences that concern hymns. They affect all parts of a given book after the first paryāya of that book. They have been carefully explained by me at pages 610-11, but the differences will be more easily apprehended and discussed if put in tabular form. The table harmonizes the hymn-numbers, without going into the detail of the difference of verse-numberings, which latter, however, are not seriously confusing.

[Since the two editions differ, the question arises, Which is right? The fourth paragraph of p. 611 (which see) leaves it undecided, but states the real point at issue plainly. I now believe that the methods of both editions are at fault and would suggest a better method. To make the matter clear, I take as an example the parvāya-sūkta xi. 3, which consists of a group of three parvāyas.

Suggested method	Berlin method	Bombay method
xi. 3. 1-31	xi. 3. 1-31	xi. 3. 1-31
xi. 3. 2 1-18	xi. 3. 32-49	xi. 4. 1-18
xi. 3. 3 1-7	xi. 3. 50-56	xi. 5. 1-7

The four sets of numbers in the first column relate to the four text-divisions: the first set (xi.) to the book; the second (3) to the parvāya-sūkta or group of parvāyas; the third (1, 2, 3) to the individual parvāyas of that group; and the fourth (1-31, 1-18, 1-7) to the verses of the parvāyas.]

[In the Berlin text, on the one hand, we must admit that each of the three component parvāyas of xi. 3 is duly indicated as such by typographical separation and that the parvāya-numbers (1 and 2 and 3) are duly given in parenthesis. That text, however, practically ignores the parvāyas, at least for the purposes of citation, by numbering the verses of all three continuously (as verses 1-56) from the beginning of parvāya 1 to the end of 3. Thus only the group of parvāyas is recognized; and it is numbered as if coördinate with the artha-sūktas of the book.]

[In the Bombay text, on the other hand, each parvāya is numbered as if coördinate with an artha-sūkta, and the verses are numbered (of course, in this case) beginning anew with 1 for each parvāya. This method ignores the unity of the group of individual pariyāyas and throws previous citations into confusion.]

[Books xv. and xvi. consist wholly of pariyāyas. Here, therefore, the case is not complicated by the mingling of pariyāyas and artha-sūktas, and the Berlin text ignores the grouping¹ of the pariyāyas, and treats and numbers each pariyāya as if coördinate with artha-sūktas, and numbers the verses beginning anew with 1 for each pariyāya (cf. p. 770, line 30).]

Whitney's criticism of the numbering of the Bombay edition.— [Whitney condemned, at p. 625, the procedure of the Bombay edition. In his material for this Introduction, I now find a few additional words on the matter, which may well be given.]

Each pariyāya is reckoned, in the summations, as on the same plane as a real hymn or artha-sūкта. Hence SPP. is externally justified in counting, for example, the nine artha-sūktas and three pariyāyas of book xi. as twelve hymns, numbering the verses of each separately; at the same time, such a deviation from the method pursued in our edition, throwing into confusion all older references to book xi. after 3. 31, was very much to be deprecated, and has no real and internal justification, since each body or group of pariyāyas is obviously and undeniably a unitary one (see, for example, our viii. 10, and note the relation especially of its third and fourth and fifth subdivisions or pariyāyas). In such matters we are not to allow the mss. to guide us in a manner clearly opposed to the rights of the case.

[Suggestion of a preferable method of numbering and citing.— It is plain, I think, that both editions are at fault: the Berlin edition, in ignoring the individual pariyāyas in books viii.—xiii. and in ignoring the pariyāya-groups in xv.—xvi.; and the Bombay edition, in ignoring the pariyāya-groups everywhere. Moreover, the procedure of the Berlin text is inconsistent (p. 770, line 27) as between books viii.—xiii. and books xv.—xvi., the unity of the groups in xv.—xvi. being no less “obvious and undeniable” than in the example just cited by Whitney.]

[The purpose underlying the procedure of the Berlin edition was that all references should be homogeneous for all parts of the Atharvan text, not only for the metrical parts but also for the prose pariyāyas, and consist of three numbers only. But, as between the pariyāyas and the rest, it is precisely this homogeneity that we do not want; for the lack of it serves the useful purpose of showing at a glance whether any given citation refers to a passage in prose or in verse.]

[For a future edition, I recommend that all pariyāya-passages be so numbered as to make it natural to cite them by book, pariyāya-group pariyāya, and verse. The verse-number would then be written as an exponent or superior; and, for example, instead of the now usual ix. 6. 31,

45; 7. 26; xi. 3. 50, we should have ix. 6. 3¹, 5¹; 7. 1²⁶; xi. 3. 3¹. In books xv. and xvi. I should reckon the anuvāka as determining the limits of each group of paryāyas (p. cxxx); and thus, for example, instead of the now usual xv. 7. 1; 8. 1; 17. 1; xvi. 5. 1, we should have xv. 1. 7¹; 2. 1¹; 2. 10¹; xvi. 2. 1¹. The tables on pages 771 and 793 may serve for conversion-tables as between the proposed method and the Berlin-Bombay method.]

[The merits of this method are clear from what has been said: it avoids ignoring the paryāyas of viii.–xiii. and the groups of xv.–xvi., and avoids the inconsistency of the Berlin method; it maintains the recognition of the uniformity of books viii.–xi. as books of ten hymns each (p. 611, line 25); and it assimilates all references to paryāya-text in a manner accordant with the facts, and shows at a glance that they refer to paryāya-passages.¹ Moreover, it avoids the necessity of recognizing hymns of less than 20 verses for division III. (p. cxlv); and by it one is not inconvenienced in finding passages as cited by the older method.]

[Differences of verse-numeration.—The differences of hymn-numeration, as is clear from the foregoing, involve certain differences of verse-numeration also; but besides these latter, there are certain other differences of verse-numeration occasioned by the adherence of the Bombay editor to the prescriptions of the Anukramaṇīs. They have been fully treated in the introductions to the books concerned; but require mention here because they affect the verse-totals of the tables considered in the discussion (pages clvii, clix) of the structure of the text. The five paryāya-hymns affected are given in the first line of the subjoined table, and in the second are set references to the pages of this work where the Bombay totals are given. The third line gives the totals of avasānarcaś for the Bombay edition, and the fourth those for the Berlin edition, and the fifth the differences. It may be well to remind the reader, that, in its proper place in the text, the second paryāya of xi. 3 is printed, both by RW. and by SPP. (at vol. iii., pages 66–83), as 18 numbered subdivisions; but that the Bombay editor prints it again (just after p. 356 of the same vol.), this time as 72 avasānarcaś, as required by the Anukr. The matter is fully explained by me, pages 628–9. The totals for xi. 3 in the one ed. are 31 + 18 + 7 = 56, and in the other 31 + 72 + 7 = 110, a difference of 54. The sum of the plus items is 188.

Summations of hymns and verses at end of divisions. — These are made in the mss. at the end of the division summed up, and constitute as it were brief colophons; and the details concerning them are given in the notes at the points where they occur. [For examples, see the ends of the several anuvākas and books: thus, pages 6, 12, 18, 22, 29, 36, and so on. The summations become somewhat more elaborate and less harmonious in the later books: see, for example, pages 516, 561, 659, 707, 737.]

The summations quoted from the Pañcapāṭalikā. — A peculiar matter to be noted in connection with the summations just mentioned is the constant occurrence with them, through books i.–xviii., of bits of extract from an Old Anukramaṇī, as we may call it: catch-words intimating the number of verses in the divisions summed up. [For details respecting this treatise, see above, p. lxxi.] These citations are found accordantly in all the mss. — by no means in all at every point; they are more or less fragmentary in different mss.; but they are wholly wanting in none of ours (except K. [and perhaps L.]). The phrases which concern the end of a book are the ones apt to be found in the largest number of mss. In book vii. there is a double set, the extra one giving the number of hymns in the anuvāka.

[Indication of the extent of the divisions by reference to an assumed norm. — In giving the summations of verses, it is by no means always the case that the Pañcapāṭalikā expresses itself in a direct and simple way. Sometimes indeed it does so where its prevailing method would lead us to expect it to do otherwise: thus in book vi., where the normal number of verses to the anuvāka is 30, it says simply and expressly that anuvākas 3 and 4 have 33 verses each (trayastrinçakāu: p. 311) and that 5 and 6 have 30 each (trinçakāu: p. 1045). Very often, however, the extent of a division is intimated by stating its overplus or shortage with reference to an assumed norm. One hardly knows how much critical value to assign to the norms (the last anuvāka of book vi., with 64 verses, exceeds the norm of 30 by more than the norm itself); but the method is a deviation from straightforwardness of expression, and that deviation is increased, as is so often the case, by the gratuitous exigencies of the metrical form into which the Pañcapāṭalikā is cast. Thus for book v. it says (pages 230, 236), ‘the first [anuvāka] falls short of sixty by twice six and the next after the first by eleven.’ So forty-two is in one place (p. 61) ‘half-a-hundred less eight,’ and in another (p. 439) it is ‘twice twenty-one.’ For anuvāka 3 of book vii. the total is 31 (norm 20); but here (p. 413) not even the overplus is stated simply as ‘eleven,’ but rather as ‘eight and three.’ This method of reference to a norm is used even where the departure from it is very large, as in the case of anuvāka 3 of book iv., which is described (p. 176) as having 21 verses over the norm of 30.]

[Tables of verse-norms assumed by the Pañcapāṭalikā. — For the first grand division (books i.–vii.), on the one hand, this treatise assumes a norm for the verse-totals of the anuvākas of each book.¹ These may be shown in tabular statement as follows :

For book	i.	ii.	iii.	iv.	v.	vi.	vii.
Verse-totals	153	207	230	324	376	454	286
Anuvākas	6	6	6	8	6	13	10
Averages	25	34	38	40	63	35	29
Anuvāka-Norms	20	20	30	30	60	30	20

The norm is spoken of (p. 92) as a nimitta, literally, perhaps, 'fundamental determinant.' Frequent reference has already been made to these norms in the main body of this work, either expressly (as at pages 220 and 388 : cf. also pages 6, 18, 22, 152), or implicitly at the ends of the anuvākas.]

[By combining (as in lines 2 and 3 of the table) a part of table I of p. cxliv with a part of the table on p. cxxix, the actual average of the verse-totals of the anuvākas may be found for each book (as in line 4). It is perhaps a fact of critical significance that for each book this average is greater than the norm assumed by our treatise.]

[For the second grand division (books viii.–xii.), on the other hand, our treatise assumes a norm which concerns the verse-totals of the hymns, and not (as in the first division) those of the anuvākas. They are, in tabular statement, as follows :

For book	viii.	ix.	x.	xi.	xii.
Verse-totals	259	302	350	313	304
Hymns	10	10	10	10	5
Averages	26	30	35	31	61
Hymn-Norms	20	20	30	20	60

The lengths of the hymns are often (not always) described by stating the overplus or shortage with reference to these norms. This is oftenest the case in book x. (so with seven hymns out of ten : see p. 562) ; it is the case with all the artha-sūktas of book xii. (four out of five : p. 660) ; with hymns 1, 3, and 5 of book ix., and 6 and 8 of book xi. ; and least often and clearly the case with book viii. (cf. the unclear citation, p. 502, ¶ 2). — Here again the actual averages are greater than the norms.]

[The three "grand divisions" are recognized by the Pañcapāṭalikā. — Partly by way of example, and partly with ulterior purpose, we may instance the citations from the Pañcapāṭalikā which give the verse-totals of the six anuvākas of book iii. These totals are respectively 33, 40, 38, 40, 35, and 44. The citations are indeed to be found below, scattered over pages 92, 103, 113, 123, 131, and 141 ; but it will be better to combine them here (with addition of the "obscure" clause of p. 141, ¶ 8) into what appears to be their proper metrical form, with attempted emendation at the points¹ in which the verse was obscure to Whitney :

*triṅcannimittāḥ śaḍṛceṣu kāryās
tisro daṣā 'ṣṭāu daṣa pañca ca reaḥ :
caturdaṣā 'ntyā; anuvākaṣ ca sāṅkhyān vidadhyād adhikām nimittāt.*

'Among the six-versed [hymns] (i.e. in book iii.), the verses are to be (made : i.e.) accounted [respectively] as three, ten, eight, ten, and five, with thirty as their fundamental determinant ; and the last as fourteen : and one is to treat the number (anuvāka by anuvāka : i.e.) for each anuvāka as an overplus over the norm.']

[In the section headed "Tables of verse-norms" etc., it was shown that, while the Pañcapāṭalikā's norms for books i.–vii. concern the anuvākas, its norms for books viii.–xiii. concern the hymns. This distinction is observed also by the comm. in making his decad-divisions (see p. 472 : l. 28). These facts are in entire accord with the explicit statements of the Pañcapāṭalikā : to wit, on the one hand, with that of the verse just translated ; and, on the other, with the remark cited at the end of viii. 1 (p. 475, end), sūktaṣ ca gaṇanā pravartate, 'and the numbering proceeds hymn by hymn.' Here sūktaṣ is in clear contrast with the anuvākaṣ of our verse, and the remark evidently applies to the remaining books of the text that come within the purview of the Pañcapāṭalikā, that is (since it ignores books xix.–xx.), to books viii.–xviii. or to the second and third grand divisions.]

[Thus, between the first grand division on the one hand and the second and third on the other, our treatise makes a clear distinction, not only by actual procedure but also by express statement. But this is not all. As between the second and the third, also, it makes a distinction in fact : for, while a norm that concerns the verse-totals of artha-sūktas (and not of anuvākas) is assumed for the second, no norm is assumed for the third (cf. p. 708, line 12) and the verse-totals for each artha-sūkta or paryāya-sūkta are stated simply hymn by hymn.]

10. Extent and Structure of the Atharva-Veda Saṁhitā

Limits of the original collection. — It is in the first place clearly apparent that of the twenty books composing the present text of the Atharva-Veda, the first eighteen, or not more than that, were originally combined together to form a collection. There appears to be no definite reason to suppose that the text ever contained less than the books i.–xviii. It is easy to conjecture a collection including books i.–xiv. and book xviii., leaving out the two prose pariyāya-books xv. and xvi. and the odd little book xvii. with the queer refrain running nearly through it; but there is no sound reason for suspecting the genuineness of these prose books more than of the prose hymns scattered (see below, p. 1011) through nearly all the preceding books; and in the Pāippalāda recension it is Vulgate book xviii. that is wanting altogether, books xv.–xvii. [or rather, books xv.–xviii.: cf. p. 1015] being not unrepresented.

Books xix. and xx. are later additions. — That these are later additions is in the first place strongly suggested by their character and composition. As for book xx., that is in the main a pure mass of excerpts from the Rig-Veda; it stands in no conceivable relation to the rest of the Atharva-Veda; and when and why it was added thereto is a matter for conjecture. As for book xix., that has distinctly the aspect of being an after-gleaning; if its hymns had been an accepted part of the main collection when that was formed, we should have expected them to be distributed among the other books; and the text is prevailing of a degree of badness that sets it quite apart from the rest; while its pada-text must be a most modern production. [For the cumulative evidence in detail respecting book xix., see my introduction, pages 895–8.]

Other evidences of the former existence of an Atharva-Veda which was limited to books i.–xviii. are not rare. That the prapāthaka-division is not extended beyond book xviii. may be of some consequence, but probably not much. The Old Anukramaṇī stops at the same point. More significant is it that the Kāuṣika-sūtra [does not, by its citations,¹ imply recognition of the text of book xix. as an integral part of the samhitā, and that it] ignores book xx. completely. It is yet more important that the Prātiçākhyā and its commentary limit themselves to books i.–xviii.

In the Pāippalāda text, the material of book xix. appears in great part, as we are bound to note, and quite on an equality with the rest. Of book xx., nothing [or practically nothing: see p. 1009] so appears. It is also noteworthy that Pāipp. (as mentioned above) omits book xviii.; but from this need be drawn no suspicion as to the appurtenance of xviii. to the original AV. — The question of the possible extension of individual hymns anywhere does not concern us here, [but is discussed on page cliii.]

¹ [There are five verses which, although occurring in our xix., are yet cited by Kāuṣ. in full, as if they did not belong to the Atharvan text recognized by Kāuṣ. Moreover, there are cited by Kāuṣ. six pratīkas which, although answering to six hymns (between 51 and 68) of our xix., may yet for the most part be regarded as kalpajā mantrās. For a detailed discussion of the matter, see pages 896–7.]

[The two broadest principles of arrangement of books i.—xviii. — Leaving book xx. out of account, and disregarding also for the present book xix. as being a palpable supplement (see pages 895–8), it is not difficult to trace the two principles that underlie the general arrangement of the material of books i.—xviii. These principles are:]

[1. Miscellaneity or unity of subject and 2. length of hymn.—The books i.—xviii. fall accordingly into two general classes: 1. books of which the hymns are characterized by miscellaneity of subject and in which the length of the hymns is regarded; and 2. books of which the distinguishing characteristic is a general unity of subject and in which the precise length of the hymns is not primarily regarded, although they are prevailingly long.¹ The first class again falls into two divisions: 1. the short hymns; and 2. the long hymns.]

[The three grand divisions (I. and II. and III.) as based on those principles.—We thus have, for books i.—xviii., three grand divisions, as follows: I. the first grand division, consisting of the seven books, i.—vii., and comprehending the short hymns of miscellaneous subjects, more specifically, all the hymns (not paryāyas: p. cxxxiv) of a less number of verses than twenty¹; II. the second grand division, consisting of the next five books, viii.—xii., and comprehending the long hymns of miscellaneous subjects, more specifically, all the hymns (save those belonging to the third division) of more than twenty verses; and III. the third grand division, consisting, as aforesaid, of those books of which the distinguishing characteristic is a general unity of subject, to wit, the six books, xiii.—xviii. — There are other features, not a few, which differentiate these divisions one from another; they will be mentioned below, under the several divisions.]

[The order of the three grand divisions. — It is clear that the text ought to begin with division I., since that is the most characteristic part of it all, and since books i.—vi. are very likely the original nucleus of the whole collection. Since division I. is made up of hymns of miscellaneous subjects (the short ones), it is natural that the other hymns of miscellaneous subjects (the long ones) should follow next. Thus the last place is naturally left for the books characterized by unity of subject. This order agrees with that of the hymn-totals of the divisions, which form (cf. tables 1, 2, 3) a descending scale of 433 and 45 and 15.]

[Principles of arrangement of books within the grand division. — If we have rightly determined the first rough grouping of the material of books i.—xviii. into three grand divisions, the question next in logical order is,

What governs the arrangement of the books within each division? This question will be discussed in detail under each of the three divisions (cf. pages cxlix ff., clvii, clix); here, accordingly, only more general statements are called for. Those statements concern the verse-norms of the hymns for each book, and the amount of text.]

[The normal length of the hymns for each of the several books. — For the first grand division these norms play an important part in determining the arrangement of the books within that division, as appears later, p. cxlix. For the second grand division it is true that the Pañcapāṭalikā assumes a normal hymn-length for each book (p. cxxxix); but that seems to have no traceable connection with the arrangement of the books within that division (p. clv). For the third, no such norm is even assumed (p. cxl, near end).]

[The amount of text in each book. — Table. — This matter, in its relation to the order of the books, I must consider briefly here for the three grand divisions together, although it will be necessary to revert to it later (pages clii, clvii, clix). Since our samhitā is of mingled verse and prose, it is not easy (except with a Hindu ms., which I have not at hand) to estimate the precise amount of text to be apportioned to each separate book. If we take as a basis, however, the printed page of the Berlin text, and count blank fractions of pages, the 352 pages are apportioned among the 18 books as follows :

Book i. has 13 pages	Book viii. has 22 pages	Book xiii. has 13 pages
ii. 16	ix. 21	xiv. 12
iii. 20	x. 27	xv. 10
iv. 27	xi. 25	xvi. 5
v. 28	xii. 22	xvii. 3
vi. 40		xviii. 21
vii. 27
Division I. 171	Division II. 117	Division III. 64

From this it appears that, for division I., the amount of text is a continuously ascending one for each of the books except the last (book vii.); and that, for division III., it is a continuously descending one for each of the books except (in like manner) the last (book xviii.); and that, although the verse-totals of the Bombay edition for the books of division II. form a series (see p. clvii, line 11) which ascends continuously (like that of I.) for all books except (once again) the last, the books of division II. are, on the whole, most remarkable for their approximate equality of length.]

Arrangement of the hymns within any given book. — While the general guiding principles of arrangement of the books within the division are thus in large measure and evidently the external ones of verse-norms and amount of text, it is not easy to see what has directed the ordering of the several hymns within any given book. It is clear that the subject has not been at all considered; nor is it at all probable that any regard has been had to the authorship, real or claimed (we have no tradition of any value whatever respecting the "rishis"). Probably only chance or arbitrary choice of the arranger dictated the internal ordering of each book. [On this subject there is indeed little that is positive to be said; but (in order to avoid repetition) I think it best to say that little for each grand division in its proper place under that division: see pages cliv, clvii, and clx.]

[Distribution of hymns according to length in the three grand divisions. — Tables 1 and 2 and 3. — The distribution of the hymns according to their length throughout the books of the three grand divisions is shown by Whitney's tables 1, 2, and 3, preceding. The numbers rest on the numerations of the Berlin edition, and due reference to the differences of numeration of the Bombay edition is made below at p. cxlvii. A vertical column is devoted to each book and in that column is shown how many hymns of 1 verse, of 2 or 3 or 4 and so on up to 89 verses, there are in that book, by the number horizontally opposite the number of verses indicated in the column headed by the word "contains." To facilitate the summation of the number of hymns and verses in the Atharva-Veda, the last column but one on the right gives the number of hymns of 1 vs., of 2 vss. and so on, in the division concerned, and the last column on the right gives the total number of verses contained in the hymns of 1 vs., of 2 vss. and so on (the total in each line being, of course, an exact multiple of the number preceding in the same line). Accordingly we may read, for example, the sixth line of table 1 as follows: "Book vii. contains 10 hymns of 3 verses and book vi. contains 122. The sum of hymns of 3 verses in the division is 132, and the sum of verses in those hymns is 396."]

[Tables 1 and 2 and 3 for divisions I. and II. and III. — These ought properly to come in at this point; but as their form and contents are such that it is desirable to have them stand on two pages that face each other, they have been put (out of their proper place) on pages cxliv and cxlv.]

[Grouping of the hymns of book xix. according to length. — Table 4. — Apart from the two hymns, 22 (of 21 verses) and 23 (of 30), which are in divers ways of very exceptional character, it appears that every hymn of this book, if judged simply by its verse-total length, would fall into the first grand division, as being of less than 20 verses.¹ This fact is of critical interest, and is in keeping with the character of book xix. as an after-gleaning, and in particular an after-gleaning of such material as would properly fall into the first grand division (cf. p. 895, ¶ 2). The table:

[Summary of the four tables. — Table 5. — Extent of AV. Samhitā about one half of that of RV. — The totals of hymns and verses of tables 1–4 are summed up in table 5. From this it appears that the number of hymns of the three grand divisions of the Atharva-Veda Samhitā is 516 or about one half of that of the Rig-Veda, and that the number of verses is 4,432 or considerably less than one half. If the summation be made to include also the supplement and the parts of book xx. which are peculiar to the AV., the number of hymns amounts to 598 or about three fifths of that of the RV., and the number of verses amounts to 5,038 or about one half of that of the RV. Table 5 follows :

[The numbers of tables 1–5 rest on the Berlin edition. The differences between that and the Bombay edition do not affect the amount of text, but only the verse-totals. Even the verse-totals are not affected, but only the hymn-totals (p. 389, l. 10), by the differences in book vii. For the parvāya-hymns, the verse-totals of the Bombay edition amount to 188 more (see p. cxxxvii) than those of the Berlin edition. For the Bombay edition, accordingly, the grand total must be raised (by 188) from 5,038 to 5,226.]

[First grand division (books i.–vii.): short hymns of miscellaneous subjects. — While the general considerations of length and subject are indeed sufficient for the separation of books i.–xviii. into three grand divisions as defined above, the first division shows yet other signs of being a minor collection apart from the other two. In the first place, the hymns that compose it are mostly genuine charms and imprecations, and wear on the whole a general aspect decidedly different from that of books viii.–xviii., as is indeed apparent enough from the table of hymn-titles, pages 1024–37; they are, in fact, by all odds the most characteristic part of the Atharva-Veda, and this is tacitly admitted by the translators of selected hymns (see p. cvii), their selections being taken in largest measure (cf. p. 281) from this division. In the second place, the books of this division are sharply distinguished from those of the others by the basis of their internal arrangement, which basis is in part that of a clearly demonstrable verse-norm, a norm, that is to say, which, for each separate book, governs the number of verses in the hymns of that book.^{1]}

[Evidence of fact as to the existence of the verse-norms. — A most pervading implicit distinction is made by the Major Anukramaṇī between this division and the next in its actual method of giving or intimating the length of the hymns. In division II., on the one hand, the number of verses is stated expressly and separately for every hymn. In division I., on the other hand, the treatise merely intimates by its silence that the number for any given hymn conforms to the norm assumed for that book, and the number is expressly stated only when it constitutes a departure from that norm. Thus for the 142 hymns of book vi., an express statement as to the length is made only for the 20 hymns (given at p. 281, lines 17–18) which exceed the norm of three.² — For convenience of reference, the norms may here be tabulated :

Books	vii.	vi.		i.	ii.	iii.	iv.	v.
Norms	1	3		4	5	6	7	8]

[Express testimony of both Anukramaṇīs as to the verse-norms. — The Major Anukr. (at the beginning of its treatment of book ii. : see p. 142) expressly states that the normal number of verses for a hymn of book i. is four, and that the norm increases by one for each successive book of the first five books : pūrvakāṇḍasya caturrcapraṅkṛtir ity evam uttarottarakāṇḍeṣu ṣaṣṭham yāvad ekāikādhikā etc. Than this, nothing could be more clear or explicit. Again, at the beginning of its treatment of book iii., it says that in this book it is to be understood that six verses are the norm, and that any other number is a departure therefrom : atra

² [At i. 1, and also at v. 9 and 10 (these two are prose pieces), the treatise states the number when it is normal. This is not unnatural at i. 1, the beginning; and considering the prevailing departure from the norm in book v., it is not surprising there. On the other hand, the omissions at iv. 36 and vi. 121 are probably by inadvertence.]

sadyapraṅkṛtīr anyā vikṛtīr iti vijānīyāt. At the beginning of book iv. it has a remark of like purport : brāhma jajñānam iti kāṇḍe saptarcasūktapraṅkṛtīr (so London ms. : cf. p. 142 below) anyā vikṛtīr ity avagachet. Moreover, it defines book vi. as the tr̥casūktakāṇḍam (cf. pages 281, 388), and adds to the definition the words tatra tr̥capraṅkṛtīr itarā vikṛtīr iti. Cf. Weber's Verzeichniss der Berliner Sanskrit-hss., vol. ii., p. 79.]

[In the recognition of the verse-norms, as in much else (p. lxxii, top), the Pañcapaṭalikā serves as source and guide for the author of the Major Anukr. Thus the older treatise calls book ii. 'the five-versed' (see the citation at p. 45), and book iii. in like manner 'the six-versed' (see p. cxl). Cf. also the statements of the next paragraph as to book vii.]

[One verse is the norm for book vii.—The absence of any book in which two-versed hymns are the norm, and the frequency of two-versed hymns in book vii., might lead us to think that both one-versed and two-versed hymns are to be regarded as normal for book vii. (cf. p. 388, line 13); but this is not the case (cf. line 24 of the same page). The Major Anukr. speaks of book vii. as 'the book of one-versed hymns,' ekarcasūktakāṇḍam; and its testimony is confirmed by the Old Anukr., as cited by SPP. on p. 18 of his Critical Notice, which says, 'among the one-versed hymns [i.e. in book vii.], [the anuvākas are or consist] of hymns made of one verse,' ṛk-sūktā ekarceṣu. Further confirmation of the view that one (not one or two) is the true norm for book vii. is found in the fact that the Anukr. is silent as to the length of the hymns of one verse (cf. p. cxlviii), but makes the express statement dyvṛcam for each of the thirty¹ hymns of two verses.]

[Arrangement of books i.–vii. with reference to verse-norms.—If we examine table 1 (p. cxliv), in which these books are set in the ascending numerical order of their verse-norms, several facts become clear. It is apparent, in the first place, that this division is made up of those seven books in which the number—normal or prevalent—of verses to a hymn runs from one to eight; secondly, that the samhitā itself begins with the norm of four; and, thirdly, that the number two as a norm is missing from the series. Fourthly, it is indeed apparent that every book shows departures from its norm; but also—what is more important in this connection—that these departures are all on one side, that of excess, and never on that of deficiency.]

[We may here digress to add that, if we compare table 1 with those following, it appears, fifthly, that in Book vii. are put all the hymns of the three grand divisions that contain only 1 or 2 verses; sixthly, that neither in this division, nor yet in the other two, nor even in book xix., is there a hymn of 19 verses, nor yet one of 20.¹ From table 1, again, it appears, seventhly, that this division contains a hymn or hymns of every number of verses from 4 verses to 18 verses (mostly in books i.-v.) and from 1 verse to 3 verses (exclusively in books vi. and vii.).]

[Excursus on hymn xix. 23, Homage to parts of the Atharva-Veda. — It is worth while at this point to recall to the reader's mind this remarkable hymn in its bearing upon some of the questions as to the structure of our text: see pages 931-4, and especially ¶ 6 of p. 931. As our samhitā begins with four-versed hymns, so does xix. 23 begin with homage "to them of four verses" (p. 931, line 29), and not with homage "to them of one verse." Again, grouping all hymns of four verses or more in this division according to length, there are 15 groups (not in the least continuous with books) each containing a hymn or hymns of every number of verses from 4 to 18, and to these 15 groups the first 15 verses of xix. 23 correspond (p. 931, line 27). Again, of the fact that books i.-xviii. contain not one hymn of 19 verses nor yet one of 20, account seems to be taken in that the form of verses 16 and 17 differs from that of the 15 preceding (p. 931, line 37). Again, as in our series the norm two is lacking, so also is lacking in xix. 23 a dvyṛcebhyaḥ svāhā (but cf. p. 931, line 28, with p. 933, line 2). Finally the verses of homage "to them of three verses" and "to them of one verse" (xix. 23. 19-20) stand in the same order relative to each other and to the verses of homage to the 15 groups as do books vi. and vii. to each other and to the books containing the hymns of more than three verses, namely books i.-v. — Cf. further pages clvii and clix.]

[We now return to the arrangement of the books within the division by norms. — The norms of books i.-vii. respectively, as the books stand in our text, are 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 3, 1. From this point of view, the books fall into two groups: group X contains books i.-v., and its norms make a simple continuous ascending numerical scale beginning with four (4, 5, 6, 7, 8); group Y contains books vi. and vii., and its norms make a broken descending numerical scale beginning with three (3, 1). Here several questions arise as to group Y: first, why is its scale inverted, that is, why does not book vii. precede book vi.? second, why does not group Y (and in the reversed order, vii., vi.) precede group X, so as to make the whole series begin, as is natural, with one instead of four, and run on in the text as it does in the table at p. cxliv? and, third, why is the scale broken, that is, why have not the diaskeuasts made eight books of the first division, including not only one for the one-versed hymns, but also another for the two-versed?]

[With reference to the last question, it is clear that the amount of material composing the two-versed hymns (30 hymns with only 60 verses : see p. cxlix, note) is much too small to make a book reasonably commensurate with the books of the first division ; it is therefore natural that the original groupings of the text-makers should include no book with the norm of two.]

[Exceptional character of book vii. — The first two questions, concerning group Y or books vi. and vii., are closely related, inasmuch as they both ask or involve the question why book vii. does not precede book vi. By way of partial and provisional answer to the second, it is natural to suggest that perhaps the scrappy character of the one-versed and two-versed hymns militated against beginning the Vedic text with book vii. And indeed this view is not without indirect support from Hindu tradition : for according to the Bṛhad-Devatā, viii. 99, the ritualists hold that a hymn, in order to be rated as a genuine hymn, must have at least three verses, trcādhamain yājñikāḥ sūktam ākuḥ.¹ It may well be, therefore, that the diaskeuasts did not regard these bits of one or two verses as real hymns, as in fact they have excluded them rigorously from all the books i.–vi. From this point of view our groups X and Y have no significance except for the momentary convenience of the discussion, and the true grouping of books i.–vii. should be into the two groups, A, containing books i.–vi., and B, containing book vii.]

[The exceptional character of book vii. is borne out by several other considerations to which reference is made below. Its place in the samhitā is not that which we should expect, whether we judge by the fact that its norm is one verse or by the amount of its text (p. cxliii). If we consider the number of its hymns that are ignored by Kāuṣika (see pp. 1011–2), again we find that it holds a very exceptional place in division I. Many of its hymns have a put-together look, as is stated at p. cliv ; and this statement is confirmed by their treatment in the Pāippalāda recension (p. 1014, l. 15). Just as its hymns stand at the end of its grand division in the Vulgate, so they appear for the most part in the very last book of the Pāippalāda (cf. p. 1013, end). As compared with the great mass of books i.–vi., some of its hymns (vii. 73, for instance) are quite out of place among their fellows.]

[Book vii. a book of after-gleanings supplementing books i.-vi. — It is very easy to imagine group A, or books i.-vi., as constituting the original nucleus¹ of the samhitā (p. cxlviii, top), and group B, or book vii., as being an ancient supplement to that nucleus, just as book xix. is unquestionably a later supplement to the larger collection of the three grand divisions (cf. p. 895). This view does not imply that the verses of book vii. are one whit less ancient or less genuinely popular than those of books i.-vi., but merely that, as they appear in their collected form, they have the aspect of being after-gleanings, relatively to books i.-vi. This view accords well with the exceptional character of book vii. as otherwise established and as just set forth (p. cli).]

[Arrangement of books with reference to amount of text. — If these considerations may be deemed a sufficient answer to the first two questions so far as they relate to book vii., there remains only that part of the second question which relates to book vi. One does not readily see why the samhitā might not have opened with book vi., the book of the varied and interesting three-versed hymns, so that the norms would have run in the order 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8 (1); and, since this is not the case, it may be that some other principle is to be sought as a co-determinant of the order of arrangement.]

[If we consult the table on p. cxliii, we see that, in division I., the scale of numbers of printed pages of text in each book (13, 16, 20, 27, 28, 40, 27) is a continuously ascending one for each book except the last (book vii.). The like is true if we base our comparison on the more precise scale of verse-totals for each book (153, 207, 230, 324, 376, 454, 286), as given at the foot of table 1, p. cxliv.]

[These facts, in the first place, strongly corroborate our view as to the exceptional character of book vii. By the principle of norms, it should stand at the beginning of the division; by the principle of amount (judged by verse-totals), it should stand between books iii. and iv. That it does neither is hard to explain save on the assumption of its posteriority as a collection. In the second place, these facts suggest at the same time the reason for the position of book vi. in the division, namely, that it is placed after books i.-v. because it is longer than any of those books.]

[Résumé of conclusions as to the arrangement of books i.-vii. — Book vii., as a supplement of after-gleanings, is placed at the end of the grand division, without regard to amount of text or to verse-norm. Books i.-vi. are arranged primarily according to the amount of text,² in an ascending scale. For them the element of verse-norms, also in an ascending scale,

¹ [If asked to discriminate between the books of that nucleus, I should put books vi. and i. and ii. first (cf. p. cliii, ¶3); at all events, book v. stands in marked contrast with those three.]

appears as a secondary determinant. It conflicts with the primary determinant in only one case,¹ that of book vi., and is accordingly there subordinated to the primary one, so that book vi. (norm : 3) is placed after books i.-v. (norms : 4-8).]

[Departures from the norms by excess. — The cases of excess are most numerous in book v. (see p. 220), and concern over $\frac{1}{15}$ of all the hymns. On the other hand, the cases of conformity to the norm are most numerous in books vi. and i. and concern about $\frac{6}{7}$ of the hymns in each book. For books ii., iv., vii., and iii. respectively, the approximate vulgar fraction of cases of conformity is $\frac{3}{5}$, $\frac{1}{2}$, $\frac{1}{2}$, and $\frac{2}{3}$. For each of the seven books, in the order of closeness of conformity to the verse-norm, the more precise fraction is as follows : for book vi., it is .859 ; for i., it is .857 ; for ii., it is .61 ; for iv., it is .52 ; for vii., it is .47 ; for iii., it is .42 ; and for v., it is .06.]

[Critical significance of those departures. — From the foregoing paragraph it appears that the order of books arranged by their degree of conformity (vi., i., ii.), agrees with their order as arranged by their verse-norms (3, 4, 5), for the books of shorter hymns. This is as it should be ; for if the distinction of popular and hieratic hymns is to be made for this division, the briefest would doubtless fall into the prior class, the class less liable to expansion by secondary addition.]

We are not without important indications² that the hymns may have been more or less tampered with since their collection and arrangement, so as now to show a greater number of verses than originally belonged to them. Thus some hymns have been expanded by formulized variations of some of their verses ; and others by the separation of a single verse into more than one, with the addition of a refrain. [Yet others have suffered expansion by downright interpolations or by additions at the end ; while some of abnormal length may represent the juxtaposition of two unrelated pieces.]

Illustrative examples of critical reduction to the norm. — [The instances that follow should be taken merely as illustrations. To discuss the cases systematically and thoroughly would require a careful study of every case of excess with reference to the structure of the hymn concerned and to its form and extent in the parallel texts, — in short, a special investigation.³]

¹ [That the two orders, based on the one and the other determinant, should agree throughout books i.-v. is no doubt partly fortuitous ; but it is not very strange. The variation in the number of hymns for each book (35, 36, 31, 40, 31) is confined to narrow limits ; and if, as is probable, the departures from the norm were originally fewer and smaller than now, the verse-totals for each book would come nearer to being precise multiples of those ascending norms.]

³ [A very great part of the data necessary for the conduct of such an inquiry may be found already conveniently assembled in this work in Whitney's critical notes ; for, although

Thus in i. 3 (see p. 4), verses 2-5 are merely repetitions of verse 1 (and senseless repetitions, because only Parjanya, of the deities named, could with any propriety be called the father of the reed: cf. i. 2. 1); while verses 7 & 8 have nothing to do with the refrain and are to be combined into one verse: we have then four verses, the norm of the book.

Once more, in ii. 10 (see p. 51), no less evidently, the verse-couples 2 & 3, 4 & 5, and 6 & 7 are to be severally combined into three single verses, with omission of the refrain, which belongs only to verses 1 and 8: so that here we have five verses, again the normal number.

So, further, in iii. 31 (see p. 141), as it seems clear, 2 & 3, without the refrain, make verse 2; 4 with the refrain is verse 3; and 5 is a senseless intrusion; then, omitting all further repetitions of the refrain, 6 & 7 make verse 4; 8 & 9 make verse 5; and 10 & 11 make verse 6, six being here the verse-norm.

In book vi., a number of hymns which exceed the regular norm are formular and would bear reduction to hymns of three verses: instances are hymns 17, 34, 38, 107, 132. [The cases are quite numerous in which the added verse is lacking in one of the parallel texts. Thus in book vi., hymns 16, 17, 34, 63, 83, 108, 121, and 128 (see the critical notes on those hymns and cf. p. 1014, l. 16) appear in the Pāippalāda text as hymns of three verses each.]

Besides these cases, there are not a few others where we may with much plausibility assume that the verses in excess are later appendixes or interpolations: such are i. 29. 4-5; ii. 3. 6; 32. 6; 33. 3 ab 4 cd, 6; iii. 15. 7-8; 21. 6, 8-10 (see note under vs. 7); 29. 7-8; iv. 2. 8; 16. 8-9; 17. 3; 39. 9-10; vi. 16. 4; 63. 4; 83. 4; 122. 3, 5; 123. 3-4. In book vii., moreover, the put-together character of many of the longer hymns is readily apparent (cf. hymns 17, 38, 50, 53, 76, 79, and 82 as they appear in the table on p. 1021).

But such analyses, even if pushed to an extreme, will not dispose of all the cases of an excess in the number of verses of a hymn above the norm of the book: thus iii. 16 corresponds to a Rig-Veda hymn of seven verses; iv. 30 and 33 each to one of eight; and v. 3 to one of nine. It will be necessary to allow that the general principle of arrangement [by verse-norms] was not adhered to absolutely without exception.

[Arrangement of the hymns within any given book of this division. — In continuation of what was said in general on this topic at p. cxliii, we may add the following. The "first" hymn (pūrvam), "For the retention of sacred learning," is of so distinctly prefatory character as to stand of right at the very beginning of the text, or removed therefrom only by the prefixion of the auspicious çam no dev̄r abhiṣṭaye (p. cxvi). It is noteworthy that books ii., iv., v., and vii. begin each with a "Mystic" hymn; that the five kindred hymns "Against enemies" are grouped together at ii. 19-23, as are the seven Mṛgāra-hymns at iv. 23-29. Hymns iii. 26-27 are grouped in place and by name, as digynkte; and so are the "two Brahman-cow" hymns, v. 18 and 19, and the vāiçvānarīya couple, vi. 35 and 36. The hymns "To fury" make a group in the AV. (iv. 31-32) as they do in the RV., from which they are taken.]

[Second grand division (books viii.-xii.): long hymns of miscellaneous subjects. — As was said of the first division (p. cxlvii), there are other things besides length and subject which mark this division as a minor collection apart from the other two: the verse-norms do not serve here, as in division I., to help determine the arrangement, the norms assumed by the Pañca-ṣaṭalikā (p. cxxxix) being for another purpose and of small significance; and the reader may be reminded of the fact (p. cxxxii) that the grouping of verses into decads runs through this grand division. It is a noteworthy fact, moreover, that the material of division II. appears distinctly to form a collection by itself in the Pāippalāda recension, being massed in books xvi. and xvii. The Vulgate books viii.-xi. are mostly in Pāipp. xvi. and the Vulgate book xii. is mostly in Pāipp. xvii. This is readily seen from the table on p. 1022.]

General make-up of the material of this division. — Whereas division I. contains a hymn or hymns of every number of verses from one to eighteen and none of more, division II. consists wholly of hymns of more than twenty verses, and contains all the hymns of that length occurring in books i.–xviii. except such as belong of right (that is, by virtue of their subject) to the third division.¹ The forty-five hymns of this division have been grouped into books with very evident reference to length and number, as shown by the table just given: the five longest have been put together to form the last or twelfth book, while each of the four preceding books contains an even quarter of the preceding forty or just ten hymns. Disregarding ix. 6 and xi. 3 (paryāya-hymns), books viii.–xi. contain all the hymns of from 21–50 verses to be found in the first two grand divisions, and book xii. contains all of more than 50 in the same divisions. Anything more definite than this can hardly be said respecting the arrangement of the several books within the second division. From the tables it appears that no such reference to the length of the hymns has been had in division II. as was had in division I. None of the books viii.–xii. is without one of the longer, formular, and mainly non-metrical pieces (marked with P or p in the table above); and this fact may point to an inclination on the part of the text-makers to scatter those prose portions as much as possible among the poetical ones.

[Order of books within the division: negative or insignificant conclusions. — If we consider, first, the amount of text in pages¹ for each book, namely 22, 21, 27, 25, 22, the series appears to have no connection with the order of the books; on the contrary, the books are, on the whole, remarkable for their approximate equality of length. The case is similar, secondly, with the hymn-totals of the Bombay edition, 15, 15, 10, 12, and 11. Thirdly, the verse-totals for each of the five books, according to the numeration of the Berlin edition, are 259, 302, 350, 313, and 304 (see above, p. cxliv), a sequence in which we can trace no orderly progression. On the other hand, fourthly, if we take the verse-totals of the Bombay edition, to wit, 293, 313, 350, 367, and 304,² we see that the first four books, viii.–xi., are indeed arranged, like books i.–vi. (p. clii), on a continuously ascending arithmetical scale. Furthermore and fifthly, if, for the verse-totals of each of the five books, we make the (very easy) substitution of the average verse-totals of the hymns of each book, we obtain again a series, to wit, 29.3, 31.3, 35.0, 36.7, and 60.3, which progresses constantly in one direction, namely upward, and through all the five books.]

Arrangement of the hymns within any given book of this division. — [From the table on p. clvi it would appear that the individual hymns are not disposed within the book with any reference to length. It may, however, be by design rather than accident that the only hymn with the smallest number of verses in this division is put at the beginning, and that the longest is put last.] The arrangement in this division, like that in the first, shows no signs of a systematic reference to the subjects treated of, although (as in division I.: p. clv, top), in more than one instance, two hymns of kindred character are placed together: thus viii. 1 & 2; 3 & 4; 9 & 10; ix. 4 & 5; 9 & 10; x. 7 & 8; 9 & 10; xi. 9 & 10; xii. 4 & 5.

[Possible reference to this division in hymn xix. 23. — Such reference, I suspect, must be sought in verse 18, if anywhere, and in the two words mahat-kāṇḍāya svāhā, 'to the division of great [hymns], hail!' See p. 931, ¶ 7, and the note to vs. 18.]

[Postscript. — Such was my view when writing the introduction to xix. 23. Even then, however, I stated (p. 932, line 12) that verses 21 and 22 were not accounted for. Meantime, a new observation bears upon vs. 21.]

[Immediately after the passage referred to at p. cxlviii, foot-note, the Major Anukr., at the beginning of its treatment of book viii., proceeds: 'Now are set forth the seers and divinities and meters of the mantras of

To the end of the eleventh kāṇḍa, the sense-hymn is the norm.' etc. atha kṣudra-kāṇḍā-rthasūkta-mantrāṇām ṛṣi-dāivata-chandānsy ucyante. tato yāvad ekādaṣa-kāṇḍā-ntam arthasūkta-prakṛtis tāvad vihāya paryāyān virād vā (viii. 10) prabhṛtīn iti etc. What pertinence the word kṣudra may have as applied to books viii.–xi. I cannot divine; but it can hardly be an accident that the very same word is used in the phrase of homage to parts of the AV. at xix. 22. 6 and 23. 21, kṣudrēbhyaḥ svāhā, and that this phrase is followed in h. 22 and in the comm's text of h. 23, by the words paryāyikēbhyaḥ svāhā, that is, by an allusion to the paryāyas, just as in the text of the Anukr. Apart from vss. 16–18 of xix. 23, vss. 1–20 refer most clearly to the first grand division; and vss. 23–28 refer just as clearly to the third. The allusion to the second ought therefore certainly to come in between vs. 20 and vs. 23, that is it ought to be found in vss. 21 and 22. We have just given reason for supposing that vs. 21 contains the expected allusion. The meaning of ekānṛcēbhyaḥ of vs. 22 is as obscure as is the pertinence of kṣudrēbhyaḥ; probably ekānṛcēbhyaḥ is a corrupt reading. If I am right as to vs. 21, the mystery of vs. 18 becomes only deeper.]

Third grand division (books xiii.–xviii.): books characterized by unity of subject. — The remaining six books constitute each a whole by itself and appear to have been on that account kept undivided by the arrangers and placed in a body together at the end of the collection. The books in which the unity of subject is most clearly apparent are xiv. (the wedding verses), xviii. (the funeral verses), and xv. (extollation of the Vrātya). [The unity of books xiii. and xvii., although less striking, is yet sufficiently evident, the one consisting of hymns to the Sun as The Ruddy One or Rohita, and the other being a prayer to the Sun as identified with Indra and with Vishṇu. In book xvi., the unity of subject is not apparent,¹ although it seems to consist in large measure (see p. 792) of "Prayers² against the terror by night."] Book xvi. is not so long that we might not have thought it possible that it should be included as a paryāya-sūkta in one of the books of the second division; and book xvii., too, is so brief that it might well enough have been a hymn in a book.

[Hindu tradition assigns at least four of the books of this division each to a single seer; the whole matter is more fully set forth at p. 1038. However much or little value we may attach to these ascriptions of quasi-authorship, they are certainly of some significance as a clear mark of differentiation between this division and the other two.]

¹ [In one of the old drafts of a part of his introductory matter, Whitney says: Until we understand the character of the ceremonies in connection with which book xvi. was used, it may not be easy to discover a particular concinnity in it. With reference to that remark, I have said, at p. 792: The study of the ritual applications of the book distinctly fails, in my opinion, to reveal any pervading concinnity of purpose or of use.]

[Division III. represented in Pāippalāda by a single book, book xviii. — An item of evidence important in its relation to the Vulgate division III. as a separate unity is afforded by the treatment of that division in the Kashmirian recension: the Vulgate books xiii.–xviii., namely, are all grouped by the makers of the Pāippalāda text into a single book, book xviii., and appear there either in extenso or else by representative citations. The relations of the Vulgate division to the Pāipp. book are set forth in detail at p. 1014, which see.]

[Names of these books as given by hymn xix. 23. — It is a most significant fact, and one entirely in harmony with the classification of books xiii.–xviii. on the basis of unity of subject, that they should be mentioned in hymn xix. 23 by what appear to be their recognized names. It is therefore here proper to rehearse those names as given in verses 23–28 of the hymn (see pages 931, ¶ 5, and 933). They are: for book xiii., 'the ruddy ones,' rōhitebhyas, plural; for xiv., 'the two Sūryās,' sūryābhyām, or the two [anuvākas] of the book beginning with the hymn of Sūryā's wedding; for xv., 'the two [anuvākas] about the vrātya,' vrātyābhyām (accent !); for xvi., 'the two [anuvākas] of Prajāpati,' prājāpatyābhyām; for xvii., 'the Viśāsahī,' singular; and for xviii., 'the auspicious ones,' maṅgalikēbhyas, euphemism for the inauspicious funeral verses.]

[Order of books within the division. — The verse-totals for the books are, by the Berlin numeration, 188, 139, 141, 93, 30, and 283, and, by the Bombay numeration, 188, 139, 220, 103, 30, and 283 (above, p. cxxxvii). But for the disturbing influence of the numerous brief paryāya-verses of book xv. upon the third member of these series, they would both coincide in their general aspect with the series based on the amount of text in pages of the Berlin edition, namely, 13, 12, 10, 5, 3, and 21 (as given above, p. cxliii). From the last series, it appears that these books, except the last, are arranged in a descending scale of length, therein differing from divisions I. and II. in which the scale was an ascending one. In all three divisions, the final book is an exceptional one: in the first, it is a scanty lot of after-gleanings; in the second, it contains the five longest hymns, each about twice as long as the average of the four books preceding; and in the third, again, it contains very long hymns, which are, moreover, an extensive and peculiar collection of verses, unified indeed (like those of book xiv.) in large measure by the ritual uses to which they are put, but on the whole quite different in origin and character from most of the rest (see the introductions to the hymns of book xviii.).]

make-up of the division than does the one on p. cxlv. That seems to me wrong, because it follows the Berlin edition in treating the 18 individual paryāyas of book xv. and the 9 of book xvi. each as one hymn (see p. cxxxvi), and in having to recognize accordingly hymns of 3 verses, of 4 and 5 and so on, in this division. We certainly must recognize some larger unity than the paryāya in books xv. and xvi.; and, whether that unity be the book or the anuvāka, in either case we avoid the necessity of recognizing any hymns with a verse-total of less than 20 in this division (see table 3, second form, p. cxlv). Assuming that xv. and xvi. make each two hymns, the table is as follows :

Hymn	in xiii.	in xiv.	in xv.	in xvi.	in xvii.	in xviii.	verses
1 has	60	64	50 P	32 P	30	61
2	46	75	91 P	61 P		60
4		56 P				89

The scale of hymn-totals for each book is thus 4, 2, 2, 2, 1, and 4; and it then appears that all the books of the division except the last are arranged on a descending scale, the three books of two hymns each being arranged among themselves on a descending scale of amount of text.]

[Order of hymns within any given book of this division. — As to this, questions can hardly be raised; or, if raised, they resolve themselves into questions in general concerning the hymn-divisions of books xiii.–xviii. and their value.]

[The hymn-divisions of books xiii.–xviii. and their value. — In these books the whole matter of hymn-division seems to be secondary and of little critical value or significance (cf. p. cxxx). — First, as to the metrical books (xiv., xviii., xiii., xvii. : that is, all but the two paryāya-books xv. and xvi.). In them, the hymn-division is, as in book xii. of division II., coincident with the anuvāka-division. Book xiv. is divided into two hymns by both editions, not without the support of the mss.; but the Major Anukr. seems rather to indicate that the book should not be divided (for details, see pages 738–9) : the hymn-division is here at any rate questionable. Book xviii., properly speaking, is not a book of hymns at all, but rather a book of verses. The Pañcapāṭalikā says that these verses are ‘disposed’ (vihītās) in four anuvākas (see p. 814, ¶ 5, and note the word paraḥ, masculine) : from which we may infer that the anuvāka-division is of considerable antiquity; but the significance of the coincident hymn-division is minimized by the facts that a ritual sequence runs over the division-line between hymns 1 and 2 (see p. 814, ¶ 6, and p. 827, ¶ 2) and that the division between hymns 3 and 4 ought to come just before 3. 73 (and not just after : see p. 848, ¶ 8). Even with book xiii. the case is essentially not very different : see the discussions in Deussen’s

Geschichte, i. 1. 215–230. Book xvii. consists of a single anuvāka (it is the only book of which this is true: p. 805); and although in the colophons the mss. apply both designations, anuvāka and artha-sūkta, to its 30 verses (which the mss. divide into decads), it is truly only one hymn.]

[The paryāya-books, books xv. and xvi. remain. These, as appears from the tables on pages 771 and 793, consist each of two anuvākas with 7 and 11 and with 4 and 5 paryāyas respectively. When writing the introductions to those books, I had not seriously considered the proper grouping of the paryāyas (cf. p. 770, lines 29–30). The discussion at p. cxxx, above, seems now to make it probable that the paryāya-groups should be assumed, as everywhere else from book xii.–xviii., to be conterminous with the anuvākas. The bearing of this assumption on the method of citation is treated at p. cxxxvi, above. The effect of this assumption upon the summations is shown in table 3, second form, p. cxlv, and in the table on p. clx.]

ATHARVA-VEDA-SAMHITĀ.

TRANSLATED INTO ENGLISH

WITH A CRITICAL AND EXEGETICAL COMMENTARY.

Book I.

THE first book is made up mostly of hymns of 4 verses each, and no other ground of its existence as a book needs to be sought. It contains 30 such hymns, but also one (34) of 5 verses, two (11 and 29) of 6 verses, one (7) of 7, and one (3) of 9. There are conjectural reasons to be given in more than one of these cases for the exceptional length. Hymns of 4 verses are also found in books vi. and vii. (12 in vi., and 11 in vii.), also 9 in xix. The whole book has been translated by Weber, Indische Studien, vol. iv. (1858), pages 393-430.

1. For the retention of sacred learning.

[Atharvan. — vācaspatyam. caturṛcam. ānuṣṭubham: 4. 4p. virāḍ uroṛhatī.]

The hymn is found also near the beginning of Pāipp. i. MS. (iv. 12. 1 end) has the first two verses. It is called in Kāuṣ. (7. 8; 139. 10) triṣaptīya, from its second word; but it is further styled (as prescribed in 7. 8) briefly pūrva 'first,' and generally quoted by that name. It is used in the ceremony for "production of wisdom" (medhājanana: 10. 1), and in those for the welfare of a Vedic student (11. 1); further, with various other passages, in that of entrance upon Vedic study (139. 10); and it is also referred to, in an obscure way (probably as representing the whole Veda of which it is the beginning), in a number of other rites with which it has no apparent connection (12. 10; 14. 1; 18. 19; 25. 4; 32. 28); finally (13. 1, note), it is reckoned as belonging to the varcasya gaṇa. And the comm. [p. 5, end] quotes it as used by a pariṣiṣṭa (5. 3) in the puṣpābhīṣeka of a king. The Vāit. takes no notice of it.

Translated: Weber, iv. 393; Griffith, i. 1.

1. The thrice seven that go about, bearing all forms — let the lord of speech assign to me today their powers, [their] selves (tanū).

Ppp. reads paryanti in a, and tanvam adhyādadhātu me for d. MS. combines triṣaptās in a, and tanvò 'dyā in d. The ṣ of our triṣapta is prescribed in Prāt. ii. 98; vācas p- is quoted under Prāt. ii. 71.

Triṣaptās is plainly used as the designation of an indefinite number, = 'dozens' or 'scores.' Supposing ṣrutā to signify one's acquired sacred knowledge, portion of ṣrutī, it perhaps refers to the sounds or syllables of which this is made up. If, on the other hand, çruta (as in vi. 41. 1) means 'sense of hearing,' the triçaptās may be the healthy hearers, old and young (so R.). R. prefers to regard tanvās as gen. sing.: tanvō me = 'to me'; the comm. does the same; Weber understands accus. pl. Read in our edition bālā (an accent-sign dropped out under -lā).

As an example of the wisdom of the comm., it may be mentioned that he spends a full quarto page and more on the explanation of triçaptās. First, he conjectures that it may mean 'three or seven'; as the three worlds, the three guṇas, the three highest gods; or, the seven seers, the seven planets, the seven troops of Maruts, the seven worlds, the seven meters, or the like. Secondly, it may mean 'three sevens,' as seven suns (for which is quoted TA. i. 7. 1) and seven priests and seven Adityas (TA. i. 13. 3; RV. ix. 114. 3), or seven rivers and seven worlds and seven quarters (TB. ii. 8. 3⁸), or seven planets and seven seers and seven Marut-troops. Thirdly, it may signify simply thrice seven or twenty-one, as twelve months + five seasons + three worlds + one sun (TS. vii. 3. 105), or five mahābhūtas + five breaths + five jñānendriyas + five karmendriyas + one antahkaraṇa. At any rate, they are gods, who are to render aid. [Discussed by Whitney, Festgruss an Roth, p. 94.]

2. Come again, lord of speech, together with divine mind; lord of good, make [it] stay (ni-ram); in me, in myself be what is heard.

Two of our mss. (H. O.) have rāmaya in c. Ppp. begins with upa neha, and has asoçpate in c, which R. prefers. But MS. rather favors our text, reading, for c, d, vāsoçpate vā ramaya māyā evā tanvām māma; and it begins a with upaprēhi. The comm. explains çrutam as upādhyāyād vidhito 'dhītam vedaçāstrādīkam; and adds "because, though well learned, it is often forgotten."

3. Just here stretch thou on, as it were the two tips of the bow with the bow-string; let the lord of speech make fast (ni-yam); in me, in myself, be what is heard.

Ppp. reads, in a, b, tanū ubhey aratnī. With the verse is to be compared RV. x. 166. 3. Prāt. i. 82 prescribes the pada-reading of ārtinōvā, and iv. 3 quotes abhi vā tanu. [That is, apparently (a), 'Do [for me] some stretching [or fastening],' namely, of my sacred learning, as also in c.]

4. Called on is the lord of speech; on us let the lord of speech call; may we be united with (sam-gam) what is heard; let me not be parted with what is heard.

Ppp. has, for b ff., upahūto 'ham vācaspatyū soṃsṛtena rādhasi sāmṛtena vī rādhasi—badly corrupt. For similar antitheses with upahū, see AB. ii. 27; VS. ii. 10 b, 11 a. In AA. (ii. 7. 1) is a somewhat analogous formula for the retention of what is heard or studied (adhīta): çrutam me mā pra hāsīr anenā 'dhītenā 'horātrānt sam dadhāmi. The Anukr. notes the metrical irregularity of the second pāda.

2. Against injury and disease: with a reed.

The hymn is not found in the Pāipp. ms., but may have been among the contents of the missing first leaf. In the quotations of the Kāuç. it is not distinguishable from the following hymn; but the comm. is doubtless right in regarding it as intended at 14. 7, where it, with i. 19-21 and sundry other hymns, is called sāṃgrāmika or 'battle-hymn,' used in rites for putting an enemy to flight; and it (or vs. 1) is apparently designated by prathamasya (as first of the sāṃgrāmika hymns) in 14.12. where the avoidance of wounds by arrows is aimed at; it is also reckoned (14. 7, note) as belonging to the aparājita gāna; further, it is used, with ii. 3, in a healing ceremony (25. 6) for assuaging wounds, etc.; and, after hymn 1 has been employed in the upākarmaṇ, it and the other remaining hymns of the anuvāka are to be muttered (139. 11). The comm. [p. 16, top], once more, quotes it from Nakṣatra [error, for Çānti, says Bloomfield] Kalpa 17, 18, as applied in a mahāçānti called aparājita.

Translated: Weber, iv. 394; Griffith, i. 3; Bloomfield, 8, 233. — Discussed: Bloomfield, AJP. vii. 467 ff. or JAOS. xiii. p. cxiii; Florenz, Bezzenger's Beiträge, xiv. 178 ff.

1. We know the reed's father, Parjanya the much-nourishing; and we know well its mother, the earth of many aspects.

Vidmā is quoted in Prāt. iii. 16 as the example first occurring in the text of a lengthened final a.

2. O bow-string, bend about us; make thyself a stone; being hard, put very far away niggards [and] haters.

A bow-string is, by Kāuṣ. 14. 13, one of the articles used in the rite. With b compare ii. 13. 4 b. Pāda d is RV. iii. 16. 5 d. 'Niggard' is taken as conventional rendering of ārāti. The comm. reads vīlus, RV.-wise.

3. When the kine, embracing the tree, sing the quivering dexterous (? ṛbhū) reed, keep away from us, O Indra, the shaft, the missile.

That is, apparently (a, b), 'when the gut-string on the wooden bow makes the reed-arrow whistle': cf. RV. vi. 67. 11 c, d. The comm. explains ṛbhūm as uru bhāsamānam (!), and didyūm as dyotamānam, which is probably its etymological sense. [Discussed, Bergaigne, Rel. véd. i. 278 n., ii. 182.]

4. As between both heaven and earth stands the bamboo (? tējana), so let the reed-stalk (mūñja) stand between both the disease and the flux (āsrāvā).

The verse seems unconnected with the rest of the hymn, but to belong rather with hymn 3. The comm. glosses tējana with veṇu. For āsrāvā, cf. ii. 3; vi. 44. 2; the comm. explains it here by mūtrātīsāra 'difficulty (?) of urinating' or 'painful urination' ['diabetes,' rather?]. Bloomfield understands it to mean "diarrhoea," and bases upon this questionable interpretation his view of the meaning of the whole hymn, which he entitles "formula against diarrhoea."

3. Against obstruction of urine: with a reed.

[Atharvan. — navarcam. parjanyamitrādibahudevatyam. ānuṣṭubham: 1-5. pathyāpāṅkti.]

Of this hymn, only vss. 7-8 are found in Pāipp. (in xix.), without the refrain. It is doubtless intended at Kāuṣ. 25. 10, as used in a rite for regulating the flow of urine; vss. 8-9 are specified in 25. 12. The "reed" implies some primitive form of a fistula urinaria, the vastiyāntra (one of the nāḍīyantrāṇi) of the later physicians — who, however, do not appear to have made frequent use of it.

Translated: Weber, iv. 395; Griffith, i. 4; Bloomfield, 10, 235. — Cf. Bergaigne-Henry, Manuel, p. 130.

1. We know the reed's father, Parjanya of hundredfold virility ; with that will I make weal (çám) for thy body ; on the earth [be] thine out-pouring, out of thee, with a splash !

The last pāda is found also at TS. iii. 3. 10^a ; bāl tti, again at xviii. 2. 22.

2. We know the reed's father, Mitra of hundredfold virility ; with that will etc. etc.

3. We know the reed's father, Varuṇa of etc. etc.

4. We know the reed's father, the moon of etc. etc.

5. We know the reed's father, the sun of etc. etc.

6. What in thine entrails, thy (two) groins (? gavīnī), what in thy bladder has flowed together — so be thy urine released, out of thee, with a splash ! all of it.

The comm. reads in b (with two or three of SPP's mss., which follow him) saṁçri-tam. He explains the gavīnyāu as "two vessels (nāḍī) located in the two sides, affording access to the receptacles of urine."

7. I split up thy urinator, like the weir of a tank — so be thy etc. etc.

The comm. (with the same mss. as above) has in b vartam. Ppp. reads vṛtraṁ veçantyaū: yantyaḥ. ['I pierce or open up thy urethra' — with a metallic catheter, says the comm.]

8. Unfastened [be] thy bladder-orifice, like [that] of a water-holding sea — so be thy etc. etc.

Ppp. gives, for b, samudrasyo 'tadhir eva.

9. As the arrow flew forth, let loose from the bow — so be thy etc. etc.

Instead of parāśapatat in a, we should expect parāśātāt, the equivalent of a present.

It is easy to reduce this hymn to the substance of four verses, the norm of the book, by striking out vss. 2–5, as plainly secondary variations of vs. 1, and combining vss. 7–8 (as in Ppp.) into one verse, with omission of the sense-disturbing refrain.

4. To the waters: for blessings.

[Sindhudoṣpa. — aponaptriyāni, somābdāivatāni. gāyatrāni: 4. purastādbṛhatī.]

The hymn is not found in Pāipp. It and the two that next follow are reckoned by Kāuṣ. (9. 1, 4) to both çānti gaṇas, major (bṛhat) and minor (laghu); also (7. 14) to the apām sūktāni or water-hymns, applied in various ceremonies; and by some (18. 25, note) to the salila gaṇa, which Kāuṣ. begins with hymns 5 and 6. The same three are joined with others (19. 1) in a healing rite for sick kine, and (41. 14) in a ceremony for good fortune. Again (25. 20), this hymn is used (with vi. 51) in a remedial rite, and (37. 1) in the interpretation of signs. Hymns 4–6 further appear in Vāit. (16. 10) as used in the aponaptrīya rite of the agnisṭoma sacrifice, and 4. 2 alone with the setting down of the vasatīvari water in the same sacrifice. The four verses are RV. i. 23. 16–19; for other correspondences, see under the verses.

Translated: Weber, iv. 396; Griffith, i. 6.

1. The mothers go on their ways, sisters of them that make sacrifice, mixing milk with honey.

2. They who are yonder at the sun, or together with whom is the sun — let them further our sacrifice.

The verse is found further, without variant, in VS. (vi. 24 e).

3. The heavenly waters I call on, where our kine drink ; to the rivers (sīndhu) is to be made oblation.

[Cf. note to x. 9. 27, below.]

4. Within the waters is ambrosia (amṛta), in the waters is remedy ; and by the praises (prāçasti) of the waters ye become vigorous (vājīn) horses, ye become vigorous kine.

The second half-verse is here rendered strictly according to the accent, which forbids taking the nouns as vocatives ; SPP. reads in c, with all his mss. and the great majority of ours bhāvatha (our two Bp. give bhav-) ; the accent is to be regarded as antithetical. RV. gives prāçastaye at end of b, and ends the verse with c, reading dāvā bhāvata vājīnaḥ. Other texts have the verse : VS. (ix. 6 a), TS. (i. 7. 7¹), and MS. (i. 11. 1) ; all lack a fourth pāda, and have at end of b prāçastisu ; for c, VS. has āvā bhāvata vājīnaḥ, TS. āvā bhāvatha vājīnaḥ, and MS. āvā bhāvata vājīnaḥ.

5. To the waters : for blessings.

[Sindhuvīpa. — (etc., as 4).]

The first three verses occur, without variants, in Pāipp. xix. The whole hymn, with the first three verses of the one next following, are, also without variants, RV. x. 9. 1-7 (vs. 5 is here put before 4 ; 6, 7 are also RV. i. 23. 20 a, b, c, 21) ; and they likewise occur in other texts : thus, 5. 1-3 in SV. (ii. 1187-1189), VS. (xi. 50-52 et al.), TS. (iv. 1. 5¹ et al.), MS. (ii. 7. 5 et al.), and TA. (iv. 42. 4 et al.), everywhere with the same text [for other references, see MGS., p. 147] ; as to 5. 4 and the verses of 6, see under the verses. Hymns 5 and 6 together are called çambhumayobhū, Kāuç. 9. 1 ; for their uses in connection with the preceding hymn, see under that hymn. Both appear also in the house-building ceremony (43. 12), and this one alone in the darçapūrṇamāsa- or parvan-sacrifices (6. 17) ; while the schol. add it (42. 13, note) to the ceremony on the home-coming of the Vedic student. For the use in Vāit. with hymns 4 and 6, see under 4 ; with 6 (also under the name çambhumayobhū) it accompanies in the paçubandha (10. 19) the washing of articles employed ; and with it alone, in the agnicayana (28. 11), is the lump of earth sprinkled. The comm., finally, quotes the hymn from Nakç. Kalpa 17, 18, as used in a mahāçānti called ādityā.

Translated: Weber, iv. 397 ; Griffith, i. 7.

1. Since ye are kindly waters, do ye set us unto refreshment (āvij), unto sight of great joy.

2. What is your most propitious savor (rāsa), of that make us share here, like zealous mothers.

3. We would satisfy you in order to that to the possession of which ye quicken, O waters, and generate us.

[May not jandāyathā, like English produce, here mean 'bring,' and so signify about the same thing as jīnvatha ?]

4. Of the waters, having mastery of desirable things, ruling over human beings (carṣanti), I ask a remedy.

The verse follows in RV. our 6. 1. It is found, without variants, in TB. (ii. 5. 8⁵) and TA. (iv. 42. 4) ; but MS. (iv. 9. 27) has a corrupt third pāda, with much discordance among the mss., and adds a fourth.

6. To the waters: for blessings.

[Sindhudvīpa (Atharvākṛti).—(etc., as 4). 4. pathyāpāṅkti.]

The hymn is not found in Pāipp., but perhaps stood at the beginning of its text, on the lost first leaf: see [Bloomfield's introd. to the Kāuṣ., p. xxxvii and ref's, esp. Weber, v. 78 and xiii. 431]. Verses 1-3 occur in RV., as noted under the preceding hymn, and 1-2 in other texts, as pointed out under the verses. For the use of the hymn, with its predecessor or its two predecessors, in Kāuṣ. and Vāit., see above, under those hymns. Verse 1 is also (Kāuṣ. 9. 7) directed to be repeated (with the gāyatrī or sāvitrī-verse) at the beginning and end of çānti rites, and to be recited part by part six times, with rinsing of the mouth, in the indramahotsava ceremony (140. 5).

Translated: Weber, iv. 397; Griffith, i. 8.

1. Be the divine waters weal for us in order to assistance, to drink; weal [and] health flow they unto us.

The verse occurs further, without variants, in VS. (xxxvi. 12), TB. (i. 2. 1¹ et al.), TA. (iv. 42. 4), and Āp. (v. 4. 1); in SV. (i. 33) is repeated çānti nas (instead of āpas) at beginning of b. The comm. explains abhīṣṭi by abhiyajana!

As to the prefixion of this verse to the whole text in a part of our mss., see p. cxvi.

2. Within the waters, Soma told me, are all remedies, and Agni (fire) wealful for all.

Found also in TB. (ii. 5. 8⁶), without variants, and in MS. (iv. 10. 4), with, for c, āpaç ca viçvāçambhuvah.

3. O waters, bestow a remedy, protection (vārūtha) for my body, and long to see the sun.

Only RV. has this verse.

4. Weal for us the waters of the plains, and weal be those of the marshes, weal for us the waters won by digging, and weal what are brought in a vessel; propitious to us be those of the rain.

Pādas a-d are nearly repeated in xix. 2. 2.

The mss. sum up this anuvāka [1.] or chapter as of 6 hymns, 29 verses; and their quoted Anukr. says ādyaprathama ṛco nava syur vidyāt: i.e. the verses exceed by 9 the assumed norm of the chapters, which is 20. [Regarding vidyāt, see end of notes to i. 11.]

7. To Agni: for the discovery of sorcerers.

[Cātana. — saptarcam. ānuṣṭubham: 5. triṣṭubh.]

This hymn and the following occur in Pāipp. iv., where the length of this one is more in place than here among the hymns of four verses. Both, with eight other hymns (mostly attributed by the Anukr. to Cātana as author), are called by Kāuṣ. (8. 25) cātanāni 'expellers,' and are used in a few places for exorcism and such purposes.

Translated: Weber, iv. 398; Ludwig, p. 523; Griffith, i. 9; Bloomfield, 64, 237. — Cf. Bergaigne-Henry, Manuel, p. 131; also Whitney, Festgruss an Roth, p. 94 f.

1. Bring hither, O Agni, the sorcerer (yātudhāna), the kimādin, speaking out (stu); for thou, O god, being revered, hast become slayer of the barbarian (dāsya).

Stu is shown by its use also in 8. 1, 2 to have here the virtual meaning 'confess' ['naming, i.e. confessing himself'; cf. laudare 'praise,' but also 'name,' 'mention']. The comm. does not see this, but stolidly renders it 'praise,' making the first line mean "bring the god who praises my oblation or else who is praised by us, and make the yātudhāna etc. go away"! He is never weary, when kimādin occurs, of repeating Yaska's (6. 11) silly etymology from kim idānīm 'what now?' Ppp. reads for a stuvānaṣṭānaya, and, for c, d, tvam hi devām stuto hantā tasyo 'ta babhūvyathā.

2. O most exalted one (parameṣṭhīn), Jātavedas, self-controller, Agni, partake of (pra-aṣ) the sacrificial butter, of the sesame oil (?); make the sorcerers cry out.

The translation 'sesame oil' follows our text, tāilāsya; but the reading of all the mss., which SPP. follows, is tūlāsya, and Ppp. has tūlasya. The comm. explains the word as meaning "situated in the sacrificial ladle," from tulā 'balance,' used for 'spoon,' because by the latter the butter is measured out — or, he adds, it signifies simply avadīyamāna 'cut off' (in the technical sense), since the root tul means unmāne ['mete out']. Ppp. further reads in c, d prācānam yātudhānād vilāpayah. The comm. first takes vi lāpaya from root li, and makes it equal vinācaya! but he adds further a derivation from vi lap ['make 'em squeal,' as we should say]. At end of a, the saṃhitā-mss., as usual, are divided between -ṣṭhīn and -ṣṭhīn; SPP. chooses the former [cf. Prāt. ii. 11]. Ppp. has vaçim in b.

3. Let the sorcerers cry out (vi-lap), let the devouring kimādīns; then do you, O Agni together with Indra, welcome this our oblation.

Ppp. combines, as often, -dhānā 'tri-, in a-b; and it reads yathā for atha in c, and at the end haryatām. SPP. reads everywhere atritu, the theoretically correct form, but never found in the mss.

4. Let Agni first take hold; let Indra, having arms, push forth; let everyone that has a demon, coming, say "here am I."

Yātumant 'having a familiar demon (yātu)' is the equivalent of yātudhāna 'sorcerer,' lit'ly 'holding a demon.' Ppp. has for a, b agniṣ purastād ā yachatu pratha indro nudadas vāhumā; and for d, ayam asmāi tedyā.

5. We would fain see thy heroism (vīryā), O Jātavedas; proclaim to us the sorcerers, O men-watcher ; let them all, burnt about by thee in front, come to this place, proclaiming themselves.

Ppp. reads in a vīryā; in c, -taṭṭas; in d, yāntu. The change of meter makes the verse suspicious as original part of the hymn ; but the presence of all the verses in Ppp., in the same order, puts the intrusion, if it be one, far back.

6. Take hold, O Jātavedas ; thou wast born for our purpose ; becoming our messenger, O Agni, make the sorcerers cry out.

The comm. this time, utterly regardless of the obvious connection with vī laṭantū in 2 d, and of the general sense of the hymn, glosses vī lāṭaya only with vināçaya. Ppp. has a totally different text: ā rabhasva brāhmanā jātavedo hṛdi kāmāya randhaya : dūto na agnir ut tiṣṭha yātudhānān ihā "naya.

7. Do thou, O Agni, bring hither the sorcerers bound ; then let Indra with his thunderbolt crush in (api-vraçc) their heads.

Api vraçc (used almost always of the head) is perhaps more nearly 'cut open' ; Ppp. reads apa çīrṣā vrçcatu. In b, īpa baddhān would be a more acceptable reading. The Prāt. (ii. 27) quotes upabaddhān as the first instance in the text of such treatment of final -ān. Our text, by an error of the printer, reads bājreṇa for vāj- in c.

8. To Agni and other gods: for the discovery of sorcerers.

[Cātana. — ānuṣṭubham : 4. bārhatagarbhā triṣṭubh.]

The hymn, except vs. 4, is found in Pāipp. iv. also next after our hymn 7, but in the verse-order 1, 3, 2. For its use by Kāuç. with 7, see under the latter.

Translated : Weber, iv. 401 ; Ludwig, p. 523 ; Griffith, i. 11 ; Bloomfield, 65, 239. — Cf. Bergaigne-Henry, Manuel, p. 132 ; Whitney, Festgruss an Roth, p. 94 f.

1. This oblation shall bring the sorcerers, as a stream does the foam ; whoever, woman [or] man, hath done this, here let that person speak out.

Ppp. has for c, d nīdam strī pumān kar yaçam bhuvātām janah. [For stu, see i. 7. 1, note.]

2. This man hath come, speaking out ; this man do ye welcome ; O Brihaspati, taking [him] into thy control — O Agni and Soma, do ye (two) pierce [him] through.

Ppp. has in a, b stuvānū gama tvam smo 'ta prati ; in c, d, vaçe kṛtū 'gnīsomāv id dhatañ. The comm. makes nonsense every time by insisting on rendering stu by "praise" ; here it is yusmān stuvan.

3. Of the sorcerer, O soma-drinker, slay the progeny and conduct [him hither] ; of him, speaking out, make fall out (nis-pat) the upper eye and the lower.

The comm. fills out the ellipsis in b by making it mean "conduct our progeny to obtain desired result" ! and stuvānasya is bhītyā tvadvīṣayām stutiñ kurvatah. Ppp. reads nyastuvānasya. SPP's text as well as ours gives nī st- (p. nīh: st-) ; the samhitā-mss., as everywhere, are divided between that and nīh st- ; the latter is authorized by the silence of the Prātiçākhyā [see p. 426] concerning the combination.

4. Wherever, O Agni, thou knowest the births of them, of the devourers that are in secret, O Jātavedas, them do thou, increasing through worship (brāhman) — slay of them, O Agni, with hundredfold transfixion.

The irregular meter and broken connection of the second half-verse suggest possible corruption of the text: cf. āsurāṇāṃ śatatarhān, TS. i. 5. 7⁶. The meter (11 + 11 : 9 + 9 = 40) is well enough described by the Anukr. if we may take bārhaṭagarbha as meaning dvibārha 'containing two pādas of nine syllables.' [For -tārham, cf. Gram. § 995.]

9. For some one's advancement and success.

[Atharvan. — vasvādīnānāmantruktadevatyam. trāiṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. i. Reckoned to the varcasya gaṇa (Kāuṣ. 13. 1, note), and further used in various ceremonies : by itself, in that of the restoration of a king (16. 27) ; with i. 35 and v. 28, in two ceremonies for fortune and for power (11. 19 ; 52. 20) ; with seven others, employed by a teacher at the reception of a Vedic student (55. 17). In Vāit. (3. 1), vs. 3 accompanies an oblation to Agni in the parvan-sacrifices. And the comm. quotes its use in the Nakṣ. Kalpa 17-19, in two mahācānti ceremonies called āirāvati and bārhaspati ; and in Pariçiṣṭa 5. 3, in the puṣpābhīṣeka rite.

Translated: Weber, iv. 401 ; Ludwig, p. 456 ; Zimmer, p. 163 ; Griffith, i. 12 ; Bloomfield, 116, 239.

1. In this man let the Vasus maintain good things (vāsu) — Indra, Pūshan, Varuṇa, Mitra, Agni ; him let the Ādityas and also the All-gods maintain in superior light.

Ppp. substitutes tvasīā for pūṣā in b, and uta me devā for uttarasmin in d. The Anukr. appears to sanction the metrical combination ādityo 'ta in c.

2. At his direction (pradiç), O gods, be there light, sun, fire, or also gold ; be his rivals (sapatna) inferior to him ; to the highest firmament (nāka) make this man ascend.

The translation implies in c the obviously called-for emendation of asmāt to asmāt ; the comm. first explains it as asmadyāt puruṣāt, and then, alternatively, as used for asmāt by Vedic shortening of the vowel. Ppp. begins with asmin devāḥ pradiçā ; and its second half-verse is quite different : uttareṇa brahmanā vi bhāhi kṛṇvāno anyān adharān sapatnān (d = ii. 29. 3 d).

3. With what highest worship (brāhman), O Jātavedas, thou didst bring together draughts (pāyas) for Indra, therewith, O Agni, do thou increase this man here ; set him in supremacy (çrāiṣṭhya) over his fellows (sajātā).

Ppp. reads uttareṇa in b, and its d is rāyas poṣaṃ çrāiṣṭhyam ā dhehy asmāi. The verse is found also in TS. (iii. 5. 4²), MS. (i. 4. 3), and K. (v. 6). Both TS. and MS. read havīṣā for brāhmanā in b, and agne tvām utā (for tvām agna ihā) in c ; and MS. has -bharan in a, vardhayā mān in c, and mā for enam at the end ; and it inserts mādhye before çrāiṣṭhye in d.

4. I take to myself their sacrifice and splendor (vārcas), their abundance of wealth and their intents (cittā), O Agni ; be his rivals inferior to him ; to the highest firmament make this man ascend.

The second half-verse is the same with 2 c, d above, and the translation makes the same emendation as there. Doubtless vittāni 'acquisitions' should be read for cittāni in b ; the comm. glosses with buddhim. The text is defaced in Ppp. ; but in d can be read uttame devā jyotiṣi dhatutama (?) [meaning, presumably, dadhātana].

10. For some one's release from Varuṇa's wrath.

[Atharvan.—āsuram, vāruṇam. trāiṣṭubham : 3, 4. anuṣṭubh (3. kakummatī).]

Found in Pāipp. i. Used in Kāuṣ. (25.37) to accompany lavation of the head in a healing ceremony (for dropsy, comm. and schol.).

Translated : Weber, iv. 403 ; Ludwig, p. 445 ; Griffith, i. 13 ; Bloomfield, 11,241 ; Weber, Sb. 1897, p. 599, cf. 594 ff. — Cf. Bergaigne-Henry, Manuel, p. 133.

1. This Asura bears rule over the gods ; for the wills (vāca) of king Varuṇa [come] true ; from him, prevailing by my worship (brāhman), from the fury of the formidable one (ugrā) do I lead up this man.

'Come true,' i.e. are realized or carried out : the more etymological sense of satyā. Ppp. reads viçāya for vaçā hi. The comm. explains çāçadāna as "exceedingly sharp ; having attained strength by favor of Varuṇa, gratified by praise etc." Tatas pari in c, as the first example of its kind of combination, is quoted in Prāt. ii. 66. The Anukr. ignores the first pāda as a jagatī.

2. Homage be to thy fury, O king Varuṇa ; for, O formidable one, thou dost note (ni-ci) every malice (drugdhā). A thousand others I impel (pra-sū) together ; a hundred autumns of thee shall this man live.

The obscure third pāda is understood by the comm., perhaps correctly, to mean "I buy off this man by furnishing Varuṇa a thousand others as substitutes." Two of our mss. (O. Op.) read ugrām (or ugram) in b ; Ppp. is defaced in a, b ; as second half-verse it reads : çataṁ sahasraṁ pra svāmy anyān anyān no jīvān çarado vyapāye. Here, too, pāda a is an unacknowledged jagatī. [Comm. cites, for c, AB. vii. 15.]

3. In that thou hast spoken with the tongue untruth, much wrong — from the king of true ordinances (-dhārman), from Varuṇa, I release thee.

[Read yāt tvām uvāktha anṛtam ?] The comm. has in a the absurd reading uvākta, treating it as for uvāktha, which all the mss. give.

4. I release thee out of the universal, the great flood (amavā) ; speak, O formidable one, unto [thy] fellows here, and reverence our incantation (brāhman).

'Universal' (vāiçvānara), i.e., perhaps, dangerous to all men ; and the dropsy, Varuṇa's special infliction, is probably spoken of as 'flood' [cf. RV. vii. 89. 4]. The (doubtful) rendering of the second half-verse takes it as addressed, like the first, to the patient ; the comm. regards it as said to Varuṇa, which is not impossible. [See Geldner, ZDMG. lii. 733.] Ppp. reads amuñcam at the beginning, and has a lacuna in place of c, d. [Render apa-ci by 'regard' ?]

II. For successful childbirth.

[Atharvan. — śaḍṛcam. pāuṣṇam. pāñktam: 2. anuṣṭubh; 3. 4-p. uṣṇigarbhā kakummaty anuṣṭubh; 4-6. paṭhyāpañkti.]

Verses 2-4 occur together in Pāipp. i., 5 and 6 in xx., but at different points. In Kāuṣ. (33. 1) it is quoted at the beginning of a long and intricate ceremony (filling the whole section) for safe delivery, the first of the strīkarmāṇi or 'women's rites'; its details have nothing to do with the text of the hymn, and cast no light upon the latter's difficulties. The Anukr. add to the author's name: anena mantroktān aryamādīdevān nārīśukhaprasavāyā bhīṣṭūye śāin ca sarvābhīr aprārthayat.

Translated: Weber, iv. 404; Ludwig, p. 478; Griffith, i. 14 and 473; Bloomfield, 99, 242. — Discussed: Roth, Ueber den Atharva-veda, p. 15.

1. At this birth, O Pūshan, let Aryaman [as] efficient (vedhās) invoker utter vāsaṭ for thee; let the woman, rightly engendered, be relaxed; let her joints go apart in order to birth.

The translation of c implies emendation of the text to vt sisṛtām. Roth formerly preferred sisṛtām nāry ṛtāprajātaḥ 'let a timely child come forth, O woman'; Weber leaves sisratām as pl. with indefinite subject, and understands the two following words as a parenthesis: "be the woman properly constructed"; Ludwig renders as if sisṛtām; Roth now (as in BR.) would emend only sisṛtām, and understand it of the 'flow' of water preceding birth; but that would be rather sru, and sr without a prefix in such a sense seems very unlikely [cf., however, sarann āpaḥ, RV. iv. 17. 3]. Ṛtāprajātā might also be possessive, 'rightly engendering.' The comm. takes sītāu as from sītī [not sūti, fem., nor sūtu, fem.: note accent and gender!], and meaning the ceremony at birth; vedhās as = Dhātār 'the creator'; ṛtāprajātā as = jīvad-apatyā; and sisratām (to the plural form of which he finds no objection) as "may she be relieved (vinīhṣṛtā) of the pangs of birth." The metrically irregular verse (9 + 10 : 10 + 11 = 40) is a pañkti solely in virtue of the [aggregate] number of its syllables.

2. Four [are] the directions of the sky, four also of the earth: the gods sent together the foetus; let them uncloset her in order to birth.

Or 'uncloset it,' tām, which SPP. reads in text and comm. (the latter omits the word itself in the paraphrase) with the minority of his mss., but against all of ours; Weber and Roth prefer tām. The word and its predecessor are quoted in the Prāt. (ii. 30), as the earliest example in the text of a combination of n and t without inserted s; but the form of the quotation (samāirayantādīnām) prevents our seeing whether its authors read tām or tām; the comm. gives tām. In ḍ, the comm. gives the false form ūrṇavantu. The text in Ppp. is confused, but does not appear to intend any variants from our reading.

3. Let Pūshan (?) uncloset [her or it]; we make the yōni go apart; do thou, sūṣaṇā, loosen; do thou, biṣkalā, let go.

The translation implies a very venturesome emendation in a, pūṣā for sūṣā (all the authorities have the latter): Pūshan, referred to in vs. 1 as principal officiating deity, might well be called on to do in particular what all the gods were begged to do in vs. 2 c, ḍ. [But see Bloomfield's comment.] The comm. gives three different etymologies for sūṣā: root sū + suffix -sā; root sū + root san; and su-usas. Sūṣaṇā and biṣkalā are possibly names of organs; for the latter, Ppp. has puṣkale, probably an alteration to a more familiar word ; the comm. understands sūṣani and biṣkali (of course, equally possible) ; the former, from roots sū and san, is name of an accouching goddess ; the latter (for which are given three diverse but equally absurd etymologies) is another deity. The Anukr. apparently intends the verse to be read as 6 + 8 : 7 + 8 = 29, instead of admitting the obvious resolution tu-ām in c. The supplying of gárbham as omitted at the beginning would make a good anuṣṭubh.

4. Not as it were stuck (āhata) in the flesh, not in the fat, not as it were in the marrows, let the spotted slimy (?) afterbirth come down, for the dog to eat ; let the afterbirth descend.

SPP. reads in a pīvasi, with the comm. and a small minority of his mss. ; three of ours (H. O. Op.) have pīvasi. Ppp. has a very different text (preserved in the nāgarī copy, though lost in the original text) : nāi 'va snāvasu na parvasu na ketheṣu (keṣeṣu) na nakheṣu ca ; then our c, d, without variant ; then nāi 'va pause (māñse ?) na pīvasi nāi 'va kastyoṣ vanā yutam ; then our e ; and with this ends the hymn as given in book i. The comm. reads in a māñsēna for māñsé ná, and resorts to various devices to get rid of the difficulty thus caused ; two of our mss. (O. Op.), and one or two of SPP's, give the same. Some of our mss. are very awkward about combining jarāyū and āttave, in part omitting the v, or (I.) reading yūtt-. PGS. (i. 16. 2) has the verse, but in different order : first our c, d, without variant ; then our a, b, in the form nāi 'va māñsēna pīvari na kasmiñṣ canā 'yatam ; then our e. But for its support of śévalam, we might be tempted to emend to kévalam ; the comm. has the worthless explanation jalasyo 'parishthitaçāivālavat āntarāvayavāsambaddham. Further may be compared HGS. ii. 3. 1. [MP., at ii. 11. 19, 20, has the verse with variants.]

5. I split apart thy urinator, apart the yóni, apart the [two] groins, apart both the mother and the child, apart the boy from the afterbirth ; let the afterbirth descend.

Ppp. (xx.) has for a, b vi te cṛtāmi tagarim v' yoni vi gavenyāu ; for d, vi garbham ca jarāyujah ; and TS. (iii. 3. 10¹) presents a version nearly accordant with this, but with takarim, gavenyāu, and (at the end) jarāyū ca : neither has our refrain.

6. As the wind, as the mind, as fly the birds, so do thou, O ten months' [child], fly along with the afterbirth ; let the afterbirth descend.

Ppp. has the version yathā vāto yathā dagha yathā saṣadroyajanta : evā te garbha ejatu nir āitu daçamāsyō bahir jarāyujā saha. For 'do thou fly' might be given 'do thou fall,' the verb having both meanings. [Ten (lunar) months : cf. Weber's second nakṣatra-essay, p. 313, Abh. der Berliner Akad., 1861.] [Cf. RV. v. 78. 8.]

This anuvāka [2.] has 5 hymns, 25 verses ; and the old Anukramaṇi, as quoted, says pañca pare tu (apparently the vidyāt quoted at the end of an. 1 belongs rather here than there).

12. Against various ailments (as results of lightning?).

[Bhṛgvāṅgiras.—yakṣmanāçanadevatākam. jāgātam : 4. anuṣṭubh.]

Found also in Pāipp. i. It is reckoned (Kāuç. 26. 1, note) as belonging, with many other hymns, to a takmanāçana or takman-destroying gaṇa, and is used (26. 1) to accompany the drinking of various things in a healing ceremony (comm. says, against disease arising from hurtful changes of wind, bile, or phlegm), and also (38. 1) in one against bad weather (durdina), or (Keç.) for the prevention of rain. The third verse further is added to the Mîgāra hymns in connection with lavation in another healing rite (27. 34).

Translated: Weber, iv. 405; Griffith, i. 15; Bloomfield, JAOS. xiii. p. cxiii ff. (= PAOS. May 1886); AJP. vii. 469 ff.; SBE. xlii. 7, 246. — Bloomfield regards it as addressed to "lightning, conceived as the cause of fever, headache, and cough." See his elaborate comment. Weber made it relate to fever, puerperal or infantile (on account of jarāyujā, 1 a).

1. First born of the afterbirth, the ruddy (usrīya) bull, born of wind and cloud (?), goes thundering with rain; may he be merciful to our body, going straight on, breaking; he who, one force, hath stridden out threefold.

The translation implies emendation in b to vātābhrajās or -jās, as suggested by 3 c; it is proposed by Weber, and adopted by Bloomfield, being a fairly plausible way of getting out of a decided difficulty. Weber renders, however, "with glowing wind-breath"; R., "with scorching wind" (emending to -bhrajās). The comm. reads vātavrajās (a couple of SPP's mss., which usually follow him, do the same), and explains it as "going swiftly like the wind," or, alternatively, "having a collection of winds." The 'bull' is to him the sun, and he forces this interpretation through the whole hymn. Neither he nor Kāuç. nor the latter's scholia see anywhere any intimation of lightning; yet this is perhaps most plausibly to be suspected in the obscurities of the expression (so R. also). The first words in a are viewed as signifying 'just escaped from its fetal envelop (in the cloud).' Ppp. is wholly defaced in the second half-verse; in the first it offers no variants, merely combining -jaṣ prath- in a, and reading -bhraja st- in b. Emendation in d to yāsyāt' kam would improve both meter and sense. Tredhā in d must be read as three syllables (as in RV.) to make the verse a full jagati. [At OB. vi. 59 b, vāta-dhrajās is suggested — by R. ?]

2. Thee, lurking (çri) in each limb with burning (çocis), we, paying homage, would worship (vidh) with oblation; we would worship with oblation the hooks, the grapples, [him] who, a seizer, hath seized this man's joints.

Or yās, at beginning of d, is abbreviation for 'when he' or 'with which he.' [Render, rather, 'hath seized his (accentless) joints.' The patient is in plain sight of the exorcist. Emphatic pronoun is therefore needless; so enam vs. 3.] Some of our mss., by a frequent blunder, read in a çicry-. The prolongation of the final of asya in d is noted by the comment to Prāt. iv. 79. Ppp. has a very different (and corrupt) text: . . . çicriyāno yo grhūta parasya grbhātī: aṅko tam aṅko haviṣā yajāmi hr̥dī çrito manasā yo jajāna. The definition of this verse and the next as trīṣṭubh seems to have been lost from the Anukr., which reads simply dvitīyā before antya'nuṣṭubh.

3. Release thou him from headache and from cough — whoever hath entered each joint of him; the blast (? çuṣma) that is cloud-born and that is wind-born, let it attach itself to forest-trees (vānaspātī) and mountains.

Ppp. has srjatām for sacatām in d. The comm. takes kāsās in a as nomin., explaining it as hr̥tkap̄ihamadhyavartī prasiddhah çlesmarogaviçesah; vātajās to him is kāuṣṭhyād vāyor utpannah. [For çīrṣakti, see Knauer, Indogermanische Forschungen, Anzeiger, vii. 225 ; Bloomfield, AJP. xvii. 416 ; Böhtlingk, Berichte der sächsischen Ges., 1897, xlix. 50, who takes it as 'a stiff neck with head awry.']

4. Weal [be] to my upper member (gātra), weal be to my lower, weal to my four limbs ; weal be to my body.

Ppp. has a quite different text : in a, b, te both times for me, and parāya for ava-rāya ; for c, çam te prṣṭibhyo majjabhyaḥ ca ; in d, tava for mama : the address to a second person is decidedly to be preferred. This is found also in the corresponding verse in VS. (xxiii. 44) and TS. (v. 2. 12²), with readings in part agreeing further with those of Ppp. : çam te párebhyo gātrebhyaḥ çam astv āvarebhyaḥ : çam asthābhyo majjabhyaḥ çam v astu tanvāi tava : but TS. has for d çam u te tanūve bhuvat.

13. Deterrent homage to lightning.

[Bhṛgvaṅgiras.—vāidyutam. ānuṣṭubham : 3. 4p. virād jagatī ; 4. tristupparā brhatīgarbhā pañkti.]

The hymn occurs in Pāipp. xix., and vs. 1 also in xv. It is used by Kāuṣ. (38. 8, 9) in a charm against lightning, with vii. 11 ; and it also appears (139. 8), with i. 26 and vii. 11 and several other hymns, in the ceremony of introduction to Vedic study.

Translated : Weber, iv. 406 ; Griffith, i. 16.

1. Homage be to thy lightning, homage to thy thunder ; homage be to thy bolt (āçman), with which thou hurlest at the impious one (dūdāç).

The version of this verse in Ppp. xix. is like ours ; in xv., d reads yenā dūrāt pradī-jassasi (pratyasyasi?). The first half-verse is found also in VS. (xxxvi. 21 a, b). The irregular combination dūdāçe (p. duḥodāçe) is noted by Prāt. ii. 60. The comm. regards Parjanya as addressed, but then proceeds to give another interpretation of the verse, based on the absurd assumption that namas = annam, which appears also in numerous other places. To him, also, āçman is a meghanāman. In our edition, an accent-mark is omitted over the -çma- of āçmane.

2. Homage to thee, child of the height (pravāt), whence thou gatherest (saṁ-ūh) heat (tāpas) ; be merciful to ourselves ; do kindness (māyas) to our offspring (tokā).

Ppp. has çam nas for māyas in d. The first half-verse forms in VS. (xxxvi. 21 c, d) one verse with our 1 a, b ; but VS. has [for a nāmas te bhagavann astu ; and] for b yātāḥ svāḥ samīhase 'from whence thou strivest after the sky,' which indicates that our reading is corrupt. [Pischel discusses pravāt (= 'stream') at length, Ved. Stud. ii. 63-76, see 68.]

3. Child of the height, be homage to thee ; homage we pay to thy missile (hetī) and heat (tāpas) ; we know thy highest abode (dhāman) that is in secret ; thou art set as navel within the [cloud-]ocean.

[The te in b is superfluous.] Ppp. rectifies the meter of a by omitting eva ; its other pādas are more or less corrupt : namas te hete tīpasyāi in b (which ends there) ; gandharvo nāma par- in c ; nihitāsa nābhīḥ at the end. The comm. takes tāpas as adjective. The verse is scanned by the Anukr. as 12 + 12 : 11 + 11 = 46 syllables.

4. Thou whom all the gods did create, the bold one, [[the gods]] making an arrow for hurling — do thou, besung in the council (vidātha), be merciful to us; to thee as such be homage, O goddess.

Dhṛṣṇum in b might qualify ṣum directly. The comm. supplies he açane 'O thunderbolt' as addressed. He reads mṛla in c. Ppp. reads for a, b yam tvā devā ajana-yanta viçvesām kṛvānā açanāya triṣvāi; and for d mitrasya varuṇasya prasṛṣṭāu. The Anukr. seems to scan as 10 + 11 : 10 + 9 = 40 syllables. [Read in c mṛḍaya and in d utā tāsyāi? — For vidātha, see discussions of Bloomfield, JAOS. xix.² 17, and Geldner, ZDMG. lii. 757; and the literature cited by Foy, KZ. xxxiv. 226.]

14. Imprecation of spinsterhood on a woman.

Found in Pāipp. i. Used by Kāuç. (36. 15-18) in an incantation against a woman; the details of it cast no light on those of the hymn; and the comm. defines its purpose simply as striyāḥ pūruṣasya vā dāurbhāgyakaraṇam.

Translated: Weber, iv. 408; Ludwig, p. 459; Zimmer, p. 314 (these misapprehend its character); Griffith, i. 17; Bloomfield, JAOS. xiii. p. cxv = PAOS. May, 1886; or AJP. vii. 473 ff.; or SBE. xlii. 107, 252.

1. Her portion (bhāga), splendor have I taken to myself, as from off a tree a garland; like a mountain with great base, let her sit long with the Fathers.

Ppp. has for a ahaṁ te bhagam ā dade; its b is defaced; in c it gives mahāmūlāi 'va. The comm. renders bhagam by bhāgyam, here and in the other verse, recognizing no sexual meaning. Pitṛṣu he renders "in the later [z c, d] to be specified houses of father, mother, etc.," and all the translators understand it in the same way; but it is questionable whether the plural of pītar would ever be used in this sense; and the repeated mention of Yama later indicates that there was at least a double meaning in the expression. Perhaps a girl remaining unmarried was called "bride of Yama," i.e. as good as dead, and her stay at home compared to that in the other world. [Cf. Antigone, 816, "I shall be the bride of Acheron," Ἀχέροντι νυμφέσω.] The Anukr. appears to ratify the abbreviated reading -buddhne 'va in c; it counts six syllables in d.

2. Let this girl, O king, be shaken down to thee [as] bride, O Yama; be she bound in her mother's house, also in her brother's, also in her father's.

Ppp. has yat for eṣā at the beginning. The comm. foolishly interprets rājan as indicating Soma, because Soma is first husband of a bride (he quotes RV. x. 85. 40 : cf. AV. xiv. 2. 3 ff.), and takes yama as his epithet, as being her constringer (niyā-maka). For ni-dhū compare iii. 11. 7; at TS. v. 2. 53 it is used with pitṛṣu. [Does not ni-dhū covertly suggest nidhuvana, which, in its obscene sense, may be as old as the Veda?]

3. She is thy housekeeper, O king; we commit her to thee; she shall sit long with the Fathers, until the covering in of her head.

The translation of d implies the obvious emendation to samoḥyāi, which SPP. even admits into his text, on the authority of the comm., but against every known ms.; Ppp., however, gives samopyā. The comm. explains it by sañvapanāt bhūmāu sampatanāt, and as equivalent to marañaparyantam 'till death'; that this last is the virtual sense is extremely probable. That vap has not the sense 'shave' in the compound (cf. AÇS. vi. 10. 2) is shown by the inappropriateness of the prefixes sañ + ā to that sense, and the frequency of the combination in the other sense. [See Bloomfield, 255, ā çīrṣṇāḥ kēcam ōpiāt, 'till she shed the hair from her head.'] Ppp. has further imām u pari dadhmasi in b. The comm. gives kulapā (for -pās: our pada-text kulaṣpāḥ) in a. The resolution çīr-ṣṇ-ah in ḍ would make the verse a full anuṣṭubh; the Anukr. counts only 14 syllables in the second half.

4. With the incantation (brāhman) of Asita, of Kaçyapa, and of Gaya, I shut up (api-nah) thy portion (vulva ?), as sisters do what is within a box (-kōca).

[For the names, see Bloomfield, 255, and AJP. xvii. 403.] Bhaga perhaps has here a double meaning. Three of our mss. (E.I.H.) with one or two of SPP's, read in c antaṣkoçām, against Prāt. ii. 62, which expressly prescribes ḥ. The comm. treats antah and koçam as two independent words; antāḥ kōçe would be a not unacceptable emendation. The Anukr. appears to sanction the abbreviation -koçam 'va.

15. With an oblation: for confluence of wealth.

Found in Pāipp. i. (in the verse-order 1, 4, 3, 2). Used by Kāuç. only in a general rite for prosperity (19. 4), to accompany a douche for persons bringing water from two navigable streams and partaking of a dish of mixed grain; it is also reckoned (19. 1, note) to the puṣṭika mantras, or hymns bringing prosperity.

Translated: Weber, iv. 409; Ludwig, p. 371; Griffith, i. 19.

1. Together, together let the rivers flow, together the winds, together the birds (patatrīn); this my sacrifice let them enjoy of old; I offer with a confluent (sañsrāvya) oblation.

The verse is nearly identical with xix. 1. 1, and in less degree with ii. 26. 3. From xix. 1. 3 c it may be conjectured that we should read pradīças in c. [If we do read pradīvas, why not render it by 'continually' ?] Ppp. has not the second half-verse, but instead of it vs. 3 c, ḍ. For b Ppp. gives sañ vātā dīvyā uta. The comm. accents sāñ-sam in a. There is perhaps some technical meaning in sañsrāvya 'confluent' or 'for confluence' which we do not appreciate, but it is also unknown to the comm., who explains the word only etymologically. The verse is an āstārāpañkti (strictly virāj: 8 + 8 : 11 + 11 = 38), and its definition as such is perhaps dropped out of the Anukr. text (which reads ādyā dvitīyā bhurik etc.).

2. Come straight hither to my call, hither ye confluents also; increase this man, ye songs; let every beast (paçū) there is come hither; let what wealth (rayī) there is stay (sthā) with him.

The pada-mss. all give yāḥ in e. Ppp. has in a, b idam havyā upetane 'dam, and, for c, asya vardhayato rayim. The last pāda is nearly RV. x. 19. 3 ḍ. [Render 'with this man let' etc.] The omission of evā in a would make the verse regular.

3. What fountains of the streams flow together, ever unexhausted, with all those confluences we make riches (dhāna) flow together for me.

Ppp. has in a, b ye nadībhyas saṁsraṁvānty ucchāmas saram akṣikā. The comm. gives the verse twice, each time with a separate explanation.

4. What [fountains] of butter (sarpīś) flow together, and of milk, and of water, with all those confluences we make riches flow together for me.

Ppp. reads saṁsraṁvās for sarpīśas in a. The comm. supplies first avayavās as omitted subject in the verse, but afterwards utsāsas from vs. 3, which is of course right.

16. Against demons : with an amulet of lead.

[Cātana. — agnīndram, vāruṇam, dadhatyam. ānuṣṭubham : 4. kakummatī.]

Found in Pāipp. i. Kāuṣ. does not include the hymn among the cātanāni (8. 25), but a Pariṣ. (ib., note) reckons it to them (in accordance with the Anukr.). Kāuṣ. (47. 23) uses it once in a rite of sorcery (for the death of one's enemies : comm.), and its commentator (47. 13, note) in another.

Translated : Weber, iv. 409 ; Grill, 1, 75 ; Griffith, i. 20 ; Bloomfield, 65, 256.

1. What devourers, on the night of new moon, have arisen troop-wise (?) — the fourth Agni is the demon-slayer ; he shall bless us.

Vrājam in b is obscure ; 'troopwise' is the conjecture of BR. ; the comm. reads instead bhrājam, and absurdly explains it as bhrājamānām or -nam 'shining,' and qualifying either the night or the "hearty" man whom the demons have risen to injure ! Ppp. has turyās for turīyas in c ; what is meant by it is not clear ; the comm. gives three different explanations : fourth after the death of his three brothers and predecessors (quoting for these TS. ii. 6. 6¹) ; as the house-fire apart from the three sacrificial ; or as the āṅgīrasa fire, as distinguished from the sacrificial, the household, and that of battle — thus teaching us nothing but his own ignorance and perplexity. Grill follows Weber in understanding the word to mean "powerful." For d, Ppp. has san nah pātu tebhyah.

2. The lead Varuṇa blesses ; the lead Agni favors ; Indra bestowed on me the lead ; it, surely, is a dispeller of familiar demons.

Ppp. combines māi 'ndra p- in c, and has for d amīvāyas tu cātam (for cātanam). The comm. ascribes the mention of Varuṇa to the fact that river-foam is one of the articles declared (Kāuṣ. 8. 18) equivalent to lead, and here intended by that name. [Cf. Bloomfield, JAOS. xv. 158.]

3. This overpowers the viṣkandha ; this drives off (bādhi) the devourers ; with this I overpower all the races (jātā) that are the piṣācī's.

The first half-verse is nearly repeated below, as ii. 4. 3 a, b. The short a in the reduplication of sasahe in c, though against the meter and in part against usage, is read by all the mss., and in the comment to Prāt. iii. 13. Ppp. has in a viṣkandam (but compare ii. 4. 3, where -dham). The comm. explains the (more or less fully personified) disorder as a disturbance caused by rakṣas or piṣāca and obstructing motion (gati-pratibandhaka) : cf. below ii. 4 and iii. 9.

4. If our cow thou slayest, if [our] horse, if [our] man (pūruṣa), we pierce thee there with lead, that thou be no slayer of our heroes.

PPP. has for c sīsenā vidhyāmas tvā.

The 5 hymns of this anuvāka [3.], as of the next, have just the norm, 20 verses, and the quotation from the old Anukr. (given at the end of hymn 21) is vinçakāv ato 'nyāu. At the end of the present hymn is read vinçatyā kuru, which is perhaps the statement as to the assumption of a norm.

The first prapāhaka ends here.

17. To stop the vessels of the body.

[Brahman. — yoṣiddvatyam. ānuṣṭubham: 1. dhurij; 4. 3-p. ārsī gāyatrī.]

Found in Pāipp. xix. (in the verse-order 3, 4, 1, 2). Used once by Kāuç. (26. 10 : the quotation appears to belong to what follows it, not to what precedes), in a remedial rite, apparently for stopping the flow of blood (the comm. says, as result of a knife wound and the like, and also of disordered menses).

Translated : Weber, iv. 411 ; Ludwig, p. 508 ; Grill, 16, 76 ; Griffith, i. 21 ; Bloomfield, 22, 257. — Cf. Hillebrandt, Veda-Chrestomathie, p. 46.

1. Yon women (yoṣīt) that go, veins with red garments, like brotherless sisters (jāmī) — let them stop (sthā), with their splendor smitten.

PPP. makes yoṣitas and jāmayas change places, and has sarvās (better) for hirās in b. The comm. takes yoṣitas as gen. sing., and hence naturally understands rajovahananādyas to be meant in the verse ; he renders hirās by sirās ; and he explains that brotherless sisters pitṛkule saṁtānakarmaṇe piṇḍadānāya ca tiṣṭhanti. The Anukr. refuses to sanction the contraction -tare 'va in c.

2. Stop, lower one ! stop, upper one ! do thou too stop, midmost one ! if the smallest stops, shall stop forsooth the great tube (dhamāni).

The accent of tiṣṭhati seems to show ca to be the equivalent of cet here.

3. Of the hundred tubes, of the thousand veins, have stopped forsooth these midmost ones ; the ends have rested (ram) together.

In d, emendation to antyas 'the end ones' would be an improvement ; but PPP. also has antiās : sakam antiā 'ramsata ; its c is corrupt (asthū nibaddhāmāvā) ; and it inserts te after çatasya in a.

4. About you hath gone (kram) a great gravelly sandbank (dhanū) ; stop [and] be quiet, I pray (sū kam).

The comm. sees in dhanū only the meaning "bow," and interprets it "bent like a bow" : namely, a vessel containing the urine ; in sikatās he sees an allusion to the menses, or to gravel in the bladder. Kāuç. (26. 10) speaks of sprinkling on dust and gravel as a means of stanching the flow of blood ; more probably, as Weber first suggested, a bag filled with sand was used : in neither case can the menses be had in view. PPP. reads siktāmayī bunū sthiraç carasthidam. The third pāda is identical with RV. i. 191. 6 d ; the comm. (as Sāyaṇa to the latter) fails to recognize the root il ; and he renders it prerayata, as if root ir were in question.

18. Against unlucky marks.

[Draviṇodas. — vāināyakaṃ. ānuṣṭubham: 1. upariṣṭādvirāḍbṛhatī; 2. nicṛjjaḡatī; 3. virāḍāstārapaṅktitriṣṭubh.]

Verses 1–3 are found in Pāipp. xx. (but vs. 2 not with the others). Used by Kāuḡ. (42. 19) in a charm against unlucky signs in a woman.

Translated: Weber, iv. 411; Ludwig, p. 498; Geldner, Ved. Stud. i. 314; Griffith, i. 22; Bloomfield, 109, 260. — It may be mentioned that Geldner takes the whole hymn as relating to a domestic cat.

1. Out we drive (nīr-sū) the pallid sign, out the niggard; then, whatever things are excellent (bhadrá), those we lead together (?) for our progeny.

The translation implies in d the very venturesome emendation of ārūtim to sām; the former appears wholly impracticable, and has perhaps stumbled into d from b; Geldner conjectures instead tvā. Ppp. is defaced, and gives no help. The comm. reads lakṣmam, and explains lalāmyam as accus. sing. masc.: lalāme bhavaṃ tila-kasthānagatam; to yāni in c he supplies cihnāni [making c a separate sentence and supplying bhavantu]. It would also be possible to make the cesura after prajāyāi, and read nāḡayāmasi (so R.). In our edition, dele the accent-mark under tā- of tāni in c.

2. Savitar has driven out the trouble (? ārāni) in her feet; out have Varuṇa, Mitra, Aryaman [driven] [that] in her hands; out hath Anumati, bestowing (rā) upon us; the gods have driven this woman forward unto good fortune.

All the mss. give in a sāvīṣak, which SPP. very properly retains, though the comm. and Ppp. have -ṣat (see my Skt. Gr.?, § 151 a); 'sāvīṣak (p. as-) would be an improvement, and may be understood. For c, d, Ppp. has yad ādityāmavati rarāṇā pṛṇasuvā savitā sāubhagāya. The comm. gives two etymological guesses at araṇim (which is his reading, instead of -nim), both worthless, and describes rarāṇā as accented on the final. The separation of this verse from the others in Ppp. indicates that it probably has nothing to do with "marks." It is rather unusual for the Anukr. to take notice of the occurrence of a triṣṭubh pāda in a jaḡatī verse. [d, no less than c, is triṣṭubh, pronounce devāsāvīṣuh.]

3. Whatever in thy self, in thy body, is frightful, or what in hair or in mien — all that do we smite away with [our] words; let god Savitar advance (sūd) thee.

'God Savitar' or 'the heavenly impeller,' everywhere equivalent. Ppp. begins yat tā tman tanvā ghoram, and has for c, d tat te vidvān upabādhayeṣām pra tvā suvā savitā sāubhagāya. The metrical description of the verse (11 + 11 : 10 + 10 = 42) by the Anukr. is unusual and questionable.

4. The antelope-footed, the bull-toothed, the kine-repelling, the outblowing, the licked-out, the pallid — these we make disappear from us.

Designations either of the unlucky signs or of the women marked with them — probably the former. The comm. prefers the latter, except for the two last, which he blunderingly takes from the stems -dhyā and -myā, and makes them qualify lakṣma understood. He explains gośedhā (p. goosedhām) as "going like a cow," and viltidha as a lock "on the edge of the forehead, licked as it were the wrong way" — or what is called a "cowlick" [Skt. kākāpakṣa]. Both editions give at the beginning ṛiṣyap-, instead of the true reading ṛiṣyap-, which the comm. (with three of SPP's mss.) has; the mss. bungle all the occurrences of this word. In part of our edition the ṛi is broken off from vṛśadatiṁ.

19. Against enemies.

[Brahman. — āiṣvaryam. ānuṣṭubham : 2. purastādbyhatī; 3. pathyāpāñkti.]

The hymn is found also in Pāipp. i. With the two that follow it (and others), it is reckoned by Kāuṣ. (14. 7) among the sāmgrāmikāṇi or battle-hymns, or likewise (ib., note) to the aparājita ('unconquered') gaṇa; without them, but with vi. 13, it is used in several of the charms to ward off the effects of portents (104. 3; 105. 1; 113. 3). In Vāit. (9. 21), vs. 3 appears alone in the cāturmāsya or seasonal sacrifice, accompanying the release of the two puṛoḍāca baskets.

Translated : Weber, iv. 413; Griffith, i. 23; Bloomfield, 120, 262. — Cf. Bergaigne-Henry, Manuel, p. 134.

1. Let not the piercers find us, nor let the penetraters find [us]; far from us make the volleys (ṣaravyā) fly, dispersing, O Indra.

Ppp. combines mo 'bhi- in b. The rendering of ṣaravyā follows the comm., here and to vs. 3 (ṣarasamhati).

2. Dispersing from us let the shafts fly, those that are hurled and that are to be hurled; ye divine arrows of men (manuṣyā-), pierce my enemies.

The comm. inserts an "and" in c: "divine and human arrows"; this is possible, but opposed by the accent. Ppp. has for c, d: devā manuṣyā ṛṣayo 'mitrān no vi vidhātu; the comm. also reads vidhyatu.

3. Whether one of our own or whether a stranger, fellow or outsider, whoso assails (abhi-dās) us — let Rudra with a volley pierce those my enemies.

Ppp's version is somewhat different: yas samāno yo 'samāno 'mitro no jighānsati: rudraṣ ṣavyā tān amitrān vi viddhata. With a, b compare RV. vi. 75. 19 a, b: yó naḥ svó āraṇo yáḥ ca niṣtyo jighānsati (= SV. ii. 1222 a, b, which combines svó 'raṇo); the latter half of this verse is our 4 c, d. Two or three of our mss. (P. M. O. p. m.) follow RV. in omitting yó after svó. Āp. iv. 16. 1 has yo naḥ sapatno yo 'raṇo maro 'bhidāsati devāḥ, with a wholly different second half. The comm. absurdly explains niṣtyas as nirgataviryo nikerṣṭabalaḥ ṣatruḥ.

4. Whatever rival (sapātna), whatever non-rival, and whatever hater shall curse us, him let all the gods damage (dhūrv); incantation (bráhmaṇ) is my inner defense.

Ppp. has as first half-verse sabandhuṣ cā 'sabandhuṣ ca yo na indrā 'bhidāsati. The second half-verse is found, without variant, in RV. (and SV. : see under vs. 3). The comm. explains sapatna well as jñātirūpaḥ ṣatruḥ. SPP. follows the very bad example of a part of his mss. by reading diviṣan ch- (instead of -añ or -añ) in b [cf. i. 33. 2, ii. 4. 6, and see Prāt. ii. 10, 17, and especially 11. — The pada-text reads diviṣan].

20. Against enemies and their weapons.

The first three verses are found in Pāipp. xix., and vs. 4 in ii. : see below. For the use of the hymn by Kāuṣ. with 19 and 21, see under 19. And vs. 1 is used alone (so the comm.) in the parvan-sacrifices (Kāuṣ. 2. 39), on viewing the cooked oblation.

Translated : Weber, iv. 413 ; Griffith, i. 24.

1. Let there be the ādārasṛt, O god Soma ; at this sacrifice, O Maruts, be gracious to us ; let not a portent find us, nor an imprecation ; let not the wrong that is hateful find us.

The first pāda is rendered on the assumption that the sāman of this name, as described in PB. xv. 3. 7, is intended ; it might be used of the person intended to be benefited : 'let him be one not getting into a split (i.e. hole, or difficulty)' : this is the sense distinctly taught in PB. ; the comm. says na kadācid apī svastrīsamīḥam prā-ḥnotu (madṭyāḥ ṣatruḥ)! The verse occurs in TB. (iii. 7. 5¹² : and repeated without change in Āp. ii. 20. 6), with bhavata in a, mṛdatā (without the anomalous accent) in b, and vṛjānā in d. Ppp. begins with adārasur bh-, adds ayam after soma in a, and has in d the easier reading prā pad dūchunā for vidad vṛjīnā. The second half-verse occurs again as v. 3. 6 c, d. Though connected with vss. 2, 3 in Pāipp. also, this verse does not appear to have anything originally to do with them.

2. What missile (sēnya) weapon of the malignant (aghāyū) shall go up today, do ye, Mitra-and-Varuṇa, keep that off from us.

The first half-verse in Ppp. is yo 'dya sāinyo vadho jighāsani nam upāyatī, which is nearly our vi. 99. 2 a, b. The half-verse occurs also in PB. (i. 3. 3 a, b) and AḢS. (v. 3. 22 a, b), both of which have sāumyas ; PB. elides yo 'dya ; AḢS. gives at the end -irati. Aghāyūnām would be the proper accent (and this the comm. has), unless the word were understood as feminine.

3. Both what [is] from here and what from yonder — keep off, O Varuṇa, the deadly weapon ; extend great protection (ṣārman) ; keep very far off the deadly weapon.

The pada text marks the pāda-division in the first half-verse before instead of after the second yāt. Ppp. reads in b yāvayāḥ. The second half-verse is found again at the end of the next hymn — which is perhaps an additional indication that this hymn properly ends here. The Anukr. ignores the metrical irregularity of the verse (9 + 8 : 7 + 8 = 32). [Read in a itō yād, and in c yachā nah.]

4. Verily a great ruler (ṣāsā) art thou, overpowerer of enemies, subdued, whose companion (sākhī) is not slain, is not scathed (jyā) at any time.

This verse is the first in RV. x. 152, of which the remaining verses constitute the next hymn here ; in Ppp. it occurs with them in ii., far separated from the matter which in our text precedes it. RV. and Ppp. both read for b amitrakhādō ābbhutaḥ ; and RV. accents in d jīyate kādā. The comm. paraphrases ṣāsās by ṣāsako niyantā ; he takes jīyate as from root jī, which is of course equally possible.

21. Against enemies.

[Atharvan.—āindram. ānuṣṭubham.]

As just pointed out (under 20. 4), this hymn and the last verse of the preceding make one hymn in RV. (x. 152) and in Pāipp. (ii.); the latter has a different verse-order (3, 2, 1, 4), but no various readings. For other correspondences, see under the several verses. For the ritual use of the hymn with the two preceding, see under 19; it is further reckoned (Kāuṣ. 16. 8, note) to the abhaya ('free from fear or danger') gana. It is the first hymn applied (with vii. 55) in the svastyayana or 'for well-being' ceremonies (50. 1), and is, according to the comm., referred to as such in 25. 36. Verse 2 is also used, with others, by Vāit. (29. 5), in the agnicayana or building of the fire-altar.

Translated : Weber, iv. 414 ; Griffith, i. 25.

1. Giver of well-being, lord of the people (vīç), Vṛtra-slayer, remover of scorners, controlling, let the bull Indra go before us, soma-drinker, producing fearlessness.

The comm. renders vimṛdhās by viçeṣeṇa mardhayitā çatrūṇām, although he explains mṛdhas in vss. 2, 3 by saṅgrāmān; the word is plainly a possessive compound [accent! no genitive], expressing in form of epithet the action of 2 a and 3 a. RV. reads in a viçās pātis. The verse occurs further in TB. (iii. 7. 114) and TA. (x. 1. 9); both have viçās, and, in ḍ, svastidās for somaḥās.

2. Smite away, O Indra, our scorners (mṛdh); put (yam) down them that fight (ḥṛtany) [us]; make go to lowest darkness whoso vexes us.

RV. reverses the order of c and ḍ, and reads ādharām; and with it agree precisely SV. (ii. 1218) and VS. (viii. 44 a et al.); while TS. (i. 6. 124) and MS. (iv. 12. 3) have for c adhaspadām tām im ḥṛdhi. [Cf. MGS. ii. 15. 6 h and p. 155.]

3. Smite away the demon, away the scorners; break apart Vṛtra's (two) jaws; away, O Indra, Vṛtra-slayer, the fury of the vexing enemy.

RV. and SV. (ii. 1217) have the same text; TS. (i. 6. 125) reads çatrūn for rākhas, nuda for jahi, and bhāmītō for vṛtrahan.

4. Off, O Indra, the mind of the hater, off the deadly weapon of him that would scathe; extend great protection; keep very far off the deadly weapon.

RV. reads manyós for mahāt in c, and yavayā for yāv- in ḍ. TS. (iii. 5. 8, only a, b) supplies in the first half-verse the missing verb, jahi, putting it in place of vadhām. Unless we resolve çárma into three syllables, the anuṣṭubh is defective by a syllable. [Add naḥ after yacha?]

The 5 hymns of this anuvāka [4.] again have 20 verses, the norm : see at the conclusion of the preceding anuvāka (after hymn 16).

22. Against yellowness (jaundice).

Found in Pāipp. i. Used by Kāuṣ. (26. 14) in a remedial rite (against heart disease and jaundice [kāmala, Keç. ; kāmīla, the comm.]).

Translated : Weber, iv. 415 ; A. Kuhn, KZ. xiii. 113 ; Griffith, i. 26 ; Bloomfield, 7, 263. — Cf. also Zimmer, p. 388 ; Bloomfield, AJP. xii. 437 ; Bergaigne-Henry, Manuel, p. 134. Kuhn adduces analogous old Germanic charms.

1. Let them (both) go up toward the sun, thy heart-burn (-dyota) and yellowness ; with the color of the red bull, with that we enclose (pari-dhā) thee.

Ppp. reads in a udatām ; its c is yo rohitasya gor varṇas, which construes better with d. The abbreviated writing hydyot- for hrddyot- (see my Skt. Gr. § 232 a [and Roth, ZDMG. xlvi. 102]) betrays the pada-text into dividing hrdyotāḥ (cf. tād yām, iv. 19.6 ; so even the RV. pada-text has jaratvṛṣam from jaradvṛṣam at v. 8.2). SPP. has properly in his text the unabbreviated form hrddyo-. U'dayatām in the AV. Index Verborum is an erratum for ūd ayatām : the comm. takes the form, doubtless wrongly, as 3d sing. mid. instead of 3d du. active. Kāuṣ. follows the indication of c, d, and of 3 a, b, by prescribing the use of products of a red cow, hair and skin etc., in the healing rite.

2. With red colors we enclose thee, in order to length of life ; that this man may be free from complaints (-rāpas), also may become not yellow.

Ppp. has a different second half-verse : yathā tvam arapā 'so atho 'hārito bhava. The third pāda is iv. 13.4 d (or RV. x. 137.5 d). The comm. explains rapas as = pāpa.

3. They that have the red one for divinity, and the kine that are red — form after form, vigor (vāyas) after vigor, with them we enclose thee.

The translation implies the easy emendation in a to rōhiṇīdevatyās, in accordance with the universal use of devatyā elsewhere. The 'red one' is perhaps the red star (or lunar asterism) Rohiṇī, our Aldebaran. Ppp. reads rohiṇīr devatyā, and in b rohiṇīr uta ; in d it has tena tvā.

4. In the parrots, in the ropanākās, we put thy yellowness ; likewise in the hāridravas we deposit thy yellowness.

Not one of our mss. gives at the beginning the true reading śūkeṣu, as found in RV. i. 50. 12 [and Ppp.] (and TB. iii. 7. 6²²), but it is presented by the comm., and by three of SPP's authorities. RV. and TB. have me for te both times, and accent hāridravēsu. The names are understood by the comm. as those of birds : ropanākā = kāṣṭha-śuka, apparently a kind of parrot, and hāridrava = gopītanaka, apparently a yellow water-wagtail. [Ppp. has in b prapanākāṣa.]

23. Against leprosy : with a healing herb.

Found in Pāipp. i., but defaced, so that for the most part comparison is impossible. Also, with vs. 3 of the next hymn, in TB. (ii. 4. 4¹⁻²). Used by Kāuṣ. (26. 22-24), in company with the next following hymn, in a remedial rite (against white leprosy, ṣvetakuṣṭha, schol. and comm.).

Translated : Weber, iv. 416 ; Ludwig, p. 506 ; Grill, 19, 77 ; Griffith, i. 27 ; Bloomfield, 16, 266 ; furthermore, vss. 1, 2 by Bloomfield, AJP. xi. 325. — Cf. Bergaigne-Henry, Manuel, p. 135.

1. Night-born art thou, O herb, O dark, black, [and] dusky one; O colorer (rajanī), do thou color this leprous spot and what is pale (palitā).

According to the comm., the herb addressed is the haridrā (Curcuma longa). R. writes: "The rajanī is known to the lexicographers, and has later as principal name parpati [an Oldenlandia dyeing red, OB.], Madana 46. 47, Dhanvantari (ms.) i. 27. In Bhāvapr. i. 194 (where, according to my old and good ms., rañjanī is to be read instead of -nā), it is noted that this remedy is fragrant, and comes out of the north. It has a dark aspect. The species not to be determined, because the later identifications are entirely untrustworthy." [See Dhanvantari, Ānanda-āçrama ed., p. 17.] The causative stem rajaya (the meter calls for rāj-) is found only here.

2. The leprous spot, what is pale, do thou cause to disappear from hence, the speckled; let thine own color enter thee; make white things (çuklā) fly away.

TB. has na (naḥ?) for tvā and açnutām for viçatām in c, and in d çvetāni for çuklāni. The comm. gives prīthak for prīṣat in b, and has the usual support of a small minority of SPP's mss.

3. Dusky is thy hiding-place, dusky thy station (āsthāna); dusky art thou, O herb; make the speckled disappear from hence.

TB. has the easier reading niltāyanam in 'a. The comm. again gives prīthak in d; he holds that the plant here addressed is the indigo (nīlī).

4. Of the bone-born leprous spot, and of the body-born that is in the skin, of that made by the spoiler (dūṣi) — by incantation have I made the white (çvetā) mark disappear.

Ppp. has in c dhūṣyā; TB. reads instead krtyāyā; the comm. explains dūṣi as çatrūtpādītā krtyā. Ppp. has at the end anenaçam.

24. Against leprosy.

[Brahman. — āsurīvanaspatidevatyam. ānuṣṭubham : 2. nicr̥pathyāpāñkti.]

Found in Pāipp. i., but not in connection with the preceding hymn. For the use of 23 and 24 together by Kāuç., see under hymn 23.

Translated: Weber, iv. 417; Ludwig, p. 509; Grill, 19, 77; Griffith, i. 28; Bloomfield, 16, 268.

1. The eagle (suparṇā) was born first; of it thou wast the gall; then the Asura-woman, conquered by fight (yīdli), took shape as forest-trees.

Ppp. reads at the end vanaspatih, which is more in accordance with the usual construction of rūpam kr̥ (mid.) and the like. Ppp. has also jighānsitā for yudhā jītā in c. R. suggests the emendation: tad āsurī (instr.) jighānsitam rū-, 'that, attempted to be eaten by the Āsurī, took on vegetable form': i.e. became a healing plant. The comm. still regards the indigo as addressed. He coolly explains jītā by its opposite, jītatī. All our mss. have in d the absurd accent cākre (emended in the edition to cakre); SPP. reports the same only of two pada-mss.

2. The Asura-woman first made this remedy for leprous spot, this effacer of leprous spot ; it has made the leprous spot disappear, has made the skin uniform (sārūpa).

Ppp. has again (as in 23. 4) anenaçat in c ; in d it reads surūpanam.

3. Uniform by name is thy mother ; uniform by name is thy father ; uniform-making art thou, O herb ; [so] do thou make this uniform.

Found also, as noted above, in TB. (ii. 4. 4²), which has for c sarūpā 'sy oṣadhic. Ppp. reads throughout surūp-. It inserts between this verse and the next : yat tanū-jam yad agnījam citra kilāsa jajñiṣe : tad astu sukṛtas tanvo yatas tvā'pi nayāmasi.

4. The swarthy, uniform-making one [is] brought up off the earth ; do thou accomplish this, we pray ; make the forms right again.

All our mss. have at the beginning çāmā, and also very nearly all SPP's ; but the latter very properly admits çyā- into his text, it being read by the comm. with a couple of mss. that follow him, and being found in Ppp. also. Ppp. once more has surūp- ; it corrupts b into prthiviyābhyarbhavam, and gives sādaya at end of c. The phrase iddam ū śū is quoted in Prāt. iii. 4 and iv. 98, which prescribe the protraction and lingualization, and words of the verse are repeatedly cited in the commentary to other rules.

25. Against fever (takmán).

[Bhṛgvaṅgīras. — yakṣmanāçanāgnidāvatam. trāiṣṭubham : 2, 3. virāḍgarbhā ;
4. puro 'nuṣṭubh.]

Found in Pāipp. i. Used by Kāuç. in a remedial rite (26. 25) against fever, in connection with heating an ax and dipping it in hot water to make a lotion ; and reckoned (26. 1, note) to the takmanāçana gāna.

Translated : Weber, iv. 419 ; Grohmann, Ind. Stud. ix. 384–6, 403, 406 ; Ludwig, p. 511 ; Zimmer, p. 384 and 381 ; Griffith, i. 29 ; Bloomfield, 3, 270 ; Henry, Journal Asiatique, 9. x. 512. — Cf. Bergaigne-Henry, Manuel, p. 136.

1. As Agni, entering, burned the waters, where the maintainers of duty (dharma-) paid acts of homage, there they declare to be thy highest birth-place ; then do thou, O fever (takmán), complaisant, avoid us.

The comm. explains pāda a in accordance with the ceremonial act founded on its mechanical interpretation ; c [cf. RV. i. 163. 4 d] shows that it is part of the heavenly waters that is intended. Samvidvān (occurring nowhere else) he renders "fully knowing thy cause, the fire (or Agni)" : the translation takes it as equivalent to the not uncommon samvidāna. Adahat he quietly turns into a future : "shall burn thee, O fever" ! Ppp. reads aduhat instead, and in c combines to tā "huh". [Cf. Grohmann's interpretation, l.c., 403, 404.]

2. If thou art flame (arçis) or if heat (çocis), or if thy birth-place seeks the shavings (?), hrūdu by name art thou, O god of the yellow one ; then do thou, O fever, complaisant, avoid us.

The pāda-reading çakalyaœst in b is assured by Prāt. iii. 52, but the meaning is extremely obscure. Ppp. has the better reading çākalyeṣu 'among the shavings' ; jantiram rather requires a locative. The comm. guesses it as loc. of çakalyeṣ, from çakalya explained as a "heap of shavings," and root iṣ 'seek,' and so an epithet of fire ;

BR. conjecture "following the shaving, i.e. glimmering." Ppp. reads in a dhūmas for çocís. The name at the beginning of c is of quite uncertain form; the ms. readings are hrūdu, hrūdrū, hrūdu, hūdu, rūdu, hrudbhu, hrūdu, rūdu [hrūdu]; SPP. adopts in his text the same form as we, and, it is to be hoped, on the authority of his oral reciters, which in such a case must be better than mss.; Ppp. has (in both verses) hūdu, which is a word occurring also elsewhere, and meaning "ram"; the comm. reads rūdu, explaining it as = rohaka or puruṣaçarīre utpādaka 'producing in the human body.'

[Henry, Journal Asiatique, 9. x. 513, suggests that the problematic word may be connected with the Assyrian huraçu and the Hebrew harūç, and so go back to a proto-Semitic harūdu*, 'gold.' J. Halévy, however, l.c., 9. xi. 320 ff., suggests that it may be rather a Sanskritization of χλωρός, 'greenish-yellow,' and compares the relations of vāidūrya, Prākṛit veḷurya (verulīya) βηρύλλιον. Cf. further, Barth, Revue de l'histoire des religions, xxxix. 26.]

3. If heating (çoká) or if scorching (abhiçoká), or if thou art son of king Varuṇa, hrūdu by name etc. etc.

Ppp. has for b the more sensible version rudrasya prāṇo yadi vāruṇo (vā 'ruṇo?) 'si.

4. Homage to the cold fever, homage I pay to the fierce (rūrā) heat (çocís); to the one that befalls on every other day, on both days, to the third-day fever be homage.

Ppp. reads in b durāya kṛmā vayan te, and in c ubhayebhyaç ca hatas. The compound ubhayadyus is noticed in Prāt. iv. 21. [As for rhythmical fevers — tertian, quartan, etc., see Grohmann, l.c., 387, 388.]

26. For protection from the wrath of the gods.

Found in Pāipp. xix., but vss. 3-4 elsewhere than 1-2. The hymn appears to be called (so schol. and the comm.) apanodanāni 'thrusters away' in Kāuṣ. (14. 14), and quoted and used as such in 25. 22 and (with iv. 33) in 42. 22; it is further applied (with 27 and vi. 3, 76) at the beginning of the svastyayana rites, on going to bed and getting up again (50. 4), and (with i. 13 and other hymns) in the rite of entrance on Vedic study (139. 8).

Translated: Weber, iv. 420; Griffith, i. 31.

1. Far be that from us — may [your] missile (hetī) be, O gods; far the bolt (açman) which ye hurl.

The last pāda is identical with RV. i. 172. 2 c; the other two pādas (for which Ppp. has no variants) sound in part like a misunderstood echo of the RV. text: āre sã vahi sudānavo māruta rñjatī çāruḥ. For c Ppp. has āre mantām (or martām; for marutām?) açastih. The comm. foolishly supplies an "O our enemies" in c; açmā he explains as yantrādivinirmuktaḥ pāṣānaḥ. The Anukr. ignores the defectiveness of b.

2. Be yon Rāti ('liberality') a companion (sákhi) for us; a companion [be] Indra, Bhaga, Savitar of wondrous favors.

Rātī seems to be made a personification here, as in iii. 8. 2 and vii. 17. 4 below; the comm. makes it equal to Mitra or Sūrya. Ppp. has a very different text: sakhe 'va no rātīr astu sakhe 'ndras sakhā savitā: sakhā bhagas satyadharmā no 'stu; which is better as regards both sense and meter. The tripadā of the Anukr. is probably a misreading for dvipadā; the mss. agree with it in using no avasāna-sign in the verse, and SPP. very properly follows them; the pada-mss. mark a cesura after rātīḥ. The comm. makes citrarādhās = bahuvīdhanī dhanam yasya.

3. May ye, issue (nāpāt) of the height, sun-skinned Maruts, yield us breadthful protection.

The mss. all read at the end sapráthās, and SPP. retains it in his text; the comm. has sapráthas, in accordance with our emendation. [Cf. Lanman, Noun-Inflection, p. 560.] The comm. further has yachhāta in c.

4. Do ye advance [us], be gracious; be thou gracious to our selves (tanū), show kindness (māyas) to our offspring (tokā).

Ppp. fills up the deficiency of a, reading su mṛdatā suśūdatā mṛdā no aghābhyaḥ stokāya tanve dā (perhaps defective at the end). The mss., supported by the Anukr., make no division of the verse before māyas, and SPP. follows them; the meter, however, is plainly gāyatrī. The name given by the Anukr. is not used by it elsewhere; it doubtless signifies, as in the VS. Anukr., 7 + 7 + 7 = 21 syllables, the resolution -bhi-as being refused in b and c.

27. Against various evils.

Found in Pāipp. xix. For the use of the hymn with its predecessor by Kāuṣ., see under 26; it is also reckoned to the svastyayana gaṇa (25. 36, note); and vs. 4 appears by itself near the beginning of the svastyayana ceremonies, in the same rite as hymns 26 and 27.

Translated: Weber, iv. 421; Ludwig, p. 517; Griffith, i. 32. — Griffith says the sloughs are to make the travellers invisible to highway robbers, and cites an old English analogue.

1. Yonder on the further shore are she-adders, thrice seven, out of their sloughs (jarāyu); with the sloughs of them do we wrap up (āpi vyā) the (two) eyes of the malignant waylayer.

Jarāyu in the sense 'cast-off skin of a snake' appears to be quotable only here; the comm. regards the word as so applied by a figure: jarāyuvat ṣarīrasya veṣṭakās tvacaḥ. Ppp. reads imāḥ pāre in a, and jarjarāyuvāḥ in b; the comm. has instead nirjarā iva, explaining as jarārahita devā iva.

2. Let the cutting one (krī) go asunder, she who bears as it were a club (ptnāka); asunder [go] the mind of her that returns to life (punarbhū); unsuccessful [are] the malignant ones.

Ppp. has no variants to cast light on this very obscure verse; it adds at the end ape 'tas paripanthino 'po 'ghāyur arṣatu. The comm. reads punarbhavā in c; he supplies "the army (senā) of our enemies" as the missing noun in the verse, and explains the epithet as "reassembling after dispersal." He paraphrases kṛntatī with chindatī. [SPP's pada-reading is punaḥobhūvāh, against Index Verborum, p. 184 (corrected p. 383), and against Skt. Gr. § 352 a, which should be corrected by p. 411 of Lanman's Noun-Inflection.]

3. The many have not been able together; the few have not ventured on [it]; like the sprouts (? ādga) of a bamboo (veṇū) round about, unsuccessful [are] the malignant ones.

The first half-verse in Ppp. is defaced, but apparently its text agreed with ours, except that at the end stands abhi dhṛṣṇvam. As the second half is wanting, these two pādas probably form one verse with the two reported above, under vs. 2. The comm. reads dādṛṣus at end of b, and has udgā iva paritas in c, explaining udga etymologically as = ṣākhā. The comment to Prāt. iii. 13 quotes dādṛṣus, and that to ii. 38 gives adgās among its examples; neither adga nor udga appears to be quotable from elsewhere.

4. Go forward, ye (two) feet; kick (sphur) forward; carry to the houses of the bestower (pr); let Indrāṇī go first, unscathed, unrobbed, in front.

Ppp. has grham and vahantu (yet pādāu) in b, and, for d, jihivā muktivā pathā. The comm. reads ajitā in d; he ingeniously quotes from TS. (ii. 2. 8^r) "Indrāṇī is deity of the army" in explanation of her introduction here. [Cf. Bergaigne, Religion Védique, iii. 155 n.]

28. Against sorcerers and witches.

[Cātana. — svastyayanam. amustubham: 3. virāpathyābrhatī; 4. pathyāpañkti.]

The hymn is not found in Pāipp. Though not mentioned as one of the cātanāni by the text of Kāuṣ., it is added to them by the schol. (8. 25, note). It is once used by itself in a witchcraft ceremony (ābhicārika) for the relief of one frightened, accompanying the tying on of an amulet (26. 26).

Translated: Weber, iv. 423; Griffith, i. 33.

1. Hither hath come forth god Agni, demon-slayer, disease-expeller, burning away deceivers, sorcerers, kimīdins.

In our text, upā is a misprint for ūpa (an accent-sign slipped out of place to the left). The comment on Prāt. iv. 3 quotes the first three words as exemplifying the disconnection of prefixes from a verb.

2. Burn against the sorcerers, against the kimīdins, O god; burn up the sorceresses that meet thee, O black-tracked one.

In c the comm., with two or three of SPP's authorities that follow him, reads kṛṣṇavartmane (treating it as a vocative).

3. She that hath cursed with cursing, that hath taken malignity as her root (? mūra), that hath seized on [our] young to take its sap—let her eat [her own] offspring.

The verse is repeated below as iv. 17. 3, and has there a parallel in Ppp. The comm. first takes mūram as for mūlam (as rendered above), but adds an alternative explanation as mūrchākaram, adjective to agham; he has ādade in place of -dhe. Jātām is metrically an intrusion, but completes the sense.

4. Let the sorceress eat [her own] son, sister, and daughter (? napṭī); then let the horrid-haired sorceresses mutually destroy (vi-han) one another; let the hags (arāyī) be shattered asunder.

The comm. explains napṭī as napṭrī or pāutrasya (putrasya?) apatyarūpā sanī-tati. He reads yātudhānī (for -nīs) in a, and atha in c.

The 7 hymns of this anuvāka [5.] have 28 verses, as determined by the quoted Anukr.: pañcame 'śāu.

29. For a chief's success: with an amulet.

Found (except vs. 4) in Pāipp. i., and (with the same exception, in RV., chiefly x. 174 [; namely, AV. verses 1, 2, 3, 6 correspond respectively with RV. verses 1, 2, 3, 5. See Oldenberg, Die Hymnen des RV., i. 243]. Kāuṣ. uses the hymn in the ceremony of restoration of a king, with preparing and binding on an amulet made of the rim of a chariot-wheel (16. 29: the comm. says, vss. 1-4); the last two verses are specifically prescribed for the binding on. The comm. quotes the hymn as employed by the Nakṣatra Kalpa (19) in a mahāçānti called māhendrī.

Translated: Weber, iv. 423; Griffith, i. 33.

1. With an over-rolling amulet (maṇī), wherewith Indra increased — therewith, O Brahmaṇaspati, make us increase unto royalty (vāṣṭrā).

Abhi, literally 'on to,' so as to overwhelm. Our version spoils the consistency of the verse by reading -vāvṛdhé and vardhaya in b and d for RV. (x. 174. 1) -vāvṛte and varṭaya, which Ppp. also gives (Ppp. varṭayaḥ). Ppp. further has imam for asmān in c. RV. reads havīṣā for maṇinā in a. The long ī of abhīvarta (p. abhīov-) is noted by Prāt. iii. 12.

2. Rolling over our rivals, over them that are niggards to us, do thou trample on him who fights — on whoever abuses (durasya-) us.

RV. (x. 174. 2) has in d irasyāti; Ppp., by a not infrequent blunder, reads duras-yatu. Pāda a lacks a syllable, unless we resolve -patnān into three syllables.

3. Thee hath god Savitar, hath Soma made to increase, thee have all existences (bhūtā) [made to increase], that thou mayest be over-rolling.

The connection is again spoiled in our text by the substitution of avīvṛdhat in b for avīvṛtat (which is read by RV. x. 174. 3); with the former it is impossible to render the prefix abhi. This time Ppp. gives abhībhṛcat instead, doubtless a mere corruption.

4. The over-rolling, overcoming, rival-destroying amulet be bound upon me unto royalty, unto the perishing (parābhū) of rivals.

The verse is wanting in both RV. and Ppp. Its excision, with the following verse

(which, however, Ppp. has), would leave the hymn of normal length, and composed of four out of the five verses of RV. x. 174 [, of the fourth of which the excision is called for] .

5. Up hath gone yon sun, up this spell (vācas) of mine, that I may be slayer of foes, without rivals, rival-slayer.

RV. x. 159. 1 a, b is to be compared (b reading ūd ayam māmako bhāgah) ; Ppp. appears to mix the versions of b, giving, ungrammatically, ayam with vacas. [Cf. also MP. i. 16. 1.]

6. A rival-destroying bull, conquering royalty, overpowering — that I may bear rule over these heroes and the people (jāna).

RV. (i. 174. 5) has instead of a our 5 d (found also as x. 6. 30 c, and xix. 46. 7 b) ; in c it reads bhūtānām. [Cf. MP. i. 16. 5.]

30. For protection: to all the gods.

[Atharvan (āyushkāmah). — vāiṣvadevam. trāiṣṭubham: 3. śākvaragarbhā virādḥjagati.]

Found in Pāipp. i., but damaged and only in part legible. The hymn belongs, according to the comm., to the āyusya ('for length of life') gāna, although not found among those mentioned (Kāuṣ. 54. 11, note) as composing that gāna; it is used in ceremonies for long life by 52. 18 and 59. 1; also, with i. 9 and other hymns, in the reception of a Vedic student (55. 17), and in dismissal from Vedic study (139. 15). And vss. 3, 4 appear in Vāit. (4. 4, 15) in connection with different parts of the parvan-sacrifices. The comm. further quotes it from Nakṣ. Kalpa 17 and 18 in two mahācānti rites, styled āirāvati and vāiṣvadevī, and from Pariṣiṣṭa 5. 4, in the puṣpābhīṣeka ceremony.

Translated: Weber, iv. 424; Ludwig, p. 430; Griffith, i. 34.

1. O all ye gods, ye Vasus, protect this man; likewise ye Ādityas, watch ye over him; him let not one related (sānābhi) nor one unrelated — him let not any deadly weapon of men (pāūruṣya) reach.

Ppp. has in b the false form jāgrata. The comm. paraphrases -nābhi in c by garbhāçaya. [For the syntax, cf. Caland, KZ. xxxiv. 456.]

2. Whoso of you, O gods, are fathers and who sons, do ye, accordant (sācetas), hear this utterance of mine; to you all I commit this man; happily unto old age shall ye carry him.

Ppp. has at the end nayātha. The comm. reads in b ultham.

3. Ye, O gods, that are in the heaven, that are on earth, that are in the atmosphere, in the herbs, in the cattle, within the waters — do ye make old age the length of life for this man; let him avoid the hundred other deaths.

The intrusion of paçūsu and apsū in b spoils the meter [or we may read *ye*ntārikṣa ḍṣadhīsv apsū antāh*]; Ppp., omitting paçūsu and antār, makes it good. The Anukṛ. requires us to scan the pāda as of 14 syllables. Prāt. ii. 101 notes the lingualization in forms of as after divi, and the comment cites this passage (a) as example. The comm. has in d vṛṇakta, and renders it as causative. [As to 101 deaths, see Zimmer, p. 400.]

4. Whose are the fore-offerings and whose the after-offerings ; the gods that share the oblation and that eat what is not made oblation of ; you among whom the five directions are shared out — you do I make sitters at the session (sattra-) of this man.

Ppp. reads in ḍ tān no 'smāi satrasadhaḥ k-. The comm. explains ahutādas as baliharaṇādīdevās ; in sattra he sees nothing more than simple sadana. Both editions read satra, in accordance with universal manuscript usage.

31. To the divine guardians of the quarters.

[Brahman. — ācāpāliyam, vāstospatyam. ānuṣṭubham : 3. virāṭtriṣṭubh ;
4. parānuṣṭubh.]

Found in Pāipp. i. The hymn is called in Kāuṣ. (38. 11) ācāpāliyam, and is also reckoned by the schol. (8. 23, note) to the vāstospatyāni or vāstu gaṇa. It is used with xii. 1 in the ceremony (38. 16) for establishing a house, and again, except vs. 3, as dr̥ṇhaṇāni 'establishers' in a like rite (38. 11) ; it appears in one of the sava-sacrifices (64. 1) with an offering of four dishes (caṭuḥṣarāvā), and in the portent ceremony (127. 6) against obscuration of the "Seven Sages" (the Dipper, or Charles's Wain) by a comet. Verse 2 (32. 27, note ; but the comm. says instead vs. 1, quoting its pratīka) is reckoned among the anholiṅgās, and applied in rites for healing, security, long life, etc. ; and vs. 4 (50. 11) in one for good fortune in the night. In Vāit. (36. 20) the hymn (as ācāpāliya) accompanies in the aṣvamedha the turning loose of the sacrificial horse. And the comm. quotes it as used in Nakṣ. Kalpa 14 in the adbhūta mahācānti.

Translated : Weber, iv. 425 ; Ludwig, p. 372 ; Griffith, i. 35.

1. To the four immortal region-guardians of the regions (ācā), to the overseers of existence (bhūtā), would we now pay worship (vidh) with oblation.

The verse occurs also in TB. (ii. 5. 33) and AṢ. (ii. 10. 18) : in the latter, without variants ; TB. inserts rvā after ācānām in a. The comm. paraphrases ācās by prācy-ādidīças, which is plainly its meaning here.

2. Ye, O gods, who are the four region-guardians of the regions — do ye release us from the fetters (pāṣa) of perdition (nirṛti), from every distress (ānhas).

The comm. reads stana for sthana in b. The Anukr. does not note b as metrically deficient, doubtless making the harsh resolution ca-tu-ā-ro.

3. Unlamed I sacrifice to thee with oblation ; unmaimed I make oblation to thee with ghee ; the god that is fourth region-guardian of the regions, he shall bring hither to us welfare (subhūtā).

At the beginning, ācāpāliyam is read by half the mss. (including our E. I. O. Op. K. Kp.) and by the comm. ; SPP. gives dsr- in his text, as we in ours. ācāpāliyam in b in our edition is an erratum for ācāpāliyam. Ppp. has for a, b aṣṇas te haviṣā vidhema maṣṇas te ghṛt- ; the comm. also reads aṣṇas. Ppp. gives turyas in c : the word perhaps means simply '[any] one of the four.' The Anukr. appears not to sanction the resolutions to tu-ā which would fill out a and b. The pada-mss. mark the division between c and d after devas, as the sense, but not the meter, demands.

4. Well-being (svastī) be to our mother and father, well-being to kine, to creatures (jāgat), to men (pūruṣa); all welfare [and] beneficence (? suvīdātra) be ours; long may we see the sun.

For jagate in b Ppp. has uta, with manifest advantage to both meter and sense; and it reads pūruṣebhyas (with our H.s.m.), and in d dṛṣeva. Many of the samhitā-mss. (including our H.K.) give no after pitṛé in a. The comm. gives three different interpretations (taking it always, however, from vid and not from dā) for the ambiguous suvīdātra. The Anukr. appears to read no 'stu in c, and ji-óg and sū-ri-am in d [rather, ji-óg and sūryam, so as to make 11 + 11 : 11 + 8?]. [As to jagat, see Zimmer, p. 150.]

32. Cosmogonic.

Found in Pāipp. i., next after our hymn 31. Used by Kāuṣ. in a women's rite (34. 1), against barrenness, and again (59. 3) in a ceremony for prosperity, to heaven and earth; and the first verse (so the comm.) further (6. 17), as alternate to x. 5. 23, with conducting water into the joined hands of the sacrificer's wife, in the parvan-sacrifices.

Translated : Weber, iv. 426 ; Ludwig, p. 533 ; Griffith, i. 36.

1. Now, ye people, take knowledge; he will speak a great mystery (? brāhman); that is not on earth nor in the sky whereby the plants breathe.

With a, b is to be compared the very similar line xx. 127. 1 a, b : idān janā ūpa ṅṛta nārāṅsā stavīsyate; which makes it probable that the ungrammatical vidātha means vidata or vedatha (accent is unmotived), and suggests also vadiṣyate, passive; the former seems confounded with the noun vidātha, of which vidāthe, or, as Ppp. reads, vidātham, would make fairly good sense : 'will now be spoken at (or to) the council.' Ppp. reads yatas for yena in d. [For prāṇānti, see Prāt. iv. 57.]

2. In the atmosphere is the station of them, as of those sitting wearied; the station of this that exists (bhūtā) : that the pious know — or they do not.

'Of them' (āsām, fem.) in a the comm. explains to mean "of the plants," and then, alternatively, "of the waters"; doubtless the latter is correct, the waters being that "whereby the plants live" (1 d). Ppp. reads in a antarikṣam, which means virtually the same as our text : the reservoir of the waters is the atmosphere or is in it (not in heaven nor earth, 1 c). The analogy of vii. 95. 2 suggests gāvām as wanting at the beginning of b : the waters are ordinarily as quiet as cows that lie resting : a comparison from the usual Vedic source. Weber suggested that sthāma be read twice; and this R. favors. The Anukr. ignores the deficiency in the pāda. For d, Ppp. has viduṣ ḥṛd bheṣatodanaḥ.

3. What the (two) quaking firmaments (ródasī) — and the earth — fashioned out, that at present is always wet, like the streams of the ocean.

In b the translation implies emendation to ātakṣatām, as favored by the Ppp. reading nara-akṣatām; there remains the anomaly of letting the verb agree with ródasī

(Ppp. has rodhasī); perhaps we ought to read bhūmes 'out of the earth.' The comm., with a disregard of the accent which is habitual with him, takes rodasī and its epithet as vocatives, and then supplies dyāus, vocative [JAOS. xi. 66], in b to help make a dual subject for the verb! For d Ppp. has vidūrassevavartasī. [For c, cf. ÇB. vi. 6. 33.]

4. The one hath covered all; this rests upon the other; both to the heaven and to the all-possessing earth have I paid homage.

The first pāda is translated according to the Ppp. version: viçvam anyā 'bhi vavāra; which is quite satisfactory; Weber had suggested abhī 'vā 'ra. The pada-reading is abhīvāra, and the word is quoted under Prāt. iii. 12 as an example of a compound showing protraction of the final vowel of the first member. TB. (iii. 7. 103) and Āp. (ix. 14. 2) have the verse, and both have anyā 'bhivāvrdhē. The comm. gives abhīvāras, and explains it in three ways, as abhito varaṇaṁ chādanam, as abhivrtam, and as abhītaḥ sambhajanayuktam. For b, Ppp. has viçvam anyasyām adhi çratam. For viçvavedase in c (Ppp. viçvavedhase; TB. Āp. viçvākarmāṇe) the comm. also gives two interpretations, from vid 'acquire' and from vid 'know.'

33. To the waters: for blessings.

[Çāntāti. — cāndramasam āpyam uta. trāiṣṭubham.]

Found in Pāipp. i., and also in TS. (v. 6. 1), MS. (ii. 13. 1), and the Mantrapāṭha [i. 2. 2-5] (Winternitz in Denksch. d. Wiener Akad. xl. 44). [See also MGS. i. 2. 11 and p. 158.] Reckoned by Kāuç. to the apāni sūktāni 'hymns of the waters' (121. 1, and 7. 14, note), also to both the çānti gaṇas (9. 1, 4); appears further, with several other hymns, in a rite for good-fortune (41. 14); and in the godāna ceremony to accompany bathing after the shaving (54. 5), also in the feet-washing of a guest (90. 9), against the portent of the appearance of water in a waterless place (121. 1), and against that of the causeless breaking of water-jars etc. (136. 8). And the comm. quotes it as employed by Pariçiṣṭa v. 2 in the puṣpābhīṣeka rite.

Translated: Weber, iv. 428; Winternitz, Hochzeitsrituell, Wiener Denkschr. xl. 44; Griffith, i. 37.

1. Of golden color, clean (çūci), purifying, in whom [was] born Savitar, in whom Agni; who, of beauteous color, assumed Agni as embryo — let those waters be weal, pleasant to us.

[In c, for dadhīré, better, 'conceived'?] TS. and MS. read in b jātāḥ kaçyāpo yāsv indrah; and Ppp. agrees with them; MP. has agnih instead of indrah. In c TS. MS. give utrūpās for suvarṇās; and TS. omits yās, and hence has dadhīre (unaccented); MS. puts yās after agnim. MP. offers te for nas in d. [As to savitṛ = kaçyapa, cf. Bloomfield, AJP. xvii. 403.]

2. In the midst of whom goes king Varuṇa, looking down at the truth-and-falsehood of men; who, of beauteous color, etc. etc.

The first half-verse is found also in RV. (vii. 49. 3 a, b), without difference of reading; MP. agrees through the whole verse [except in d, te for nas]; TS. MS. have a wholly different c. The comment to Prāt. ii. 11 gives avaḥaçyaṁ janānām as example of the general requirement that final n be assimilated to a following initial palatal, and half or more of our mss. so read; but SPP., as elsewhere, gives -an j- [cf. note to i. 19. 4].

3. They of whom the gods in heaven make [their] draught (bhakṣā); they that come to be abundantly in the atmosphere; who, of beauteous color, etc. etc.

Again TS. MS. have a different c (yāḥ pṛthivīm pāyaso 'ndānti cakraḥ). Our O. has at end of c vīrūpāḥ (as TS. MS. in 1 c). MP. substitutes ntviṣṭās for bhavanti in b. The comm. renders bhaksām by upabhogyam.

4. With propitious eye behold me, O waters; with propitious body touch my skin; they that are ghee-dripping, clean, purifying — let those waters be weal, pleasant to us.

The first half-verse appears again below as xvi. 1. 12. It alone is found in TS. and MS.; but our c is RV. vii. 49. 3 c, and the two other texts have it after our 2 a, b [all reading madhu- for ghṛta-]. MP. reads çivēna tvā cākṣuṣā paçyantv āpaḥ, and in b sprçantu and te. AB. (viii. 6. 10) quotes the whole verse in its TS. and MS. version. Our Bp. K. read -çcyutas in c; Ppp. has -çcatas. The Anukr. ignores the redundancy of one syllable (or more) in b.

34. A love-spell: with a sweet herb.

Verses 1, 2, 5 are found in Pāipp. ii., vs. 3 in vi., and vs. 4 in part in viii. It is used by Kāuç. in a ceremony for superiority in disputation (38. 17): the ambitious disputant is to come into the assembly from the north-east, chewing the sweet plant; again, twice in the nuptial ceremonies, once with tying a madugha amulet on the finger (76. 8), and once (79. 10) on crushing the amulet at the consummation of the marriage. The comm. further declares it used at the disputation in the açvamedha sacrifice; but he quotes no authority for it. All these applications are evidently imposed upon the hymn, not contained in it.

Translated: Weber, iv. 429; Grill, 52, 78; Griffith, i. 38; Bloomfield, 99, 274. — Cf. Hillebrandt, Veda-chrestomathie, p. 46.

1. This plant is honey-(mādhu-)born; with honey we dig thee; forth from honey art thou engendered; [so] do thou make us possessed of honey.

The comm. calls the plant madhuka, and uses that form of the name also in the quotations from Kāuç. (instead of madugha, madhugha, etc.; the mss. vary greatly in their readings).

2. At the tip of my tongue honey, at the root of my tongue honeyedness; mayest thou be altogether in my power (krātu), mayest thou come unto my intent (cittā).

The second half-verse agrees nearly with that of iii. 25. 5 and vi. 9. 2, in both of which the yāthā, here unexpressed, helps the construction (though the accent of āsas does not absolutely need it, being capable of being viewed as antithetical). Ppp. has for a jihvāyā 'gre me madhu, and for c, ḍ yathā mām kāmīny aso (our 5 c) yam vācā mām anvāyasi. The comm. explains madhūlakam by madhurarasabakulam jalama-dhūlakavṛkṣapuspam yathā; he understands the plant to be addressed in c, ḍ — which is plainly wrong.

3. Honeyed (mādhumant) [is] my in-stepping, honeyed my forth-going ; with my voice I speak what is honeyed ; may I be of honey-aspect.

Vadāni might be a better reading in c. The first half-verse resembles RV. x. 24. 6 a, b (m. m. parāyaṇam mādhumat pūnar āyanam). Ppp. has for second half-verse vācā madhumad ubhyāma akṣo me madhusandṛçī. The comm. takes madhu and sandṛças in d as two independent words.

4. Than honey am I sweeter (mādhu), than the honey-plant more honeyed ; of me verily shalt thou be fond (? van), as of a honeyed branch.

The majority of our mss. (not Bp. I. E. D.) read here madhūghāt in b, as do also the Prāt. mss. in both places (ii. 5 c ; iv. 16 c) where the verse is quoted ; but at vi. 102. 3 all read -du- ; SPP. reads -du- (as does our text), and makes no report of discordance among his authorities ; the comm. has -du-, and derives the word from madhudugha. All the mss., and both texts, give the unmotivated accent vānās in c ; the comm. explains the word by sambhajes. He again regards the plant as addressed in the second half-verse. Ppp. (in viii.) has a and b, with [aham for asmi and] madhumān for madughāt.

5. About thee with an encompassing (paritatnū) sugar-cane have I gone, in order to absence of mutual hatred ; that thou mayest be one loving me, that thou mayest be one not going away from me.

The second half-verse is found repeatedly later, as ii. 30. i ḍ, e and vi. 8. 1-3 ḍ, e. The pada-reading in ḍ is āpaḡā, and the word is quoted under Prāt. iii. 34 as one of the cases of irregular hiatus to which the rule refers. Disregarding this, SPP. alters the pada-text to āpaḡāh, against all our pada-mss. and most of his, for no better reason than that the comm. seems to read so. Our Bp. (both copies) accents here āpaḡā, as also at vi. 8. 1, 3, but not at ii. 30. 1. The comm. allows this time that the address is to a woman. [Ppp. has for b-ḍ yakṣanākām avidviṣe yathā na vidvāvadvi na vibhāva kadā cana. As for the rite, cf. Pāraskara's Gṛhya-sūtra, iii. 7¹, and Stenzler's note.]

35. For long life etc. : with a gold amulet.

[Atharvan.— hāiranyam ; āindrāḡnam uta vāiçvadevam. jāgatam : 4. anuṣṭubgarbhā 4-p. triṣṭubh.]

Not found in Pāipp. [Of vss. 1 and 2, Schroeder gives the Kaṭha version, with variants, Tübingen Kaṭha-hss., p. 36.] Used by Kāuç., with i. 9 and v. 28, in two ceremonies for fortune and for power (11. 19 ; 52. 20) ; and the comm. considers it involved also at 57. 31, in the uṇanayana. The comm. further quotes it from the ādityā mahā-çānti in Nakṣ. Kalpa 19 ; also from Parīçīṣṭa 4. 1 and 13. 1.

Translated : Weber, iv. 430 ; Ludwig, p. 457 ; Griffith, i. 39.

1. What gold the descendants of Dakṣa, well-willing, bound on for Çatānika, that I bind for thee, in order to life (āyus), splendor, strength, to length of life for a hundred autumns.

It would rectify the meter and improve the sense (considering that dirghāyutvā follows) to omit āyuse in c ; the Anukr. notes the redundancy of the pāda (14 syllables). VS. (xxxiv. 52) has the first half-verse, with a different second half ; and so has a RV.

khila to RV. x. 128 (9, Aufrecht, p. 685). The Kāuṣ. speaks of yugmakṛṣṇala as the amulet: probably a pair of beads of gold like kṛṣṇala berries. The comm. quotes AB. viii. 21. 5 for Çatānika.

2. Not demons, not piçācds overcome him, for this is the first-born force of the gods; whoso bears the gold of the descendants of Dakṣa, he makes for himself long life among the living.

VS. (xxxiv. 51) has the verse, reading tād for enam and taranti for sahante in a, accenting bibhārti in c, and giving devēṣu for jīvēṣu in d; and it repeats d with manuṣ-yēṣu instead; and the RV. khila (8, as above) follows it very nearly (but caranti in a, and dākṣāyaṇū hir- in c). The Anukr. ignores the metrical irregularities of a and b.

3. The waters' brilliancy, light, force, and strength, also the heroic powers (vīryā) of the forest trees, do we maintain in him, as in Indra Indra's powers (indriyā); this gold shall he, being capable, bear.

The comm. explains dākṣamāṇa in d by vardhamāna. Omission of the superfluous indriyāṇi in c would rectify the meter; the pada-text marks the division wrongly before asmīn instead of after it; [the Anukr. likewise reckons asmīn to d and describes the pāda as one of 14 syllables!].

4. With seasons of summers (? sāmā), of months, we [fill] thee, with the milk of the year I fill [thee]; let Indra-and-Agni, let all the gods, approve thee, not bearing enmity.

Emendation to tvā 'ham at the end of a would rectify both meter and construction. Between c and d the pada-text wrongly resolves tē 'nu into tē: ānu (as again at viii. 2. 21), and the pada-mss. put the sign of pāda division before instead of after te; apparently the Anukr. makes the true division [after te, accentless]. The comm., too, understands tē. The combination -bhiṣ tvā is quoted as an example under Prāt. ii. 84.

The concluding anuvāka [6.] has again 7 hymns, with 31 verses; and the quoted Anukr. of the mss. says ekādaça co 'ttare parā syuḥ.

Some of the mss. sum the whole book up correctly as 35 hymns, 153 verses.

Here ends also the second prapūṭhaka.

Book II.

[THE second book is made up mostly of hymns of 5 verses each. It contains 22 such hymns, but also five hymns (namely, 3, 4, 14, 15, and 32) of 6 verses each, five hymns (namely, 5, 17, 27, 29, and 33) of 7 verses each, and four hymns (namely, 10, 12, 24, and 36) of 8 verses each. Compare page 1. The possibilities of critical reduction to the norm are well illustrated by hymns 10, 12, 14, 27; see, for example, the critical notes to ii. 10. 2.

The whole book has been translated by Weber in the Monatsberichte der Kön. Akad. der Wiss. zu Berlin, June, 1870, pages 462-524. This translation was reprinted, with only slight changes, in Indische Studien, vol. xiii. (1873), pages 129-216. The following references to Weber have to do with the reprint.]

1. Mystic.

[Vena.—brahmātmadāivatam. trāṣṭubham : 3. jagatī.]

Found in Pāipp. ii., and parts of it in other texts, as pointed out under the several verses. [Von Schroeder gives what may be called a Kātha-recension of nearly all of it in his Tübinger Kātha-hss., pp. 88, 89.] Used by Kāuṣ. (37. 3) in addressing various articles out of whose behavior afterward signs of success or the contrary, and the like oracular responses, are to be drawn (the comm. gives them in a more expanded detail). And Vāit. (29. 14) applies vs. 3 in the upavasatha rite of the agnicayana.

Translated: Weber, xiii. 129; Ludwig, p. 393; Scherman, Philosophische Hymnen, p. 82; Deussen, Geschichte, i. 253; Griffith, i. 41.

1. Vena (the longing one?) saw that which is highest in secret, where everything becomes of one form; this the spotted one (pr̥ṣṇī) milked [when] born; the heaven-(svār-)knowing troops (vṛā) have shouted at it.

A bit of labored obscurity, like the verses that follow; books iv. and v. begin similarly; no attempt will be made here to solve the riddles. The comm. explains at great length (nine 4to pages), but evidently without any traditional or other* understanding; he guesses and etymologizes this way and that, giving in part wholly discordant alternative interpretations. In this verse he first takes vena as = Āditya; and then, after a complete exposition on this basis, he says: yadvā : venah̄ parjanyaṭmā madhyama-sihāno devah̄, and gives another; pr̥ṣṇī to him is "the common name of sky and sun."

The translation given implies emendation in c of jāyamānās to -nā; but the epithet might belong to vṛās (so Ludwig and the comm.), or be the second object of aduhat (so Weber). The variants of the parallel versions of other texts make the impression (as often in other cases) of rather aimless stumbling over matters not understood.

VS. (xxxii. 8) and TA. (x. 1. 3) have the first half-verse: VS. reads in a paçyan nñhitam gñhā sād, and TA. paçyan viçvā bhuvanāni vidvān; both have ekanādam at end of b. The pratika is quoted in ÇÇS. xv. 3. 8, with the addition iti pañca, apparently referring to this hymn. Ppp. has padam for guhā in a, ekanadam in b, dhenur for prçnis in c (with -nās at the end), and, for d, svarvidō bhyanuktir virāt. The phrase abhy ānñ-çata vrāñ occurs also in RV. iv. 1. 16 d; Pischel (Ved. Stud. ii. 121 [and 321]) takes vrās to mean "women"; the comm. etymologizes it as āvriātmanah prajāñ. [Cf. RV: x. 123. 2.]

2. May the Gandharva, knowing of the immortal, proclaim that highest abode that is in secret; three quarters (padā) of it [are] deposited in secret; whoso knoweth them, he shall be the father's father.

Ppp. begins with prthag (for pra tad), and for amñtasya has -tam na, probably intending the amñtam nñ of VS. (xxxii. 9) and TA. (x. 1. 3-4: TA. reads also voce). In b, TA. gives nāma (for dhāma); and for paramām TA. has nñhitam, and VS. vñbhrtam, while VS. ends with gñhā sāt and TA. with gñhāsu. In c, Ppp. and TA. give padā, and Ppp. nñhatā; and TA., this time with the concurrence of Ppp., ends the pāda again with gñhāsu. In d, TA. has tād for tāni, and savitūs for sā pitūs, while Ppp. gives vas for yas at the beginning. Prāt. ii. 73 prescribes the combination pitūs p- (in d), and both editions read it, though nearly all our samhitā-mss., and part of SPP's, read -tūñ p- instead. To make a good triçtubñ pāda, we must resolve pr-ā at the beginning. [Hillebrandt, Ved. Mythol. i. 433, discusses the verse.]

3. He, of us the father, the generator, and he the connection (bāndhu), knoweth the abodes, the beings all; who of the gods is the sole nomenclator, of him all beings come to inquire.

Here, as usual elsewhere [cf. BR. iv. 1088, citations from TB., TS., AB.], praçnam is of infinitival value. Ppp. begins quite differently: sa no bandhur janitā sa vidhartā dhārmani veda etc.; its c, d are our 5 c, d, with variants for which see under vs. 5. VS. (xxxii. 10) and TA. (x. 1. 4) have a verse made up like that of Ppp., differing from the latter in the first half only by having vidhartā and dhāmāni. A corresponding verse in RV. (x. 82. 3) reads in a yās for sā and again for sā utā, accents of course vēda in b, and has nāmadhās in c and anyā for sārvā in d; and with it agrees in all points VS. xvii. 27; while TS. (iv. 6. 2) and MS. (ii. 10. 3) also follow it closely in a, c, d (MS. vidhartā in a) but have a different b: yō nañ satō abhy ā sāñ jajāna. Our O. has the RV. readings, vēda in b and nāmadhās in c; and the latter is given by the comm. and by nearly half of SPP's authorities; the latter's text, however, agrees with ours. The verse is no jagatī at all, but, if we make the frequent (RV.) combination sō 'itā in c, a perfectly regular triçtubñ.

4. About heaven-and-earth at once I went; I approached (upa-sthā) the first-born of righteousness (ṛtā), abiding in beings as speech in the speaker; eager (?) is he; is he not Agni (fire)?

Of this verse, only the first pāda is found in VS. (xxxii. 12 a) and TA. (x. 1. 4), VS. reading itvā for āyam, and TA. having at the end yanti sadyāñ. Ppp. has for first half pari viçvā bhuvanāny āyam upāçaste prathamajā ṛtasya, and for d dhāsrañ neçana tveço agniñ. The accus. vācam in c suggests emendation to -sthām, in apposition with prathamajāñ; but then the comm. agrees with Ppp. in reading instead -jās.

and emendation without any traceable sense to guide us is of no avail. The combination bhuvaneṣṭhā (p. -neṣṭhā) is noted under Prāt. ii. 94. In the pada-text of b is noted from our mss. no other reading than ūpa: atīṣṭhe; but SPP. gives ūpa: āotiṣṭhe, and reports no various readings; as āotiṣṭhe (without any accent) is an impossible form [Skt. Gr. § 1083 a] this is perhaps simply a blunder in his text; the comm., with a minority of SPP's mss., has -tiṣṭhet.

5. Around all beings I went, the web (tāntu) of righteousness stretched out for beholding, where the gods, having attained immortality (amṛta) bestirred themselves (? īraya-) upon the same place of union (yóni).

The proper rendering of ḍ is especially doubtful, but ādhi, by its independent accent (which is established by Prāt. iv. 5), is clearly only a strengthener of the locative sense of yónāu. In b, perhaps better 'to behold the web' etc. (the comm. absurdly explains the particle kām as sukhātmaḥ brahma). The second half-verse is, as noted above, found in VS., TA., and Ppp., combined into one verse with our 3 a, b; Ppp. has in it ānaçānā samāne dhāmann addhī rayanta; VS. reads ṭṛṭṭye dhāman for our samāne yónāu; TA., ṭṛṭṭye dhāmāny abhy ātrayanta. Ppp. has as vs. 5 something quite different: for a, pari dyāvāpṛthivī sadyā yam (exchanging 4 a and 5 a: see under 4); for b, our own b; for c, ḍ devo devatvam abhirakṣamāṇas samānanī bandhūm viparicchad ekaḥ. The first pāda requires the harsh resolution vi-çu-ā to make it full [viçvānī would be easier].

2. To Gandharvas and Apsarases.

Found in Pāipp. i. (only in the nāgarī copy). Called by Kāuç. (8. 24), with vi. 111 and viii. 6 (and the schol. add iv. 20: see ib., note), mātṛnāmānī 'mother-names' (perhaps from the alleged author); they are employed in a remedial rite (26. 29: "against seizure by Gandharvas, Apsarases, demons etc." comm.), and several times (94. 15; 95. 4; 96. 4; 101. 3; 114. 3; 136. 9) in charms against various portents (adbhūtānī). And verse 1 is allowed by Vāit. (36. 28) to be used in the açvamedha sacrifice as alternative for one given in its text (27). Further, the comm. quotes the mātṛnāman hymns from the Çānti Kalpa (16) as accompanying an offering in the sacrifice to the planets (grahayajña); and from the Nakṣ. Kalpa (23) in the tantrabhūtā mahāçānti.

Translated: Weber, xiii. 133; Griffith, i. 42; verses 3-5 also by Weber, Abh. Berliner Akad. 1858, p. 350 (= Omina und Portenta). — Cf. Hillebrandt, Ved. Mythol. i. 433.

1. The heavenly Gandharva, who is lord of being (bhūvana), the only one to receive homage, to be praised (īḍ) among the clans (viç) — thee being such I ban (yu) with incantation, O heavenly god; homage be to thee; in the heaven is thy station.

Ppp. reads in c deva divya. The comm. understands yāumi in c as "join" (sam-yojayāmi) [BR. vi. 138, 'festhalten']: RV. i. 24. 11 a, tāt tvā yāmi brāhmaṇā, suggests emendation. The combination yās p- in a is by Prāt. ii. 70.

2. Touching the sky, worshipful, sun-skinned, deprecator of the seizure (hāras) of the gods — gracious shall be the Gandharva, who is lord of being, the only one to receive homage, very propitious.

Ppp. begins with diva spr̥ṣṭo, and inverts the order of c and d. The comm. explains sūryatvac by sūryasamānavarṇa, and haras by krodha. The Anukr. does not heed that c is a jaḡatī pāda.

3. He hath united himself (sam-gam) with those irreproachable ones (f.); in (āpi) among the Apsarases was the Gandharva; in the ocean is, they tell me, their seat, whence at once they both come and go.

Ppp. combines jaḡmā "bhiḥ in a, and has in b apsarābhis for -rāsu; its second half-verse reads thus: samudrā sam sadanam āhus tatas sadyā upācaryanti. Weber takes sam jaḡme in a as 1st sing. The comm. gives two diverse explanations of the verse, the first taking the Gandharva as the sun and the Apsarases as his rays.

4. O cloudy one, gleamer (dīdyūt), starry one—ye that accompany (sac) the Gandharva Viḡvāvasu, to you there, O divine ones, homage do I pay.

All those addressed are in the feminine gender, i.e. Apsarases. Ppp. has namāitu for nama it in c. The Anukr. [if we assume that its name for the meter (as at i. 2. 3; iv. 16. 9) means 11 + 11 + 11] passes without notice the deficiency of two syllables in a.

5. They that are noisy, dusky, dice-loving, mind-confusing—to those Apsarases, that have the Gandharvas for spouses, have I paid homage.

Ppp. reads in a tāmiṣ-, and two of our mss. (P.M.) give the same. Ppp. has also akṣikāmās in b. Our W.I. combine -bhyo akaram in d. The verse is not bhurij (as the Anukr. calls it), but a regular anuṣṭubh. On account of the epithet "dice-loving" in b, Weber calls the whole hymn "Würfelsegen" ('a blessing for dice').

3. For relief from flux: with a certain remedy.

[*Aṅgiras. — sadṛcam. bhāṣajyāyurdhanvantaridāvatam. ānuṣṭubham: 6. 3-p. svarāḍupariṣ-
tāmahābrhatī.*]

This hymn in Pāipp. also follows the one that precedes it here; but in Pāipp. vss. 3 and 6 are wanting, and 4 and 5 are made to change places; and vs. 1 is defaced. Kāuḡ. employs it only once (25. 6), in a healing rite for various disorders and wounds (jva-rātisārātīmūtranāḍṅvoraṇṣu, comm.), with i. 2.

Translated: Weber, xiii. 138; Ludwig, p. 507; Grill, 17, 79; Griffith, i. 43; Bloomfield, 9, 277.

1. What runs down yonder, aiding (?), off the mountain, that do I make for thee a remedy, that thou mayest be a good remedy.

At the end, āsati would be a very acceptable emendation: 'that there may be.' Avatkā (p. avataḡkām: quoted in the comment to Prāt. i. 103; ii. 38; iv. 25) is obscure, but is here translated as from the present participle of root av (like ejatkā, v. 23. 7 [cf. abhimādyatkā, ÇB., vikṣinatkā, VS.]); this the comm. favors (vyādhiparihāreṇa rakṣakam); Ppp. has in another passage twice avataḡkam (but evidently meant for avataḡkam: avataḡkam mama bheṣajam avataḡkam parivācanam). In a, our P.M. read -dhāvasi.

2. Now then, forsooth! how then, forsooth? what hundred remedies are thine, of them art thou the chief (uttamā), free from flux, free from disease (drogana).

In b, me 'are mine' is an almost necessary emendation. Yet Ppp. also has te: ād aṅgāḥ ṣaṭaṁ yaḍ bheṣajāni te sahasraṁ vā ca yāni te; and, in d, arohanam; cf. also vi. 44. 2. The obscure first pāda is here translated as if uttered exclamatorily, perhaps accompanying some act or manipulation. Āsrāva is rendered by the indefinite term 'flux,' its specific meaning being uncertain; it is associated with roga also in i. 2. 4; the comm. explains it as atisārātimūtranādivraṇādi. [Cf. Zimmer, p. 392.]

3. The Asuras dig low down this great wound-healer; that is the remedy of flux; that has made the disease (rōga) disappear.

The pada-text in b is aruḥsrāṇam, and the word is quoted under Prāt. ii. 40 as an example of the assimilation of a final ḥ to an initial sibilant; there can be no question, therefore, that the proper reading is arussrāṇa or aruḥsrāṇa; yet the abbreviated equivalent (see my Skt. Gram. § 232 a) arusrāṇa is found in nearly all the mss., both here and in vs. 5, and SPP. adopts it in his text. The comm. gives two discordant explanations of the word: vraṇasya pākasthānāni vraṇamukham ['place where it gets ripe or comes to a head?'], and aruḥ srāyati pakvam bhavaty anena. At the end, the comm. has aḥṣamat (as our text in 4 d).

4. The ants (upajīkā) bring up the remedy from out the ocean; that is the remedy of flux; that has quieted (ṣam) the disease.

The comm. explains *upajīkā*s as valmikanisṭhādikā vāmyah; Ppp. has instead upacikās; elsewhere is found upadikā (see Bloomfield in AJP. vii. 482 ff., where the word is ably discussed); [cf. also Pāli upacikā]. The Ppp. form, upacikā, indicates a possible etymology, from upa + ci; Ppp. says in book vi.: yasyā bhūmyā upacikā (ms. -kād) grhaṁ kṛvātā "imane: tasyās te viṣvadhāyaso viṣadūṣaṇam ud bhare. The earth which ants make their high nests of, and which contains their moisture, has always been used as having remedial properties. The "ocean" here (cf. udaka in vi. 100. 2), if not merely a big name for the reservoir of water beneath the surface, is a tank or pool. Ppp. has an independent second half-verse: aruspānam asy ātharvaṇo rogasthānam asy ātharvaṇam.

5. This is a great wound-healer, brought up from out the earth; that is the remedy of the flux; that has made the disease disappear.

Ppp. reads aruspānam (or -syā-) in a, and in b pr̥thivyā 'bhy.

6. Weal be to us the waters, propitious the herbs; let Indra's thunderbolt smite away the demoniacs (rakṣās); far away let the discharged arrows of the demoniacs fly.

In a all the mss. read apās, which SPP. rightly retains in his text; other examples of the use of this accusative form as nominative occur in the text (see the Index Verborum); the comm. has āpas, as our edition by emendation. We may safely regard this unmetrical "verse" as a later addition to the hymn; so far as regards the number of syllables (12 : 12 + 14 = 38), it is correctly described by the Anukr., as the name mahā-br̥hatī is elsewhere used in the latter, but apparently by no other similar treatise.

4. Against various evils: with a jaṅgīdā amulet.

Found also (except vs. 6 and parts of 1 and 2) in Pāipp. ii. Accompanies in Kāuṣ. (42. 23) the binding on of an amulet “as described in the text” (iti mantroktam), against various evils (the comm. says, “for thwarting witchcraft, for protecting one’s self, for putting down hindrances”).

Translated: Weber, xiii. 140; Griffith, i. 45; Bloomfield, 37, 280; in part also by Grohmann, Ind. Stud. ix. 417-418. — As to the jaṅgīdā, see Zimmer, p. 65; also Weber and Grohmann, ll. cc.

1. In order to length of life, to great joy, we, taking no harm, all the time capable (dakṣ), bear the jaṅgīdā, the viṣkandha-spoiling amulet.

Ppp. has 1 a, b with 2 c, d as its first verse; very possibly the two half-verses between have fallen out in the ms.; it has in b ṛṣyambho ṛkṣamānā (for rakṣ-) s-. The comm. has rakṣamānās also; it is the better reading. The comm. gives no further identification of jaṅgīdā than that it is “a kind of tree” (adding vārāṇasyām prasīd-dhah, ‘familiarily known at Benares’!); he defines viṣkandha in the same manner as above, to i. 16. 3.

2. From jambhā, from viçarā, from viṣkandha, from scorching (abhi-çócana), let the jaṅgīdā, the amulet of thousand-fold valiance (-vīryā), protect us about on every side.

Jambhā is perhaps ‘convulsion,’ or lockjaw; at Ppp. xi. 2. 10 it is mentioned with hanugraha; below, at viii. 1. 16, it is called sanīhanu ‘jaw-closing’; the comm. gives two discordant and worthlessly indefinite explanations. Viçarā should signify something crushing or tearing to pieces; Ppp. xi. 2. 3 names it with vijṛmbha; the comm. says çarīravīçaranāt. Ppp. has of this verse (see under vs. 1) only the second half, and combines maṇis sahasravīryaṣ pari naṣ p-.

3. This one overpowers the viṣkandha; this drives off the devourers; let this jaṅgīdā, possessing all remedies, protect us from distress.

The first half-verse we had above as i. 16. 3 a, b, with idām for ayām. Ppp. begins this time also with idam, has sāte (māte?) for sahate, and for b reads ayam rakṣo pa bādhatē; it gives viṣkandham with our text.

4. With the amulet given by the gods, the kindly jaṅgīdā, we overpower in the struggle (vyāyāmā) the viṣkandha [and] all demons.

Ppp. reads for d dhyāyase sāmāhe. The comm. explains vyāyāme first by saṁcaraṇe, and then by saṁcaranapradeçe.

5. Let both the hemp and the jaṅgīdā defend me from the viṣkandha: the one brought from the forest, the other from the juices (rāsa) of ploughing.

That is, from cultivated ground. The “hemp” is doubtless, as the comm. defines it, that of the string by which the amulet is bound on. Ppp. has at the beginning kha-naç ca tvā ja-; and its second half-verse is corrupted into aranyūd abhy ābhṛtaṣ kṛṣyā nyo rasebhyaḥ.

6. Witchcraft-spoiling is this amulet, likewise niggard-spoiling ; likewise shall the powerful jan̄gīdā prolong our life-times.

The absence of this verse in Ppp. indicates that the hymn originally consisted of five verses, in accordance with the norm of the book. The verse is very nearly xix. 34.4. Emendation to arātīdāśaṇas (as in xix.) in b would rectify the meter; the Anukr. takes no notice of its irregularity. At the end, two of our mss. (E.I.) and three of SPP's read tārṣat. [For his sáhasvān, see note to i. 19.4.]

5. Praise and prayer to Indra.

[Bhṛgu Atharvaṇa. — saptarcam. āindram. trāiṣṭubham: 1, 2. upariṣṭād bṛhātī (1. nīcrt; 2. virāj); 3. virāt̄pathyābṛhātī; 4. jagatī purovirāj.]

Verses 1, 3, and 4 are found in Pāipp. ii., and 5-7 elsewhere in its text (xiii.). Verses 1-3 occur also in SV. (ii. 302-4) and ÇÇS. (ix. 5. 2); and the first four verses form part of a longer hymn in AÇS. (vi. 3. 1). KB. (xvii. 1) quotes by way of pratīka vs. 1 a, b (in their SV. and ÇÇS. form), and speaks of the peculiar structure of the verses, as composed of twenty-five syllables, with nine syllables interpolated (three at the end of each of the first three five-syllabled pādas): cf. Roth, Ueb. d. AV., 1856, p. 11 ff., and Weber, notes to his translation. At TB. ii. 4. 3¹⁰ may be found RV. x. 96. 1 treated in a somewhat similar way (four syllables prefixed to each jagatī-pāda); the first five verses of RV. x. 77 itself are another example; [yet others are AV. vii. 14 (15). 1, 2; v. 6. 4 a, c; RV. i. 70. 11 as it appears at AÇS. vi. 3. 1; cf. further RV. x. 21, 24, 25]. [I suspect that these interpolations were used as antiphonal responses.]

The hymn is used once in Kāuṣ. (59. 5), among the kāmya rites, or those intended to secure the attainment of various desires; it is addressed to Indra, by one desiring strength (balakāma). In Vāit. (16. 11), it (not vs. 1 only, according to the comm.) accompanies an oblation to Soma in the agnīṣṭoma sacrifice, and again (25. 14) a ṣoḍa-ṣīgraha. And the comm. quotes it from Naks. Kalpa 17 and 18, in a mahāçāntī to Indra. None of these uses has about it anything special or characteristic.

Translated: Weber, xiii. 143; Griffith, i. 46. — Verses 5-7 discussed, Lanman's Reader, p. 360-1.

1. O Indra, enjoy thou — drive on ; — come, O hero — with thy two bays ; — drink of the pressed [soma] — intoxicated here — loving the sweet [draught], fair one, unto intoxication.

Ppp. omits the three interpolations (as Weber reports certain Sūtra-works to assert of the Atharvan texts in general), and reads indra juṣasva yāhi çūra pibā sutaç çā madhoç cakāna cārum madathaḥ. The second interpolation in AÇS. is harī iha, apparently to be read as harī 'ha, for which then SV. and ÇÇS. give the senseless hāriha. The third, in all the three other texts, is matt̄r nā ('like a wise one?'); the translation above implies the heroic (or desperate) emendation of mat̄r ihā to mattā ihā (to be read mattē 'hā); Weber conjectures māder ha. AÇS. and ÇÇS. have the older madhrvas for madhos. The comm. has no notion of the peculiar structure of these verses: as, indeed, he has no phraseology in his vocabulary to suit such a case; he explains mātes first as mananīyasya, then as medhāvīnas; and cakānas as either tarṣayan or stīyamānas. The Anukr. implies that the second half-verse scans as 8 + 11 syllables, instead of 9 + 10.

2. O Indra, [thy] belly — like one to be praised — fill thou with the sweet [draught] — like the heavens — with this soma — like the sky (svār) — ; unto thee have gone the well-voiced intoxications.

The omission of this verse in Ppp. is perhaps only an accidental one, due to the scribe. The first interpolation in the other texts is nāvyañ ná; to get a sense, Weber boldly emends to nāvyañ na 'like [the hold] of a vessel'; the comm. explains by nūtanas (anenā "darātiçaya uktaḥ !), taking no heed of the accent — which, however, requires to be changed to nāvyañ, whichever sense be given it; perhaps nadyò ná 'like streams,' would be most acceptable. In the third interpolation, SV. combines svār ná and AÇS. ÇÇS. svār ná; and the mss. vary between the two; our edition reads the former, with the majority of our mss.; SPP. has the latter, with the majority of his; one or two of ours corrupt to svār mó 'pa. The three other texts have at the end asthus. The comm. takes divás as gen., supplying amṛtena to govern it; and he takes svār as of locative value. The Anukr. scans the verse as 8 + 8 : 8 + 10 = 34 syllables.

3. Indra, a swiftly-overcoming friend, who slew Vritra — like moving [streams] —, [who] split Vala — like Bhṛgu —, who overpowered his foes in the intoxication of soma.

The translation follows closely our text, though this, as the other versions show, is badly corrupted in a, b, even to the partial effacement of the first interpolation. The others read accordantly: Indras turāśāṇ mitró ná jaghāna vṛtrāñ yátir ná; our yátir may possibly be meant for yátin 'as he did the Yatis.' The comm. explains yátis first as āsuryaḥ prajāḥ, then as parivṛājakāḥ. Ppp. agrees with the other texts, only omitting the interpolations: indras turāśād jaghāna vṛtram; it then omits the third pāda, and goes on thus: sasāhā çatrūñ manuç ca : vajrīr made somasya. All the AV. mss. read sasahe, unaccented, and SPP. admits this into his text; our edition makes the necessary emendation to sasāhé [in some copies (and so the Index Verborum); in others the accent-mark has slipped to the right]; the other texts rectify the meter by reading sasāhé (our O. agrees with them as regards the ā). Words of verses 2 and 3 are quoted in the Prāt. comment, but not in a way to cast any light upon the readings. [SPP., with most of his authorities and our Op., reads valām.] The metrical definition of the Anukr. is of course senseless; it apparently implies the division 9 + 7 : 8 + 10 = 34 syllables.

4. Let the pressed [somas] enter thee, O Indra; fill thy (two) paunches; help, O mighty one! for our prayer (dhī) come to us; hear [my] call, enjoy my songs; hither, O Indra, with self-harnessed [steeds]; revel here unto great joy.

This verse is really, as AÇS. plainly shows, made up of two like the preceding three, of five five-syllabled pādas each, but without interpolations. The first half-verse is vs. 5 in AÇS., where it reads thus: ā tvā viçantu kavīr na sutāsa indra tvaçāṇ na : pṛṇasva kukṣī somo nā 'vidhīhi çāra dhīyā hiyānah. Of the two versions of the last pāda, that of AÇS. is doubtless the original, though ours (the pāda has dhīyā ā ihi ā nah) is ingenious enough to give a fair sense; the reading dhīyēhi is authenticated by the Prāt. comment, which quotes it more than once (to iii. 38; iv. 113-115). The translation implies the restoration of avidhīhi, as the only true reading [namely, an aorist imperative from av — see *Skt. Gram.*² § 908]; the mss. all read vidhīhi, which SPP's edition as well as ours properly emends to viddhi. [My copy of the printed text reads vidhdhi; but Whitney's Index Verborum and his Roots, Verb-forms, etc. have viddhi, under viṣ.] The comm. reads vṛddhi, explaining it by vardhaya! The second half-verse is rather more altered in its AV. version; in AÇS. (as vs. 4), with the interpolations, it runs thus: çrudhi havan na indro na giro juṣasva vajri na: indra sayugbhîr didyun na matsvâ madâya mahe ranâya. Ppp. has only this half-verse (without the interpolations), reading thus: çruti hava me kîro juṣasya indrasya gubhîr matsa madâya mahe ranâya. The Anukr. would doubtless have us divide 10 + 13 : 10 + 13 = 46 syllables. [As to vidhdhi, see notes to Prât. i. 94. Accent of matsva, Gram. § 628.]

We may conjecture that the hymn originally ended here, as one of five verses; the appended three verses that follow are of a wholly other character. AÇS. adds one more verse, which is RV. i. 70. 11, with similar interpolations after each of its four five-syllabled pādas.

5. Now will I proclaim the heroisms of Indra, which first he of the thunderbolt (vajrin) did; he slew the dragon (âhi); he penetrated to the waters; he split [forth] the bellies (vakṣânâ) of the mountains.

Verses 5-7 are RV. i. 32. 1-3; and found also in TB. (ii. 5. 4¹⁻²); vs. 5 and 6 further in MS. iv. 14. 13, and vs. 5 in SV. (i. 613): in these texts without any variant from the RV. reading; they all have in 5 a prâ, and put vîryâni before it. Ppp. also offers no variants from our text. SPP. reads prâ in a, with all the mss. [except our O.], and our text should have done the same. The comm. renders ânu in c by tadanantaram, and tatarâ by jihîsa! also vakṣânâs in d by nadyas.

6. He slew the dragon that had resorted (çri) to the mountain; Tvashar fashioned for him the whizzing (?) thunderbolt; like lowing kine, flowing (syand), at once the waters went down to the ocean.

The text is precisely the same as in the other passages. The comm. explains svaryâ as suṣṭhu preraṇîya (from su + root r), and tataksa as tikṣṇam cakâra!

7. Acting like a bull, he chose the soma; he drank of the pressed [draught] in the trikadrukas; the bounteous one (maghâvan) took his missile thunderbolt; he slew that first-born of dragons.

RV. (and TB.) combines in a -no 'vṛṇîta, and some of the mss. (including our O.) do the same. The comm. understands the trikadrukas as the three abhiplava days. [For d, rather, 'smote him, the first-born of dragons.' The difference is, to be sure, only a rhetorical one.]

In the first anuvâka, ending here, are included 5 hymns, of 29 verses; the old Anukr. says: pañcarcâdye (i.e. 'in the first division of the 5-verse book') vinçateh syur navo "rdhvam.

6. Praise and prayer to Agni.

[Çāunaka (sampathāmāh). — āgneyam. trāiṣṭubham: 4. 4p. āṛṣi pañkti;
5. vīrātprastārapañkti.]

Found in Pāipp. iii.; also in VS. (xxvii. 1, 2, 3, 5, 6), TS. (iv. 1. 7), and MS. (ii. 12. 5). Used by Kāuç., with vii. 82, in a kāmya rite for success (sampad, 59. 15); and also, in the chapter of portents, alone, in one against bad years (samās). Vāit. has it in the agnicayana ceremony (28. 4), at the beginning, and a little later (28. 10) vs. 3 alone, on depositing the lump of earth on a lotus-leaf. The comm. quotes it from the Naks. K. (17 and 18), in a mahācānti called āgneyī; and, from Pariṣiṣṭa 7. 2, vs. 5 (with vii. 35), in a nightly rite. [Observe (note to vs. 3) that Ppp. agrees with the Yajus-texts and Kāuṣ. in associating our vii. 82 with this hymn.]

Translated: Weber, xiii. 146; Griffith, i. 48.

1. Let the summers (sāmā), O Agni, the seasons, increase thee, the years, the seers, what things are true; shine thou with the heavenly bright space (rocanā); illuminate (ā-bhā) all the four directions.

TS. reads at the end prthivyās (for cātasras). Ppp. has for b samvatsara ṛṣayo yā nu sakhyā, and in c gives dyumnena for divyēna. The comm. glosses samās by samvatsarās. [If the translation implies that rocanēna is an instr. of accompaniment, it is less apposite than Mr. Whitney's earlier version, 'shine together with heavenly brightness' — which I take to be Agni's own (cf. RV. x. 4. 2). His brightness is nil by day-time. The "together" were better left out.]

2. Both do thou become kindled, Agni, and do thou increase this man, and arise unto great good fortune; let not thine attendants (upa-sattār) be harmed, O Agni; be thy worshipers (brahmān) glorious, not others.

The other texts are in accordance in reading bodhaya (for vardhaya) in a, and Ppp. nearly agrees with them, having prati bodhaye 'nam; for c the others give mā ca riṣad upasattā te agne.

3. Thee, O Agni, do these Brahmans choose; be propitious to us, O Agni, in the [sacrificial] enclosure (? samvārana); rival-slayer, Agni, conqueror of hostile plotters, be thou; watch unremitting over thine own household.

MS. has the same text; the two others give a slightly different c: sapatnahā no abhimātijc ca. Ppp. has for b çivo 'gne prabhṛṇo nedihī, and for d sve kṣa didihy aprayuchan; it then inserts, before vs. 4, our vii. 82. 3; and it is very noteworthy that the three Yajus-texts do the same. The comm. renders samvārane bhava by vidyamānasyā 'pi pramādasya samchādane vartasva 'hide any oversight of ours.' The Anukr. passes without notice the two jagatī-pādas in the verse.

4. Take hold of thine own dominion (kṣatrá), Agni; with [thy] friend, Agni, strive (yat) in friendly wise; [as one] of midmost station among [his] fellows (sajātā), [as one] to be severally invoked of kings, Agni, shine thou here.

VS. TS. read svāyus for svēna in a, and all the three parallel texts have mitradhēye (for -dhā) in b, while Ppp. gives mitradheyam, and the comm. -dhās. In c, VS. TS. fill out the meter by adding edhi after -sthā; MS. has instead -sthēyāya, Ppp. -stheha masyā. Ppp. also has vacasva at end of b. The three other texts accent vihavyās in d. The comm. joins rājñām to what precedes, and sagely points out that Brāhmans are Agni's 'fellows' because, like him, born from the mouth of Brahman, and hence that sajāta here means Brāhmins. The metrical definition of the verse (11 + 11 : 8 + 11 = 41) is wholly artificial and bad.

5. Over enviers, over delinquents, over the thoughtless, over haters, — verily all difficult things, O Agni, do thou cross ; then mayest thou give us wealth accompanied with heroes.

The translation implies emendation of the impossible nihās to nidās; the comm. shows his usual perverse ingenuity by giving two different etymologies of nihās, from ni + han and from ni + hā; neither of them is worse than the other. The three parallel texts all have nlhas, Ppp. nuhas. Both editions read śdhas, but it is only a common error of the mss., putting r for ri; nearly half of SPP's mss. (though none of ours) have the true reading sridhas, which is that also of VS. and TS. (MS. śdhas). In c, all the pada-mss. present the absurd reading utcvāh; and nearly all the mss. leave tara unaccented, in spite of hl, and both printed texts leave it so, although three of SPP's mss. have correctly tāra, as also MS.; VS. and TS. give sāhasva for tara tvam, and Ppp. has cara tvam. For a, b, Ppp. has ati nuho 'ti ninṛtir aty arātir ati dvoṣah; for b, VS. TS. 'ty ācittim āty ārātim agne, and MS. āty ācittim āti nṛyrtim adyā. The comm. explains sridhas by dehaṣaṣakān rogān. In the metrical definition of the verse, prastāra- must be a bad reading for āstāra-.

7. Against curses and cursers : with a plant.

[Atharvan.—bhāiṣajyāyurvanaspatidāivatyam. ānuṣṭubham : 1. bhurij ; 4. virāḍupariṣṭādyhatī.]

Not found in Pāipp. Used with other hymns (ii. 25 ; vi. 85, etc.) in a healing rite (Kāuc. 26. 33-35) for various evils, and accompanying especially (ib. 35) the binding on of an amulet. And the comm. reports the hymn as employed by Nakṣ. Kalpa (17, 19) in a mahācānti called bhārgavī.

Translated : Weber, xiii. 148 ; Ludwig, p. 508 ; Grill, 24, 81 ; Griffith, i. 49 ; Bloomfield, 91, 285.

1. Hated by mischief, god-born, the curse-effacing plant hath washed away from me all curses, as waters do filth.

Āp. (vi. 20. 2) has a verse much like this : atharvyuṣṭā devajūtā viḍu ṣapathajam-bhanīh : āpo malam iva prā 'nijann asmat su ṣapathān adhi. The comm. explains yopani in c [discussed by Bloomfield, AJP. xii. 421] as vimohantī nivārayitrī. The comm. states dūrṇā (panicum dactylon) to be the plant intended, and the Anukr. also says dūrṇām astāut. In our edition read in ḍ māchapā- (an accent-sign slipped out of place). The Anukr. refuses this time to sanction the not infrequent contraction mālam 'va in c.

2. Both the curse that is a rival's, and the curse that is a sister's, what a priest (? brahmān) from fury may curse — all that [be] underneath our feet.

Sāpatnā perhaps here 'of a fellow wife,' and jāmyās perhaps 'of a near female relative'; the comm. explains jāmi as "sister, but connoting one's fellows (sahajāta)."

3. From the sky [is] the root stretched down, from off the earth stretched up; with this, thousand-jointed (-kāṇḍa), do thou protect us about on all sides.

Compare xix. 32. 3, where darbha-grass is the plant similarly described and used.

4. Protect me about, my progeny, [and] what riches are ours; let not the niggard get the better (tr) of us; let not hostile plotters get the better of us.

Our text reads at the beginning pāri mām, with the majority of our mss. (only P.p.m. W.K.Kp. are noted as not doing so); but pāri mām, which SPP. gives, and which all his authorities, as reported by him, support, is doubtless better, and the translation follows it. Two of our mss. (H.K.), with one of SPP's, give arātir no m- in c. The irregular meter of the verse (8 + 8: 7 + 10 = 33) is very ill described by the Anukr. [The avasāna of c is put after tārit; but the accent of tāriṣṭs marks that as the initial of d. RV. ix. 114. 4 suggests that our c is in disorder.]

5. Let the curse go to the curser; our [part] is along with him that is friendly (suhārd); of the eye-conjurer (-māntra), the unfriendly, we crush in the ribs (prṣṭi).

Nearly all our mss. (except P.M.K.), and part of SPP's, read in b suhāt; many also have in d prṣṭis, but the distinction of ṣt and ṣṭh is not clearly made in any of the mss. The comm. takes caḥsus and mantrasya in c as two independent words. [See Griffith's note, and mine to xix. 45. 2.]

8. Against the disease kṣetriyá: with a plant.

[Bhṛgvaṅgiras. — vānaspatyam; yakṣmanāḥanadāvatam. ānuṣṭubham: 3. pathyāpāṅkti; 4. virāj; 5. nicṛṭpathyāpāṅkti.]

Verse 1 occurs in Pāipp. i. It is reckoned (Kāuṣ. 26. 1, note) to the takmanāḥana gaṇa, and is used in a healing ceremony (against kulāgatakuṣṭhākṣayagrahanyādīrogās, comm.), accompanying various practices upon the diseased person, which are evidently rather adapted to the words of the text than represented by them (26. 41-27. 4), and, according to the comm., are rather alternative than to be performed successively.

Translated: Weber, xiii. 149; Ludwig, p. 513; Griffith, i. 50; Bloomfield, 13, 286.

1. Arisen are the (two) blessed stars called the Unfasteners (vicṛt); let them unfasten (vi-muc) of the kṣetriyá the lowest, the highest fetter.

The disease kṣetriyá (lit'ly, 'of the field') is treated elsewhere, especially in iii. 7 (mentioned also in ii. 10; 14. 5; iv. 18. 7). The comm. defines it here as kṣetre para-kṣetre putrapāutrādiḥarire cikitsyaḥ (quoting for this interpretation Pān. v. 2. 92) kṣayakuṣṭhādidosadūṣitapitṛmātrādiḥarirāvayavebhya āgataḥ kṣayakuṣṭhāpasmārādirogah — apparently an infectious disorder, of various forms, appearing in a whole family, or perhaps endemic. The name vicṛtān 'the two unfasteners' is given later to the two stars in the sting of the Scorpion (λ and ν Scorpionis: see Sūrya-Siddhānta, note to viii. 9), and there seems no good reason to doubt that they are the ones here intended; the selection of two so inconspicuous is not any more strange than the appeal to stars at all; the comm. identifies them with Mūla, which is the asterism composed of the Scorpion's tail. The verse is nearly identical with iii. 7. 4, and its first half is vi.

121. 3 a, b. Ppp. has for c, d sukṣetriyasya muñcatām saṃgrantha hṛdayasya ca. [“Their [the two stars’] healing virtue would doubtless be connected with the meteorological conditions of the time at which their heliacal rising takes place.” — Sūrya-siddhānta, l.c., p. 337.]

2. Let this night fade away (apa-vas); let the bewitchers (f., abhikṛt-van) fade away; let the kṣetriyā-effacing (-nācana) plant fade the kṣetriyā away.

The night at time of dawn is meant, says the comm. (doubtless correctly). He gives two renderings of abhikṛtvarīs: one, from root kr, abhito rogaṅtīm kurvānāḥ, the other from krt ‘cut,’ kartanaçilāḥ piçācyāḥ. According to Kāuç. the hymn accompanies a dousing with prepared water outside the house (? bahis); with this verse it is to be done at the end of the night.

3. With the straw of the brown, whitish-jointed barley for thee, with the sesame-stalk (? -pñjī) of sesame, let the kṣetriyā-effacing etc. etc.

The comm. understands arjuna- in a as a tree so named: “with a splinter of it”; tilapñjī is to him tilasahitamāñjari. With this verse “what is mentioned in the text” is directed by Kāuç. (26. 43) to be bound on, and also (so the comm. understands the connection) a clod of earth and stuff from an ant-hill etc.

4. Homage to thy ploughs (lāṅgala), homage to thy poles-and-yokes: let the kṣetriyā-effacing etc. etc.

Comm. makes lāṅgala = vr̥sabhayuktastra: “homage to the specified parts of the plough or to the divinities of them.” With this verse, he says, the sick person is put underneath an ox-harnessed plough for his dousing (Kāuç. “with his head under a plough-yoke”). Some allusion to the name of the disease as coming from “field” is perhaps intended. The Anukr. strangely forbids the resolution -bhi-as in a and b.

5. Homage to them of constantly falling eyes, homage to them of the same region (? saṃdeçyā), homage to the lord of the field: let the kṣetriyā-effacing etc. etc.

With this verse, according to Kāuç. (27. 2-4) the patient is put in an empty house (çūnyaçālā), and further in an old hole (jaratkḥāta) that has housegrass (çālātr̥ṇa) in it, and is there doused and mouth-rinsed. In accordance with this, the comm. declares sanisrasākṣās to signify “empty houses,” as having their round windows (gavākṣa) and other openings in a state of dilapidation. He reads in b saṃdeçebhyas, making it mean “old holes” (jaradgarta), because saṃdeçyante tyajyante tadgatamṛdādānena — which is hardly intelligible; and both words are of obscure meaning. In a charm against all sorts of hurtful beings, Ppp. (vi. 3. 4) reads as follows: abhihastam sarī-ṣṭpam bhrastākṣam mṛdvaṅgulim, and dāsagranthyaṃ sūnisrasam ud ranye dāñçā-rusyaṃ tām. In this verse again, -bhyas in b is read as one syllable by the Anukr. [SPP. divides the verse after saṃdeçyebhyaḥ with most of his mss.; but three of them make avasāna after pātaye. Comm. and all five translators take sani- as a possessive compound (sanisrasā + akṣān): accent, *Gram.*² § 1298. b, end.]

9. Against possession by demons: with an amulet.

[Bhṛgvaṅgiras. — vānaspatyam ; yakṣmanāṣanadāivatam. ānuṣṭubham : 1. virāṭprastārapañkti.]

Found in Pāipp. ii. (in the verse-order 1, 5, 4, 2, 3). Reckoned, like the next preceding and the next following hymn, to the takmanāṣana gaṇa (Kāuṣ. 26. 1, note), and made (27. 5, 6) to accompany the binding on of an amulet composed of splinters (from ten different trees: the comm.), being muttered by ten friends who lay hands on the patient.

Translated: Weber, xiii. 153; Ludwig, p. 506; Grill, 8, 82; Griffith, i. 51; Bloomfield, 34, 290. — Cf. Bergaigne-Henry, Manuel, p. 137.

1. O thou of ten trees, release this man from the demon, from the seizure (grāhi) that hath seized him in the joints; then, O forest tree, conduct him up to the world of the living.

The first half-verse is quite different in Ppp.: daçavṛkṣo sam ce 'mam ahinsro grāhyāç ca. The comm. takes parvan in b as either the joints of the body or those of the month, new and full moon. The Anukr. scans the verse as 10 + 12: 8 + 8 = 38, making the first pāda-division after rakṣasas (and the pāda-mss. so mark it); but it is rather a regular pañkti, with the easy resolution muñca imam in a.

2. This man hath come, hath arisen, hath gone unto the troop (vrāta) of the living; he hath become of sons the father and of men (nī) the most fortunate.

Ppp. has in c abhūta (for abhūd u), and in d nīnām. [Pronounce ā agād.]

3. He hath attained (adhi-gā) attainments; he hath attained (adhi-gam) the strongholds (-purā) of the living; for a hundred healers are his, also a thousand plants.

The 'attainments' (adhiti), according to the comm., are the Vedas and objects formerly learned (adhīta), and now, by restored health, recovered to memory. Ppp. reads instead adhītam in a, and purā 'gāt in b; and its c, d are çatām te 'sya virudha sahasram uta bheṣajaḥ. Emendation to bheṣajā in our c would improve both sense and meter. The comm. here, as in sundry other places, derives virudh from vi + rudh, on the ground that they virundhanti vināçayanti rogān.

4. The gods have found thy gathering (? cītī), the priests (brahmān) and the plants; all the gods have found thy gathering upon the earth.

In a, our Bp. has cītm, and Op. cītām (both cītm in c); Ppp. reads cātām in both a and c; either word is elsewhere unknown. The comm. derives cītī either from the false root cīv 'take, cover,' or from cī 'observe,' and fabricates his alternative explanations accordingly. If it comes from cī, there is hardly another example of a like formation. Ppp. has for a cātām te devā 'vidām; and, in c, d, cātām tebhyo tu mām avidām bhū.

5. Whoso made, he shall unmake; he verily is best of healers; he himself, clean, shall make for thee remedies, with the healer.

The application of the pronouns here is more or less questionable. Ppp. reads su for sa in a, and has a more intelligible second half-verse: sa eva tubhyañ bheṣajāñ cakāra bhiṣajāti ca; our bhiṣajā in d is probably to be emended to -jām [‘the clean one of the healers’?]. The comm. understands sa at the beginning either as “the great sage Atharvan” or as the creator of the universe; and niṣkarat as grahavikārasya ṣamanam or niṣkṛtiñ karotu. Weber renders the latter “shall put it to rights.”

10. For release from evils, and for welfare.

Found in Pāipp. ii. (with vs. 8 preceding 6 and 7, and the refrain added only to vs. 8). The hymn occurs further in TB. (ii. 5. 6¹⁻²), and parts of it in HGS. (ii. 3. 10; 4. 1). [And its original structure is doubtless clearly reflected by the MP. at ii. 12. 6, 7, 8, 9, 10. Cf. note to our verse 2.] It is, like the two next preceding, reckoned (Kāuṣ. 26. 1, note) to the takmanācāna gaṇa, and it is employed (27. 7) in a healing ceremony, performed at a cross-roads, while chips of kāmpīla are bound on the joints of the patient, and they or he are wetted with bunches of grass. According to the comm., the rite is intended against kṣetriya simply.

Translated: Weber, xiii. 156; Ludwig, p. 513; Griffith, i. 52; Bloomfield, 14, 292.

1. From kṣetriyā, from perdition, from imprecation of sisters (jāmti), from hatred (drūh) do I release thee, from Varuṇa’s fetter; free from guilt (-āgas) I make thee by [my] incantation; be heaven-and-earth both propitious to thee.

TB. HGS. have for a only kṣetriyāt tvā nirṛtyāi tvā, in c brāhmaṇe and karomi, and in d imé instead of stām. Ppp. has at the end -thivī ’ha bhūtām.

2. Weal to thee be Agni, together with the waters; weal [be] Soma, together with the herbs: so from kṣetriyā, from perdition, etc. etc.

The repetition (with evā ’ham prefixed) of the whole first verse as refrain for the following verses is not made by TB. and HGS. except after our vs. 8, and there only to pācāt; and in Ppp. it forms (complete) a part only of the same verse 8 (though this stands before our vs. 6). Its omission from vss. 2-7, and their combination into three whole 4-pāda verses [and the omission of pādas e and f from vs. 8], would reduce the hymn to the norm of the second book, and is recommended not only by that circumstance, but by the [wording in vss. 2-3, the construction in vss. 4-5, the concurrent testimony of TB. and MP., and also of HGS. so far as it goes, and by the] plain requirements of the sense also. [Cf. the analogous state of things in iii. 31 and the note to iii. 31. 11.] For a, b TB. HGS. substitute ṣām te agñiḥ sahā ’dbhīr astu ṣām dyāvāpṛthivī sahā ’sadhībhiḥ; and Ppp. differs from them by having dhībhis instead of adbhis, and gāvas for dy . . . vī (also saho ’ṣa). The comm. reads tvā for tvām in vss. 2-7 at the beginning of the refrain. This refrain is scanned by the Anukr. as 7 + 7 + 11 : 11 + 11 = 47; and the addition in vs. 2 of 9 + 8 makes 64 syllables, a true aṣṭi; but the other verses it is not possible to make agree precisely, in any natural way, with the metrical definitions given; 3-7 are of 69 syllables, 8 of 71. [By beginning pādas a and b with ṣām tūbhyam, and pronouncing both sahā’s with hiatus, and combining 2 ab with 3 ab, we get a perfectly regular triṣṭubh.]

3. Weal to thee may the wind in the atmosphere bestow (dhā) vigor ; weal to thee be the four directions : so from kṣetriyā, etc. etc.

TB. HGS. have for a çām antāriṣṣaṁ sahā vātena te ; Ppp. differs by reading sahavātām astu te ; the two former, in b, put bhavantu last. The comm. has in a [for vāyo dhāt] the better reading vayodhās, but he makes it mean "sustainer of birds" ! ['Weal to thee [be] the wind in the atmosphere, the vigor-bestower.']

4. These four heavenly (devā) directions, having the wind as lord, upon which the sun looks out — so from kṣetriyā, etc. etc.

TB. HGS. (4.1) have for a yā dāvīç çātasrah pradīçah ; Ppp. also omits imās, and combines devīç pra-, combining the pāda immediately with our 3 b. HGS. makes one verse of our 4 a, b and 5 a, b, and puts it in 4, after all the rest.

5. Within them I set thee in old age ; let the yākṣma, let perdition go forth far away : so from kṣetriyā, etc. etc.

Ppp. has at the beginning tāsv e'dam jarasa ā ; TB. HGS. give tāsām tvā jarasa ā ; both the latter read in b nīrtim.

6. Thou hast been released from yākṣma, from difficulty (duritā), from reproach (avadyā) ; from the fetter of hatred and from seizure hast thou been released : so from kṣetriyā, etc. etc.

Ppp. has both times amoci for amukthās. TB. likewise, and also, in a, b āvartyāi druhāḥ pāçām nīrtiyāi cō'd am-. HGS. has neither this verse nor the next ; that Ppp. puts our vs. 8 before it was noticed above. The comm. explains avadyāt by jāmyādyabhiçānsanarūpān nīdanāt. [TB., in comm. to Calc. ed., and in Poona ed., has āvartyāi.]

7. Thou hast left niggardy, hast found what is pleasant ; thou hast come to be in the excellent world of what is well done : so from kṣetriyā, etc. etc.

Nearly all the samhitā-mss. omit the final visarga of āvidah before syonām. The comm. reads abhūt in b ; TB. does the same, and, correspondingly, āvidat in a, with āvartim (better [cf. iv. 34. 3 ; x. 2. 10]) for āvātim. The comment to Prāt. ii. 46 quotes ahās in this verse as not ahār, i.e. as from hā, not hṛ.

8. The gods, releasing from the seizure of darkness the sun whom it had befallen, let him loose from sin (énaç) : so from kṣetriyā, etc. etc.

It was noticed above that the other texts add the refrain (TB. HGS. [MP.] only to pāçāt) only to this verse, where alone it is in place. Ppp. has yathā for adhī at end of a, and the other texts yāt ; b in Ppp. is devā muñcantu asrjan paretasaḥ ; in the other texts devā āmuñcann āsrjan vyēnasah.

[For rtām, cf. rtvā, iv. 40. 1. Most of SPP's mss. and our M.I.H.O.K. read nīr énasah. For énaç, W's first draft has 'evil,' which is better. See Lanman, Festgruss an Roth, pp. 187-190. — If, with the other texts, we drop e, f and omit nīrtiyās from c, we get a perfect meter, 12 + 12 : 11 + 11. The other texts spoil the refrain by beginning evām ahām imām.]

The anuvāka [2.] has again 5 hymns, with 28 verses ; the quotation is aṣṭa kuryād dvītiye.

11. To counteract witchcraft: with an amulet.

[Cakra.—krtyāpratiharāṇasūktam; krtyādūśanādevatyam. 1. 4-p. virāḍgāyatrī;
2-5. 3-p. paraṣṇih (4. pīpūlikamadhya nicrt).]

[The hymn is not metrical.] Not found in Pāipp., nor elsewhere. Reckoned as first of the krtyāpratiharāṇa ('counteraction of witchcraft') gāṇa (Kāuṣ. 39. 7 and note); used in a charm for protection against witchcraft (39. 1), with binding-on of a sraḱtya amulet; and again later (39. 13; the comm. says, only vs. 1), in a similar rite. The comm. quotes it further from Nakṣ. K. (17, 19), in a mahācānti called bārhaspatī.

Translated: Weber, xiii. 163; Griffith, i. 54.—Discussed by Bloomfield, AJP. vii. 477 ff., or JAOS. xiii., p. cxxxii (= PAOS. Oct. 1886).

1. Spoiler's spoiler (dūṣi) art thou; missile's missile (heti) art thou; weapon's weapon (menī) art thou: attain (āp) the better one, step beyond the equal (samā).

The body of the verse is addressed to the amulet; the refrain more probably to its wearer (so, too, Weber); but the comm. assigns the latter also to the amulet, and quotes to show it TS. ii. 4. 1⁴, which rather supports the contrary opinion. He calls menī a vajranāman, deriving it from root mī 'damage.' [See Geldner's discussion of menī ('hurt done to another in vengeful anger'), Festgruss an Böhtlingk, p. 31, 32.]

2. Sraḱtyā art thou; re-entrant (pratisarā) art thou; counter-conjuring art thou: attain the etc. etc.

The comm. says that sraḱti is the tilaka-tree, and sraḱtya means made from it; pratisara is something by which sorceries are turned back (upon their performer); it seems to mean virtually a circular amulet—[such as a bracelet? For re-entrant, Whitney has interlined revertent (sic), better, perhaps, reverting, trans. or intrans.].

3. Conjure (abhi-car) against him who hates us, whom we hate: attain the etc. etc.

4. Patron (sūrtī) art thou; splendor-bestowing art thou; body-protecting art thou: attain the etc. etc.

The comm., without explaining why, glosses sūrtī with abhijñā 'knowing.'

5. Bright (ḱukrā) art thou; shining (bhrājā) art thou; heaven (svār) art thou; light art thou: attain the etc. etc.

The comm. thinks svār to be jvarādirogotphādanena iāpakah, or else "the common name of sky and sun."

The Anukr. scans vs. 1 as 6 + 6 + 6 : 12 = 30, and the other verses as 8 + 8 : 12 = 28, excepting vs. 4, which is 9 + 6 : 12 = 27 (restoring the a of asi in b).

12. [Against such as would thwart my incantations.]

[Bharadvāja.—aṣṭarcam. nānādevatyam. trāiṣṭubham: 2. jagatī; 7, 8. anuṣṭubh.]

Found in Pāipp. ii., but in the verse-order 1, 3, 2, 4-6, 8, 7. The hymn is called by Kāuṣ. (47. 12) bharadvājappravṛskam 'Bharadvāja's hewer-off' [or 'cleaver'] (from expressions in the verses), and is to accompany the cutting of a staff for use in rites of witchcraft (as at 47. 14, 16, 18; 48. 22); and its several verses are applied through an extended incantation (47. 25-57) against an enemy; the details of it throw no light upon their interpretation.

Translated: E. Schlagintweit, die Gottesurtheile der Indier (München, 1866, Abh. der bayer. Akad. der Wiss.), p. 13 ff.; Weber, xiii. 164; Ludwig, p. 445; Zimmer, p. 183; Grill, 47, 85; Griffith, i. 55; Bloomfield, JAOS. xiii., p. cexxi f. (= PAOS. Oct. 1887) or AJP. xi. 334-5; SBE. xlii. 89, 294. — The first four interpreted it as accompanying a fire-ordeal; but Grill and Bloomfield have, with good reason, taken a different view. The native interpreters know nothing of any connection with an ordeal, nor is this to be read into the text without considerable violence.

1. Heaven-and-earth, the wide atmosphere, the mistress of the field, the wonderful wide-going one, and the wide wind-guarded atmosphere — let these be inflamed (tapya-) here while I am inflamed.

All the pada-mss. read at the end tapyāmāne tī, as if the word were a dual fem. or neut.: a most gratuitous blunder; SPP's pada-text emends to -ne. Ppp. reads in ḍ tesu for tā ihā (which is, as in not infrequent other cases, to be contracted to tē 'hā; the Anukr. at least takes no notice of the irregularity here; but it also ignores the jagatī value of b). The comm. naturally explains the "wide-goer" as Vishṇu; he does not attempt to account for the mention of "the wide atmosphere" twice in the verse, though sometimes giving himself much trouble to excuse such a repetition. The last pāda he paraphrases by "just as I am endeavoring to destroy the hateful one, so may they also be injurers of [my] enemy, by not giving him place and the like": which is doubtless the general meaning.

2. Hear this, O ye gods that are worshipful (yajñīya); Bharadvāja sings (çāns) hymns (ukthā) for me; let him, bound in a fetter, be plunged (nī-yuj) in difficulty who injures this our mind.

That is, probably, our design or intent; the comm. says (inappropriately) idam pūrvam sanmārgapravṛttam mānasam: i.e. seduces us to evil courses. All the mss. chance to agree this time in omitting the visarga of yajñīyāḥ before sthā in a. But Ppp. reads tu instead of stha, and in b uktyānī çānsatu, as it often changes -tī to -tu; but here the imperative (or Weber's suggested çānsat) would improve the sense. [Pronounce devāḥ and reject sthā; the meter is then in order — 12 + 12: 12 + 11.]

3. Hear this, O Indra, soma-drinker, as I call loudly to thee with a burning (çuc) heart; I hew (vraçc) him [down], as a tree with an ax, who injures this our mind.

Or (in b) 'call repeatedly'; the comm. says punaḥ punaḥ. Ppp. has in c vrçcāsi. The comm. paraphrases kuliçena with vajrasadṛçena paraçunā. [An orderly triṣṭubh is got by adding tvām after somaḥa.]

4. With thrice eighty sāman-singers, with the Ādityas, the Vasus, the Angirases — let what is sacrificed-and-bestowed of the Fathers aid us — I take yon man with seizure (hāras) of the gods.

Iṣṭāpūrtām in c has probably already the later meaning of merit obtained by such sacred acts; the comm. says īdubhayajanitāni sukṛtam. Haras he calls a krōdhanāman. He understands the 'three eighties' of a to be the triplets (trīca) in gāyatrī, uṣṇih, and brhatti, eighty of each, spoken of in AA. i. 4. 3 — simply because they are the only such groups that he finds mentioned elsewhere ; the number is probably taken indefinitely, as an imposing one.

5. O heaven-and-earth, attend (ā-dīdhlī) ye after me ; O all ye gods, take ye hold (ā-rabh) after me ; O Angirases, Fathers, soma-feasting (somyá), let the doer of abhorrence (apakāmad) meet with (ā-r) evil.

Ppp. reads in a dīdhyatām [cf. Bloomfield, AJP. xvii. 417], and in ḍ pāpasāricchetv ap. The comm. does not recognize dīdhi as different from dīdī, rendering ādīpte bhavatam. [In a, the accent-mark under -vī is missing.]

6. Whoso, O Maruts, thinks himself above us, or whoso shall revile our incantation (bráhmaṇ) that is being performed—for him let his wrong-doings be burnings (tápus) ; the sky shall concentrate its heat (sam-tap) upon the bráhmaṇ-hater.

The verse is RV. vi. 52. 2, with sundry variants. At the beginning, RV. has the better reading áti vā ; in b, kriyámāṇāṃ nínitsāt ; for ḍ, brahmadvīṣam abhī tāni ṣocatu dyāúh. Ppp. follows RV. in ḍ (but with ṣoca for ṣocatu) ; in c it reads vrajanāni. The comm. renders vṛjināni falsely by varjakāni bādhakāni.

7. Seven breaths, eight marrows : them I hew [off] for thee with [my] incantation ; thou shalt go to Yama's seat, messengered by Agni, made satisfactory.

The last pāda is xviii. 2. 1 (RV. x. 14. 13) ḍ. All our mss. and about half of SPP's have in a majñás (for majñās) ; yet SPP. adopts in his text the reading manyás, because given by the comm., which explains it artificially as for dhamanyas, and signifying "a sort of vessels situated in the throat" ; no such word appears to be known elsewhere in the language, and some of the mss. have in other passages of the text manyas for majñás. Our Bp. gives áyā at beginning of c ; the word is translated above as [áyās], subjunctive of i with doubled subjunctive-sign (see my Skt. Gram. § 560 e), or of its secondary root-form ay ; the comm. takes it from yā, which makes him no difficulty, since in his view imperfect and imperative are equivalent, and he declares it used for yāhi. Ppp. reads for c yamaya gacha sādānam. [In many parts of India today jñ and ny are phonetically equivalent. Cf. SPP's mss. for ix. 5. 23.]

8. I set thy track in kindled Jātavedas ; let Agni dispose of (? viṣ) the body ; let speech go unto breath (? ásu).

The verse is in part obscure ; the comm. sets it in connection with one of the details of the Kāuṣ. ceremony : "I set or throw in the fire the dust from thy track combined with chopped leaves : i.e. I roast it in the roaster ; let Agni, through this dust entering thy foot, pervade or burn thy whole body" ; he takes ásu as simply equivalent to prāṇa, and explains : sarvendriyavyavahāraṣūnyo bhavatu, become incapable of acting for the senses : i.e. become mere undifferentiated breath—which is perhaps the true meaning. [Quite otherwise A. Kaegi—citation in Bloomfield, p. 294.] The Anukr. apparently expects us to resolve ā at the beginning into a-ā. Ppp. has in a ā dadāmi, and for ḍ imāṃ gachatu te vasu.

The last two verses are so discordant in style and content, as well as in meter, with the rest of the hymn that we can hardly consider them as properly belonging to it. Their omission, with that of the borrowed RV. verse (our 6), would reduce the hymn to the norm of this book.

13. For welfare and long life of an infant.

[Atharvan.—bahudevotyam utā "gneyam. trāiṣṭubham : 4. anuṣṭubh ; 5. virāḍjagatī.]

Verses 1, 4, 5 are found in Pāipp. xv. Though (as Weber points out) plainly having nothing to do with the godāna or tonsure ceremony, its verses are applied by Kāuṣ. to parts of that rite. Thus, it accompanies the preparations for it (53. 1) and the wetting of the youth's head (53. 13); vss. 2 and 3, the putting of a new garment on him (54. 7); vs. 4, making him stand on a stone (54. 8); vs. 5, taking away his old garment (54. 9). And the comm. quotes vss. 2 and 3 from Pariṣiṣṭa 4. 1 as uttered by a purohita on handing to a king in the morning the garment he is to put on, and vs. 4 from ibid. 4, as the same throws four pebbles toward the four directions, and makes the king step upon a fifth.

Translated: Weber, xiii. 171; Zimmer, p. 322; Griffith, i. 57.

1. Giving life-time, O Agni, choosing old age; ghee-fronted, ghee-backed, O Agni—having drunk the sweet pleasant (cāru) ghee of the cow, do thou afterward defend (rakṣ) this [boy] as a father his sons.

The verse occurs also in various Yajur-Veda texts, as VS. (xxxv. 17), TS. (i. 3. 14 et al.), TB. (i. 2. 1¹¹), TA. (ii. 5. 1), MS. (iv. 12. 4) [MP. ii. 2. 1], and in several Sūtras, as AÇS. (ii. 10. 4), ÇGS. (i. 25), and HGS. (i. 3. 5), with considerable variations. TS. (with which the texts of TB., TA., and AÇS. agree throughout) has in a haviṣo juṣānās, which is decidedly preferable to jarāsam vṛṇānās [which is apparently a misplaced reminiscence of RV. x. 18. 6 or AV. xii. 2. 24]; at end of b, ghṛtāyonir edhi; and, in d, putrām for putrān. VS. has for a āyusmān agne haviṣā vṛdhānās, and agrees with TS. etc. in b, and also in d, save that it further substitutes imān for imām. MS. reads deva for agne in a, and pitṛān amṛtam for pitṛā mādhu of c [thus making a good trīṣṭubh pāda], and ends d with putrām jarāse ma e 'mām. Ppp. agrees throughout with MS., except as it emends the latter's corrupt reading at the end to jarase naye 'mam; and HGS. corresponds with Ppp. save by having gṛṇānas in a. [MP. follows HGS.] ÇGS. gives in a haviṣā vṛdhānas, in b agrees with TS. etc., and has in d pitṛe 'va putram iha r. The last pāda is jagatī.

[The Anukr. counts 11 + 11 : 10 + 12 = 44: as if 10 + 12 were metrically the same as 11 + 11! or as if the "extra" syllable in d could offset the deficiency in c! The impossible cadence of c is curable by no less radical means than the adoption of the Ppp. reading. All this illustrates so well the woodenness of the methods of the Anukr. and its utter lack of sense of rhythm, that attention may well be called to it.]

2. Envelop, put ye him for us with splendor; make ye him one to die of old age; [make] long life; Brihaspati furnished (pra-yam) this garment unto king Soma for enveloping [himself].

The verse is repeated below, as xix. 24. 4. It is found also in HGS. (i. 4. 2) [MP. ii. 2. 6], and a, b in MB. (i. 1. 6). HGS. in a omits nas, and reads vāsasāi 'nam for vārcasē 'mam, and in b it has çatāyusam for jarāmṛtyum; MB. agrees with this, only making the verse apply to a girl by giving enām and çatāyusīm. There appears to be a mixture of constructions in a: pāri dhatta vārcasā is right, but dhattā requires rather vārcasē. Emending to kṛṇutā would enable jarāmṛtyum to be construed with imam in a [; but cf. ii. 28. 2]. Verses 2 and 3 are apparently lost out of Ppp., not originally wanting.

3. Thou hast put about thee this garment in order to well-being; thou hast become protector of the people (?) against imprecation; both do thou live a hundred numerous autumns, and do thou gather about thee abundance of wealth.

The translation implies emendation of gr̥ṣṭinām in b to kr̥ṣṭinām, as given by Ppp. and by PGS. (i. 4. 12) and HGS. (i. 4. 2) in a corresponding expression to xix. 24. 5 below. [MP., ii. 2. 8, reads āpinām.] Such blundering exchanges of surd and sonant are found here and there; another is found below, in 14. 6 b [so our ii. 5. 4, Ppp.]. All the mss., and both editions, read here gr̥ṣ-, and the comm. explains it by gavām, and, with absurd ingenuity, makes it apply to the asserted fear of kine, on seeing a naked man, that he is going to take from them the skin which formerly belonged to him, but was given to them instead by the gods; the legend is first given in the words of the comm. himself, and then quoted from ÇB. iii. 1. 2. 13-17. For comparison of the Sūtra-texts in detail, see under xix. 24. 5, 6. In c, our O. Op. read jīvas. [Cf. MGS. i. 9. 27 a and p. 152, s.v. paridhāsyē. With c, d cf. PGS. ii. 6. 20.] The first pāda is properly jagatī (su-astūye). [See p. 1045.]

4. Come, stand on the stone; let thy body become a stone; let all the gods make thy life-time a hundred autumns.

The second pāda is nearly identical with RV. vi. 75. 12 b; with a, b compare also AGS. i. 7. 7 and MB. i. 2. 1, similar lines used in the nuptial ceremonies. [With a, c, d compare MGS. i. 22. 12 and p. 149.] Ppp. has for a, b imam acmānam ā tiṣṭhā 'cme 'va tvam sthiro bhava: pra mr̥ṣīhi durasyataḥ sahasva p̥rtanāyataḥ; which differs but little from the AGS. verse. The Anukr. apparently expects us to resolve vt-ṣu-e in c.

5. Thee here, of whom we take the garment to be first worn, let all the gods favor; thee here, growing with good growth, let many brothers be born after, [[after thee,]] as one well born.

This verse makes it pretty evident that in vs. 3 also the garment is the first that is put on the child after birth. But the comm., ignoring the gerundive -vāsyam, thinks it a "formerly worn" garment that is "taken away"; and Kāuṣ. misuses it correspondingly. HGS. (i. 7. 17) has a corresponding verse, omitting vāsas in a, combining viṣve av- in b, and reading suhṛdas for suṣṛdhā in c. [Nearly so, MP. ii. 6. 15.] In Ppp. the text is defective; but savitā is read instead of suṣṛdhā. Some of our samhitā-mss. (P.M.W.I.H.) lengthen to -vasyām before hārāmas in a. The verse is very irregular in the first three pādas, though it can by violence be brought into trīṣṭubh dimensions; it has no jagatī quality whatever.

14. Against sadānvās.

All the verses are found in Pāipp., vs. 4 in v., the rest (in the verse-order 1, 5, 6, 2, 3) in ii. It is reckoned by Kāuṣ. to the cātanāni (8. 25), and also among the hymns of the br̥hachānti gaṇa (9. 1); it is used in the women's rites (strīkarmāni) to prevent abortion (34. 3); also in the rite for expiation of barrenness in cattle (vaçāçamana; 44. 11); and in the establishment of the house-fire (72. 4), with sprinkling of the entrance, and finally in the funeral ceremonies (82. 14), with the same action. The comm. further refers to the use of the cātana and mālynāman hymns in Nakṣ. K. 23 and Çānti K. 15. All these uses imply simply the value of the hymn as exorcising evil influences or the beings that represent them, and do not help us to see against what it was originally directed: Weber suggests rats and worms and such like pests; perhaps, rather, troublesome insects: as usual, the indications are so indefinite that wide room for conjecture is left open.

1. The expeller, the bold, the container, the one-toned, the voracious — all the daughters (naṭṭī) of the wrathful one, the sadānvās, we make to disappear.

By the connection, the obscure words in the first half-verse should be names of individual sadānvās, but dhiṣāṇam (the translation implies emendation to -ṇām) is masculine (or neuter), and dhr̥ṣṇum (for which Ppp. reads dhiṣṇyam) not distinctively feminine. Nissālā (SPP's text reads, with the samhitā-mss. generally, niḥsā·: p. niḥsālān) is taken by the letter of the text, as if from niḥ-sālay = niḥ-sāray; the comm. gives first this derivation, but spoils it by adding as alternative "originating from the sāla, a kind of tree." R. suggests niḥsālam "out of the house," adverb. The comm. shamelessly derives dhiṣāṇam from dhr̥ṣ, and explains it as "a seizer with evil, so named"; he also takes -vādyā as = vacana. All our pada-mss. commit the gross blunder of dividing jighatōsvām, as if the word were a compound; SPP. lets the division stand in his pada-text. Ppp. reads in c naṭṭiyas.

2. Out of the cow-stall we drive you, out of the axle, out of the wagon-body (?); out of the houses we expel you, ye daughters (duhitī) of magundī.

The comm. understands upānasāt (for which two of our mss., P.M., read upamānasāt) to mean "a granary" — or else "a wagon full of grain"; and ākṣa "a gambling house." He does not venture to etymologize magundī, but calls it simply the name of a certain piçāci. The pada-mss. read magundyā, which SPP. properly emends to -dyāḥ. Ppp. has for b the corrupt nir youinnr̥pānaca, [in c magundyā,] and at end of d cātayāmasi. The Anukr. takes notice of the metrical irregularity of c.

3. Yon house that is below — there let the hags be; there let debility (sedī) make its home (ni-uc), and all the sorceresses.

Ppp. has a different version of the first three pādas: amuṣminn adhare gyhe sarvā svanta rāyaḥ: tatra pāpmā ni yacchatu. The comm. renders sedī by nir̥ṭī.

[Our accent-notation does not here distinguish a ḷṣāiṣra circumflex (ny-ūcyantu) from an enclitic circumflex (sedīr̥ nyūcyantu — as if it were the impossible ni-ucyantu, accentless); nor do the mss. of SPP.: but in his text, he here employs the stroke, like "long f" or the sign of integration, which does distinguish them.]

4. Let the lord of beings drive out, also Indra, from here the sadānvās, sitting on the bottom of the house; let Indra subdue them with the thunderbolt.

The omission of this verse, as being not found with the rest in Ppp. ii., would reduce the hymn to the norm of the second book. Ppp. (in v.) rectifies the meter of \bar{d} by omitting indras. The metrical definition of the Anukr. is mechanically correct. The comm. understands bhūtapati to designate Rudra.

5. If ye are of the endemic (? kṣetriyā) ones, or if sent by men; if ye are born from the barbarians (dāsya) — disappear from here, O sadānvās.

All the mss., both here and in the next verse, accent at the end sadānvās, though the word is plainly a vocative, and is so understood by the comm. (who says nothing of the accent, and indeed in general pays no heed to it); SPP. retains the manuscript reading. Ppp. has for a yā devā gha kṣetriyād, and for c yad astu daçvibho jātā.

6. I have gone around the abodes (dhāman) of them as a swift [steed about] a race-course; I have won (jī) all your races (ājī); disappear from here, O sadānvās.

The translation implies the evidently necessary emendation asaram at end of b; Ppp. has it, and also the comm.; both editions give asaran, with all the mss. But Ppp. agrees with the mss. in giving just before it the false reading gāṣṭhām for kā- (our text emends, but, by an oversight, gives -çūr instead of -çūh before it); and SPP. retains gā-. The comm. has instead glāṣṭhām, and explains it as “the further goal, where one stops (sthā) wearied (glāna).”

15. Against fear.

[Brahman.—ṣaḍṛcam. prāṇāpānāyurdevatyam. tripādḡyātram.]

Found also in Pāipp. vi., but in a much fuller form, with thirteen verses, of which our six are, in their order, vss. 1, 4, 3, 7, 12, 13; the others deal with wind and atmosphere, cow and ox, Mitra and Varuṇa, Indra and Indra's might (indriya), hero and heroism, breath and expiration, and death and immortality (amṛtan); after bibher is added in vs. 1 evā me 'pāna mā riṣayā, and, at the end of the hymn, the same, but with riṣa for riṣayā. In Kāuṣ. (54. 11), the hymn is used, with vi. 41, at the end of the godāna ceremony, on giving food to the boy. It is also counted by the schol. (ib., note) to the āyusya gaṇa. The comm. makes no reference to the godāna rite, but declares the use to be simply by one desiring long life (āyuskāma).

Translated: Weber, xiii. 179; Griffith, i. 59.

1. As both the heaven and the earth do not fear, are not harmed, so, my breath, fear not.

[MGS., at i. 2. 13, has evam me prāṇa mā bibha evam me prāṇa mā riṣah.]

2. As both the day and the night do not fear etc. etc.

The comm. here applies for the first time the term paryāya to these sentences, correspondent but with elements in part different.

3. As both the sun and the moon do not fear etc. etc.

4. As both sacrament (brāhman) and dominion (kṣatrá) do not fear etc. etc.

That is, the Brāhman and Kṣatriya castes (brāhmaṇajāti and kṣatriyajāti, comm.), as the words might properly enough be translated.

5. As both truth and untruth do not fear etc. etc.

6. As both what is (bhūtā) and what is to be (bhavya) do not fear etc. etc.

The comm. paraphrases bhūtām by sattām prāptān vastuḥ; the past would seem to be a better example of fixity than the future; but neither is "untruth" (vs. 5) to be commended as an example. [Weber would read ca ṛtām.]

16. For protection.

[Not metrical.] Found (except vs. 5) in Pāipp. ii. (in the verse-order 2, 1, 3, 4). The hymn, with the one next following, is used by Kāuṣ. (54. 12) immediately after hymn 15; and the comm. adds, quoting for it the authority of Pāiṭhīnasi, to accompany the offering of thirteen different substances, which he details. Both appear also in Vāit. (4. 20), in the parvan sacrifices, on approaching the āhavanīya fire; and vss. 2 and 4 further (8. 7, 9) in the āgrayana and cāturmāsya sacrifices.

Translated: Weber, xiii. 179; Griffith, i. 60.

1. O breath-and-expiration, protect me from death: hail (svāhā)!

The first extension of the notion of prāṇa 'breath,' lit. 'forth-breathing,' is by addition of apāna, which also is lit. 'breathing away,' and so, when distinguished from the generalized prāṇa, seems to mean 'expiration.' The comm. here defines the two thus: prāṇ urdhvamukho 'niti cestata iti prāṇah; apā 'nity avānmukhaḥ cestata ity apānah. For svāhā he gives alternative explanations, following Yāska. The verse (without svāhā) is found also in Āp. xiv. 19. 3. "Triṣṭubh" in the Anukr. is doubtless a misreading for pañkti, as the verse has 11 syllables, and 1 and 3 would have been defined together if viewed as of the same meter.

2. O heaven-and-earth, protect me by listening (ūpaṣṛutī): hail!

The pada-mss. read ūpaṣṛutyā (not yāh), and, in the obscurity of the prayer, it is perhaps best to follow them ['by overhearing' the plans of my enemies?]; otherwise, 'from being overheard' ['by my enemies?] would seem as suitable; and this is rather suggested by the Ppp. reading, ūpaṣṛute (for -teḥ?).

Ppp. has after this another verse: dhanūyā 'yuse prajāyāi mā pātān svāhā.

3. O sun, protect me by sight: hail!

Ppp. has caḥṣuṣī ('protect my) two eyes.' Our O.Op., with some of SPP's mss., read sūryas for -ya.

4. O Agni Vāiṣvānara, protect me with all the gods: hail!

Ppp. makes, as it were, one verse out of our 4 and 5, by reading agne viṣvambhara viṣvato mā pāhi svāhā. The comm. gives several different explanations of vāiṣvānara 'belonging to all men,' one of them as viṣvān-ara = jantūn praviṣṭah!

5. O all-bearing one, protect me with all bearing (bhāras): hail!

The sense is obscure; at xii. 1. 6 the epithet 'all-bearing' is, very properly, applied to the earth; but here the word is masculine. The comm. understands Agni to be meant (and this the Ppp. reading favors); but he relies for this solely on BAU. i. 4. 7

(which he quotes); and that is certainly not its meaning there. Weber conjectures Prajāpati. [The BAU. passage is i. 4. 16 in Böhtlingk's ed. See Whitney's criticism upon it at AJP. xi. 432. I think nevertheless that fire may be meant—see Deussen's Sechzig Upanishad's, p. 394.] It does not appear why the last two verses should be called of two pādas.

17. For various gifts.

[Brahman.—saptarcam. prāṇāpānāyurdevatyam. ekāvasānam: 1-6. 1-p. āsurī triṣṭubh; 7. āsury uṣṭik.]

[Not metrical.] Pāipp. has a similar set of phrases in ii. For the use of the hymn by Kāuṣ. and Vāit., see under hymn 16. It is also, with 15 and others, reckoned by the schol. to Kāuṣ. (54. 11, note) to the āyusya gaṇa.

Translated: Weber, xiii. 180; Griffith, i. 61.

1. Force art thou; force mayest thou give me: hail!

The Ppp. has no phrase corresponding to this. Some of our mss., as of SPP's, read dā instead of dāh before svāhā, in this hymn and the next, where they do not abbreviate the repetition by omitting both words. The comm. regards them both as addressed to Agni, or else to the article offered (hūyamānadravyam). [Cf. MGS. i. 2. 3, and p. 149 and citations.]

2. Power art thou; power mayest thou give me: hail!

Ppp. has sahodā agnes saho me dhā svāhā.

3. Strength art thou; strength mayest thou give me: hail!

Ppp. gives baladā agnir balaṃ me svāhā.

4. Life-time art thou; life-time mayest thou give me: hail!

The corresponding phrase in Ppp. is: āyur asyā āyur me dhā svāhā.

5. Hearing art thou; hearing mayest thou give me: hail!

There are no phrases in Ppp. answering to this and the two following verses; but others with varcas and tejas as the gifts sought.

6. Sight art thou; sight mayest thou give me: hail!

7. Protection (paripāna) art thou; protection mayest thou give me: hail!

The anuvāka [3.] has 7 hymns, with 42 verses; the Anukr. says: aṣṭonam tasmāc chatārdham trīye.

Here ends also the third prapūṭhaka.

18. For relief from demons and foes.

[Cātana (sapatnakṣayakāmah).—āgneyam. dvāīpadam; sānnibārhatam.]

[Not metrical.] Ppp. has some similar phrases in ii. The hymn belongs to the cātanāni (Kāuṣ. 8. 25: the comm. regards only the last three verses as cātana, because vs. 3 is the one whose pratīka is cited in the Kāuṣ. text; but it is perhaps more likely that arāyakṣayanam is an oversight for bhrātṛvyakṣ-); it is used by itself also in one of the witchcraft rites (ābhicārikāni), while adding fuel of reeds to the fire (48. 1).

Translated: Weber, xiii. 180; Griffith, i. 61.

1. Adversary-destroying art thou; adversary-expulsion mayest thou give me: hail!

'Adversary' is lit. 'nephew' or 'brother's son' (bhrātr̥vya). The Ppp. phrases are after this model: bhrātr̥vyaḥśīnam asi bhrātr̥vyaḥśīnam asi svāhā, and concern successively the piçācas, sadānvās, and *bhrātr̥vya*s. The Anukr. supports the comm. in regarding the hymn as addressed to Agni, and agrees with Kāuç. in regard to the accompanying action, saying: sapatnaksayanīḥ samidha ādhāyā 'gnim prārthanīyam aprārthayat. [Instead of "destroying" W. has interlined "destruction."]

2. Rival-destroying art thou; rival-expulsion mayest thou give me: hail!

3. Wizard- (? arāya-) destroying art thou; wizard-expulsion mayest thou give me: hail!

4. Piçācā-destroying art thou; piçācā-expulsion mayest thou give me: hail!

5. Sadānvā-destroying art thou; sadānvā-expulsion mayest thou give me: hail!

Read in our edition sadānvācāt.

19. Against enemies: to Agni (fire).

[Atharvan.—āgneyam. 1-4. nicṛdviṣamāgāyatrī; 5. bhurigviṣamā.]

[Not metrical.] This hymn (but not its four successors and counterparts) is found in Pāipp. ii.; also in MS. (i. 5. 2: in verse-order 1, 4, 3, 2, 5) and Āp. (vi. 21. 1: in verse-order 3, 4, 1, 2, 5); further, in K. Its first pratika (but regarded by the schol. and by the comm. as including all the five hymns) is used by Kāuç. (47. 8) to accompany the purastād homas in the witchcraft rites. The Anukr. has a common description of the five hymns, 19-23, as pañca sūktāni pañcarcāni pañcāpatyāni (? or -catapaty-) tripādāyatrāṇy ekāvāsānāni. [The mss. blunder; but pañcāpatyāni is probably right; see note to Kāuç. 47. 8.]

Translated: Weber, xiii. 181; Griffith, i. 62.

1. O Agni! with the heat that is thine, be hot against him who hates us, whom we hate.

MS. leaves (in all the verses) the a of asmān unelided, and both MS. and Āp. insert ca before vayām.

2. O Agni! with the rage (hāras) that is thine, rage against him who hates us, whom we hate.

Prāti hara has to be strained in rendering, to preserve the parallelism of the expression. [Or, 'with the seizing-force that is thine, force back him' etc. ?]

3. O Agni! with the gleam (arcis) that is thine, gleam against him who hates us, whom we hate.

4. O Agni! with the burning (çocis) that is thine, burn against him who hates us, whom we hate.

5. O Agni! with the brilliancy (téjas) that is thine, make him unbrilliant who hates us, whom we hate.

Ppp. has jjyotis for tejas, and prati daha for atejasam kṛṇu; for the latter, MS. and Āp. read prati titigdhī (also K., tityagdhi).

The meter is alike in the four hymns 19-22; the Anukr. restores the a of asmān, and in vss. 1-4 scans $6 + 7 + 10 = 23$, and, in vs. 5, $6 + 9 + 10 = 25$.

20. The same: to Vāyu (wind).

This and the three following hymns are mechanical variations of the one next preceding, differing from it only by the name of the deity addressed, and in hymn 23 by the pronouns and verbs being adapted to the plural deity. They are wanting in the other texts. The comm. does not deign to explain them in detail, but prefixes a few introductory words to the text of this one. For the Anukr. descriptions of the meter, and for the use by Kāuṣ., see under hymn 19. It would be space wasted to write out the translation in full. [They should all be regarded as non-metrical.] They are briefly treated (not translated) by Weber, xiii. 182, and Griffith, i. 62.

1. O Vāyu! with the heat that is thine etc. etc.

2-5. O Vāyu! with etc. etc.

21. The same: to Sūrya (sun).

1. O Sūrya! with the heat that is thine etc. etc.

2-5. O Sūrya! with etc. etc.

22. The same: to the moon.

1. O moon! with the heat that is thine etc. etc.

2-5. O moon! with etc. etc.

23. The same: to water.

1. O waters! with the heat that is yours etc. etc.

2-5. O waters! with etc. etc.

Here the meter, owing to the plural verbs, is different; the Anukr. calls that of vss. 1-4 ($6 + 8 + 10 = 24$) samaviṣamā, a gāyatrī 'of uneven members,' and vs. 5 ($6 + 10 + 10 = 26$) the same, with two syllables in excess [svarād-ṣamā].

24. Against kimidins, male and female.

[Not metrical.] Part of the hymn is found in Pāipp. ii., but in a very corrupt condition: see under the verses below. Kāuṣ. makes no use of it that is characteristic, or that casts any light upon its difficulties, but prescribes it simply as to be employed in a certain ceremony (19.9-13) for prosperity (according to the comm., for removal of a bad sign), called "of the sea" (sāmudra: the comm. says, offering in a çāpeṣastha fire, in the midst of the sea); it is also reckoned (19.1, note) to the mantras called puṣṭika 'for prosperity.' The words that precede the refrain in each verse are apparently the names of kimīdins. The Anukr. says that Brahman in each verse praised with verses the deity mentioned in it; and gives a long description of the meters that is too confused and corrupt to be worth quoting in full.

Translated: Weber, xiii. 182; Griffith, i. 62.

1. O ṣerabhaka, ṣerabha! back again let your familiar demons go; back again your missile, ye kimīdins! whose ye are, him eat ye; who hath sent you forth, him eat ye; eat your own flesh.

Ppp. reads: ṣarabhaka ṣeraṣabha punar bho yānti yādavaṣ punar haṭiṣ kimīdinaḥ yasya stha dam atta yo va prāhī tam uttam māśānsā manyatā. The comm. in the last phrase gives sā instead of svā, and has much trouble to fabricate an explanation for it (as = tasya, or else for sā hetih). Ṣerabhaka he takes as either sukhasya prāpaka or ṣarabhavat sarveṣāṃ hiṅsaka, but is confident that it designates a "chief of yātu-dhānas." Of the refrain, the first part seems metrical, and the second prose, in three phrases; and it may be counted as 8 + 8 : 6 + 7 + 5 (or 7) = 34 (or 36): the prefixed names add 7 syllables (vss. 1, 2), or 5 (vss. 3, 4), or 3 (vss. 6-8), or 2 (vs. 5). [Bloomfield comments on āhāt and the like, ZDMG. xlvi. 577.]

2. O ṣevrdhaka, ṣevrdha! back again let your familiar etc. etc.
3. O mrokā, anumroka! back again let your familiar etc. etc.
4. O sarpā, anusarpa! back again let your familiar etc. etc.
5. O jūrnī! back again let your familiar demons go; back again your missile, ye she-kimīdins; whose ye are etc. etc.
6. O upabdi! back again let your familiar etc. etc.
7. O ārjunī! back again let your familiar etc. etc.
8. O bharūjī! back again let your familiar etc. etc.

To represent all these verses, we find in Ppp. ṣevrka ṣevrdha sarpān sarpa mrokān mro jyarjyatro jarjūnvaprapado punar vo yanti yādavaḥ: punar jūtiṣ kimīdinaḥ yasya stha dam atta yo na prāhī tam utvas sā māśāny attā. It has not seemed worth while to try to translate the names, though most of them contain intelligible elements [see Weber, p. 184, 186], and the comm. forces through worthless explanations for them all. In vs. 8 he reads bharūci, and makes an absurd derivation from roots bhr and añc ("going to take away the body"). [In the first draft, W. notes that the four feminine names of vss. 5-8 might be combined to one triṣṭubh pāda, which with the common refrain would give us the normal five "verses."]

25. Against kānvas: with a plant.

[Cātana.—vānaspatyam. ānuṣṭubham: 4. bhurij.]

Found in Pāipp. iv. Both Weber and Grill regard the hymn as directed against abortion; but no sufficient indications of such value are found in its language, though some of the native authorities intimate their discovery of such. Kāuṣ. (S. 25) reckons it to the cātana hymns; and it is employed, with ii. 7 and other hymns, in a remedial ceremony (26. 33-36) against various evils, specially accompanying the smearing of the designated plant with sacrificial dregs (sampāta) upon the patient.

Translated: Weber, xiii. 187; Grill, 20, 92; Griffith, i. 64; Bloomfield, 36, 302.

1. Weal for us, woe (dṣam) for Nirṛti ('perdition') hath the divine spotted-leaf made; since it is a formidable grinder-up (-jāmbhana) of kāṇvas, it, the powerful, have I used (bhaj).

The comm. makes no attempt to identify the pr̥ṣṇīparṇī as any particular plant, but simply paraphrases it with citra-parṇy oṣadhīḥ. R. discusses the word as follows: "the pr̥ṣṇīparṇī is, 1. according to the commentary to KṢS. xxv. 7. 17, the same with māṣa-parṇī, i.e. Glycine debilis; 2. according to other schol., the same with lakṣmaṇā, a plant having upon its leaves red spots, in which the form of a child is claimed to be seen. Bhāvapr., i. 208, calls it also putrajanī, and Rājanigh., vii. 114, putrakandā, or putradā, or puṣkandā, indicating a bulbous plant; it is credited with the power to cure barrenness of women; 3. according to Am. Koç. and the other Nighaṇṭus, it is a leguminous plant, identified by Chund Dutt (Mat. medica) with Uraria lagopodioides Dec., having hairy leaves without colored spots. The second of these identifications would suit the hymn." Abhaksi might mean 'I have partaken of or drunk'; but neither Kāuç. nor the comm. know of such a use of the plant. The strange appearance in this hymn (only) of kāṇva as name of evil beings is passed by the comm. without a word of notice; he simply paraphrases the word with pāpa. [But see Bergaigne, Rel. véd. ii. 465, and Hillebrandt, Ved. Mythol. i. 207.] Ppp. reads in b nir̥ṣṭaye karat, and in d tvā 'harṣam for abhaksi.

2. This spotted-leaf was first born overpowering; with it do I hew [off] the head of the ill-named ones, as of a bird (çakīni).

[Çakī- is misprinted çakī-.] The reading vṛçcāmi, without accent (which is given in both editions, on the authority of all the mss.) implies that the fourth pāda begins with çtras, the preceding three words being (as is easy) resolved into eight syllables; and the pāda-mss. also mark the pāda-division before çtras. The Anukr., however, regards the verse as a simple anuṣṭubh, which it plainly is, çtras belonging to c; the accent should therefore be emended to vṛçcāmi. Ppp. reads sadānvāghnī pr- for a, and, in c, d, tayā kāṇvasyām̐ çiraç chinadmi çak-. The comm. explains the "ill-named" as dadrūvisarpakaçvitṛādikuṣṭharogaviçeṣās, or varieties of leprosy.

3. The blood-drinking wizard, and whoso wants to take away fatness, the embryo-eating kāṇva do thou make disappear, O spotted-leaf, and overpower.

One or two of our mss. (W.I.), and several of SPP's, read in b jñhīriṣati [I. has -īriṣ-]. Ppp. has at the end sahasvati.

4. Make them enter the mountain, the life-obstructing (-yopana) kāṇvas; do thou, O divine spotted-leaf, go burning after them like fire.

[As to kāṇvān, cf. i. 19. 4 n. As to -yopana, see Bloomfield, AJP. xii. 423.] This verse and the next are too much defaced in Ppp. to admit comparison in detail; but its text differs somewhat from ours. The Anukr. refuses to sanction the common abbreviation to agnīr 'va in d.

5. Thrust them forth to a distance, the life-obstructing kāṇvas; where the darknesses go, there have I made the flesh-eaters go.

26. For safety and increase of kine.

Found in Pāipp. ii. Used by Kāuç. (19. 14), with iii. 14, iv. 21, and ix. 7 [not vi. 11. 3 — see comm. to ix. 7 = 12], in a ceremony for the prosperity of cattle.

Translated: Weber, xiii. 188; Ludwig, p. 371; Griffith, i. 65; Bloomfield, 142, 303; vss. 1 and 2, also by Grill, 64, 92. — Cf. Bergaigne-Henry, Manuel, p. 138.

1. Hither let the cattle come that went away, whose companionship (sahacārā) Vāyu (the wind) enjoyed, whose form-givings Tvashṭar knows; in this cow-stall let Savitar make them fast (ni-yam).

Or, 'whose forms,' rūpadheya being virtually equivalent to simple rūpa. Ppp. reads in b sahatāram. The "cow-stall" does not probably imply anything more than an enclosure. The Anukr. passes without notice the jagatī pāda ḍ.

2. To this cow-stall let cattle flow-together [stream together] (samsru); let Brihaspati, foreknowing, lead them hither; let Sinivālī lead hither the van (āgra) of them; make them fast when they have come, O Anumati.

[In the prior draft of 3, Mr. Whitney has 'stream.'] Ppp. has at the end yacchāt; one of SPP's mss., yacchat. The comm. gives anugate (= he anugamanakārīṇi) in ḍ. The value of pra in the common epithet prajāñānt (rendered 'foreknowing') is obscure and probably minimal. [As to the deities here named, see Zimmer, p. 352, and Hillebrandt, Ved. Mythol. i. 422.]

3. Together, together let cattle flow [stream], together horses, and together men, together the fatness that is of grain; I offer with an oblation of confluence.

For the oblation called 'of confluence,' to effect the streaming together of good things, compare i. 15 and xix. 1. The change of meter in this hymn need not damage its unity, in view of its occurrence as one hymn in Ppp. Ppp. reads in b pāuruṣās, and in c sphātībhīs (for yā sph-). The metrical definition of the Anukr. seems to reject the obvious resolution -vi-e-ṇa in ḍ.

4. I pour together the milk (kṣīrā) of kine, together strength, sap, with sacrificial butter; poured together are our heroes; fixed are the kine in me [rather, with me] [as] kine-lord.

Ppp. reads valam in b, combines -ktā 'smākam in c, and has for ḍ mayi gāvāç ca gopatāu. The redundant syllable in ḍ (noticed by the Anukr.) would be got rid of by changing māyi to the old locative mé [; but with better metrical result, by adopting the Ppp. reading]. With the second half-verse is to be compared AÇS. iii. 11. 6: ariṣṭā asmākam vīrā mayi gāvāç santi gopatāu. The comm. says that gāvām in a means grṣṭīnām 'of heifers (having their first calf).'

5. I bring (ā-hṛ) the milk of kine; I have brought the sap of grain; brought are our heroes, our wives, to this home (āstaka).

Ppp. has aharṣam in b, in c āhariṣam (for āhṛtās) and vīrān, and in d ā patnīm e 'dam. Our Bp. gives ahāriṣam (and H. aharāriṣam) in b, and āhṛtās in c.

The anuvāka [4.] has this time 9 hymns, with 48 verses; the old Anukr. says dry-ūnaṁ [çatārđhaṁ] turiyaḥ.

27. For victory in disputation: with a plant.

Found in Pāipp. ii. Kāuṣ. uses the hymn in the rite or charm for overcoming an adversary in public dispute: one is to come to the assembly from the north-eastern direction (because of its name aparājita 'unconquered'), chewing the root of the plant, and to have it in his mouth while speaking; also to bind on an amulet of it, and to wear a wreath of seven of its leaves (38. 18-21). Verse 6, again, is reckoned (50. 13, note) to the rāudra gaṇa. The comm. further quotes from the Nakṣ. [error for Çānti] K. (17, 19) a prescription of the use of the hymn in a mahāçānti called aparājitā.

Translated: Weber, xiii. 190; Ludwig, p. 461; Grill, 1st edition, 18, 51; Bloomfield, JAOS. xiii, p. xlii (PAOS. May, 1885), or AJP. vii. 479; Grill, 2d edition, 23, 93; Griffith, i. 66; Bloomfield, SBE. xlii. 137, 304.—Bloomfield was the first to point out (on the authority of Kāuṣ.) the connection of prāç with root prach, and to give the true interpretation of the hymn. Grill follows him in the second edition.

1. May [my] foe by no means win (ji) the dispute; overpowering, overcoming art thou; smite the dispute of [my] counter-disputant; make them sapless, O herb.

"Dispute" (prāç) is literally 'questioning.' The comm. renders the word in a by praṣṭar 'questioner,' but in c gives us our choice between that and praçna 'question,' and in 7 a acknowledges only the latter meaning. Pratiprāças is translated here as genitive; the comm. takes it secondly as such, but first as accus. pl.; the Ppp. reading favors the latter: sā 'mūn pratiprāço jaya rasā kṛ-. With either understanding, the accent is anomalous; we ought to have pratiprāças. Arasān also is in favor of the plural. If we could emend prāçam in c to prāçl 'in the disputation,' it would make things much easier. For a Ppp. has yaç catrūn sañjayāt. Nēd in a is simply the emphasized negative.

2. The eagle discovered (anu-vid) thee; the swine dug thee with his snout: smite the dispute etc. etc.

Pāda b shows that the root is the part of the plant employed. If we struck off the impertinent refrain from vss. 2-5, and combined the lines into two verses, the hymn would conform to the norm of the second book (as in more than one case above [p. 37]).

3. Indra put (kṛ) thee on his arm, in order to lay low (stṛ) the Asuras: smite the dispute etc. etc.

The comm., both here and in the next verse, understands -bhya(h) stārītave as -bhyas tārī-, though he then explains tārītave by stārītum. Pāda a is rendered in accordance with the comm. and with Weber; Grill, 'took thee into his arm.'

4. Indra consumed (vi-aç) the pātā, in order to lay low the Asuras: smite the dispute etc. etc.

The comm. reads in a ṣāthām, and uses that form in all his explanations; ṣāthām seems to be given in all the mss., and in Ppp., and both editions adopt it; but the mss. are very little to be trusted for the distinction of ṣ and th. "The plant is the Clypea hernandifolia, whose bitter root is much used. It grows all over India, and is said to be applied to ulcers in the Penjab and in Sindh (W. Dymock, Vegetable mat. med.)" (R.). [In his note, Roth gives ṣāthām as Ppp. form; but in his collation, he gives as Ppp. reading in a, b ṣāyam indro] vyāṣṇān hantave as-. The Anukr. apparently expects us to resolve vi-ā-ṣn-āt in a.

5. With it will I overpower the foes, as Indra did the sālāvṛkās: smite the dispute etc. etc.

The translation implies emendation of the inadmissible sākṣe to sākṣye, than which nothing is easier (considering the frequent loss of y after a lingual or palatal sibilant) or more satisfactory, for both sense and meter; it is favored, too, by the Ppp. reading, sākṣīye. No other example of long ā in a future form of this verb appears to be quotable; but the exchange of a and ā in its inflection and derivation is so common that this makes no appreciable difficulty. The comm. accepts sākṣe, rendering it by abhi bhavāmi. The Anukr. notes no metrical irregularity in the verse. In our text, accent sālāvṛkān (an accent-mark out of place). [To Weber's note on sālāvṛkā, add Oertel, JAOS. xix.² 123 f. This allusion adds to the plausibility of W's suggestion about the Yatis, note to ii. 5. 3.]

6. O Rudra, thou of healing (?) remedies, of dark (nīla) crests, deed-doer! smite the dispute etc. etc.

Ppp. has for c, d ṣṛṣṭam durasyato jahi yo smān abhidāsati, which is plainly much better than the repetition of the refrain, and for which the latter has perhaps been substituted in our text. The comm. draws out to great length a series of derivations for rudra, and gives two for jalāṣa, and three different explanations of karmakṛt. [Bloomfield discusses jal- etc. at length, AJP. xii. 425 ff.]

7. Do thou smite the dispute of him, O Indra, who vexes us; bless us with abilities (çākṛti); make me superior in the dispute.

Ppp. reads ṣṛṣṭam for ṣṛāçam tvam in a, and ends b with -dāsate. The comm. has ṣṛāçam instead of ṣṛāçi in d and is supported in it by two of SPP's authorities. The ṣṛāçam in a he explains by vākyam, and that in his d by ṣṛāṣāram.

28. For long life for a certain person (child?).

[Çambhū. — jarimāyurdāivatam. trāiṣṭubham: 1. jagatī; 5. bhurij.]

Found in Pāipp. (vss. 1-4 in i.; vs. 5 in xv.). Used by Kāuç. in the godāna ceremony (54. 13), as the parents pass the boy three times back and forth between them and make him eat balls of ghee; and the same is done in the cūḍā or cāula (hair-cutting) ceremony (54. 16, note); the schol. also reckon it to the āyusya gaṇa (54. 11, note).

Translated: Weber, xiii. 192; Grill, 48, 94; Griffith, i. 67; Bloomfield, 50, 306.

1. For just thee, O old age, let this one grow; let not the other deaths, that are a hundred, harm him; as a forethoughtful mother in her lap a son, let Mitra protect him from distress that comes from a friend (mitrīya).

Ppp. has in b tvat for çatan̄ ye, and combines in d m̄itre 'nam. The omission of either im̄am or anȳe would rectify the meter of b. The comm. most foolishly takes jariman first from j̄r̄ 'sing,' and explains it as he st̄ūyamāna agne! then adding the true etymology and sense. The "jagati" is quite irregular: 12 + 13: 11 + 12 = 48. [Bloomfield cites an admirable parallel from RV. iv. 55. 5; but in his version he has quite overlooked the verb-accent.]

2. Let Mitra or helpful (? riçādās) Varuṇa in concord make him one that dies of old age; so Agni the offerer (hōtar), knowing the ways (vaȳtina), bespeaks all the births of the gods.

All our pada-mss. read in a riçādā instead of -dāh; SPP. properly emends to -dāh. This wholly obscure word is found independently only here in AV.; its rendering above is intended only to avoid leaving a blank; the comm. gives the ordinary etymology, as hinsakānām attā; Grill, emending to ariçādas, brings out an ingenious but unconvincing parallelism with Gr. ἐρικυδής; and, as noticed by him, Aufrecht also would understand ariçādas 'very prominent.' Ppp. reads for a mitraç ca tvā varuṇaç ca riçādān, and has at the end of d -māni vakti.

3. Thou art master (īç) of earthly cattle, that are born, or also that are to be born; let not breath leave this one, nor expiration; let not friends slay (vadh̄i) this one, nor enemies.

All the mss., and the comm., read at end of b jantrās, which SPP. accordingly retains, while our text makes the necessary emendation to janitvās, which Ppp. also has. Ppp. [omits vā in b]; elides the initial a of apāno and amitrāh̄ after mo; and it puts the verse after our vs. 4. Pāda b lacks a syllable, unnoticed by the Anukr. [read jātāsas?].

4. Let father heaven, let mother earth, in concord, make thee one that dies of old age; that thou mayest live in the lap of Aditi, guarded by breath and expiration, a hundred winters.

Ppp. reads te for tvā in a, and d̄v̄rgham āyuh̄ for sain̄vidāne in b; also ryā for adites in c. The Anukr. takes no notice of the irregularity of the meter (9 + 11: 10 + 12 = 42: a poor triçtubh!); the insertion of ca after pr̄thivī in a, and emendation to j̄vāsī in c, would be easy rectifications. [In order to bring the cesura of a in the right place, read dyāh̄ and tvā each as one syllable and insert a ca also after pitā. Thus all is orderly, 11 + 11: 11 + 12. The accent-mark over pr̄ is gone.]

5. This one, O Agni, do thou lead for life-time, for splendor, to dear seed, O Varuṇa, Mitra, king! like a mother, O Aditi, yield (yam) him refuge; O all ye gods, that he be one reaching old age.

All the pada-mss. read at end of b mitraorājan, as a compound; and SPP. so gives it; the comm. understands rājan correctly as an independent word, but perhaps only as he in general is superior to the restraints of the pada-readings. Ppp. (in xv.) has priyo for yam in b. The verse is found also in TS. (ii. 3. 103), TB. (ii. 7. 75), TA. (ii. 5. 1), and MS. (ii. 3. 4). All these give kr̄dhi for naya at end of a; TA. MS. have tigmam ojas instead of priyam r̄etas in b; TS. TB. MS. read soma rājan at end of b, while TA. offers instead sain̄ çīçādhi; all accent jāradāçis in d, and MS. leaves asat at the end unaccented. In ÇGS. (i. 27), again, is a version of the verse, omitting naya in a, reading (with MS.) tigmam ojas and soma in b, and having aditih̄ çarma yamsat in c. [Von Schroeder gives the Kaṭha version, Tübinger Kaṭha-hss., p. 72-3.]

29. For some one's long life and other blessings.

[Atharvan. — saptarcam. bahudevatyam. trāiṣṭubham: 1. anuṣṭubh; 4. parābr̥haṭī nicṛtprastārapañkti.]

Found in Pāipp., but in two widely separated parts: vss. 1–3 in xix., and vss. 4–7 in i. (next following our hymn 28). Used in Kāuṣ. (27. 9 ff.) in a curious healing rite for one afflicted with thirst: the patient and a well person are set back to back, wrapped in one garment together, and the latter is made to drink a certain potion apparently prepared for the other; thus the disease will be transferred to the well person: a total perversion of the proper meaning of the hymn. Again, it is used (54. 18) in the godāna and cūḍā ceremonies, and, according to the schol. (58. 17, note), in that of name-giving; and the schol. (42. 15) further add it in the rite on the return home of a Vedic student. And vs. 3 accompanies in Vāit. (22. 16) the pouring of the āçīr milk into the clarified soma in the pūtabhṛt at the agniṣṭoma sacrifice [cf. comm. and Hillebrandt, Ritual-litteratur, p. 129].

Translated: Weber, xiii. 194; Ludwig, p. 493; Griffith, i. 68; Bloomfield, 47, 308.

1. In the sap of what is earthly, O gods, in the strength of Bhaga's self (tanū) — length of life to this man may Agni, Sūrya — splendor may Brihaspati impart.

Or it might be 'in the sap of earthly portion, in strength of body' (a, b); 'what is earthly' would refer to some characteristic product of earth applied in the rite; the comm. understands the god Bhaga, but his opinion is of no authority. As Weber suggests, the exchange of āyusyaṃ here in c and āyus in 2 a would rectify the meter of both verses: in neither case does the Anukr. note an irregularity. Ppp. has here āyur asmāi, but follows it with somo varca dhātā br̥h-. Some of our mss., with two or three of SPP's, accent āyúsyam. The comm. takes devās in a for a nominative.

2. Length of life to him assign thou, O Jātavedas; progeny, O Tvashṭar, do thou bestow on him; abundance of wealth, O Savitar ('impeller'), do thou impel to him; may he live a hundred autumns of thee.

The construction of a dative with adhi-ni-dhā in b seems hardly admissible; BR. [iii. 917], in quoting the passage, reads asmé, apparently by an intended emendation, which, however, does not suit the connection; asmīn is the only real help.

3. Our blessing [assign him] refreshment, possession of excellent progeny; do ye (two), accordant, assign [him] dexterity, property (dr̥vīna); [let] this man [be] conquering fields with power, O Indra, putting (kr̥) other rivals beneath him.

The verse is difficult, and, as the parallel texts show, badly corrupted. Āçīr nas (for which Weber ingeniously suggested āçīr̥ne) is supported by āçīr nas in MS. (iv. 12. 3) and āçīr me in TS. (iii. 2. 85) and KÇS. (x. 5. 3); and all these versions give it a verb in b, dadhātu, instead of the impracticable dual dhattam, with which our sāce-tasāu is in the same combination. The alteration of this to the sāvarcasam of TS. MS., or the suvarcasam of KÇS. and Ppp., would indicate that of dhattam to -tām (as middle), and allow sense to be made of the pāda. All the other texts, including Ppp., give in a suprajāstvam instead of the anomalous and bad sāupr-. TS. MS. KÇS. have īyam for dāksam in b. The translation implies emendation of jāyam in c to jāyan in accordance with the sanjāyan of the other texts; but Ppp. has san̄ jayat, which would be even more acceptable — only not with ahām, as all the four read for ayām. TS. MS., finally, combine anyān̄ ādh- in d; KÇS. elides 'nyān. In KÇS., as in Vāit., the first word is to be understood as āçtr; the comm. interprets both ways [as from āçts 'blessing' or from āçtr 'milk']. He regards the āu of sāupra- in a as simply "Vedic," and heaven and earth as addressed in b.

4. Given by Indra, instructed by Varuṇa, sent forth by the Maruts, hath the formidable one come to us; let this man, in your lap, O heaven-and-earth, not hunger, not thirst.

The "thirst" of the patient in Kāuç. has no more substantial foundation than the last two words of this verse. The text in Ppp. is defaced, but shows sr̄çtas for ç̄çtas in a, and in c, d, after -thivī, pari dadāmi sa mā. The Anukr. would have us scan 11 + 11 : 8 + 9 = 39, dividing before upāsthe; but the pada-mss. mark the division correctly, after that word.

5. Assign refreshment to him, ye (two) that are rich in refreshment; assign milk to him, ye rich in milk; refreshment have heaven-and-earth assigned to him, [have] all the gods, the Maruts, refreshment [have] the waters.

'Refreshment' is the conventional rendering selected for the ambiguous word ūrj and its varieties. Nearly all our mss. (all save P. M.), and all of SPP's, have the false accentuation devās in d; both editions emend to devās̄, which the comm. also understands. So also with dyāvāp̄rthivī in c, for which the mss. have either dyāvāp̄rthivī (so nearly all of ours and one of SPP's) or dyāvāp̄rthivī (so, according to SPP., all his save one, with our O. D.); only our H. has the true reading, which is given by emendation in both editions. The verse (10 + 10 : 12 + 11 = 43) is far from being a good tristubh.

6. With propitious things (f.) I gratify thy heart; mayest thou enjoy thyself (mud) free from disease, very splendid; let the two that dwell together (? savās̄n) drink this stir-about (manthā), putting on [as] magic the form of the (two) Açvins.

The second half-verse is said apparently of a married pair, who are by supernatural means to become as beautiful as the Açvins. Of course, the comm. follows Kāuç. in understanding it of the sick and well man, and taking savās̄n as "dressed in one garment." The comm. supplies adbh̄ts in a, which is plausible (so Weber). Ppp. reads in a tarpayantu, in b modamānaç care 'ha, and in d açvināu. Several of SPP's mss. give mathām in c.

7. Indra in the beginning, being pierced, created this refreshment, [this] unaging svadhā; it is thine here; by it live thou for autumns, very splendid; be there no flux of thee; the healers have made [it] for thee.

In d, ā susrot is here rendered as if it involved the idea of āsr̄va 'flux'; the ā seems to forbid its being taken to mean "let it not be spilled"; the comm., however, so understands it: prac̄yuto mā bhūt. Some of our mss. (M. P. W.) read tvāyā at beginning of c. The comm. has ūrjam in b. Ppp. gives, in a, b, vidyo agram ūrjami svadhām ajatām etam eṣā.

30. To secure a woman's love.

[Prajāpati (kāminīmano'bhimukhīkarāṇakāmah). — āçvinam. ānuṣṭubham :
1. pathyāpañkti; 3. bhurij.]

Found in Pāipp. ii. (in the verse-order 1, 5, 2, 4, 3). Used by Kāuç. (35. 21 ff.), with vi. 8 and other hymns, in a rite concerning women, to gain control over a certain person : a mess of various substances is prepared, and her body smeared with it — which is much like the proverbial catching of a bird by putting salt on its tail.

Translated : Weber, v. 218 and xiii. 197 ; Ludwig, p. 517 ; Grill, 52, 97 ; Griffith, i. 70 ; Bloomfield, 100, 311.

1. As the wind here shakes the grass off the earth, so do I shake thy mind, that thou mayest be one loving me, that thou mayest be one not going away from me.

The last half-verse is the same with the concluding pādas of i. 34. 5 and vi. 8. 1-3 ; SPP. again alters the pada-text to épaogāh (see under i. 34. 5) ; Ppp. has here for e evā mama tvāyāsī. Ppp. reads in a, b bhūmyā 'dhi vatas (!) tr-. We should expect in a rather bhūmyām, and this the comm. reads, both in his exposition and in his quotation of the pratika from Kāuç. ; but Bloomfield gives no such variant in his edition.

2. May ye, O Açvins, both lead together and bring [her] together with him who loves her. The fortunes (bhāga) of you (two) have come together, together [your] intents, together [your] courses (vratā).

Notwithstanding the accent of vākṣathas, it does not seem possible to understand ced in a as 'if' (Grill, however, so takes it ; Weber as above), since the second half-verse has no application to the Açvins (we should like to alter vām in c to nāu). [But see Bloomfield.] The translators take kāminā in a as for kāmināu 'the (two) lovers,' which it might also well be ; the comm. says kāminā mayā. He also calls vratā simply a karmanāman, which is very near the truth, as the word certainly comes from root vrt (see JAOS. xi., p. ccxxix = PAOS. Oct. 1884). Ppp. reads neçitas in b for vākṣathas ; and, in c, d, sarvā 'ñganāsy agmata sañ cakṣūñṣi sam etc. Both here and in vs. 5 bhāga might possibly have its other sense of genitalia, or imply that by double meaning ; but the comm., who would be likely to spy out any such hidden sense, says simply bhāgyāni. [In a, açvinā is misprinted.—W's implications are that if vākṣathas were toneless it might be taken as a case of antithetical construction and that there would be no need to join it with ced.]

3. What the eagles [are] wanting to say, the free from disease [are] wanting to say — there let her come to my call, as the tip to the neck of the arrow (kūlmala).

The first half-verse is very obscure, and very differently understood by the translators ; the rendering above is strictly literal, avoiding the violences which they allow themselves ; the comm. gives no aid ; he supplies strīviṣayanī vākyaṃ to *ya*t, and explains anamīvās by arogīṇo 'dṛptāh (? SPP. understands dṛptāh) kāmiñāñh. Ppp. has an independent text : yas suparṇā rakṣāya vā na vakṣāya vā trātūñpitañ manah : çalye 'va gulmalūñ yathā — too corrupt to make much of. The Anukr. declines to sanction the contraction çalyé 'va in d.

4. What [was] within, [be] that without; what [was] without, [be] that within; of the maidens of many forms seize thou the mind, O herb.

In the obscure formalism of a, b the comm. thinks mind and speech to be intended. [Why not rétas and çépas?] 'Of all forms,' i.e., as often elsewhere, 'of every sort and kind.' [Ppp. reads abāhyani for bāhyani yad bāhyani.]

5. Hither hath this woman come, desiring a husband; desiring a wife have I come; like a loud-neighing (krand) horse, together with fortune have I come.

That is, perhaps, 'I have enjoyed her favors.' None of the mss. fail to accent yáthā in c.

31. Against worms.

Found also in Pāipp. ii. Used by Kāuç. (27. 14 ff.) in an extended healing rite against worms; the detail of the ceremonial has nothing to do with that of the hymn, and does not illustrate the latter.

Translated: Kuhn, KZ. xiii. 135 ff.; Weber, xiii. 199; Ludwig, p. 323; Grill, 6, 98; Griffith, i. 71; Bloomfield, 22, 313. — Cf. Zimmer, pp. 98, 393; Mannhardt, Der Baumkultus der Germanen, p. 12 ff.; K. Müllenhoff, Denkmäler deutscher Poesie aus dem 8. bis 12. Jahrhundert 3, i. 17, 181; and especially the old Germanic analogues adduced by Kuhn, l.c. Griffith cites Harper's Magazine, June, 1893, p. 106, for modern usages in vogue near Quebec.

1. The great mill-stone that is Indra's, bruiser (tārhaṇa) of every worm — with that I mash (piṣ) together the worms, as khālva-grains with a mill-stone.

Our mss. and those of SPP., as well as Ppp., vary, in this hymn and elsewhere, quite indiscriminately between krīmi and kṛmi, so that it is not at all worth while to report the details; SPP. agrees with us in printing everywhere krīmi. Two of our mss. (O. Op.), with one of SPP's, read dhṛṣāt in a. Ppp. gives at the end khālvaṇ īva. The comm. explains krīmīn by çarīrāntārgatān sarvān kṣudrajantūn.

2. The seen, the unseen one have I bruised, also the kurūru have I bruised; all the algāṇḍus, the çalūnas, the worms we grind up with our spell (vācas).

The distinction of -lga- and -lā- in the manuscripts is very imperfect; I had noted only one of our mss. as apparently having algāṇḍūn, here and in the next verse; but SPP. gives this as found in all his authorities, including oral ones; and the comm. presents it, and even also Ppp.; so that it is beyond all question the true reading. The comm. explains it here as etannāmnah krimivīçeṣān, but in vs. 3 as çoṇitamānsadūṣakāñ jantūn — which last is plainly nothing more than a guess. Instead of kurūrum in b, he reads kurīram, with three of SPP's mss., and Ppp.; other mss. differ as to their distribution of u and ū in the syllables of the word, and two of ours (Op. Kp.) give kurūram. Two of SPP's authorities give vārcasā in d. Ppp. further has adrahām for airham both times, and çalūlān in c. The omission of krīmīn in d would ease both sense and meter. [As to sarvān ch-, cf. iii. 11. 5, iv. 8. 3, and Prāt. ii. 17, note.]

3. I smite the algāṇḍus with a great deadly weapon; burnt [or] unburnt, they have become sapless; those left [or] not left I draw down by my spell (vāc), that no one of the worms be left.

It seems hardly possible to avoid amending at the end to uchisyātāi, passive. Ppp. reads in b dunāddunā, and its last half-verse is defaced.

4. The one along the entrails, the one in the head, likewise the worm in the ribs, the avaskavā, the vyadhvarā — the worms we grind up with our spell (vācas).

The comm., and two of SPP's mss., read in b ph̄r̄ṣṇeyam 'in the heel'; and SPP. admits into his text after it kr̄tm̄n, against the great majority of his mss. and against the comm.; none of ours have it, but three (O. Op. Kp.) give kr̄tm̄m, which looks like an abortive attempt at it. For vyadhvarām in c, Ppp. has yaram̄; all the mss. have vyadhvarām; unless it is to be emended to vyadhvarām (cf. vi. 50. 3, note), it must probably be derived from vyadh 'pierce'; but the pada-reading viadhvarām points rather to vi-adhvan; the comm. takes it from the latter, and also, alternatively, from vi and a-dhvara; avaskavā is, according to him, avāggamanasvabhāva; it seems rather to come from √sku 'tear.' The expression prāgukta 'as heretofore defined' is not used elsewhere in the Anukr.; it is used by abbreviation for uḥpariṣṭādvirād (vs. 2); but why the two verses were not defined together, to make repetition needless, does not appear. [In d, again, kr̄tm̄n is a palpable intrusion.]

5. The worms that are in the mountains, in the woods, in the herbs, in the cattle, within the waters, that have entered our selves (tanū) — that whole generation (jāniman) of worms I smite.

Two of SPP's mss. agree with the comm. in reading té for yé at beginning of c; and the comm. has further tanvas for tanvam. Ppp. inserts ye before vaneṣu, and ye (with an avasāna before it) also before oṣadhīṣu; for second half-verse it gives ye smākan tanno (i.e. tanvo) sthāma cakrir (i.e. cakrur or cakrire) indras tūn hantu mahatā vadhena. Prāguktā in the Anukr. apparently repeats this time the superfluous ārṣī of vs. 3.

The anuvāka [5.] has 5 hymns and 29 verses, and the extract from the old Anukr. says tato ph̄r̄ātāi or ph̄r̄ānte.

32. Against worms.

This hymn occurs in Pāipp. ii. (with vs. 3 put last), next before the one that here precedes it. Kāuṣ. applies it (27. 21 ff.) in a healing ceremony against worms in cattle.

[The material appears in Ppp. in the order 1, 2 ab, 4 cdab, 5 ab, 6, 3 abc 5 d. The expression of Kāuṣ. 27. 22, "with the words te hatāh (vs. 5 d) at the end of the hymn," suggests the reduction of the hymn to the norm of the book, 5 vss. (see p. 37). This is borne out by Ppp., where the material amounts to 5 vss. and ends with our 5 d. But what the intruded portions are it is not easy to say. The parts missing in Ppp. are our 2 cd, 3 d, 5 c.]

Translated: Kuhn, KZ. xiii. 138; Weber, xiii. 201; Ludwig, p. 500; Grill, 7, 100; Griffith, i. 72; Bloomfield, 23, 317. — Cf. Hillebrandt, Veda-chrestomathie, p. 47.

1. Let the sun (ādityā), rising, smite the worms; setting, let him smite [them] with his rays — the worms that are within the cow.

The change of ādityās to sūryas in a would rectify the meter. But Ppp. has adityas; its b reads sūryo nimrocan raçmibhīr hantu; and for c it has ye 'ntas krimayo gavī naḥ.

2. The worm of all forms, the four-eyed, the variegated, the whitish — I crush (çr) the ribs of it; I hew at (apī-vraçc) what is its head.

The mss., as usual, vary between prççts and prççh̄ts in c. Ppp. has a different version of the first half-verse: yo dviçirçā caturakçaç krimiç çārgo arjunaḥ, with our 4 c, d as second half. The Anukr. expects us to make the unusual resolution a-si-a in c.

3. Like Atri I slay you, O worms, like Kaṇva, like Jamadagni; with the incantation of Agastya I mash together the worms.

Ppp. rectifies the meter of a by reading tvā kyme; it has agastyam in c, and, for d, our 5 d. The Anukr. ignores the redundant syllable in our a. Compare TA. iv. 36 (which the comm. quotes, though the editor does not tell from whence): ātrinā tvā krime hanmi kāpvena jamādagninā: viçvāvasor brāhmaṇā; also MB. ii. 7. 1 a, b: hataç te atrinā krimir hataç te jamadagninā. SPP. writes in a attrivād. Vss. 3-5 are repeated below as v. 23. 10-12.

4. Slain is the king of the worms, also the chief (sthapāti) of them is slain; slain is the worm, having its mother slain, its brother slain, its sister slain.

Ppp. has in b sthapacis, and in c, d (its 2 c, d) -trātā for -mātā, and -mahatā for bhrātā. TA. (iv. 36) has again a parallel verse: hatāḥ krimiṇām rājā āpy eçām sthapātir hatāḥ: ātho mātā 'tho pitā; cf. also MB. ii. 7. 3 a, b: hataḥ krimiṇām kṣudrako hatā mātā hataḥ pitā. The comm. explains sthapati by saciva.

5. Slain are its neighbors (? veçās), slain its further neighbors (? pāri-veças), also those that are petty (kṣullakā), as it were — all those worms are slain.

The translation of d implies the emendation of te to té; all the mss. have the former, but SPP. receives the latter into his text on the authority of the comm., who so understands the word. Ppp. reads in a, b 'sya veçaso hatāsaç p-; our c is wanting in its text; our d it puts in place of our 3 d. Our kṣullaka is a kind of Prakritization of kṣudraka, quoted from MB. under vs. 4; TA. (ib.) also has ātho sthūrā ātho kṣudrāḥ. The comm. explains veçasas as "principal houses," and pāri-veçasas as "neighboring houses." We might suspect -veç-, from root viç, and so 'attendants, servants.'

6. I crush up (pra-çr) thy (two) horns, with which thou thrustest; I split thy receptacle (?), which is thy poison-holder.

The decided majority, both of our mss. and of SPP's, give in c kuçūmbham, which is accordingly accepted in both editions; other sporadic readings are kuṣūmbham, kuçābham, kuçūbham, kuçāmbham; and two of SPP's mss. give çukumbham, nearly agreeing with the çukambham of the comm. Our P.M.E. have vinud in b. Ppp's version is as follows: pa te ççṇāmi çṇge yābhyāyattam vitadāyasi: atho bhīnadmī tam kumbham yasmin te nihitam viçam, which in c is better than our text, and is supported by the MB. (ii. 7. 3) form of c, d: athāi 'çām bhīnnakāḥ kumbho ya eçām viçadhānakāḥ. The metrical definition of the verse (7+7:7+6=27) given by the Anukr. is only mechanically correct.

33. For expulsion of yāksma from all parts of the body.

[Brahman.—saptarcam. yakṣmavibarhaṇam; cāndramasam; āyusyam. ānuṣṭubham. 3. kakummatī; 4. 4-p. bhurīg usṇih; 5. upariṣṭādvirāḍbrhatī; 6. usṇiggarbhā nicrdanuṣṭubh; 7. pathyāpāṅkti.]

Found in Pāipp. iv. Corresponds, with important variations, to most of RV. x. 163 (found also in MP., the mantra-text to ĀpGS.: see Winternitz, l.c., p. 99). [Namely, our vss. 1, 2, 4 ab with 3 cd, and 5 correspond to MP. i. 17. 1, 2, 3, and 4: the MP. version follows most nearly that of RV.] The hymn is called by Kāuṣ. (27. 27) vībarha (from vs. 7 d), and is prescribed in a healing ceremony; it is also reckoned (54. 11, note) to the āyusya gaṇa; but the comm. makes up an añholiṅga gaṇa of it and iii. 11; iv. 13; v. 30; ix. 8, which is quite different from the one reported by Bloomfield from the gaṇa-mālā in note to Kāuṣ. 32. 27 [on page 89, but agrees with the one reported in B's supplement, page 334, except that for i. 10. 4 should be put iii. 11. 1]. It (or vs. 1) is also employed by Vāit. (38. 1) in the puruṣamedha.

Translated: by the RV. translators; and Kuhn, KZ. xiii. 66 ff.; Weber, xiii. 205; Griffith, i. 74; Bloomfield, 44, 321.—Oldenberg compares critically the RV. and AV. versions, die Hymnen des RV., i. p. 243.

1. Forth from thy (two) eyes, (two) nostrils, (two) ears, chin, brain, tongue, I eject (vi-vr̥h) for thee the yāksma of the head.

The verse is RV. x. 163. 1, without variant. Two or three of SPP's mss., with the comm., read in b cūbukāt; MP. has cibukāt [in the Whish ms.]; Ppp. substitutes for it nāsyāt (i.e. āsyāt), has uta for ādhi, and has for d lalāṭād vi vayemasi.

2. From thy neck (grīvās), nape (uṣṇhās), vertebræ (kikasā), backbone, (two) shoulders, (two) fore-arms, I eject for thee the yāksma of the arms.

This, again, is precisely RV. x. 163. 2. Ppp. reads in b anūkyās, and in d urastās (for bāhubhyām) and vr̥hāmasi. The pl. grīvās for 'neck' designates, according to the comm., the 14 small bones found there; and he quotes ÇB. xii. 2. 4. 10 for authority. The uṣṇhās he declares to be certain vessels (nūḍi); the kikasās, to be jatruvakṣogatāsthīni, which is quite indefinite.

3. Forth from thy heart, lung (klomān), halikṣṇa, (two) sides, (two) mātasnas, spleen, liver, we eject for thee the yāksma.

Weber conjectures "gall" for halikṣṇa (Ppp. halikṣma), and "kidney" for matasna. The comm. defines klomān as "a kind of flesh-mass in the neighborhood of the heart," halikṣṇa as etatsamjñakāt tatsambandhān mānsaphiṇḍaviṣeṣāt, and matasnābhyām as ubhayapārṣvasambandhābhyāṃ vr̥kyābhyāṃ tatsamīpashapittādharapātrābhyāṃ vā. For a, Ppp. has klomnas te hṛdayābhyo. Of this verse, only the latter half has a parallel in RV., namely x. 163. 3 c, d, where d is varied to yaknāḥ plāṅbhyo vī vr̥hāmi te. The Anukr. foolishly rejects all resolution in b.

4. Forth from thine entrails, guts, rectum, belly, (two) paunches, plāṅṣṭ, navel, I eject for thee the yāksma.

The comm. explains gudābhyas by āntasamīpasthebhyo malamūtrapravakāṇa-mārgebhyah, and plāṅṣṭ by bahucchidrān malapātrāt; and he quotes ÇB. xii. 9. 1. 3, where many of the names in the verse occur. RV. (also MP.) has the first half-verse, as 163. 3 a, b, reading hṛdayāt for udārāt. For b, c, [d,] Ppp. substitutes our 6 b, c [d, but with pānyor in c. and vrhāmasi at the end]. The Anukr. again rejects all resolutions, which would make the verse a fair anuṣṭubh, and counts 7+8 : 7+7=29.

5. From thy (two) thighs, knees, heels, front feet, hips, fundament (? bhānsas), I eject for thee the yākṣma of the rump.

In the translation here is omitted bhāsadam, the pure equivalent of bhasadyām, and hence as superfluous in sense as redundant in meter. [Is not prāpada 'toe'?] The verse is nearly RV. x. 163. 4, which, however, omits bhasadyām, and reads, after grōṇibhyām, bhāsadāt, indicating the whole region of anus and pudenda. Ppp. ends the verse (like 2 and 4) with vrhāmasi. Several of our mss., with two or three of SPP's, carelessly begin with urū-. MP. has in b jaṅghābhyām for pārṣṇibhyām, and in d dhvaṅsasas. The verse seems to be scanned by the Anukr. as 8 + 7 : 8 + 11 = 34.

6. From thy bones, marrows, sinews, vessels, (two) hands, fingers, nails, I eject for thee the yākṣma.

Pānt is distinctively 'palm,' and might properly be so rendered here. Nearly all our saṁhitā-mss., with most of SPP's, omit the visarga before snāvabhyo. Ppp. has a different a, c, d: hastebhyas te māṅsebhyaḥ . . . : yākṣmam pṛṣṭibhyo majjabhyo nādyānt virvabhāmasi. The Anukr. scans as 7+7 : 9+8=31.

7. What [yākṣma is] in thine every limb, every hair, every joint — the yākṣma of thy skin do we, with Kaçyapa's ejector (vībarhā) eject away (viṣvañc).

The first half-verse corresponds to RV. x. 163. 6. a, b, which (as also MP.) reads thus: āṅgād-āṅgāl lomno-lomno jātām pārvāṇi-parvāṇi; and Ppp. agrees with it, except in having baddham for jātām; Ppp. also omits d. In d our P. M., with some of SPP's mss., read vībar-, as does also the comm. [vīvarham]. In our edition, an accent-mark has fallen out under -ñcaṇi in e.

34. Accompanying the sacrifice of an animal.

[Atharvan. — pācupatyam ; paçubhāgakarāṇam. trāiṣṭubham.]

Found in Pāipp. iii.; and also in the Black-Yajus texts, TS. (iii. 1. 4¹⁻³), and K. (xxx. 8, in part). Used by Kāuç. (44. 7) in the vaçāçamana ceremony, accompanying the anointing of the vaçā; in the same, vs. 5 accompanies (44. 15) the stoppage of the victim's breath; and the same verse appears in the funeral rites (81. 33), with verses from xviii. 2 and 3, in connection with the lighting of the pile. This hymn and the one next following are further employed among the kāmyāni, with invocation of Indra and Agni, by one who "desires the world" (59. 21: "desires over-lordship of all the world," comm.). In Vāit. (10. 16), the hymn (so the comm.) is said on the release of the victim from the sacrificial post in the paçubandha.

Translated: Weber, xiii. 207; Ludwig, p. 433; Griffith, i. 75. — See also Roth, Ueber den AV. p. 14.

1. The lord of cattle, who rules over (īç) the cattle, the four-footed, and who also over the two-footed — let him, bought off, go to [his] sacrificial portion; let abundances of wealth attach themselves to (sac) the sacrificer.

In the TS. version, this verse comes second (the verse-order being 5, 1, 3, 4, 2). Both TS. and K. have at the beginning yéṣām, which Ppp. supports by reading eṣām, and which rectifies the meter of a: this gives quite a different application to c, and a different cast to the meaning of the verse. TS. has also ca for yās in b, ayām ('yām') for sā in c, and it ends (better) with yājamānasya santu. K. (Weber) has for b catuspāda uta ye dvīpādaḥ, and for c niṣkritās te yajñiyam bhāgam yantu; and Ppp. differs from it only slightly, adding vā after uta in b, and ending c with yajñiyā yānti lokam. Apparently it is the lord of cattle who is to be bribed to content himself with his sacrificial share, in lieu of taking the whole. The Anukr. does not heed the irregularities of meter in a, b. [The Ppp. form of b seems to be catuspādām uta vā ye dvīpādaḥ!]

2. Do ye, releasing (pra-muc) the seed of being, assign progress (gātī) to the sacrificer, O gods; what hath stood brought hither (upākṛta), strenuous (çaçamānā), let it go upon the dear path of the gods.

TS. (and K.?) rectifies the meter of a (whose irregularity the Anukr. ignores) by reading pramuñcāmānās; it also has jīvām for prīyām in d. Ppp. gives gopā for retas in a, and in b makes dhatta and devās change places; in d it reads eti. Prīyām may qualify the subject in d: 'let it, dear [to the gods], go' etc. Upākṛta and çaçamānā have their usual technical senses, 'brought to the sacrifice' and 'efficient in the performance of religious duty'; the latter is explained by the comm. alternatively, as "being put to death" or "leaping up" (root çaç)! Devās is, according to him, first "the breaths, sight etc.," then "the gods, Agni etc." [E. Sieg discusses pāthas, Gurupūjākaumudī, p. 98.]

3. They who, giving attention to (anu-dhī) the one being bound, looked after [him] with mind and with eye—let the divine Agni at first (āgre) release them, he the all-working, in unison with (sam-rā) progeny.

TS. and MS. (i. 2. 15) have badhyāmānās for dīdhyānās, and TS. follows it with abhyātkṣ-; and in c combines agnis tām; MS. also has tām. Both read in d prajāpati for viçvāḥkarmā; and TS. ends with samvidānās. Ppp. has in c mumukta devās, and, for d, prajāpatiḥ prajābhis samvidānām; it then adds another verse: yeṣāṃ prāṇo na badhnanti baddham gavāṃ paçūnām uta pāuruṣāṇām: indras tām (i.e. tām agre pra etc.). The comm. reads in a vadhyāmānam, which is better; he explains samrānās by saha çabdāyamānas, as if from the root rā 'bark'! Comparison with the next verse seems to show the other animals, comrades of the victim, to be aimed at in the verse. [Cf. Weber's notes, p. 209, and esp. his reference to ÇB. iii. 7. 45. — MS. has tām, p. tām: see above, page xc.]

4. The cattle that are of the village, all-formed, being of various forms, manifoldly of one form—let the divine Vāyu at first release them, Prajāpati, in unison with progeny.

TS. and K. have āranysās 'of the forest' in a, for grāmyās, and TS. combines vāyūs tām in c, and ends again with -vidānaḥ. TA. (iii. 11) has two versions (vss. 29, 32), of which the second precisely agrees with TS., while the first has grāmyās, like our text (and agnis tām in c). Ppp. is quite different: ya āranysās paçavo viçvarūpā uta ye kūrūpāḥ: . . . mumukta devaḥ prajāpatiḥ prajābhis samvidānām.

5. Foreknowing, let them first (pūṛva) receive the breath (prāṇā) coming to [them] forth from the limbs. Go to heaven; stand firm with thy bodies; go to paradise (svargā) by god-traveled roads.

Ppp. has devās for pūrve in a, tābhyām for divam in c, and at the end -bhiḥ śivebhiḥ. TS. reads gr̥hṇanti in a; and TS. K. MS. (ii. 5. 10 c, d) invert the order of c and d, and give the better reading śadhīṣu for divāṇi gacha [cf. RV. x. 16. 3]; MS. also has hutās for svargam. The comm. makes pūrve mean "the gods previously stationed in the atmosphere"; perhaps it is 'before the demons get hold of it.'

35. To expiate errors in the sacrifice: to Viçvakarman.

[Aṅgiras. — vāiçvakarmaṇam. trāiṣṭubham : 1. bṛhatīgarbhā ; 4, 5. bhurij.]

Found (except vs. 5, and in the verse-order 2, 3, 1, 4) in Pāipp. i. The same four verses are found in TS. (iii. 2. 8¹⁻³ : in the order 2, 4, 3, 1), and the first three in MS. (ii. 3. 8 : in the order 1, 3, 2). The hymn is used by Kāuḥ. (38. 22) in a rite intended, according to the comm., to prevent faults of vision (dṛṣṭidoṣanivāraṇāya; Keçava says "to prevent rain," vṛṣṭinivāraṇāya; perhaps his text is corrupt), accompanying the eating of something in an assembly. Its employment (59. 21) with the hymn next preceding was noticed under the latter. The comm. (differing in his reading and division of the rules from the edited text of Kāuḥ.) declares it to be used in all the sava sacrifices, to accompany the purastād homas (59. 23-4 : uttareṇa savapurastāddhomān); and vs. 5 is used (3. 16) with a purastād homa in the parvan sacrifices. In Vāit. the hymn appears (9. 7) in the cāturmāsya sacrifice, with two oblations to Mahendra and Viçvakarman respectively; and again (29. 22) in the agnicayana. In all these applications there is nothing that suits the real character of the hymn.

Translated: Weber, xiii. 211; Ludwig, p. 302 (vss. 1-4); Griffith, i. 76.

1. They who, partaking [of soma] (bhaks), did not prosper (rāḥ) in good things, whom the fires of the sacrificial hearth were distressed about (anu-tapya) — what was the expiation (avayā) of their ill-sacrifice, may Viçvakarman ('the all-worker') make that for us a good sacrifice.

The translation implies emendation of dūriṣṭis in c to -tes, and of tān in d to tām; tām is read by the comm., as well as by TS. and MS., and SPP. even admits it into his text, though nearly all his mss., as well as ours, read tān. Our P. and M. read āvṛdhūs at end of a; TS. has ānrhūs, MS. ānaçūs. TS. elides the a of anu in b; it begins c with iyām for yā, and ends it with dūriṣṭyāi, thus supporting our emendation. Both TS. and MS. give kr̥notu in d, and MS. puts it after viçvakarmā. The pada-mss. read in c avaçyā, but SPP. alters his pada-text to ava-yāḥ, on the authority of the comm.; it is a matter of indifference, as the concluding element, in spite of the native grammarians, is doubtless the root yā. Ppp. gives dūriṣṭā sviṣṭam in c, d. The various readings, here and in the following verses, are in good part of the kind which show that the text-makers were fumbling over matter which they did not understand. The comm. is no better off. Here, in a, he is uncertain whether to take nā as 'as if' or 'not,' and to make vāsūni object of bhaksāyantas or of ānrhūs (= vardhitavantas, which is not bad). [The fires, pāda b, are personified in like fashion at AGS. iv. 1. 2, 3.] The verse (12+12:9+11=44) is much more irregular than the definition of the Anukr. admits.

2. The seers declare the master (-pāti) of the sacrifice by reason of sin disproportioned, distressed about [his] offspring. What honeyed drops he offended in (? apa-rādhi), with them let Viçvakarman unite (sam-sṛj) us.

MS. has in a the equivalent yājamānam; its b reads vikāya prajāṁ anutāpya-mānāḥ; while TS. has prajā(h) nīrbhaktā(h) anutāpyamānāḥ, and Ppp. nīrbhāgatā bhāgād anutāpyamānā. TS. and MS. make the lost drops only two: madhavyān stokāu . . tābhyaṁ, with tāu instead of yān, and hence rarādha. The translation implies correction to madhavy-, as read by both the parallel texts and the comm.; SPP's text agrees with ours in reading the madhavy- of all the mss. (except three of SPP's, which follow the comm.). All the samhitā-mss. make the absurd combination naṣ tēbbhiḥ in d, seeming to have in mind the participle naṣṭa; SPP. retains naṣtēbbhis in his text, while ours emends to naṣ tēbbhis, as given in the comment to Prāt. ii. 31. Ppp. has our second half-verse as its 3 c, d; it reads madhavyān stokān uṣa yā rarādha samā mā tarāis sṛjad viṣvakarmā. The comm. takes anu and taṣy- in b as two independent words; he explains uṣa rarādha in c by antaritān kṛtavān, which is doubtless its virtual meaning. [W's prior draft reads: "what honeyed drops he failed of" — that is, 'missed.']

3. Thinking the soma-drinkers to be unworthy of gifts (? adānyā), [though] knowing of the sacrifice, [he is] not wise (dhiṛa) in the conjuncture (samayā); in that this man is bound having committed a sin, do thou, O Viṣvakarman, release him for his well-being.

The offense here had in view is far from clear. Instead of adānyā (which occurs only here), TS. has the apparently unintelligent ananyān; MS. reads ayajñiyān yajñt-yān māny- 'thinking the unfit for offering to be fit for offering' (or vice versa); both have in b prāṇsya for yajñsya, and samaré for -yé. Ppp. gives the second half-verse as 2 c, d, and ends it with pra mumugdhy enaiṁ. TS. MS. have no yāt at beginning of c; TS. gives énaç cakṛvān māhi, and MS. éno mahāc cakṛvān b-, and TS. eṣāṁ for eṣā. The comm. explains adānyān as ajñatvāropeṇa dānānarhān, takes na in b as particle of comparison, and makes samaya equal samgrāma: "as if one by confidence in the strength of his own arm should think the opposing soldiers despicable"! The verse (11+11: 10+12=44) has marked irregularities which the Anukr. ignores.

4. Terrible [are] the seers; homage be to them! what sight [is] theirs, and the actuality (satyā) of their mind. For Brihaspati, O bull (mahiṣā), [be] bright (dyumānt) homage; O Viṣvakarman, homage to thee! protect thou us.

The translation follows our text, though this is plainly corrupted. TS. makes b less unintelligible by reading cākṣuṣas for cākṣur yāt, and samdhāu for satyām; Ppp. has in the half-verse only minor variants: bhīma for ghorās, 'stu for astu, samdrk for satyam. In c, TS. has mahl śāt for the senseless mahiṣa, and the comm. presents the same; Ppp. reads brhaspate mahiṣāya dīve: namo viṣv- TS. gives for d nāmo viṣvā-karmaṇe sā u pātva asmān. In d all the pada-mss. have the strange blunder pāhi, for pāht as required by the sense and by the samhitā-text; and SPP. adopts the blunder, thus giving a pada-reading that is inconvertible into his own samhitā. The comm. takes ṛṣayas in a as "the breaths, sight etc.," and satyam in b as yathārthadarṣi; and he finds on this interpretation the use in Kāuc. 38. 22, "against faults of vision."

5. The sacrifice's eye, commencement, and face: with voice, hearing, mind I make oblation. To this sacrifice, extended by Viṣvakarman, let the gods come, well-willing.

The verse is found in no other text, and is perhaps not a proper part of the hymn; it is repeated below as xix. 58. 5. A few of the samhitā-mss. (including our O.) ignore the ā at beginning of d. The comm. is not certain whether the three nominatives in a designate Agni or sacrificial butter; but he has no scruple about making them objects to juhomi.

36. To get a husband for a woman.

Found (except vss. 6, 8) in Pāipp. ii. (in the verse-order 1, 3, 2, 4, 5, 7). Used by Kāuṣ. (34. 13 ff.) among the women's rites, in a ceremony for obtaining a husband; vss. 5 and 7 are specially referred to or quoted, with rites adapted to the text. It is further regarded by the schol. and the comm. as signified by pativedana (75. 7), at the beginning of the chapters on nuptial rites, accompanying the sending out of a wooer or paranymp.

Translated: Weber, v. 219; xiii. 214; Ludwig, p. 476; Grill, 55, 102; Griffith, i. 78; Bloomfield, 94, 322. — Cf. Zimmer, p. 306.

1. Unto our favor, O Agni, may a wooer come, to this girl, along with our fortune (bhāga). Enjoyable (juṣṭā) [is she] to suitors (varā), agreeable at festivals (sāmana); be there quickly good-fortune for her with a husband.

The text is not improbably corrupt. Ppp. reads in a, b sumatiṁ skandaloke idam ām kumāryāmāno bhagena; but it combines c and d much better into one sentence by reading for d oṣam patyā bhavati (-tu?) subhage 'yam. The comm. explains *sambhala*s as sambhāśakaḥ samādātā vā; or else, he says, it means hiṁśakaḥ pūrvam abhilāṣaviḡhātī kanyām anicchan puruṣaḥ. He quotes ĀpGS. i. 4 to show that varā also means paranymp. Juṣṭā he quotes Pāṇini to prove accented juṣṭā. In d he reads uṣam, and declares it to signify sukhakarām. [Bergaigne, Rel. véd. i. 159, takes sāmana as = 'marriage.']

2. Fortune enjoyed by Soma, enjoyed by Brahman, brought together by Aryaman; with the truth of divine Dhātār, the husband-finder I perform (kr).

Ppp. has a mutilated first half-verse: somajuṣṭo aryamṇā sambhṛto bhaga; and at the end patirvedanam. The comm. understands in a brahma- to mean the Gandharva, who and Soma are the first husbands of a bride (xiv. 2, 3, 4). He does not see in bhaga anything but kanyārūpam bhāgadheyam; but the meaning "favors" is not impossible.

[Both bhagam ("fortune" or "favors") and pativedanam (the ceremony called "husband-finder") are objects of kr̥ṇomi; which, accordingly, needs to be rendered by 'make' or 'procure' for the one combination and by 'perform' for the other. It is hardly a case of Zeugma. — Bloomfield notes that sambhṛta contains a conscious allusion to sambhala, vs. 1.]

3. May this woman, O Agni, find a husband; for king Soma maketh her of good-fortune; giving birth to sons, she shall become chief consort (māhīṣī); having gone to a husband, let her, having good-fortune, bear rule (vi-rāj).

Three mss. (including our P.O.) read nāri in a. [For videṣṭa in a (*Grammar*² § 850 a),] Ppp. has videṣṭu; at end of b it reads -gam kṛnotu; and it changes the second half-verse into an address by reading bhavāsi, and subhage vi rājā. The comm. explains mahiṣī as mahanīyā cṛeṣṭhā bhāryā. The fourth pāda is best scanned as jagatī, with resolution ga-tu-ā [or insert sā before subhāgā].

4. As, O bounteous one (maghāvan), this pleasant covert hath been dear to the well-settled (suśād) wild beasts, so let this woman be enjoyed of Bhaga, mutually dear, not disagreeing with her husband.

The translation here involves emendation of the unmanageable suśādā in b to suśādām, as suggested by iii. 22. 6. SPP. has in his pada-text suśādāḥ (as if nom. of suśādās), and makes no note upon the word — probably by an oversight, as of our pada-mss. only Op. has such a reading; the comm. understands suśādās, and explains it by sukhena sthātum योग्याḥ ‘comfortable to dwell in’; which is not unacceptable. The comm. also has in a maghavān, and in d abhirādhayantī (= abhivardhayantī, or else putrapaṣvādibhiḥ samrddhā bhavantī). Ppp. has at the beginning yathā khamram maghavān cārur eṣu, and, in c, d, yam vayanī jṣṭā bhagasyā ’stu sampr-. All our saṁhitā-mss. save one (H.), and half of SPP’s, give eṣāḥ pr- in a-b; but the comment to Prāt. ii. 57 quotes this passage as illustration of the loss of its final visarga by eṣās. Kāuṣ. (34. 14) evidently intends an allusion to this verse in one of its directions: mṛgā-kharād vedyām mantroktāni ‘the articles mentioned in the text on the sacrificial hearth from a wild beast’s covert,’ but the comm. does not explain the meaning. The Anukr. ignores the redundancy of a syllable in c. [Pronounce jṣṭā iyam and reject nāri? — The use of sāmpriya in dual and plural is natural: its extension to the singular is rather illogical (cf. TS. iv. 2. 4), unless we assign intensive value to saṁ (‘very dear’).]

5. Ascend thou the boat of Bhaga, full, unailing; with that cause to cross over hither a suitor who is according to thy wish.

Or pratikāmyā may perhaps mean ‘responsive to thy love.’ Ppp. has in a ā ruha, in b anuparas-, and for c, d trayo pūṣā hitam yaṣ patīṣ patikāmyāḥ. The comm. understands upa- in c as an independent word. With this verse, according to the comm., the girl is made to ascend a properly prepared boat.

6. Shout to [him], O lord of riches; make a suitor hither-minded; turn the right side to every one who is a suitor according to thy wish.

Circumambulation with the right side toward one is a sign of reverence. A krandaya in a is perhaps a real causative, ‘make him call out to us’; the comm. takes it so. His explanation [page 332] of the accompanying rite is: “offering rice in the night, one should make the girl step forward to the right.”

7. Here [is] gold, bdellium; here [is] āukṣā, likewise fortune; these have given thee unto husbands, in order to find one according to thy wish.

Āukṣā (cf. āukṣagandhi, iv. 37. 3) seems to be some fragrant product of the ox; or it may perhaps come from ukṣ ‘sprinkle,’ but not through ukṣan. The mss. vary here, as everywhere else, in an indiscriminate manner between gūggulu and gūlgulu; here the majority of ours have -lg-, and the great majority of SPP’s have -gg-; but -gg- is accepted (as elsewhere) in our edition, and -lg- in the other ; Ppp. reads -lg-, the comm. -gg-. Ppp. has further vayam ukṣo atko bhaga ; and, in c-ḍ, adhukḥ patik-. The comm. defines guggulu as " a well-known kind of article for incense," and for āukṣa he quotes from Keçava (kāuçikasūtrabhāṣyakārās) the couplet given in Bloomfield's Kāuçika on p. 335 (but reading surabhīn gāndhān kṣīraṁ). The comm., p. 332, explains that with this verse is to be performed a binding on and fumigation and anointing of the girl with ornaments, bdellium, and āukṣa respectively. [BR., iv. 947, suggest pratikāmyāya.]

8. Hither let Savitar conduct for thee, conduct a husband that is according to thy wish ; do thou assign [him] to her, O herb.

The second nayatu is a detriment equally to sense and to meter ; the Anukr. counts it to a, and the pada-mss. mark the division accordingly. Emendation of tvām in c to tām is strongly suggested. The verse hardly belongs to the hymn as originally made up ; there has been no reference elsewhere to an " herb " ; nor does Kāuç. introduce such an element.

In the concluding anuvāka [6.] are 5 hymns, 31 verses : the Anukr. says accordingly triṅçadekādhiho ntyah.

This is the end also of the fourth prapāthaka.

[One or two mss. sum up the book as 36 hymns and 207 verses.]

Book III.

[The third book is made up largely of hymns of 6 verses each. It contains 13 such hymns, but also six hymns (namely 4, 7, 13, 16, 24, 30) of 7 verses each, six hymns (namely 5, 6, 11, 15, 19, 29) of 8 verses each, two hymns (namely 12, 17) of 9 verses each, two hymns (namely 20, 21) of 10 verses each, one hymn (namely 31) of 11 verses, and one hymn (namely 10) of 13 verses. See Weber's introduction to his translation, p. 178. The possibility of critical reduction to the norm is well illustrated by hymn 31 — compare pages 1 and 37. The whole book has been translated by Weber, Indische Studien, vol. xvii. (1885), pages 177-314.]

1. Against enemies.

[Atharvan. — senāmohanam. bahudevatyam. trāiṣṭubham : 2. virāḍgarbhā bhurij ; 3, 6. anuṣṭubh ; 5. virāṭpurauṣṭuh.]

Found in Pāipp. iii., next after the one which here follows it. In Kāuṣ. (14. 17), this hymn and the next are called mohanāni 'confounders,' and are used in a rite (14. 17-21) for confounding an enemy's army; its details have nothing to do with those of the hymns.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 518; Weber, xvii. 180; Griffith, i. 81; Bloomfield, 121, 325.

1. Let Agni, knowing, go against our foes, burning against the impregator, the niggard; let him confound (mohaya-) the army of our adversaries (pāra); and may Jātavedas make them handless.

Ppp. makes ṣatrūn and vidvān in a change places. SPP. reports that the text used by the comm. reads naḥ after agnir both here and in 2. 1 a. The comm. signalizes the beginning of the book by giving absurd etymologies of agni at the length of nearly a page. Pāda c lacks a syllable, unless we allow ourselves to resolve sé-na-ām.

2. Ye, O Maruts, are formidable for such a plight; go forward upon [them], kill, overcome! The Vasus have killed [them]; suppliant [are] these; for let Agni, their messenger, go against [their foes], knowing.

The second half-verse is rendered literally as it stands, but is certainly badly corrupt. Ppp. has amīmṛdam vasavo nāthitebhyo agnir hy eṣān vidvān pratyetu ṣatrūn, which is much more acceptable: nāth- would be 'for [us] who supplicate.' Dūtas seems to have blundered in here out of 2. 1 a. Ludwig emends nāthitās to -tān, which would improve c, but leave it unconnected with d. In our edition prāty etu is an erratum for pratyētu, which all the mss. read. The comm., with his customary neglect of accent, takes ugrās in a as vocative. He takes idhīce as a locative (= apradhṛṣye sanigrāma-lakṣaṇe karmani), against the testimony of the other passages where the word occurs, and supplies matsahāyās. In b, he reads (with a couple of SPP's mss. that follow him) mṛṇātas, and takes it (again against the accent) as accus. pl. Amīmṛṇan in c he renders as an imperative. The meter of the verse (11 + 11 : 12 + 13 = 47) is capable of being fitted to the description of the Anukr. [11 + 10 : 12 + 12 = 45] by duly managing the resolutions. [Aufrecht, KZ. xxvii. 219 (1885), reconstructs the vs., putting mṛḍāyata for mṛṇāta in b and reading c, d thus: amīmṛḍan vāsavo nāthitāso agnir hi çatrūn pratyēti vidhyan. Cf. Bloomfield, 326. — Roth gives (in his notes) mṛdata for mṛṇata and (in his collation) yeṣām for hy eṣām, as Ppp. readings.]

3. The army of enemies, O bounteous one, playing the foe against us — do ye (two), O Vṛtra-slaying Indra, Agni also, burn against them.

The verse is found also as SV. ii. 1215, which reads çatruyatām in b, and begins c with ubhāu tāṃ (tām is read by the comm., and is called for as an emendation in our verse); it also has the correct accent amitrāsenaām, which is found in only two of our mss. (O.Op.) and three of SPP's; both editions read -sēnām. In our text, āgnīc in d is a misprint for agnīc. [SPP. combines asmān ch-, badly: cf. i. 19. 4, note.]

4. Impelled, O Indra, forwards (? pravātā) by thy (two) bays — let thy thunderbolt go forth, slaughtering (pra-mṛ) the foes; smite the on-coming, the following, the fleeing (pārāñc); scatter their actual intent.

The verse is RV. iii. 30. 6; which, however, reads at the beginning prā sū te (as does also the comm.), accents in c praticō anūcāḥ (and the comm. claims the same for our text), and has for d viçvam̐ satyān̐ kṛṇuhi viçtām astu, which is even more unintelligible than our text. Weber proposes viçvaksatyām as a compound, "turning itself in every direction"; this, however, makes nothing out of -satyam. Ludwig translates "fulfil their design in all [both] directions," which is not very clear. Ppp. reads viçvam̐ viçtām̐ kṛṇuhi satyam̐ eṣām̐; also quite obscure. The comm. takes satyam as "established, settled," and viçvak kṛṇuhi as "scatter, unsettle, make uncertain." One would like to take viçvak- as something like 'contrariwise,' with the general sense "turn their plans against themselves." Ppp. has further nūaḥ for anūcas in c.

5. O Indra, confound the army of our enemies; with the blast of fire, of wind, make them disappear, scattering.

The defective first half-verse is completed by Ppp. in this form: manomohanam̐ kṛṇva (i.e. kṛṇavas ?) indrā 'mitrebhyas tvam. The second half-verse is also 2. 3 c, d. The comm. explains dhrāḥjyā by dahanaviçaye yā vegitā gatis tathāvidhayā vegagatyā tayor eva vā gatyā.

6. Let Indra confound the army; let the Maruts slay with force; let Agni take away its eyes; let it go back conquered.

All the mss. read indra, vocative, at the beginning of the verse; but SPP's text, as well as ours, emends to indraḥ s-; and this the comm. also has. The comm. further in c dhattām instead of dattām.

2. Against enemies.

[Atharvan. — senāmohanam. bahudevatyam. trāiṣṭubham: 2-4. anuṣṭubh.]

Found in Päipp. iii., next before the hymn here preceding. Used in Kāuṣ. only with the latter, as there explained.

Translated: Weber, xvii. 183; Griffith, i. 82; Bloomfield, 121, 327. — Cf. Bergaigne-Henry, Manuel, p. 139.

1. Let Agni our messenger, knowing, go against [them], burning against the imprecator, the niggard; let him confound the intents of our adversaries; and may Jātavedas make them handless.

All the mss. have in a the false accent praty étu (seemingly imitated from 1. 2 d, where hl requires it), and SPP. retains it; our edition makes the necessary emendation to práty etu. Ppp. appears to have çatrūn instead of vidvān at end of a.

2. Agni here hath confounded the intents that are in your heart; let him blow (dham) you away from [our] home; let him blow you forth in every direction.

Ppp. has dhamātu for -matu both times. The comm. renders anūmuhat by mohayatu, in accordance with his doctrine that one verbal form is equivalent to another.

3. O Indra! confounding [their] intents, move hitherward with [their] design (ākūti); with the blast of fire, of wind, make them disappear, scattering.

The second half-verse is identical with 1. 5 b, c. Pāda b apparently means 'take away their design, make them purposeless'; the comm., distorting the sense of arvān, makes it signify "go against [their army], with the design [of overwhelming it]." Ppp. reads ākūtyā 'dhi (i.e. -tyās adhi?). In our edition, restore the lost accent-mark over the -dra of Indra in a.

4. Go asunder, ye designs of them; also, ye intents, be confounded; also what is today in their heart, that smite thou out from them.

All the mss. have in b cittāni, as if not vocative, and SPP. retains the accent, while our text emends to cittāni; the comm. understands a vocative. The comm. further takes vyākūtayās as one word, explaining it as either viruddhāḥ saṅkalpāḥ or else (qualifying devās understood) as çatrūṇām vividhākūtyutpādakāḥ. [For d, rather, 'that of them smite thou out from [them].']

5. Confounding the intents of those yonder, seizing their limbs, O Apvā, go away; go forth against [them]; consume [them] in their hearts with pangs (çóka); pierce the enemies with seizure (grāhi), the foes with darkness.

The verse is RV. x. 103. 12, which reads in a cittām pratilobhāyanti, and, for d, andhēnā 'mltrās tāmasā sacantiām; and SV. (ii. 1211) and VS. (xvii. 44) agree with RV. Both pada-texts give in b grhānā, as impv.; but the word is translated above (in accordance with Grassmann's suggestion) as aor. pple. fem. grhānā, because this combines so much better with the following pare 'hi. A number of the samhitā-mss.

(including our P.s.m.E.s.m.I.H.p.m.) make the curious blunder of accenting apvè in b: the comm. explains it as a pāpadevatā, adding the precious etymology apavāyayati apagamayati sukham prāṇāṅ ca. [Weber, ix. 482, thinks apvā has reference to impurity (root pū) and to diarrhoea as caused by fear. To Weber's citation (xvii. 184) from the Purāna, add the line near the beginning of the Bhīṣma book, MBh. vi. 1. 18, çrutvā tu ninadam yodhāḥ çakṛn-mūtram prasusruvuh.] The Anukr. ignores the redundancy in a; emendation to cittā would remove it.

6. Yonder army of our adversaries, O Maruts, that comes contending against us with force — pierce ye it with baffling darkness, that one of them may not know another.

The verse is an addition (as vs. 14) to RV. x. 103 [Aufrecht, 2d ed'n, vol. ii. p. 682], but forms a proper part of SV. (ii. 1210) and VS. (xvii. 47). RV.VS. read in b abhyāti nas (for asmān āty abhi); SV. has abhyēti; all have in c gūhata for vidhyata; and with the latter Ppp. intends to agree, but has guhata. For eṣām in d, RV. gives amīṣām, SV. etēṣām, and VS. amī and accordingly at the end jāndn. It takes violence to compress our b into a trīṣṭubh pāda.

3. For the restoration of a king.

[Atharvan.—nānādevatyam utā"gneyam. trīṣṭubham : 3. 4-p. bhurik pañkti ; 5, 6. anuṣṭubh.]

Found in Pāipp. ii. (our vs. 5 coming last). Used by Kāuç. (16. 30), with the hymn next following, in a ceremony for the restoration of a king to his former kingdom. In Vāit. (9. 2), vs. 1 accompanies a morning oblation to Agni anīkavant in the sākamedha rite of the cāturmāsya sacrifice; and again (30. 27), vs. 2 is used at the end of the sāutrāmaṇi ceremony.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 441; Weber, xvii. 185; Griffith, i. 83; Bloomfield, 112, 327.— Cf. Bergaigne-Henry, Manuel, p. 140.

1. He hath shouted (? krand); may he be protector of his own here; O Agni, bend apart the two widened firmaments (ródasī); let the all-possessing Maruts harness (yuj) thee; lead thou hither with homage yon man of bestowed oblation.

This is a very literal translation of the obscure verse, which is plainly an adaptation or corruption, or both, of a RV. verse in a hymn to Agni (vi. 11. 4: it is repeated, without variant, in MS. iv. 14. 15): ādīdyutat sv āpāko vibhāvā 'gne yājasva ródasī urūct: āyūm ná yām nāmasā rātaḥavyā añjānti suprayāsam pāñca jānāḥ; and, what is very noteworthy, the latter half-verse of RV. is decidedly more closely reflected in the Ppp. version: amūm naya nāmasā rātaḥavyo yujānti suprajasaṁ pañca jānāḥ; Ppp. has also bhavat at end of a. It could not be expected to find concinnity and sense in a verse so originated; the address seems to be changed from Agni to Indra, and some sort of comparison aimed at between the latter and the reinstated king. The pāda-text divides in a svaapāḥ, and, as the word may be a part of the adaptation [of the original to the purpose of this hymn], the translation so treats it, instead of substituting, as Weber and Ludwig do, svaapāḥ; the comm. explains it both ways: svaktyānām prajānām pālakaḥ sukarmā vā. The comm. makes the king subject of ācīkradat in a, apparently takes vyācasva in b as one word (= vyāpnuhi), tvā in c as designating Agni (yujāntu = prāpnuvantu, tvatsahāyā bhavantu), and amūm in d as the king.

The Anukr. ignores the jagatī pāda (c) [or lets it offset a counted as 10!]. [The usual compound is sv-āpās; but sv-apās, though not quotable, is quite possible.]

2. Indra, the inspired one, however far away, let the ruddy ones set in motion hither (ā-cyāvaya-) in order to friendship, when the gods venture (?) for him a gāyatrī, a bṛhatī, a song (arkā), with the sāutrāmaṇī (ceremony).

This verse is nearly as obscure as the preceding, and probably as hopelessly corrupt. The “ruddy ones” in a are, according to the comm., priests (ṛtvij); Weber understands “horses,” Ludwig “somas.” The comm. takes dādhr̥ṣanta in d first from root dhr̥ (! = adhārayan), then apparently from dhr̥ṣ (pūrvam visrastāvayavam indram punaḥ sarvāvayavopetaṁ akurvan, citing TS. v. 6. 34); Ppp. has dādhr̥ṣanta; perhaps dādhr̥hanta might be made to yield the best sense; restoration of the augment would fill out the deficient meter, which the Anukr. fails to remark. R. conjectures “made firm for him the mighty gāyatrī as bolt.” About half the mss. (including our Bp.E.I.H.K.) accent in b sakhyāya; the same uncertainty as to this word appears elsewhere.

3. For the waters let king Varuṇa call thee; let Soma call thee for the mountains; let Indra call thee for these subjects (vīḥ); becoming a falcon, fly unto these subjects.

“For” may of course be “from” in a and b, as preferred by [the four] translators and comm. Ppp. reads, in a, b varuṇo juhāva somas tvā 'yaṁ hvayati; and again in c, indras tvā 'yaṁ hvayati. With the proper resolutions, this verse is a decent triṣṭubh; the Anukr. scans it as 11 + 10: 10 + 10 = 41. The verses in our text are wrongly numbered from this one on.

4. Let the falcon lead hither from far (pāra) the one to be called, living exiled in others' territory (kṣētra); let the (two) Aṣvins make the road for thee easy to go; settle together about this man, ye his fellows.

The translation follows both previous translators, and the comm. (= hvātavyam), in implying hāvryam in a instead of havyām ‘oblation’; yet Ppp. reads havis, which supports havyām. The comm., with several of SPP's mss., has avaruddham in b; for [the technical] aparuddhaḥ caran (and ava-gam, 6 d) compare especially PB. xii. 12. 6.

5. Let thine opponents call thee; thy friends have chosen [thee] against [them] (? pr̥tī); Indra-and-Agni, all the gods, have maintained for thee security (kṣēma) in the people (vīḥ).

The comm., and a few of SPP's mss. that follow it, have at the beginning vāyantu (= sāntatyena sevantām). Several samhitā-mss. (including our P.M.O.Op.) read pr̥tījānāḥ; Ppp. has the easier reading pañca janāḥ, with hvayanti for -ntu, and, in b, varṣata for avarṣata; also it ends with adīdharas. As in more than one other case, all the mss. accent tē in the second half-verse, and the pāda-text puts its double stroke of pāda-division before the word; and both editions read tē; but it should plainly be te, as our translation renders, and as the comm. also explains it. The comm. combines in b pr̥timitrās, making it mean “opposing friends”; the combination of ṛ ‘choose’ with pr̥tī is strange and obscure.

6. Whatever fellow disputes thy call, and whatever outsider — making him go away (ápañc), O Indra, then do thou reinstate (ava-gamaya) this man here.

The comm. explains sajātá and nśīya as samabala and nīkṣṣabala (!) [as at i. 19. 3], and ava gamaya as bodhaya. The Anukr. takes no notice of the metrical deficiency in a; emendation to -vādati would fairly rectify it. [For ava-gam, see note to vs. 4.]

4. To establish a king.

[Atharvan. — saptakam. āindram. trāiṣṭubham: 1. jagatī; 4, 5. bhurij.]

Found in Pāipp. iii. Used in Kāuç. only with the next preceding hymn (as there explained), although the two are of essentially different application, this one referring to a king who has been called or chosen, and has to be inaugurated as such. In Vāit. (13. 2), in the agniṣṭoma sacrifice, vs. 7 accompanies, with vii. 28, oblations to pathyā svasti and other divinities.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 252; Zimmer, p. 164; Weber, xvii. 190; Griffith, i. 84; Bloomfield, 113, 330. — Cf. Bergaigne-Henry, Manuel, p. 141.

1. Unto thee hath come the kingdom; with splendor rise forward; [as] lord of the people (viças), sole king, bear thou rule (vi-rāj); let all the directions call thee, O king; become thou here one for waiting on, for homage.

The translation implies in a agan, which is very probably the true reading, though the pada-mss. divide tvā: gan. The metrical redundancy in a, b is best removed by omitting prāñ (for which Ppp. and the comm. read prāk), which seems (as meaning also 'in the east') to have been added in order to make yet more distinct the comparison with the sun implied in úd ihi; the pada-text reckons the word wrongly to b, and the comm. renders it pūrvam 'formerly'; he takes vt rāja as "be resplendent," which is of course possible. The verse has but one real jagatī pāda (a). [With d (= vi. 98. 1 d), cf. nāmasopasādyas, used twice in RV.]

2. Thee let the people (viças) choose unto kingship (rājyā), thee these five divine directions; rest (çri) at the summit of royalty, at the pinnacle (kakúḍ); from thence, formidable, share out good things to us.

The verse is found also in TS. (iii. 3. 9²) and MS. (ii. 5. 10), with nearly accordant differences of reading: gāvo 'vṛṇata rājyāya in a; tvām havanta (MS. vardhanti) marútaḥ svarkāḥ for b; ḥsatrásyā kakúbhi (MS. kakúbhhiḥ) çīçriyānds in c. TB., moreover, has the second half-verse (in ii. 4. 77; the first half is our iv. 22. 2 a, b), agreeing with AV. except by giving ḥsatrásyā kakúbhis. Ppp. further varies the word by reading kakudhi; it also has in a vṛṇutām, and for d ato vasūni vi bhajāsy ugraḥ. A number of the mss. (including our O.Op.) read in a rājyāya, as, indeed, they generally disagree [in threefold wise] as to the accent of this word. P.M.W. have in a vṛṣatām. The comm. renders vṛṣman by çarīre, çrayasva by āssva.

3. Unto thee let thy fellows come, calling [thee]; Agni shall go along as speedy messenger; let the wives, the sons, be well-willing; thou, formidable, shalt see arrive (prati-ḥaç) much tribute.

Ppp. has in a, b yantu bhuvanasya jālā 'gnir dūto 'va jarase dadhāti, and combines in c jāyāṣ ḥ. The comm. finds in b an incomplete simile: "thy messenger, unassailable like fire, shall" etc.

4. Let the (two) Aṣvins thee first, — let Mitra-and-Varuṇa both, let all the gods, the Maruts, call thee ; then put (kṛ) thy mind unto the giving of good things ; from thence, formidable, share out good things to us.

With c compare RV. i. 54. 9 ḍ, which rectifies the meter by reading kṛṣva. The second half-verse is quite different in Ppp. : sajātānāṁ madhyameṣṭhe 'ha masyā (cf. ii. 6. 4 c ; iii. 8. 2 ḍ) sve kṣetre savite vi rāja. The third pāda is made bhurij by the change of kṛṣva to kṛnuṣva.

5. Run forth hither from the furthest distance ; propitious to thee be heaven-and-earth both ; king Varuṇa here saith this thus ; he here hath called thee ; [therefore (sá)] do thou come to this place.

Ppp. has babhūtām for ubhe stām at end of b, and ahvat svenam ehi at end of ḍ. SPP. reports all his pada-mss. as reading aha instead of āha in c ; no such blunder has been noted in ours. His ms. of the comm. also appears to have āhvat in ḍ, but doubtless only by an oversight of the copyist (under the next verse it gives ahvat in an identical phrase of exposition). MS. (ii. 2. 11 ; p. 24. 3) gives a pratīka reading ā prēhi paramāsyāḥ parāvātāḥ, while no corresponding verse is found in its text — or elsewhere, so far as is known, unless here.

6. Like a human Indra, go thou away ; for thou hast concurred (sam-jñā) in concord with the castes (?) ; he here hath called thee in his own station ; he shall sacrifice to the gods, and he shall arrange the people (vīças).

The translation of this obscure and difficult verse implies much and venturesome emendation in the first half : namely, in a, indra iva manusyāḥ, and in b vārṇāis. Weber also takes manusyās as meant for a nom. sing., and renders it "menschenge-staltet" ; the other translators understand manusyā vīças, as does the Pet. Lex. The Ppp. version, indro idam manusya pre 'hi, suggests -syāḥ, and is decidedly better in prehi (to be resolved into pr-e-hi, whence perhaps the corruption to parehi) ; the repeated vocative Indracindra (so the pada-text) is not to be tolerated. For b, Ppp. has sam hi yajñiyās tvā varuṇena samvidānaḥ, which is too corrupt to give us aid ; the emendation to vārṇāis is a desperate and purely tentative one, as there is no evidence that vārṇa had assumed so early the sense of 'caste.' Weber suggests that varuṇa here is equal to varana 'elector' ; Zimmer takes it as virtually for devāis : both entirely unsatisfactory. Ppp. ends the verse with so kalpayād dīçaḥ. To the comm. there is no difficulty ; the repeated vocative is out of reverence (ādarārtham) ; manusyās is a Vedic irregularity for -syān, or else qualifies prajās understood ; the plural varuṇāis is plur. majesticus for varuṇena ; kalpayāt, finally, is svasvariyāpāreṣu niyuñktām. The Anukr. passes without notice the jagatī pāda ḍ, it being easy to read the verse into 44 syllables.

7. The wealthy roads, of manifoldly various form, all, assembling, have made wide room for thee ; let them all in concord call thee ; to the tenth [decade of life] abide here formidable, well-willing.

Pathyā revatīs, divinities of good roads and welfare, are explained by the comm. as patho 'napetā mārgahitakārīṇya etatsamjñā devatāḥ ; or else pathyās is pathi sādha-vaḥ, and revatīs is āpas. Both editions read in ḍ vace 'hā, but the comm., with SPP's crotriyas V. and K., read vase 'hā, and the translation implies this. Ppp. offers no variants for the verse. Many of our samhitā-mss. (P.M.W.E.I.H.) retain the final visarga of samvidānāḥ before hv- in c; SPP. does not report any of his as guilty of such a blunder. [V. and K. recognize vaçehā as a variant.]

Ppp. appends another verse: yadī jareṇa haviṣā datvā gamayāmasi: atrā ta indraṣ kevalīr viço balihṛtas karat (cf. RV. x. 173. 6 c, d).

5. For prosperity: with a parṇā-amulet.

[Atharvan. — aṣṭakam. sāumyam. ānuṣṭubham: 1. purō nuṣṭuṣ triṣṭubh; 8. virāḍurobr̥hātī.]

Found (except vs. 8) in Pāipp. iii. Used by Kāuç. (19. 22), with viii. 5 and x. 3, 6, to accompany the binding on of an amulet for general prosperity (tejobalāyurdhanādī-ḥuṣṭaye, comm.). And the comm. quotes it from Nakṣ. K. [comm. should say Çānti K. — Bloomfield] as employed in a mahāçānti named āṅgirasī. [In the prior draft, W. writes "For success of a king: with" etc. as title of this hymn. Its place in the collection, next after iii. 3 and 4, and its second vs., seem to justify that title.]

Translated: Weber, xvii. 194; Griffith, i. 86; Bloomfield, 114, 331. — Vss. 6 and 7, Zimmer, p. 184, with comment.

1. Hither hath come this parṇā-amulet, strong, by strength slaughtering our rivals; force of the gods, milk of the herbs, let it quicken me with splendor unremittingly.

Ppp. has for ḍ mayī rāṣṭram jinvato aprayucchan. Āprayāvan in ḍ, which is read by all the mss. (hence by both editions) and the comm., is unquestionably to be emended (as suggested by BR., v. 1015) to -yāvam [Skt. Gram. 2 § 995 b, root yu; cf. yuch]; the word is quoted in the Prāt. text (iv. 56), but not in a way to determine its form (aprayāvādi). As the later verses show, parṇa is to be understood here as the tree of that name (Butea frondosa: comm. palāçavṛkṣa). The comm. raises no objection to āprayāvan, and explains it as either mām vihāyā 'napagantā san (with irregular exchange of case-forms), or else aprayātar, i.e. sarvadā dhāryamāṇa.

2. In me [maintain] dominion, O parṇā-amulet, in me maintain wealth; may I in the sphere of royalty be familiar (? nijā), supreme.

Compare the nearly corresponding vi. 54. 2, which suggests emendation of nijās to yujās ['may I be supreme above [any] ally or fellow-king' (yujās as abl.)]. Ppp. has rāṣṭram for kṣatram in a, and its ḍ reads yajā bhūyāsam uttarā, supporting the emendation. Our Bp. reads in c -vargré, as some of the mss. do in the other occurrences of this obscure word: the comm. explains it by āvarjane svādhitī-karaṇe 'appropriation,' and nija by ananyasakāya. [BR. give 'beständig' for nija.]

3. The dear amulet which the gods deposited hidden in the forest-tree — that let the gods give to us to wear, together with length of life (āyus).

Ppp. has for b vājim devāḥ priyam nidhim, and its second half-verse is taṁ ma indras saḥā "yusā maṇim dadātu bhartave.

4. The parṇā, Soma's formidable power, hath come, given by Indra, governed (çās) by Varuṇa; may I, shining greatly, wear it in order to length of life for a hundred autumns.

The translation implies emendation in c of the unmanageable priyāsam to bhriyāsam, an obvious improvement, adopted also by Weber, and supported by the reading of Ppp.,

tam ahañ bibharmi; the comm., too, though reading priy-, glosses it with bhriyāsam dhārayeyam. In b, Ppp. has sakhyas for çiṣtas. The comm. finds in somasya parṇā in an allusion to the origin of the parṇa-tree from a leaf (parṇa) of soma, and quotes for it TS. iii. 5. 7¹. Rōcamānas in c he uses as -nam, qualifying tām. The metrical definition of the verse is wanting in the Anukr. mss.; we may call it a nict tristubh. [See Weber's note on parṇā.]

5. The parṇā-amulet hath ascended me, in order to great unharmedness, so that I may be superior to patron (aryamān) and to ally (sañvidān).

Sañvidān is here taken as corresponding noun to the common adjective sañvidānā (the Pet. Lex., "possession"; Weber, "favor"); the comm. makes it samānañjānāt or samabalāt; and aryaman, according to him, comes from arīn yamayati, and means adhikabalaḥ puruṣpradātā ca. Ppp. combines mahyā 'riṣt- in b, and has for d manuṣyā adhi sañçataḥ (or sañmataḥ). All the mss., and SPP's text, read uttarās in c; our uttaras is a necessary emendation. [As to aryamān, cf. Weber's note.]

6. They that are clever chariot-makers, that are skilful smiths—subjects to me do thou, O parṇā, make all people (jānā) round about.

Ppp. begins yat takṣāṇo rath-, and its second half-verse is sarvāñs tvā 'urṇa randhayo 'pastin kṛṇu medinam. The comm. renders dhītvānas by dhītvārā mātsikāḥ 'fishermen,' and gives the technical definition of the caste of rathakāras. Weber (p. 196 ff.) treats with much fulness of these and other caste matters. Upastin the comm. explains, nearly enough correctly, by sevārtham samīpe vidyamānān upāsīnān vā.

7. They that are kings, king-makers, that are charioteers and troop-leaders—subjects to me do thou, O parṇā, make all people round about.

Our Bp. reads in b grāmaṇyāḥ, emended to ṇyāḥ; Kp. has grāmanyāḥ; Op. and D. (and, so far as appears, all SPP's pada-mss.) grāmanyāḥ; the word is divided by the RV. pada-text (grāmaṇīḥ), as in all reason it should be; and its division seems favored, if not required, by our Prāt. iii. 76. Ppp. has a quite different text: upastir astu vāiçya uta çūdra utā 'ryaḥ for a, b, with c, d as in its version of vs. 6 (but with tān ṛṇa [intending tān parṇa?] instead of tvā 'urṇa). Weber, on authority of ÇB. iii. 4. 1. 7, proposes to emend a to yé 'rājāno; the comm. explains the rājānas by anyadeçādhipāḥ; and rājakṛtas by rājye 'bhiṣīncanti 'ti sacivāḥ. [In SPP's Corrections (to p. 364), his J.P. are reported as dividing grāmaṇyāḥ.]

8. Parṇā art thou, body-protecting; a hero, from the same womb (yóni) with me a hero; with the year's brilliancy—therewith I bind thee on, O amulet.

Wanting in Ppp. The second pāda is damaged, in meter and in sense, by the apparently intruded vīrās.

The anuvāka [I.] ends here, having 5 hymns and 33 verses; the old Anukr. says: triñçannimittāḥ śaḍṛçesu (mss. -ḍarc-) kāryās tisraḥ.

6. Against enemies: with açvatthā.

[Jugadbijampuruṣa. — aṣṭarcam. vānaspatyāçvatthadevatyam. ānuṣṭubham.]

Found (except vs. 6) in Pāipp. iii. Used by Kāuç. (48. 3 ff.) in a rite of sorcery against enemies; vss. 7, 8 are specially quoted (48. 6, 5), with actions adapted to the text. The comm. also describes it as employed by the Naks. [comm. again errs; should be Čānti — Bloomfield] K. (17, 19) in a mahācānti called āṅgirasī.

Translated: A. Kuhn, Herabkunft des Feuers etc., 1859, p. 224, or 2d ed., p. 198; Weber, xvii. 204; Grill, 21, 104; Griffith, i. 87; Bloomfield, 91, 334.

1. The male (pūmāns) [is] born out of the male — the açvatthá forth from the khadīrā; let it smite my foes, whom I hate and who [hate] me.

A very acceptable emendation would be pāri jātás, since pāri is plainly accessory to the ablative pūmsás, as dāhi to khadīrāt in b (cf. ásatas pāri jajñiré, x. 7. 25). Ppp. retains the initial a of açvatthas, and begins đ with yāñç cā 'ham. The açvatthas begins as a parasite, usually on the çamī (fem.), this time from the hard khadīra (masc.).

2. Crush them out, O açvatthá, our violent foes, O expelling one, allied with Vṛtra-slaying Indra, with Mitra, and with Varuṇa.

The translation implies the reading of vāibādha in b as an independent word; it is so regarded by BR., Weber, the later translators, and the comm.; all the pada-mss. make it into a compound with dōdhatas, and both editions so write it. Ppp. reads instead, for b, çatrūn mayi bādha todhata. Some of our mss. (P.M.W.E.) read in a nī çr-; one of SPP's has sṛñhi. The comm. explains dōdhatas as bhṛçamī kampayitṛn; [but see Ved. Stud. ii. 10].

Ppp. adds a verse of its own: yathā 'çvatthas niṣṇāmi pūrvañ jātān utā 'parān (cf. x. 3. 13-15): evā pṛdanyatas tvam abhi tiṣṭha sahasvatā.

3. As thou, O açvatthá, didst break out [the khadīrā] within the great sea, so do thou break out all these, whom I hate and who [hate] me.

"The sea," doubtless the atmosphere, as explained by the comm. (and Weber). The comm. reads ābhinas in a, and two or three of SPP's mss. so far agree with him as to give the (blundering) nirābhinnas; this reading exhibits a much less startling and anomalous crowding-out of the root-final by the personal ending than does -abhinas (see my Skt. Gr. §555), and so is more acceptable. Some of SPP's mss. similarly mix up bhindhi and bhañdhi in c; the comm., of course, has the former. A part of the mss. (including our Bp.P.M.E.H.) leave mahati in b unaccented (as again at xi. 8. 2, 6). Ppp. yathā 'çvatthas vibhinaccham tāhata arṇave: evā me çatro cītāni viṣvag bhidhi sahasvatā (cf. our vs. 6 c, d).

4. Thou that goest about overpowering, like a bull that has overpowered — with thee here, O açvatthá, may we overpower our rivals.

Ppp. reads in a carati, as does also the comm., followed by two or three of SPP's mss. Ppp. further combines in b sāsahānāi 'va ṛç-, and ends đ with samviṣṭvahi. [The samhitā-mss. all combine iva ṛç- in b; see note to Prāt. iii. 46.]

5. Let perdition bind them, with unreleasable fetters of death — my foes, O açvatthá, whom I hate and who [hate] me.

Ppp. has avimokyāis in b, and (as in vs. 1) begins đ with yāñç cā 'ham. Several of our mss. (P.M.W.E.) have at the beginning the senseless reading simātu.

6. As, O açvatthá, ascending them of the forest-trees, thou dost put them beneath thee (ādharā), so the head of my foe do thou split apart and overcome.

Ppp. (as we saw above) has the second half of this verse, with variants, as its 3 c, d. What the vānaspatyé is, as distinguished from vānaspatī, is as obscure as the similar relation of ṛtū and ārtavó [iii. 10. 9 note]; possibly 'they of that sort, they and their kind'; our translation marks, rather mechanically, the distinction. The comm. says that here vanaspati means "the place where trees grow," and vānaspatya the trees themselves — which is an explanation quite after his kind.

7. Let them float forth downward, like a boat severed from its mooring (bāndhana); of them, thrust forth by the expelling one, there is no returning again.

Ppp. reads in c nurbādha; our Op. has vāibādha: praonuttānām. Astu in d, for asti, would be an improvement. The comm. gives a double explanation of bandhana, as either place or instrument of fastening. [The vs. recurs at ix. 2. 12, with sāyaka- for vāibādha. — W's collation of Op. gives prao, not práo!]

8. I thrust them forth with mind, forth with intent and incantation; forth with branch of tree, of açvatthá, we thrust them.

Ppp. has in a prāi'nān nudāmi (which makes the meter easier), and at the end correspondingly the active nudāmasi; for b it gives pra çtyena brāhmaṇā. The linguualization of the first n of enān is noted in Prāt. iii. 80, and the comment on that rule quotes the instance in c, but not that in a. According to Kāuç. the thing "mentioned in the text" (perhaps an effigy of the person aimed at, in the "vitals" of which something has been buried by the preceding rule) [having been put upon a boat] is with this verse and ix. 2. 4 pushed forth with a branch, and with vs. 7 made to float away.

7. Against the disease kṣetriyá.

[Bhṛgvaṅgiras. — saptarcam. yakṣmanāçanaadāivatam uta bahudevatyam. ānuṣṭubham :
6. bhurij.]

Found in Pāipp. iii., with few variants, but with vs. 5 at the end. Used by Kāuç. (27. 29) in a healing ceremony (its text does not specify the disease); and reckoned (26. 1, note) to the takmanāçana gāna. And the comm. quotes it as employed by the Nakṣ. [Çānti?] K. (17, 19) in the mahāçānti called kāumārī.

Translated: Weber, xvii. 208; Grill, 8, 105; Griffith, i. 89; Bloomfield, 15, 336.

1. On the head of the swift-running gazelle (haviṇá) is a remedy; he by his horn hath made the kṣetriyá disappear, dispersing.

Viṣāṇā is divided (vi-sānā) in the pada-text, as if from vi + sā 'unfasten' — which is, indeed, in all probability its true derivation, as designating primarily a deciduous horn, one that is dropped off or shed; and in this peculiarity, as distinguished from the permanent horns of the domestic animals, perhaps lies the reason of its application to magical remedial uses. The verse occurs also in ĀpÇS. xiii. 7. 16 [where most mss. have raghuṣyato]. For the kṣetriya, see above, ii. 8. [See p. 1045.]

2. After thee hath the bull-gazelle stridden with his four feet; O horn, do thou unfasten (vi-sā) the kṣetriyá that is compacted (?) in his heart.

Ppp. has a different d: yadi kimcit kṣetriyam hṛdi. The word-play in c, between viṣāṇā and vi-sā, is obvious; that any was intended with viṣūcīna in i d is very questionable. This verse, again, is found in ĀpÇS. ib., but with considerable variants: anu tvā hariṇo mygah padbhiḥ caturbhir akramit : viṣāṇe vi syāi 'taṁ granthīm yad asya gulphitām hr̥di; here it is a "knot" that is to be untied by means of the horn. One of our mss. (O.) has in c padbh̥ts, like ĀpÇS. The comm., followed by a couple of SPP's mss., further agrees with ĀpÇS. by reading gulphitam in c, and explains it as gulphavad grathitam. The occurrence of the rare and obscure guṣṭita [misprinted guṣṭitam] in ÇB. iii. 2. 2. 20 is also in connection with the use of a deer's horn.

3. What shines down yonder, like a four-sided roof (chad̥ts), therewith we make all the kṣetriyá disappear from thy limbs.

In our edition, téna in c should be ténā, as read by nearly all the sāṁhitā-mss. (all save our P.M.), and by SPP. The sense of a, b is obscure to the comm., as to us; he guesses first that it is "the deer-shaped thing extended in the moon's disk," or else "a deer's skin stretched on the ground"; chad̥ts is "the mat of grass with which a house is covered." Weber takes it as a constellation; Grill (mis translating pakṣa by "post"), as the gazelle himself set up on his four legs, with his horns for roof! If a constellation, it might be the Arab "manzil" γ, ζ, η, π Aquarii, which its shape and name connect with a tent: see Sūrya-Siddhānta, note to viii. 9 (under 25th asterism); this is not very far from the stars mentioned in the next verse [λ and ν Scorpionis].

4. The two blessed stars named Unfasteners (vic̥t), that are yonder in the sky — let them unfasten of the kṣetriyá the lowest, the highest fetter.

The verse is nearly identical with ii. 8. 1 above, which see [b recurs at vi. 121. 3 b; v. Schroeder gives the Kaṭha version of a, b, Zwei hss., p. 15, and Tübingen Katha-hss., p. 75]. Ppp. makes it in part yet more nearly so, by beginning with ud agātām bhagavatī, but reads in c vi kṣetriyam tvā 'bhy ānaḥ [cf. our ḥ b]; and its end and part of vs. 6 (which next follows) are defaced.

5. The waters verily [are] remedial, the waters disease-expelling, the waters remedial of everything; let them release thee from kṣetriyá.

The first three pādas are RV. x. 137. 6 a, b, c, save that RV. has sārvasya in c; but vi. 91. 3 below represents the same verse yet more closely.

6. If from the drink (? āsutī) that was being made the kṣetriyá hath come upon (vi-aḥ) thee, I know the remedy of it; I make the kṣetriyá disappear from thee.

The word āsutī is of doubtful and disputed sense; Weber says "infusio seminis" [as immediate cause of the "Erb-übel," which is Weber's version of kṣetriyá]; Grill, "gekochter Zauberkranke"; the comm., drav̥bhūtam annam 'liquidized food.'

7. In the fading-out of the asterisms, in the fading-out of the dawns also, from us [fade] out all that is of evil nature, fade out (apa-vas) the kṣetriyá.

Ppp. has tato 'śasām at end of b, and in c āmayat for durbhūtam. Emendation of asmāt in c to asmāt (as suggested by Weber) would notably improve the sense. The second pāda has a syllable too many, unless we make the double combination vāsó 'śāsām.

8. For authority.

[Atharvan.—mātram uta vaiçvadevam. trāiṣṭubham : 2, 6. jagatī; 4. 4-p. virāḍbṛhatigarbhā; 5. anuṣṭubh.]

Verses 1-4 found in Pāipp. i., but defaced. The hymn is used by Kāuç. (55. 17-18; also 55. 1, note), with i. 9, 30, etc., in the ceremony of reception of a Vedic student, and, according to the schol. (10. 19, note), in that for the generation of wisdom (the comm. says, as belonging to the āyusya gaṇa). Verses 5 and 6 are the same with vi. 94. 1, 2, and it is vi. 94, rather than these verses here, that is used in Kāuç. 12. 5 (the comm. blunderingly prescribes the use under both passages). Verse 4 has the same pratika as xiv. 1. 32 and one or the other of the two verses is taught in Vāit. (22. 1) as used "by Kāuçika" in the agniṣṭoma; but our Kāuç. has no such use, and it is doubtless xiv. 1. 32, 33 that he prescribes (79. 17 ff.) in the nuptial ceremonies; but the comm. reports the use here, as if it referred to vss. 4 and 5. The comm. further regards the hymn as employed by the Nakṣ. K. (18), in the āirāvātī rite, and by Parīçiṣṭa 5. 3; in both cases as an āyusya hymn.

Translated: Weber, xvii. 212; Griffith, i. 90.

1. Let Mitra come, arranging with the seasons, uniting (? sam-veçaya-) the earth with the ruddy ones (usrīyā); then to us let Varuṇa, Vāyu, Agni, assign great royalty of union (? samveçyā).

The verse is very obscure, and probably corrupt, though found almost without variant (only tat for atha in c) in Ppp. also. The epithet samveçyā (found only here) seems fashioned to correspond to the participle samveçyān in b; but Weber renders the ppl. by "umlagernd" and the epithet by "ruhsam"; the comm., by "pervading" (vayāpnuvan) and "suitable for abiding in" (samveçārham avāsthānayogyam). The comm. takes usrīyās as gāvas, i.e. kiraṇās 'rays.' R. ventures heroic emendations: "Let Mitra come after ordering of the time, enlivening (samhāpayan or something equivalent, since 'putting to rest' is no result of the action of Mitra's rays) the earth with his rays; but let Varuṇa make wind and fire (vāyūm agṇīm), make our great realm go to rest." The first pāda is redundant, unless we make the double combination mitrā rtūbhīḥ. [BR. take kalp- as 'sich richtend nach.']

2. Let Dhātar, Rāti, Savitar enjoy here (idām); let Indra, Tvasṭar, welcome my words (vācas); I call the divine Aditi, mother of heroes (çūra-), that I may be midmost man of my fellows.

The first pāda is also vii. 17. 4 a, and VS. viii. 17 a. The plural verb in b seems to imply that all the deities mentioned in the line are to be regarded as its subjects. Madhyameṣṭhā (like madhyamaçṭ, iv. 9. 4), probably the one whom the others gather about as chief; the comm. has nothing valuable (samṛddhakāmaḥ san svasamānūḥ sevyaḥ). The comm. takes rāti in a as = Aryaman. Ppp. has gr̥hṇantu for haryantu in b. The meter of d would be rectified by reading syām (or āsam, as is perhaps assumable in this stage of the language) for āsāni. The verse as it stands (11 + 12 : 11 + 12 = 46) is ill described as a jagatī.

3. I call, with acts of homage, Soma, Savitar, all the Ādityas, in the contest for preëminence; may this fire shine for very long, kindled by [my] fellows who gainsay not.

The translation implies in b emendation [cf. iii. 18. 4] to āhamuttaratvé (against all the mss. and both editions), as proposed by BR., i. 891; the comm. also takes it as two words, and renders uttaratvé by yajamānasya ṣrāiṣṭhye. Ppp. reads devān for ādityān in b. The comm. has dīdayat in saṁhitā; our pada-text has it, and Prāt. iii. 22 and iv. 89 deal with its conversion to dīdāyat in saṁhitā.

4. May ye be just here; may ye not go away (parās); may an active herdsman (gopā), lord of prosperity, drive you hither; do ye, with [your] desires, [attend] upon (?) his desire; let all the gods conduct you together hither.

The translation implies emendation in d of -yantu to -nayantu, as called for by both meter and sense, and also the addition of a verb, sta or ita, at end of c, for a like reason. If, as seems very probable, the verse is originally addressed to kine, kāminīs in c is quite natural; if not, we may regard viṣas as understood: the sense is 'be your desires subject to his.' Ppp. has a different reading: asmāi vaṣ kāmā uṣa kāminīr viṣve devā upasatyām iha. The comm. regards kāminīs as addressed throughout, and explains it finally as meaning striyaḥ gūvaḥ (perhaps the text is defective or incorrect; the general explanation of the verse implies striyaḥ). The comm. reads purās for parās in a, and in b divides īryas, deriving it from root īr, and rendering it mārgaprarakas [pada has īryas]. The Anukr. calls for 11 + 11 : 9 + 11 = 42 syllables, and strictly requires at the end -i-antu; but no inference as to a difference of reading is to be drawn from this. [Ppp. combines in b vājat.—Weber says: "asmāi diesem, dem Hausherrn, kāmāya zu Liebe; oder gehört asmāi zu kāmāya selbst?"]

5. We bend together your minds, together your courses (vratā), together your designs; ye yonder who are of discordant courses, we make you bend [them] together here.

This and the following verse, not found with the others in Ppp., occur again below as vi. 94. 1, 2 [cf. also ii. 30. 2], and vs. 1 occurs in Ppp. xix., with the other material of our sixth book; they are so far discordant in subject with the preceding verses that we may fairly call them out of place here. This one exists in MS. (ii. 2. 6), with anāmsata for namāmasi, and sthā for sthāna. A RV. khila to x. 191 has jānatām in a for saṁ vratā, ākūtīs in b, and, for c, d, asāu yo vīmanā janas taṁ samāvartayāmasi. The first half-verse, further, nearly accords with VS. xii. 58 a, b, TS. iv. 2. 5¹ a, b, MS. ii. 7. 11 a, b (they have vām for vas, and, for b, sām u cittāny ā'karam). Nearly all our saṁhitā-mss. read -tāḥ before sthāna, nor is there anything in the Prāt. to prescribe the omission of the visarga in such a situation, while the comment to ii. 40 expressly quotes the passage as an example of the assimilation of it to a following initial sibilant. The comm. reads stana instead of sthāna. Three of our mss. (P.M.E.) read at the end -nayāmasi.

6. I seize [your] minds with [my] mind; come ye after my intent with [your] intents; I put your hearts in my control; come with [your] tracks following my motion (yātā).

The comm. reads gṛhṇāmi in a, and three or four of SPP's mss. follow him; he also makes in b a compound of anucittebhis. Quite a number of mss. (including our P.M.W.H.s.m.I.) very strangely combine at the end -mānar ēta. MB. has a somewhat similar verse at i. 2. 21. How heedless the Anukr. is of metrical irregularity is well illustrated by c, where the desirable alteration of vāṇṇeṣu to vāṇṇe, and the abbreviation of hṛdayāni to the equivalent -yā (both suggested by Weber) would leave a good trīṣṭubh pāda; there is no jagatī character to any part of the verse. [The combination -mānareta looks as if it had blundered in from the end of b.]

9. Against viṣkandha and other evils.

[Vāmadeva. — dyāvāpṛthivīyam uta vāiṣvadevam. ānuṣṭubham : 4. 4-p. nicṛd bṛhatī ; 6. bhurij.]

Found in Pāipp. iii. (with vs. 6 at the beginning). Used by Kāuṣ. (43. 1) in a charm against demons and the hindrances caused by them.

Translated: Weber, xvii. 215; Griffith, i. 91; Bloomfield, 67, 339.

1. Of the karṣāpha, of the viṣāphā, heaven [is] father, earth mother: as, O gods, ye have inflicted (abhi-kr), so do ye remove (apa-kr) again.

The whole hymn contains much that is obscure and difficult, and the comm. gives no real help anywhere, being as much reduced to guessing as we are. Ppp. begins with karṣābhasya viṣābhasya, which rather favors Weber's opinion, that the apha of the two names is a suffix, related with abha; probably two varieties of viṣkandha are intended, though none such are mentioned in the later medicine. The comm. finds ṣāpha 'hoof' in both: one = krṣāṣāphasya (vyaṅghrādeḥ), the other either viṣāṣāphasya or viṣāṣāphasya. SPP. reads in b dyāvūḥ p-, which is doubtless preferable to our dyāvūḥ p-; it is read by the majority of his mss. and by part of ours (H.I.K.); Ppp. also has it. Ppp. further omits abhi in c, and reads api for apa in d.

2. Without claspers they held fast (dhāraya); that was so done by Manu; I make the viṣkandha impotent, like a castrater of bulls.

Ppp. begins with aṣṣamāno 'dh-; some of the mss. (including our O.) also give aṣṣamānas, and it is the reading of the comm.; he gives two different and equally artificial explanations; and, what is surprising even in him, three diverse ones of vādhrī, without the least regard to the connection; one of the three is the right one. Ppp. adds ca after vādhrī in c. Weber plausibly conjectures a method of tight tying to be the subject of the verse; castration is sometimes effected in that way.

3. On a reddish string a khīṅgala — that the pious (vedhās) bind on; let the binders (?) make impotent the flowing (?), puffing (?) kābavā.

All obscure and questionable. Ppp's version is: for a, sātre piṣuṅkhe khugilanī; in b, yad for tad; for c, ṣravasyam ṣṣma kābavam (the nāgarī copyist writes kāvardham). The comm. also has in c ṣravasyam, and three or four of SPP's mss. follow him; the translation assumes it to be for srav-. The comm. explains khīṅgalam by tanutrāṅgam 'armor,' quoting RV. ii. 39. 4 as authority; ṣravasyam by bālarūpam annam arhati (since ṣravas is an annanāman!); ṣṣmam by ṣṣakam [see Bloomfield, ZDMG. xlviii. 574]; kābava as a hindrance related with a kabu, which is a speckled (kābura-varṇa) cruel animal; and bandhūras is either the amulet bound upon us, or it is for -rās, "the amulet, staff, etc., held by us."

4. Wherewith, O flowing ones, ye go about (car), like gods with Asura-magic (-māyā), like the ape, spoiler of dogs, and with the binder (?) of the kābavā.

Or ṅravasyū is 'quick, lively' (Pet. Lexx.); the comm., "seeking either food or glory." Ppp. reads in c, d dūṣaṇam vandharā kābhavasyam ca. The comm. explains bandhurā by sambaddhā dhṛtā khaḍgādirūpā hetih. The verse is scanned by the Anukr. as 9+9:9+8=35; the usual abbreviation of iva to 'va would make b and c good anuṣṭubh pādas. [Read ṅravasyāç, voc., in a?]]

5. Since I shall bind thee [on] for spoiling, I shall spoil the kābavā; ye shall go up with curses, like swift chariots.

The translation implies emendation of bhartsyāmi (our edition) or bhatsyāmi (SPP's and the comm.) to bhantsyāmi, from root bandh, which seems plainly indicated as called for; the comm. explains bhats- first as badhnāmi, and then as dīpayāmi; the great majority of mss. give bharts-. Ppp. is quite corrupt here: juṣṭi tvā kāṁcchā 'bhi joṣayitvā bhavam. The comm. has at the end carīṣyatha (two or three of SPP's mss. agreeing with him), and he combines in c udāçavas into one word, "harnessed with speedy horses that have their mouths raised for going."

6. A hundred and one viṣkandhas [are] distributed over the earth; thee have they first taken up, of them the viṣkandha-spoiling amulet.

That is, 'an amulet that spoils those viṣkandhas' (Weber otherwise). In c, for the jaharus of all the mss. and of both editions, we ought of course to have jahrus; this the comm. reads: such expansions of r with preceding or following consonant to a syllable are not rare in the manuscripts. Ppp. has a different second half-verse: teṣāṁ ca sarveṣāṁ idam asti viṣkandhadūṣaṇam. The second pāda is found, in a different connection, as MB. ii. 8. 4 b. The comment on Prāt. ii. 104, in quoting this verse, appears to derive viṣkandha from root skand. The verse is made bhurij only by the false form jaharus. [For "101," see note to iii. 11. 5.]]

10. To the ekāṣṭakā (day of moon's last quarter).

[Atharvan.—trayodaçarcam. aṣṭakyam. ānuṣṭubham: 4, 5, 6, 12. triṣṭubh; 7. 3-av. 6-p. virāḍgarbhātijagati.]

Found, except vss. 9 and 13, in Pāipp. i., but with a very different order of verses (1-4, 6, 11, 10, 8, 5, 12, 7). Used by Kāuç. in connection with the aṣṭakā ceremony, or celebration of the festival of the moon's last quarter (19. 28, and again, with more fullness, 138. 1-16), or of a particular last quarter, regarded as of special importance. The details of the Kāuç. are expanded and explained by the comm.; they are not of a nature to cast light upon the interpretation of the verses. Weber (pp. 219 ff.) discusses at considerable length the questions connected with the festival. Vāit., which does not concern itself with the aṣṭakā, yet employs vs. 6 (13. 6) at the agniṣṭoma sacrifice, in connection with the somakrayanī cow; and also vs. 7 c-f (9. 4) in the sākamedha rite of the cāturmāsya sacrifice. The comm. quotes vss. 2, 3, 7 as employed by Pariçiṣṭa 6. 1.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 189; Weber, xvii. 218; Griffith, i. 93.

1. She first shone out; she became a milch-cow at Yama's; let her, rich in milk, yield (duh) to us each further summer (? sāmā).

The verse occurs also in several other texts: in TS. (iv. 3. 115), MS. (ii. 13. 10), K. (xxxix. 10), PGS. (iii. 3. 5), and MB. (ii. 2. 1; 8. 1); and its second half is RV. iv. 57. 7 c, d, and MB. i. 8. 8 c, d; ii. 2. 17 c, d, and also found below as 17. 4 c, d. The version of K. agrees (Weber) throughout with ours; TS. has, for a, yā prathamā vyāúchat, with dhukṣva at end of c, and PGS. agrees with it; MS. has duhe at end of c; MB. (in all four occurrences) has duhā utt-, and in 8. 1 also arhaṇā putra vāsa for a. The comm. takes sāmām in ḍ as an adverbial accus. (= sarveṣu vatsareṣu), as does Weber. [Cf. Hillebrandt, Ved. Mythol. i. 500.]

2. The night which the gods rejoice to meet, [as] a milch-cow coming unto [them], which is the spouse (pātnī) of the year — let her be very auspicious to us.

The verse is found also in PGS. (iii. 2. 2), HGS. (ii. 17. 2) [MP. (ii. 20. 27) and MGS. (ii. 8. 4^c)], and its second half in MB. (ii. 2. 16 c, ḍ); the first four have the better readings janās in a and ivā "yatim" in b [and MGS. has rātrim]. Ppp. has in b dhenu rātrim up-, and at the end -galā. For saṁvatsarāsya pātnī (cf. vs. 8 a, b) the comm. quotes TS. vii. 4. 8¹.

3. Thou, O night, whom we worship (upā-ās) as model (pratimā) of the year — do thou unite our long-lived progeny with abundance of wealth.

Or, perhaps better (so the comm. and Weber), 'do thou [give] us long-lived progeny; unite [us] with abundance of wealth.' Ppp. has for b ye tvā rātrim upāsate, and in c teṣām for sā nas. [MGS. has the vs. at ii. 8. 4^d (cf. p. 156), agreeing nearly with Ppp.] The first half-verse is read also in TS. (v. 7. 2¹), K. (xl. 2), PGS. (iii. 2. 2), and MB. (ii. 2. 18): TS. gives at end of b upāsate, MB. yajāmahe; PGS. has pratimā yā tāṁ rātrim upāsmahe. In our edition, restore a lost accent-mark over the ṣṛ of ṣṛja in ḍ.

4. This same is she that first shone out; among these other ones (f.) she goes about (car), having entered; great greatnesses [are] within her; the bride (vadhū), the new-going generatrix, hath conquered.

This verse is repeated below as viii. 9. 11. It occurs, with considerable variants, in a whole series of other texts: TS. (iv. 3. 11¹), MS. (ii. 13. 10), K. (xxxix. 10), ÇGS. (iii. 12. 3), and MB. (ii. 2. 15). For āsv ltarāsu, TS. and ÇGS. have antār asyām; MS., also Ppp., sā psv antās; MB., se yam aṣv antas. All of them, with Ppp., invert the order of c and ḍ; and they have a different version of our c: trāya (but Ppp. trita) enām mahimānaḥ sacante (ÇGS. -ntām), but MB. viçve hy asyām mahimāno antaḥ; while, for jigāya in ḍ, TS. and ÇGS. give jajāna, and MS. and Ppp. mimāya, ÇGS. following it with navakṛj; and MB. reads prathamā for our navagāt. ÇGS., moreover, has in a vyuchāt. These variants speak ill for the tradition. The comm. gives four diverse explanations of navagāt: going in company with each new or daily rising sun; pervading the new originating kind of living creatures; going to a daily originating new form; or, finally, going to the nine-fold divisions of the day; and the comment to TS. [reported by Weber] adds a fifth, "newly married"; if the last is the meaning, jajāna is better with it than jigāya: "as soon as wedded to the new year, she bears the days that follow." The meter is really redundant by a syllable in a [iyātvā?]. [Further, MB. has in a eṣāi va sā yā pūrva vy-; and Ppp. ends ḍ with janitrīm. — BR., v. 1538, give 'erst-gebärend' for navagāt.]

5. The forest-tree pressing-stones have made their sound, making the oblation of the complete year (parivatsarīṇa); O sole dṣṭakā, may we, having good progeny and good heroes, be lords of wealths.

"Stones": i.e. probably, blocks of wood used instead of stones [see Hillebrandt, Ved. Mythol. i. 162, 161]; or the wooden mortar and pestle (so the comm.). Ppp. reads for c ekāṣṭakayī (= -kāyāi) haviṣā vidhema. Some of the mss. combine haviṣ k- in b; the comment to Prāt. ii. 63 requires haviṣ k-, which both editions accept. Some of our mss. (P.M.W.Op.) give in c suprajāśas. HGS. (ii. 14. 4) and MB. (ii. 2. 13) have a corresponding verse: HGS. begins with ulūkhalās, combines haviṣ k- and reads -rīṇām in b, and has suprajā vīravantas in c; MB. gives for a ūlūkhalāḥ sampravadanti grāvāṇas, ends b with -rīṇām, and has for d jyog jīvema balihṛto vayan te. [It recurs also at MP. ii. 20. 34 and MGS. ii. 8. 4^b.] The first pāda is jaḡatī, unnoted in the Anukr. [As to aṣṭakā, cf. Zimmer, p. 365.]

6. The track (padā) of Idā [is] full of ghee, greatly trickling; O Jāta-vedas, accept thou the oblations. The cattle of the village that are of all forms — of those seven let the willing stay (ram̐ti) be with me.

Versions are found in AÇS. (ii. 2. 17), ĀpÇS. (vi. 5. 7), HGS. (ii. 17. 2), and MB. (ii. 2. 14), and of the latter half in TA. (iii. 11. 12, vs. 31 a, c). MB. agrees with our text throughout; the three others have carācaram at end of a, and all three haviṣ idan̐ juṣasva (for prati etc.) in b; HGS. begins with iḡāyāi sṛptam, and ĀpÇS. combines iḡāyāḥ p-; then, in d, ĀpÇS., HGS., and TA. read iḡā instead of m̐yī; and AÇS. puṣṭis for ram̐tis; HGS. ends with ram̐tir astu puṣṭiḥ. The comm. reads iḡyās in a; he renders sarīṣpam by atyarthan̐ sarpat, ram̐tis by pr̐tis, and specifies the seven village (i.e. domestic) animals as cow, horse, goat, sheep, man, ass, camel; but the number seven is doubtless used only as an indefinite sacred one. Pāda a is again jaḡatī, as in vs. 5. [Pāda c is our ii. 34. 4 a; between viçvarūpās and teṣām ĀpÇS. inserts virūpās (a fragment of our ii. 34. 4 b!). — Prāt. ii. 72 requires iḡāyās p-.]

7. [Set] thou me in both prosperity and abundance; O night, may we be in the favor of the gods.

O spoon, fly away full; fly back hither well-filled; jointly enjoying all sacrifices, bring to us food (īṣ), refreshment (ūrj).

The first two pādas, which seem to have nothing to do with the rest of the verse, are wanting in Ppp. What follows them is a complete anuṣṭubh, and quoted by its pratīka in Vāit. (see above); its first half is found in several other texts: VS. (iii. 49), TS. (i. 8. 4¹), MS. (i. 10. 2), K. (ix. 5), AÇS. (ii. 18. 13); of these, VS. TS. AÇS. read darvi for darve, as does also the comm., with a few of SPP's mss. Ppp. has sam̐pr̐ncatī iṣam in the last half-verse. The comm. understands ā sthāpaya in a, as in the translation; bhaja would answer an equally good purpose. He explains that the spoon is to go forth with oblation and to return with the answering blessings. Sambhuñjati he renders by haviṣā samyak pālāyanti pr̐ṇayanti. Finally, he points out that, as c is quoted as a pratīka, a and b have a right to the character of a separate verse; but that in the pañcapāṭalikā the whole is made a verse, with three avasānas; the statement, but not the title, appears to fit our Anukr.; this scans as 8 + 10: 8 + 8: 8 + 8 = 50, needlessly counting only 10 syllables in b. In our ed., read mā for me. [Cf. iv. 15. 12 n.]

8. Hither hath come the year, thy spouse, O sole aṣṭakā; do thou unite our long-lived progeny with abundance of wealth.

Instead of repeating the second half-verse of vs. 3, Ppp. gives for c, d tasmāi juhomi: haviṣā ghr̐tena cāu naç çarma yacchatu. Against his usual habit, the comm. explains c, d anew, but quite in accordance with his former explanation.

9. I sacrifice to the seasons, the lords of the seasons, them of the seasons (ārtavā), and the winters (hāyanā), to the summers (sāmā), the years, the months; for the lord of existence I sacrifice.

The change of case, from accusative to dative, in ḍ, doubtless intends no change of construction. The verse, as noted above, is wanting in Ppp.; it is in part repeated below, as xi. 6. 17. According to the comm., the "lords of the seasons" are the gods, Agni etc.; the ārtavas [cf. iii. 6. 6 note] are "parts of seasons; other unspecified divisions of time, sixteenths, kāṣṭhās, etc."; and although sāmā, saṁvatsara, and hāyana are synonymous, yet hāyana here signifies "days and nights," and sāmā "half-months."

10. To thee for the seasons, them of the seasons, the months, the years, the Creator (dhātār), the Disposer (vidhātār), the Prosperer (? saṁīdh), the lord of existence, do I sacrifice.

All the saṁhitā-mss. combine in a -bhyas tvā, and SPP. accepts the reading in his text; ours emends to -bhyas tvā; such treatment of final as is common in Ppp., and sporadic examples of it are found among the AV. mss., but it is hardly to be tolerated in a text like ours; and the comment to Prāt. iv. 107 quotes the passage as -bhyas tvā. The comm. [at xix. 37. 4] deems this verse [and not v. 28. 13] to be the one repeated as xix. 37. 4; see under that verse. Ppp. has, for a, b, yajur tvīghhya ārtavebhyo mābhyas saṁvatsarāya ca, which at any rate rids the text of the embarrassing tvā. Here the comm. declares the ārtavas to be "days and nights, etc."; saṁīdh he explains as samardhayitre etannāṁne devāya.

11. We, making oblation with idā — I sacrifice to the gods with what is rich in ghee; unto houses not disorderly (? alubhyant), rich in kine, may we enter together.

Or, it might be, 'may we lie down, go to rest'; the translation would imply more naturally saṁ ūpa viçema [the Index Verborum takes ūpa as an independent "case-governing" preposition]; the comm. says upe 'tya saṁ viçema sukhena ni vasema; he comfortably removes the anacoluthon in a, b by declaring yaje = yajāmahe, and takes alubhyatas as either nom. (gārdhyam akurvāṇās) or accus. (gārdhyarahitān). Ppp. reads for ḍ dr̥ṣadesvpaḡomata.

12. The sole āṣṭakā, paining herself (tapyā-) with penance, generated an embryo, a greatness, Indra; by him the gods overcame their foes; slayer of the barbarians became the lord of might (çācī-).

The verse is found also in TS. (iv. 3. 113), K. (xxxix. 10), PGS. (iii. 3. 5), and MB. (ii. 3. 21); and a is identical with HGS. ii. 15. 9a [and MP. ii. 20. 35a]: TS. accents tāpya- in a (the comm. does the same), and its c, ḍ read: tēna dāsyūn vy āsahanta devā hantī 'surāṇām abhavac çācībhīḥ, and K. PGS. have the same version; Ppp. agrees with them in reading asurāṇām for dāsyūnām, and MB. has their ḍ, but our c, except asahanta for vy asah-. The ṣ of vy ās- is distinctly required by Prāt. ii. 92; but SPP. gives in his text vy ās-, against a majority of the mss. reported by him. Our P.M.W. are corrupt at the end, but P.M. show distinctly -ībhīḥ, indicating the reading of TS. etc. The comm. gives three different explanations of gārbham in b, adding garanīyam or stutyam (from gr 'sing'), and then garbhasṭhavād adṛçyam (from gr 'swallow'), to the true meaning. The ekāṣṭakā he defines to be "eighth day of the dark half of Māgha." The concluding pāda is jagatī.

13. Thou whose son is Indra, whose son is Soma, daughter art thou of Prajāpati; fulfil thou our desires; accept our oblation.

Wanting in Ppp., as above noted.

The second anuvāka contains 5 hymns, 40 verses; and the quotation from the old Anukr. is simply daça.

11. For relief from disease, and for long life.

[Brahman and Bhyḡvaṅgiras. — aṣṭarcam. āindrāgnūyusyam, yakṣmanāçanadevatyam. trāiṣṭubham: 4. çakvarīgarbhā jagatī; 5, 6. anuṣṭubh; 7. usṇīgbṛhatīgarbhā pathyāpāñkti; 8. 3-av. 6-p. bṛhatīgarbhā jagatī.]

The first four verses are found in Pāipp. i., with the bulk of the 4-verse hymns; they are also RV. x. 161. 1-4 (RV. adds a fifth verse, which occurs below as viii. 1. 20). The hymn is used by Kāuç. (27. 32, 33) in a general healing ceremony (without specification of person or occasion; the schol. and comm. assume to add such), and, in company with many others (iv. 13. 1 etc. etc.), in a rite for length of life (58. 11); and it is reckoned to the takmanāçana gaṇa (26. 1, note) and to the āyusya gaṇa (54. 11, note; but the comm., ignoring these, counts it as one of the añholiṅga gaṇa). In Vāit. (36. 19), vs. 8 accompanies the setting free of the horse at the açvamedha sacrifice; and the hymn (the edition says, i. 10. 4; the pratikas are the same) is employed, with ii. 33 etc., in the puruṣamedha (38. 1).—[See also W's introduction to ii. 33.]

Translated: Weber, xvii. 231; Griffith, i. 95; Bloomfield, 49, 341.—In part also by Roth, Zur Litteratur und Geschichte des Weda, p. 42.

1. I release thee by oblation, in order to living, from unknown yakṣma and from royal yakṣma; if now seizure (grāhi) hath seized him, from it, O Indra-and-Agni, do ye release him.

RV. inserts vā after yādi in c. Ppp. has, in the second half-verse, grāhyā grhīto yady eṣa yatas tata ind. The comm. explains rājayakṣma as either "king of yakṣmas" or else "the y. that seized king Soma first," quoting for the latter TS. ii. 5. 65 [see references in Bloomfield's comment]. The first pāda is jagatī.

2. If of exhausted life-time, or if deceased, if gone down even to the presence (antikā) of death, him I take from the lap of perdition; I have won (sṇ) him for [life] of a hundred autumns.

The translation implies in ḍ āspārçam, which is the reading of our edition, supported by RV., and also by the comm. (= prabalañ karomi!), and two of SPP's mss. that follow the latter; the āspārçam of nearly all the mss. (hence read by SPP.), and of Ppp., can be nothing but a long-established blunder. Ppp. has at the beginning yad ukharā-yur y. [At ii. 14. 3 SPP. used the "long f" to denote the ḥsāipra circumflex; with equal reason he might use it here for the praçliṣṭa of nīta = nt-ita.]

3. With an oblation having a thousand eyes, a hundred heroisms, a hundred life-times, have I taken him, in order that Indra may lead him unto autumns, across to the further shore of all difficulty (duritā).

RV. has in a çatāçāradena for çatāvryeṇa, and makes much better sense of c, ḍ by reading çatām for īndras, and īndras for ātī (it also has imām for enam).

4. Live thou increasing a hundred autumns, a hundred winters, and a hundred springs; a hundred to thee [may] Indra, Agni, Savitar, Brihaspati [give]; with an oblation of a hundred life-times have I taken him.

Our text, in the second half-verse, ingeniously defaces the better meter and sense given by RV., which reads indrāgnī for ta indro agnī in c, and ends with havīṣe 'mām pūnar duḥ. The verse is fairly correctly defined by the Anukr., its c having 14 syllables (ṣakvarī), and making the whole number 47 syllables (jagatī less 1).

5. Enter in, O breath-and-expiration, as two draft-oxen a pen (vrajā); let the other deaths go away (vī), which they call the remaining hundred.

In this verse, as in the preceding and in vs. 7 and elsewhere, SPP. makes the indefensible combination n ch, instead of ñ ch, as the result of mutual assimilation of n and ç [cf. note to i. 19. 4].

[As to the "one hundred and one deaths," cf. viii. 2. 27; xi. 6. 16; i. 30. 3; Ēkaçata in Index; and the numbers in the notable passage, xix. 47. 3 ff.; Kuhn's most interesting Germanic parallels, KZ. xiii. 128 ff.; Wuttke, *Deutscher Volksaberglaube*², 301, 335; Hopkins, Oriental Studies . . . papers read before the Oriental Club of Philadelphia, 1888-1894, p. 152; Zimmer, p. 400. Cf. also the words of the statute, 18 Edward I., § 4, concerning the "Fine of Lands," "unless they put in their claim within a year and a day."]

6. Be ye just here, O breath-and-expiration; go ye not away from here; carry his body, his limbs, unto old age again.

At the end of b, the comm. reads javam (= çighram, akāle) instead of yuvām, and two or three of SPP's mss., as often, follow him.

7. Unto old age do I commit thee; unto old age do I shake thee down (ni-dhū); may old age, excellent, conduct thee; let the other deaths go away, which they call the remaining hundred.

The Anukr. scans the verse as 9 + 8 : 7 + 8 + 8 = 40, not admitting any resolution in c.

8. Old age hath curbed (abhi-dhā) thee, as it were a cow, an ox, with a rope; the death that curbed thee, when born, with easy fetter — that Brihaspati released for thee, with the (two) hands of truth.

The verb-forms represent the noun abhidhānī 'halter, or bridle, or rope for confining and guiding.' [A case of "reflected meaning": discussed, Lanman, Transactions of the Am. Philol. Association, vol. xxvi, p. xiii (1894). Cf. note to iv. 18. 1.] As in many other cases, the comm. renders the aorist adhita (for adhita) as an imperative, baddham karotu. On account of jāyamānam in d (virtually 'at thy birth') Weber entitles the hymn "on occasion of difficult parturition," which is plainly wrong. Perhaps it is for the same reason that the comm. regards it as relating to a child, or to a person diseased from improper copulation. In our text, at the beginning, read abhi (an accent-sign lost under a). There is no bṛhatī element in the verse.

12. Accompanying the building of a house.

[Brahman. — navarcam. çālāsūktam. vāstospatiçālādāivatam. trāiṣṭubham: 2. virāçijagatī; 3. bṛhatī; 6. ṣakvarīgarbhā jagatī; 7. ārsy anuṣṭubh; 8. bhurij; 9. anuṣṭubh.]

The first eight verses are found in Pāipp., but only 1-5, 7 together, in iii., vs. 6 being in xx., and vs. 8 in xvii. [More or less correspondent vss. recur at MP. ii. 15. 3 ff. and at MGS. ii. 11. 12 ff. (cf. p. 148 ihāiva.)] The hymn is reckoned by Kāuṣ. (8. 23) to the vāstospatiya hymns, and is used with them in a house-building ceremony (43. 4 ff.; the “two dhruvas,” mentioned in 43. 11 [are doubtless the same as the “two dhruvas” mentioned in] 136. 7; [and the latter] are, according to the comm. to vi. 87, not vss. 1 and 2, but hymns vi. 87 and 88); vss. 6 and 8 are specially quoted (43. 9, 10). Vāit. (16. 1, in the agniṣtoma sacrifice) gives a pratika which is nearly that of vs. 8, but with adhvaryo for nāri. [Vs. 9, q. v., occurs in Ppp. with others of our ix. 3.]

Translated: Ludwig, p. 463; Zimmer, p. 150; Weber, xvii. 234; Grill, 59, 108; Griffith, i. 97; Bloomfield, 140, 343. — Cf. Hillebrandt, Veda-chrestomathie, p. 44; and Bloomfield's references; also M. Winternitz, Mittheilungen der Anthropologischen Gesellschaft in Wien, vol. xvii, p. [38].

1. Just here I fix (ni-mi) [my] dwelling (çālā) firm; may it stand in security, sprinkling ghee; unto thee here, O dwelling, may we resort (sam-car) with all our heroes, with good heroes, with unharmed heroes.

Ppp. reads abhi instead of upa in d. Pādas a, b are found in PGS. iii. 4. 4, with tiṣṭhatu for -āti; and b in ÇGS. iii. 3, with tiṣṭha for the same; HGS. (i. 27. 2) has the whole verse, with tiṣṭhati in a, anu (for upa) in d, and suvirās before sarvav- in c.

2. Just here stand thou firm, O dwelling, rich in horses, in kine, in pleasantness, in refreshment, in ghee, in milk; erect thyself (ut-çri) in order to great good-fortune.

Ppp. leaves the a of açvāvati in b unelided. PGS. (ibid.) has pādas b and d, making one verse of them with 3 c, d; pādas a, b are also found in ÇGS. (ibid.), with considerable variants: sthāne for dhruvā, dhruvā for çāle, and silamāvati for sūny-; and HGS. (ibid.) has again the whole verse, with ūrjasvati payasā pinvamānā for c. The comm., with the usual queer perversion of the sense of sūnyā, renders sūnyāvati by bakubhiḥ priyasatvavāgbhir bālādīnāṃ vāṇībhir yuktiā. Pādas b and c are jagati.

3. A garner (? dharuṇī) art thou, O dwelling, of great roof, of cleansed grain; to thee may the calf come, may the boy, may the kine, streaming in at evening.

This translation of the difficult and doubtless corrupt first half-verse implies emendation of -chandas to -chadis, and of pūti- to pūtā- — which latter is, in fact, the Ppp. reading. In d, SPP. adopts the bad reading āspādamānās, claiming to find it in the majority of his mss.; but the scribes are so wholly untrustworthy in their distinction of sy and sp that the requirement of the sense is sufficient to show that they intend sy here; the comm. reads -syand-, and so does ÇGS. (iii. 2) in the parallel passage: enāṁ çicuḥ krandatv ā kumāra ā syandantām dhenavo nityavatsāḥ; PGS. (ibid.) has ā tvā çicur ā krandatv ā gāvo dhenavo vāçyamānāḥ. [MGS. ii. 11. 12^b reflects our vs. 7.] The comm. lets us understand by dharuṇī either bhogajātasya dhārayitrī or praçastāi stambhār upetā; and by bṛhachandās either prabhūtāchādanā or mahadbhiḥ chandobhir vedāir upetā; pūtīdhānyā is “having corn malodorous from age” — a sign of stores unexhausted. The Anukr. apparently scans as 7 + 8: 10 + 11 = 36: a very poor sort of bṛhatī. [Note that of SPP's authorities for āsyand-, K and V were men, not mss.; none of his living authorities gave āspand-. The blunder is easy for the eye, not for the ear.]

4. This dwelling let Savitar, Vāyu, Indra, Brihaspati fix, foreknowing; let the Maruts sprinkle it with water, with ghee; let king Bhaga deepen (nī-tan) our ploughing.

Ppp. reads in a, b vāyur agnīs tvaṣṭā hotā nī, and has somas (which suits rājā better) for bhagas in d. In c it begins with the true reading ukṣantu; this is so naturally suggested as emendation of the uchantu of the mss. that all the translators assume it (Weber, strangely mistaking the plain statement of the Index Verborum, accuses us of having wrongly altered ukṣantu in our edition to uchantu!); ukṣantu is also read by the comm., and by two or three of SPP's mss. that follow him; and SPP. very properly admits it into his text. SPP. also reads after it udnā, with the comm., but against all his mss. [except the çotriya K]; there is no instance where udnā and udnās are correctly read in any of them (here, our Bp.O.Op. have utnā, P.M. utvā, the rest * unnā: our edition gives unnā, and Weber has failed to see that it was corrected in the Index Verborum [under udān]). The comm. makes d refer to the ploughing of the site of the house: çālābhūmeḥ karṣaṇam nitarām karotu. [*E.H.D.K.Kp. and Ppp. have unnā; I. has uttā; W. has -tu tvā.] [For uchantu, see x. 9. 23 n.]

5. O mistress of the building (? māna), as sheltering, pleasant, hast thou, a goddess, been fixed by the gods in the beginning; clothing thyself in grass, mayest thou be well-willing; then mayest thou give us wealth together with heroes.

Ppp. has, for c, d, ānuanī vasanā sumanā yaças tvam rayim no dhi subhage suvīram. "Grass" in c refers probably to a thatched roof. Māna the comm. gives two explanations for: either "of the reverend (mānanīya) lord of the site (vāstupati)," or else "of the spoiling (? mīyamāna) grain etc." (patni in this case signifying pālayitri). In b the comm. reads nirmitā. HGS. (i. 27. 8) has a, b, c (with a wholly different d) in a corrupt form: mā naḥ sapatnaḥ çaraṇaḥ syonā devo devebhīr vimitā 'sy agre: tṛṇam vasānāḥ sumanā asī tvam; but our d (with -vīram r.) occurred just before (i. 27. 7).

6. With due order, O beam (vañçā), ascend the post; formidable, bearing rule, force away (apa-vṛj) the foes; let not the attendants (upāsattār) of thy houses be harmed, O dwelling; may we live a hundred autumns with all our heroes.

Ppp. reads sthūṇā 'dhi in a, and in c, d has -tāro 'tra virājām jīvam çaradaç çatāni. Both meter and sense indicate that gṛhāṇām is an intrusion in c; and suvīrās at the end would rectify the meter of d. The first pāda is the beginning of a verse in AGS. ii. 9; and HGS. (i. 27. 7) has the first half-verse, with sthūṇām in a, and ūrdhvas and apa sedha in b [cf. MP. ii. 15. 6; MGS. ii. 11. 14 is corrupt]. The comm. reads aṣan for riṣan in c; he explains ṛtēna by abādhyena rūpeṇa saha, and upāsattāras by upāsadanakartāras. The verse (11 + 11 : 14 + 12 = 48) is defined by the Anukr. with mechanical correctness.

7. To it the tender boy, to it the calf, with moving creatures (jāgat), to it the jar of parisrūt, with mugs of curd, have come.

Ppp. has tvā for imām in a and c, and in c pariçṛtaḥ; and it ends d with kalaçaç ca yā. The mss. vary between parisrūtas and -çrūt (our Bp.H.O.Op.Kp. have ç); the comm. has s, and renders the word by parisravaṇaçīlasya madhunaḥ 'foaming over sweet.' The word is quoted in the comment to Prāt. ii. 106 as an example of s after i protected from lingualization by a following r. The comm. reads in c kumbhās, and in d kalaçīs; half the mss. (including our Bp.E.I.H.K.) accent kalaçāts. The comm. explains jāgatā as gamaṇaṣīlena gavādinā, which is doubtless its true sense. The verse is found also in AGS. (ii. 8. 16), PGS. (iii. 4. 4), ÇGS. (iii. 2. 9), and HGS. (i. 27. 4): the first two and the last have (like Ppp.) tvā, and ÇGS. reads enam (for é'mām); for jāgatā, PGS. has jagadāis and AGS. jāyatām; ÇGS. gives bhuvanā, with pari for sahā; all differ again as to the last word, presenting uṣa (PGS.), ayan (AGS.), ayanniva (HGS.) or gaman (ÇGS.); and ÇGS. has further kumbhyās in c, while for pari-srūtas AGS. has pariçritas and HGS. hiraṇmayas [see also MP. ii. 15. 4 and MGS. ii. 11. 12^b]. The epithet āryī, added by the Anukr. to the metrical definition of the verse, is without meaning as distinguishing it from vs. 9 [cf. iii. 14. 6, note].

8. Bring forward, O woman, this full jar, a stream of ghee combined (sam-bhṛ) with ambrosia (amṛta); anoint these drinkers (?) with ambrosia; let what is offered-and-bestowed defend it (f.: the dwelling?).

The well-nigh universal reading of the mss. in c is imām pātrīn, which SPP. accordingly presents in his text, in spite of its grammatical impossibility (of our mss., E. gives pātrén, -tren being a misreading of -īn found also more than once elsewhere; P. has pādān, and W. pātran); we emended imām to imān; but perhaps imām pātrīm 'this drinking-vessel,' which the comm. has, would be preferable, as better suited to sām aṇdhi; and enām at the end would then refer to it. The comm. has sam indhī instead of sām aṇdhi; he makes enām imply çālām. The corresponding verse in Ppp. (xvii.) is quite different, and corrupt; pūrnām nābhiri pra harā bhī kumbham apām ramañt ośadhīnān ghṛtasya: imām pātrēr amṛtāir ā sam agdhi sthirā virās sumanaso bhavantu: this suggests imām pātrāir amṛtasya in c 'anoint this [dwelling] with vessels of ambrosia'; but also its separation from the preceding verses makes uncertain its belonging to the same ceremony with them. In the ceremonial use, it accompanies the entrance into the new dwelling, the wife first, carrying a water-jar.

9. These waters I bring forward, free from yākṣma, yākṣma-effacing; I set forth (? pra-sad) unto (īpa) the houses, along with immortal (amṛta) fire.

The verse, as already noted, is wanting [in this connection] in Ppp., and neither Kāuç. nor the comm. specify anything as to its use. It appears again below as ix. 3. 23 [with Ppp. version]. The comm. gives no explanation nor paraphrase of prā sidāmi. ["Prepositions" discussed, Prāt. iv. 3, note.]

13. To the waters.

[Bhṛgu. — saptarcam. vāruṇam uta sindhudāivatam. ānuṣṭubham: 1. nicṛt; 5. virādjagatī; 6. nicṛt triṣṭubh.]

The first six verses occur in Pāipp. iii., and also in TS. (v. 6. 1), MS. (ii. 13. 1), and K. (xxxix. 2). The hymn is used by Kāuç. in a ceremony for directing water into a certain course (40. 1 ff.); the pādas of vs. 7 are severally employed in it (see under that verse); it also appears, with other hymns (i. 4-6, 33, etc. etc.), in a rite for good-fortune (41. 14). And the comm. describes it as used by one who desires rain. Verse 7 is further employed, with a number of other verses, by Vāit. (29. 13), in the agnicayana, accompanying the conducting of water, reeds, and a frog over the altar-site. — [Berlin ms. of Anukr. reads sindhvabdāivatam.]

Translated: Weber, xvii. 240; Griffith, i. 99; Bloomfield, 146, 348. — Cf. Bergaigne-Henry, Manuel, p. 143.

1. Since formerly (? addās), going forth together, ye resounded (nad) when the dragon was slain, thenceforth ye are streams (nadī) by name: these are your names, O rivers.

The pāda-mss. all commit the very gratuitous blunder of writing tāḥ instead of tā at the beginning of ḍ, as if it belonged to sindhavas instead of to nāmāni; SPP. emends to tā, and the comm. so understands the word. The comm. takes addās as Vedic substitute for amuṣmin, qualifying śhāu. None of the other texts gives any various reading for this verse. Pāda ḍ sets forth, as it were, the office of the first four verses, in finding punning etymologies for sundry of the names of water.

2. When, sent forth by Varuṇa, ye thereupon (āt) quickly skipped (valg) together, then Indra obtained (āp) you as ye went; therefore are ye waters (āp) afterward.

TS. and MS. have in ḍ āpas (nomin.), and this is obviously the true reading, and assumed in the translation; both editions follow the mss. (except our Op.) in giving āpas. MS. begins the verse with samprācyutās; for āt in b MS. has yāt and TS. tās. In ḍ, Ppp. elides the a of anu; TS. leaves sthana unlingualized. The comm. reads instead stana.

3. As ye were flowing perversely (apakāmām), since Indra verily hindered (var) you by his powers, you, ye divine ones, therefore the name water (vār) is assigned you.

Ppp. has for c indro vas saktabhir devāis. TS. combines in ḍ vār vāma. The comm. apparently takes hikam as a single word (the TS. pāda-text so regards it), quoting as his authority Nāighaṇṭuka iii. 12; and again in ḍ, if the manuscript does not do him injustice, he reads hikam for hitam.

4. The one god stood up to you, flowing at [your] will; "the great ones have breathed up (ud-an)," said he; therefore water (udakā) is [so] called.

The name here really had in mind must be, it would seem, udan, but udakām has to be substituted for it in the nominative; none of the other texts offer a different form. TS. improves the meter of a by omitting vas, and TS. and MS. leave the a of āpi unelided. Ppp. differs more seriously: eko na deva upātiṣṭhat syandamānā upetyah. Yathāvaṣam in b might be 'at his will,' opposed to apakāmām in vs. 3. The sense of c is rather obscure; the comm. understands: "saying 'by this respect on the part of Indra we have become great,' they breathed freely (or heaved a sigh of relief: ucchvasitavatyas)" — which is senseless. R. suggests "Indra put himself in their way with the polite address and inquiry: 'their worships have given themselves an airing'; and conducted them on their way again"; Weber understands them to sigh under the burden of the god standing "upon" (āpi) them. The comm. declares āpi to have the sense of adhi.

5. The waters [are] excellent; the waters verily were ghee; these waters verily bear Agni-and-Soma; may the strong (tīvrā) satisfying savor (rāsa) of the honey-mixed (-prc) come to me along with breath, with splendor.

TS. reads āsus for āsan at end of a, and both TS. and MS., as also the comm., have gan at the end (MS.p. agan). MS. combines differently the material of our vss. 5 and 6: first our 6 a, b with 5 c, d, then our 5 a, b with 6 c, d; and for our 5 a it reads āpo devīr ghr̥taminvā u āpas. This last seems also to be intended by Ppp., with its āpo devīr ghr̥tam itāpāhus; and it has ityā instead of it tās at end of b, and combines -gamā mā in c-d. The comm. renders madhupṛcām by madhunā rasena sampr̥ktā-nām; the description in pāda c almost makes us fancy some kind of mineral water to be had in view.

6. Then indeed I see, or also hear; unto me comes the noise, to me the voice of them; I think myself then to have partaken ambrosia (amṛta) when, ye gold-colored ones, I have enjoyed (īp) you.

TS. has the inferior readings nas for mā at end of b and yād for yadā in d. MS. is corrupt in b; its pada-text reads vāk: nu: āsām, but the editor gives in samhitā-text vār nu āsām. The comm. combines vāg mā. Ppp. has at the beginning yād for ād. The comm. takes the opportunity of the occurrence of hiranya- in d to bring forward an etymology of it which he here and there repeats; it is hita-ramaṇya! The verse is improperly reckoned as nicṛt. [In the edition amṛtastha is a misprint for -sya.]

7. This, O waters, [is] your heart, this your young (vatsā), ye righteous ones; come thus hither, ye mighty ones, where I now make you enter.

The preceding verses have been simple laudation of the waters; this appended one (which is found neither in Ppp. nor in the other texts) adds a practical application, and is the sole foundation of the employment of the hymn by Kāuṣ. With the first pāda a piece of gold is buried in the desired channel; with b a prepared frog is fastened there; with c the frog is covered with a water-plant; with d water is conducted in.

14. A blessing on the kine.

[Brahman. — nānādevatyaṃ uta goṣṭhadevatākam. ānuṣṭubham: 6. āṛṣī triṣṭubh.]

The hymn (except vs. 5) is found in Pāipp. ii. (in the verse-order 2, 4, 6, 1, 3). It is used by Kāuṣ., with other hymns (ii. 26 etc.), in a ceremony for the prosperity of cattle (19. 14). In Vāit. (21. 26), vs. 2 accompanies the driving of kine in the agni-ṣṭoma. The Vāit. use does not appear to be mentioned by the comm., and his report of the Kāuṣ. use is mostly lost from the manuscript (but filled in by the editor).

Translated: Ludwig, p. 469; Weber, xvii. 244; Grill, 64, 112; Griffith, i. 101; Bloomfield, 143, 351.

1. With a comfortable (suśād) stall, with wealth, with well-being, with that which is the name of the day-born one, do we unite you.

Ppp. reads in b sapūṣṭyā for subhūtyā. The obscure third pāda is found again below as v. 28. 12 c; it is altogether diversely rendered (conjecturally) by the translators (Weber, "with the blessing of favorable birth"; Ludwig, "with [all] that which one calls day-born"; Grill, "with whatever a day of luck brings forth"); R. suggests "with all (of good things) that the day brings, or that is under the heaven": none of these suits the other occurrence.

2. Let Aryaman unite you, let Pūshan, let Brihaspati, let Indra, who is conqueror of riches; in my possession gain ye what is good.

'In my possession,' lit. 'with me' (bei mir, chez moi). The comm. takes pusyata as = poṣayata; and so do the translators, unnecessarily and therefore inadmissibly; or, we may emend to pusyatu, with vāsu as subject. "Unite" calls for the expression of with what; this is not given, but the verse may be regarded as (except ḍ) a continuation of vs. 1. The three pādas a-c are found as a gāyatrī-verse in MS. (iv. 2. 10: with poṣā for pūṣā in b). Ppp. has iha pusyati at beginning of ḍ.

3. Having come together, unaffrighted, rich in manure, in this stall, bearing the sweet of soma, come ye hither, free from disease.

Three of the pādas (a, b, ḍ) again form, with considerable variants, a gāyatrī in MS. (ibid.) immediately following the one noted above: MS. has dvihrutās for ābibhyuṣīs, purīṣṭiṣṭīs for kar-, and, in place of our ḍ, svāveçā na ā gata. Ppp. gives, as not seldom, in part the MS. readings, corrupted: it begins sanjanānām vihrām, has havis for madhu in c, and, for ḍ, svāveçāsa etana. The combination of p. upāçāna into s. upētana is one of those aimed at by Prāt. iii. 52, according to the comment on that rule; but it would equally well fall under the general rule (iii. 38) as to the order of combination when ā comes between two vowels (upā-ā-itana like indra-ā-ihī etc.). [Cf. also Lanman, JAOS. x. 425.]

4. Come ye just here, O kine, and flourish here like çākā; also multiply (pra-jā) just here; let your complaisance be toward me.

Çāke 'va (p. çākāviva) in b is very obscure: Weber renders "like dung" (as if çākā=çākyi); Ludwig, "with the dung" (as if çākā=çaknā); Grill, "like plants" (implying çākam iva or çākā iva); the comm. says "multiply innumerable, like flies" (çākā=maksikā); this last is, so far as can be seen, the purest guesswork, nor is anything brought up in its support; and the "dung" comparisons are as unsuitable as they are unsavory. The explanation of the comm. accords with one among those offered by the commentators on VS. xxiv. 32 (= MS. iii. 14. 13) and TS. v. 5. 18^t, where çākā also occurs. Ppp. reads çakā iva. SPP. reports his pada-mss. as accenting gāvah in a, but emends in his pada-text to gāvah; the latter is read by all ours, so far as noted.

5. Let your stall be propitious; flourish ye like çāriçākā; also multiply just here; with me we unite you.

There is no Ppp. text of this verse to help cast light on the obscure and difficult çāriçākā (p. çāriçākāviva). The comm. (implying -kās) explains the word as meaning "kinds of creatures that increase by thousands in a moment," but offers no etymology or other support; the translators supply a variety of ingenious and unsatisfactory conjectures (Weber, "like çāri-dung," çāri perhaps a kind of bird; Grill "[fatten yourselves] like the çārikā" or hooded crow; Ludwig simply puts a question-mark in place of a translation). R. offers the conjecture çāriḥ (= çāliḥ) çaka iva 'like rice in manure.' Our P.M.E.I. accent çāriçāke 'va.

[Bloomfield emends to çāri-çukeva (= -kās iva), 'thrive ye like starlings and parrots.' True, these birds are habitual companions in literature as in life (see my translation of Karpūra-mañjarī, p. 229, note), loquacity being their salient characteristic; but what is the tertium comparationis between the thriving of cows and of starlings?]

6. Attach yourselves, O kine, to me as lord of kine; this your stall here [be] flourishing; to you, becoming numerous with abundance of wealth, to you living, may we living be near (upā-sad).

Bhāvantas in c would be a desirable emendation. Upa-sad may be rather 'wait upon' (so Grill), only then we should expect rather sadāma (comm., upagacchema). [W's implied difference between sadema and sadāma is not clear to me.] Ppp. reads in a gopatya, and its b is mayi vo goṣṭha iha poṣayāti. [The epithet ārṣi seems to be as meaningless here as at iii. 12. 7 — see note, end.]

15. For success in trade.

[Atharvan (paṇyakāmah). — aṣṭarcam. vāiṣvadevam utāi "ndrāgnam. trāiṣṭubham :
1. bhurij ; 4. 3-av. 6-p. bṛhatīgarbhā virāḍatyaṣṭi ; 5. virāḍjagatī ;
7. anuṣṭubh ; 8. nicrt.]

Four of the verses are found in Pāipp. xix. (1, 4, 6, 2, in this order). The hymn is used by Kāuṣ. in a rite for good-fortune in trading (50. 12), and again (59. 6) for a similar purpose ; also (or vs. 1) in the indramahotsava ceremony (140. 16) ; also vs. 7 and 8 in the appeasing of the flesh-eating fire (70. 13, 14). In Vāit. (6. 9), vs. 7 is employed in the ceremony of establishing the sacrificial fire. The usual statement of these various uses appears to be lacking in the manuscript of the comm., and is supplied, only in part, by its editor.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 215 ; Zimmer, p. 258 (except vs. 7, 8) ; Weber, xvii. 247 ; Grill (vs. 1-6), 69, 113 ; Griffith, i. 102 ; Bloomfield, 148, 352. — Cf. Hillebrandt, Veda-chrestomathie, p. 38.

1. I stir up (cud) the trader Indra ; let him come to us, be our fore-runner ; thrusting [away] the niggard, the waylaying wild animal, let him, having the power (iṣ), be giver of riches to me.

Or paripanthīnam and mṛgām in c may be independent of one another (so comm., and translators except Weber and Zimmer). Ppp. has, for a, b, indram vayanṁ vanijam havāmahe sa nas trātā pura etu prajānan. The Anukr. notices c as jagatī pāda. [“Indra, the trader” : cf. Bergaigne, Rel. véd., ii. 480. — Many Jātaka tales (e.g. no's 1, 2) give vivid pictures of the life of the trading caravans.]

2. The many roads, travelled by the gods, that go about (sam-car) between heaven-and-earth — let them enjoy me with milk, with ghee, that dealing (krī) I may get (ā-hr) riches.

Ppp's version is very different : iḥāi 'vaṣ panthā bahavo devayānām anu dyāvā-prthivī supranītiḥ : teṣām ahnāni varcasy ā dadhāmi yathā klītvā dhanam āvakāni. The comm. allows us alternatively to understand deva- in a as “by traders” ; he renders juṣantām in c by sevantām, as if it were causative. His text has at the beginning ye te panth-. The emendation, suggested by Weber, of mā in c to me would help the sense. The first half-verse is found again below as vi. 55. 1 a, b. To make a regular trīṣṭubh, we must contract to -prthivī in b, and expand to krī-tu-ā in d ; the Anukr. perhaps regards the two irregularities as balancing one another.

3. With fuel, O Agni, with ghee, I, desiring, offer the oblation, in order to energy (tāras), to strength ; — revering with worship (brāhman), so far as I am able — this divine prayer (dhī), in order to hundred-fold winning.

The verse is RV. iii. 18. 3, without variant — save that RV. accents of course juhōmi, as does our edition by necessary emendation, while SPP. follows all the mss. in giving juhomi (the pāda-text puts a sign of pāda-division after the word, but also before it). The verse is not at all likely to have been an original part of our hymn; the word çatasēyāya in d has caused its addition. The comm. renders tārāse by vegāya çighra-gamanāya, and applies yāvād içe in two ways, to the winning or to the worshipping.

4. This offense (? çarāṇi) of ours mayest thou, O Agni, bear with (mṛṣ), what distant road we have gone. Successful (çunā) for us be bargain and sale; let return-dealing make me fruitful; do ye two enjoy this oblation in concord; successful for us be our going about and rising.

The first two pādas are wanting in the Pāipp. version of the hymn (though they occur, in another connection, in Ppp. i.), and they are plainly an intrusion here, due to the mention of distant travel in b; they form the first half of RV. i. 31. 16 (but RV. reads for b imām ādhvānam yām āgāma dūrāt; LÇS., in its repetition of the RV. verse at iii. 2. 7, agrees with AV. in preferring dūram). The insertion dislocates the comm's division of the hymn; he reckons only the first 4 pādas as vs. 4, then the last two with the first two of our 5 as vs. 5, and the latter half of our 5 with the former half of our 6 as vs. 6, making a vs. 7 of only the two concluding pādas of our 6, and numbering the two remaining verses as 8 and 9. Some of our mss. (P.M.W.E.I.) divide and number in the same way to the middle of our vs. 6, then making vs. 7 consist of 6 pādas and end where our vs. 7 ends. Ppp. has for its verse a different version of our c-f: paṇo for çunam at the beginning (with stu* after no), godhani naṣ for phalinam mā, and, for our e, saiṁrarāṇā havir idam juṣantām. The Anukr. seems to scan the verse as 11 + 9 : 12 + 11 : 11 + 12 = 66, though c and f are properly to be made regularly triṣṭubh by elision to stu*. The comm. renders çarāṇi in a by "injury" (hiṁsā), and explains it as either that arising (to Agni) from the intermission of sacred rites in consequence of the householder's absence from home, or else that to the absentee from his long journey as expressed in b—mīnṛsas being in the first case = kṣamasva, and in the second = marṣaya or titiṁsaya 'cause us to endure': perhaps the second is, after all, the better. [For d, rather, 'may barter make me abounding in fruit,' i.e. 'may barter bring me its reward.']

5. With what riches I practise (car) bargaining, seeking riches with riches, ye gods—let that become more for me, not less; O Agni, put down (ni-sidh) with the oblation the gain-slaying gods.

Or, possibly, 'the gods of the gain-slayer' (sātaghnās as gen. sing.; the comm. takes it as accus. pl., and Zimmer and Ludwig so translate). The omission of devān would rectify the meter and better the sense, and Weber and Grill [and Hillebrandt] leave it out. The Anukr. gives a mechanically correct definition of the verse as it stands.

6. With what riches I practise bargaining, seeking riches with riches, ye gods—therein let Indra assign me pleasure (? rūci), let Prajāpati, Savitar, Soma, Agni.

Ppp. has a better version of a: yat paṇena pratipānam carāmi; and it arranges c differently: indro me tasmīn ṛcam ā; and reads byhaspatis for prajāp- in d. HGS. (i. 15. 1) has a kindred verse, with second pāda nearly identical with ours, and rucam in c. [See also MP. ii. 22. 4.] Rūci, lit. 'brightness,' is variously understood by the translators: Zimmer, "attractive power"; Ludwig, "pleasure"; Weber, "understanding"; Grill, "consideration"; the comm. explains it by sarvajanaṁprītiṁ dhanapradānenā "dāneccām". [Ppp. seems to omit dhanena in b.]

7. Unto thee with homage do we, O priest Vāiçvānara ('for all men'), give praise; do thou watch over our progeny, our selves, our kine, our breaths.

Two of our pada-mss. (Bp.Kp.; also D.p.m.?) divide vāiçvānarah: tumah in b; P.M.W. give sām for sá at beginning of c. This verse and the next seem to be additions to the original hymn. [Under stu, BR. and Index Verborum join úpa with stu; correct Index under úpa accordingly.]

8. Every day may we bring constantly for thee as for a standing horse, O Jātavedas; rejoicing together with abundance of wealth, with food, may we thy neighbors, O Agni, take no harm.

The verse nearly accords with xix. 55. 1, below; the second half is the same as there; the first half here is more unlike the parallel verse in other texts (VS. xi. 75; ÇB. vi. 6. 4. 1; TS. iv. 1. 10¹; K. xvi. 7; MS. ii. 7. 7) than is xix. 55. 1 ab—see under xix. 55. 1; in the second half they vary only by putting agne at the beginning of d; they make a more manageable sentence by furnishing an object, ghāsám 'fodder,' for bhareina. The comm. renders tiçhate by svagyhe vartamānāya.

Here, at the end of the third anuvāka, of 5 hymns and 38 verses, the old Anukr. says simply açtāu (but O.R. give açtatrīṅçat).

The fifth prapāñhaka also ends with this hymn.

16. Morning invocation to various gods, especially Bhaga.

[Atharvan.—saptarcam. prātaḥsūktam. bārhaspatyam uta bahudevatyam. trāiçtubham:
1. ārçī jagatī; 4. bhurikpāñkti.]

Found in Pāipp. iv., with very few variants. It is a RV. hymn (vii. 41), repeated also in VS. (xxxiv. 34-40) and TB. (ii. 8. 979) [and MP. i. 14. 1-7, in the same order as here]. It is used by Kāuç. [with hymns vi. 69 and ix. 1], in the rite for generation of wisdom (10. 24), to accompany washing the face on arising from sleep; also in certain ceremonies for "splendor" (varcas: 12. 15; 13. 6), with hymns vi. 69 and ix. 1; and it is reckoned to the varcasya gaṇas (12. 10, note; 13. 1, note). In Vāit. (5. 17), vs. 6 accompanies, in the agnyādheya, the horse's setting his foot on the boundary; and its latter half, an oblation in the cāturmāsya sacrifice [Vāit. 8. 14].

Translated: as RV. hymn, by Grassmann, i. 336, and by Ludwig, no. 92; as AV. hymn, by Weber, xvii. 251; Griffith, i. 104.—Cf. Winternitz, Hochzeitsrituell, p. 97, and notes.

1. Early (prātár) do we call Agni, early Indra, early Mitra-and-Varuṇa, early the (two) Açvins, early Bhaga, Pūshan, Brahmaṇaspati, early Soma and Rudra do we call.

The other texts, and Ppp. with them, read at the end of d huvema.

2. The early-conquering formidable Bhaga do we call, the son of Aditi who is disposer (vidhartár), to whom every one that thinks himself weak [or] strong, [to whom even the king] says: "apportion [me] a portion."

Bhaksi in d might also be 1st sing. mid. of the s-aorist, 'may I obtain' (so Weber, etc.); the comm. explains it both ways. Again all the other texts, including Ppp., have huvema for havāmahe in a; the Anukr. ignores the metrical irregularity caused by our reading. [Note the play on the god's name: 'portion' is bhāga.]

3. O Bhaga, conductor, Bhaga, thou of true bestowal, Bhaga, help upward this prayer (dhī), giving to us; O Bhaga, cause us to multiply with kine, with horses, O Bhaga, with men, — rich in men may we be.

In this verse AV. and RV. agree throughout; TB. reads ava with unlengthened final in b, and VS. no with unlingualized nasal in c.

4. Both now may we be fortunate (bhāgavant), and in the advance (? prapitvā) and in the middle of the days; and, O bounteous one, at the up-going of the sun, may we be in the favor of the gods.

As to the difficult word prapitvā, see Bloomfield, JAOS. xvi. 24 ff.; “up-going” is probably here ‘out-going, disappearance’; the comm. renders prapitvā by sāyāhne; his understanding of ūditān is lost out of the manuscript. The other texts read ūditā. [For this vs., see especially p. 35 end, 36 top, of Bl’s paper.]

5. Let the god Bhaga himself be fortunate; through him may we be fortunate; on thee here, Bhaga, do I call entire; do thou, O Bhaga, be our forerunner here.

RV. (with VS. and TB.) leaves the final of tēna unlengthened at beginning of b; and RV. and VS. make the sense of c better by reading johavīti; all the three have at the end of a the voc. devās. [Comm. to TB. makes johavīmi=āhvayati!]

6. The dawns submit themselves (? sam-nam) to the sacrifice (adhvarā), as Dadhikrāvan to the bright place; hitherward let them convey for me Bhaga, acquirer of good things, as vigorous (vājīn) horses a chariot.

All the other texts, including Ppp., read nas instead of me at end of c. The comm. renders sām namanta by sām gacchantām, calls dadhikrāvan a horse’s name, and explains the action of the obscure pāda b by sa yathā cūddhāya gamanāya saṁnaddho bhavati. The Anukr. appears to sanction the abbreviation rātham ’va in d.

7. Let excellent dawns, rich in horses, rich in kine, rich in heroes, always shine for us, yielding (duh) ghee, on all sides drunk of: do ye protect us ever with well-beings.

TB. read prāpīnās at end of c; Ppp. has instead pravīnās; the comm. explains by āpyāyitās ‘filled up, made teeming,’ which is very possibly to be preferred. [Delete the accent-mark under gōmatīr.]

17. For successful agriculture.

Four verses of this hymn are found together in Pāipp. ii., in the order 2, 1, 5, 4; vs. 3 occurs in Pāipp. xix., and there are verses in Pāipp. xii. and xix. resembling our vs. 6. Much of its material appears also in RV. x. 101, iv. 57, and parts in VS., TS., TA., and MS.: see under the several verses. The hymn is used by Kāuṣ. (20. 1 ff.) in an extended ceremony for success in plowing, the details of which, however, do not help the interpretation of the verses; vs. 8 (ib. 10) is specially quoted as accompanying an oblation to Indra at the further end of a furrow, or of each one of three furrows; the comm. also regards it as intended by ṣunāsīrāni at 106. 8, in the book of portents, in a charm against the portent of mixed-up plows (whatever that may be*); vs. 4, again, accompanies the marking out of the sacrificial hearth at 137. 19. In Vāit. (28. 30-32), vss. 1, 3, and 2 b appear in the agnicayana, in the ceremony of plowing the sacrificial hearth, and vs. 7 (9. 27) at the end of the cāturmāsya sacrifice, with an oblation to the ṣunāsīrā. * [“Wenn zwei Pflüge sich verstricken beim Ackern,” says Weber, Omina, p. 368.]

Translated: Weber, xvii. 255; Griffith, i. 106. — Vs. 3 is elaborately discussed by Roth, Festgruss an Böhlingh, p. 95 ff. See also Weber, Omina und Portenta, p. 371.

1. The poets (kavī) harness the plows (sīra), they extend severally the yokes — they the wise ones (dhīra), with desire of favor (?) toward the gods.

The verse seems to imply a hidden comparison of the poet's work with the plowman's. The other texts (RV. x. 101. 4; VS. xii. 67; TS. iv. 2. 55; MS. ii. 7. 12; K. xvi. 11; Kap. xxv. 3) read sumnayā (but K. has -yūh: Kap. not noted), which the translation adopts, -yāū seeming an unintelligent corruption of it; but the comm. gives a double explanation of -yāū, one as “desiring a happy-making sacrifice” and qualifying yajamāne understood, the other as from sumna-ya (-ya for root yā) and qualifying balīvardāu understood! He makes sīra equivalent with lāṅgala, and takes vi tanvate ās = “put on the oxen's shoulders”; vi-tan as here applied seems imitated from its use of stringing a bow; in TB. ii. 5. 8¹² we have even vi tanoti sīram.

2. Harness ye the plows, extend the yokes; scatter (vap) the seed here in the prepared womb; may the bunch (?) of virāj be burdened for us; may the sickles draw in (ā-yu) the ripe [grain] yet closer.

In the first half-verse, RV. (ib. 3) and VS. (ib. 68) have tanudhvam for tanota, the rest (ibid.) agreeing with our text (but K. has krto yonir); Ppp. reads kṣetre instead of yonāu; yōnāu, of course, involves a hidden comparison of sowing with impregnation. In the difficult and obscure second half, the other texts (not Ppp.) give girā ca for the unintelligible virājas, and āsat (with accent apparently meant as antithetic) for asat, which is read in all the mss., but in our edition (not in SPP's) emended to āsat; the same texts accent ṣruṣṭis (and our edition was emended to agree with them; SPP. accents the first syllable, with all the mss.). SPP. reads ṣnuṣṭis, with the majority of his authorities (including oral reciters), and with the comm.; among his mss. are found also ṣruṣṭis, ṣlū-, srū-, snū-, and ṣnuṣṭis. Part of our mss. also (E.I.H.Op.) are noted as seeming to intend ṣnū-, and, as Ppp. supports it by reading sunīṣṭis sabh-, the reading ṣnuṣṭih is adopted in the translation [as also at viii. 2. 1]. The manuscripts are not at all to be relied on for distinguishing ṣnu and ṣru [cf. iii. 30. 7 and note]. The comm. explains it by ācuprāpakah stambah, and sābharās as phalabhārasahitas ‘heavy with fruit’; of virāj he makes easy work by identifying it with anna, on the authority of TB. iii. 8. 104: annam vāt virāḥ! In d, finally, the chief discordance of the versions is at the end, where, for ā yavan (Ppp. āyuvam), RV.VS.Kap. read ē 'yāt, and TS.MS.K. ā 'yat. But TS. has ṣruyā (instead of -yās), and some of our mss. (P.M.W.), with the majority of SPP's, combine īchruyās or īchruyās, implying ṣruyās. The Anukr. does not heed that pāda d is, as it stands, jagatī. [W., in his own copy and in Index, seems to approve the accentless asat. — Comm. has ā yavam in d.]

3. Let the plow (lāṅgala), lance-pointed, well-lying, with well-smoothed handle, turn up (ud-vap) cow, sheep, an on-going chariot-frame, and a plump wench.

That is, apparently, let all these good things come as the reward of successful agriculture. The verse, not found in RV., but occurring in VS. (ib. 71; and thence quoted in the Vasiṣṭha Dharmasūtra ii. 34 and explained in ii. 35), as well as in TS.MS.K. (as above), has many difficult and questionable points. For ṣāvīrāvāt (Ppp. puts it before lāṅgalam) VS. accents ṣāvīravāt, and TS.MS.K. substitute ṣāvīravam; for suçīmam all have suçevam 'very propitious'; the Pet. Lex. suggests susīmam 'having a good parting' i.e. of furrows, or 'even-furrowed'; and R. refers to MB. i. 5. 2, sīmānaṁ nayāmi. Ppp. reads suveçam, which probably means suçevam. The impracticable somasat-saru (so in pada-text) is somapit-saru in VS., MS., K., and Vasiṣṭha, and somapiṭsalam in Ppp.; Vas. renders it "provided with a handle for the drinker of soma," implying the division somapi-tsaru; Weber conjectures a noun uman 'strap,' and emends to soma (= sa-uma) satsaru, "with strap and handle." But TS. reads sumattotsaru, and this is adopted in the translation, matī being taken not as from man but as the word found in matīkr and its derivatives, and related with matya etc. (Weber also refers to this meaning and connection.) The comm. explains suçīmam by karṣakasya sukhakaram, without telling how he arrives at such a sense; and somasatsaru (disregarding the pada-division) as from tsaru, either "a concealed going in the ground" (root tsar, explained by chadmagaṭāu), or else "a kind of part to be held by the plowman's hand"; in either case "a producer of the soma-sacrifice" (i.e. soma-sa). For ratha-vāhana 'the frame that carries a chariot when not in use,' and prasthāvāt, here virtually 'with the chariot on it,' see R. in the Festgruss an Böhtlingk, p. 95 ff.; the comm. interprets as açvabaltvārdādikaṁ rathavāhanasamartham. VS. reads at the beginning of c tūd ūd vapati, and TS. ūd tt kṛṣati; Ppp. has dadata kṛṣata; VS.TS.MS.Ppp. give for e praphariyāṁ (Ppp. -yāṁ) ca pīvarīm [and VS.TS. invert the order of d and e]; the comm. also has pīvarīm (= sthūlām); prapharvī he explains as prathamavayāḥ kanyā. The first pāda is defective unless we resolve la-ān. [Zimmer, p. 236, refers to Sir H. M. Elliot's Memoirs, ii. 341, for a description of the Punjab plow.]

4. Let Indra hold down the furrow; let Pūshan defend it; let it, rich in milk, yield to us each further summer.

This verse is found only in RV. (iv. 57. 7), which reads ānu yachatu for abhī rakṣatu; Ppp. has mahyaṁ instead of abhī. We had the second half-verse above, as iii. 10. 1 c, d.

5. Successfully (çunām) let the good plowshares thrust apart the earth; successfully let the plowmen follow the beasts of draft; O Çunāsīrā, do ye (two), dripping (?) with oblation, make the herbs rich in berries for this man.

VS. (xii. 69) and MS. (ii. 7. 12) have the whole of this verse; RV. (iv. 57. 8) and TS. (iv. 2. 5^b), only the first two pādas. For suphālās in a, VS. (also our I.) has sū phālās, and RV.TS. naḥ phālās, both preferable readings; RV.VS. have kṛṣantu for tudantu. In b, TS. gives abhī for ānu (our P.M. have ābhīnu); MS. has kīnāço abhy etu vāhālā; RV.VS., -çā abhī yantu vāhālā. In c, the comm. gives toṣamānū, explaining it by tuṣyantāu. In d, the mss. vary (as everywhere where the word occurs) between -pīppalās and -piṣpalās; about half are for each; VS.MS. end the pāda with kartanaṁ smē. Ppp. has a peculiar version: çunāṁ kenāço anv etu vāhaṁ çunāṁ phālo vinadann ayatu bhūmim: çunāsīrā haviṣā yo yajātrāi supīppalā oṣadhayas santu tasmāi. The comm. [quoting Yāska] declares Çunāsīrāu to be Vāyu and Āditya (wind and sun); or else, he says, Çuna is god of happiness and Sīra of the plow.

6. Successfully let the draft-animals, successfully the men, successfully let the plow (lāṅgala) plow; successfully let the straps be bound; successfully do thou brandish the goad.

This is RV. iv. 57. 4, without variation; it is also found, with the two following verses, in TA. (vi. 6. 2, vss. 6-8), which reads nāvās instead of nāras at end of a. Part of our mss. (P.M.W.E.) have uṣṭrām in ḍ. The comm. declares Ḥuna to be addressed in the last pāda. Ppp. has in xii. ḥunam vṛtrām āyaccha ḥunam aṣṭrām ud iṅgayah ḥunam tu tapyatām phālaḥ ḥunam vahatu lāṅgalam; and in xix. the same a, b [ending -ya], but, for c, ḥunam vahasya ḥuklasyā 'ṣṭrayā jahi dakṣiṇam.

7. O Ḥunāsīrā, do ye (two) enjoy me here; what milk ye have made in heaven, therewith pour ye upon this [furrow].

'Milk,' i.e. nourishing fluid. Weber implies at the end "earth" (instead of "furrow"), which is perhaps to be preferred. RV. (iv. 57. 5) reads for a ḥunāsīrāv imām vācam ju-; TA. (as above) the same, except that it strangely omits the verb, and thus reduces the triṣṭubh pāda to a gāyatri; both texts mark the principal pāda-division after b. The comm. changes all the three verbs to 3d dual. The Anukr. forbids in a the resolution -sīrā ihā. In our edition the verse is numbered 6, instead of 7.

8. O furrow, we reverence thee; be [turned] hitherward, O fortunate one, that thou mayest be well-willing to us, that thou mayest become of good fruit for us.

RV. (iv. 57. 6) inverts the order of a and b, and both it and TA. (as above) end c and ḍ respectively with subhāgā 'sasi and suphālā 'sasi. All the pada-mss. have the blundering reading su-phātāḥ in ḍ. The Anukr. perversely refuses to make the resolution tu-ā in a.

9. With ghee, with honey (mādhu) [is] the furrow all anointed, approved (anu-man) by all the gods, by the Maruts; do thou, O furrow, turn hither unto us with milk, rich in refreshment, swelling with fulness of ghee.

The verse is found also in VS. (xii. 70), TS. (iv. 2. 5⁶), and MS. (ii. 7. 12). VS.MS. read -ajyatām for -aktā in a; all make c and ḍ exchange places, and at the beginning of c read asmān for sā nas; and VS.TS. put phāyasā in place of ghṛīdvat in ḍ, while MS. gives ūrjō bhāgām mādhumat pṭuv-.

18. Against a rival wife: with a plant.

[Atharvan.—vānaspatyam. ānuṣṭubham: 4. 4p. anuṣṭubgarbhā uṣṇih;
6. uṣṇigarbhā pathyāpāṅkti.]

This peculiarly Atharvan hymn has found its way also into the tenth book of the Rig-Veda (as x. 145, with exchange of place between vss. 3 and 4; it is repeated in RV. order at MP. i. 15. 1-6). Only three verses (our 4, 2, 1, in this order) are found in Pāipp. (vii.). Kāuṣ. uses it, among the women's rites, in a charm (36. 19-21) for getting the better of a rival; vs. 6 a and b accompany the putting of leaves under and upon the (rival's) bed. And the comm. (doubtless wrongly) regards vss. 5 and 6 to be intended by the pratīka quoted in 38. 30, instead of xii. 1. 54, which has the same beginning.

Translated: as RV. hymn, Ludwig, ii. 554, no. 932; Grassmann, ii. 415; as AV. hymn, Weber, v. 222; Zimmer, p. 307; Weber, xvii. 264; Griffith, i. 108; Bloomfield, 107, 354; further, by Winternitz, Hochzeitsrituell, p. 98.

1. I dig this herb, of plants the strongest, with which one drives off (bādḥ) her rival; with which one wins completely (sam-vid) her husband.

RV. reads in b the accus. vīrādham. For d, Ppp. gives kṛṇute kevalam patim. The comm. (with our Op.) has ośadhīm in a; he understands throughout the herb in question to be the pāṭhā (cf. ii. 27. 4), though Kāuṣ. and the Anukr. speak only of bāṇā-ḥarṇī 'arrow leaf' (not identified).

2. O thou of outstretched leaves, fortunate, god-quicken, powerful, do thou thrust away my rival, make my husband wholly mine.

'Outstretched,' lit. supine; horizontal, with the face of the leaf upward. RV. has dhamā for nudā in c, and the modern kuru for kṛdhi at the end. Ppp. offers only the first half-verse, in this form: uttānaparṇām subhagām sahamānām sahasvatīm; MP. also has sahamāne instead of devajūte.

3. Since he has not named (grāh) thy name, thou also stayest (ram) not with him as husband; unto distant distance make we my rival go.

This translation of the first half-verse follows closely our text. RV. has a very different version: nahy āsyā nāma grbhñāmi nō asmin ramate jāne 'since I name not her (its?) name, she (it?) also does not stay with (find pleasure in) this person (people?).' Winternitz applauds and accepts his commentator's explanation of b: "nor finds she pleasure in me" (taking ayam janas in the much later sense of "I"), but it seems wholly unsatisfactory. The meter calls for emendation in a to jagrāha 'I have named,' equivalent to the RV. reading; and R. makes the emendation, and retains the jāne of RV., rendering (as addressed by the woman using the charm to the plant) "I have not named [to her] thy name; and thou stayest (stayedst) not with the person (bei der Person)." The comm. regards the rival as addressed, and conveniently makes ramase = ramasva: "stay thou not with this my husband." Weber renders ramase by "kosest," thou dalliest not. No satisfactory solution of the difficulty is yet found.

4. Superior [am] I, O superior one; superior, indeed, to them (f.) that are superior; below [is] she that is my rival; lower [is] she than they (f.) that are lower.

RV. has the better reading āhā for adhās in c, allowing c and d to be combined into one sentence; and the comm. gives correspondingly adha. Ppp. is more discordant and corrupt: uttarā 'ham uttarabhyo uttaro ed ādharabhyah: adhaḥ sapatnī sūmarthy adhared ādhārabhyah. R. conjectures in a uttarāhāhamuttare, for uttarā 'hām aham-uttarē [cf. iii. 8. 3]. The verse, even if scanned as 7+7: 8+7=29, ought to be called bhurij.

5. I am overpowering; likewise art thou very powerful; we both, becoming full of power, will overpower my rival.

The verse xix. 32. 5 is a variation on this. RV. reads ātha for ātho in b, and the older bhūtvā for bhūtvā in c.

6. I have put on (abhī) for thee the overpowering one (f.); I have put to (úpa) for thee the very powerful one ; after me let thy mind run forth as a cow after her calf, run as water on its track.

RV. reads úpa for abht in a, and has for b abht tvā 'dhām sáhīyasā. The application of a and b as made by Kāuṣ. (see above) would suit the prepositions as found in RV. decidedly better than as in our text ; but much more appropriate is the use made by MP., elements of the root being secretly bound on the arms of the wife, with which she embraces the husband below and above [so that one arm is under him and the other over him] ; then in abhy adhām is further implied (as elsewhere [e.g. iii. 11. 8]) the value of abhidhānī, the halter or bridle with which a horse is controlled. The Anukr. does not sanction the resolution ma-ām in c.

19. To help friends against enemies.

[Vasiṣṭha. — aṣṭarcam. vāiṣvadevam uta cāndramasam utāi 'ndram. āmiṣṭubham :
1. pathyābṛhatī ; 3. bhurigbṛhatī ; 6. 3-av. 6-p. triṣṭupkakummatīgarbhā
'ijagatī ; 7. vīrādāstārāpāṅkti ; 8. pathyāpāṅkti.]

The verses are found in Pāipp. iii. (in the verse-order 1, 2, 4, 3, 5, 7, 6, 8). The hymn is applied by Kāuṣ. (14. 22-24) in a rite for gaining victory over a hostile army, and reckoned (14. 7, note) to the aparājita gaṇa. The Vāit. uses vs. 1 in the agnīcayana (28. 15) in connection with lifting the ukhya fire, and vs. 6-8 in a sattra sacrifice (34. 16, 17), with mounting a chariot and discharging an arrow.

Translated : John Muir, Original Sanskrit Texts, i.² 283 ; Ludwig, p. 234 ; Weber, xvii. 269 ; Griffith, i. 109.

1. Sharpened up is this incantation (? brāhman) of mine ; sharpened up [my] heroism, strength ; sharpened up, victorious, be the unwasting authority (kṣatrá) [of them] of whom I am the household priest (puróhita).

Or brāhman and kṣatrá may signify respectively the Brāhman and Kṣatriya quality or dignity of the puróhita and his constituency. The verse is found also in VS. (xi. 81), TS. (iv. 1. 103), TA. (ii. 5. 2, vs. 15), MS. (ii. 7. 7), and K. (xvi. 7, Weber). The first two of these agree in all their readings, omitting idám in a and ajáram astu in c, and reading in c, ḍ jiṣṇú yásyā 'hám ásmi ; and TA.MS. differ from them only by adding me before jiṣṇú ; Ppp. has kṣatráṃ me jiṣṇu, but agrees with our text in ḍ. The comm. moreover has jiṣṇu, and the translation implies it ; jiṣṇús can only be regarded as a blunder. Ppp. further gives mayī 'dam for ma idam in a, and mama for balam in b. Our original c has apparently got itself mixed up with vs. 5 c.

2. Up I sharpen the royalty of them, up their force, heroism, strength ; I hew [off] the arms of the foes with this oblation.

The translation implies emendation of the syāmi of all the mss. and of both editions to cyāmi ; it is obviously called for (suggested first by the Pet. Lex.), and the comm. reads cyāmi ; Ppp. probably intends it by paçyāmi. The latter half-verse is found again below as vi. 65. 2 c, ḍ ; its text is confused here in Ppp. (vṛçcāmi çatruṇām bāhū sam açvām açvān aham). The Anukr. ignores the redundant syllable in a.

3. Downward let them fall, let them become inferior, who shall fight against (pr̥tany-) our bounteous patron (sūri) ; I destroy the enemies by my incantation ; I lead up our own men.

Ppp. reads adhas pad- at the beginning, and indram for sūrim in b. The second half-verse is found in VS. (xi. 82 c, d), TS. (iv. 1. 103), and MS. (ii. 7. 7), with the various readings kṣiṇómi and svāñ; the comm. also gives kṣiṇómi. The comm. renders sūrtin by kāryākāryavibhāgañnam. The Anukr. should call the verse virāḥ prastāra-pāñkti, since it properly scans as 11+11:8+8=38.

4. Sharper than an ax, also sharper than fire, sharper than Indra's thunderbolt — [they] of whom I am the household priest.

Emendation to indravajrāt would rectify the meter of c; but the Anukr. apparently accepts the redundancy there as balancing the deficiency in a.

5. The weapons of them I sharpen up; their royalty having good heroes, I increase; be their authority unwasting, victorious; their intent let all the gods aid.

The translation again (as in vs. 2) implies emendation of syāmi in a to ṣyāmi, which is read by Ppp. and by the comm. Most of our mss. (all save O.Op.), as of SPP's, accent in b sūvīram, and both editions have adopted the reading; but it ought, of course, to be svūvīram, as always elsewhere (and as the comm. here describes the word). Ppp. has vardhayasva at end of b, and its d is ugram eṣāñ cittāñ bahudhā viṣvarūpā. The definition of the verse as trīṣṭubh is wanting in the Anukr. [London ms.], doubtless by an error of the manuscripts, which are confused at this point. [The Berlin ms. does give it.]

6. Let their energies (vājina) be excited, O bounteous one (maghāvan); let the noise of the conquering heroes arise; let the noises, the clear (ketumānt) halloos, go up severally; let the divine Maruts, with Indra as their chief, go with the army.

With the first two pādas compare RV. x. 103. 10 a, d: ūd dharṣaya maghavann āyudhāni . . . ūd rāthānāñ jāyatāñ yantu ghoṣāñ. Some of our mss. (P.M.W.O.Op.Kp.), as of SPP's, read in c ulūlāyas, but both editions give -lul-; the comm. has ullulāyas, and declares it an imitative word. The omission either of ulūlāyas or of ketumāntas would make a jagatī pāda of c, and that of devās would do the same for d; as the verse stands, the Anukr. scans it 11+11:8+8:6+8=52. Part of our mss. (I.O.Op.) agree with the comm. in ending this verse with ūd iratām, and throwing the two remaining pādas into vs. 7, to the great detriment of the sense, as well as against the probable earlier form of the verse. Ppp. reads: uddharṣantāñ vājinañ vājinañbhy ad vāirānāñ jāyatāñ etu ghoṣāñ: pṛthag ghoṣā ulalayaṣ ketumantu udīratām; with e and f as in our text.

7. Go forth, conquer, O men; formidable be your arms (bāhū); having sharp arrows, slay them of weak bows; having formidable weapons, having formidable arms (bāhū), [slay] the weak ones.

The first half-verse is RV. x. 103. 13 a, c (found also in SV. ii. 1212; VS. xvii. 46), without variation; TS. (iv. 6. 44) has the same two pādas together, but reads ūpa prē 'ta jāyatā nara sthira vāñ etc. Ppp. has the first half-verse (with pra yatā and vas), adding as second half indro vaṣ ṣarma yacchaty anādhrṣyā yathā 'satā. The verse is not virāj [7+8:11+12], if the obviously proper resolutions are made.

8. Being let loose, fly thou away, O volley, thou that art sharpened up by incantation; conquer the enemies; go forth; slay of them each best one; let no one soever of them yonder be released.

Pādas a-c and e are RV. vi. 75. 16, a verse found also in a number of other texts: SV. ii. 1213; VS. xvii. 45; TS. iv. 6. 44; TB. iii. 7. 6²³; ĀpÇS. iii. 14. 3. RV.SV.VS. agree throughout, having gācha for jāya at beginning of c, and, for d, mā' mīṣām kām canó 'c chiṣaḥ; the others have this d, except that they put eṣām in place of amīṣām; they also give viça for padyasva at end of c, and TS. has the nom. -çitā, which is better, at end of b, while TB. and ĀpÇS. alter to āvasrīṣṭaḥ pārā pata çaró (for çáro?) bráhmaśamçitah. Our d is found again as xi. 10. 21 b; our e, as viii. 8. 19 d; xi. 9. 20 d; 10. 19 d. The presence of -samçite in this verse gives it a kind of right to stand as part of the hymn, of which samçā is the unifying word; vss. 6 and 7 are probably later additions. In Ppp., vss. 6-8, with RV. x. 103. 10, form a piece by themselves; vs. 8 ends with pra padyasva sā mīṣām kām cano 'c chiṣaḥ (nearly as RV.). Correct the accent-mark in d so as to read váram-varam.

20. To Agni and other gods: for various blessings.

[Vasiṣṭha. — daçarcam. āgneyam uta mantroktadevatyam. ānuṣṭubham: 6. pathyāpañkti; 8. virādajagatī.]

Excepting the last verse, the hymn is found in Pāipp. iii. (in the verse-order 1-3, 7, 4, 6, 5, 8, 9). It includes (vss. 2-7) a whole RV. hymn (x. 141), with a single RV. verse (iii. 29. 10) prefixed, and only the last two verses occur nowhere else. It is used in Kāuç. (18. 13) in the nīrṛtikarman, with an offering of rice mixed with pebbles; again (40. 11), in the rite of the removal of the sacrificial fire, with transfer of it to the fire-sticks or to one's self; again (41. 8), with v. 7 and vii. 1, in a rite for success in winning wealth; and the comm. directs vs. 4 to be used in the sava sacrifices (ity anayā bhṛgvaiṅgirovidaç catura ārṣeyān āhvayet). In Vāit., vs. 1 appears in the agnīṣṭoma sacrifice (24. 14), and again in the sarvamadhā (38. 14) with the same use as in Kāuç. 40. 11; and also in the agnicayana (28. 25), with the laying of the gārha-patya bricks; further, verses 2-4 and 7 and 8 in the agnicayana (29. 19); vs. 4 a, b in the agnīṣṭoma (15. 16), as the adhvaryu follows the fire and soma; vs. 5 in the same (23. 20), with certain offerings; and vs. 6 in the same (19. 2), with a graha to Indra and Vāyu.

Translated: Weber, xvii. 272; Griffith, i. 111. — See Weber, Berliner Sb., 1892, p. 797.

1. This is thy seasonable womb (yóni), whence born thou didst shine; knowing it, O Agni, ascend thou; then increase our wealth.

The verse is found in numerous other texts: besides RV. (iii. 29. 10), in VS. (iii. 14 et al.), TS. (i. 5. 5² et al.), TB. (i. 2. 1¹⁶ et al.), MS. (i. 5. 1 et al.), K. (vi. 9 et al.), Kap. (i. 16 et al.), JB. (i. 61): in nearly all occurring repeatedly. VS.TS.TB.JB. differ from our version only by reading āthā for ādthā at beginning of d; Ppp. and the comm. have atha; MS.K. substitute tátas; but RV. gives further sīda for roha in c, and gtras for raytm in d. The comm., in accordance with the ritual uses of the verse, declares ayám at the beginning to signify either the fire-stick or the sacrificer himself.

2. O Agni, speak unto us here; be turned toward us with good-will; bestow upon us, O lord of the people (vīç); giver of riches art thou to us.

RV. x. 141 begins with this verse, and it is found also in VS. (ix. 28), TS. (i. 7. 10²),

MS. (i. 11. 4), and K. (xiv. 2). RV.VS.MS.K. have prá no y- in c, and, for viçám pate, RV.MS.K. read viças pate, TS. bhuvvas p-, and VS. sahasrajit; VS. goes on with tvāni hi dhanadā ási for d; VS.TS. further have práti for pratyāñ in b. Ppp. combines in ḍ dhanadā 'si.

3. Let Aryaman bestow upon us, let Bhaga, let Brihaspati, let the goddesses; let the divine Sūnṛtā also assign wealth to me.

Found also in the other texts (RV. x. 141. 2; VS. ix. 29; the rest as above; and Kap. 29. 2). All of these, excepting TS., leave no in a again unlingualized; VS.K. substitute pūṣā for bhāgas in b, and omit c; the others have devās instead of devīs; for ḍ, RV. gives rāyó devī dadātu naḥ, while the others vary from this only by prá vāk for rāyās. By Sūnṛtā (lit. 'pleasantness, jollity') the comm. understands Sarasvatī to be intended.

4. King Soma [and] Agni we call to aid with [our] songs (gītr); [also] Āditya, Vishṇu, Sūrya, and the priest (brahmān) Brihaspati.

Found in RV. (x. 141. 3), SV. (i. 91), VS. (ix. 26), and TS.MS.K. (as above). The only variant in RV. is the preferable ādityān in c; it is read also by the other texts except SV.K.; but SV.TS.MS.K. give vāruṇam for āvase in a; and they and VS. have anv ā rabhāmahe for gīrbhīr havāmahe in b. The comm. takes brahmānam in ḍ as "Prajāpati, creator of the gods."

5. Do thou, O Agni, with the fires (agnī), increase our worship (brāhman) and sacrifice; do thou, O god, stir us up to give, unto giving wealth.

The second half-verse is of doubtful meaning—perhaps 'impel to us wealth for giving' etc.—being evidently corrupted from the better text of RV. (x. 141. 6; also SV. ii. 855), which reads in c devātātaye for deva dātave, and in ḍ rāyās for rayīm; even Ppp. has devātātaye. The comm. has dānave (rendering it "to the sacrificer who has given oblations") for dātave, also nodaya for codaya.

6. Indra-and-Vāyu, both of them here, we call here with good call, that to us even every man may be well-willing in intercourse, and may become desirous of giving to us.

Found also (except the last pāda, which even Ppp. repudiates) in RV. (x. 141. 4), VS. (xxxiii. 86), and MS.K. (as above). For ubhāv ihā in a, RV. reads bḥhaspātīm, and the other texts susamdyā. For ḍ, VS. has anamīvāḥ saṅgāme for sāṅgatyām, and MS. the same without anamīvās; TS. has (in iv. 5. 1²) a nearly corresponding half-verse: yāthā naḥ sārvaṃ tṛ jūgād ayakṣmān sumānā ásat. Ppp. omits a, perhaps by an oversight. The comm. takes suhāvā in b as for suhāvāu, which is perhaps better. In our edition, the word is misprinted susāv-.

7. Do thou stir up Aryaman, Brihaspati, Indra, unto giving; [also] Vāta (wind), Vishṇu, Sarasvatī, and the vigorous (vājīn) Savitar.

Found also in RV. (x. 141. 5), VS. (ix. 27), and TS.MS.K. (as above). All save RV. read vācam instead of vātam in c, and so does the comm.; K. puts vācam after viṣṇum [and for a it has our vs. 4 a].

8. In the impulse (prasavā) of vigor (? vāja) now have we come into being, and all these beings within. Both let him, foreknowing, cause him to give who is unwilling to give, and do thou confirm to us wealth having all heroes.

The verse seems to have no real connection with what precedes and follows, nor do its two halves belong together. They are in other texts, VS. (ix. 25 and 24) and TS. (in i. 7. 10^r), parts of two different verses, in a group of three, all beginning with vājasya followed by prasavā, and all alike of obscure and questionable interpretation, and belonging to the so-called vājaprasaviyāni, which form a principal element in the vājapeya sacrifice (see Weber's note on this verse [also his essay Ueber den Vājapeya, Berliner Sb., 1892, p. 797]). Instead of nū in a, TS. and MS.K. (as above), as also Ppp., have the nearly equivalent idām; and all (save Ppp.) read ā babhūva instead of sām babhūvima at end of a, and sarvātas instead of antār at end of b, omitting the meter-disturbing utā at beginning of c; VS.K. read in c dāpayati for -tu; and all save K. give the preferable yachatu at the end (the comm. has yacchāt); then VS. gives sā no rayīm in d, and K. has a peculiar d: somo rayīm sahavīram ni yaṁsat. Ppp. is defective in parts of this verse and the next; it reads at the end of c prajānām. Pāda a is the only one that has a jagatī character. [TS. has sārvavīrām.]

9. Let the five directions yield (dulh) to me, let the wide ones yield according to their strength; may I obtain all my designs, with mind and heart.

All the pāda-mss. divide and accent prá: āpeyam, but SPP. emends to prá: āpeyam [see Sansk. Gram. § 850]; the comm. reads āpeyam. The comm. declares urvās to designate heaven and earth, day and night, and waters and herbs.

10. A kine-winning voice may I speak; with splendor do thou arise upon me; let Vāyu (wind) enclose (ā-rudh) on all sides; let Tvashtar assign to me abundance.

Several of our mss. (P.M.W.O.Kp.) read rudhām in c. The comm. explains ā rundhām by prānātmanā vṛṇotu.

This fourth anuvāka contains 5 hymns, with 40 verses, and the quotation from the old Anukr. is simply daça.

21. With oblation to the various forms of fire or Agni.

[Vasiṣṭha.—daçarcam. āgneyam. trāiṣṭubham: 1. puro nusiṭubh; 2, 3, 8. bhurij; 5. jagatī; 6. upariṣṭādvairādbrhatī; 7. virādgarbhā; 9, 10. anuṣṭubh (9. nicṛt).]

The whole of the hymn is found in Pāipp., vss. 1-9 in iii., vs. 10 in vii. The material is used by Kāuç. in a number of rites: it is reckoned (9. 1; the comm. says, only vss. 1-7) to the brhachānti gaṇa; it appears in the charm against the evil influence of the flesh-eating fire (43. 16-21; according to the comm., vss. 1-7 are quoted in 16, and the whole hymn in 20); again, in the establishment of the house-fire (72. 13; vss. 1-7, comm.); again, in the funeral rites (82. 25), on the third day after cremation, with oblation to the relics; once more, in the expiatory ceremony (123. 1), when birds or other creatures have meddled with sacrificial objects. Moreover, vs. 8 (the comm. says, vss. 8-10), with other passages from xii. 2, in a rite of appeasement in the house-fire ceremony (71. 8). In Vāit., vss. 1-7 are used in the agniṣṭoma (16. 16) on occasion of the soma becoming spilt; and vs. 7 in the sākamedha part of the cāturmāsya sacrifice [9. 17].

Translated: Weber, xvii. 277; Griffith, i. 113; vss. 1-7 also by Ludwig, p. 325.

1. The fires that are within the waters, that are in Vṛtra, that are in man, that are in stones, the one that hath entered the herbs, the forest-trees — to those fires be this oblation made.

Verses 1-4 are found also in MS. (ii. 13. 13) and in K. (xl. 3); both texts read yás for yé through the first half-verse, and áçmani for áçmasu; MS. begins yó apsv antár agntr, and K. yó apsv ágntr antár; K. further has bhuvanāni viçvā for óçadhír yó vānaspátīhs. Ppp. reads yo apsv antar yo vṛtre antar yaḥ puruṣe yo çmani: yo víveça oṣa-, and combines in ḍ tebhyo çni-. Part of the mss. (including our P.M.W.I.) combine vívécç' ósadh- in c, and both editions have adopted that reading — doubtless wrongly, since the Prāt. prescribes no such irregularity, nor is it elsewhere found to occur with óçadhí. The comm. explains what different "fires" are intended: the vādava etc. in the waters; that in the cloud (by Nir. ii. 16) or else in the body of the Asura Vṛtra; in man, those of digestion; in stones, those in the sāryakānta etc. (sparkling jewels); those that make herbs etc. ripen their fruits. Weber regards the stones that strike fire as intended, which seems more probable. The division of the verse by the Anukr., 8+11:11+11, is not to be approved. [Pādas a and b rather as 11+8; pādas c and d are in order, 12+11. — In c, correct to āvívécçāḥsadhír, as MS. reads.]

2. [The fire] that is within soma, that is within the kine, that is entered into the birds, into the wild beasts (mrgá), that entered into bipeds, into quadrupeds — to those fires be this oblation made.

MS. and K. begin b with váyānsi yá āvívéça; Ppp. with yo viṣto vayasi. The comm. takes the kine in a as representing the domestic animals in general, the fire being that which makes their milk cooked instead of raw, as often alluded to. SPP. follows the mss. in reading in b váyāhsu; our alteration to the equivalent váyassu was needless. The verse (10+11:13+11=45) is dhurij, but also irregular enough. [Pādas b and d are in order, each a triṣṭubh; and c, if we throw out the second yás, is a good jagatī; a is bad.]

3. He who, a god, goes in the same chariot with Indra, he that belongs to all men (vāiçvānará) and to all gods (?), whom, very powerful in fights, I call loudly on — to those fires be this oblation made.

MS. and K. have for a yéné 'ndrasya rátham sambabhūvúr, and Ppp. partly agrees with them, reading ye 'ndreṇa saratham sambabhūva. In b, the translation ventures to follow Ppp's reading viçvaderyas instead of -dāryās, because of its so obvious preferability in the connection; -dāryās is quite in place in vs. 9, and may perhaps have blundered from there into this verse; but MS. and K. have -dāryās; they further exchange the places of our 3 c and 4 c. Pāda b is a very poor triṣṭubh, though capable of being read into 11 syllables [read utá vā?].

4. He who is the all-eating god, and whom they call Desire (kāma), whom they call giver, receiving one, who is wise, mighty, encompassing, unharmable — to those fires be this oblation made.

MS. begins the verse with viçvādādam agnīm; K., with hutādādam agnīm; of b, both spoil the meter by reading pratigrahītāram; MS. begins c with dhīro yaḥ; K's c is corrupt. Ppp. reads āha for āhus in a (not in b also). The comm. simply paraphrases pratigrhāntam by pratigrahītāram; the reference is probably to the offerings which Agni receives in order to give them to the various gods. In our edition, an accent-mark belonging under ā of āhīs in a has slipped aside to the left.

5. Thou on whom as priest (hōtar) agreed with their mind the thirteen kinds of beings (bhāuvanā), the five races of men (mānavā): to the splendor-bestowing, glorious one, rich in pleasantness — to those fires be this oblation made.

The unusual and obscure number "thirteen" here seduces the comm. into declaring first that bhāuvanā signifies "month," coming from bhuvana "year"; and then the mānavās are the seasons! But he further makes the latter to be the four castes, with the niṣādas as fifth, and the former the thirteen sons, Viṣvakarman etc., of a great sage named bhuvana (because of viṣvakarman bhāuvana in AB. viii. 21. 8-11). Ppp. reads bhuvanā for bhāuvanās. The Anukr. does not heed that the last pāda is trīṣṭubh.

6. To him whose food is oxen, whose food is cows, to the soma-backed, the pious: to those of whom the one for all men (vāiṣvānarā) is chief — to those fires be this oblation made.

The first half-verse is RV. viii. 43. 11 a, b (also found, without variant, in TS. i. 3. 147). MS. (ii. 13. 13) has the whole verse as pādas a, b, d, e, interposing as c the pāda (stómair vidhemā 'gndye) which ends the gāyatrī in RV.TS. The meter (8+8:8+11) is, as brhatī, rather nicrt than virāj.

7. They who move on along the sky, the earth, the atmosphere, along the lightning; who are within the quarters, who within the wind — to those fires be this oblation made.

Our P.M.W. read in b vīdyūtam, and P.M.W.I. end the pāda with -carati. SPP. regards the exposition of the comm. as implying that the latter takes anu in b as an independent word: anu samc. In the definition of the Anukr., virāj appears to be used as meaning 'a pāda of 10 syllables' (11+10:10+11=42). [Read yé ca vāte?]

The three remaining verses of the hymn are plainly independent of what precedes, concerning themselves directly with the appeasement of an ill-omened fire; but the combination of the two parts is an old one, being found also in Ppp. The ejection of the evidently patched-together vs. 6 would reduce the first part [vss. 1-7] to the norm of this book.

8. Gold-handed Savitar, Indra, Brihaspati, Varuṇa, Mitra, Agni, all the gods, the Angirases, do we call; let them appease (cam) this flesh-eating fire.

Ppp. inverts the order of a and b. [MGS. has the vs. at ii. 1. 6.] The comm. gives a double explanation of "gold-handed": either "having gold in his hand to give to his praisers," or "having a hand of gold"; he also allows us to take dṅgirasas either as accusative or as nominative, "we the Angirases." The Anukr. notes that c is jagatī.

9. Appeased is the flesh-eating, appeased the men-injuring fire; so also the one that is of all conflagrations, him, the flesh-eating, have I appeased.

Ppp. has atho puruṣareṣiṇaḥ for b, and this time viṣvadvaryas in c. The anuṣṭubh is rather virāj than nicrt.

10. The mountains that are soma-backed, the waters that lie supine, the wind, Parjanya, then also Agni—these have appeased the flesh-eating one.

All our mss. save one (O.), and all SPP's save two or three that follow the comm., read açīçamam (apparently by infection from the end of vs. 9) at the end; both editions emend to -man, which is the reading of the comm. [Ppp. has the vs. in vii. (as noted above), and combines -pr̥ṣṭhā "pa in a-b and parjanya "d in c. — For "soma-backed," see Hillebrandt, Ved. Mythol. i. 60 f.]

22. To the gods: for splendor (vārcas).

[Vasiṣṭha. — varcasyam. bārhaspatyam uta vāiçvadevam. ānuṣṭubham: 1. virāṭ triṣṭubh; 3. 5-p. parānuṣṭub virādatijugati; 4. 3-av. 6-p. jagati.]

Found also (except vs. 6) in Pāipp. iii. Is reckoned to the varcasya gaṇa (Kāuç. 12. 10, note), and used in a charm for splendor (13. 1), with binding on an amulet of ivory. The comm. quotes the hymn also as employed by the Nakṣ. K. in a mahāçānti called brāhmī, for attainment of brahman-splendor; and by Pariç. iv. 1, in the daily morning consecration of an elephant for a king.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 461; Weber, xvii. 282; Griffith, i. 115.

1. Let elephant-splendor, great glory, spread itself, which came into being from Aditi's body; that same have all together given to me—all the gods, Aditi, in unison.

A number of the mss. (including our Bp.Op.) read ādityās [accent!] in b, and several of ours follow it with yām instead of yāt. Ppp. rectifies the meter of d by reading devāsas. Emendation in a to br̥hādīyaças would be acceptable. ÇB. (iii. 1. 3. 4; perhaps on the basis of b?) has a legend of the production of the elephant from something born of Aditi (see R. in Ind. Stud. xiv. 392). The comm. explains prathatām in a by asmāsu prathitam prakhyātam bhavatu 'be proclaimed as belonging to us.' In our edition, an accent-mark has dropped out from under the ba of -bahhūva. An irregular verse, scanned by the Anukr. as 12+10:10+10=42, but convertible into 45 syllables by resolving tanū-as, sārū-e, vīçu-e (of which only the first is unobjectionable). [If we read devāsas in d, the vs. is in order (12+11: ?+11), except in c (tād it sārve?).]

2. Let both Mitra and Varuṇa, Indra and Rudra, [each] take notice; the all-nourishing gods—let them anoint me with splendor.

All the mss.* read cetatus at end of b, and so does Ppp., and our edition has it; but SPP. follows the comm. and substitutes cetatu; SV. i. 154 has somaḥ pūṣā ca cetatuh; the translation implies cetatu, the other being probably a false form, generated under stress of the difficult construction of a singular verb with the preceding subjects. Weber takes it as cetatus, 3d dual perf. of root cat "frighten into submission." The Anukr. takes no notice of the deficiency of a syllable in a. * [So W's two drafts; but his collations note P.M.W. as reading cetutah (!) and Op. as reading cetatū.]

3. With what splendor the elephant came into being, with what the king among men (manuṣyā), among waters, with what the gods in the beginning went to godhood—with that splendor do thou, O Agni, now make me splendid.

Apsū, in b, is an impertinent intrusion as regards both sense and meter; it is wanting in Ppp. In c all the mss. give āyam (sañh., āyam); our edition makes the necessary emendation to āyan, and so does SPP. in his pada-text; but in saṃhitā (perhaps by an oversight) he reads āyan, unaccented; the comm. has āyan (accent doubtful): cf. iv. 14. 1 c, where the mss. again read āyam for āyan in the same phrase. Ppp. has a very different second half-verse: yena devā jyotiṣā dyām udāyan tena mā'gne varcasā saṃ sṛje 'ha. The comm. makes apsu in b mean either "[creatures] in the waters," or else "[Yakshas, Gandharvas, etc.] in the atmosphere." The metrical definition of the Anukr. is mechanically correct [52-2=50] if we count 13 syllables in b [and combine varcasāgne]!

4. What great splendor becomes thine, O Jātavedas, from the offering; how great splendor there is of the sun, and of the āsura-like elephant — so great splendor let the (two) Aṅvins, lotus-wreathed, assign unto me.

All the mss. read in b bhāvati, and SPP. accordingly adopts it in his edition; ours makes the necessary correction to bhāvati. The comm. reads āhute, vocative, at end of b; Ppp. has instead āhutam; and then adds to it, as second half-verse, our 3 d, e (with abhya for adyá, and kr̥dhi for kr̥ṇu), putting also the whole [i.e. our 4 a, b+3 d, e] before our vs. 3; and then it gives the remainder (c-f) of our vs. 4 here, with kr̥ṇutām for ā dhattām, and in c yavad varcaḥ sūr.

5. As far as the four directions, as far as the eye reaches (sam-aṅ), let so great force (indriyá) come together, that elephant-splendor, in me.

The comm. reads sam etu in c.

6. Since the elephant has become the superior (atiṣṭhāvant) of the comfortable (? susād) wild beasts, with his fortune [and] splendor do I pour (sic) upon myself.

That is, 'I shed it upon me, cover myself with it.' The comm. understands the somewhat questionable susād nearly as here translated, "living at their pleasure in the forest"; and atiṣṭhāvant as possessing superiority either of strength or of position.

Weber entitles the hymn, without good reason, "taming of a wild elephant."

23. For fecundity.

[Brahman. — cāndramasam uta yonidevatyam. ānuṣṭubham: 5. upariṣṭādbhurigbṛhatī; 6. skandhogrīvibṛhatī.]

Found in Pāipp. iii. Used by Kāuṣ. in the chapters of women's rites, in a charm (35.3) to procure the conception of male offspring, with breaking an arrow over the mother's head etc.

Translated: Weber, v. 223; Ludwig, p. 477; Zimmer, p. 319; Weber, xvii. 285; Griffith, i. 116; Bloomfield, 97, 356.

1. By what thou hast become barren (vehāt), that we make disappear from thee; that now we set down elsewhere, far away from (āpa) thee.

Vehāt is perhaps more strictly 'liable to abort'; the comm. gives the word here either sense. Ppp. is defective, giving only the initial words of vss. 1 and 2.

2. Unto thy womb let a foetus come, a male one, as an arrow to a quiver; let a hero be born unto thee here, a ten-months' son.

This verse and the two following occur in ÇGS. (i. 19.6), and this one without variant. Also this one in MP. [i. 12. 9] (Winternitz, p. 94), and in an appendix to AGS. i. 13. 6 (Stenzler, p. 48), with yonim after garbhas in a (and AGS. reads aitu), and omitting atra in c; and further in HGS. (i. 25. 1), like MP. in a, but retaining atra.

3. Give birth to a male, a son; after him let a male be born; mayest thou be mother of sons, of those born and whom thou shalt bear.

All the mss. save one or two (including our E.) read at the end yām; both editions make the necessary emendation to yān, which the comm. also gives. At beginning of b, Ppp. reads tvam, as do also the comm. and a couple of SPP's mss.; and Ppp. ends with janayāmi ca. MB. (i. 4. 9 c, d) has the first half-verse, reading vindasva for janaya; and MP. (as above) [i. 13. 2] also, with pūmāns te putrō nāri for a. And ÇGS. (as above) has our a, b, with, for c, d, teṣām mātā bhaviṣyasi jātānām janayānsi ca [the end corrupt, as in Ppp.].

4. And what excellent seeds the bulls generate, with them do thou acquire (vid) a son; become thou a productive milch-cow.

ÇGS. (as above) has for b puruṣā janayanti naḥ; it rectifies the meter of c by reading tebhiṣ t- for tāts t- (and it has janaya for vindasva); in d, it gives suprasūs, which is better than our sā pr-. MP. (as above) [i. 13. 3] repeats our verse very closely, only with naḥ for ca in b, and putrān in c; and it has, just before, the line tāni bhadrāṇi bijāny ṛṣabhā janayantu nāu. A verse in HGS. (as above) is quite similar: yāni pra-bhūni vīryāny ṛṣabhā janayantu naḥ: tāis tvāni garbhiṇī bhava sa jāyatām viratamaḥ svānām; and it offers a little later sā prasūr dhenugā bhava. Our reading tāts tvām in c is assured by Prāt. ii. 84; the resolution tu-ām makes the meter correct.

5. I perform for thee the [ceremony] of Prajāpati; let a foetus come to thy womb; acquire thou a son, O woman, who shall be weal for thee; weal also for him do thou become.

The accent of bhāva at the end is anomalous. HGS. (as above) has the first half-verse [and MP., at i. 13. 1, concordantly]; it reads karomi at the beginning, and in b puts yonim after garbhas; this latter Ppp. does also. The comm. understands prajā-patyam as above translated; other renderings are possible ("das Zeugungswerk," Weber; "Zeugungsfähigkeit," Zimmer). The metrical definition of the verse (8+8:8+5+8=37) is not good save mechanically.

6. The plants of which heaven has been the father, earth the mother, ocean the root—let those herbs of the gods (dātvā) favor thee, in order to acquisition of a son.

The first half-verse is found again later, as viii. 7. 2 c, d; in both places, part of the mss. read dyāús p- (here only our O., with half of SPP's); and that appears to be required by Prāt. ii. 74, although the looser relation of the two words favors in a case like this the reading dyāúh, which both editions present. Ppp. has an independent version: yāsām pitā parjanya bhūmir mātā babhūva: with devīs in c (this the comm. also reads) and ośadhīs in d. The verse is irregular, and capable of being variously read; and what the Anukr. means by its definition is obscure.

24. For abundance of grain.

[Bhṛgu. — saptarcam. vānaspatyam uta prājāpatyam. ānuṣṭubham : 2. nicṛtpathyāpāṅkti.]

Found (except vs. 7) in Pāipp. v. Used by Kāuṣ. (21. 1 ff.) in rites for the prosperity of grain-crops, and reckoned (19. 1, note) to the puṣṭika mantras. The comm. declares it employed also in the pitṛmedha ceremony (82. 9), but doubtless by an error, the verse there quoted being xviii. 3. 56 (which has the same pratika).

Translated: Ludwig, p. 268; Weber, xvii. 286; Griffith, i. 117.

1. Rich in milk [are] the herbs, rich in milk my utterance (vācas); accordingly, of them that are rich in milk I bring by thousands.

The first half-verse occurs again, a little changed, as xviii. 3. 56 a, b; it is also RV. x. 17. 14 a, b, etc.: see under xviii. 3. 56. The comm. reads in d bhareyam for bhare 'ham; he understands "be" instead of "are" in a, b. For second half-verse Ppp. has atho payasvatām paya ā harāmi sahasraçaḥ.

2. I know him that is rich in milk; he hath made the grain much; the god that is "collector" by name, him do we call, whichever is in the house of one who sacrifices not.

That is, away from the service of the impious to that of us, the pious. A god "collector" (sambhṛtvān) is not known elsewhere. Ppp. reads for a aham veda yathā payaç, and, in c-e, yo vedas tavam yajāmahe sarvasyā yaç ca no gr̥he. In our edition, an accent-mark has slipped from under -dā- to under ve- at the beginning. It is the fourth pāda that is nicṛt [read tām-tām ?].

3. These five directions that there are, the five races (kr̥ṣṭī) descended from Manu (mānavī)—may they bring fatness (sphāṭī) together here, as streams [bring] drift when it has rained.

Or nadīs might be nom. sing.; the comm. of course takes it as plural; çāpam he understands as "a kind of animals" (prāṇijātam). Our O.Op. have at the end -vahām. Ppp. reads for b mānavāṅk̄ pañca gr̥ṣṭayaḥ (cf. gr̥ṣṭi for kr̥ṣṭi in ii. 13. 3); and, for c, d, sarvāç çambhūr mayobhuvo vṛse çāpam nadīr iva.

4. As a fountain of a hundred streams, of a thousand streams, unexhausted, so this grain of ours, in a thousand streams, unexhausted.

The metrical deficiency in a calls for a change of reading, and the usual correlation of evā in c suggests yāthā; and, as Ppp. reads yāthā, the translation ventures to adopt it, as ut instead is hardly better than unmanageable. Weber supplies aca; Ludwig, "I open, as it were"; the comm. says that ut means udbhavati, and does not trouble himself about its construction with an accusative; we may take the verse as a virtual continuation of vs. 3, and the nouns as governed by samāvahān. Ppp. makes the verse easy by reading yāthā rūpaç çatadhāras sahasradhāro akṣataḥ: eva me astu dhānyam sahasradhāram akṣatam.

5. O hundred-handed one, bring together; O thousand-handed one, pile together; of what is made and of what is to be made do thou convey together the fatness here.

Ppp. has for b sahasrāi va samgiraḥ, for c yathe ya sphāṭir āyasi, and for d our c.

The comm. reads samāvaham at the end, rendering it samprāpto 'smi; to the adjectives in c he supplies dhanadhānyādeh. [Sāmi kira, 'overwhelm,' i.e. 'bestow abundantly.']

6. Three measures of the Gandharvas, four of the house-mistress; of them whichever is richest in fatness, with that one we touch thee.

Ppp. reads at the end marśāmasi; the comm. regards the grain as the object of address in d, and the intent to be "increase thou by the act of touching"; Weber understands rather the master of the house, or perhaps the harvest-wagon. The "measures" are doubtless those of grain set apart; the comm. calls them samṛddhihetavaḥ kalāḥ; and he gives as alternative explanation of "house-mistress" the Apsarases, spouses of the Gandharvas!

7. Bringer (upoḥā) and gatherer (samūḥā) [are] thy (two) distributors, O Prajāpati; let them convey hither fatness, much unexhausted plenty.

Two or three of our mss. (P.s.m.M.W.) read in c vahatam, as does the comm., with one of SPP's mss. The comm. explains kyattārāu by sārathī abhimatakāryasampādakāu.

25. To command a woman's love.

[Bhṛgu (jāyākāmaḥ). — māitrāvaruṇāni kāmēṣudevatākāni ca. ānuṣṭubham.]

Not found in Pāipp. Used by Kāuṣ. (35.22) in the chapters of women's rites, in a charm for bringing a woman under one's control, by pushing her with a finger, piercing the heart of an image of her, etc.

Translated: Weber, v. 224; Muir, OST. v. 407; Ludwig, p. 516; Zimmer, p. 307; Weber, xvii. 290; Grill, 53, 115; Griffith, i. 119; Bloomfield, 102, 358. — Cf. Zimmer, p. 300; Bergaigne-Henry, Manuel, p. 144. Muir gives only a part.

1. Let the up-thruster thrust (tud) thee up; do not abide (dhṛ) in thine own lair; the arrow of love (kāma) that is terrible, therewith I pierce thee in the heart.

Pāda a evidently suggests the finger-thrust of Kāuṣ.; what uttudā really designates is matter for guessing, and the translators guess differently; the comm. says "a god so named." The comm. has the bad reading dr̥thās in b.

2. The arrow feathered with longing (ādhi), tipped with love, necked with resolve (? samkalpā-) — having made that well-straightened, let love pierce thee in the heart.

According to the comm., ādhi means mānasī pīḍā; śalyam is bānāgre protam āyasam; kuḥmalam is dāruśalyayoh sanīḥṣadrayam [thing (like a ferrule?) to fasten the tip to the shaft]. Our P.M.W. read tā for tām at beginning of c. Pāda c requires the harsh resolution ta-ām.

3. The well-straightened arrow of love which dries the spleen, forward-winged, consuming (vyḍsa) — therewith I pierce thee in the heart.

The accent of vyḍsa is anomalous [Skt. Gram. § 1148 n], being rather that of a possessive compound [§ 1305 a]; [cf. vs. 4]. The comm. appears to take plīhan as signifying 'lung'; the obscure prācīnapakṣa he makes equivalent to ṛjavah pakṣā yasyāḥ.

4. Pierced with consuming pain (çūc), dry-mouthed, do thou come creeping to me, gentle, with fury allayed, entirely [mine], pleasant-spoken, submissive.

The great majority of mss. (including our Bp.P.M.W.E.I.) accent vyōṣa in this verse, which is preferable; but both editions give vyōṣa, because the mss. are unanimously for it in vs. 3 c. The comm. renders it by vidāhayukta. [I cannot make out from W's collations that M.W. read vyōṣa.]

5. I goad thee hither with a goad (ājani), away from mother, likewise from father, that thou mayest be in my power (krātu), mayest come unto my intent.

The second half-verse is identical with vi. 9. 2 c, d, and nearly so with i. 34. 2 c, d.

6. Do ye, O Mitra-and-Varuṇa, cast out the intents from her heart; then, making her powerless, make her [to be] in my own control.

P.M.W. begin c with yāthā. Asyāi in a is doubtless to be understood as a genitive (cf. iv. 5. 6), though the comm. says "a dative in genitive sense." [Cf. Lanman, JAOS. x. 359, end.]

The fifth anuvāka has 5 hymns and 35 verses. The quoted Anukr. says pañca ca rcah.

26. Homage to the gods of the quarters etc. [snake charms?].

A prose hymn, found also in Pāipp. iii. (except vs. 2, perhaps accidentally omitted, and vs. 6). A similar invocation occurs further in TS. v. 5. 103-5, not so closely related that the readings need to be compared in detail. Hymns 26 and 27 are called in Kāuṣ. digyukte 'connected with the quarters,' and are used (14. 25), with vi. 13, in a battle-rite, for victory over a hostile army; and also (50. 13), with vi. 1 etc., in a ceremony for good-fortune (and the comm. regards them as signified by yuktayos in 50. 17, in a charm against serpents, scorpions, etc.; but this is probably a mistake [?]); yet again, the comm. adds them in a ceremony (51. 3-5) of tribute to the quarters.

["Serpent-incantation" (Schlangenzauber) is the title given to this hymn and the next by Weber. Roth (in his notes) rejects Weber's view; but Griffith accepts it. I think the two hymns are snake charms for the following reasons. They are employed by Kāuṣ. (50. 17) in connection with vi. 56 and xii. 1. 46, which latter are clearly directed against snakes etc. See also Keçava on Kāuṣ. 50. 17, 18, 19, Bloomfield, p. 354 f. Keçava shows, I think, that the comm. is not mistaken about yuktayos. Weber, in his valuable notes, observes, p. 292, that the schol. to TS. v. 5. 10 reckons that passage as belonging to a sarpāhuti. It is likely that the bali-haraṇa (of Kāuṣ. 51. 3, 4), with which this hymn is employed (see Keçava), is a sarpabali.—This hymn and the next are reckoned to the rāudragāṇa (note to Kāuṣ. 50. 13); cf. Anukr. Weber's note, p. 297, that these hymns are not used by Kāuṣ., should be deleted. Whitney in his note to vi. 56 duly reports the connection of iii. 26 and 27 with that snake charm. That he does not do so here and at xii. 1. 46 is, I think, an oversight.]

[With all this accords Ppp's colophon, rakṣāmantram. The hymn is virtually a paritta—cf. Jātaka, ii. p. 34¹⁶. What seems to be a very old snake paritta is found in Cullavagga, v. 6, and Jātaka, ii. p. 145, no. 203, and in the Bower Manuscript, ed. Hoernle, part vi, p. 234. — Note that the sequence of the quarters in this hymn and the next, as also in the parallels thereto cited from AV.TS.TB.MS., is in pradakṣiṇa-order.]

Translated: Weber, xvii. 291; Griffith, i. 120.

1. Ye gods that are in this eastern quarter, missiles by name — of you there the arrows are fire: do ye be gracious to us, do ye bless (adhi-brū) us; to you there be homage, to you there hail!

The corresponding utterance in TS. reads: "missiles by name are ye; your houses there are in front (in the east); fire is your arrows, ocean (salilā)" — and similarly in what follows. Ppp. prefixes rakṣa (once rakṣaḥ) at the beginning of each verse. The comm. appears to take devās throughout as a vocative (he devāḥ); he defines it as meaning "Gandharvas"; the arrows are either fire or else Agni. The Anukr. apparently restores yé asyāni, and also makes the refrain to be of 11 + 10 = 21 syllables; then the initial "pādas" of 1, of 3 and 4, of 5, of 2, and of 6 count respectively as 23, 24, 25, 26, and 27 syllables, and the complete numbers vary from 44 to 48 syllables. [The Anukr. ought to call vs. 2 nīṣṭ and vs. 5 virāj. — For "gods" as an address to the serpents, cf. vi. 56. 1, where they are called "god-people."]

2. Ye gods that are in this southern quarter, impetuous (? aviṣyū) by name — of you there the arrows are love (kāma): do ye be etc. etc.

The comm. reads avasyavas instead of aviṣyavas. In TS., the name in this quarter is "smearers" (nilimpā), and the arrows are "the Fathers, sea (sāgara)."

3. Ye gods that are in this western quarter, vāivājās by name — of you there the arrows are the waters: do ye be etc. etc.

The name in Ppp. is virājas. In TS., the name is "thunderbolt-wielders" (vajrlu), and the arrows are "sleep, thicket (gāhvara)."

4. Ye gods that are in this northern quarter, piercing by name — of you there the arrows are wind: do ye be etc. etc.

In the north, according to TS., the name is "down-standers (avasthāvan)," and the arrows "the waters, ocean (samudrā)."

5. Ye gods that are in this fixed quarter, smearers (nilimpā) by name — of you there the arrows are the herbs: do ye be etc. etc.

Ppp. reads vilimpās for nil, and makes the arrows to be food (anna). TS. calls the quarter "here (ihā)," and puts it after the one "above" (our vs. 6); the name is "fleshly, earthly," and the arrows (as in Ppp.) "food." The comm. explains nilimpās as nitarāni liptāḥ.

6. Ye gods that are in this upward quarter, helpful (āvasvant) by name — of you there the arrows are Brihaspati: do ye be etc. etc.

In this quarter (upāri) according to TS., the name is "overlords," and the arrows "rain, the helpful one." Ppp. adds at the end iti rakṣāmantram, and our verse viii. 3. 1 follows. TS. adds an imprecation, nearly like that in our hymn 27: tēbhyo vo nāmas tē no mṛḍayata tē yām dviṣmō yāc ca no dvēṣṭi tām vo jāmbhe dadhāmi.

27. The same: with imprecation on enemies.

[Atharvan.—rāudram; agnyādibahudevratyam. āṣṭikam: 1-6. 5-p. kakummatīgarbhā'ṣṭi;
2. atyāṣṭi; 5. bhurij.]

[A prose hymn.] Found (except vs. 3, apparently omitted by accident) in Pāipp. iii., after h. 26, but at some distance from it. Compare xii. 3. 55-60, where the quarters are rehearsed with the same adjuncts. Compare further TS. v. 5. 10^{1,2} (a passage immediately preceding that parallel with our h. 26; a bit of brāhmaṇa between the two explains that these divinities are to protect the fire-altar when constructed); and MS. ii. 13. 21: both these omit all mention of arrows. A yet fainter parallelism is to be noted with TB. iii. 11. 5. For the concluding imprecation, compare also VS. xv. 15. For the use in Kāuṣ. with h. 26, see under that hymn. [For the general significance of the hymn, see my addition to the introduction to h. 26.]

Translated: Weber, xvii. 295; Griffith, i. 121.

1. Eastern quarter; Agni overlord; black serpent defender; the Ādityas arrows: homage to those overlords; homage to the defenders; homage to the arrows; homage be to them; who hates us, whom we hate, him we put in your jaws (jāmbha).

Ppp. has ṛṣibhyas instead of iṣubhyas, and vas instead of ebhyas; and it adds further to the imprecation tam u prāṇo jahātu, which our text has in a similar connection at vii. 31. 1; x. 5. 25-35; xvi. 7. 13. The "defender" is in each case a kind of serpent; and this, which is but an insignificant item in our two hymns, has a more important bearing on the application of the corresponding TS. and MS. passages. The TS. passage runs thus: "thou art the eastern quarter, convergent by name; of thee there Agni is overlord, the black serpent defender; both he who is overlord and he who is guardian, to them (two) be homage; let them be gracious to us; whom we hate and who hates us, him I put in the jaws of you (two)"; and the MS. version differs only in one or two slight points. The comm. supplies each time to the name of the quarter asmadanugrahārtham vartatām or something equivalent. There seems to be no natural way of dividing these verses into 5 pādas; the refrain is probably counted by the Anukr. as 42 syllables, and the addition of the other part brings the number in each verse up to from 62 to 66 syllables (aṣṭi is properly 64).

2. Southern quarter; Indra overlord; cross-lined [serpent] defender; the Fathers arrows: homage to those etc. etc.

Ppp. makes the Vasus arrows. MS. calls the serpent tiraçāṅmarāji; TS. makes the adder (pr̥dāku) defender here.

3. Western quarter; Varuṇa overlord; the adder (pr̥dāku) defender; food the arrows: homage to those etc. etc.

The comm. explains pr̥dākus as kutsitaçabdakāri: an absurd fancy. TS. and MS. give here Soma as overlord, and the constrictor as defender.

4. Northern quarter; Soma overlord; the constrictor (svajā) defender; the thunderbolt (açāni) arrows: homage to those etc. etc.

The comm. gives for svajā a double explanation, either "self-born" (sva-ja) or else "inclined to embrace" (root svaj). Both the other texts assign Varuṇa as overlord; for defender, TS. designates the cross-lined serpent, MS. the pr̥dāku (in the corrupt form sf̥dāku or -āgu: the editor adopts the latter). Ppp. makes wind (vāta) the arrows.

5. Fixed quarter; Vishṇu overlord; the serpent with black-spotted (kalmāṣa-) neck defender; the plants arrows: homage to those etc. etc.

Ppp. reads kulmāṣa-; the comm. explains the word by kr̥ṣṇavarṇa. TS. calls the quarter iyām 'this'; in MS. it is dvāci 'downward'; TS. treats of it after the upward one, and makes Yama the overlord. In our edition, an accent-mark under the -k̥ṣi- of rak̥ṣit̥ā has slipped to the right, under -tā.

6. Upward quarter; Brihaspati overlord; the white (çvitrā) [serpent] defender; rain the arrows: homage to those etc. etc.

Ppp. has here the thunderbolt (açanti) for arrows. Part of the mss. (including our E.O.K.Kp.) give citrā instead of çvitrā as name of the serpent; TS. reads çvitrā, but MS. (probably by a misreading) citrā. TS. calls the quarter byhatī 'great.' TS. (after the manner of the AV. mss.) leaves out the repeated part of the imprecation in the intermediate verses (2-5); MS. gives it in full every time. [Reference to this vs. as made by Bergaigne, Rel. véd. iii. 12 (cf. Baunack, KZ. xxxv. 527), is hardly apt.]

28. To avert the ill omen of a twinning animal.

[Brahman (paçuṣaṇāya).—yāminyam. ānuṣṭubham: 1. atiçakvarīgarbhā 4-p. atijagatī; 4. yavamadhya virātkekabh; 5. triṣṭubh; 6. virādgarbhā prastārapañkti.]

Not found in Pāipp. Used by Kāuç., in the chapter of portents, in the ceremonies of expiation for the birth of twins from kine, mares or asses, and human beings (109. 5; 110. 4; 111. 5).

Translated: Weber, xvii. 297; Griffith, i. 122; Bloomfield, 145, 359.

1. She herself came into being by a one-by-one creation, where the being-makers created the kine of all forms; where the twinning [cow] gives birth, out of season, she destroys the cattle, snarling, angry.

The translation implies emendation of rūçatī at the end to rūsyatī or ruṣatī [rather rūsyatī, so as to give a jagatī cadence]—which, considering the not infrequent confusion of the sibilants, especially the palatal and lingual, in our text and its mss., and the loss of y after a sibilant, is naturally suggested [cf. iv. 16. 6^b]. The comm. makes a yet easier thing of taking rūçatī from a root ruç 'injure,' but we have no such root. Some of our mss. (P.M.W.E.) read eṣām in a, and two (P.O.) have sr̥ṣṭvā.* The comm. understands sr̥ṣṭis with eṣā in a, and explains ekāikayā by ekāikavyaktyā. Perhaps we should emend to ékāl'kayā 'one [creature] by one [act of] creation' [and reject eṣā?, as the meter demands]. See Weber's notes for the comparison of popular views as to the birth of twins, more generally regarded as of good omen. The Anukr. apparently counts 11 [13?] + 15 : 12 + 12 = 50 [52?] syllables; either bhūtākṛtas or viçvadrūpās could well enough be spared out of b [better the former; but it is bad meter at best]. * [Shown by accent to be a blunder for sr̥ṣṭyā, not sr̥ṣṭvā.]

2. She quite destroys the cattle, becoming a flesh-eater, devourer (? vy-ādvarī); also one should give her to a priest (brahmán); so would she be pleasant, propitious.

The pada-text divides viśādhvarī, evidently taking the word from root ad 'eat'; the Pet. Lex. suggests emendation to vyādhvarī, from vyadh 'pierce.' The comm. reads vyadhvarī, but he defines it first as coming from adhvan, and meaning "possessed of bad roads, that cause unhappiness," or, second, as from adhvara, and signifying "having magical sacrifices, that give obstructed fruit"! [See note to vi. 50. 3, where W. corrects the text to vyadhvarī: accent of masc. and fem., Gram. § 1171 a, b.]

3. Be thou propitious to men (pūruṣa), propitious to kine, to horses, propitious to all this field (kṣētra); be propitious to us here.

'Field' seems taken here in a general sense, and might be rendered 'farm.' The Anukr. takes no notice of the irregularities in c and d, probably because they balance each other.

4. Here prosperity, here sap—here be thou best winner of a thousand; make the cattle prosper, O twinning one.

The comm. supplies bhavatu to the first pāda. All the mss. agree in giving the false accent sahśrasrātāmā in b; it should be sahasrasātāmā—or, to rectify the meter, simply -sā. Its pada-division, sahśrasrāsātama is prescribed by the text of Prāt. iv. 45. Kakubh properly has no need of the adjunct yavamadhyā; it is very seldom used by our Anukr. as name of a whole verse [8+12: 8].

5. Where the good-hearted [and] well-doing revel, quitting disease of their own body—into that world hath the twinning one come into being; let her not injure our men and cattle.

The first half-verse is also that of vi. 120. 3 (which occurs further in TA.). Some of SPP's mss. write in b tanvās, protracting the kampa-syllable.

6. Where is the world of the good-hearted, of the well-doing, where of them that offer the fire-offering (agnihotrā)—into that world hath the twinning one come into being; let her not injure our men and cattle.

The omission of the superfluous yātra in b would rectify the meter. The Anukr. should say āstārāpañkti instead of prastāra; its virāj means here a pāda of 10 syllables.

29. With the offering of a white-footed sheep.

[Uddālaka. — aṣṭarcam. çitipādā videvatyam : 7. kāmādevatyā; 8. bhāumī. ānuṣṭubham : 1, 3. pathyāpañkti; 7. 3-av. 6-p. upariṣṭādāivībhṛhatī kakummatigarbhā virādijagatī; 8. upariṣṭādbrhatī.]

Like the preceding hymn, not found in Päipp. Used (according to the comm., vss. 1-5) by Kāuṣ. (64. 2) in the sava sacrifices, in the four-plate (catuṣṣarāva) sava, with setting a cake on each quarter of the animal offered, and one on its navel; and vs. 8 in the vaçā sava [66. 21], on acceptance of the cow. Further, vs. 7 (according to schol. and comm., vss. 7 and 8) appears in a rite (45. 17) at the end of the vaçācamana, for expiating any error in acceptance of gifts. In Vāit. (3. 21), vs. 7 is also used to accompany the acceptance of a sacrificial gift in the parvan sacrifices.

[The Anukr. says Uddālako 'nena ṣaḍrcena çitipādām avim astāut, thus supporting the reduction of the hymn to the norm of six vss.; see note to vs. 7. From that phrase, perhaps, comes the blundering reading of the London ms. çitipādām avidevatyam :

emend to çitipād-avi-devatyam or else as above?—Weber entitles the hymn “Abfindung mit dem Zoll im Jenseits.”]

Translated: Ludwig, p. 375; Weber, xvii. 302; Griffith, i. 124.

1. What the kings share among themselves — the sixteenth of what is offered-and-bestowed — yon assessors (sabhāsād) of Yama: from that the white-footed sheep, given [as] ancestral offering (svadhā), releases.

By this offering, one is released from the payment otherwise due to Yama's councilors on admission into the other world: the ideas are not familiar from other parts of the mythology and ritual. [But cf. Hillebrandt, Ved. Mythol. i. 511; Weber, Berliner Sb., 1895, p. 845.] The comm. explains thus: ubhayavidhasya karmanah śodaçasamkhyā-pūrakam yat pāpam puṇyarāçer vibhaktam kurvanti, as if the sixteenth were the share of demerit to be subtracted from the merit, and cleansed away (pari-çodhay-) by Yama's assistants, etc. In c he reads muñcatu for -ti; çitipād in d he renders çvetapād. The last pāda lacks a syllable, unless we make a harsh resolution. Our text reads in b -pūrttāsya; [for consistency, delete one t].

2. All desires (kāma) it fulfils, arising (ā-bhū), coming forth (pra-bhū), becoming (bhū); [as] fulfiller of designs, the white-footed sheep, being given, is not exhausted (upa-das).

The precise sense of the three related participles in b is very questionable (Weber renders “da seiend, tüchtig, und kräftig”; Ludwig, “kommend, entstehend, lebend”); the comm. says “permeating, capable [of rewarding], increasing.”

3. He who gives a white-footed sheep commensurate (sammīta) with [his] world, he ascends unto the firmament, where a tax is not paid (kr) by a weak man for a stronger.

“Commensurate”: i.e., apparently, “proportioned in value to the place in the heavenly world sought by the giver” (so Weber also); R. suggests “analogous (as regards the white feet) with the world of light that is aspired to”; the comm., on his part, gives two other and discordant explanations: first, lokyamānena phalena samyak-paricchinnam, amoghaphalam; second, anena bhūlokena sadṛçam, bhūlokavat sarva-phalapradam: both very bad. For nāka he gives the derivation na-a-kam ‘non-un-happiness, which he repeats here and there in his expositions. The translation implies in c the reading çulkās, which (long ago conjectured by Muir, OST. v. 310) is given by SPP. on the authority of all his mss., and also by the comm., and is undoubtedly the true text. Only one of our mss. (Kp.) has been noted as plainly reading it; but the mss. are so careless as to the distinction of lk and kl that it may well be the intent of them all. The comm. paraphrases it as “a kind of tax (karā-) that must be given to a king of superior power by another king of deficient power situated on his frontier.” As pointed out by Weber, the item of description is very little in place here, where the sacrifice is made precisely in satisfaction of such a tax. [W's prior draft reads “to a stronger.” — Note that SPP's oral reciters gave çulkās.]

4. The white-footed sheep, accompanied with five cakes, commensurate with [his] world, the giver lives upon, [as] unexhausted in the world of the Fathers.

That is [the giver lives upon the sheep], as an inexhaustible supply for his needs. The comm. explains d by vasvādīrūpam prāptānām somalokākhye sthāne.

5. The white-footed sheep, accompanied with five cakes, commensurate with [his] world, the giver lives upon, [as] unexhausted in the sun and moon.

The five cakes are those laid on the victim as prescribed in Kāuṣ. (see above). In our edition, sūryamāśdyor is a misprint for sūryām-.

6. Like refreshing drink (īrā), it is not exhausted; like the ocean, a great draught (pāyas); like the two jointly-dwelling gods, the white-footed one is not exhausted.

The comparison in c is so little apt that what it refers to is hard to see: the comm. regards the Aṅvins as intended, and Weber does the same, understanding savāstū as "dressed alike" (the comm. says samānam nīvasantāu); Ludwig thinks of "heaven and earth"; one might also guess sun and moon. R. suggests the sense to be "he has gods for neighbors, right and left." The Anukr. appears to sanction the contraction samudrā'va in b.

7. Who hath given this to whom? Love hath given unto love; love [is] giver, love acceptor; love entered into the ocean; with love I accept thee; love, that for thee!

[Not metrical.] This "verse" and the following appear to have nothing to do with the preceding part of the hymn, which has 6 vss.* (according to the norm of this book). This "verse" is found in a whole series of texts, as a formula for expiating or avoiding what may be improper in connection with the acceptance of sacrificial gifts. The version of TA. (iii. 10. 1-2, 4: also found, with interspersed explanation, in TB. ii. 2. 55, and repeated in ĀpṠ. xiv. 11. 2) is nearly like ours, but omits the second adāt, and reads kāmam samudrām ā viṣa; that of AṠ. (v. 13. 15) has the latter reading but retains the adāt. That of PB. (i. 8. 17) and K. (ix. 9) differs from ours only by having ā'viṣat instead of ā'viveṣa. MS. (i. 9. 4) omits the phrase kāmam samudrām ā'viveṣa, and reads kāmāya for the following kāmēna. And VS. (vii. 48: with it agree ÇB. iv. 3. 43² and ÇṠ. iv. 7. 15) has as follows: kō 'dāt kāmā adāt: kāmō 'dāt kāmāyā 'dāt: kāmō dātā kāmam pratigrahitā kāmāi 'tāt te. [See also MGS. i. 8. 9, and p. 149.] Of course, the comm. cannot refrain from the silliness of taking kās and kāmāi as signifying "Prajāpati," and he is able to fortify himself by quoting TB. ii. 2. 55, as he also quotes 5^r for the general value of the formula; and even 5^b for the identity of kāmā with the ocean, although our text, different from that of TB., does not imply any such relation between them. The Anukr. scans thus: 7+6: 11+9: 9+4=46. * [Cf. introduction to this hymn.]

8. Let earth accept thee, this great atmosphere; let me not, having accepted, be parted with breath, nor with self, nor with progeny.

Addressed to the thing accepted (he deya dravya, comm.). The Anukr. regards pāda c as ending with ātmanā, and the pada-text divides at the same place.

30. For concord.

[Atharvan. — saptarcam. cāndramasam, sāmmanasyam. ānuṣṭubham: 5. virāḍjagatī; 6. prastārapañkti; 7. triṣṭubh.]

Found in Pāṅp. v. Reckoned in Kāuṣ. (12. 5), with various other passages, to the sāmmanasyāni, and used in a rite for concord; and the comm. regards it as included under the designation gaṇakarmāṇi in the upākarmaṇ (139. 7).

Translated: Muir, OST. v. 439 (vss. 1-4); Ludwig, p. 256, and again p. 516; Zimmer, p. 316 (vss. 1-4); Weber, xvii. 306; Grill, 30, 116; Griffith, i. 125; Bloomfield, 134, 361. — Cf. Hillebrandt, Veda-chrestomathie, p. 45; Muir, Metrical Translations from Sanskrit Writers, p. 139.

1. Like-heartedness, like-mindedness, non-hostility do I make for you; do ye show affection (hary) the one toward the other, as the inviolable [cow] toward her calf when born.

Ppp. has sāmnasyam in a, and in c anyo 'nyam, as demanded by the meter. The comm. also reads the latter, and for the former sāmmānasyam; and he ends the verse with aghnyās.

2. Be the son submissive to the father, like-minded with the mother; let the wife to the husband speak words (vāc) full of honey, wealful.

The translation implies at the end ṣāntivāṁ [BR. vii. 60], which SPP. admits as emendation into his text, it being plainly called for by the sense, and read by the comm. (and by SPP's oral reciter K, who follows the comm.); this [not ṣāntivāṁ] is given also by Ppp. (cf. xii. 1. 59, where the word occurs again). The comm. further has in b mātā (two of SPP's reciters agreeing with him).

3. Let not brother hate brother, nor sister sister; becoming accorded (samyāñc), of like courses, speak ye words auspiciously (bhadrdyā).

The comm. reads dvīsyāt in a. The majority of SPP's pada-mss. give sāvratā (instead of -tāḥ) in c. The comm. further reads vadatu in d, explaining it to mean vadantu.

4. That incantation in virtue of which the gods do not go apart, nor hate one another mutually, we perform in your house, concord for [your] men (pūruṣa).

Weber suggests that "gods" here perhaps means "Brāhmins," but there is no authority nor occasion for such an understanding; the comm. also says "Indra etc."

5. Having superiors (jyāyasvant), intentful, be ye not divided, accomplishing together, moving on with joint labor (sādhura); come hither speaking what is agreeable one to another; I make you united (sādhricīna), like-minded.

Ppp. reads sudhirās in b, combines anyo 'nyasmāi (as does the comm., and as the meter requires) in c, and inserts samagrās̥tha before sādhricīnān in d; the comm. further has āita for eta in c (as have our P.E.). Jyāyasvant was acutely conjectured by the Pet. Lex. to signify virtually "duly subordinate," and this is supported by the comm.: jyeṣṭhakanīṣṭhabhāveṇa parasparam anusarantaḥ; Ludwig renders "überlegen." Sādhura, lit. 'having the same wagon-pole,' would be well represented by our colloquial "pulling together." Cittinas in a is perhaps rather an adjunct of vi yāuṣṭa = 'with, i.e. in your intents or plans.' The verse (11+11: 12+12=46) is ill defined by the Anukr., as even the redundant syllable in d gives no proper jagatī character to the pāda. [Reject vah or else read sādhricō? thus we get an orderly triṣṭubh.]

6. Your drinking (prapā) [be] the same, in common your share of food ; in the same harness (yóktra) do I join [yuj] you together ; worship ye Agni united, like spokes about a nave.

The comm. explains prapū as "drinking saloon" (pānīyaçālā). Two of our mss. (P.M.) read at the beginning samāntīm. [To reproduce (as W. usually does) the radical connection (here between yóktra and yuj), we may render 'do I harness you.' The Anukr. seems to scan 12+11 : 9+8=40 ; the vs. is of course 11+11 : 8+8.]

7. United, like-minded I make you, of one bunch, all of you, by [my] conciliation ; [be] like the gods defending immortality (amṛta) ; late and early be well-willing yours.

We had the first pāda above as vs. 5 d ; emendation to sadhvīcas would rectify the meter ; the Anukr. takes no note of the metrical irregularity ; it is only by bad scanning that he makes out any difference between vss. 5 and 7. The translation implies in b-çnuṣṭīm, which is read by SPP., with the majority of his mss., and supported by the comm's ekaçnuṣṭīm (explained by him as ekavidham vyāpanam ekavidhasyā 'nnasya bhuktim vā) ; part of our mss. also (Bp.E.H.Op.) read clearly -çn-, while others are corrupt, and some have plainly -çr- : cf. the note to 17.2 above. Ppp. has at the end susamitir vo 'stu.

31. For welfare and long life.

[Brahman. — ekādaçarcam. pāpamahādevatyam. ānuṣṭubham : 4. bhurij ; 5. virāṭprastārapañkti.]

Not found in Pāipp. Reckoned, with iv. 33 and vi. 26, to the pāpma (pāpmahā?) gana (Kāuç. 30. 17, note), and used by Kāuç. (58. 3), with several others, in a ceremony for long life following initiation as a Vedic scholar ; and vs. 10 (vss. 10 and 11, comm.) also in the āgrahāyaṇī sacrifice (24. 31). In Vāit. (13. 10), vs. 10 is uttered in the agniṣoma sacrifice by the sacrificer (the comm. says, by the brahman-priest) as he rises to mutter the apratiratha hymn. And the comm. (without quoting any authority) declares the hymn to be repeated by the brahman-priest near water in the pitrmedha rite, after the cremation.

Translated : Weber, xvii. 310 ; Griffith, i. 127 ; Bloomfield, 51, 364.

1. The gods have turned away from old age ; thou, O Agni, away from the niggard ; I away from all evil [have turned], away from yákṣma, to union (sām) with life-time.

The acrtan of our text is an error for avṛtan, which all the mss. (and, of course, SPP.) read ; vi-vṛt is common in the sense 'part from.' The comm. gives instead avṛtam, which he takes as 2d dual, rendering it by vijoyayatam, and understanding devā (p. devāḥ) as devāu, vocative, namely the two Açvins ! and he supplies a yojayāmi also in the second half-verse, with an imam [referring to the Vedic scholar] for it to govern.

2. The cleansing one [has turned] away from mishap (ārti), the mighty one (çakrā) away from evil-doing ; I away from etc. etc.

Pāvamāna in a might signify either soma or the wind ; the comm. understands here the latter.

3. The animals (paçū) of the village [have turned] away from those of the forest; the waters have gone (sr) away from thirst; I away from etc. etc.

All the mss. leave āpas in b unaccented, as if vocative; our text makes the necessary correction to āpas, and so does SPP. in his pada-text, while in samhitā he strangely (perhaps by an oversight?) retains āpas. The comm. paraphrases vt . . . asaran with vigatā bhavanti, not venturing to turn it into a causative as he did vy avrtan. The Anukr. takes no notice of the redundant syllable in a.

4. Apart [from one another] go heaven-and-earth here (imé), away the roads, to one and another quarter; I away from etc. etc.

Itās in a is here understood as 3d dual of i, with Weber and with the comm. (= vigac-chatas), since the meaning is thus decidedly more acceptable; its accent is easily enough explained as that of the verb in the former of two successive clauses involving it (though avrtan was not accented in vs. 1 a). The redundancy in a is easily corrected by contracting to -prthvī; the Anukr., however, does not sanction this.

5. Tvashtar harnesses (yuj) for his daughter a wedding-car (vahatū); at the news, all this creation (bhūvana) goes away; I away from etc. etc.

[Discussed at length by Bloomfield, JAOS. xv. 181 ff.] An odd alteration of RV. x. 17. 1 a, b (our xviii. 1. 53, which see), which reads krnoti for yunakti, and sām eti for vt yāti; and it is very oddly thrust in here, where it seems wholly out of place; vt yāti must be rendered as above (differently from its RV. value), to make any connection with the refrain and with the preceding verses. Weber's suggestion that it is Tvashtar's intent to marry his own daughter that makes such a stir is refuted by the circumstance that the verb used is active. According to the comm., vahatū is the wedding outfit (duhitrā saha prītyā prasthāpanīyam vastrālamkārādi dravyam), and yunakti is simply prasthāpayati. The pada-mss., in accordance with the later use of iti, reckon it here to pāda a.

6. Agni puts together the breaths; the moon is put together with breath: I away from etc. etc.

In this verse and those that follow, the refrain has hardly an imaginable relation with what precedes it; though here one may conjecture that analogies are sought for its last item, sām āyusā. According to the comm., Agni in a is the fire of digestion, and the breaths are the senses, which he fits for their work by supplying them nourishment; and the moon is soma [considered as food; for which he quotes a passage quite like to ÇB. xi. 1. 6¹⁹].

7. By breath did the gods set in motion (sam-īray) the sun, of universal heroism: I away from etc. etc.

The comm. treats viçvatas and vīryam in a as independent words, and renders samāirayan in b by sarvatra prāvartayan.

8. By the breath of the long-lived, of the life-makers (āyuskrīt), do thou live; do not die: I away from etc. etc.

In this and the following verse, the comm. regards the young Vedic scholar (mānavaka) as addressed.

9. With the breath of the breathing do thou breathe; be just here; do not die: I away from etc. etc.

Our Bp., with two of SPP's pada-mss. [s.m.!), accents āna at end of a. The comm. allows the first part of b to be addressed alternatively to breath.

10. Up with life-time; together with life-time; up with the sap of the herbs: I away from etc. etc.

The first half-verse, with the first half of our vs. 11, makes a verse occurring in several texts: TS. (i. 2. 8²), TA. (iv. 42, vs. 31: agrees precisely with TS.), VS. (Kāṇv. ii. VII. 5), AÇS. (i. 3. 23), PGS. (iii. 2. 14). All these read svāyúṣā instead of sām āyuṣā in a; and VS. and PGS. lack the second pāda. The comm. points out that asthāma is to be understood from vs. 11.

11. Hither with Parjanya's rain have we stood up immortal: I away from etc. etc.

The other texts (see under the preceding verse) all begin with ú instead of ā; for vr̥ṣṭyā, TS.TA. have çūṣmeṇa, VS.AÇS. dhāmabhis, PGS. dr̥ṣṭyā; for b, PGS. gives pr̥thivyāḥ saptadhāmabhiḥ, all the others úd asthām amṛtān ānu. [Here the comm., in citing the refrain, reads vyāham, which, as implying vy-ā-vrt, is equally good.]

As in several cases above, it is obvious that this hymn has been expanded to a length considerably greater than properly belongs to it by breaking up its verses into two each, pieced out with a refrain. It would be easy to reduce the whole material to six verses, the norm of this book, by adding the refrain in vs. 1 only (or possibly also in vs. 4, with ejection of the senseless and apparently intruded vs. 5), and then combining the lines by pairs—as the parallel texts prove that vss. 10 and 11 are rightly to be combined. [The critical status of ii. 10 is analogous; see the note to ii. 10. 2.]

The sixth and last anuvāka has 6 hymns, with 44 verses; and the old Anukr. reads: caturdaśā ntyaḥ (but further -ntyānuvākaśç [-çaçç?] ca saṁkhyā vidadhyād adhikāni-mittāt, which is obscure). [See p. cxl, top.]

Here ends also the sixth prapāthaka.

Not one of our mss. adds a summary of hymns and verses for the whole book.

Book IV.

[The fourth book is made up of forty hymns, divided into eight anuvāka-groups of five hymns each. The normal length of each hymn, as assumed by the Anukramaṇī, is 7 verses; but this is in only partial accord with the actual facts. There are twenty-one hymns of 7 verses each, as against nineteen of more than 7 verses each. Of these nineteen, ten are of 8 verses each; three are of 9 and three are of 10; two are of 12; and one is of 16 verses. The seven hymns which make the Mrgāra group (hymns 23–29) have 7 verses each. And they are followed by a group of four Rigveda hymns (30–33). The last two hymns of the book (39–40) have a decided Brāhmaṇa-tinge. The entire book has been translated by Weber, Indische Studien, vol. xviii. (1898), pages 1–153.]

[Weber's statement, that there are twenty-two hymns of 7 verses each and two of 9, rests on the misprinted number (7, for 9) at the end of hymn 20.]

[The Anukr. states (at the beginning of its treatment of book ii.) that the normal number of verses is 4 for a hymn of book i., and increases by one for each successive book of the first five books. That gives us, for

Book	i.	ii.	iii.	iv.	v.,	as normal number of
Verses :	4	5	6	7	8,	respectively.

In accord therewith is the statement of the Anukr. (prefixed to its treatment of book iv.) that the seven-versed hymn is the norm for this book: brahma jajñānam iti kāndaṁ, saptarcaṁ sūktam prakṛtir, anyā vikṛtir ity avagachet.]

1. Mystic.

[Vena. — bārhaspatyam utā "dityadāivatam. trāiṣṭubham: 2, 5. bhurij.]

Found in Pāipp. v. (in the verse-order 2, 1, 3, 4 cd 5 ab, 6, 4 ab 5 cd, 7). Reckoned by Kāuṣ. (9. 1) as one of the hymns of the brhachānti gaṇa, and used in various ceremonies: with i. 4–6 and other hymns, for the health and welfare of kine (19. 1); for success in study and victory over opponents in disputation (38. 23 f.); at the consummation of marriage (79. 11; the comm. says, only vs. 1); and vs. 1 on entering upon Vedic study (139. 10). These are all the applications in Kāuṣ. that our comm. recognizes; in other cases where the pratika of vs. 1 is quoted, the vs. v. 6. 1, which is a repetition of it, is apparently intended: see under hymn v. 6. The editor of Kāuṣ. regards the rest of the anuvāka, from vs. 2 to the end of h. 5, to be prescribed for recitation in 139. 11; but this seems in itself highly improbable, and the comm. does not sanction it. In Vāit. (14. 1), vss. 1 and 2 are added to the gharma-hymn given for the pravargya rite of the agnis̥toma, and vs. 1 appears again in the agnicayana (28. 33) accompanying the deposition of a plate of gold. And the comm. further quotes the hymn as employed by the Nakṣ. K. (18) in the brāhmī mahāçānti, and by Pariç. 11. 1 in the tulāpuruṣa ceremony. There is nothing at all characteristic or explanatory in any of these uses. The hymn is quite out of the usual Atharvan style, and is, as it was doubtless intended to be, very enigmatical; the comm. does not really understand it or illuminate its obscurities, but is obliged at numerous points to give alternative guesses at its meaning; and the translation offered makes no pretense of putting sense and connection into its dark sayings.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 393; Deussen, Geschichte, i. 1. 255; Griffith, i. 129; Weber, xviii. 2.

1. The brāhman that was first born of old (purāstāt; in the east?) Vena hath unclosed from the well-shining edge (sīmatās; horizon?); he unclosed the fundamental nearest shapes (viṣṭhā) of it, the womb (yóni) of the existent and of the non-existent.

The verse occurs in a large number of other texts: SV. (i. 321), VS. (xiii. 3), TS. (iv. 2. 8²), TB. (ii. 8. 8⁸), TA. (x. 1, vs. 42), MS. (ii. 7. 15), K. (xvi. 15 et al.), Kap. (25. 5 et al.), ÇÇS. (v. 9. 5), AÇS. (iv. 6. 3); and its pratīka in AB. (i. 19), GB. (ii. 2. 6)—and, what is very remarkable, everywhere without a variant; it is also repeated below as v. 6. 1. Vena is, even in the exposition of the verse given by ÇB. (vii. 4. 1. 14), explained as the sun, and so the comm. regards it, but very implausibly; the moon would better suit the occurrences of the word. The comm. gives both renderings to purāstāt in a, and three different explanations of the pāda. In b, the translation takes surūcas as qualifying the virtual ablative sīmatās [which Weber takes as sīm ātas! see also Whitney's note to Prāt. iii. 43]; the comm. views it as accus. pl., and so does ÇB.; the latter makes it mean "these worlds," the former either that or "its own shining brightnesses." Pāda c is the most obscure of all; ÇB. simply declares it to designate the quarters (diças); the comm. gives alternative interpretations, of no value; upamās (p. upaomāh, as if from root mā with upa) he paraphrases with upamīyamānāh pariçhidīyamānāh.

2. Let this queen of the Fathers (? pitrya) go in the beginning (āgre) for the first birth (janūs; race?), standing in the creation; for it (him?) have I sent (hi) this well-shining sinuous one (? hvārā); let them mix (çrī; boil?) the hot drink for the first thirsty one (? dhāsyū).

The connection of the pādas is here yet more obscure than their separate interpretation; the third pāda may perhaps signify the lightning. The verse, with variants, is found in ÇÇS. (v. 9. 6) and AÇS. (iv. 6. 3), and its pratīka in AB. (i. 19) and GB. (ii. 2. 6); the first three read in a pitre for pitryā and eti for etu, and AB. inserts vāi after iyam; and Ppp. also has pitre. In b the two Sūtra-texts give bhūmanesṭhāh, which is perhaps intended by the bhūminasṭhāu of Ppp.; in d, the same two have çrīnanti prathamasya dhāseḥ, and Ppp. -ntu prathamas svadhāsyuh. The comm. takes pitryā to mean "come from Prajāpati"; "the queen" is the divinity of speech—or else "this earth," pitryā relating to its father Kaçyapa; dhāsyu is the god desiring food in the form of oblation, and surucam hvāram is suṣṭhu rocāmānam kuṣīlam vartamānam, qualifying ghārmam; ahyam is an adjective, either gantavyam, from the root ah 'go,' or "daily," from ahan 'day'! and çrī is either "mix" or "boil."

3. He who was born forth the knowing relative of it speaks all the births (janīman) of the gods; he bore up the brāhman from the midst of the brāhman; downward, upward, he set forth unto the svadhās.

This is found elsewhere only in TS. (ii. 3. 14⁶), which, in a, b, has the less unmanageable asyé bāndhum viçvāni devó jan-; and, in d, nīcād uccā svadhāyā 'bhi. Ppp. seems to aim at nearly the same readings with its bandhum viçvāni devā jan-, and nīcād uccā svadhāyā 'ti. Most of the mss. (including our P.M.W.E.I.K.Kp.) read yajñé for ajāñé in a; our O. omits the h of uccāh, and Op. omits that of svadhāh. The comm. gives alternative explanations of various of the parts of the verse, trying pré jāñé both from jan and from jñā (the translation takes it from jan, as no middle form from pra-jñā occurs elsewhere in the text); and svadhās as either object or subject of pra tasthāu (in the latter case tasthāu being for tasthire by the usual equivalence of all verbal forms), and at any rate signifying some kind of sacrificial food.

4. For he of the heaven, he of the earth the right-stander, fixed (skabh) [as his] abode (kṣéma) the (two) great firmaments (ródasī); the great one, when born, fixed apart the (two) great ones, the heaven [as] seat (sādman) and the earthly space (rājas).

Ppp., after our vs. 3, makes a verse out of our 4 c, d and 5 a, b; and then, after our vs. 6, another verse out of our 4 a, b and 5 c, d; and TS. (ii. 3. 14⁶) and AÇS. (iv. 6. 3) combine our 4 c, d and 5 a, b in the same way (omitting the rest), while AB. (i. 19. 3) virtually supports them, by giving our c as a pratika. All the three read in c astabhāyat (TS. without accent), and AÇS. intrudes pitā after dyām in d. In our text we ought to have not only (with TS.) askabhāyat in c, but also ásk- in b; the accents seem to have been exchanged by a blunder. The comm. makes the sun the "he" of a; he renders kṣémam in b by avināço yathā bhavati; and vl in c apparently by vyāpya vartamānaḥ. The Anukr. passes unnoticed the deficiency of a syllable (unless we resolve pa-árth-) in d. [In a supplementary note, R. reports Ppp. as reading in a, b sa hi vṛtha- (?) ṛceṣṭhā mayi kṣámam bhrajasī viṣkabhāyati, and as giving jitaḥ for sādma in d.]

5. He from the fundamental birth (janús) hath attained (aç) unto (abhi) the summit; Brihaspati, the universal ruler, [is] the divinity of him; since the bright (çukrá) day was born of light, then let the shining (dyumánt) seers (vīpra) fade out (? vi-vas) [shine out?].

[Whitney's prior draft reads "dwell apart." This he has changed (by a slip? cf. ii. 8. 2) to "fade out," from vas 'shine.' In this case vl vasantu would be irregular, for vl uchantu; see Weber's note, p. 7.] The other two texts (see preceding*note) read our a thus: sá budhnād āṣṭa janúṣā 'bhy ágram, and TS. has yásya instead of tásya in the next pāda; no variants are reported from Ppp. Some of the AV. mss. also (including our P.M.W.I.K.Kp.) give budhnād; but all have after it the impossible form āṣṭra, which SPP. accordingly retains in his text, though the comm. too gives āṣṭa; this is read by emendation in our text. Vasantu, of course, might come from vas 'dwell' or vas 'clothe' [for vas-atām?!]; the comm. apparently takes it from the former, paraphrasing the pāda by dīptimanta ṛtvijah svasvarvyāpāreṣu vividham variantām, or, alternatively, havirbhīr devūn paricarantu. There is no reason for calling the verse bhūrij. [AÇS. reads ugnam (misprint?) for ágram.]

6. Verily doth the kāvya further (hi) that of him — the abode (? dhāman) of the great god of old (pūrvyā); he was born together with many thus, sleeping now in the loosened (vi-si) eastern half.

No other text has this verse — save Ppp., which has for ḍ pūrvādarād aviduraḥ ca sahrūh. The comm. reads in b pūrvasya, and two or three mss. (including our P.) agree with him. Some mss. (including our O.Op.) have at the end sasān nū; and the comm. also so reads, explaining sasa as an annanāman; the true reading is possibly sasān u (but the pāda-text divides sasān: nū). The comm. explains kāvya as yajña (from kavi = ṛtvij), dhāman as tejorūpan maṇḍalātmakaṁ sthānam, ṣa in c as the sun, and the “many” his thousand rays, and viṣita as viṣeṣeṇa sambaddha. The last pāda lacks a syllable, unless we resolve pū-ru-e.

7. Whoso shall approach (? ava-gam) with homage father Atharvan, relative of the gods, Brihaspati — in order that thou mayest be generator of all, poet, god, not to be harmed, self-ruling (? svadhāvānt).

The translation implies in ḍ emendation of dābhāyat to dābhāya; both editions have the former, with all the mss. and the comm. (who comfortably explains it by dabhnōti or hinasti). The comm. also reads in b brhaspatis; and this is supported by the Ppp. version: yathā vā 'tharvā pitarāṁ viṣvadevaṁ brhaspatir manasā vo datsva: and so on (c, ḍ defaced). The comm. takes ava gachāt as = jānyāt, and svadhāvān as ‘joined with food in the form of oblation.’

2. To the unknown god.

[Vena. — aṣṭarcam. āmadāivatam. trāiṣṭubham: 6. puro 'nuṣṭubh; 8. upariṣṭājjyotis.]

Found in Pāipp. iv. (in the verse-order 1, 2, 4, 3, 5, 6, 8, 7). The hymn is mostly a version, with considerable variants, of the noted RV. x. 121, found also in other texts, as TS. (iv. 1. 8), MS. (ii. 13. 23), and VS. (in sundry places), and K. xl. 1. It is used by Kāuṣ. in the vaççamana ceremony (44. 1 ff.), at the beginning, with the preparation of consecrated water for it, and (45. 1) with the sacrifice of the foetus of the vaçç-cow, if she be found to be pregnant. In Vāit. (8. 22), vs. 1 (or the hymn?) accompanies an offering to Prajāpati in the cāturmāsya sacrifice; vs. 7 (28. 34), the setting of a gold man on the plate of gold deposited with accompaniment of vs. 1 of the preceding hymn (in the agnicayana); and the whole hymn goes with the avadāna offerings in the same ceremony (28. 5).

1. He who is soul-giving, strength-giving; of whom all, of whom [even] the gods, wait upon the instruction; who is lord (īç) of these bipeds, who of quadrupeds — to what god may we pay worship (vidh) with oblation?

In the parallel texts, our vs. 7 stands at the beginning of the hymn. They also combine differently the material of our vss. 1 and 2, making one verse of our 1 a, b and 2 c, d, and another of our 2 a, b and 1 c, d; and in this Ppp. agrees with them. RV. and VS. (xxiii. 3) read in c īṣe asyá. The comm. renders ātmadās “who gives their soul (or self) to all animals”; of course, with the native authorities everywhere, he explains kásmāi in d as “to Prajāpati.” The Anukr. ignores the jagatī-character of c. [RV.TS.MS.VS. omit the second yás of our c. MS. has īṣe yó asyá; TS. has yá īṣe asya at iv. 1. 8, but asyá at vii. 5. 16. Pādas a-c recur at xiii. 3. 24. — In view of the history of this hymn in Hindu ritual and speculation (cf. SBE. xxxii. 12; AB. iii. 21), it might be better to phrase the refrain thus: ‘Who is the god that we are to worship with oblation?’]

2. He who by his greatness became sole king of the breathing, winking animal creation (jāgat); of whom immortality (amṛtam), of whom death [is] the shadow — to what god may we pay worship with oblation?

RV.VS. (xxiii. 3) TS. rectify the meter of b by adding īd after ēkas; VS. has the bad reading nīmeṣatās. MS. gives a different version: nīniṣatāḥ ca rājā pātir vīṣvasya jāgato b; and Ppp. agrees with it, except as substituting vidhartā for ca rājā. “His shadow” (in c), the comm. says, as being dependent upon him, or under his control. The Anukr. passes without notice the deficiency in b.

3. He whom the (two) spheres (krāndasī) favor when fixed; whom the terrified firmaments (rōdasī) called upon; whose is yon road, traverser of the welkin (rājas) — to what god may we pay worship with oblation?

The translation implies in b āhvayētām, as read by the comm., and by one of SPP’s mss. that follows him; all the other mss., and both editions, have -ethām. The first half-verse is a damaged reflex of RV. 6 a, b, with which VS. (xxxii. 7 a, b) and TS. agree: yān krāndasī dvasā tastabhānē abhyātkṣetām mānasā réjamāne; MS. and Ppp. have yet another version: yá imé dyāvāpṛthivī tastabhānē (Ppp. -nā) ādihārayad (Ppp. dhāred) rōdasī (Ppp. avasā) réjamāne. For c, Ppp. gives yasminn adhi vitata eti sūrah, and MS. the same (save sūra eti); our c agrees most nearly with RV. 5 c (TS. and VS. xxxii. 6 the same): yó antarikṣe rājaso vimānah. The comm. apparently takes dvatas as ava-tās = avanāt “by his assistance fixed”; he offers no conjecture as to what “road” may be meant in c, but calls it simply dyulokasthah.

4. [By the greatness] of whom the wide heaven and the great earth, [by the greatness] of whom yon wide atmosphere, by the greatness of whom yon sun [is] extended — to what god may we pay worship with oblation?

The translation follows the construction as understood by the comm.; it might be also “whose [is] the wide heaven etc. etc., extended by his greatness.” “Extended” applies better to earth etc. (a and b) than to sun; comm. says vistīrnā jāta etc. The verse resembles only distantly RV. 5, with which, on the other hand, Ppp. nearly agrees, reading yena dyāur ugrā pṛthivī ca dyā (RV.VS.MS. dyādhā, TS. dyādhé) yena svastabhītam yena nākam (the rest -kah): yo antarikṣam vimame variyah (so MS.; and the others as reported above, under vs. 3). Our third pāda most resembles RV. 6 c: yātrā dhi sūra údito vibhāti (so also VS. xxxii. 7; TS. úditau vyēti). [Cf. MGS. i. 11. 14 and p. 154, yena dyāur ugrā.] The Anukr. ignores the marked irregularity of b.

5. Whose [are] all the snowy mountains by [his] greatness; whose, verily, they call Rasā in the ocean; and of whom these directions are the (two) arms — to what god may we pay worship with oblation?

The comm. extends his construction of vs. 4 through a, b here, and is perhaps right in so doing; the translation assimilates them to c. The verse corresponds to RV. 4 (with which VS. xxv. 12 precisely agrees); in a, RV.VS.TS. have imé for viçve, and MS. imé viçve giráyo m-; for b, all of them read yásya samudrám rasáyā sahā "his (save that MS. puts yásya after samudrám; and Ppp. has the same b as MS.); in c, RV.VS.TS. begin yásye 'māh pr-, while MS., with Ppp., reads dīço yásya pradīçah (Ppp. -ças) pāñca devāh. The "ocean" is of course the atmospheric one; and Rasā, the heavenly river, can hardly help having been originally the Milky Way; but the comm. takes it here as simply a river, representative of rivers in general. Pādas b and c are irregular, being defective unless we make harsh and difficult resolutions.

6. The waters in the beginning favored (av) the all, assuming an embryo, they the immortal, order-knowing ones, over whom, divine ones, the god was — to what god may we pay worship with oblation?

Here a, b correspond to RV. 7 a, b, and c to RV. 8c, all with important variants, which are in part unintelligent corruptions: RV. reads āpo ha yád brhatīr viçvam āyan g-ā-jandīyantīr agnīm; and yó devésv adhi devā éka āsīt; VS. (xxvii. 25 a, b, 26 c) agrees throughout; TS. has mahatīr in a, and dāksam (for gárbham) in b; MS. also has mahatīr, and it lacks c. Ppp. has a text all its own: āpo ha yasya viçvam āyur dadhānā garbham janayanta mātārā: tatra devānām adhi deva āstha ekasthūne vimate dr̥dhe ugre. And TA. (i. 23. 8), with an entirely different second half, nearly agrees in a, b with RV., but has gárbham for viçvam,* and svayambhūm for agnīm. All the mss. (except, doubtless by accident, our I.) give in c āsīt, which SPP. accordingly adopts in his text; ours makes the necessary emendation to āsīt. The comm. reads in c devesu, as a Vedic irregularity for -vīsu; he renders āvan in a by araksan or upacitam akurvan; perhaps we should emend to ā vran 'covered.' * [Further, TA. has dāksam for gárbham of RV.]

7. The golden embryo was evolved (sam-vrt) in the beginning; it was, when born, the sole lord of existence (bhūtá); it maintained earth and heaven — to what god may we pay worship with oblation?

As noted above, this is the first verse in the other continuous versions of the hymn (it is VS. xiii. 4). The others agree in reading at the end of c prthivīm dyām ute 'mām; and, in addition, PB. (ix. 9. 12) gives bhūtānām in b; some of the texts contain the verse more than once. But Ppp. is more original, reading hiranya ulvā 'sīd yo 'gre vatsō ajāyata: tvam yo dyorvrbhira (?) vāmīyoṣpa vy apaçyad ūdur mahīh. The comm. understands hiranyagarbha as "the embryo of the golden egg." [MGS., i. 10. 10, cites the hymn as one of 8 vss. and as beginning with hiranyagarbha; see p. 158, s.v. — Kirste, WZKM. ix. 164, reviewing Deussen, suggests that the golden embryo is the yolk of the mundane egg.] The Anukr. makes no account of the deficiency of a syllable in c.

8. The waters, generating a young (vatsá), set in motion (sam-ēray) in the beginning an embryo; and* of that, when born, the foetal envelop (úlba) was of gold — to what god may we pay worship with oblation?

Ppp. makes vatsam and garbham change places, and reads trayan; it also omits the refrain, as it has done in vss. 6 and 7. GB. (i. i. 39) appears to quote the pratika with garbham, or in its Ppp. form [as conjectured by Bloomfield, JAOS. xix. 2 11]. The comm. paraphrases garbham sam ātrayan by īcvaraṇa viśṛṣṭam vīryam garbhāçayan prāpayan. The verse (8+8: 8+8+11=43) is ill defined by the Anukr.

3. Against wild beasts and thieves.

[Atharvan.—rāudram uta vyāghradevatyam. ānuṣṭubham: 1. pathyāpañkti; 3. gāyatrī; 7. kakummatigarbho pariṣṭādbṛhatī.]

Found in Pāipp. ii. (except vs. 5, and in the verse-order 1-3, 7, 6, 4). Used by Kāuç. (51. 1) in a rite for the prosperity of kine and their safety from tigers, robbers, and the like; also reckoned (50. 13, note) to the rāudra gāna.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 499; Grill, 33, 118; Griffith, i. 133; Bloomfield, 147, 366; Weber, xviii. 13.

1. Up from here have stridden three — tiger, man (pūruṣa), wolf; since hey! go the rivers, hey! the divine forest-tree, hey! let the foes bow.

Ppp. reads for a ud ity akramaṇs trayo; in c-d it gives hr̥k each time for h̥ruk, and for c has hr̥g deva sūryas. The comm. understands h̥ruk to mean “in secret, out of sight,” and h̥ruṇ namantu as antarhitāḥ santaḥ prakṛvā bhavantu or antaritān kūrvantu. The forest-tree is doubtless some implement of wood used in the rite, perhaps thrown in to float away with the river-current; it can hardly be the “stake of khadira” which Kāuç. (51. 1) mentions, which is to be taken up and buried as one follows the kine.

2. By a distant (pāra) road let the wolf go, by a most distant also the thief; by a distant one the toothed rope, by a distant one let the malignant hasten (ṛṣ).

The latter half-verse is found again as xix. 47. 8 a, b. Ppp's version is paramēna pathā vr̥kaḥ pareṇa steno rarṣatu: tato vyāghraḥ paramā. The comm. naturally explains the “toothed rope” as a serpent; arṣatu he simply glosses with gacchatu.

3. Both thy (two) eyes and thy mouth, O tiger, we grind up; then all thy twenty claws (nakhā).

The majority of mss. (including our Bp.I.O.Op.K.D.) read at the beginning akṣyāṇ, as do also Ppp. and the comm., but only (as the accent alone suffices to show) by the ordinary omission of y after ç or ṣ; both editions give akṣyāṇ. All the mss. leave vyāghra unaccented at the beginning of b, and SPP. retains this inadmissible reading; our text emends to vyāghra, but should have given instead vyāghra (that is, vī-āghra: see Whitney's Skt. Gr. § 314 b). Ppp. reads hanū instead of mukham in a. [Anukr., London ms., has akṣyāṇ.]

4. The tiger first of [creatures] with teeth do we grind up, upon that also the thief, then the snake, the sorcerer, then the wolf.

The conversion of stendm to ṣte- after u is an isolated case. The verse in Ppp. is defaced, but apparently has no variants. *

5. What thief shall come today, he shall go away smashed; let him go by the falling-off (apadhvañsá) of roads; let Indra smite him with the thunderbolt.

The first half-verse is identical with xix. 49.9 a, 10 d. The comm. separates apa from dhvañsena, and construes it with etu; dhvañsa he renders "bad road" (kaṣṭhena mārgeṇa).

6. Ruined (mūrṇá) [are] the teeth of the beast (mṛgá); crushed in also [are its] ribs; disappearing be for thee the godhā; downward go (ayat) the lurking (? çaçayú) beast.

The comm. takes mūrṇās from mūrçh, and renders it mūdhās; in b he reads api çīrṣṇās, the latter being horns and the like, that grow "on the head." The second half-verse is extremely obscure and doubtful: Ludwig translates "into the depth shall the crocodile, the game go springing deep down"; Grill, "with lame sinew go to ruin the hare-hunting animal." Ni-mruc is used elsewhere only of the 'setting' of the sun etc.; the comm. renders it here "disappearing from sight"; and he takes çaçayu from çī 'lie'; godhā is, without further explanation, "the animal of that name." The translation given follows the comm.; it does not seem that a "hare-hunting" animal would be worth guarding against. R. conjectures a figure of a bird of prey, struck in flight: "the sinew be thy destruction; down fall the hare-hunting bird." Pāda a lacks a syllable. [W. takes mūrṇá from mṛ 'crush'; cf. xii. 5. 61 and Index. — In a and b, supply "be" rather than "are" ?]

7. What thou contractest (sam-yam) mayest thou not protract (vi-yam); mayest thou protract what thou dost not contract; Indra-born, soma-born art thou, an Atharvan tiger-crusher (-jāmbhāna).

The sense of a, b is obscure; the comm. takes viyamas and saṃyamas as two nouns. Ppp. makes one verse of our 7 a, b and 6 a, b (omitting the other half-verses), and puts it next after our vs. 3; its version of 7 a, b is yat saṃ naso vi yan naso na saṃ nasa. The verse is scanned by the Anukr. as 8+8:6+12=34 syllables. [Read indrājā asi? — For a, b, see Griffith.]

4. For recovery of virility: with a plant.

[Atharvan. — aṣṭarcam. vānaspatyam. ānuṣṭubham: 4. pūrauṣṇih; 6, 7. bhurij.]

Found in Pāipp. iv. (except vs. 7, and in the verse-order 1-3, 5, 8, 4, 6). Used by Kāuṣ. (40. 14) in a rite for sexual vigor.

Translated: Griffith, i. 134 and 473; Bloomfield, 31, 369; Weber, xviii. 16.

1. Thee that the Gandharva dug for Varuṇa whose virility (? -bhrāj) was dead, thee here do we dig, a penis-erecting herb.

The meaning of bhrāj [cf. vii. 90.2] has to be inferred from the connection; the comm. paraphrases by naṣṭdvīrya. The plant intended he declares to be "that called kaṣiṭhaka" (Feronia elephantum). The pada-reading of the last word is çepahār-ṣaṇīm, and Prāt. ii. 56 prescribes the loss of the visarga of çepah in saṃhitā; the comment to Prāt. iv. 75 gives the reading thus: çepoharṣaṇīm iti çepahārṣaṇīm; and one of our pada-mss. presents it in the same form, adding kramakāle 'this is the krama-reading'; and the comm. has çepoka; but Ppp., çepaharṣiṇī. As çepa is as genuine and old a form as çepas, there seems to be no good reason for the peculiar treatment of the compound.

2. Up, the dawn; up, too, the sun; up, these words (vācas) of mine; up be Prajāpati stirring, the bull, with vigorous (vājīn) energy (çūṣma).

Ppp. has a different b, uc chuṣmā oṣadhīnām (compare our vs. 4 a); and it has at the end of d vājīnām; it also inserts between our 1 and 2 this verse: vṛṇas te khana-tāro vṛṣā tvā paçy oṣadhe vṛṣā 'si vṛṣṇyāvati vṛṣane tvā khaṇāmasi; and this is a verse given in full by Kāuç. (40. 14) after the pratika of vs. 1 of our hymn (with the corrections vṛṣanas and khani- in a and vṛṣā tvam asy in b, and the vocative -vati in c). The editor of Kāuç. fails to understand and divide rightly the material, and so does not recognize the quotation of this hymn. The first two pādas of the added verse are as it were the reverse of our iv. 6. 8 a, b, which see.

3. As forsooth of thee growing up (? vi-ruḥ) it breathes as if heated (? abhi-tap) — more full of energy than that let this herb make for thee.

Altogether obscure, and probably corrupt. No variant is reported from Ppp., which, however, inserts ūrdhvasrāṇim idaṁ kṛdhi at the beginning, before yathā. The comm. is unusually curt, attempting no real explanation of the verse: he reads virohitas instead of -hat, and paraphrases by putrapāutrādīrūpeṇa virohanasya nimittam puṁvya-ñjanam; abhītaṭtam he glosses by phanyaṅgam, and anati by çṣṭate; he makes tatas mean "so," as correlative to yathā, supplies puṁvyañjana as object of kṛnotu, and regards the vīryakāma person as addressed throughout. [Bloomfield discusses çuṣma, ZDMG. xlviii. 573, and cites it from TB. i. 6. 24 as referring to Prajāpati's sexual force.—For vīrohitas, see BR. vi. 418, and Bloomfield's note.—With anati, cf. çvasiḥt, vi. 101. 1.]

4. Up, the energies (çūṣma) of herbs, the essences (sāra) of bulls; the virility (vṛṣṇya) of men (puṁs) do thou put together in him, O Indra, self-controller.

The corruption of a, b is evidenced by both meter and sense; probably we should read uc chuṣmā (i.e. -mās; Ppp. has this reading in 2 b) oṣadhīnām ūt sārā ṛṣabhāṇām (read -ṇa-ām); both editions follow the mss. (p. çūṣmā and sārā). The Prāt. takes no notice of the passage. The comm. has at beginning of c the unmanageable reading sampūṣām (deriving it from root puṣ "puṣṭāu"), and at the end tanūvaçam; and in each case he is supported by one or more of SPP's mss. He takes çūṣmā and sārā as adjectives fem., qualifying iyām oṣadhīs of 3 d. In our text, the accent-mark under the -sa- in b has slipped out of place to the left. The Anukr. scans 12: 8+8=28 syllables.

5. Of the waters the first-born sap, likewise of the forest-trees; also Soma's brother art thou; also virility art thou of the stag.

Ppp. has in a rasāu 'ṣadhīnām, and in d ārīṣyam for ārçām: which should have been emended in both editions to the evidently true reading ārçyām; it is another case (as in 7 c) of the loss of y after ç. The comm. evidently reads ārçam (the word itself is lost out of the text of his exposition), and he explains it as "belonging to the seers, Angiras etc.!"

6. Now, Agni! now, Savitar! now, goddess Sarasvatī! now, Brahma-ṇaspati, make his member taut like a bow.

Ppp. reads me instead of asya in c. The verse is bhurij only if we do not abbreviate iva to 'va in d. [Our c, d is nearly vi. 101. 2 c, d.]

7. I make thy member taut, like a bowstring on a bow; mount (kram), as it were a stag a doe, unrelaxingly always (?).

The verse is repeated below as vi. 101. 3. It is wanting (as noted above) in Ppp. All our pada-mss. make in c the absurd division krāma: svārçāhoiva, instead of krāmasva: ṛçyaḥoiva; but SPP. strangely reports no such blunder from his mss. All the mss. agree in ṛçā instead of ṛçya [both editions should read ṛçya]; the comm. has again ṛçā (cf. 5 ḍ), and declares it equivalent to vṛṣabha! The Pet. Lex. takes sādā at the end as instr. of sād "position in coitus," and the connection strongly favors this; but the accent and the gender oppose it so decidedly that the translation does not venture to adopt it. The comm. takes sādā as "always," and reads before it anu valgūyatā (for ānavaglāyatā), supplying manasā for it to agree with. The verse is bhurij only if we refuse to make the common contraction -ṛçye 'va in c.

8. Of the horse, of the mule, of the he-goat and of the ram, also of the bull what vigors there are—they do thou put in him, O self-controller.

The omission of tān would rectify the meter of ḍ, and also make more suitable the accentuation asmīn. The great majority of mss. favor in c the reading ātha ṛç-, which SPP. has accordingly adopted (our edition has ātha ṛç-). The comm. again (as in 4 ḍ) has at the end tanūvaçam, understanding it adverbially (çarīrasya vaço yathā bhavati tathā).

5. An incantation to put to sleep.

[Brahman.—svāpanam, vārçabham. ānuṣṭubham: 2. bhurij; 7. purastājjyotis triṣṭubh.]

Found in Pāipp. iv., next after our hymn 4. Part of the verses are RV. vii. 55. 5-8. Used by Kāuç. among the women's rites, in a rite (36. 1 ff.) for putting to sleep a woman and her attendants, in order to approach her safely.

Translated: Aufrecht, Ind. Stud. iv. 340; Grill, 51, 119; Griffith, i. 135; Bloomfield, 105, 371; Weber, xviii. 20.—Discussed by Pischel, Ved. Stud. ii. 55 f.; see also Lanman, Reader, p. 370, and references; further, the RV. translators; and Zimmer, p. 308.

1. The thousand-horned bull that came up from the ocean — with him, the powerful one, do we put the people to sleep.

The verse is RV. vii. 55. 7, without variant. Ppp. reads at the beginning hiraṇya-çrṅgas. The comm. takes the "bull" to be the sun with his thousand rays — but that is nothing to make people sleep; the moon is more likely, but even that only as typifying the night.

2. The wind bloweth not over the earth; no one soever seeth over [it]; both all the women and the dogs do thou make to sleep, going with Indra as companion.

Ppp. has in b the preferable reading sūryas for kāç candā. Part of our mss. (P.M.W.E.I.H.K.), with apparently all of SPP's, read *svāpāyas at end of c, but both editions accept svāpāya, which the comm. also has. The comm. understands the wind to be meant as Indra's companion in d. The verse is not bhurij, if we read vāto 'ti in a. * [And so Op.]

3. The women that are lying on a bench, lying on a couch, lying in a litter; the women that are of pure odor — all of them we make to sleep.

For talpeçayās in a, Ppp. has puṣṭiç-, and RV. (vii. 55. 8) vahyeç-; both give talpaçivarīs (Ppp. -rī) at end of b. RV. further mars the meter of c by giving -gandhās.

4. Whatever stirs have I seized; eye, breath have I seized; all the limbs have I seized, in the depth (atiçarvarā) of the nights.

Ppp. reads in d uta çarvare; the comm. explains atiç- by tamobhūyiṣṭhe madhyarātrakālē.

5. Whoso sits, whoso goes about, and whoso standing looks out — of them we put together the eyes, just like this habitation (harmyā).

RV. (vii. 55. 6) rectifies the meter of a by adding ca before cārati (the Anukr. takes no notice of the deficiency of a syllable in our version); its b is yāç ca pāçyati no jānaḥ; and in c it has hanmas for dadhmas, and (as also Ppp.) akṣāni. The comm. gives no explanation of the obscure comparison in d, nor of the word harmyā, but simply says "as this harmya that we see is deprived of the faculty of sight." [Is not the tertium comparationis simply the closing? We close their eyes as we close this house. The comm. renders sām dadhmas by nimilitāni kurmas. — For the loss of ca before cārati, cf. iv. 18. 6 a = v. 31. 11 a (sā before çaçāka ?), and vi. 91. 2 a ('va before vāti ?). Other cases (vii. 81. 1 c, etc.) cited by Bloomfield, AJP. xvii. 418.]

6. Let the mother sleep, the father sleep, the dog sleep, the house-master (viçpāti) sleep; let the relatives (jñāti) of her sleep; let this folk round about sleep.

For svāptu (5 times) and svāpantu, RV. (vii. 55. 5) gives sāstu and sasantu; also, in c, sārve 'all' for asyāi 'of her' — which latter is to us a welcome indication of the reason for all this putting to sleep, and marks the Atharvan application of the hymn, whether that were or were not its original intent. In b, all the mss. have svā instead of çvā; both editions emend to the latter, which is read also by the comm. [For asyāi, cf. iii. 25. 6.]

7. O sleep, with the imposition (abhikarāṇa) of sleep do thou put to sleep all the folk; till sun-up make the others sleep, till dawning let me be awake, like Indra, uninjured, unexhausted.

Several of SPP's mss. have at the beginning svāpṇas. Ppp. reads svapṇādhik-, and so does the comm. (explaining adhik- as adhīṣṭhānaṁ çayyādi); the latter has in d āvvyūṣam; and Ppp. gives caratāt for jāgrtāt. A khila to RV. vii. 55 has a corresponding verse, reading for a svapṇāḥ svapṇādhikārāṇe (thus rectifying the meter), in c ā sūryām, and for d āvvyūṣām jāgrīyād ahām. The Anukr. uses the name jyotiḥ so loosely that it is difficult to say precisely how it would have the verse scanned; it is really a bhurij pañkti.

The 5 hymns of the first anuvāka contain 37 verses; and the old Anukr., taking 30 as norm, says simply saṅgata.

6. Against the poison of a poisoned arrow.

Found (except vs. 1) in Pāipp. v. Used by Kāuç. (with, as the schol. and the comm. say, the next following hymn also) in a rite (28. 1 ff.) of healing for poison, with homage to Takṣaka, chief of the serpent gods; and the schol. (but not the comm.)

declare it to be employed elsewhere (29. 1 ; 32. 20) in similar rites involving Takṣaka. There is no specific reference in the hymn to serpent poison, but distinctly to vegetable poison ; and the comm. regards kanda or kandamūla ('tuber' and 'tuber-root') as the plant intended.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 512 ; Griffith, i. 136 ; Bloomfield, 25, 373 ; Weber, xviii. 23. — Cf. Bergaigne-Henry, Manuel, p. 145.

1. The Brahman was born first, with ten heads, with ten mouths ; he first drank the soma ; he made the poison sapless.

The absence of this verse in Ppp., and the normal length of the hymn without it, together with its own senselessness, suggest strongly the suspicion of its unoriginality. To put meaning into it, the comm. maintains that the serpents have castes, as men have ; and that their primal Brahman was Takṣaka.

2. As great as [are] heaven-and-earth by their width, as much as the seven rivers spread out (vi-sthā), [so far] have I spoken out from here these words (vāc), spoilers of poison.

Tāvatiṃ in ḍ for tām itās would be a welcome emendation. The first half-verse occurs in VS. (xxxviii. 26 a, b: not quoted in ÇB.) and TS. (in iii. 2. 61): VS. omits varimṣā; TS. has instead mahivṛā; both rectify the meter of b by adding ca after yāvāt (Ppp. adds instead vā); and for our rather fantastic viṣṭhiré (p. viṣṭhiré) VS. has -tasthiré and TS. -tasthūs. The comm. also reads -sthire; the lingualization is one of the cases falling under Prāt. ii. 93. The comm. glosses in b sindhavas by samudrās, and viṣṭhire by vyāvartante. This irregular ḥrastāra-pāṅkti is overlooked by the Anukr. in its treatment of the meter.

3. The winged (garūtmant) eagle consumed (av) thee first, O poison ; thou hast not intoxicated (mad), thou hast not racked (rūp) [him] ; and thou becamest drink for him.

At beginning of b, viṣa is read only [by Ppp. and] by the comm. and by one of SPP's mss. that follows him ; all the rest have the gross blunder viṣaḥ (both editions emend to viṣa). Ppp. gives ādayat in b, and its second half-verse reads nā 'ropayo nā 'mādayo tasmā bhavan pituh, thus removing the objectionable confusion of tenses made by our text. Our arūrupas is quoted as counter-example by the comment to Prāt. iv. 86. The first pāda might be rendered also 'the well-winged Garutmant,' and the comm. so understands it, adding the epithet vāinateya to show that garutmant = Garuḍa. He also takes the two aorists and the imperfect in c-ḍ alike as imperatives (nā 'rūrupas = vimūḍham nā kārṣiḥ). The Anukr. does not note a as irregular.

4. He of five fingers that hurled at thee from some crooked bow — from the tip (ṣalyā) of the apaskambhā have I exorcised (nir-vac) the poison.

Apaskambhā is very obscure ; the Pet. Lex. suggests "perhaps the fastening of the arrow-head to the shaft" ; Ludwig guesses "barb," but that we have in vs. 5 — as we also have ṣalya, which seems therefore premature here ; and, in fact, Ppp. reads instead of it bāhvōs ; and, as it has elsewhere apaskantasya bāhvōs, we might conjecture apa skandhasya etc., 'from shoulder and arms': i.e. from wounds in them. Or, for apaskambhā as a part of the body might be compared Suṣrūta i. 349. 20 — unless apastambe

(which at least one good manuscript reads) is the true text there [Calcutta ed. reads apastambhāu]. The comm. has no idea what apaskambha means, but makes a couple of wild guesses: it is the betel-nut (kramuka)-tree, or it is an arrow (both based on senseless etymologies). In a, Ppp. reads -gulis.

5. From the tip have I exorcised the poison, from the anointing and from the feather-socket; from the barb (apāṣṭhā), the horn, the neck have I exorcised the poison.

Ppp. reads vocam instead of avocam in a and ḍ, and its b is āñjanāt parṇadher uta. Prāt. ii. 95 regards apāṣṭha as from apa-sthā, doubtless correctly; between the "barb" and the "horn" there is probably no important difference. To the comm., the apāṣṭha is a poison-receptacle (apakṛṣṭāvasthād etatsamjñād viśopādānāt).

6. Sapless, O arrow, is thy tip; likewise thy poison is sapless; also thy bow, of a sapless tree, O sapless one, is sapless.

The comm. strangely takes arasārasam at the end (p. arasa: arasām) as a reduplicated word, "excessively sapless."

7. They who mashed, who smeared, who hurled, who let loose — they [are] all made impotent; impotent is made the poison-mountain.

That is, as the comm. is wise enough to see, the mountain from which the poisonous plant is brought. "Let loose" (ava-sṛj) probably applies to arrows as distinguished from spears; though "hurl" might be used equally of both. Ppp. has in c santu instead of krīās. According to SPP., the text used by the comm. combines ye 'pīṣan; apīṣan is an anomalous form for apīṣan, with which the comm. glosses it.

8. Impotent [are] thy diggers; impotent art thou, O herb; impotent [is] that rugged (pārvata) mountain whence was born this poison.

As was pointed out above (under iv. 4. 2), the first half-verse is a sort of opposite of one found in Ppp., and quoted by Kāuṣ. (at 40. 14). [With pārvata giri cf. mṛgā hastin, xii. 1. 25.]

7. Against poison.

[Garutman. — vānaspatyam. ānuṣṭubham: 4. svarāj.]

Found in Pāipp., but not all together; vs. 1 occurs in v., vss. 2-6 in ii., and vs. 7 in vi. Not used by Kāuṣ. unless it is properly regarded by the schol. and the comm. (see under h. 6) as included with h. 6 by the citation (28. 1) of the latter's pratika (the comm. puts it on the ground of the paribhāṣā rule grahaṇam ā grahaṇāt, Kāuṣ. 8. 21).

Translated: Ludwig, p. 201; Grill, 28, 121; Griffith, i. 138; Bloomfield, 26, 376; Weber, xviii. 26.

1. This water (vār) shall ward off (vāray-) upon the Varāṇvatī; an on-pouring of ambrosia (amṛta) is there; with it I ward off thy poison.

The significance of the verse lies in its punning upon vār and var; the name varaṇvatī is not found elsewhere, but has sufficient analogies elsewhere; it is formed, as the comm. points out, from the tree-name varaṇa (Crataeva Roxburghii). Ppp. has in b a different pun: varuṇād ābhṛtam; and for ḍ it reads tac cakārā 'rasam viṣam. The first pāda lacks a syllable, unless we resolve va-ār. [Cf. x. 3. 1 n.]

2. Sapless is the poison of the east, sapless what is of the north ; also this that is of the south is exchangeable with gruel (karambhā).

That is, is no stronger or more harmful than gruel. Except our Bp., which has adharācyām, all the mss. accent -rācyām, and SPP. follows them; our edition emends to -rācyām, to accord with the two adjectives of like formation in a, b. Ppp. puts arasam after viṣam in a.

3. Having made gruel of sesame (?), teeming with fat, steaming (?), thou dost not rack, O ill-bodied one, him that has eaten thee merely from hunger.

The verse is full of difficulties and doubtful points. The translation implies in d emendation of jakṣivānt sā to jakṣivānsam, as suggested by BR., s.v. rup (Grill rejects it, but unwisely); Ppp. reads jakṣivīpyasya. The construction of the augmentless aorist-form rūrupas with nā instead of mā is against all rule and usage; the easiest emendation would be to nā 'rūrupas; Ppp. gives ni rūrupaḥ. SPP. unaccountably reads rūrupaḥ in pada-text, both here and in 5 d and 6 d, against all but one of his pada-mss. in this verse, and also against Prāt. iv. 86, which distinctly requires rurupaḥ; and (in all the three cases alike) the pada-mss. add after the word the sign which they are accustomed to use when a pada-reading is to be changed to something else in samhitā. In c, the pada-reading is ḍustano iti duḥstano; the case is noted under Prāt. ii. 85. Tiryām in a is rendered as if tilyām, from tila (so the Pet. Lex.); the comm. derives it from tiras, and renders it tirobhavam 'vanishing,' which is as senseless as it is etymologically absurd; Ppp. reads instead turiyam. According to Rājan. xvi. 23, a sort of rice (as ripening in three months) is called tiriya (tirima ?), but the word appears to be only a modern one, and is hardly to be looked for here. [I cannot find it in the Poona ed.*] Grill makes the very unsatisfactory conjecture atiriyam "running over." In b, all our mss. (as also the comment on Prāt. ii. 62) read ḥības-phākām (p. ḥībahsphākām, which the comment just quoted ratifies), as our edition reads; SPP., on the other hand, prints ḥībasphākām (comm. ḥīvasphākām, explained as "fat-cooking") and declares this to be the unanimous reading of his authorities: this discordance of testimony is quite unexplainable. The translation implies emendation of the pada-reading to ḥībahsphākām. Ppp. reads udāhrtam for the problematic udāratthm; but the latter is supported by RV. i. 187. 10 (of whose first two pādas, indeed, our a, b seem to be a reminiscence): karambhā oṣadhe bhava ḥīvo vṛkkā udāratth. The comm. explains the word as udriktārtijanakam (Sāyaṇa to RV. entirely differently). [In a supplementary note, Roth reports: Ppp. has ḥīvasphākām; R. has, p.m., ḥībasphā, corrected to ḥībasphā; T. has ḥīvasphā.] [Correct the verse-number: for 6 read 3.] * [Or is nirapa, at p. 220¹⁴, a variant of tiriya? The two are easily confused in nāgarī.]

4. Away we make thine intoxication fly, like an arrow (ḥarā), O intoxicating one (f.); we make thee with our spell (vācas) to stand forth, like a boiling pot.

The comm. (with a pair of SPP's mss.) reads ḥarām in b*; it also (alone) has ḥeṣantam (= ḥrayatamānam) in c; one of our mss. (Op.), with two or three of SPP's, give instead ḥeṣantam. Ppp. has a peculiar c: ḥari tvā varmi veḥantam. The verse is regular if we make the ordinary abbreviation of iva to 'va in b and c. * [The reciters K and V gave ḥarām: comm. renders as if ḥarum 'arrow.' BR. render the verb in d by 'wegstellen.' When you set the pot aside (take it off the fire), it stops boiling; and so the poison is to stop working. But see also Weber's note.]

5. With a spell we cause to stand about [thee] as it were a collected troop (grāma); stand thou, like a tree in [its] station; spade-dug one (f.), thou rackest not.

The comm., here and in 6 d, reads abhriṣāte (-ṣāte = -labdhe), which looks like a result of the common confusion of kh and ṣ. SPP. reads in pada-text rūrupaḥ, and this time without any report as to the readings of his pada-mss. — doubtless by an oversight, as all but one of them give rur- in both 3 d and 6 d. The true scanning of c is probably vr̥kṣé'va sthā-mn-i.

6. For covers (? pavāsta) they bought thee, also for garments (? dūrçā), for goat-skins; purchasable (? prakrī) art thou, O herb; spade-dug one, thou rackest not.

The comm. knows nothing of what pavāsta and dūrça mean, but etymologizes the former out of pavana and asta (pavanāyā'stāih sammārjanitr̥ñāih), and the other out of dus and ṛçya (duṣṭarçyasambandhibhīh)! Prakrīs he renders by prakarṣeṇa kṛitā.

7. Who of you did what first unattained deeds — let them not harm our heroes here; for that purpose I put you forward.

This verse occurs again later, as v. 6. 2, and in Ppp. makes a part of that hymn alone. Its sense is very questionable, and its connection casts no light upon it, either here or there; and Grill is justified in omitting it as having apparently nothing to do with the rest of this hymn. All the pada-mss. save one of SPP's read ānaptā (not -tāh); and all save our Bp. read prathamāh (Bp. -mā); SPP. gives in his pada-text -tāh and -māh; the translation here given implies -tā and -mā, without intending to imply that the other readings may not be equally good; the comm. takes ānāpiāh (= ananukūlāh ['unkindly']) as qualifying çatravas understood, and prathamā as qualifying kārmāṇi.

8. Accompanying the consecration of a king.

1, 7. bhurikriṣṭubh; 3. triṣṭubh; 5. virātprastūrapāṅkti.]

Found in Pāipp. iv. (in the verse-order 1-3, 7, 4-6). For occurrences in other texts, see under the verses. Used by Kāuç. (17. 1 ff.), and also in Vāit. (36. 7) in connection with the rājābhīṣeka or rājasūya ceremony; and Vāit. (29. 12) further employs vs. 5 in the agnicayana, with pouring of water around the erected altar.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 458; Zimmer, p. 213; Weber, Ueber den Rājasūya, Berliner Abh., 1893, p. 139 (with full discussion); Griffith, i. 139; Bloomfield, 111, 378; Weber, xviii. 30.

1. The being (bhūtā) sets milk in beings; he has become the overlord of beings; Death attends (car) the royal consecration (rājasūya) of him; let him, as king, approve this royalty.

The meaning is obscure. Very possibly bhūtā is taken here in more than one of its senses, by a kind of play upon the word. Weber renders it the first time by "powerful" (kräftig), nearly as the comm., whose gloss is samṛddhaḥ; the latter gives it the same sense the second time, but the third time simply prāninām. The introduction of "death" in the second half-verse suggests the interpretation (R.) that the deceased predecessor of the prince now to be consecrated is besought to give his sanction to the ceremony from the world of the departed (bhūtā). The comm. regards death as brought in in the character of dharmarāja, as he who requites good and evil deeds. TB. (in ii. 7. 15¹) is the only other text that has this verse, reading in a carati prāvīṣaḥ (for pāya ā dadhāti) and in c mṛtyān: the variants are of a character to make us distrust the value of the matter as admitting any consistent interpretation. Ppp. reads in c sa te for tāsyā.

2. Go forward unto [it]; do not long (? ven) away, a stern (ugrā) corrector (cettār), rival-slayer; approach (ā-sthā), O increaser of friends; may the gods bless (adhi-brū) thee.

Found, with vs. 3, in TB. (in ii. 7. 8¹), and also, with the remainder of the hymn, in K. (xxxvii. 9). [It seems to be a reminiscence of the Indra-verse, RV. v. 31. 2, applied, like vs. 3 of this hymn, to the king.] TB. reads in a (for mā 'pa venas) vīrāyasva, and Ppp. has vīḍayasva; TB. gives, as also the comm., the nom. mitravārdhanas (a later repetition of the verse, in ii. 7. 16¹, presents vītrahāntamas instead); and it ends with bravan,* which is better, and might have been read in our text, as near half the mss. give it; but SPP. also accepts bruvan, with the comm. The comm. takes the "throne" as object of the first verb, and renders mā 'pa venas by apakāmam anicchām mā kārṣiḥ [cf. vi-ven in BR.]. (Weber renders ven by "see.") *[But the Poona ed., p. 716, has bruvan.]

3. Him approaching all waited upon (pari-bhūṣ); clothing himself in fortune, he goes about (car), having own brightness; great is that name of the virile (vīṣan) Asura; having all forms, he approached immortal things.

This is a RV. verse (iii. 38. 4: repeated without variant as VS. xxxiii. 22), transferred from Indra to the king; RV. reads, as does Ppp., ṛtyas in b. TB. (as above) has svārocās at end of b, and asyā for vīṣnas in c. At the beginning of c, the comm. has mahas (but explains it as = mahaḥ) tad viṣno, and a couple of SPP's mss. support him. He renders pāri abhūsan either alamkurvantu or sevantām: that the form is imperative is the point he is sure of; and as alternative value of asurasya he gives ṣatrūṇāṃ nīrasituḥ! [Is not asurasya nāma a simple periphrasis of asurāṃ, 'the divinity' that "doth hedge a king," in which gods are said to clothe themselves at RV. iii. 38. 7? Nāma might then be construed with vāsānas, or else as above.]

4. A tiger, upon the tiger's [skin], do thou stride out unto the great quarters; let all the people (vīṣas) want thee, the waters of heaven, rich in milk.

That is, let the rains not desert thee (so the comm. also). This verse and the two following are found, in the same order, in TB. ii. 7. 15³⁻⁴; it puts ādhi after vāīyyāghrē (sic) in a, reads ṣrayasva in b, and has for d mā tvād rāṣṭrām ādhi bhraṣat (found below as vi. 87. 1 d, and in other texts: see under that verse). Ppp. gives yanti [or yānti?] instead of vāñchantu in c.

5. The waters of heaven that revel with milk, in the atmosphere or also on the earth — with the splendor of all those waters do I pour upon (abhi-sic) thee.

The version of the first half-verse given by TB. is quite different: yā divyā āpaḥ śyāsā sambadhūvīḥ: yā antārikṣe utā pārthivīr yāḥ; and Ppp. so far agrees as to have uta pārthivā yāḥ; TB. also reads rucā for apām in c. The comm. renders madanti as if causative: prāṇinas tarpayanti. The abhīṣeka process, instead of an anointing with oil, is a pouring of water upon the person to be consecrated. The verse (11+10: 8+8=37) lacks three syllables of being complete, rather than two. [Put another yās at the beginning of b and the verse is orderly, 11+11: 8+8.]

[Perhaps mad here approaches its physical meaning, 'boil (cf. ÇB. iii. 4. 3 end, and my Reader, p. 211), bubble over, overflow'; used of the rains that 'drip abundantly with' śyās or life-giving moisture. W's prior draft rendered mad by "intoxicate"; over this he interlined "revel."— This, says Weber, is the verse of the act of consecration proper. The celebrant transfers to the king the vārcas or glory-giving vigor of the waters of all three worlds.]

6. The heavenly waters, rich in milk, have poured upon thee with splendor; that thou be an increaser of friends, so shall Savitar make thee.

Instead of our asiñcan, SPP. gives, as the reading of all his authorities, asican, which is decidedly preferable, and implied in the translation (our Bp. is doubtful; other mss. possibly overlooked at this point); TB. has instead asican; Ppp. and the comm., asrjan. Then, for b, TB. and Ppp. give divyéna śyāsā (Ppp. śāy-) sahā; and in c TB. has rāstravārdh-, which is better, and before it yāthāsā (regarded by its commentary as yāthā: āsa).

7. Thus, embracing the tiger, they incite (hi) the lion unto great good-fortune; as the well-being ones (subhū) the ocean that stands, do they rub thoroughly down the leopard amid the waters.

Found also in TB. (ii. 7. 16⁴) and MS. (ii. 1. 9: besides K.). In b, MS. has mṛjanti for hinvantī, and dhānāya (which rectifies the meter) for sābhagāya. For c, MS. has a much less unmanageable version, mahiṣān nah subhūvam, and Ppp. supports it by giving mahiṣān nas subhavas: thus, in each pāda the king is compared to a different powerful animal—which is the leading motive of the verse. But TB. differs from our text only by giving *subhūvam for subhūvas. Subhūvam, with a further slight emendation of samudrām to -dré, would give a greatly improved sense: "him who stands comfortable in the ocean, as it were," or bears himself well under the water poured upon him. The phrase samudrām nah subhūvāḥ occurs also at RV. i. 52. 4 b (and its occurrence here in such form may be a reminiscence of that); Sāyaṇa there understands subhūvas of the "streams" that fill the ocean; and our comm. gives a corresponding interpretation here (nadīrūpā āpaḥ); samudrām he allows us alternatively to take as = varuṇam. He also, most ungrammatically, takes enā at the beginning as enās "those [waters]." Ppp. further has pari mṛjante for marm- in d. * [Poona ed., p. 750, reads suhūvam.]

9. For protection etc.: with a certain ointment.

[Bhṛgu. — daṣarcam. trāikakudāñjanaddivatam. ānuṣṭubham: 2. kakummatī; 3. pathyāpāñkti.]

Found mostly in Pāipp. viii. (in the verse-order 9, 3, 2, 5, 6, 8, 10, 4, 7). Used by Kāuṣ. (58. 8) with the binding on of an ointment-amulet, in a ceremony for long life of the Vedic pupil after his initiation. And the comm. quotes it from the Naks. K. (19) [error for Çāntī, says Bl.], as employed in the mahāçāntī called āirāvati.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 507; Grill, 35, 123; Griffith, i. 141; Bloomfield, 61, 381; Weber, xviii. 32. — As for ointment and ointment-legends, see Bloomfield, AJP. xvii. 404 ff.

1. Come thou, rescuing the living one; of the mountain art thou for the eyes (?), given by all the gods, an enclosure (paridhī) in order to living.

Jvām in a might also be coördinate with trāyamānam; the comm. understands it as translated. The meter indicates that the true reading at the end of b is ākṣyam, and this is read by SPP., with the alleged support of all his authorities save one, which follows the comm. in giving ākṣam; our Bp. has ākṣam, and our edition accepted that (our Op. has akṣyām, our I. ākṣyām); but akṣya is unknown elsewhere, and its meaning in this connection is quite obscure; perhaps allusion is intended to a legend reported in MS. iii. 6. 3 (p. 62. 8; cf. also TS. vi. 1. 15 and ÇB. iii. 1. 3. 12): "Indra verily slew Vṛtra; his eye-ball flew away; it went to Trikakubh; that ointment of Trikakubh he spreads on." The ointment of this mountain is most efficacious for the eyes, and hence also for the other purposes here had in view. The comm. gives caḥṣus as the value of his ākṣam. Grill suggests emendation to akṣayyam or akṣaram. We have to make the harsh resolution vt-ṣu-e- in c or leave the pāda defective.

2. Protection (paripāna) of men (pūruṣa), protection of kine art thou; in order to the protection of coursing (ārvant) horses hast thou stood.

The comm. says in c "of horses and of mares (vaḍavānām).” The resolution ār-va-ta-ām fills up c quite unsatisfactorily; the Anukr. refuses all resolution, and counts the pāda as of 6 syllables.

3. Both art thou a protection, grinder-up of familiar demons (yātū), O ointment, and of what is immortal thou knowest; likewise art thou gratification (-bhōjana) of the living, likewise remedy of jaundice (hārīta).

Contrary to rule, the a of asi in d has to be elided after ātho in d; probably emendation to āthā 'si is called for; one of our mss. (O.) reads ātho 'si. Ppp. rectifies the meter of a by giving ute 'vā 'si; for c, d it has utā 'mṛtatvōsye 'ṣiṣa utā 'saṣ pītrbhōjanam. The comm. takes amṛtasya as the drink of immortality, and -bhōjana as either aniṣṭānivartanena pālaka or bhogasādhana. The last pāda hardly belongs with the rest.

4. Of whomsoever, O ointment, thou creepest over limb after limb, joint after joint, from thence thou drivest away the yākṣma, like a formidable mid-lier (madhyamaçī).

Found also as RV. x. 97. 12 (repeated, without variant, as VS. xii. 86), which version, however, begins with yāsyāu 'śadhīḥ prasārpatha, and has in c correspondingly bādha-dhve. The comm. has in c bādhatē, but regards it as for bādhasē. Ppp. reads tasmāt for tatas. Madhyamaçī is of obscure meaning; "arbiter," as conjectured by BR., seems very implausible [BR. express their conjectural meaning by the Latin word intercessor; by which, I suspect, they intend, not 'mediator,' but rather 'adversary' or 'preventer' of the disease, which would be plausible enough]; more probably "mid-most man," like madhyameṣṭhā or chief (see under iii. 8. 2), and madhyamaçī used especially of the leader about whom his men encamp, for his greater safety, in the night. JB. has madhyamaçīvan at ii. 408, but the passage is too corrupt to cast valuable light upon the word. To the comm., it is either Vāyu, the wind in mid-air, or else the king, viewed as surrounded first by foes, and further by their foes, his friends (on the principle of arir mitram arer; mitram) [mitra-mitram atah param etc. I find the verse at Kāmandakīya Nītisāra, viii. 16. To judge from the Later Syriac Version (Kalilah and Dimnah, Keith-Falconer, p. 114), one would expect to find it in Pañcatantra ii., colloquy of mouse and crow, in Kosegarten's ed., p. 110 or thereabouts. Cf. Manu vii. 158 and the comm.]

5. Curse attains him not, nor witchcraft, nor scorching; viṣkandha reaches him not who beareth thee, O ointment.

Ppp. reads tam for enam in a, and niṣkandham in c. [It inserts just before our vs. 7 the vs. given under vi. 76. 4 and ending with yas tvām bibharty āñjana.]

6. From wrong spell, from evil dreaming, from evil deed, from pollution also, from the terrible eye of an enemy — therefrom protect us, O ointment.

Ppp. has, for b, kṣetiriyāc chapathād uta. The Pet. Lexx. understand asanmantrā as simply "untrue speech" (so Grill, "Lügenrede"); the comm. reads instead -nryāt, as adjective qualifying duṣvapnyāt, and signifying "produced by base bewitching spells." Durhārdas in c might well be adj., 'hostile' (so comm.).

7. Knowing this, O ointment, I shall speak truth, not falsehood; may I win (san) a horse, a cow, thy soul, O man (pūruṣa).

The latter half-verse is RV. x. 97. 4 c, d (which is also, without variant, VS. xii. 78 c, d), where we read vāsas instead of ahām; Ppp., too, gives vāsās. All the mss. and the comm. have at the end the absurd form puruṣas (nom., but without accent); the comm. (whose text, as SPP. points out in more than one place, is unaccentuated) understands "I, thy man (retainer)." Both editions make the necessary emendation to puruṣa [s. pūruṣa]. Ppp. gives pāuruṣa. SPP. makes a note that saneyam is so accented by all his authorities — as if anything else were possible [does he have in mind saneyam? see Whitney, Roots, p. 183]. The first pāda is defective unless we resolve vi-du-ān [or ā-āñjana]. — [R's supplementary report of Ppp. readings ends a with āñjanas and has for d āñjana tanva pāuruṣaḥ. As noted above, this vs. stands at the end in Ppp. and before it is inserted the vs. given under vi. 76. 4.]

8. Three are the slaves (dāsā) of the ointment — fever (takmán), balāsa, then snake: the highest of mountains, three-peaked (trikakūd) by name, [is] thy father.

For the obscure balāsa, the comm. gives the worthless etymology balam asyati, and adds samniṣpātādīḥ 'collision [of humors] or the like'; "snake" he explains as for snake-poisoning; perhaps, if the reading is genuine, it is rather the name of some (constricting?) disease.

9. The ointment that is of the three-peaked [mountain], born from the snowy one (himdvant) — may it grind up all the familiar demons and all the sorceresses.

Pāda b is repeated below as v. 4. 2 b. The first half-verse is, without variant, TA. vi. 10. 2, vs. 9 a, b; and it occurs also in HGS. (i. 11. 5), which reads upari at the end for pari [and so at MP. ii. 8. 11 a, b]. The second half is VS. xvi. 5 c, d, and also found in TS. iv. 5. 1² and MS. ii. 9. 2; all these have dhin instead of yātīn, and read jambhāyan (pres. pple.); and our jambhāyat may, of course, be pres. pple. neut.; some of the mss. (including our Bp.M.I.) indeed read -yan here, though no masc. subject is implied; the comm. paraphrases with nāçayad vartate. SPP., with his customary defiance of grammar upon this point, reads sārvān instead of -ān or -āñ [cf. i. 19. 4, note].

10. If thou art of the three-peaked [mountain], or if thou art called of the Yamunā — both thy names are excellent; by them protect us, O ointment.

Te in c might perhaps be emended with advantage to tē. The Yamunā is not elsewhere mentioned in AV. Nāmntī is to be read, of course, as of three syllables, and there is no reason why the text should not give us nāmanī.

10. Against evils: with a pearl-shell amulet.

[Atharvan. — çaiñhamaniṣūktam. taddāivatam. ānuṣṭubham: 6. paṭhyāpāñkti;
7. 5-p. parānuṣṭup çakvarī.]

Found (except vs. 5) in Pāipp. iv. Used by Kāuç. (58. 9) in the same ceremony with the preceding hymn, but with an amulet of mother-of-pearl; the schol. (not the comm.) also add it in an earlier part of the ceremony (56. 17). The comm. quotes it further from Nakṣ. K. (19), as employed in a mahāçāntī named vārunī.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 462; Grill, 36, 124; Griffith, i. 142; Bloomfield, 62, 383; Weber, xviii. 36. — Bloomfield cites an article in ZDMG. (xxxvi. 135) by Pischel, who, in turn, cites a lot of interesting literature about pearl.

[Although rain-drops are not expressly mentioned in this hymn nor in xix. 30. 5 (which see), I think it safe to say that the bit of Hindu folk-lore about the origin of pearls by transformation of rain-drops falling into the sea (Indische Sprüche, 344) is as old as this Vedic text and the one in xix. The references here to sky and sea and lightning, and in xix. to Parjanya and thunder and sea, all harmonize perfectly with that belief, which is at least ten centuries old (it occurs in Rājaçekhara, 900 A.D.) and has lasted till today (Manwaring's Marāñhī Proverbs, no. 1291). See my translation of Karpūra-mañjarī, p. 264 f., and note 5. Pischel, l.c., reports as follows: "According to Aelian (περὶ ζῴων, x. 13), a pearl forms when the lightning flashes into an open sea-shell; according to an Arabic writer, when rain-drops fall into it, or, according to Pliny (ix. 107), dew." — The persistency of popular beliefs in India is well illustrated by the curious one concerning female snakes: see my note to Karpūra-mañjarī, p. 231.]

1. Born from the wind out of the atmosphere, out from the light of lightning, let this gold-born shell, of pearl, protect us from distress.

Of course, all the four nouns in the first half-verse may be coördinate ablatives. The beauty and sheen of the material connect it traceably with gold and lightning, but how even a Hindu ṛṣi can bring it into relation with wind from (or and) the atmosphere is not easy to see. Kṛçana ought to mean the pearl itself, and is perhaps used in the hymn appositively = "which is itself virtually pearl"; the comm. explains it in this verse as karçayitā çātrūñāñ tanūkartā. Ppp. has in c hiranyadās.

2. Thou that wast born from the top of the shining spaces (rocandā), out of the ocean — by the shell having slain the demons, we overpower the devourers.

Ppp. combines in a yo'grato r-. Grill takes agratas as "first"; and the comm. as = agre, and not qualifying jajñiṣe: "at the top or front of shining things, such as stars."

3. By the shell [we overpower] disease, misery; by the shell also the saddānvās; let the all-healing shell, of pearl, protect us from distress.

Ppp. has in a avadyam instead of āmatim. The comm. takes āmatim from root man [see BR's note, s.v. 3 āmāti]: "ignorance, the root of all mishap (anartha)"; and, forgetting his explanation of only two verses ago, he this time declares kṛcana a "name of gold."

4. Born in the sky, ocean-born, brought hither out of the river, this gold-born shell [is] for us a life-prolonging amulet.

Ppp. has samudratas at end of a, and in c again (as in 1 c) hiraṇyadās. Nearly all our mss. (except O.K.), and some of SPP's, with the comm., read in d āyusḥpr- [cf. Prāt. ii. 62 n.]; but the point is one in regard to which each ms. is wont to follow its own course, regardless of rule, and both editions very properly give āyusḥpr-, as required by the Prāt.

5. The amulet born from the ocean, born from Vṛtra, making day — let it protect us on all sides from the missile of gods and Asuras.

The comm. makes Vṛtra here signify either the demon Vṛtra or the cloud; doubtless the latter is intended; then he explains divākara as the sun, and jāta as "released," and renders "as brilliant as the sun freed from the clouds," which is extremely artificial; divākara need mean no more than 'flashing with light.' The comm. also foolishly understands in d hetyā instead of -ās (p. hetyāḥ). [Dev-, ablative by attraction, from gen. — cf. Skt. Gram. §982 a.] The first pāda is deficient by a syllable, unless we resolve samudrāt into four syllables.

6. One of the golds art thou; out of soma wast thou born; thou art conspicuous on the chariot, lustrous (rocana) on the quiver thou. May it prolong our lives!

The last pāda, which occurs in four other places (ii. 4. 6 etc.), looks like a late addition here; as elsewhere, some of the mss. (five of SPP's) read tārṣat. Except our Op., all the pāda-mss. blunderingly resolve sómātvām (as it would be permissibly and customarily read by abbreviation: see Whitney, Skt. Gr. §232) into sómā: tvām instead of sómāt: tvām; the comm. understands sómāt, and both editions give the full reading. Here one is strongly tempted to translate soma by "moon," and the comm. takes it so (amṛtamayāt somamaṇḍalāt); but Ppp. discourages it by reading sa hoṣād (for -mād?) adhi. The comm. glosses rocana by rocamaṇa dīpyamāna. For c, Ppp. has rathesu darçatam.

7. The gods' bone became pearl; that goes about within the waters, possessing soul; that do I bind on thee in order to life-time, splendor, strength, to length of life for a hundred autumns: let [the amulet] of pearl defend thee.

*Karçand*s in e, though read by all our mss. and nearly all of SPP's, is hardly to be tolerated; we should have either kṛçanas, as above, or kārçanas, which the comm.

offers, with two or three mss. that follow him, and which SPP. accordingly adopts [kārçandś]; our edition gives karç-; Ppp. has kārçinas. Ppp. also has simply ca for our whole ḍ (after balāya). The comm. reads astī instead of asthi in a. The verse (11+11: 14+11+8=55) lacks a syllable of being a full çakvari. [Reject either āyuse or varcase and the meter is good.—In c, te ‘for thee’ (comm., as gen.), is, I suppose, virtually = ‘on thee.’]

The second anuvāka, ending with this hymn, contains 5 hymns and 39 verses; the Anukr. quotation is nava ca.

11. In praise of the draft-ox.

[Bhṛgvaṅgīras.—dvādaçarcam. ānaḍuham. trīṣṭubham: 1, 4. jagatī; 2. bhurij; 7. 3-av. 6-p. anuṣṭubgarbho ‘pariṣṭājagatā nicṛcchakvarī; 8-12. anuṣṭubh.]

Found in Pāipp. iii. (in the verse-order 1, 4, 2, 5, 3, 6, 11, 12, 9, 8, 10, 7). Used by Kāuç. (66. 12) in a sava sacrifice, with the draft-ox as sava. The hymn offers an example of that characteristic Hindu extollation, without any measure or limit, of the immediate object of reverence, which, when applied to a divinity, has led to the setting up of the baseless doctrine of “henotheism.”

Translated: Muir, OST. v. 399, 361 (about half); Ludwig, pp. 534 and 190; Deussen, Geschichte, i. 1. 232; Griffith, i. 144; Weber, xviii. 39.—Cf. Deussen, l.c., p. 230 f. Weber entitles the hymn “Verschenkung eines Pflugstieres zur Feier der Zwölften (i.e. nights of the winter solstice — see vs. 11).”

1. The draft-ox sustains earth and sky; the draft-ox sustains the wide atmosphere; the draft-ox sustains the six wide directions; the draft-ox hath entered into all existence.

That is, the ox in his capacity of draft-animal: the comm. says, çakaṭavahanasamartho vṛṣabhah; later in the hymn he is treated as female, without change of the name to a feminine form (the fem. -ḍuhī or -ḍvāhī does not occur before the Brāhmaṇa-period of the language). But the comm. also allows us the alternative of regarding dharma, in ox-form, as subject of the hymn. The “directions” (pradīç) are, according to him, “east etc.”; and the “six wide” are “heaven, earth, day, night, waters, and plants,” for which AÇS. i. 2. 1 is quoted as authority. With the verse compare x. 7. 35, where nearly the same things are said of skambha. Ppp. reads in a -vīm dyām utā ‘mām. In the second half-verse, two accent-marks have slipped out of place in our edition: in c, that under ṣa should stand under ḍu; and, in ḍ, that under mā should stand under na. The verse is jagatī by count, but not by rhythm. [If, with Weber, we pronounce naḍvān, it becomes a regular trīṣṭubh.]

2. The draft-ox [is] Indra; he looks out from (for?) the cattle; triple ways the mighty one (çakrā) measures out (traverses?); yielding (ḍuh) the past (?bhūtā), the future, existing things (bhūvanā), he goes upon (car) all the courses (vratā) of the gods.

Ppp. reads in a indrasya for indraḥ sa, and in c it adds sam before bhūtam, and has bhūvanam instead of -nā. The comm. has in b the curious reading stiyān for trayān, and hence we lose his guess as to what may be meant by the “triple ways.” He takes paçubhyas in a first as dative, and then as ablative. He understands bhūvanā as virtually “present”; more probably it has its usual sense of ‘existences,’ and the two preceding adjectives qualify it distributively, or are in apposition with it: “all existing things, both what is and what is to be." [If we pronounce again naḍvān, the vs. loses its bhurij quality. The cadence of b is bad.]

3. Born an Indra among human beings (manuṣyā), he goes about (car) shining brightly, a heated hot-drink (gharmā); he, being one of good offspring, shall not go in mist (?udārā) who, understanding [it], shall not partake of (aç) the draft-ox.

The verse is obscure, and the translation in various points very doubtful. The second pāda is apparently a beginning of the identification of the ox with the gharma, a sacrificial draught of heated milk, which we find further in vss. 5, 6; he is, since his kind yield warm milk, as it were an incorporation of that sacrifice. And the second half-verse is then a promise to whoever shall abstain from using the ox as food. Ppp. reads eṣa instead of jātas in a, and sañciçānas at end of b. In c, d the comm. reads sam for san, ud āre as two words, and no 'çñiyāt, and of course makes very bad work of its explanation, finding metempsychosis in sam . . . sarṣat (na sañsarati punaḥ sañsārādharmañ na prāpuoti). Gharma he takes first as "blazing sun," and then, alternatively, in its true sense. There is no other occurrence of an s-aorist from sr; and it is altogether against rule and usage to employ a subjunctive and an optative (açñiyāt) in two coördinate clauses [this seems to me to be a slip—see Skt. Gram. § 575 b; and the clauses are hardly coördinate]; so that the reading is very suspicious. A few of our mss. (P.M.W.E.) read ṇá after udārē. [Ludwig conjectures suprayās for -jās.]

4. The draft-ox yields milk (duh) in the world of the well-done; the purifying one fills him up from in front; Parjanya [is] his streams, the Maruts his udder, the sacrifice his milk, the sacrificial gift the milking of him.

Ppp. appears to have read in b pyāyet, which would rectify the meter; in c it combines maruto "dho. Pāvamāna in b might signify the wind (then purástāt 'from the east'?) or soma; the comm. takes it as the latter (pavitreṇa çodhyamāno 'mṛtamayaḥ somaḥ); and "the sacrifice" in d as "the sava sacrifice now performed." The verse is rhythmically a triṣṭubh with redundant syllables (11+13: 12+11=47). [On dakṣiṇā, see Bloomfield, AJP. xvii. 408 f.]

5. Of whom the lord of the sacrifice is not master (ēç), nor the sacrifice; not the giver is master of him, nor the acceptor; who is all-conquering, all-bearing, all-working — tell ye us the hot-drink which [is] four-footed.

"Which" in d is yatamā, lit. 'which among the many.' The intended answer, of course, is that this wondrous sacrificial drink is the ox. Ppp. begins c with yo viçvadr̥g viçvakṛd v-. The comm. declares the first half-verse to convey the universal masterhood and not-to-be-mastered-hood of the ox; in d gharma is, according to him, "the blazing sun, which the four-footed one tells us" (brūta is read, but declared equivalent to brūte!).

6. By whom the gods ascended to heaven (svār), quitting the body, to the navel of the immortal, by him may we go to the world of the well-done, desiring glory, by the vow (vratā) of the hot-drink, by penance.

Ppp. appears to have read in a suṡvā ruhanta; in b it has dhāma instead of nābhim; and it ends d with yaçasā tapasyā. The comm. has jeṡma (= jayema) in c [instead of geṡma (Skt. Gram. § 894 c)]; gharma is to him once more "the blazing sun." [As to the stock-phrase in c, cf. Bloomfield, AJP. xvii. 419.] The verse (10+11: 10+13=44) is a very poor triṡṡubh.

7. Indra by form, Agni by carrying (vāha), Prajāpati, Paramesṡṡṡin, Virāj; in Viçvānara he strode, in Vāiçvānara he strode, in the draft-ox he strode; he made firm, he sustained.

This is the obscurest verse of this obscure hymn, and no attempt will be made to solve its riddles. Ppp. has a quite different text: indro balenā 'sya paramesṡṡṡi vrateṡnāi 'na gāus tena vāiçvadevāṡṡ: yo 'smān dveṡṡi yaṡṡ ca vayanṡ dveṡṡmas tasya prāṡṡān asavahas tasya prāṡṡān vi varhaṡṡ. The two concluding clauses of our text most obviously belong with vs. 7 rather than vs. 8, and both editions so class them; but SPP. states that all his authorities reckon them to vs. 8, ending vs. 7 with the third akramata (which some of the mss., including our P.M.W.E.O.Op., mutilate to akramat). He adds that the Anukr. does the same; but this is evidently an oversight, our mss. of the Anukr. calling vs. 8 a simple anuṡṡubh (madhyam etad anaṡṡuṡa iti paṡṡcā 'nuṡṡubhaṡṡ) and giving of vs. 7 a lengthy definition (see above), implying the division 9+10: 8+8+8: 12=55 (restoring both times the elided initial a in f); perhaps, then, SPP. is also mistaken in regard to the unanimity of his "mss. and Vāidikas"; at any rate, part of our mss. (Bp.I.H.Op.K.) divide with the editions. The comm., however, does not; as, indeed, he is repeatedly at discordance with the Anukr. on such points. He explains vāha in a as "the part that carries (vahati) the yoke; the shoulder," and has nothing of any value to say as to the general sense of the verse. [The identification of the draft-ox with Agni seems to rest on Agni's chief function of "carrying"; cf. RV. x. 51. 5 d; 52. 1 d, 3 d, 4 a.]

8. That is the middle of the draft-ox, where this carrying (vāha) is set; so much of him is in front (prāççna) as he is put all together on the opposite side.

The virtual meaning of the second half-verse appears plainly to be that the two parts of the ox, before and behind the point where the pull comes (i.e. where the yoke rests) are equal; but it is strangely expressed, and the reason why the point is insisted on does not appear. The comm. so understands it: evam prāççpratyagbhāgāv ubhāv api samānān; he renders vaha this time by dhāra; Ludwig takes it as "the hump." [In this verse, b can hardly mean "where the pull comes," but rather 'where the burden is put,' i.e. the back; cf. Deussen, l.c., p. 231. Nevertheless, see BR. under vaha, 2 a and 2 b.]

9. Whoso knows the milkings of the draft-ox, seven, unfailing, both progeny and world he obtains: so the seven seers know.

Ppp. reads anapadasyatas both here (b) and at 12 d; it also combines saptars- in d, as does the comm., and a couple of SPP's authorities. For consistency, our text ought to combine in a-b dōhānt s-; SPP. also leaves out here the connecting t. The comm. explains the seven milkings or yields of milk alternatively as "the seven cultivated plants, rice etc." or "the seven worlds and oceans"—not happening, apparently, to think of any other heptad at the moment. He quotes the names of the seven seers from Āçvalāyana. [The number of this vs. is misprinted.]

10. With his feet treading down debility (sedī), with his thighs (jāṅghā) extracting (ut-khid) refreshing drink — with weariness go the draft-ox and the plowman unto sweet drink (kīlāla).

The verse seems rather out of place here. As both n and m final are assimilated to an initial palatal, the pada-text commits the blunder in b of understanding irāni to be for irān; and, as is usual in such cases, a part of our mss. read irān j- (so P.M.W.E.I.); SPP. very properly emends his pada-text to irām. The comm. reads in d kīnāçasya for -çaç ca (one of SPP's authorities following him: "with the old accent," SPP. remarks, as if the change of reading involved a change of accent), and makes gachatas a genitive agreeing with it — against the accent; but this he regularly ignores. Irām, it may be added, he glosses with bhūmin!

11. Twelve, indeed, they declare those nights of the vow (vrātya) of Prajāpati; whoso knows the brāhman within them (tātró 'pa) — that verily is the vow of the draft-ox.

Or, "those twelve nights they declare to be for the vow" etc.: it is uncertain what is object and what objective predicate in the sentence. Ppp. reads and combines vrātyā "huç pr- in b; for the unusual phrase tatro 'pa in c it gives tad vā 'pi; and in d it has balam instead of vrātam. For Weber's conjectures as to the twelve nights and the draft-ox of this hymn, see his Omina und Portenta, p. 388; compare also [Weber's other references, Ind. Stud. xviii. 45, and] Zimmer, p. 366. The comm. glosses vrātya by vrātārha, and quotes TS. v. 6. 7' as to the twelve nights of consecration.

12. He milks (duh) at evening, he milks in the morning, he milks about midday; the milkings of him that come together, those unailing ones we know.

Ppp. has for a, b duhe vā 'naçvān sāyam duhe prātar duhe divā, and at the end (as above noted) anaçvāsyatas. The comm. supplies to duhe either anaçvāham as object (with the worshiper as subject), or anaçvān as subject (with the performer of the sava sacrifice as beneficiary); sam yanti he explains by phalena samgacchante.

12. To heal serious wounds: with an herb.

[R̥bhu. — vānaspatyam. ānuṣṭubham: 1. 3-p. gāyatrī; 6. 3-p. yavamadhya bhuriggāyatrī; 7. bhātī.]

Found in Pāipp. iv. (in the verse-order 3-5, 1, 2, 7, 6). Used by Kāuç. (28. 5) in a healing rite: Keçava and the comm. agree in saying, for the prevention of flow of blood caused by a blow from a sword or the like; boiled lākṣā-water is to be poured on the wound etc. The schol. to Kāuç. 28. 14 also regard the hymn as included among the lākṣāliṅgās prescribed to be used in that rule.

Translated: Kuhn, KZ. xiii. 58, with Germanic parallels; Ludwig, p. 508; Grill, 18, 125; Griffith, i. 146; Bloomfield, 19, 384; Weber, xviii. 46. — Cf. Hillebrandt, Veda-chrestomathie, p. 48.

1. Grower art thou, grower; grower of severed bone; make this grow, O arundhatī.

Arundhatī, lit. 'non-obstructing,' appears to be the name of a climbing plant having healing properties; it is mentioned more than once elsewhere, and in v. 5 (vss. 5 and 9) along with lākṣā (vs. 7) 'lac'; and the comm. to the present hymn repeatedly declares lākṣā to be the healing substance referred to in it; probably it is a product of the arundhatī. Ppp. has every time rohiṇī instead of rohanī, and so the comm. also reads; the manuscripts of Kāuṣ., too, give rohiṇī in the pratika, as does the schol. under 28. 14. There is evident punning upon the name and the causative rohaya- 'make grow'; perhaps the true reading of a is rōhany asi rohiṇi 'thou art a grower, O red one,' bringing in the color of the lac as part of the word-play; the comm. assumes rohiṇi, voc., at end of a (he lohitavarne lākṣe). Ppp. further reads çīrnasya instead of chinuṣya; and has, in place of our c, rohiṇyām arha ātā 'si rohiṇyā 'sy oṣadhe, making the verse an anuṣṭubh. The comm. gives asnas for asthnas in b.

2. What of thee is torn (riç), what of thee is inflamed (? dyut), is crushed (? peṣṭra) in thyself — may Dhātār excellently put that together again, joint with joint.

Ppp. reads in a çīrṇam for riṣtam; it reads tā "tmanah" in b; and in c, d it has tat sarvaṁ kalpayāt sam dadat. The comm. (with one of SPP's mss.) reads preṣṭham (= priyatamam) for the obscure peṣṭram in b (found elsewhere only in vi. 37. 3 below, where the comm. has peṣṭam); the conjecture "bone" of the Pet. Lex. seems altogether unsatisfactory; it is rendered above as if from piṣ. The comm. paraphrases dyuttām by dyotitam, vedanayā prajvalitam iva, which seems acceptable.

3. Let thy marrow come together with marrow, and thy joint together with joint; together let what of thy flesh has fallen apart, together let thy bone grow over.

Ppp. rectifies the meter of a by omitting te, and has for d [? b?] sanistrāvam asu parva te. A few of the mss. (including our H.O.Op.) give viçrastam in c. The comm. reads çam instead of sam in every pāda. A couple of SPP's mss., by a substitution found also elsewhere [see ii. 12. 7, note], have manyā for majjñā in a. The Anukr. ignores the redundant syllable in the first pāda.

4. Let marrow be put together with marrow; let skin (cārman) grow (ruh) with skin; let thy blood, bone grow; let flesh grow with flesh.

The third pāda is translated as it stands [cf. vs. 5 c], but we can hardly avoid emending āsṛk to asthnā, or else āsthi to asnā, to agree with the others; the comm. [as an alternative] fills it out to two parallel expressions, for both blood and bone. Ppp. has, for b-d: asthnā 'sthi vi rohatu snāva te sam dadhmas snāvñā carmaṇā carma rohatu.

5. Fit thou together hair with hair; fit together skin (tvāc) with skin; let thy blood, bone grow; put together what is severed, O herb.

The prolongation of the final vowel of a pāda is so anomalous that we can hardly help regarding kalpayā in a as wrong, perhaps imitated from b; Ppp. avoids the difficulty by reading in a sam dhīyatām. [For c, compare vs. 4.] Ppp. also has for d our 4 d.

6. Do thou here stand up, go forth, run forth, a chariot well-wheeled, well-tired, well-naved; stand firm upright.

Ppp. is very different: ut tiṣṭha pre 'hi samudhā hi te paruh: sam te dhātā dadhātu tan no viriṣṭam rathasya cakra py upavaryathāir yathāi 'ti sukhasya nābhiṣ prati tiṣṭha evam. The Anukr. scans the verse as 9+11:5=25 syllables.

7. If, falling into a pit, he hath been crushed (sam-çr), or if a stone hurled (pra-hr) hath smitten [him] — as a Ṛbhu the parts of a chariot, may it put together joint with joint.

A number of the mss. (including our P.M.O.Op.) read kārtum for kartām in a; the comm. explains kartam as meaning kartakam chedakam āyudham, and makes it subject of sañçaçrē = samhinasti; he takes rbhus as one of the three Ṛbhus (quoting RV. i. 111. 1), not giving the word any general sense. Ppp. again has an independent text: yadi vajro visr̥ṣṭā sthārakā jātu patitrā yadi vā ca riṣṭam: vr̥kṣād vā yadi vā vibhyasi çirṣa rbhūr iti sa evaṁ sam dhāmi te paruḥ. The verse is a brhatī only by number of syllables (10+10:8+8=36). [The comm. makes the "Atharvanic spell" the subject in d.]

13. For healing.

[Çantāti. — cāndramasam uta vaiçvadevam. ānuṣṭubham.]

Found in Pāipp. v. (in the verse-order 1, 5, 2-4, 6, 7). Vss. 1-5, 7 are in RV. x. 137, and vs. 6 occurs elsewhere in RV. x. Only vss. 1-3 have representatives in Yajur-Veda texts. The hymn is called çantātiya in Kāuç. (9. 4), in the list of the laghuçānti gaṇa hymns; and our comm. to i. 4 counts it also to the brhachānti gaṇa (reading in Kāuç. 9. 1 uta devās for the tad eva of the edited text), but he makes no mention of it here; he further declares it to belong among the anholiṅgās (for which see Kāuç. 32. 27, note); the schol., on the other hand, put it in the āyusyaḡaṇa (54. 11, note). It is used (58. 3, 11) in the ceremonies for long life that follow the initiation of a Vedic student. In Vāit. (38. 1) it appears, with ii. 33 and iii. 11 etc., in a healing ceremony for a sacrificer [see comm.] who falls ill.

Translated: by the RV. translators; and Aufrecht, ZDMG. xxiv. 203; Griffith, i. 147; Weber, xviii. 48. — See Lanman's Reader, p. 390.

1. Both, O ye gods, him that is put down, O ye gods, ye lead up again, and him that hath done evil (āgas), O ye gods, O ye gods, ye make to live again.

Found without variant as RV. x. 137. 1, and also in MS. (iv. 14. 2.) But Ppp. reads uddharatū for in nayathā in b, and its second half-verse is tato manuṣyaṁ tam devā devāḥ kṛṇuta jīvase. The comm. explains avahitam as dharmaviṣaye sāvadhānam, apramattām, or alternatively, avasthāpitam; supplying to it kuruta, and making of b an independent sentence, with double interpretation; and he says something in excuse of the four-fold repetition of the vocative.

2. These two winds blow from the river as far as the distance; let the one blow hither dexterity for thee; let the other blow away what complaint (rāpas) [thou hast].

Besides RV. (vs. 2), TB. (ii. 4. 17) and TA. (iv. 42. 1, vs. 6) have this verse. Both accent in c āvātū, as does SPP's text, and as ours ought to do, since all the mss. so read, and the accent is fully justified as an antithetical one; our text was altered to agree with the ā vātu of RV., which is less observant of the antithetical accent than AV., as both alike are far less observant of it than the Brāhmaṇas. All the three other texts have hārā for vā at beginning of d; and TB.TA. give me instead of te in c. The second pāda is translated in attempted adaptation to the third and fourth; of course, the two ablatives with a might properly be rendered coördinately, and either 'hither from' or 'hence as far as'; the comm. takes both in the latter sense.

3. Hither, O wind, blow healing; away, O wind, blow what complaint [there is]; for thou, all-healing one, goest [as] messenger of the gods.

TB.TA. (as above) put this verse before the one that precedes it here and in RV. All the three read in c viçvábhesajas, and Ppp. intends to agree with them (-bhejajo de-). The comm. offers an alternative explanation of devānām in which it is understood as = indriyānām 'the senses.' [Von Schroeder gives a, b, Tübingen Kāṭha-hss., p. 115.]

4. Let the gods rescue this man, let the troops of Maruts rescue, let all beings rescue, that this man may be free from complaints.

In RV., this verse and the following one change places. In a, RV. reads ihá for imám, and in b the sing. trāyatām . . . ganáḥ. Ppp. ends b with maruto ganāiḥ, and d with agado 'sati. The first pāda is defective unless we make a harsh resolution of a long ā. We had d above as i. 22. 2 c.

5. I have come unto thee with wealfulnesses, likewise with uninjurednesses; I have brought for thee formidable dexterity; I drive (sū) away for thee the yákṣma.

The RV. text has in c te bhadrām ā 'bhārṣam; both editions give the false form ā 'bhārīṣam, because this time all the mss. (except our E.p.m.) chance to read it; in such cases they are usually divided between the two forms, and we need not have scrupled to emend here; the comm. has -rṣam. Ppp. reads in c te bhadrām ārīṣam, and, for d, parā suvāmy āvuyat.

6. This is my fortunate hand, this my more fortunate one, this my all-healing one; this is of propitious touch.

This is, without variant, RV. x. 60. 12; it takes in our hymn the place of RV. x. 137. 6.

7. With (two) ten-branched hands — the tongue [is] forerunner of voice — with (two) disease-removing hands: with them do we touch thee.

RV. (vs. 7) has for c, d anāmayitnūbbhyām tvā tābhyām tvó 'pa spṛçāmasi. The Anukr. takes no notice of the redundancy in our c.

14. With the sacrifice of a goat.

[Bhṛgu. — navarcam. ājyam, āgneyam. trāiṣṭubham: 2, 4. anuṣṭubh; 3. prastārapāṅkti; 7, 9. jagatī; 8. 5-p. atiçakvari.]

Verses 1-6 are found also in Pāipp. iii. (in the verse-order 1, 2, 5, 4, 6, 3), and in various Yajur-Veda texts (vss. 1 and 6 not in company with the rest); vss. 7-9, in Pāipp. xvi. The hymn is used in Kāuç. (64. 23 ff.) in the sava sacrifices, with goat or goat-rice-mess (ajāudana) as sava: vss. 2-4, at 68. 24-27 (and also, the comm. says, in recitation in all sava sacrifices); vs. 5, at 63. 9 (the comm. says, with oblation in all); vs. 6, at 64. 17; vs. 7 (vss. 7 and 8, according to the comm.), at 64. 18-20 (with setting up the goat); vs. 9, at 64. 22 (with offering the skin having head and feet left attached to it). In Vāit., vs. 1 is used (29. 3) in the agnicayana, with building in a goat's head; vss. 2-5 (29. 17), in the same ceremony as the priests mount the altar;

vs. 5 (8. 17), in the parvan sacrifices, with transfer of the fires, and again, in the agnis̥toma (15. 9), when the fire is brought to the uttaravedi; and the comm. regards vs. 3 as quoted at 27. 6, in the vājapeya rite.

Translated: Griffith, i. 149; Weber, xviii. 51 (elaborate comment).

1. Since the goat has been born from the heat of Agni (the fire), it saw [its] generator in the beginning; by it the gods in the beginning attained (i) [their] godhead; by (with?) it the sacrificial ones (médhya) ascended the ascents (róha).

Found also in VS. (xiii. 51), MS. (ii. 7. 17; like VS. throughout), and TS. (iv. 2. 104). VS. and MS. have in c, ḍ devátām ágram āyañs téna róham āyann úpa médh-. TS. has at the beginning ajá, and, correspondingly, sá (with vāt added) in b, and táyā in c and ḍ; it also reverses the order of c and ḍ, agreeing otherwise with VS. MS. in ḍ, but having ágre, like AV., in c; it also replaces çókāt by gárbhāt in a. We have a again below as ix. 5. 13 a; and c is nearly equivalent to iii. 22. 3 c: moreover the pada-mss., here as there, misinterpret āyañ before téna as āyam, which SPP. properly corrects to āyan in his pada-text; all our saṃhitā-mss. read āyañ. The comm. declares h̄t in a to be intended to intimate that the same statement was made in another text also; and he quotes TS. ii. 1. 14; róha he explains by svargādiloka; téna he takes both times as designating the means. The Anukr. takes no notice of the deficiency of a syllable in b. [As to ajá, see Weber, Berliner Sb., 1895, p. 847 n.]

2. Stride ye with the fire to the firmament (náka), bearing in your hands vessel-[fires] (úkhya); having gone to the back of the sky, to the heaven (svár), sit ye mingled with the gods.

The other texts (VS. xvii. 65; TS. iv. 6. 51; MS. ii. 10. 6) differ but slightly from ours: all have the sing. úkhyaṃ at beginning of b, and TS. MS. combine diváh p- in c. Ppp. reads agnibhis in a, and ekṣāñ for úkhyañ in b; for the latter, the comm. (with one of SPP's mss.) gives akṣāñ, which he defines as akṣavat prakāçakūñ anu-çhitāñ yajñāñ. As usual, the mss. vary at the end between the equivalent ādhvam and ādhvam; our text reads the latter, SPP's the former.

3. From the back of earth I have ascended to the atmosphere; from the atmosphere I have ascended to the sky; from the back of the sky, of the firmament (náka), I have gone to heaven (svár), to light.

The other three texts (VS. xvii. 67; TS. and MS. as above) agree in omitting pr̥sthāt in a and adding úd after ahām before antárikṣam. In this verse, the comm. takes svár as the sun (in vs. 2, as the svarga loka). It is too irregular (14+9:7+8=38) to be so simply defined as it is by the Anukr. [If we omit the first ahām, and combine dvāruham in b and resolve -aāt suar in cd, we get an orderly purastādbṛhatī.]

4. Going to heaven (svár) they look not away; they ascend to the sky, the two firmaments (ródasī) — they who, well-knowing, have extended the everywhere-streaming sacrifice.

The other texts (VS. xvii. 68; TS. and MS. as above) have no variants; but Ppp. ends b with rohantu rādhasah̄. The comm. again takes svar as svarga; and viçvato-dhāram as either sarvato dhāarakam or else sarvato vicchinna-phala-prāpti-yūḥyā yasmín.

5. O Agni, go forth first of the divinities, eye of gods and of human beings (mānuṣa) — pressing on (? iyakṣa-) in unison with the Bṛhguṣ, let the sacrificers go to heaven (svār), to well-being.

The other texts (VS. xvii. 69; TS. and MS. as above) all read mārtyānām at end of b; and for devātānām in a VS.TS. have devayatām, MS. devāyatām; and Ppp. also reads martyānām and devayatām; in c, MS. has sahā for sajōṣās. The comm. paraphrases caḥṣus by caḥṣurindriyavat priyah, and iyakṣamānās by yaṣṭum icchantah.

6. With milk, with ghee, I anoint the goat, the heavenly eagle, milky, great; by it may we go to the world of the well-done, ascending the heaven (svār), unto the highest firmament (nāka).

TS. (iv. 7. 13) and MS. (ii. 12. 3) have a parallel verse, with which Ppp. also corresponds in the first half: agnīm (Ppp. -nīm) yunaḥmi cāvasā ghr̥tēna divyām supar-ṇām (Ppp. samudram) vāyasā (MS. vayasām; but Ppp. payasām) br̥hāntam (Ppp. ruhantam); as second half, they read: tēna vayām patema bradhāsya viṣṭāpam sūvo (MS. svd) rūhāṇā adhi nāka uttamé, while Ppp. differs from our text only by having at beginning of d saruhāṇā adhi. The second half-verse is repeated below as xi. 1. 37 c, d. The comm. reads in b payasam, but regards it as vayasam with Vedic substitution of p for v; svār this time is either svarga or sūryātmakam paramam jyotiḥ. The triṣṭubh is irregular in its last two pādas. [Pronounce gā-īṣma in c (? in spite of Gram. § 894 c, end). Pāda d is simply acatalectic. Ought we perhaps to read sūārōh-, i.e. sūar rōh- (root ruh without ā, as at x. 2. 8; xii. 3. 42; xix. 6. 2)?]

7. Accompanied by five rice-messes (-odanā), by the five fingers, with the spoon, take thou up five-fold that rice-mess. In the eastern quarter set thou the head of the goat; in the southern (dākṣiṇa) quarter set his right (dākṣiṇa) side.

Verses 7–9 are not found in other texts, not even in Ppp.* The comm. (against the accent) explains pañcāndanam as pañcadhā vibhaktam odanam; uddhara as “take out of the kettle (sthālī) and set on the barhis”; and, both here and in the following verse, he substitutes for the actual part of the animal the cooked meat taken from such part, with the share of rice-mess that goes with it. The verse is a jagatī only by number of syllables (11+13:11+13=48; each pāda [save b] has trochaic close). [Reject diḥt in d and scan as 11+12:11+11.] *[In a supplementary note, Roth says that they do occur (as noted above) in Ppp. xvi.]

8. In the western quarter set his rump (bhasād); in the northern (ūttara) quarter set his other (ūttara) side; in the upward quarter set the goat's back-bone; in the fixed quarter set his belly (? pājasyā); mid-way in the atmosphere his middle.

The comm. explains pājasyām thus: pāja iti balanāma: tatra hitam udaragatam ūvadhyam; and dhehi in connection with it as meaning nī khana — which looks quite improbable. It is only by violence that this verse can be extended to 60 syllables, as the Anukr. requires. [Reject diḥt in b and c, as in vs. 7, and combine bhasādāsya, and we get five good triṣṭubh pādas.] Our edition inserts after pājasyām an avasāna-mark which is wanting in the mss. and in SPP's text.

9. Do thou envelop with cooked skin the cooked goat, brought together with all his limbs, all-formed. Do thou rise up from here unto the highest firmament (nāka); with thy four feet stand firm in the quarters.

One would expect in a rather āṅṅṅṅ, as the hide can hardly have been cooked; the comm. reads instead ṅṅṅṅ, explaining it as viṅṅṅṅ vibhaktayā; but no such word as ṅṅṅṅ appears to be found elsewhere, and both it and its interpretation are very implausible. To tvacā he adds "having the feet, tail, and head on." The verses read as if the goat himself, after cooking whole, were set up in position, the head to the east. The Anukr. does not heed that the second and fourth pādas are triṅṅṅṅ. [Ppp. has ṅṅṅṅ ekam ṅṅṅṅ.]

15. For abundant rain.

[Atharvan. — ṅṅṅṅ. maruṅṅṅṅ. trāṅṅṅṅ : 1, 2, 5. virāṅṅṅṅ ;
4. virāṅṅṅṅ ; 7, [8.] 13, [14.] anuṅṅṅṅ ; 9. paṅṅṅṅ ; 10. bhurij ;
12. 5-p. anuṅṅṅṅ ; 15. ṅṅṅṅ .]

Found (except vss. 2 and 15) in Pāipp. v. (in the verse-order 1, 3, 6, 5, 4, 7, 9, 10, 8, 11-14, 16). This hymn and vii. 18 appear to be called māṅṅṅṅ in Kāuṅ. (26. 24 : see note to this rule); they are specified as used together in a rite for procuring rain (41. 1 ff.); also in expiation of the portent of upaṅṅṅṅ 'inundations' (103. 3); further, vss. 10 and 11, with oblations respectively to Agni and Prajāpati, in expiation of the portent of obscuration of the seven seers (127. 8, 9). In Vāit. (8. 9) vs. 6 appears in the preparations of the cāṅṅṅṅ sacrifice. And the comm. quotes vs. 11 as employed by the Nakṅ. K. (18) in a maṅṅṅṅ called praṅṅṅṅ.

Translated: Bühler, Orient und Occident, i. 219; Griffith, i. 150; Weber, xviii. 58. — See also Weber's references to Ludwig and Zimmer. Cf. introduction to iii. 13.

1. Let the directions, full of mist (nāṅṅṅṅ), fly up together; let clouds, wind-hurried, come together; let the lowing [cows] of the resounding misty great bull, the waters, gratify the earth.

Ppp. combines in d vāṅṅṅṅ "paṅṅṅṅ"; the comm., in c, maṅṅṅṅ [as the meter requires]; this happens to be a case where all the mss. agree in maṅṅṅṅ. The meaning in a probably is the confusion of the directions by reason of the mists; the comm. renders nāṅṅṅṅ in a by nāṅṅṅṅ vāṅṅṅṅ yuktāṅṅṅṅ, and nāṅṅṅṅ in c by vāṅṅṅṅ preriṅṅṅṅ meghasya sambandhinyāṅṅṅṅ. [The second half-verse recurs at 5, below; see note.]

2. Let the mighty (taṅṅṅṅ), liberal (sudāṅṅṅṅ) ones cause to behold together; let the juices (rāṅṅṅṅ) of the waters attach themselves (saṅṅṅṅ) to the herbs; let gushes (sāṅṅṅṅ) of rain gladden (maṅṅṅṅ) the earth; let herbs of all forms be born here and there (praṅṅṅṅ).

The "mighty ones" in a are doubtless the Maruts; iṅṅṅṅ- is perhaps an error which has blundered in from the next verse, for uṅṅṅṅ- (though no causative of uṅṅṅṅ occurs elsewhere in AV.); the comm. supplies for it vrṅṅṅṅ as object; the translation implies something like "attract every one's attention." It would be easy to rectify the meter of d by reading ṅṅṅṅ vṅṅṅṅ; a is the only real jagatī pāda; and even by count the verse is only nicṅṅṅṅ (12+11: 11+13=47).

3. Do thou make the singers (gāṅṅṅṅ) to behold together the mists; let rushes (véga) of waters rush (viḥ) up here and there; let gushes of rain gladden the earth; let plants of all forms be born here and there.

Ppp. has for a samīkṣad viṣvag vāto napānsy; at end of b, patantu for viḥantām; in d, oṣadhayas (as in 2 d [of the editions]). The comm. regards a as addressed to the Maruts (he marudgana), and "the singing ones" as "us who are praising"; and vega as "swift stream." The Anukr. ignores the extra syllable in d [rectify as in 2 d, vīrūpās?].

4. Let the troops of Maruts sing unto thee, O Parjanya, noisy here and there; let gushes of raining rain rain along the earth.

Pṛthak, lit. 'severally, separately,' is used in these verses rather in the sense of 'all about, everywhere.' Ppp. has in d srjantu for varṣantu. The Anukr. makes the pāda-division after mārutās, and the pāda-mss. mark it accordingly, thus leaving parjanya without excuse for its accentlessness; but all the mss. read so, and both editions follow them. Doubtless either mārutās or parjanya is an intrusion; so the meter indicates. The comm. gives in c varṣantas.

5. Send up, O Maruts, from the ocean; brilliant [is] the song; ye make the mist fly up; let the lowing [cows] of the resounding misty great bull, the waters, gratify the earth.

We had the second half-verse as 1 c, d; but Ppp. gives an original half-verse instead: pra varṣayanti tamiṣā sudānavo 'paṁ rasīr oṣadhī sacantām. The first half is translated literally as it stands; but it is pretty certainly corrupt. Ppp. reads *īrayanta, tveṣā 'rkā, pātayantu; and the true reading is perhaps tveṣā arkā nābha ut pātayantu 'let our brilliant songs make' etc. The comm. finds no difficulty, since his ideas of grammar allow him to make tveṣās and arkās qualify nābhas (tveṣo dīptimad arko 'rcanasādhanam udakam tadyuktam nabhaḥ). TS. (in ii. 4. 8²) and MS. (in ii. 4. 7) have a first pāda nearly agreeing with our a (TS. īrayathā, MS. -yatā), the rest of the verse being wholly different. A couple of our mss. (O.Op.), with two or three of SPP's, read samudrajās at end of a. * [Roth, in his collation, gives pātayanta; in his notes, -tu.]

6. Roar on, thunder, excite (ard) the water-holder; anoint the earth, O Parjanya, with milk; by thee poured out, let abundant rain come; let him of lean kine, seeking refuge, go home.

That is, let the herdsman whose animals have been thinned by the drought, now be even driven to shelter by the abundance of rain. Ppp. makes syṣtam and varṣam change places, and is defaced at the end. The first three words are those of RV. v. 83. 7. The comm. (with two or three of SPP's mss. that follow him) reads in d āsārāiṣī, and renders it "seeking concurrence of streams"; our O.Op. have -rāiṣī. The comm. makes kr̥ṣṇagus signify "the sun, with his rays made slender"! and, of course, he is to "set" (astam i), or be made invisible by the clouds. The Anukr. makes no account of the fact that a is jagatī. [For āçāra, see Lanman, Trans. American Philological Association, xv. (1884), p. vii.]

7. Let the liberal ones favor (sam-av) you, also the fountains, great serpents (ajagarā); let the clouds, started forward by the Maruts, rain along the earth.

Ppp. omits vas in a, and combines sudānavo 'tsā 'jagarā; and its second half-verse is vātā varṣasya varṣatuḥ pravahantu pṛthivīm anu. The comm. renders avantu by tarpayantu; ajagarās here by ajagarātmanā vitarkeyamānāḥ, and under vs. 9 by ajagarasamānākārāḥ: i.e. "that look like great serpents as they wind sinuously along"; he takes sudānavas in a alternatively as vocative, notwithstanding its accent.

8. Let it lighten to every region (ācā); let the winds blow to (from?) every quarter; let the clouds, started forward by the Maruts, come together along the earth.

Ppp. has in ḍ varṣantu, as our text in the preceding verse. The comm. also points out the possibility of taking diśās as either accus. pl. or abl. sing. The Anukr. somehow omits to define the metrical character of this verse and of vs. 14.

9. Waters, lightning, cloud, rain—let the liberal ones favor you, also the fountains, great serpents; let the clouds, started forward by the Maruts, show favor (pra-av) along the earth.

Ppp. begins with vātas instead of āpas, and omits (as in 7 a) vas in b; and, for the last two pādas, it reads prā pyāyasva pra pītṛsya sam bhūmim payasā sṛja. The comm. again takes sudānavas as vocative, and makes the elements mentioned in a subjects of sam avantu; in ḍ he reads plāvantu but regards it as for prā 'vantu [parallel with palāyate etc. (W's Gram. § 1087 c), for which he cites Pāṇini viii. 2. 19].

10. Agni, who, in unison with the waters' selves (tanū), hath become overlord of the herbs—let him, Jātavedas, win (van) for us rain, breath for [our] progeny, amṛta out of the sky.

The comm. paraphrases amṛtam with amṛtatva-prāpakam. The Anukr. duly notes the redundant syllable in ḍ.

11. May Prajāpati from the sea, the ocean, sending waters, excite the water-holder; let the seed of the stallion (vīṣan ācva) be filled up; come hitherward with that thunder,—

To this verse really belongs the first pāda of our vs. 12, as the sense plainly shows, as well as its association in RV. (v. 83. 6 b, c, ḍ) with the two closing pādas here. [Cf. Lanman, Reader, p. 370; misdivision as between hymns.] But the mss., the Anukr., the comm., and both editions, end vs. 11 with é 'hi. RV. reads in our c pīvata for pyāyatām, and dūrās for rētas. Ppp. combines in b āp' trayann, and begins c with prā py-. The comm. gives viṣnos instead of vṛṣnas in c, and explains both it and salilād in a by vyāpanaṣila, which is one of his standing glosses for obscure words; ardayāti he paraphrases with raçmibhir ādānena pīdayatu, and udadhim simply by jaladhim. This verse is as much bhurij as vs. 10, unless we combine āpe "rāyan in b. [For -nūnāhi, see Prāt. iii. 38, note.]

12. Pouring down waters, our Asura father.

Let the gurgles of the waters puff, O Varuṇa; let down the descending waters; let the speckled-armed frogs croak (vad) along the water-courses (trina).

What is left of the verse after transferring its first triṣṭubh pāda to vs. 11, where it belongs, is (but for the intruded word varuṇa, which is wanting in Ppp.) a regular anusṭubh, having its avasāna division after sṛja; and this is the division actually made in all the mss., and in SPP's text. Ppp. combines gargarā 'pām. The comm. declares gargara an imitative word (īdr̥gdhvaniyuktāḥ pravāhāḥ), and the translation so renders it; as second pāda of the anuṣṭubh he reads avanicīr (avanim añcanti, i.e. bhūminī gacchanti!) apa sr̥ja; his first account of asura is as from as 'throw' (meghānāni kṣeptā). [Discussed and translated, apropos of trīṇa, by Pischel, Ved. Stud. ii. 223.]

13. Having lain for a year, [like] Brahmans performing a vow, the frogs have spoken forth a voice quickened by Parjanya.

The mss. (except one of SPP's, which follows the comm.) absurdly read vātam at beginning of c; both editions emend to vācam, which the comm. gives, and which is also read in the corresponding RV. verse, vii. 103. 1. Ppp. has māṇḍūkā in d. In our edition, correct two printer's errors, reading saṁvatsarām and brāhmaṇā. [Bloomfield discusses this vs. and the following, JAOS. xvii. 174, 179.]

14. Speak forth unto [it], O she-frog; speak to the rain, O tādurī; swim in the midst of the pool, spreading thy four feet.

Many of our mss. (P.M.E.I.H.K.) accent ūpa [cf. Prāt. iv. 3] at the beginning. Ppp. reads māṇḍūki in a, and tāmdhuri in b. The comm. defines tādurī as "she-offspring of the tadura," but gives no explanation of tadura. The verse is also found in a khila to RV. vii. 103, reading in a uṣaplāvada, and in c plavāsva. [For 14, 15, see Weber, Berliner Sb., 1896, p. 257. As to metrical definition of 14, see vs. 8 n.]

15. O khaṇvakhā! O khāimakhā! in the middle, O tādurī! win ye rain, O Fathers; seek the favor (mānas) of the Maruts.

The verse (as already noted) is unfortunately wanting in Ppp. The first pāda is misprinted as regards accentuation in our edition, being marked as if the final syllables were kam̐pa, instead of mere protractions. [That is, the horizontal under the first syllable khā- should be deleted; and the signs above and below the two ṣ's should also be deleted. They are printed aright, khāṇvakhāṣi khāimakhāṣi, in nāgarī, by Whitney, Prāt. p. 392, footnote, and on p. 400, and by SPP.] Prāt. i. 105 quotes the words (with the two that follow) in its list of words showing protraction; and i. 96 points out that the final i in each is grave. The comm. says that the three vocatives (he quotes the stems as khaṇvakhā ṣāimakhā tādurī) are special names for kinds of she-frogs — which seems likely enough; the two former appear to involve imitations of croaking (but in LÇS. iv. 3. 18 the householder's female slaves are to call out hāimahāṣ, as they circumambulate the mārjālīya, filling new water-holders). SPP. (p. 598, note) asks why, if the words are vocatives, they are not accented simply khāṇvakhāṣi khāimakhāṣi — being apparently ignorant of the fact that a protracted final syllable is regularly and usually accented, without regard to any other accent the word may have (see Whitney, Skt. Gr. § 78 a). Several of our mss. (E.I.H.O.Op.), and a couple of SPP's, leave the first syllable of each word unaccented. It would much help both meter and sense to supply hradāsya (or else plavāsva) after mādhye in b; the comm. either supplies hradāsya or reads it in his text. All our mss., and our printed text, have at the end ichataḥ; SPP. follows the comm. and about a third of his manuscript authorities in reading ichata, which is doubtless the true text, and implied as such in the translation above. The comm. explains pitaraḥ as pālayitāro māṇḍūkāḥ! SPP. regards him as reading mārutam in d, but this appears doubtful. [The Anukr. scans 8+5; 8+8.]

16. The great vessel (kōṣa) do thou draw up (ud-ac); pour on; let there be lightnings; let the wind blow; let them extend the sacrifice, being manifoldly let loose; let the herbs become full of delight.

Ppp. reads mahantam at beginning of a, and visṛṣtam at end of c. The first pāda is nearly RV. v. 83, 8 a, which, however, reads úd acā nt śiñca. Our P.M.W. read tanvāntām in c. The comm., doubtless correctly, understands the waters as the "them" of c; úd aca he explains as samudrād udakapūrṇam uddhara; he supplies antarikṣam to savidyutam; the expression is better understood as an impersonal one. [With b, d, cf. RV. v. 83. 4 a, b.]

Here ends the third anuvāka, having 5 hymns and 51 verses; the quoted Anukr. says ekaviñcatih.

16. The power of the gods.

[Brahman. — navarcam. satyānṛtānvīkṣaṇasūktam. vāruṇam. trāiṣṭubham: 1. anuṣṭubh; 5. bhurij; 7. jagatī; 8. 3-p. mahābṛhatī; 9. virāṇmāmatrīpādāyatrī.]

Five verses of this hymn (in the verse-order 3, 2, 5, 8, 7) are found together in Pāipp. v., and parts of vss. 4 and 6 elsewhere in the same book. It is used by Kāuṣ. (48. 7) in a rite of sorcery against an enemy who "comes cursing"; and vs. 3 also in the portent-ceremony of the seven seers (127. 3), with praise to Varuṇa.

By reason of the exceptional character of this hymn as expression of the unrestricted presence and influence of superhuman powers, it has been a favorite subject of translation and discussion. Translated: Roth, Ueber den AV., p. 29; Max Müller, Chips from a German Workshop, i. 41 (1867); Muir, OST. v. 63; Ludwig, p. 388; Muir, Metrical Translations, p. 163; Kaegi, Der Rigveda 2, p. 89 f. (or p. 65 f. of R. Arrow-smith's translation of Kaegi), with abundant parallels from the Old Testament; Grill, 32, 126; Griffith, i. 153; Bloomfield, 88, 389; Weber, xviii. 66. Some of the above do not cover the entire hymn. — See also Hillebrandt, Veda-chrestomathie, p. 38; Bergaigne-Henry, Manuel, p. 146; further, Grohmann, Ind. Stud. ix. 406; Hermann Brunnhofer, Iran und Turan (1889), p. 188-196; Weber, Berliner Sb., 1894, p. 782 f.

[Weber entitles the hymn "Betheuerung der Unschuld, Eidesleistung"; see his instructive note, Ind. Stud. xviii. 66, note 2. "Comes cursing" hardly takes account of the voice of caḥyamānam as used by Kāuṣ. 48. 7.]

1. The great superintendent of them sees, as it were, from close by; whoever thinks to be going on in secret, all this the gods know.

The verse is altogether wanting in Ppp. All the mss. read in a-b -tā ant- (p. -tā: ant-), with irregular absence of combination across the cesura; the case might be one of those contemplated by Prāt. iii. 34, although not quoted in the comment on that rule; SPP. reads with the mss., and our edition might perhaps better have done the same (it is emended to -tā 'nt-). But SPP. also reads in c yās tāyāt, instead of yā (i.e. yāh) *stāyāt, while nearly all his pada-mss. (with all of ours) require the latter; his wholly insufficient reason seems to be that the comm. adopts tāyat; the comm. also has, as part of the same version, carat, and views the two words as contrasted, "stable" (sāmtatyena vartamānam sthiraṅvastu) and "transient" (caranāçilāni naçvaram ca vastu), which is absurd: "he is great, because he knows (manyate=jānāti!) all varieties of being." The comm. understands eṣām as meaning "of our evil-minded enemies," and keeps up the implication throughout, showing no manner of comprehension of the meaning of the hymn. * [See Prāt. ii. 40, note, p. 426 near end.]

2. Whoso stands, goes about, and whoso goes crookedly (vañc), whoso goes about hiddenly, who defiantly (? pratāṅkam) — what two, sitting down together, talk, king Varuṇa, as third, knows that.

Ppp. reads in a manasā instead of carati, and in b pralāyam instead of pratāṅkam; and for c it has dvāu yad avadatas samniṣadya. The pada-mss. give in b niḷāyan, as if the assimilated final nasal before c were n instead of m; and SPP. unwisely leaves this uncorrected in his pada-text, although the comm. correctly understands -yam. The comm. regards a and b as specifying the “enemies” of vs. 1 a; vañcati he paraphrases by kāuṭilyena pratārayati, and pratāṅkam by prakarṣeṇa krcchra-jīvanam prāpya; *niḷāyam he derives either from nis+i or from ni+li. The true sense of pratāṅkam is very obscure; the translation seeks in it a contrast to niḷāyam; the translators mostly prefer a parallel “gliding, creeping,” or the like. The Anukr. apparently balances the redundant a with the deficient c. * [Note that W’s version connects it with nt-lina of vs. 3; cf. Gram. § 995 a, and my Reader, p. 394.]

3. Both this earth is king Varuṇa’s, and yonder great sky with distant margins (-anta); also the two oceans are Varuṇa’s paunches; also in this petty water is he hidden.

Ppp. has, for a, b, ute ’yam asya pṛthivī samitī dyāur bṛhatir antariṅsam; and, at end of d, udakena maktāḥ. The comm. declares that the epithets in b belong to “earth” as well as to “sky”; kukṣī he paraphrases by dakṣiṇottaraḥ pārcṣvabhedenā ’vasthite dve udare.

4. Also whoso should creep far off beyond the sky, he should not be released from king Varuṇa; from the sky his spies go forth hither; thousand-eyed, they look over the earth.

Only the second and third pādas are found in Ppp. (and, as noted above, not in company with the main part of the hymn), which gives iha for divas and ime ’sya for idam asya (both in c). The samhitā-mss., as usual, vary between divāḥ and divā before sp-. The comm. has purastāt in a.

5. All this king Varuṇa beholds (vi-cakṣ) — what is between the two firmaments (ródasi), what beyond; numbered of him are the winkings of people; as a gambler the dice, [so] does he fix (? ni-mi) these things.

Ppp. reads for d akṣān na svaghñī bhuvanā mamīte, which gives a rather more manageable sense; our text is probably corrupt (vī cinoti ?); the comm. explains ni minoti by ni kṣipati; and to the obscure tāni (not relating to anything specified in the verse) he supplies pāpinānī cīkṣākarmāni. He has again (as in 4 a) purastāt in b; and in c he understands samkhyātā (not -tāḥ), as “enumerator,” and nimiṣas as gen. with asya. He also reads in d svaghñī, and quotes and expands Yāska’s derivation of the word from sva + han. The verse is bhurij if we insist on reading iva instead of ’va in d. [Read ’va, or akṣān svaghñīva, or with Ppp. ?]

6. What fetters (pāṣa) of thine, O Varuṇa, seven by seven, stand triply relaxed (vi-si), shining — let them all bind him that speaks untruth; whoso is truth-speaking, let them let him go.

Our sināntu, at beginning of c, is our emendation, obviously necessary; a few mss. (including our Bp.E.H.) have cināntu, and the rest chin- (our P.M. dhin-, doubtless meant for chin-), which SPP. accordingly retains; the comm. has chinattu, explaining it as for chindantu. Ppp's version of the verse is found with that of the half of vs. 4; it reads chinadya; it also has saptasaptatīs in a, and ruṣatā ruṣantaḥ at end of b; and its d is yas sabhyavāg ati taṁ sṛjāmi. The comm. also reads in b ruṣantas, which is, as at iii. 28. 1, an acceptable substitute for the inept ruç-; in b he apparently has visitās, and takes it as tatra tatra baddhās, while the true sense obviously is "laid open ready for use"; the "triple" he regards as alluding to the three kinds of fetter specified in vii. 83. 3 a, b.

7. With a hundred fetters, O Varuṇa, do thou bridle (abhi-dhā) him; let not the speaker of untruth escape thee, O men-watcher; let the villain sit letting his belly fall [apart], like a hoopless vessel, being cut round about.

The two editions read in c ṣraṇṣayitvā, with the majority of the mss.; but nearly half (including our P.M.W.H.Op.) have ṣraṇsay-, and two of ours (K.Kp.) sraṇṣay-—all of them misreadings for sraṇsay-, which the comm. gives (= jalodararogena srastaṁ kṛtvā). [The disease called "water-belly," to which c and d refer, is dropsy, Varuṇa's punishment for sin.] In d, SPP. reads abandhās with the comm., but against all his mss. and the majority of ours (P.p.m.M.W.O.Op. have -dhas), which have -dhrās; bandhra (i.e. banddhra, from bandh + tra) is so regular a formation that we have no right to reject it, even if it does not occur elsewhere. Ppp. puts varuṇa in a before abhi, omitting enam, thus rectifying the meter (which might also be done by omitting the superfluous varuṇa); and it omits the ñ of -vāñ in b. There is not a jagatī pāda in the verse, and d becomes regularly trīṣṭubh by combining kōṣe 'vā-.

8. The Varuṇa that is lengthwise (samāmyā), that is crosswise (vy-āmyā); the Varuṇa that is of the same region (saridecya), that is of a different region (videcya); the Varuṇa that is of the gods, and that is of men —

If the word varuṇas, thrice repeated, were left out, there would remain a regular gāyatrī; and the meaning would be greatly improved also; if we retain it, we must either emend to varuṇa, vocative, or to vāruṇās 'of Vāruṇa,' i.e. 'his fetter,' or else we must understand varuṇas as here strangely used in the sense of vāruṇās: the comm. makes no difficulty of doing the last. [Ppp. reads in a, yas sāmānyo; in b, yaç cyam-deçyo (or cyam-); in c, yo dāivyo varuṇo yaç ca mānuṣassa; and adds tvāṁs tv etāni prati muñcāmy atra.] For the first two epithets compare xviii. 4. 70; the next two are variously understood by the translators; they are rendered here in accordance with the comm. Though so differently defined by the Anukr. [cf. ii. 3. 6 n.], the verse as it stands is the same with vs. 9, namely 11 × 3 = 33 syllables.

9. With all those fetters I fasten (abhi-sā) thee, O so-and-so, of such-and-such a family, son of such-and-such a mother; and all of them I successively appoint for thee.

If the verse is regarded as metrical, with three pādas (and it scans very fairly as such), we ought to accent āsānu [voc. of asāñ] at beginning of b. The comm. perhaps understands anu in c as independent, ānu (SPP. so holds). The last two verses are, as it were, the practical application of vss. 6 and 7, and probably added later. [As to the naming of the names, see Weber's note, p. 73.]

17. Against various evils: with a plant.

[Çukra. — caturviñçarçam trayam sūktānām. apāmārgavanaspātidēvatyam. ānuṣṭubham.]

Verses 1-6 are found as a hymn in Pāipp. v., and hymns 18 and 19 follow it there, with some mixture of the verses. Vs. 8 is found separately in ii. Hymns 17-19 are called by the comm. āvapañīya 'of strewing.' They are used together by Kāuç. (39.7), with ii. 11 and iv. 40 and others, in the preparation of consecrated water to counteract hostile sorcery; and vs. 17. 5 is reckoned by the schol. (46.9, note) to the duḥsvapna-nāçana gāna.

Translated: Zimmer, p. 66; Grill, 37, 130; Griffith, i. 155; Bloomfield, 69, 393; Weber, xviii. 73.

1. Thee, the mistress of remedies, O conquering one (ujjeṣā), we take hold of; I have made thee a thing of thousand-fold energy (-vīryā) for every one, O herb.

Ppp. reads for b nijeṣā "gr̥ṇīmahe. We should expect in c -vīryām, and three of SPP's mss. (none of ours) so read; but he has not ventured to admit it into his text; the comm. gives -yam, but explains as if -yām (aparimitasāmarthyayuktām). The comm. regards the plant sahadevī (name of various plants, including Sida cordifolia and rhombifolia, OB.) as addressed. He takes ujjeṣe in b as dative, = ujjetum.

2. The truly-conquering, the curse-repelling, the overcoming, the reverted one (punahsarā) — all the herbs have I called together, saying "may they (?) save us from this."

The last pāda is translated in accordance with the better reading of Ppp.: ato mā pārayān iti. In b, Ppp. gives punaçcarā; SPP. presents punaḥs-, in closer accordance with the mss. than our punass-. The comm. does not recognize the meaning 'reverted' (i.e. 'having reverted leaves or fruit') as belonging to punaḥsarā, but renders it as "repeatedly applied" (ābhikṣṇyena bahutaravyādhinivṛttaye sarati). He reads in a çapathayopanīm, and in c abhi (for ahvi): and one or two of SPP's mss. support him each time; our O.Op. give addhi, by a recent copyist's blunder; the comm. supplies gacchanti for his sam-abhi to belong to. The Anukr. takes no notice of the excess of two syllables in a.

3. She that hath cursed with cursing, that hath taken malignity as her root, that hath seized on [our] young to take [its] sap — let her eat [her own] offspring.

The verse is a repetition of i. 28. 3, and the comm. again, as there, reads ādāde at end of b. He notes that a full explanation has been already given, but yet allows himself to repeat it in brief; this time he gives only mūrçhāpradam as the sense of mūram. Ppp. (which has no version of i. 28) gives here, for c, d, yā vā rathasya prāsāre hy ato gham u tvasaḥ. As i. 28. 3, the verse was properly called virātpathyābrhatī. [Correct the verse-number from 6 to 3 in the edition.]

4. What [witchcraft] they have made for thee in the raw vessel (pātra), what they have made in the blue-red one, in raw flesh what witchcraft they have made — with that do thou smite the witchcraft-makers.

The verse is nearly accordant with v. 31. 1 below. Ppp. reads in b yā sūtre nīl-. A raw vessel is one of unburnt clay (apakve mṛtphātre, comm.). The comm. defines "the blue-red one" as fire, blue with smoke, red with flame*; and the "raw flesh" as that of a cock or other animal used for the purposes of the charm. The krtyā appears to be a concrete object into which an evil influence is conveyed by sorcery, and which then, by depositing or burying, becomes a source of harm to those against whom the sorcery is directed (mantrāṣadhādibhiḥ śatroḥ piḍākarīm, comm. to iv. 18. 2). The comm. reads tvayā in d, and first pronounces it used by substitution for tvam, then retains it in its proper sense and makes jahi mean hantavyās: both are examples of his ordinary grammatical principles. The Anukr. ignores the metrical irregularity of c [reject yām ?]. * [Bloomfield, on the basis of Kāuç., interprets it as a thread of blue and red; and this is confirmed by the Ppp. sūtre.]

5. Evil-dreaming, evil-living, demon, monster (abhvā), hags, all the ill-named (f.), ill-voiced — them we make disappear from us.

Ppp. has in a dusśvapnam durjvatam, and, for c, d, duśśvacas sarvaṃ durbhūtam tam ito nāç-. A couple of our mss. (I.H.p.m.) read abhūm in b. The comm. gives jīvatyam in a (with two of SPP's mss.), and (with our P.M.W.E.) asmīn instead of asmān in d. He first defines abhvam simply as "great," and then as a special kind of demon or demoniac (quoting RV. i. 185. 2); and the durñamnīs as piçāçīs having various bad appellations, such as chedikā and bhedikā. The verse is repeated as vii. 23. 1.

6. Death by hunger, death by thirst, kinelessness, childlessness — through thee, O off-wiper (apāmārgā), we wipe off all that.

The translation implies the obvious emendation of anapadyātām (p. anapadyātām) in b to -apatyā-, which is read by the comm. and by three of SPP's mss. which follow him; SPP. very properly admits -apatyā- into his text (but forgets to emend his padā-text thoroughly, and leaves in it the absurd division anapaotyātām.) [Weber, however, discussing avadya, Berliner Sb., 1896, p. 272, defends the reading apadya.] The comm. says nothing of the sudden change here from sahadevī to apāmārga, which ought to be another plant (Achyranthes aspera: a weed found all over India, having very long spikes of retroflected flowers), but may possibly be used here as a synonym or appellation of the other. In his introduction, he speaks of darbha, apāmārga, and sahadevī as infused in the consecrated water.

7. Death by thirst, death by hunger, likewise defeat at dice — through thee, O off-wiper, we wipe off all that.

Ppp. omits this variation on vs. 6.

8. The off-wiper is indeed of all herbs the sole controller (vaçīn); with it we wipe [off] what has befallen (āsthita) thee; then do thou go about free from disease.

Ppp. (in book ii.) has for b viçvāsām eka it patih, combines in c mṛjmā "sthitam", and reads at the end carah. Āsthitam (also vi. 14. 1 and VS. vi. 15) has perhaps a more special sense than we are able to assign to it; the comm. paraphrases by krtyādibhir āpatitam rogūdikam.

18. Against witchcraft: with a plant.

[Çukra. — (etc. : see under hymn 17). 6. brhatigarbhā.]

Found in Pāipp. v. (vs. 6 before 5). Used by Kāuç. only in company with h. 17, as there explained.

Translated: Grill, 25, 131; Griffith, i. 156; Bloomfield, 70, 396; Weber, xviii. 77.

1. The same light with the sun — night possesses the same with the day; I make what is effective (satyá) for aid; sapless be the makers (f.) [of witchcraft].

Kṛtvārī at the end borrows a special sense from its relationship with kṛtyā [a case of "reflected meaning" — see note to iii. 11. 8]. The construction in the first half-verse (if here rightly understood) is peculiarly intricate: samām jyōtis is, as it were, coördinate with the samā of samāvātī, as if it were samajyotiṣmatī: i.e. "night has its light as good as the sun's or the day's." Or else jyōtis (R.) is to be taken outright as "moon-light" (= later jyotsnā). Ppp. begins with samā bhūmīs sū-, and has in c sabhya for satyam. One of our paḍā-mss. (Op.), like one of SPP's, divides in b samāvātī; the comm. defines the word by "of equal length" (samānāyāmā); and kṛtvārī by kartana-çilās (taking it from kṛt 'cut'). In our text, the r-sign has dropped out from under the k-sign in this word.

2. Whoso, O gods, having made witchcraft, shall take it to the house of one unknowing — let it, like a sucking (dhārū) calf to its mother, go back unto him.

The comm., with one or two of SPP's mss., reads drāt instead of hārāt in b; dhārūs he defines by stanapānam kurvan. There is a redundant syllable in c unless we abbreviate iva to 'va.

3. Whoso, having made evil at home, desires to slay another with it — numerous stones make a loud crash when it (f.) is burned.

Ppp. is partly defaced in this verse; and it gives us no aid in solving the difficulties of the second half. The discordance between the masculines yās and pāpmanam in a, b and the feminine tasyām is perhaps best removed by supposing kṛtyā to have been mentally substituted for pāpman (the comm. supplies kṛtyāyām to tasyām); Grill violently emends amā in a to amāyām (sc. *pātryām), and thinks that this raw vessel bursts noisily in pieces when burnt; R. conjectures that thick stones crack when the kṛtyā is burnt, perhaps so as to wake the intended victim. The comm. paraphrases amā by anukūla iva saha sīhitā, i.e. an assistant or confederate, and reads in c dugdhāyām "drained" or made ineffective; the stones are produced by the counter-magic, and are called on to do (karikrati = punaḥ-punaḥ kurvantu: a convenient substitution of the imperative!) damage (phaṭ = hiṁsanam) to the kṛtyā-kṛt. The translation given above implies a threat of the destruction of the kṛtyā by burning and by stones tumbling crash! (phaṭ for phaṣ?) upon it. The harsh resolution kṛtu-ā makes the verse a full anuṣṭubh. [Bp. also has dugdhāyām.] * [Oxytone, not perispome.]

4. O thou of a thousand abodes (?-dhāman), do thou make them lie (?) crestless, neckless; take back the witchcraft to him that made it, like a sweet-heart (priyā) to a lover (priyāvant).

For vṛçikhān in a, Ppp. reads viṣākhām (our P.M.W.E. have vṛçīṣān, our Bp.I.H. vīcīṣān). In b, SPP. reports all his authorities as reading ṣāyayā (p. -ya); no such form has been noted among our mss. [but Ppp. has ṣāyā tvam; Benares ms. R., chāyayā; and T., chayayā]; in most mss. y and p are but imperfectly distinguished, and, as some of SPP's authorities are oral, he is to be presumed right; and the translation implies ṣāyaya [for the saṁdhi, Prāt. ii. 17]. The comm. reads instead kṣāyaya, from kṣi (= kṣayam prāpaya). He rehearses the series of diverse senses given by Yāska to dhāman, and declares them all intended by the word in a. The verse he regards as addressed to the sahadevī.

5. I, with this herb, have spoiled all witchcrafts — what one they have made in the field, what in the kine, or what in thy men (pūruṣa).

Ppp. reads in c and d the datives gobhyas and purusebhyas; the comm. explains puruseṣu as “in a place frequented by them”; for vā te he reads vāte ‘in the wind.’ A few of our mss. (P.M.W.) have adūduṣan in b. The Anukr. takes no notice of the deficiency of a syllable in d.

6. He who hath made hath not been able to make; he hath crushed (ṣr) a foot, a finger; he hath made what is excellent for us, but for himself a burning (tāpana).

The verse is repeated below as v. 31. 11, but with a different last pāda, which reads: abhagó bhāgavadbhyaḥ. Ppp's version of a-b is yām cakāra na ṣaṣāḥka ṣaṣire pādān aṅgulim (omitting kartum); yām [sc. kṛtyām ?] is a preferable reading. The comm. also has aṅgulim; our -rim is authenticated by the comment to Prāt. i. 66. Ppp's d reads as does our v. 31. 11 d, but with abhagā for -gó. The verse is metrically defined in the same way as here at v. 31. 11 [the Anukr. seems to scan it as 8+9: 8+8 (cf., for example, iii. 8. 4)]; but kārtum is evidently [as the accent of ṣaṣrē shows] to be reckoned to a, and the pada-mss. so divide. [The suspicion is natural that a sá has been lost between ná and ṣaṣāka. So ca has been lost at iv. 5. 5 a (cf. RV. vii. 55. 6 a). If we are right in restoring sá, and if we pronounce ṣaṣr-é (as the Ppp. reading suggests), we should then scan 11+8: 8+8.—The accent of ṣaṣāka can hardly be more than a blunder.—The comment to this verse seems to have failed of thorough revision at W's hands.]

7. Let the off-wiper wipe off the kṣetriyá and whatever curse [there is]; [wipe] off, forsooth, the sorceresses, off all the hags.

Ppp. reads in c -dhānyas, rectifying the meter. The comm. here defines kṣetriya as hereditary disease (kṣetram mātāpitr̥carīram tatsakūṣāt).

8. Having wiped off the sorcerers, off all the hags, O off-wiper, with thee do we wipe off all that.

Ppp. is defaced in this verse. The comm. first explains apam̐jya in a into an imperative, apam̐ddhi; but then, as an alternative, he allows it its own proper sense.

19. Against enemies: with a plant.

[Ṣukra. — (etc. : see hymn 17). 2. pathyāpāñkti.]

Found also, in connection with the two next preceding hymns, in Pāipp. v. Used by Kāuṣ. only in company with hymns 17 and 18, as described under h. 17. [But vs. 2 is reckoned to the abhaya gaṇa, employed as battle-charms; see Kāuṣ. 16. 8, note.]

Translated: Grill, 34, 132; Griffith, i. 157; Bloomfield, 71, 397; Weber, xviii. 81.

1. Both art thou not relative-making, and now art thou kin-making; also do thou cut off (? ā-chid) the progeny of the witchcraft-maker, like a reed of the rainy season (vārṣika).

Or, perhaps, 'a last year's reed' (but comm., varṣāsu bhavam). The first half-verse is very obscure, and the translation follows the text as closely as possible (Ppp. differs only by beginning ute 'vā 'sy), understanding a-bandhukṛt, and not abandhukṛt (which would be accented on -kṛt); possibly the sense is "thou makest common cause with some and not with others." The comm. takes -kṛt both times from kṛt 'cut' (which is not impossible) := kartaka or chedaka; and he cites RV. iv. 4. 5 "slaughter thou our foes, the related and the unrelated." Naḍam he explains as etatsamjñam suçchedam tṛṇaviṣam. The Anukr. seems to sanction abbreviation to 'va in ḍ.

2. Thou art bespoken (?) by a Brāhman, by Kaṇva son of Nṛṣhad; thou goest like a brilliant army (?); there is no fear (bhayā) there where thou arrivest (pra-āp), O herb.

Ppp. has in a pariyukto 'si, and this is very probably the true form of the word here used; the difficulty is that neither yuj nor vac is anywhere else found used with pari; prayukta ['employed'] is what we should expect. We have "Kaṇva's plant" mentioned at vi. 52. 3. The imperfect meter of b (which the Anukr. fails to notice, as it does also the like deficiency in ḍ) gives a degree of plausibility to Grill's suggestion that the pāda is intruded on an original anuṣṭubh. The pāda-mss. waver between nārsadēna and nārṣ- (our Bp. emends ṣ to s; Op. is altered obscurely; D.K. have s), but s is certainly the true reading, as required by Prāt. iv. 83; SPP. has wrongly chosen ṣ for his pāda-text. The comm., with a couple of SPP's authorities that follow him, reads tvṣimate in c (our P.M.W.E. have tvṣimati.) The mss., without any statable reason, accent āsti in ḍ, and our edition follows them; SPP. strangely gives āsti in samhitā, but asti in pāda-text. [Are not pāryuktā and pariyuktā alike awkward phonetic renderings of prā-yuktā? Cf. Ppp. çaçire (= çaçr-ē), iv. 18. 6; and dadhire (= dadhre, Roth, ZDMG. xlvi. 116).]

3. Thou goest to the head (āgra) of the herbs, causing to shine (dīp) upon [us] as it were with light; also rescuer art thou of the simple (pāka), likewise slayer art thou of the demoniac.

Ppp. puts pākasya before trātā in c; the comm. paraphrases it with paktavya-prajñasya ['one whose wisdom (prajñā) is yet to be matured'] ḍurbalasya.

4. When yonder, in the beginning, the gods by thee removed (nis-kṛ) the Asuras, from thence, O herb, wast thou born, an off-wiper.

Ppp. has in b the older form akṛṇvata, and for c reads tasmād dhi tvam oṣadhe ap-. The comm. takes adhi in c as meaning upari vartamānaḥ or çreṣṭhaḥ san.

5. Splitting apart (vi-bhid), hundred-branched — "splitting apart" by name is thy father; in return (pratyāk), do thou split apart him who assails us.

Ppp. has sundry corruptions: vivindati in a, vibinda in b, taṁ tvā at end of c. The comm. omits vi in c. Pāda c needs some such emendation as to tāṁ tu-ām.

6. The non-existent came into being (sam-bhū) from the earth; that goes to the sky, the great expanse (vyācas); let that, verily, fuming abroad, come back thence on the maker.

The translation implies the obvious emendation, made in our text, of tād dyām for tād yām, which is read by all the mss. and by the comm., and retained in SPP's text, though in a note he approves our alteration; it is only another example of mistaking an abbreviated for a full reading (dy for its grammatical equivalent dīy: compare [i. 22. 1, and Roth, ZDMG. xlvi. 104]). Ppp. reads in b brhat vacas; and it has for c ud it vaco vyadhūmayat. The comm. gives bhūmyām for yās in a, and tvat for tat at beginning of b. He renders asat by asatkalpam kṛtyārūpam, or, alternatively, by aṣṭhanam kṛtyārūpam. The accent -dhūpāyat is contrary to all rule, and doubtless false; MS. (i. 10. 20; p. 160. 1) has -pāyāt, which is correct. The general sense of the verse is obscure; but it appears to parallel the return of the charm upon its producer with the action of water in exhaling from the earth and coming back as rain.

7. Since thou hast come into being reverted (pratyāñc), having reverted fruit, do thou repel (yu) from me all curses, [repel] very far the deadly weapon.

The verse is nearly repeated as vii. 65. 1. Ppp. has for c, d pratiṣkṛtyā amuṁ kṛtyā-kṛtaṁ jahi. The comm. reads in b -phala, vocative; regarding, of course, the apāmārga plant as addressed.

8. Protect me around with a hundred; defend me with a thousand; may the forceful (ugrā) Indra, O lord of the plants, assign force (ojmān) unto thee.

Ppp. has for d bhadro 'jmānam ā dadhuḥ. It can hardly be that the writer does not use here ugrā and ojmān as words felt to be related; but the comm. gives for the former his standing and always repeated udgūrṇabala, and paraphrases the other with ojasvitva.

20. To discover sorcerers: with an herb.

[Mātrnāman. — navarcam. mātrnāmadāivatam. ānuṣṭubham: 1. svarāj; 9. bhurij.]

Found in Pāipp. viii. (in the verse-order 1-4, 7, 6, 8, 9, 5). Reckoned by Kāuṣ. (8. 25) to the cātanāni; and by the schol. (8. 24, note) added to the mātrnāmāni: with good reason, if we may trust the Anukr. (which adds to what is given above: anena mātrnāmān 'śadhīm evā 'sīñut); but the comm. says nothing about it. The hymn is used by itself (28. 7) to accompany the binding on of an amulet of sadampuṣpā 'ever-flowering' (or, as the comm. and schol. say, trīsandhyā) in a healing ceremony (the comm. says, against brahmagraha and the like).

Translated: Ludwig, p. 525; Grill, 2, 133; Griffith, i. 159; Bloomfield, 68, 398; Weber, xviii. 84.—See also Hillebrandt, Veda-chrestomathie, p. 48.

1. He (?) looks on, he looks toward, he looks away, he looks: the sky, the atmosphere, then the earth — all that, O divine one (f.), he looks at.

Ppp. has the 2d sing. paçyasi all the five times, and it is an easier reading (adopted by Grill in his translation), especially in d, unless we may emend devi to devī; according to the comm., the subject throughout is the wearer of the amulet, and the divine one, as is also indicated by Kāuṣ., is the sadampuṣpā plant, a plant evidently having something about it that resembles or suggests eyes. Ppp. reads ā for āt in c. [Read prā for prāti in a? Pronounce divāntar- in c.]

2. Three skies, three earths, and these six directions severally — by thee let me see all beings, O divine herb.

Ppp. has mahi (for -ih) instead of prthak in b, and in the second half-verse, tathā 'ham sarvā yātīṇa paçyāmi. Some of our mss. (P.M.) give pāsyāṇi in d. Pāda a is redundant by a syllable, unless we pronounce prthoṣ. [For the triplicity, comm. cites R.V. ii. 27. 8 and AB. ii. 17 end.]

3. Of that heavenly eagle art thou the eye-pupil; thou here hast ascended the earth as a wearied bride (vadhū) a litter.

Ppp. puts dīvyasya after suparnasya. The ground of the comparisons made in the verse is altogether obscure, and the comm. casts no light upon them. [Bloomfield discusses this vs., AJP. xvii. 402.]

4. May the thousand-eyed god set it in my right hand; with it do I see every one, both who is Çūdra and [who] Āryan.

Ppp. has hast' ādadat at end of b, and, for second half-verse, tato 'ham sarvaṃ paçyāmi adbhūtaṃ (sic) yac ca bhavyam. Paçyāni would be an acceptable emendation in c. The comm. (with one of SPP's mss.) reads tvayā in c; he regards the "god" in a as Indra.

5. Make manifest [thy] forms; do not hide thyself away; then mayest thou, O thousand-eyed one, look upon the kimīdins.

Literally (in d) 'meet with thy look.' Ppp. begins c with evā instead of atho, and ends d with paçyāmy āyata. The abbreviation in c of the stem -cakṣus to -cakṣu is one of those noted in the Prāt. rules ii. 59 and iv. 100.

6. Show me the sorcerers; show the sorceresses; show all the piçācds: with this intent I take hold of (ā-rabh) thee, O herb.

For second half-verse, Ppp. has āpasprg eva tiṣṭhantaṃ darçaya māṃ kimīdinam.

7. The eye of Kaçyapa art thou, and of the four-eyed bitch; conceal thou not the piçācā, like the sun gliding (sṛp) in the clear sky (vīdhra).

That is, allow him to be no more concealed than the sun etc. Both editions read -akṣyās at end of b, but it is against the authority of the mss., all of which (save two of SPP's which follow the comm. in giving the true reading) omit, as in numerous other cases, the y after the sibilant. The comm. regards Saramā as referred to; and, in futile attempt at explaining her possession of four eyes, says etenā 'pradhṛṣyatvam uktam. [Cf. Weber, Berl. Sb., 1895, p. 849, n. 3.] He explains the reference to eyes by the resemblance of the flowers of the plant in question; but this looks rather like a plausible guess than like a statement on any authority. Ppp. has for first half-verse kaçyapasya caturakṣas syaṅtyāç caturakṣā. The comm. derives vīdhra from vi-idh, and glosses it with antarikṣa. The Anukr. appears to approve the abbreviation to sūryam 'va in c. [Bloomfield thinks that kaçyapa punningly suggests paçyaka 'seer,' and cites TA. i. 8. 8, kaçyapaḥ paçyako bhavati yat sarvaṃ paripaçyati.]

8. I have seized (ud-grabh) out of his shelter (paripāna) the sorcerer, the kimīdin; with it do I see every one, both Çūdra and Āryan.

Ppp. has in a, b -pānaṃ yātudhānāt kimīdinah. The comm. makes tena refer here to yātudhānam, and supplies graham to sarvam — evidently without reason.

9. Whichever flies through the atmosphere, and whichever creeps across the sky; whichever thinks the earth a refuge (nāthā) — that piçācā do thou show forth.

Ppp. has for b bhomīç co 'pasarpati, and in c divam for bhūmim; and its d is tvam piçācam dṛçe kuru. The comm. (with a couple of SPP's mss.) has adhi- instead of ati- in b; he glosses nātham with svāminam. The verse is not bhurij if we combine yò 'nātr- in a. [Correct the misprinted verse-number.]

Here, at the end of the fourth anuvāka, with 5 hymns and 42 verses, the old Anukr. says atha kuryād dvādaça.

Here ends also the seventh prapāthaka.

21. Praise of the kine.

[Brahman. — gavyam. trāiṣṭubham. 2-4. jagatī.]

This hymn is not found in Pāipp., but it occurs in the Rig-Veda (vi. 28. 1-7; vs. 8, in a different meter, is perhaps a later addition), and also in TB. (ii. 8. 8¹⁻¹²). It is used by Kāuç. (19. 1), with i. 4-6 and others in a rite for ailing kine, and also (21. 8 ff.) in one for the prosperity of kine, vs. 7 being specifically mentioned as repeated when they go forth to pasture; vs. 7 appears further to be quoted at 19. 14, in a rite for the cow-stall; but the comm. declares two verses to be intended, and, if so, they must be vii. 75. 1, 2, since there is here no following verse. In Vāit. (21. 24), in the agniṣṭoma, the cows intended as sacrificial gifts are greeted with this hymn. The schol. (Kāuç. 16. 8) reckons vs. 4 to the abhaya gava. The comm. [and Keçava's scholion to Kāuç. 27. 34.] declare hymns 21-30 to be mṛgāra-hymns (Kāuç. 27. 34; 9. 1), but the name would seem properly to belong only to hymns 23-29, which form a related group, and are by the Anukr. ascribed to Mṛgāra as author.

Translated: by RV. translators; and Griffith, i. 161; Weber, xviii. 87.

1. The kine have come, and have done what is excellent; let them stay (sad) in the stall (goṣṭhā); let them take pleasure with us; may they be rich in progeny here, many-formed, milking for Indra many dawns.

The other texts have no variants for this verse. The comm., after his wont, turns the two aorists in a into imperatives; he renders rapayantu alternatively by ramayantu and ramantām; and he takes "dawns" as equivalent to "days" (divasān). [‘Full many a morning yielding milk for Indra.’]

2. To the sacrificer and singer, to the helpful one (?), Indra verily gives further, steals not what is his; increasing more and more the wealth of him, he sets the godly man (devayū) in an undivided domain (? khilyā).

The other texts have in a the decidedly better reading pryaté ca çikṣati of which ours is simply a corruption; the comm., heedless of the accent, takes our çikṣate as a verb (= gāh prayacchati). In d they have the better accent ābhinne; and TB. reads khillé; most of our mss. could be better understood as khilpé than as khilyé; the comm. defines khila as aprahatam sthānam, and khilya as tatrabhava; R. conjectures "stone-wall" for khilya. All our mss., and part of SPP's, read mukhāyati in b.

3. They shall not be lost; no thief shall harm [them]; no hostile

[person] shall dare attack their track (?); with whom he both sacrifices to the gods and gives, long verily with them does the kine-lord go in company.

Both the other texts* accent vyáthis in b, as does one of our mss. (O.), and one of SPP's. Before this word TB. has nāt 'nā amitró. The comm. explains vyathis as vyathājanakam āyudham. The pāda is very obscure as it stands. [An earlier draft of the translator's ms. reads: "Naçanti, by its association, and its difference from naçyanti, must be meant as subjunctive (aor.), notwithstanding its ending." I am tempted to suggest nā tã naçan; tã (acc. pl. fem.) nā dabhāti tãskaras. — BR., vi. 1438, take vyáthis as 'unbemerkt von,' with genitive, āsām. But see Geldner's discussion of the combinations of vyáthis with ā-dhr̥s, Ved. Stud. ii. 29. — Note that TB's āmitró (both ed's read so in the text and both have ā- in the comm.) is neither amltro nor āmitró.] * [In TB., the pratikas of vss. 3 and 4 stand in RV. order at ii. 8. 8¹¹; but the vss. are given in full at ii. 4. 69.]

4. No dust-raising horseman (?árvan) reaches them; not unto the slaughter-house (?) do they go; those kine of that sacrificing mortal roam over wide-going fearlessness.

RV. differs only by retaining the a of açnute in a, as do one or two of our mss. (O.K.) and half of SPP's; and its pada-text divides saṁskṛtaotra in b, while the AV. pada-mss. (except our Op.) leave the word undivided (by an oversight, the AV. Index Verborum gives the RV. form). The comm. explains arvā by hīnsako vyāghrādih, and -kakāṭa by udbhedaka; also saṁskṛtatra by māṁsapūcaka (because viçasitaṁ trāyate pālayati), quoting from an unknown source the line saṁskṛtaḥ syād viçasitaḥ saṁskṛtatraç ca pūcakaḥ. The comment to Prāt. [iv. 58] makes the word come from the root kr̥. TB. [also retains the a of açnute and it] has in ḍ mārtyasya. In our printed text, the upper accent-mark in reṇúkakāṭo is over the wrong k.

5. The kine [are] Bhaga; Indra has seemed to me the kine; the kine [are] the draught of first soma; these kine — that, O people, [is] Indra; with whatever heart [and] mind I seek Indra.

The translation implies in a the RV. reading achān, of which our ichāt seems merely an unintelligent and unintelligible corruption; TB. has instead acchāt, and our O.K. give the same. Both the other texts add tã after ichāmi in ḍ. The comm. translates in a "may Indra desire that there be kine for me." [The latter part of c is of course the well-known refrain of RV. ii. 12.]

6. Ye, O kine, fatten whoever is lean; the unlovely (açrīrā) one ye make of good aspect; ye make the house excellent, O ye of excellent voice; great is your vigor (váyas) called in the assemblies (sabhā).

The RV. version agrees at all points with ours; TB. accents kṛçam in a and has açlīlām in b (its kr̥nuthāt is a misprint, as its commentary shows). The comm. reads kr̥nuta in c; sabhāsu in ḍ he paraphrases with janasamūhesu.

7. Rich in progeny, shining in good pasture, drinking clear waters at a good watering-place — let not the thief master you, nor the evil-plotter; let Rudra's weapon avoid you.

The translation of a follows our text, though the false accent ruçántis (TB. has the same reading) shows that the word is only a corruption of the RV. reading riçántis 'cropping, grazing.' The comm., though reading ruçántis, renders it tryam bhakṣayantīs. [The TB. comm. in both ed's reads riçántis.] Both the other texts have in a sūyāvasam, and at the end hetī rudrásya vṛjyāh (TB. vṛjyāt). With our c, d compare also TS. i. 1. 1 (differing only in the order of words in d [rudrásya hetī pári vo vṛnaktu, which is metrically much better than our AV. order, albeit the RV. order is as good as that of TS. if we pronounce rudr-ásya]). The comm. supplies to aghaçansas in c vyāghradir duṣṭamṛgaḥ. [For īçata, see Skt. Gram. § 615.]

22. For the success and prosperity of a king.

[Vasiṣṭha (? Atharvan ?).—āindram. trāiṣṭubham.]

Found in Pāipya. iii. (with vs. 3 before vs. 2), and most of it also in TB. (ii. 4. 77-8). Used by Kāuṣ. (14. 24) in a rite for victory in battle (the editor of Kāuṣ. regards the next hymn also as included, but evidently by an error), and also in the ceremony of consecration of a king (17. 28) [Weber, Rājasūya, p. 142]; and the comm. mistakenly regards it as quoted at 72. 7, giving the pratīka as imam indra, instead of imam indram, as Kāuṣ. really reads (xii. 2. 47, evidently the verse intended). The Anukr. spreads itself at very unusual length over the character of the hymn: imam indra vardhaye 'ti vasiṣṭha āindram trāiṣṭubham so 'tharvā kṣatriyāya rājñe candramase prāikamābhīh pañcabhir niramitrikaraṇamukhyene 'ndram aprārthayad grāmagavāçvādi sarvañ rājyopakarāṇaṃ ca tataḥ parābhyām antyābhyām indrarūpeṇa svayam eva kṣatriyañ rājānañ candramasam āçiṣā prāṇudat iti. Probably Vasiṣṭha is the intended ṛṣi-name, and so 'tharvā (one ms. sāuth-) a misreading for something else.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 457; Zimmer, 165; Grill, 67, 135; Griffith, i. 162; Bloomfield, 115, 404; Weber, xviii. 91.— Cf. Hillebrandt, Veda-chrestomathie, p. 43.

1. Increase, O Indra, this Kshatriya for me; make thou this man sole chief of the clans (viç); unman (nīs-akṣ) all his enemies; make them subject to him in the contests for preëminence.

The comm. (with one of SPP's mss.) has in b the strange reading vṛṣām for viçām; and it treats aham and uttareṣu in d as two separate words. He takes akṣṇuḥi as from akṣ 'attain' (akṣū vyāptāu), and so explains it (nirgataavyāptikān kuru). [See Delbrück's discussion, Gurupūjākhānumudī, p. 48-9.] TB. combines a of this verse (reading kṣatryānām for -yam me) with b, c, d of our vs. 3. In our edition, an anusvāra is substituted for an accent-mark over the syllable -nra- in d.

2. Portion thou this man in village, in horses, in kine; unportion that man who is his enemy; let this king be the summit of authorities (kṣatṛī); O Indra, make every foe subject to him.

Ppp. elides the a of amitras in b, and in c has the better reading varṣman 'at the summit,' which is also offered by the comm., and by three of SPP's mss. TB. has vārṣman, but as first word of a very different half-verse, our iii. 4. 2 c, d, which it adds to our first half-verse here to make a complete verse; in a it has imām ā instead of ē 'ndm, and in b nīr amīm instead of nīṣ tām, thus rectifying the meter (the Anukr. takes no notice of the metrical irregularity of our b); and it leaves asya without accent at the end. Nearly half the mss. (including our P.M.W.I.K.) have in d çatṛūñ, and the comm. seems to understand çatṛūñ. [TB. combines yō 'mitro, against the meter.]

3. Let this man be riches-lord of riches ; let this king be people-lord of people ; in him, O Indra, put great splendors ; destitute of splendor make thou his foe.

As noted above, TB. combines the last three pādas of this verse with our i a ; it reads asmāt instead of asmīn at beginning of c. The comm. foolishly gives himself much vain trouble to prove that the epithets in a and b are not repetitious.

4. For him, O heaven-and-earth, milk ye much that is pleasant (vāmā), like two milch kine that yield the hot-draught (gharmā) ; may this king be dear to Indra, dear to kine, herbs, cattle.

Ppp. combines dughe 'va in b, and has bhūyās in c ; and at the end it agrees with TB. in reading utā 'pām for paçunām. TB. further has asmé in a, and -dūghe 'va dhenūh in b [but see Prāt. i. 82 n.] ; and it prefixes sām to duhāthām. Probably it is the loss of that prefix or of some other that causes duhāthām to stand in all the mss. without accent at the beginning of the pāda : an inadmissible anomaly, though read in both texts ; we ought to have emended to duhāthām. The comm. explains that gharma- in b signifies the pravargya. [The meter requires the prefix.]

5. I join to thee Indra who gives superiority (? uttarāvanta), by whom men conquer, are not conquered ; who shall make thee sole chief of people (jāna), also uppermost of kings descended from Manu.

Ppp. reads in a tam uttarāvantaṃ indra. TB. has in b jāyāsi and parājāyāsāi, and in the second half-verse sā tvā 'kar ekavṛṣabhām svānām ātho rājann utt. The comm. explains uttarāvantaṃ by atiçayitokarçavantaṃ.

6. Superior [art] thou, inferior thy rivals, whosoever, O king, are thine opposing foes ; sole chief, having Indra as companion, having conquered, bring thou in the enjoyments (bhōjana) of them that play the foe.

Ppp. has in a adhare santv anye. TB. puts together a and c as first half of a verse to the other half of which our text has nothing corresponding ; and it reads ekavṛṣā for ekavṛṣās. The comm. takes prati and çatravas in b as two independent words ; he paraphrases bhōjanāni by bhogasādhanāni dhanāni.

7. Of lion-aspect, do thou devour (ad) all the clans (vīç) ; of tiger-aspect, do thou beat down the foes ; sole chief, having Indra as companion, having conquered, seize thou on (ā-khid) the enjoyments of them that play the foe.

Ppp. has only the second half-verse, and reads for d çatrūyatām abhi tiṣṭhū mahānsi (our vii. 73. 10 etc. : see under that verse). The whole verse is wanting in TB. The comm., with one of SPP's mss., reads āpa for deva in b. He paraphrases addhi (which is a frequent expression for the action of a ruler upon his subjects) very properly by bhūñkṣva ; and ā khida, less acceptably, by ācchindhi.

23. Praise and prayer to Agni.

[Mrgāra.—sapta mrgārasamjñakāni sūktāni nānādevatyāni. trāiṣṭubhāni:
3. purastājyotiṣmatī; 4. anuṣṭubh; 6. prastārapāṅkti.]

Found,* with the six hymns that follow, all together (but in the order 23, 25, 27, 26, 28, 29, 24), in Pāipp. iv. The seven are known by Kāuṣ. (9. 1) as the mrgāra hymns (also by the schol., as by the Anukr.; that the comm. to h. 21 gives the name to 21–30 was there remarked; here he speaks of “a heptad of hymns” as intended in 9. 1); they are reckoned (9. 1) to the brhachāntigaṇa, and also (32. 27, note) to the anholiṅga gaṇa; and they are employed in a healing rite (27. 34). In Vāit. the hymn accompanies the kindling of the fire in the parvan sacrifices (2. 11), and vs. 4 is similarly used (5. 15) in the agnyādheya. It was noted under the preceding hymn that the editor of Kāuṣ. mistakenly regards this one as included in Kāuṣ. 14. 24. The first and last verses [of each] of the mrgāra hymns are given also by TS. (iv. 7. 15), MS. (iii. 16. 5), and K. (xxii. 15); only the hymn to Bhava and Ṣarva (our 28) is omitted, and, on the other hand, those texts have similar invocations to the Aṣvins and to all the gods. And the comm. to our h. 24 quotes also TS. vii. 5. 22, where a mrgāresṣī with ten oblations, to the divinities worshiped with the verses in question, is prescribed. [See further, as to this litany, Weber’s note, p. 95 f.—The mrgāra-verses occur in TS. and MS. at the very end of the kāṇḍas (iv. and iii.) concerned.] * [In the verse-order 1, 4, 2, 3, 5, 6, 7.]

Translated: Griffith, i. 163; Weber, xviii. 94.

1. I reverence (man-u) first the forethoughtful (prācetas) Agni, him of the five peoples, whom men kindle in many places; we pray to him who hath entered (pra-viṣ) into clans after clans (viṣ): let him free us from distress.

Ppp. has in b pañcaj-; the comm., pañcayajñasya, for which he gives three different interpretations, the last one making -yajñasya equivalent to -janasya. Manve he paraphrases by jānāmi. In a, MS. has amṛtānām for prācetasas; for b, TS. MS. give yām pañcajanyaṃ bahāvah samindhāte; and, for c, viṣvasyām viṣṭ praviviṣivāṅsan imahē. [The “absence of reduplication” (Skt. Gram. § 803 a) is doubtless due to the oft-repeated syllable vi or viṣ. The pratika is cited, MGS. i. 5. 5 — cf. p. 145.] The Anukr., at the end of the descriptions of the seven hymns, says that all the verses contain—i.e. end with—an anuṣṭubh pāda. Its definitions of the meters in detail are too inaccurate to be worthy of attention throughout.

2. As thou carriest the oblation, O Jātavedas; as, foreknowing, thou adaptest the sacrifice—so do thou convey to us favor from the gods: let him free us from distress.

Ppp. offers no variants in vss. 2–4, but puts 4 next after 1. The comm. takes devēbhyaḥ in c first as dative and then as ablative.

3. Put to service at every course (yāman), best carrier, sharer (ābhaga) at every rite, Agni I praise, demon-slayer, sacrifice-increaser, offered to with ghee: let him free us from distress.

All the mss. (and SPP. with them) make the division of the verse, with obvious impropriety, before instead of after agnīm īde, being apparently led into the blunder by remembering the two words as beginning the Rig-Veda. The comm. gives the right division, as does also our edition by emendation. Nearly all the mss. (not our I.K.) read báhiṣṭham at end of a; both editions give váh-, with the comm. The comm. paraphrases ābhagam by ābhaktavyam āsevyam evaṁguṇaviṣṭam. [The vs. scans as 11+11 : 12+8=42. Even with the misdivision (11+7 : 8+8+8), it is no purastajjyotiṣmatī (44).]

4. The well-born Jātavedas, the mighty (vibhú) Agni belonging to all men (vāiṣvānará), the carrier of oblations, we call on: let him free us from distress.

The verse, as already noticed, comes second in the Ppp. version of the hymn. The comm. explains vibhu as "pervading" (vyāpaka).

5. With whom as ally the seers made [their] strength shine out; with whom they repelled the wiles of the Asuras; with whom, Agni, Indra conquered the Paṇis—let him free us from distress.

Ppp. makes in a the combination yena rṣ-, and reads in b idyotayan; for the latter, the comm. (with two or three of SPP's mss.) gives uddiyotayan; a few of the mss. (including our Bp.K.) have -tayam.

6. By whom the gods discovered the immortal; by whom they made the herbs rich in honey; by whom the gods brought the heaven (svār)—let him free us from distress.

The comm. takes amṛta in a as meaning the drink of immortality; more probably it signifies immortality itself.

7. In whose direction [is] whatever shines forth (vi-ruc) here, what is born and to be born, all of it—I praise Agni, [as a] suppliant I call loudly on [him]—let him free us from distress.

TS. and MS. have a quite different first half-verse: yásye 'dám prānán nimiśád yád éjati yásya jātám jánamānam ca kévalam. The comm. renders nāthitas first by nāthamānaḥ, phalaṁ kāmaya mānaḥ, and then by nāthaḥ svāmī samjāto 'sya.

24. Praise and prayer to Indra.

[Mṛgāra.—(see h. 23). 1. ṣakvarīgarbhā puraḥṣakvarī.]

Found in Pāipp. iv., with the other mṛgāra hymns, and used by Kāuṣ. only as one of the group (see under h. 23); its first and last verses occur in the same Black Yajur-Veda texts (do.).

Translated: Griffith, i. 165; Weber, xviii. 100.

1. We reverence Indra; constantly do we reverence him; these praise-hymns (stóma) of the Vṛtra-slayer have come unto me; he who goes to the call of the worshiper (dāṣvāns), of the well-doer—let him free us from distress.

Ppp. has in a indrasya manve ṣaṣvad yasya manvire, which is better, in both sense and meter. TS. and MS. (agreeing throughout) read indrasya manve prathamāsya prācetasah in a; in b, úpa nám upā 'guh; and, in c, hávam úpa gántā. The verse is properly enough puṛaḥṣakavari, but there is no reason why it should be called in addition ṣakavarigarbhā.

2. He who, having formidable arms, is repeller (?yayú) of the formidable ones (f.); who battered the strength of the Dānavas; by whom are conquered the rivers, by whom the kine—let him free us from distress.

Ppp. has in a yo graṇām and omits yayus; and at end of b it reads āsasāda. The first pāda is full of questionable points, and probably corrupt; the comm. explains yuyus (though SPP. says in a note that his text reads yayus), and by yāvayitā pṛthak-kartā; to ugrīṇām he supplies ṣatrusenānām.

3. He who is filler of people (carṣaṇi), bull, heaven-finder (svarvīd); for whom the pressing-stones proclaim [his] manliness; whose is the sacrifice with seven priests, most intoxicating—let him free us from distress.

Ppp. has carṣaṇi instead of vṛṣabhas in a, and, for c, yasyā dhvanyus saptahotā mudicyut. The comm. renders carṣaṇi- by manuṣya-.

4. Whose are cows (vaçā), bulls, oxen; for whom, the heaven-finder, sacrificial posts (svāru) are set up; for whom the bright (ṣukrā) [soma] purifies itself, adorned with sacred words (bráhma-)—let him free us from distress.

Ppp. has in c yasmiṇ ṣukras pravartate. The comm. explains vaçā in a as "barren cow" (vandhyā gāuḥ), and svāru as yāpāvataḥṣaṇaḥakala, used for yūpa. [Cf. RV. vi. 16. 47.]

5. He whose enjoyment (júṣṭi) the offerers of soma desire; whom, possessed of arrows, men call on in the cattle-raid (gāvīṣṭi); on whom depends song (?arkā), on whom force—let him free us from distress.

Ppp. reads in b iṣuvantam. Prāt. ii. 23 teaches the form of gaviṣṭi. The comm. explains arkas as arcanasādhanabhūto mantrah stutaḥastrādīlakṣaṇah.

6. He who was born first for the doing of deeds; of whom first the heroism was noted; by whom brandished (ud-yam) the thunderbolt went at (abhi-i) the dragon—let him free us from distress.

As in one or two other cases,* the mss. have in a yajñé instead of jajñé; but one or two of SPP's follow the comm., who reads jajñé, as does also Ppp.; and both of the editions give this. In b the comm., with three of SPP's authorities, gives ānubaddham; in c he derives āyata from root yam, and renders it by ahiṅsit; we might emend to abhyāyató him and get a form from that root, which would yield a preferable sense. [For the use of abhi-i with vajra as subject and with acc., Whitney has noted the excellent parallel, RV. i. 80. 12.] * [So x. 10. 18.]

7. He who, controlling, leads together hosts (samgrāmā) for fighting; who mingles (sam-sṛj) the possessions (puṣṭā) of the two parties—I praise Indra, [as a] suppliant I call loudly on [him]: let him free us from distress.

Ppp. has in b puṣṭyā nas. TS. and MS. read in a (as does also the comm.) the sing. saṃgrāmām, and they put yudhé after vaçī; at end of b they give trayāṇi instead of dvayāṇi. The comm. thinks dvayāṇi to be striṣuṣātmakāni mithunāni.

25. Praise and prayer to Vāyu and Savitar.

[Mṛgāra.—(see h. 23). 3. atiçakvarīgārbhā jagatī; 7. paṭhyābṛhatī.]

Found in Pāipp. iv. (in the verse-order 1-3, 6, 5, 4, 7, and after our hymn 23). The Black Yajur-Veda texts (see under hymn 23) put their passages corresponding to our hymn 29 (to Mitra and Varuṇa) between those corresponding to our 24 and 25. For the use of the hymn as one of the mṛgāra hymns in Kāuṣ., see under hymn 23; the comm. further quotes it as employed by Nakṣ. K. 18, in a çānti ceremony named vāyavyā. The metrical irregularities are not worth the trouble of detailing.

Translated: Griffith, i. 166; Weber, xviii. 102.

1. Of Vāyu, of Savitar we reverence the counsels (vidātha): ye who enter and who defend what has life (ātmanvānt); ye who have become encompassers of the all — do ye free us from distress.

TS. and MS. read bibhṛtās (for viçāthas) and rākṣatas in b, and TS. babhūvdtus in c; and both have āgasas in the refrain. MS. further combines yā āt- in b, and has itā no m- in the refrain. The comm. is uncertain as to the sense of vidātha. [Geldner renders, "Wir gedenken des Bundes zwischen V. und S.," ZDMG. lii. 746: cf. Foy, KZ. xxxiv. 226.] Doubtless it is a metrical consideration that causes the change from 3d to 2d person in the refrain of hymns 25, 26, and 28. [Grammar and meter favor restoration of the older and longer form paribhūvā in c—see Lanman, JAOS. x. 413.]

2. Of whom are numbered the widths of the earth; by whom the welkin (rājas) is made fast (yup) in the atmosphere; whose progress no one soever has reached (anu-aç) — do ye free us from distress.

Ppp. has in a varimāṇi pārīhivā, which improves the meter; also gusthitām for yupitām in b, and prayām for prāyam in c. Yupitām (perhaps 'smoothed out, spread uniformly' [cf. Bloomfield AJP. xii. 418, 419]) the comm. explains by mūrchitam sad dhāryate. The pada-text divides in c praçāyām, for which SPP., on the authority of only one of his mss., unaccountably substitutes praçayām (a number of our mss. give instead -yām) [cf. BR. v. 1635].

3. In [conformity with] thy course (vratā) people (jāna) go to rest; when thou art risen, they go forth, O thou of beauteous luster; ye, O Vāyu and Savitar, defend beings — do ye free us from distress.

Ppp. has yachatas for rākṣathas at end of c; the comm., with a couple of SPP's mss., reads rākṣatas; and he paraphrases it, without a word of remark, with pālayathas.

4. Away from here, O Vāyu and Savitar, drive (sidhi) ye what is ill-done, away the demons and Çimidā; for ye unite (sam-sṛj) [men] with refreshment (ūrjā), with strength — do ye free us from distress.

Nearly all the mss. read in c sṛjātha (instead of -thas). The comm., with two or three of SPP's mss., reads samidām (for śmidām) in his text in b, but explains samidhām (by samidīptām kṛtyām ca); itās in a he takes from root i, and paraphrases by gamayathas! Emendation in a to duṣkṛtam, 'evil-doer,' would be acceptable; the comm. takes it as accented (= asmādyam pāpam).

5. Let Savitar and Vāyu engender (ā-sū) in my body (tanū) wealth, prosperity, very propitious dexterity; do ye put here freedom from yákṣma, greatness; do ye free us from distress.

Tanū in b is translated as a locative because so regarded by the Prāt. (under i. 74), as it is also by the comm. (= tanvām, asmādiye çarīre); it might be nom. dual; or, yet better, it might be emended to tanūdakṣām. Ppp. reads aveyakṣmatām suhasmāsu dhattam for c. The comm. paraphrases ā suvatām with prerayatām prayacchatām.

6. O Savitar, Vāyu, [give] forth favor in order to aid; ye cause to revel in the intoxicating jovial [soma]; hitherward from the height (pravāti) confirm ye of what is pleasant (vāmā); do ye free us from distress.

The strong ellipses in the first half-verse are filled by the comm. in accordance with the translation. Ppp. reads in b mādayetām, and in c pravatā ni yachatas. The comm. makes pravātas (= prakarsavatas) coördinate with vāmāsya, qualifying dhana-sya understood. [Pischel, Ved. Stud. ii. 74, takes it as acc. pl. with vāmasya, 'streams of vāma,' and compares rāyó dhārā, vāsvo arṇavā, etc. — Render the subjunctive in b by 'cause ye' etc. ?]

7. The best blessings (āçts) have come unto us in the domain (dhāman) of the two gods; I praise god Savitar and Vāyu: do ye free us from distress.

Ppp. combines to nā "çiso in a. MS. reads āçtras for āçtsas; for dhāman in b it has dhārnās, and TS. dhārme; for c, both give stāumi vāyūm savitāraṇi nāthitō johavimī; and, as in vs. 1, MS. begins d with tā, and both end it with āgasas.

The fifth anuvāka ends here in the middle of the mṛgāra group; it has 5 hymns and 35 verses; and the old Anukr. says aparāḥ pañca.

26. Praise and prayer to heaven and earth.

[Mṛgāra. — (see h. 23). 1. puro 'stir jagatī; 7. çākvaragarbhātīmadhyeçyotis.]

Found in Pāipp. iv. (in a somewhat different verse-order *), after our hymn 27. The other texts (see under hymn 23) have but one verse that represents the hymn, made up of parts of our vss. 1 and 7. As to the use of the mṛgāra hymns by Kāuç., see under h. 23. In Vāit. (15. 13), this hymn (or vs. 1) accompanies the offering to the udumbara twig in the agnisṭoma. * [Order, 1, 2, 4, 6, 3, 5, 7.]

Translated: Griffith, i. 167; Weber, xviii. 106.

1. I reverence you, O heaven-and-earth, ye well-nourishing ones (subhōjas), who, like-minded (sāçetas) did spread out unmeasured intervals (yōjana); since ye became foundations (pratiṣṭhā) of good things, do ye free us from distress.

Ppp. omits the intrusive and meter-disturbing sāçetasāu (which, on account of its accent, is reckoned to b in the translation, as it is also by the pada-text) ; and, against rule, it combines in b ye 'prath-. The comm., with one of SPP's mss., reads aprathe-tām ; and TS.MS. have the same, followed by āmitēbhīr ōjōbhīr yē pratiṣṭhē ābhavatān vāsūnām : they have of the verse only these two pādas, used as part of a closing verse. The first half-verse is found also in the Nāigeya-kāṇḍa of SV. (i. 623 a, b) : this reads mānye for manvê, accents subhōjasāu, omits (like Ppp.) sācetasāu, and ends with āmitam abhi yōjanam ; its second half-verse is our 2 c, d.

2. Since ye became foundations of good things, ye much increased, divine, fortunate, wide-extended ones, O heaven-and-earth, be pleasant to me : do ye free us from distress.

Ppp. has in a babhāvathus (for ābhavatam). The comm., with a couple of SPP's mss., reads praviddhe (= sūtravat sarvajagadanupraviddhe) in b. As noted under vs. 1, SV. has (omitting me in c) the second half-verse, here carried on as refrain through vss. 3-6. [In c, scan pr̥thvī . . . sioné.]

3. I call upon the not-distressing, of excellent penance, wide, profound, to be revered by poets : O heaven- etc. etc.

Possibly an antithesis is intended between the first two (doubtfully translated) epithets, both founded on tap 'heat.' Ppp. has the better reading vām for aham at end of a.

4. Ye who bear the immortal (amṛta), who the oblations ; who bear the streams (srotya), who human beings (manuṣya) : O heaven- etc. etc.

Ppp. puts b before a.

5. Ye who bear the ruddy [kine], who the forest-trees ; ye within whom [are] all beings : O heaven- etc. etc.

One or two of our mss. (H.I.), as the majority of SPP's, make at the beginning the false combination yā usr-. The comm. declares usriya a gonāman.

6. Ye who gratify with sweet drink (kīlāla), who with ghee ; without whom [men] can [do] nothing whatever : O heaven- etc. etc.

All the pada-mss. make in b the absurd division çaknuvānti, as if the word were a neut. pl. from the stem çaknuvānti. Ppp. has in a kīlālāis. The comm. interprets kīlāla simply as anna.

7. This that scorches (abhi-çuc) me, or by whomsoever done, from what is human, not divine—I praise heaven-and-earth, [as] a suppliant I call loudly on [them] : do ye free us from distress.

The verse looks as if broken off in the middle, to allow addition of the regular close. Ppp. has at end of b the more manageable reading pāuruṣeyam na dāvyam. TS.MS. have the second half-verse added to our 1 b, c ; but they have also our 7 a, b (in the form yād idam mā 'bhīçcati pāuruṣeyena dāvyena) as first half of a similar verse to "all the gods." The comm. understands pāpāt as to be supplied in b, and takes na as the particle of comparison.

27. Praise and prayer to the Maruts.

[Mygāra. — (see h. 23).]

Found, with very slight variations, in Pāipp. iv. ; and its first and last verses are represented in TS., MS., and K. (see under h. 23) ; they follow a similar passage to the Aṅvins, which follows our h. 25. The use by Kāuṣ. is the same with that of the other mygāra hymns (see under h. 23). The first pāda of vs. 4 nearly agrees with the second pāda of a verse (the last) given in Kāuṣ. 3. 3 ; and vs. 4 is directed by Vāit. (12. 12) to be used in the agniṣṭoma when one is rained on ; further, vs. 7 (9. 2), in the cāturmāsya sacrifice, with an evening libation to the Maruts. And the comm. quotes the hymn as used by Nakṣ. K. (18) in a çānti-rite named mārudgaṇī.

Translated : Griffith, i. 168 ; Weber, xviii. 109.

1. The Maruts I reverence ; let them bless me ; let them favor this steed (? vāja) in the race (? vājasāta) ; I have called on them for aid, like easily-controlled swift [horses] : let them free us from distress.

Ppp. combines -sātā 'vantu at end of b. Some of our mss. (P.M.W.E.O.) read sūyāmān in c. The comm. has añcin instead of ācin in c, and explains it as either "reins" or "horses." Vāja and vājasāta he makes either "food" and the "winning of food," or "strength" and "combat." The version of the other texts is quite different ; they have nas for me in a ; for b, pré 'mān vācam vṛcṣvām avantu viçve ; for c, ācin huve suyāmān ūtāye ; and at the end énasas.

2. Who always open (vi-ac) an unexhausted fountain ; who pour in sap into the herbs — I put forward the Maruts, sons of the spotted one : let them free us from distress.

With a compare xviii. 4. 36. Some of our mss. (P.M.W.I.O.) read in c -mālīs. The comm. explains utsam by megham, vyacanti by antarikṣe vistārayanti, and prçni as the mādhyamikā vāk.

3. Ye, O poets, that send the milk of the kine, the sap of the herbs, the speed of the coursers — let the helpful (? çagmā) Maruts be pleasant to us ; let them free us from distress.

Ppp. reads invan at end of b ; the comm. renders invatha by vyāpayatha ; he also takes kavayas as nominative, and (with one of SPP's mss.) reads at beginning of c çakmās, explaining it as = sarvakāryasamarthās. All our saṁhitā-mss. save one (E.) [R. not noted] combine na syon- in c.

4. Waters from the ocean to the sky they carry up, they who pour [them] from the sky upon the earth — the Maruts who go about lording it with the waters : let them free us from distress.

The absence of accent of vahanti forbids us to make the better construction of it with yé — which, however, the comm. does not scruple to adopt.

5. They who gratify with sweet drink, who with ghee ; or who combine (sam-sṛj) vigor (vāyas) with fatness ; the Maruts who, lording it with the waters, cause to rain : let them free us from distress.

Ppp. reads in a (as in 26. 6 a) kilālāis ; and it rectifies the meter of c by omitting adbhis. The comm. takes vāyas first as "bird" (pakṣijātam), then as ṣarīrapariṇāma-viṣeṣas.

6. If now indeed, O Maruts, by what relates to the Maruts — if, O gods, by what relates to the gods, I have fallen into such a plight: ye, O Vasus, are masters (īṣ) of the removal of that: let them free us from distress.

That is (a, b), apparently, "by reason of what offense" (aparādhenā, comm.); perhaps "if such a [mishap] hath befallen [us]" (so the comm.); but MS. iii. 8. 4, īḍḡ u sá āriṣyati, supports the translation as given, and also indicates that āra is here ā-āra; but the pada-text gives āra simply. [See also Weber's citation from PB. xiii. 3. 12.] Several mss. (including our Op.) have īṣadhve in c, as the comm. reads. Mānuṣeṇa for mārutena in a would be an acceptable emendation. [See p. 1045.]

7. A sharp front, known [as] powerful, [is] the troop (ṣardhas) of Maruts, formidable in fights; I praise the Maruts, [as] a suppliant I call loudly on [them]: let them free us from distress.

The other texts have in a viditām, for which our viditām is a pretty evident corruption; they also have āyudham for ānikam, in b dēvyām for mārutam and jiṣṇū for ugrām; and in c they insert devān before marūtas, also ending the verse (as well as vs. 1) with énasas.

28. Praise and prayer to Bhava and Çarva.

[Mṛgāra. — (see h. 23). 1. dvyatijāgatagarbhā bhurij.]

Found in Pāipp. iv. (next after our h. 26), but having nothing correspondent to it in the Yajur-Veda texts. Having the same beginning (bhavāṣarvāu) as xi. 2. 1, one cannot tell in many cases which of the two hymns is intended by a quotation in Kāuṣ.; but according to the comm. (also to Keçava; Dārila appears to think otherwise) this one is employed in a healing ceremony at 28. 8; it is also reckoned (26. 1, note) to the takmanāçana gana.

Translated: Muir, OST. iv. 2332; Griffith, i. 169; Bloomfield, 158, 406; Weber, xviii. 111.

1. O Bhava-and-Çarva, I reverence you, know ye that; ye in whose direction is all that shines out (vi-ruc) here, who lord it over these bipeds [and] quadrupeds: do ye free us from distress.

Ppp. has, for b, yayor vām yad idam vitiṣṭhate; our vām makes this pāda redundant. In c, some of the pada-mss. (including our Bp.) have asya (but asyá, correctly, in 6 c). The expression in b corresponds with that in 23. 7 and vii. 25. 2. According to the comm., the name Bhava signifies bhavaty asmāt sarvām jagad; and Çarva, çṛṇāti hinasti sarvām antakāle.

2. Ye whose is whatever is on the way and afar; who are known as best shooters among arrow-bearers; who lord it etc. etc.

Ppp. has vitātāu for viditāu (perhaps viditāu?) in b, and its c reads bhavāṣarvāu bhavataṁ me syonāu, which then continues to be (as in 26. 2–6) part of the refrain through vs. 6, taking the place of our c. The comm., with a couple of SPP's mss., has iṣubhṛtāu for -tām in b. He explains abhyadhve by samīpadeçe. Perhaps a means rather 'on whose way [is] even whatever is afar.'

3. I call on the (two) thousand-eyed Vṛtra-slayers; I go praising the (two) formidable ones, having pastures afar: who lord it etc. etc.

One of the oddest pada-text blunders of the whole work is made in b: stuvānnemi is resolved into stuvān: nemi instead of stuvān: emi; and then one or two of the mss. (including our Op.) corrupt further to stuvāt, and the comm. to nemī (manufacturing for it two different, but equally absurd, explanations after his manner [cf. Festgruss an Roth, p. 91]). Ppp. has in a, b huve vā dārehetī sunemī ugrāu. [Add avasāna-mark after ugrāu.]

4. Ye who have taken hold (ā-rabh) of much together in the beginning, if ye have let loose (pra-sj) the portent (abhiḥhā) among the people (jāna): who lord it etc. etc.

The sense of the verse is very obscure. All the mss. without exception have in b the absurd reading dsrāṣṭram, which our edition emends to -ṣam, but which SPP. retains, though the comm. gives -ṣam. Ppp. has the better reading ugrāu for agre in a. The comm. treats bahū sākām, in spite of accents, as one word, = janasamgham.

5. From whose deadly weapon no one soever escapes (apa-pad), among gods and among men (mānuṣa); who lord it etc. etc.

Ppp. reads in a, b kiṁ canā 'ntar deveṣu uta.

6. Whoso is witchcraft-maker, root-cutter (?), sorcerer, down on him put [your] thunderbolt, O formidable ones; who lord it etc. etc.

Ppp. is defaced in this verse, and omits mūlakṛt. The comm. takes -kṛt in a both times as from kṛt 'cut,' and mūla- as "offspring, the root of increase of a family"; the Pet. Lex. conjectures "preparing roots for purposes of witchcraft" [see Bloomfield's note, p. 407]; one might also guess mūrakṛt [see Weber's comment, p. 114]. Most of our mss. (all save H.p.m.K.D.), and the majority of SPP's, have the false reading dhattām in b; both editions give -tam.

7. Bless us in fights, O formidable ones; visit (sam-sj) with [your] thunderbolt whoever is a kimīdīn: I praise Bhava-and-Ṣarva; [as] a suppliant I call loudly on [them]; do ye free us from distress.

Ppp. reads me for nas in a, and leaves -su ugrāu uncombined. [Its closing half-verse is as in the Vulgate (as may be inferred from the note to vs. 2).]

29. Praise and prayer to Mitra and Varuṇa.

[Mṛgāra. — (see h. 23). 7. ṣakvarigarbhā jagatī.]

Found in Pāipp. iv. (with vs. 5 put before vs. 4). The first and last verses also in the Yajus texts (see under h. 23), between those of our hymns 24 and 25. For the use by Kāuṣ. as mṛgāra hymn, see under h. 23.

Translated: Roth, Zur Litteratur und Geschichte des Weda, 1846, p. 43; Ludwig, p. 137, with an elaborate discussion of the proper names; Griffith, i. 170; Weber, xviii. 114.

1. I reverence you, O Mitra-and-Varuṇa, increasers of right; who, accordant, thrust [away] the malicious (drūhvan); [who] favor the truthful one in conflicts (bhāra): do ye free us from distress.

Ppp. has for b satyojasāu drhyāṇī yo nirete (cf. its version of 2 a); in c, yāu for pra, and haveṣu (better) for bhareṣu (= saṁgrāmeṣu, comm.). TS.MS. read in a -runā tāsyā vittam (as in our 28. 1 a; and MS. accents -tām); then, in b, sātyāujasā (MS. satyāū-) dr̥ṇhaṇā (MS. dur̥hṇā) yāni nudēthe; their c is wholly different: yā rājānaṁ (MS. -nā) sarāthaṁ yāthā (MS. -tā) ugrā; and they end the refrain with āgasas.^{*} MS. further accents mitrāvāruṇā in a; the comm. reads -runā r̥tāvadhū. Satyāvan in c is perhaps rather a proper name (so the Pet. Lex.); the comm. takes it as appellative (= satyayuktam puruṣam). In our edition, the e of manvé at the beginning is broken off. * [Both reading tā for tāū.]

2. Ye who, accordant, thrust [away] the malicious; [who] favor the truthful one in conflicts; who, men-watching, go unto the brown soma — do ye free us from distress.

The translation implies emendation in c of babhrūṇā (our P.M. have *babhrūṇā) to babhrūm ā; the comm. understands “with your brown chariot”; Ludwig takes the word as proper name: “pressed by Babhru.” Ppp. has for a satyojasāu drhyāṇī yo niredhe [cf. its version of 1 b], and again haveṣu for bhareṣu. The comm. (with one or two mss., including our Op.) reads gacchatas in c. * [And W. has babhrūṇā.]

3. Ye who favor Aṅgiras, who Agasti, Jamadagni, Atri, O Mitra-and-Varuṇa, who favor Kaçyapa, who Vasishṭha — do ye free us from distress.

The comm. reads in a agastyam. He amuses himself with worthless etymologies of the various names through the hymn.

4. Ye who favor Çyāvāçva, Vadhryaçva, Purumīdha, Atri, O Mitra-and-Varuṇa, who favor Vimada, Saptavadhri — do ye free us from distress.

Ppp. substitutes gaviṣṭhīram for vadhryaçvam in a.

5. Ye who favor Bharadvāja, who Gavishṭhira, Viçvāmitra, Kutsa, O Varuṇa [and] Mitra; who favor Kakshīvant, also Kaṇva — do ye free us from distress. *

This time, Ppp. puts vadhryaçvam in place of gaviṣṭhīram in a.

6. Ye who favor Medhātithi, who Triçoka, who Uçanas Kāvya, O Mitra-and-Varuṇa; who favor Gotama, also Mudgala — do ye free us from distress.

Ppp. reads uçanam in b, and its c is yāu mudgalam avatho gāutamāni ca (our O.Op. also have gāutamam [comm. to Prāt. iv. 16 cites it as gótama]).

7. Whose chariot, of true track, of straight reins, goes spoiling against him who behaves (car) falsely — I praise Mitra-and-Varuṇa; [as] a suppliant I call loudly on [them]: do ye free us from distress.

TS.MS. have yō vām rātha r̥juraçmiḥ satyādharma m̥thhuç c̥drantam (MS. m̥thhuçār-) upayāti d̥śāyan; then TS. reads -runā in c, and MS. tā at beginning of d; and both end (as in vs. 1) with āgasas.

[Here end the Mṛgāra hymns.]

30. Self-laudation of Speech (?).

[Atharvan.—aṣṭarcam. vāgdevatyām. trāiṣṭubham: 6. jagatī.]

Not found in Pāipp., but is, with a few insignificant variants, RV. x. 125 (but in the verse-order 1, 3, 5, 4, 6, 2, 7, 8), a hymn ascribed by the tradition to Vāc Āmbhṛṇā, or 'Speech, daughter of Ambhṛṇa'; but there is an utter absence in the details of anything distinctly pointing to speech, and we can only believe that the attribution is an old conjecture, a suggested solution of a riddle, which "space," or "faith," or "right" (ṛtā) would have equally satisfied. But the explanation is universally accepted among Hindu authorities, old and new, and hardly questioned by European scholars. The hymn is used by Kāuṣ. in the ceremony (10. 16-9) for generation of wisdom (medhājānana), being said over a child before taking of the breast, and also at its first use of speech; also in the same ceremony as forming part of the upanayana (57. 31) [so the comm. and Keçava: but the hymn is not included in the āyusya gaṇa]; and again in the dismissal [utsarjana, says the comm.] from Vedic study (139. 15). [With regard to the intention of Kāuṣ. 139. 15 the reader may consult Whitney's notes to the passages there cited by pratīka.]

Translated: by Colebrooke, Asiatick Researches, vol. viii, Calcutta, 1805, or Miscellaneous Essays, i. 2 p. 28 (Whitney, in his notes to this essay, l.c., p. 113, gives a "closer version," "in the original metre," and with an introduction); translated, further, by the RV. translators; and also by Weber, in his article, Vāc und λόγος, Ind. Stud. ix. (1865) 473; Deussen, Geschichte, i. 1. 146 f.; Griffith, i. 171; Weber, xviii. 117. Here Weber gives references to discussions by himself, by Garbe, and by Max Müller, of the possible connection of the Neo-Platonic λόγος-idea with Indic thought.

1. I go about with the Rudras, the Vasus, I with the Ādityas and the All-gods; I bear Mitra-and-Varuṇa both, I Indra-and-Agni, I both Aṅvins.

There is in this verse no variant from the RV. text. The comm. says that "I" is the daughter, Speech by name, of the great sage Ambhṛṇa, and that she by her own nature knew the supreme brahman.

2. I am queen, gatherer of good things, the first that has understood the matters of sacrifice; me here the gods distributed manifoldly, making me of many stations enter into many.

RV. (vs. 3) differs only by reading at the end āveçāyantīm. The comm. makes yajñtyānām in b depend upon prathamā, cikituṣī being a separate epithet: this is, of course, equally possible.

3. I my own self say this, [which is] enjoyable of gods and of men; whomsoever I desire, him I make formidable, him priest (brahmān), him seer, him very wise.

RV. (vs. 5) has in b the equivalent devbhīs and mānuṣebhīs. The comm. absurdly explains brahmānam by sraṣṭāram, or the god Brahman.

4. By me doth he eat food who looks abroad, who breathes, who indeed hears what is spoken; unknowing (? amantū) they dwell upon me; hear thou, heard-of one; I say to thee what is to be credited.

RV. leaves the a of ānam in a unelided (making the pāda a regular jagatī: our Anukr. takes no notice of it as such, but it would be an extremely bad trīṣṭubh), has (as has also the comm.) the regular prāniti in b, and reads ṣradhivām for ṣrad-dhēyam in d. One of our mss. (Op.) accents ṣrutā. The comm. understands a, b to mean "it is by me that any one eats, sees," etc., and takes īm as = idam; amantavas as ajānānā madviṣayajñānarahitāh; and upa kṣiyanti as saṁsāreṇa nihīnā bhavanti — as if kṣiyanti came from kṣi 'destroy'!

5. I stretch the bow for Rudra, for his shaft to slay the brāhman-hater; I make strife (samād) for the people (jāna); into heaven-and-earth have I entered.

RV. (vs. 6) has no variant. The comm. foolishly regards Rudra's affair with Tripura as the subject of the first half-verse.

6. I bear the heady (? āhanās) soma, I Tvashtar, also Pūshan, Bhaga; I assign property to the giver of oblations, to the very zealous (?), the sacrificer, the presser of soma.

RV. (vs. 2) has in c the sing. drāvīṇam, and in d the dative suprāvīḍ (which is implied in the translation given); in both points the comm. agrees with RV., and one of SPP's authorities supports him. But the Prāt. (iv. 11) establishes suprāvīḍ as the true Atharvan reading. The comm. gives a double explanation of āhanasam in a: as abhiṣotavyam and as ṣatrūṇām āhantāram. The Anukr. does not heed that the first pāda is trīṣṭubh.

7. I quicken (give birth to?) the father in its (his?) head; my womb (yōni) is within the waters, the ocean; thence I extend myself (vi-sihā) to all beings; even yon sky I touch with my summit.

RV. reads in c bhūvanā 'nu for -nāni. The comm., followed by one of SPP's authorities, has the odd blunder caṣṭe for tiṣṭhe in c. He further takes asya in a as meaning dr̥ṣyamānasya prapañcasya, and pitarām as prapañcasya janakam.

8. I myself blow forth like the wind, taking hold upon all beings; beyond the sky, beyond the earth here — such have I become by greatness.

RV. has mahinā instead of mahimnā in d [cf. Bloomfield, JAOS. xvi. p. clvi = PAOS. Dec. 1894]. In our edition, divó in c is a misprint for divā. [Enā is hardly for enayā (Weber): cf. JAOS. x. 333.]

With this hymn ends the sixth anuvāka, of 5 hymns and 36 verses; the Anukr. extract, ṣaṭ, is given by only one ms. (D.).

Here, too, by a rather strange division, ends the eighth prapāṭhaka.

31. Praise and prayer to fury (manyú).

[Brahmāskanda. — manyudāvatam. trīṣṭubham: 2, 4. bhurij; 5-7. jagatī.]

This hymn and the one following are RV. hymns (x. 84 and 83), with few variants, and no change in the order of verses. Both are found also in Pāipp. iv., but not together. Very few of the verses occur in any other Vedic text. The two are used together in Kāuṣ. (14. 26 ff.), in the ceremonies for success in battle and for determining which of the two opposing armies will conquer; they are also (14. 7, note) reckoned to the aparājita gana. And the comm. quotes them as employed by the Çānti K. (15) in the grahayajña.

Translated: by the RV. translators; and Griffith, i. 173; Weber, xviii. 125.

1. In alliance (sarātham) with thee, O fury, battering, feeling excitement, excited, O companion of the Maruts, having keen arrows, sharpening up their weapons, let [our] men go forward unto [the foe], having forms of fire.

This verse is found further in TB. (in ii. 4. 1¹⁰). RV. and TB. read for b hārṣamā-nāso dhṛṣitā * marutvah; at beginning of d, RV. has the decidedly preferable abhi for ūpa; TB. gives in d yanti, and this is also the reading of Ppp.—which moreover separates tikṣṇā iṣ- in c, and combines -çāno 'pa in c-d. Three of our mss. (O.Op.K.) so far agree with RV. as to read dhṛṣitāsas in b; the comm. has instead ruṣitāsas. The comm. explains manyūs as krodhābhīmānī devaḥ 'wrath personified as a god.' * [In both ed's, TB. has the adverb dhṛṣatā.]

2. Like fire, O fury, do thou, made brilliant, overpower; invoked, O powerful one, do thou be our army-leader; having slain the foes, share out their possession (védas); making (mā) force, thrust away the scorers (mīdh).

Many of our mss. (P.M.W.E.I.H.p.m.K.), with some of SPP's, accent sāhasva in a; and in b some mss. (including our P.M.W.) read -nīr nah. Ppp. has jitvāya for hātvāya in c. The abbreviation of iva to 'va in a would remove the bhurij character of the verse. The comm. explains tvīṣita in a by pradīpta.

3. Overpower for us (?), O fury, the hostile plotter; go forward breaking, killing, slaughtering the foes; thy formidable rush (? pājas) surely they have not impeded; thou, controlling, shalt bring them under control, O sole-born one.

The translation given follows in a the RV. reading asmé, which was also received by emendation into our text; all the mss. and the comm. have instead asmāi, which SPP. retains. [Ppp. has abhimātim asmahe; our mss. R.T., asmāi.] Our P.M.W. give in c rarudhre (or the equivalent -ddhre, which is assumed under Prāt. i. 94); and SPP. asserts that all his authorities have it, and therefore receives it into his text, in spite of its evidently blundering character; the comm. reads rur-. Several of our mss. (P.M.W.E.H.) read in d vaçān; for nayāsāi, after it, RV. has nayase. The comm. explains pājas in c by balam.

4. Thou art the one praised (?) of many, O fury; sharpen up clan on clan (vīç) unto fighting; with thee as ally (yūçj), O thou of undivided brightness (?), we make a clear noise unto victory.

RV. has at the end kṛṇmahe, as has also Ppp. The translation follows in a the RV. reading īlītās, given also by the comm., and by one of SPP's authorities that follows him; īdītā would have to be something like 'inciter, persuader to the conflict.' RV. further reads yudhāye for yuddhāya in b, and in a combines manyav ī-; our manya ī- is quoted in the comment to Prāt. i. 81 as the AV. reading. The obscure ākṛitaruk in c is explained by the comm. as acchinnaḍīpti. Besides being bhurij, the verse (12+11: 10+12=45) is quite irregular.

5. Victory-making, like Indra, not to be talked down, do thou, O fury, be our over-lord here; thy dear name we sing, O powerful one; we know that fount whence thou camest (ā-bhū).

The comm. explains anavabravá as "speaking things—i.e. means of victory—that are not new (a-nava).” The verses 5–7 are not full jagatīs.

6. Born together with efficacy (? ābhūti), O missile (sāyaka) thunderbolt, thou bearest superior power, O associate; be thou allied (medin) with our energy (krātu), O fury, much-invoked one, in the mingling (samsīj) of great riches.

RV. has in b abhibhūte instead of the difficult sahabhūte; and Ppp. (ebhibhūta utt) supports RV. The comm. explains kratvā in c by karmaṇā. One is tempted to emend in a (also in 32. 1 a) to vajrasāyaka 'whose missile is the thunderbolt.'

7. The mingled riches of both sides, put together, let Varuṇa and fury assign to us; conceiving fears in their hearts, let the foes, conquered, vanish away.

Instead of dhattām, RV. and the comm. have in b dattām; Ppp. reads dattam varuṇaḥ ca manyo; RV. gives bhīyam in c; Ppp. has a peculiar ḍ: parājitā yantu paramāṇi parāvataṁ. Certain of our mss. (Bp.E.I.) accent at the end līyantām.

32. Praise and prayer to fury (manyú).

[Brahmāskanda.—manyudāvataṁ. trāiṣṭubham: 1. jagatī.]

This hymn [which is RV. x. 83] goes in all respects with hymn 31, which see. Translated: by the RV. translators; and Griffith, i. 174; Weber, xviii. 129.

1. He who hath worshiped thee, O fury, missile thunderbolt, gains (puṣ) power, force, everything, in succession; may we, with thee as ally, that art made of power, overpower the barbarian, the Āryan, with powerful power.

Ppp. has sadyo for manyo in a, and sahīyasā at the end. All the mss. accent pūṣyati in b, and SPP. very properly so reads; our text was altered to conform with RV., which in general is distinctly less apt to give accent to a verb in such a position [Skt. Gram. § 597 a]. RV. also omits the redundant and meter-disturbing (the Anukr. takes no notice of this) vayām in c. Several of our mss. (P.M.W.E.) give vidadhat instead of vidhat in a. Sāhyāma (p. sahyāma) is expressly prescribed by Prāt. iii. 15, iv. 88; the comm. appears to read sahy. The comm. renders ānuṣak by anuṣaktam saṁtatam. [For vajra sāyaka, see note to iv. 31. 6; and for pūṣyati, note to iv. 13. 2.]

2. Fury [was] Indra, fury indeed was a god; fury [was] priest (hōtar), Varuṇa, Jātavedas; the clans (vīṣ) which are descended from Manu (mānuṣa) praise fury; protect us, O fury, in accord with fervor (tāpas).

The translation assumes in c the reading manyām (instead of yūs), which is given by RV., the comm. (with one of SPP's mss.), and TB. (ii. 4. 1¹¹) and MS. (iv. 12. 3); the nomin. here appears to be a plain corruption, though Ppp. also has it. TB. gives in a bhāgas for Indras, and devayāntīs for mānuṣīr yāḥ in c, and ḥrāmeṇa for sajōṣās at the end; MS. has āvā for pāhi at beginning of d; both have viçvāvedās at end of b. Ppp. reads yaç for yāhi before pāhi.

3. Attack, O fury, being mightier than a mighty one; with fervor as ally smite apart the foes; slayer of enemies, slayer of Vṛtra, and slayer of barbarians, do thou bring to us all [their] good things.

Ppp. rectifies the meter of b (the Anukr. does not notice its deficiency) by inserting iha before çātrūn. [See above, p. lxxiv.]

4. Since thou, O fury, art of overcoming force, self-existent, terrible, overpowering hostile plotters, belonging to all men (-carṣaṇī), powerful, very powerful — do thou put in us force in fights.

RV. has sāhāvān for sāhīyān in c. MS. (iv. 12.3) gives svayamjās in b, and sāhāvān in c; and for d it has sā hūyāmāno amṛtāya gachat.

5. Being portionless, I am gone far away, by the action (? krātu) of thee that art mighty, O forethoughtful one; so at thee, O fury, I, actionless, was wrathful; come to us, thine own self (tanū), giving strength.

RV. has at the end balādīyāya me 'hi (p. mā: ā: ihi). In c it reads jihīdā 'hām, and both the editions follow it (Ppp. and the comm. have the same), although the AV. samhitā reading is unquestionably jihīd-; the samhitā mss. have this almost without exception (all ours save O.), the pada-mss. put after the word their sign which shows a difference between pada and samhitā reading, and jih- is twice distinctly prescribed by the Prāt. (iii. 14; iv. 87). The comm. understands the obscure first pāda of going away from battle; akratu he paraphrases by tvattosakarakarmavarjita.

6. Here I am for thee; come hitherward unto us, meeting (praticīnā) [us], O powerful, all-giving one; O thunderbolt-bearing fury, turn hither to us; let us (two) slay the barbarians; and do thou know thy partner (āpī).

RV. keeps better consistency by reading mā for nas in a, and mām for nas in c; at the end of b it has viçvadhāyas. In a Ppp. has mā, like RV.; in c it reads upa nas, combining to nā 'vav. The comm. supplies çātrūn as object of praticīnas, and paraphrases the end of the verse with apī ca bandhubhūtam mām budhyasva.

7. Go thou forth against [them]; be on our right hand; then will we, (two) smite and slay many Vṛtras; I offer to thee the sustaining top of the sweet (mādhu); let us both drink first the initial draught (? upāñçū).

Ppp. has at the end pībeva. RV. has me instead of nas at end of a, and combines ubhā up- in d. The comm. begins b with atha. Compare also RV. viii. 100 (89). 2, of which the present verse seems a variation; its a, dādhami te mādhuṇo bhakṣam āgre, is much more intelligible than our corresponding c. [In b, is not vṛtrāṇi (neuter!) rather 'adversaries,' as in v. 6. 4? — In his prior draft, W. renders, "let us both drink first in silence (?)." "Initial draught" seems to overlook the gender of upāñçū.]

33. To Agni: for release from evil.

[Brahman.—aṣṭarcam. jāpmanyam; āgneyam. gāyatram.]

Found in Pāipp. iv. Is RV. i. 97, without a variant except in the last verse; occurs also in TA. (vi. 11. 1). Reckoned by Kāuṣ. (9. 2) to the brhachānti gaṇa, and also (30. 17, note) to the pāpma gaṇa; used, under the name of apāgha, in a ceremony of expiation for seeing ill-omened sights (42. 22), in a women's ceremony for preventing undesirable love and the like (36. 22), and in the after funeral ceremonies (82. 4).

Translated: by the RV. translators; and Griffith, i. 175; Weber, xviii. 134.— Cf. also Lanman, Skt. Reader, p. 363.

1. Gleaming (çuc) away our evil (aghd), O Agni, gleam thou wealth unto [us]: gleaming away our evil.

This first verse is found a second time in TA. (vi. 10. 1). The refrain is a mechanical repetition of 1 a, having no connection of meaning with any of the verses. The comm. explains āpa çuçucāt by naçyatu, and ā çuçugdhi by samṛddham kuru. [TA. reads çuçudhyā in both places in both editions.]

2. With desire of pleasant fields, of welfare, of good things, we sacrifice—gleaming away our evil—

3. In order that the most excellent of them, and in order that our patrons (sūri)—gleaming away our evil—

4. In order that thy patrons, O Agni; in order [namely] that we may be propagated for thee with progeny—gleaming away our evil—

5. As of the powerful Agni the lusters (bhāni) go forth in every direction—gleaming away our evil.

These four verses are (rejecting the intrusive refrain) one connected sentence: the prā's in vss. 3 and 4 repeat by anticipation the jāyemahi prā of vs. 4 b; "we" are, in fact, Agni's sūri's, since we depute him to sacrifice for us, just as our sūri's procure us, the priests; and our progeny is to increase and spread like the brightness of the fire. TA. spoils the connection by putting vs. 5 before vs. 4; and the sense, by reading sūryas for bhānāvas in 5 b. Ppp. has jāyemahe in 4 b. One of our pada-mss. (Op.) agrees with the RV. pada-text in dividing sugātuyā in 2 a (the rest read suogātuyā).

6. For, O thou that facest in every direction, thou art [our] encompasser on all sides: gleaming away our evil.

7. Our haters, O thou that facest in every direction, do thou make us pass over as with a boat: gleaming away our evil.

8. Do thou pass us over unto well-being, as [over] a river with a boat: gleaming away our evil.

Ppp. agrees with RV. [and TA.] in reading nāvāyā (which implies sindhum 'va) instead of nāvā at end of a; and our O. has the same.

34. Extolling a certain rice-mess offering.

[Atharvan.—aṣṭarcam. brahmāsyāudanam. trāiṣṭubham: 4. bhurij; 5. 3-av. 7-p. kṛti; 6. 5-p. atiṣakvarī; 7. bhurikṣakvarī; 8. jugatī.]

Found in Pāipp. vi. Used in Kāuṣ. (66. 6), in the sava sacrifices, with the brahmāsyāudana sava, to accompany the making of pools and channels in the rice-mess, filling them with juices (rasa), and setting on the ground, with surā and water, knob-bearing plants as specified in the text. Doubtless it is on account of this treatment that the rice-mess in question is called viṣṭārīn 'out-strewn, expanded.'

Translated: Muir, OST. v. 307 (vss. 2-4); Ludwig, p. 437; Griffith, i. 176; Weber, xviii. 136.

1. The brāhman [is] its head, the bṛhāt its back, the vāmadevyā the belly of the rice-mess; the meters [are] the (two) sides (wings?), truth its mouth; the viṣṭārīn [is] a sacrifice born out of fervor (tāpas).

Ppp. reads ṣiras in a, and its ḍ is viṣṭā yajñas tapaso 'dhi jātaḥ. The comm. explains brāhman as signifying here the rathantara sāman, and also satyam in c as "the sāman so called; or else the highest brahman"; viṣṭārīn he makes to mean vistīryamāṇāvayava.

2. Boneless, purified, cleansed with the purifier, bright (çlūci), they go to a bright world; Jātavedas burns not away their virile member; in the heavenly (svargā) world much women-folk is theirs.

Ppp. makes ṣūtās and ṣuddhās exchange places in a; and there is confusion in its text. The comm. explains anasthās by na vidyate asthyupalakṣitam ṣātkāuṣikam ṣarīram eṣām, and strāṇam by strīṇām samūho bhogārtham; the "they" are the performers of the sava sacrifice. The Anukr. does not notice the redundancy of a syllable in c. [There should be a space between prā and dahati.—Regarding sensual pleasures in heaven, see Muir's note, l.c.; Zimmer, p. 413; Lanman, Skt. Reader, p. 379 end, 380; and Weber's note; cf. also AB. i. 22¹⁴.]

3. Whoso cook the viṣṭārīn rice-mess, ruin (āvartī) fastens not on them at any time; [such a one] stays (ās) with Yama, goes to the gods, revels with the soma-drinking (somyā) Gandharvas.

Ppp. has kutas for kadā in b, and sāumyāis in ḍ. The ṣada-text writes āvartīh without division, yet the comment to Prāt. iii. 46 quotes as exemplifying the combination of final a and initial r; the comm. understands and explains it as a-vartī! somya he paraphrases with somārha. The metrical irregularities (11+12: 10+11=44) are ignored by the Anukr.

4. Whoso cook the viṣṭārīn rice-mess, them Yama robs not of their seed; becoming chariot-owner, [such a one] goes about upon a chariot-road; becoming winged, he goes all across the skies.

Ppp. has in c rathāyān iyate. [In the metrical definition, the Anukr. seems confused here; but vs. 4 appears to be intended.]

5. This, extended, is of sacrifices the best carrier; having cooked the viṣṭārīn, one has entered the sky; the bulb-bearing lotus spreads (sam-tan), the bīsa, çālūka, çāphaka, mulālī: let all these streams (dhārā) come unto thee, swelling honeyedly in the heavenly (svargā) world; let complete (sāmanta) lotus-ponds approach thee.

The mss. (with the exception, doubtless accidental, of our P.K.) all read bāhiṣṭhas at end of a, and this SPP. retains, while our text makes the obviously called-for emendation to vāh-; the comm. has vah-. The things mentioned in c, d appear to be edible parts of water-lilies: the bulbous roots, leaf-stems, and radical fibres, which in some species, as the Nymphaea esculenta, are savory, and which are eaten somewhat like asparagus. That they should be viewed as special gifts to the pious indicates quite primitive conditions, and suggests a region abounding in standing waters. Either the pools and channels of Kāuç. are founded on these specifications, or they are original and intended to be emblematic of such products. The kumuda is the N. esculenta (kāirava, comm.); and the comm. explains bisa (he reads visa) as the root-bulb of the padma (Nelumbium speciosum) [cf. Lanman, JAOS. xix. 2d half, p. 151 f.], çālūka as that of utpala (a Nymphaea), çaphaka as a hoof (çapha)-shaped water-plant, and mulālī as = mṛṇālī. Çaphaka occurs also at ĀpÇS. ix. 14. 14, where it seems to signify an edible plant or fruit, perhaps a water-nut. Ppp. differs widely from our text: it begins eṣa yajño vitato bahiṣṭho viṣṭāra pakvo div-; it omits c and d; for e and f it has our 7 a, b [with variants: see under 7]; then follow our e and f (g, upa . . . samantāh, is wanting), with variants: etās tvā kulyā upa yanti viçvahā, and svadhayā for madhumat. But our c and d are found further on as parts of vs. 7, with pundarikam for āṇḍikam, and çālūkham and çapakhas. It is doubtless by an oversight that SPP. has in b, in both samhitā and pāda, the false accent divām (but our O. also gives it). The verse lacks one syllable of being a full kṛtī (80 syllables). The comm. ends vs. 5 with mulālī, and begins vs. 6 with the following refrain.

6. Having pools of ghee, having slopes of honey, having strong drink (sūrā) for water, filled with milk (kṣīrā), with water, with curds—let all these etc. etc.

Ppp. agrees in a, b with our text (we should expect rather madhukulyās); but for the refrain it has etās tvān talpā upa yanti viçvatas svarge loka svadhayā mādayantiḥ (the remaining pāda again wanting, as in vs. 5). The refrain appears much more in place with this verse than in vs. 5. The comm., as already indicated, makes its vs. 6 of our 6 a, b, preceded by the refrain of vs. 5; the refrain of our vs. 6 it omits altogether. The sūrā seems most probably to have been a kind of beer or ale [so Roth: not distilled liquor, as Zimmer, p. 280, suggests]. A full atiçakavarī (60) calls for two more syllables.

7. Four vessels (kumbhā), four-fold, I give, filled with milk, with water, with curds—let all these etc. etc.

Ppp. had the first two pādas, as noted above, in its vs. 5, reading for a catuṣkumbhyān caturdhā dadāti; its vs. 7 is our 5 c, d (with the variants already given) together with the last two pādas of the refrain, reading svadhayā for madhumat in the former pāda, and mā for tvā in the latter. The comm. (with one or two of SPP's mss. that follow him) has dadhāmi in a.

8. This rice-mess I deposit in the Brāhmins, the viṣṭārin, world-conquering, heaven-going (svargā); let it not be destroyed (kṣī) for me, swelling with svadhā; be it a cow of all forms, milking my desire.

Several of our mss. (P.M.W.E.) combine in d dheniṣ kām-. Ppp. has for a imam odanam pacasi miçraddhadhāno; in b, lokañitiyaṁ svargyam (the comm. also has the better reading svargyam); in c, kṣeṣṭa sadasiyamānā; for d, viçvarūpā kāmadughā dhenur astu me. The verse is irregular in meter: 12+11 : 12+13=48.

35. Extolling a rice-mess offering.

[Prajāpati. — ātimartyam. * trāiṣṭubham : 3. bhurij ; 4. jagatī.]

Not found in Päipp. Used by Kāuç. (66. 11) in the sava sacrifices, with a sava for escaping death (atimṛtyu); and, according to the comm., also in the ceremony of expiation for the birth of twin calves (109. 1; he reads yam odanam itī, instead of yamāu janayati, which the edition has). * [The Berlin Anukr. reads ātimārcyam.]

Translated: Ludwig, p. 438; Griffith, i. 177; Weber, xviii. 139.

1. The rice-mess which Prajāpati, first-born of righteousness, cooked with fervor (tāpas) for Brahmán; which, separator of the worlds, shall not harm (?) — by that rice-mess let me overpass death.

For the obscure and questionable nā bhīrṣāt in c (no tense-stem rṣa occurs elsewhere in AV.) the comm. reads nābhīr ekā; Ludwig, ignoring accent and pada-text (nā: abhīrṣāt), understands nābhī-rṣāt "breach of the navel"; two of our mss. (O.Op.) read nābhīrṣām [and Weber conjectured nābhīr eṣām]. The refrain is found also as concluding pāda of a verse in Āp.ÇS. iv. 11. 3. The Anukr. does not note that b is jagatī.

2. That by which the being-makers overpassed death; which they discovered by fervor, by toil (çrama); which the brāhman of old cooked for Brahmán — by that rice-mess let me overpass death.

The comm. explains bhūtakṛtas as prāṇinām kartāro devāḥ, but ṛsayas is always the noun used with it.

3. That which sustained the all-nourishing earth; which filled the atmosphere with sap; which, uplifted, established the sky with might — by that rice-mess let me overpass death.

The comm. explains viçvabhōjasam by kṛtsnasya prāṇijātasya bhogayabhūtām.

4. That out of which were fashioned the thirty-spoked months; out of which was fashioned the twelve-spoked year; that which circling days-and-nights did not attain — by that rice-mess let me overpass death.

SPP. gives in c the pada-reading ahorātrāḥ, as required by the participle pariyāntas; all the pada-mss. have trā; the comm. has paryāntas, but explains it as paryāvartamānās, and says nothing about the abnormal form. The verse (11+13 : 11+11=46) is in no respect a jagatī; the ejection of yāsmāt in b would make it regular.

5. That which became breath-giving, possessing breath-giving ones(?); for which worlds rich in ghee flow; whose are all the light-filled directions — by that rice-mess let me overpass death.

The pada-text does not divide prāṇaddhī, and it makes the division prāṇaddhōvān, which the translation follows; our text (either by a misprint or by an unsuccessful attempt at emendation) reads -dāvān; -dāvā, as nom. of -dāvan, might be an improvement; the comm. reads -davām, viewing it as gen. pl. of prāṇa-dū, from dū 'burn,' and he explains it as "moribund" (mumūrṣu: prāṇāir jigamiṣubhiḥ paritāpyante!)

6. From which, when cooked, the immortal (amṛta) came into being; which was the over-lord of the gāyatrī; in which are deposited the Vedas of all forms — by that rice-mess let me overpass death.

Or amṛta is to be taken as the drink of immortality; the comm. (who simply adds dyulokastham) apparently so understands it.

7. I beat down the hater, the god-insulter; what rivals are mine, let them be [driven] away; I cook the all-conquering brāhman-rice-mess; let the gods hear me who am full of faith.

The comm. reads in a devaḥpīyūn; brahmāudanām he explains as brāhmaṇebhyo deyam odanam.

The seventh anuvāka, of 5 hymns and 37 verses, ends here; the old Anukr. says sapta cā 'pi bodhyāḥ.

36. Against demons and other enemies.

[Cātana. — satyāujasam. āgneyam. ānuṣṭubham: g. bhurij.*]

Not found in Pāipp. Not used individually by Kāuḥ., but only as one of the cātanaṇi (8.25). Our mss. of the Anukr. do not contain the expected definition of the hymn as one of ten stanzas (daṣṭarcam). *[The Berlin Anukr. reads sātyāujasam.]

Translated: Ludwig, p. 526; Grill, 3, 136; Griffith, i. 179; Bloomfield, 35, 407; Weber, xviii. 141.

1. Them let him of real force burn forth — Agni Vāiṣvānara, the bull; whoso shall abuse and seek to harm us, likewise whoso shall play the niggard toward us.

The comm. paraphrases durasyāt with duṣṭān ivā "caret: asmāsv avidyamānaṇi doṣam udbhāvayet. The Prāt. (iii. 18) allows both i and ī in denominatives like arāṭiy-, and its comment quotes this word as example of the former.

2. Whoso shall seek to harm us not seeking to harm, and whoso seeks to harm us seeking to harm — in the two tusks of Agni Vāiṣvānara do I set him.

All the mss. read in a dīpsat, which is accordingly retained by SPP.; our edition emends to dīpsāt to agree with vs. 1 c; the comm. also has dīpsāt; and it is favored by the ṣāpāt of the parallel expression in vi. 37. 3. With the second half-verse compare xvi. 7. 3.

3. They who hunt in assent (? āgarā), in counter-clamor (? pratīkroṣā), on new-moon [day], the flesh-eating ones, seeking to harm others — all those I overpower with power.

The obscure words āgarā and pratīkroṣā are here translated mechanically, according to their surface etymology. The comm. gets the former from gr or gir 'swallow,' and defines it as yuddharaṇga, because samanīād bhajyate mānsaṣṇīitādīkam atra; the latter is pratīkūlāiḥ ṣatrubhiḥ kṛta ākroṣe; while mṛgayante means "desire to injure us," and amāvāsyē "at midnight of a day of new moon"; he has no suspicion of any connection with the doings at an eclipse, as half suggested by Grill. The line is quite unintelligible, and very probably of corrupt text. Most of the pada-mss. have the false accent pratiokroçè. The comm. reads in c dipsanti for -tas.

4. I overpower the piçācds with power; I take to myself their property; I slay all the abusers; let my design be successful.

All the mss. read in a-b sáhasāiṣām, p. sáhasā: eṣām, instead of the obviously correct sáhasāiṣām, p. sáhasā: ā: eṣām [cf. note to iii. 14. 3]: it is one of the most striking blunders of the traditional text. The comm. understands the true reading, and it is restored by emendation in our edition; SPP. abides by the mss. In ḍ, the comm. has çam nas for sam me. The Anukr., by noting no irregularity of meter, seems to imply ā eṣām in b, but his descriptions are so little exact that the evidence is really of no value.

5. The gods that hasten (hās) with him — they measure speed with the sun — with those cattle (paçú) that are in the streams, in the mountains, I am in concord.

Doubtless corrupt in text, and incapable of yielding sense. Grill regards the verse as interpolated. [As for hās, see Bergaigne, Rel. Véd. i. 200 n.] The comm. guesses two wholly discordant and equally worthless explanations; in the first he takes devās as (from dīv 'play') "piçācas and the like," and hāsante as for hāsayanti 'cause to laugh'; in the second, he understands devās as vocative, and hāsante as for jihāsante [printed jihāsante] 'seek to leave.' One is tempted to find stenās instead of téna in a. The deficiency (unnoticed by the Anukr.) of a syllable in ḍ is an indication of a corrupt text.

6. I am a vexer (tápana) of the piçācds, as a tiger of them that have kine; like dogs on seeing a lion, they do not find a hiding-place (nyāñcana).

The comm. reads anu instead of na in ḍ. The meter requires 'smi in a.

7. I cannot [bear] with piçācds, nor with thieves, nor with savages (? vanargú); the piçācds disappear from that village which I enter.

Our P.M.W. read -viveçd for -viçd at the end. The comm. has naçyantū in c. He paraphrases sañ çaknōmi by sañçakto 'nupraviṣto bhavāmi, or by sañgato bhavāmi; and vanargū by vanagāmin.

8. Whatever village this formidable power of mine enters, from that the piçācds disappear; [there] they devise not evil.

The first pāda lacks a syllable, unless we resolve grā- into two syllables [or read yām-yām].

9. They who anger me, making a noise, as flies an elephant — them I think ill off, like mites (?) on a man (jāna).

The comm. (followed by a couple of SPP's authorities) has lipitās (= upadigdhāḥ sañkrāntāḥ) at end of a; the pada-mss. read lapitā, which SPP. in his pada-text emends to -tāḥ; but, as the participle in ta from such a root can hardly have an active sense, lapitvā would doubtless be a better alteration; the redundancy of a syllable, to be sure, would suggest deeper changes. Ālpaçayūn in ḍ, literally 'petty liars,' is conjecturally rendered, in accordance with the comm. (parimānato 'lpakāyāḥ çayanasva-bhāvāḥ sañcārākṣamāḥ kītāḥ). SPP. reads dūrhitān j- (instead of -tān or -tān [see note to i. 19. 4]), against the great majority of his mss. as well as all of ours ; instead of it the comm. has durhatān.

10. Let perdition halter him, as a horse with a horse-halter (-abhi-dhānī) ; the fool (malvā) that is angry at me, he is not loosed from the fetter.

The comm. (with one of SPP's mss.) has at the end mucyase, but explains it as a 3d sing. impv. : mukto na bhavatu ; an imperative would be welcome, if honestly come by. Malva he glosses with çatru. [As to abhi-dhā, cf. iii. 11. 8 and note.]

37. Against various superhuman foes : with an herb.

[Bādarāyaṇi.—dvādaçarcam. ajaçrṅgyapsarodevatyam. ānuṣṭubham : 3. 3-av. 6-p. triṣṭubh ; 5. prastārapañkti ; 7. paraṣṇih ; 11. 6-p. jaḡatī ; 12. nicṛt.]

Found (except vs. 9) in Pāipp. xiii. (in the verse-order 1-4, 7, 6, 5, 12, 8, 10, 11), but in a much defaced condition. Used by Kāuç. with the preceding hymn, as one of the cātanāni (8. 25) ; but also independently (28. 9) in a remedial rite against possession by evil spirits. And the comm. quotes it from Nakṣ. K. 21 [error for Çānti K., says Bloomfield], as employed in a mahāçānti called gāndharvī. [As to Bādarāyaṇi, see introduction to hymn 40.]

Translated: Kuhn, KZ. xiii. 118 (interesting Germanic parallels) ; Ludwig, p. 352 ; Griffith, i. 180 ; Bloomfield, 33, 408 ; Weber, xviii. 144.

1. By thee of old the Atharvans slew the demons, O herb ; by thee did Kaçyapa slay ; by thee Kaṇva, Agastya.

The comm. explains that one or other of the specified plants, the sahamānā etc., is here addressed.

2. By thee do we expel (cat) the Apsarases, the Gandharvas ; O goat-horned one, drive the demon ; make all disappear by [thy] smell.

'Drive' (aja) in c is a play upon the name goat (aja-) in 'goat-horned.' The comm. declares the epithet to be equivalent to viṣāṇin (Odina pinnata), and to be given on account of the shape of the fruit. [Dhanvantari, p. 23, Poona ed., gives meçaçrṅgī and viṣāṇikā as synonyms of ajaçrṅgī.] Ppp. has in b cātayāmasi instead of -mahe.

3. Let the Apsarases go to the stream, to the loud (?) down-blowing of the waters : Guggulū, Pilā, Naladī, Āukṣagandhi, Pramandanī : so go away, ye Apsarases ; ye have been recognized.

[See Weber's note and reference to Rumpelstilzchen.] Tārā in b is rendered "crossing" ; but as this sense is found nowhere else, it seems safer to take the word as the adjective, common later ; the comm. glosses it with tārayitāram, a worthless etymological guess. After it, instead of avaçvasam, the comm. reads iva svasam (= susṭhu nāupreranaḡaḡalam yathā), and, strangely enough, Ppp. has the same. As everywhere else where the word occurs, the mss. vary between gulḡulu and guggulu, and SPP. reads the former and our edition the latter ; here the decided majority, with Ppp. and the comm., give gulḡ- (our Bp.H.K. have gugg-). Pādas c and d appear to be made up of names of Apsarases, all formed upon odor-names : guggulū is fem. to gūḡgulu 'bdellium,' and naladī to nālada 'nard' ; pramandanī is related with pramanda 'a certain fragrant plant' ; and āukṣagandhi means something like 'ox-smell' ; but the comm. declares them to be pañca homadravyāni 'five articles of oblation'; Ppp. reads prabandhīni in ḍ. Most of our mss. accent apsarāsas in e, but SPP. reports only one of his as doing so; both editions read apsarasas. The comm. makes a different division of the material, reckoning the refrain (our e, f) as a verse with our 4 a, b, and omitting the refrain in 4 (much as it treated 34. 5-7 above); SPP. follows the Anukr. throughout (see under the next verse). The comm. reads in f pratibaddhās; prāti-buddhā abhūtana is found also as RV. i. 191. 5 ḍ. Ppp. adds between our ḍ and e yatrā marty apsv antaḥ: samudre turūnyarī turvaçī pundarīka (not followed by an avasāna-sign). The Anukr. definition of the verse ought to read jagatī instead of triṣṭubh. [In the prior draft, W. notes the suggestions concerning avaçvasām given by BR. i. 490 and OB. i. 126 and implying ava = 'away'; but rejects them.]

4. Where [are] the açvatthās, the nyagródhas, great trees, with crests: thither go away, ye Apsarases; ye have been recognized.

The division and numbering in our edition of this verse and the two next following is faulty, owing to the unclearness of the mss. first used; the correct division, agreeing with the Anukr., is given by SPP., and our translation follows it [and makes clear what it is]; vss. 3-5 all end with the refrain tāt páre 'tā- etc., and this, with the number 4, needs to be added in our text after çikhandīnaḥ. In Ppp., the place of this verse is taken by the addition reported above, under vs. 3. The comm. takes çikhandīn as meaning "peacocks"; he quotes TS. iii. 4. 8⁺ to the effect that certain trees, including açvatthā and nyagródha, are the houses of Gandharvas and Apsarases.

5. Where [are] your swings, green and whitish; where cymbals [and] lutes sound together — thither go away, ye Apsarases; ye have been recognized.

[Change the number 4 to 5 at the end of the first line of p. 74 of the edition.] The accent karkaryās as nom. plur. is false, and must be emended to -ryās, as read by SPP. with half of his mss., and a part (O.Op.D.) of ours (our P.M.W. give karkayās). Again nearly all our mss., with some of SPP's, accent apsarāsas in the refrain. Ppp. is quite corrupt: yatra vokhsā haritārjunā ghātāṣ karkarī asanivadanti. The first half-verse (13+11: 8+8) is irregular.

6. Hither hath come this mighty one (vīryāvant) of the herbs, of the plants; let the goat-horned arāṭakī, the sharp-horned, push out.

[Put a simple avasāna-mark in place of the number 5.] Arāṭakī seems to be used here as specific name of the herb in question; but the comm. takes it as epithet, deriving it from a-rā 'non-giving' with a derivative from aṭ 'go,' and meaning hīnsakān uccāṭayati! Ppp. adds two more pādas: ape'te'to'psaraso gandharvā yatra vo grhāḥ.

7. Of the hither-dancing, crested Gandharva, Apsaras-lord, I split the testicles, I bind fast (?) the member.

All the mss. read in c āpi yāmi, which SPP. accordingly retains; our emendation to dyāmi is unsatisfactory, both as regards the sense and because dā is not elsewhere used with āpi (neither is yā); one might also guess abhī yāmi "attack"; the comm. explains it by apigatām niruddham karomi, which is worthless. The comm. gives "peacock" as an alternative equivalent of çikhandīn with an implied comparison: "dancing like a peacock." Ppp. begins with īyam vīruc çikh-. [If the definition of the Anukr. (8+8: 12) is right, pāda c lacks a syllable.]

8. Terrible are Indra's missiles (heti), a hundred spears of iron ; with them let him push out the oblation-eating, āvakā-eating Gandharvas.

Half our mss., and the large majority of SPP's, read at the end of this verse ṛṣata ; both editions give ṛṣatu, as in the next verse. Avakā is defined as a certain grass-like marsh-plant, Blyxa octandra, the same with çāivāla or çāivāla ; the comm. defines it as jaloparisthāḥ çāivālavīṣeṣāḥ, but attempts no explanation of why the Gandharvas should be supposed to eat it. He reads in b çataprṣṭis (one feels tempted to emend rather to çatābhṛṣṭis), and in c abhihradān (for haviradān). The Anukr. takes no notice of the redundant syllable in c (also in g c).

9. Terrible are Indra's missiles, a hundred spears of gold ; with them let him push out the oblation-eating, āvakā-eating Gandharvas.

This very slightly varied repetition of vs. 8 is wanting in Ppp. All the mss. have ṛṣatu at the end here.

10. The āvakā-eating ones, scorching, making light (?) in the waters — all the piçācds, O herb, do thou slaughter and overpower.

All our pāda-mss. read in b jyotayaṃmānakān as a compound, and it seems very strange that SPP. gives in both forms of text jyotaya mānakān, as two independent words, and reports nothing different as found in any of his authorities ; it is perhaps an oversight on his part. Either reading being plainly untranslatable, the rendering given implies emendation to jyotayamānakān, as the simplest and most probable alteration ; several cases of such expansions of a participle in māna by an added -ka occur [Skt. Gram. § 1222 g, f ; cf. Bloomfield's note], one of them (pravartamānakā) even in RV. Ppp. reads as follows : avakāçam abhiçāco bicchi dyātayamānakām : gandharvān sarvān oṣadhe kṛṇu tasvaparāyanaḥ ; this supports the proposed reading in its most essential feature, -māna- for -māma-, and further favors the version of the comm., dyot- for jyot-. R., in the Festgruss an Böhlingk (p. 97), had ingeniously conjectured the word as a name for the will-o'-the-wisp, deriving it from jyotaya mām 'give me light,' by an added suffix -aka. The comm. paraphrases by matsambandhino gandharvān udakeṣu prakāçaya. [Cf. Whitney, Festgruss an Roth, p. 91 ; also note to ii. 3. 1.]

11. One as it were a dog, one as it were an ape, a boy all hairy—having become as it were dear to see, the Gandharva fastens upon (sac) women ; him we make disappear from here by [our] mighty (vīryāvant) incantation (brāhman).

In our edition, strīyam at the end of d is a misprint for strīyas, which all the mss. have, with no avasāna-mark following, though distinctly called for by the sense, and therefore supplied by us ; Ppp., however, reads strīyam, with sajate before it ; and it omits the last pāda, f : which omission would furnish an excuse for the absence of interpunction after strīyas.

12. Your wives, verily, are the Apsarases ; O Gandharvas, ye are [their] husbands ; run away, O immortal ones ; fasten not on mortals.

All the pāda-mss. commit in c the palpable error of dividing dhāvātāmartyā(h) into dhāvata : martyāh, as if the ā which follows dhāvāt- were one of the common prolongations of a final vowel in samhitā ; the comm., however, understands amartyāḥ, and SPP. admits this by emendation into his pāda-text. Ppp. has for c apakrūmat puruṣād amartyā, which supports amartyās in our text.

38. For luck in gambling: by aid of an Apsaras.

[Bādarāyaṇi. — dvidevatyam. ānuṣṭubham: 3. 6-p. 3-av. jagatī; 5. bhurigatyasṭi; 6. triṣṭubh; 7. 3-av. 5-p. anuṣṭubgarbhā puraupariṣṭājjyotiṣmatī jagatī.]

This and the two following hymns are not found in Pāipp. Kāuṣ. uses it (doubtless only the first four verses) in a ceremony (41. 13) for success in gambling. Verses 5-7 are called karkīpravādās and used (21. 11) in a rite for the prosperity of kine, and also (66. 13) in the sava sacrifices, with a karkī as sava; and they are reckoned (19. 1, note) to the puṣṭika mantras. The comm. attempts no explanation of the mutual relation of the two apparently unconnected parts of the hymn; [but Weber, in his note to verse 7, suggests a connection]. [As to Bādarāyaṇi, see introd. to h. 40.]

Translated: Muir, OST. v. 430 (vss. 1-4); Ludwig, p. 454; Grill, 71 (vss. 1-4), 140; Griffith, i. 183; Bloomfield, 149, 412; Weber, xviii. 147.

1. The up-shooting, all-conquering, successfully-playing Apsaras, that wins (kṛ) the winnings in the pool (? glāha)—that Apsaras I call on here.

The form apsarā, instead of apsarās, is used throughout this hymn; the comm. regards it as a specialized name for the Apsaras in this character or office: dyūtakriyā-dhīdevatām apsarajāṭīyām. Udbhindatīm is paraphrased by paṇabandhena dhanasyo 'dbhedananī kurvatīm, as if it were the causative participle. The technical terms of the game are only doubtfully translated, our knowledge of its method being insufficient; glāha is taken as the receptacle, of whatever kind, in which the stakes are deposited; the comm. explains it thus: gr̥hyate paṇabandhena kalpyata. itī dyūtakriyājeyo (mss. -jayo) 'rtho glahaḥ.

2. The distributing (vi-ci), on-strewing (ā-kir), successfully-playing Apsaras, that seizes (grah) the winnings in the pool—that Apsaras I call on here.

The comm. explains the first two epithets respectively by “collecting” (taking vi as intensive) and “scattering.”

3. She who dances about with the dice (? āya), taking to herself the winning from the pool—let her, trying to gain (?) for us the winnings, obtain the stake (? prahā) by magic (māyā); let her come to us rich in milk; let them not conquer from us this riches.

The wholly anomalous sīṣatī in c is here translated, in accordance with the current understanding of it, as somehow coming from the root san or sā [i.e., as if it were for the normal st-ṣā-s-atī: considering that the consonant of the root sā happens to coincide with the sibilant which is characteristic of the desiderative, we might be tempted to put sīṣant: sā: : sīkṣant: sah (Skt. Gram. § 1030 a), but for the accent]; the comm. reads instead ṣeṣantī (= avaṣeṣayantī). The comm. further has in b ādadhānas (explained as = ādadhānā: so SPP's K. reads), and in d prahān (= prahantavyān akṣān: a false etymology and worthless interpretation). He explains ayās as ekādayaḥ pañca-saṅkhyāntā akṣaviṣeṣāḥ. He divides our vss. 3-5 into four verses of four pādas each, without any regard to the connection of sense, thus giving the hymn eight verses; among our mss. also (SPP. reports nothing of the kind from his) there is more or less discordance in regard to the verse-division, and some of them agree with the comm. [Our sīṣatī appears in W's Index Verborum, p. 382, at the very end of the “unclassified residuum” of AV. material.]

4. She who delights (pra-mud) in the dice (akṣā), bringing (bhṛ) pain and anger — the rejoicing, the delighting one : that Apsaras I call on here.

The translation implies retention of bībhraṭī at end of b, read by all the mss. and by the comm., and retained by SPP., and the emendation instead in a to yā' kṣṣu pramódate, which is metrically better, makes better connection, and has the support of the comm., with one [or two] of SPP's authorities. SPP's note to bībhraṭī, "so read except by K. who follows Sāyana," is unintelligible, since the latter has also bībhraṭī. [Delete the accent-mark under huve.]

5. They who (f.) go about (sam-car) after the rays of the sun, or who go about after [its] beams (mārici); of whom the mighty (? vājīnīvant) bull from afar moves around (pari-i) at once all the worlds, defending — let him come unto us, enjoying this libation, together with the atmosphere, he the mighty one.

According to the comm., the "they who" and "of whom" in a and c are the Apsaras, this being apparently to him the tie of connection between the two divisions of the hymn; and vājīnī is the dawn, and vājīnīvant the sun : all of which is very questionable, at least. SPP. reads in ḍ paryāṭī, with, as he states, the majority of his mss., but with only two of ours; the comm. has paryeṭī, and it is also thus quoted by the comment to Prāt. iv. 81. SPP. further leaves the final n of sārvān unassimilated before lokān, for the wholly insufficient reason that nearly all his mss. so read; the point is one that requires to be regulated by the prescriptions of general grammar and of the Prāt., without heed to the carelessness of scribes. The passage is even one of those quoted under Prāt. ii. 35 as an example of assimilation. The metrical definition of the Anukr. is inaccurate, and perhaps corrupt; the verse (12+11 : 12+11 : 11+11=68) should be specified as of 6 pādas and 3 avasānas, like vs. 3; it is not bhurij; and for atyasṭī the [London, not the Berlin ms.] reads jagatyasṭī. [One is tempted to suspect the syllable saṁ- in a. Pronounce yāsarṣabhó in c.]

6. Together with the atmosphere, O mighty one; defend thou here the karkī calf, O vigorous one (vājīn); here are abundant drops (stokā) for thee; come hitherward; this is thy karkī; here be thy mind.

The comm. reads in a vājīnīvān, as in 5 f; in b he has karkīn vatsān (and one of SPP's mss. gives karkīn); and, in ḍ, namas instead of manas, and SPP. reports three of his four pāda-mss. as also having nāmas. The comm. explains karkī as karkavarṇa or ṣubhra. The minor Pet. Lex. suggests the emendation of vatsān to vaṣān in this verse and the next. Three of SPP's mss. and one of ours (O.) separate karkī ihā in saṁhitā in ḍ. The Anukr. ignores the deficiency of a syllable in b.

7. Together with the atmosphere, O mighty one; defend thou here the karkī calf, O vigorous one; this is fodder; this is the pen; here we bind (ni-bandh) the calf; according to name we master you : hail!

The comm., with one of SPP's oral authorities, has again vatsān in b, and also vatsān in ḍ (this time, with our P.M.W.E.). Kāuṣ. (21. 11) quotes c and ḍ, with the direction to do "as directed in the text"; the comm. [Keçava] explains that a rope is to be prepared with twelve ties (dāman); and that with c fodder is to be offered to the kine, and with ḍ the calves are to be tied to the rope. If this is correct, the reading would seem to be properly vatsān in all cases, and perhaps karkyā(h) vatsān in 6 b and 7 b

(thus filling out the meter). The mss. add (as directed by the Anukr.) a second avasāna-sign after badhnīmaḥ, and SPP. retains it. The verse (11+10: 8+8: 10=47) falls short of a full jagatī by the amount of the deficiency in b. [I think karkyās, as a genitive sing. fem., ought to be oxytone (JAOS. x. 385); but karkyās, pronounced karkto, might be better.]

39. For various blessings.

[Aṅgīras. — daṣarcam. sāmnatyam. nānādevatyam. pāṅktam: 1, 3, 5, 7. 3-p. mahābṛhatī; 2, 4, 6, 8. saṁstārapaṅkti; 9, 10. triṣṭubh.*]

This prose-hymn (the two concluding verses metrical) is, as already noted, wanting in Pāipp. A similar passage is found in TS. (vii. 5. 23). The hymn is used by Kāuṣ. in the parvan sacrifices (5. 8) with the sāmnaṭi offerings, and vss. 9 and 10 earlier in the same ceremonies with two so-called purastāddhomas (3. 16); also the hymn again in the rites (59. 16) for satisfaction of desires. Verse 9 appears in Vāit. (8. 11) in the cāturmāsya rites, with an offering by the adhvaryu. * [The Anukr. gives Brahman as the ṛṣi of 9 and 10.]

Translated: Griffith, i. 184; Weber, xviii. 150.

1. On the earth they paid reverence (sam-nam) to Agni; he throve (ṛdḥ); as on earth they paid reverence to Agni, so let the reverencers pay reverence to me.

The TS. version reads thus: agnāye sām anamat pṛthivyāt sām anamad yāthā ṛgnḥ pṛthivyāt (!) samānamad evām māhyam bhadrāḥ sāmnatayaḥ sām namantu. The comm. explains sām anaman by sarvāṇi bhūtāni sāmnatāni upasannāni bhavanti, and sāmnamas by abhilaṣitaphalasya sāmnatayaḥ samprāptayaḥ. The metrical definitions of the Anukr. for vss. 1-8 are of no value; the odd verses vary from 34 to 37 syllables, and the even from 38 to 40. [We might have expected the epithet tryavasāna (3-av.) to be applied to the even.]

2. Earth [is] milch-cow; of her Agni [is] calf; let her, with Agni as calf, milk for me food (īṣ), refreshment, [my] desire, life-time first, progeny, prosperity, wealth: hail!

There is in TS. nothing to correspond to our vss. 2, 4, 6, 8. Our edition combines āyusḥ pṛ-, because required by Prāt. ii. 75; but the mss., except one of SPP's, have āyuh pṛ-, which SPP. retains.

3. In the atmosphere they paid reverence to Vāyu; he throve; as in the atmosphere they paid reverence to Vāyu, so let the reverencers pay reverence to me.

TS. has a corresponding passage, in the form as given above.

4. The atmosphere is milch-cow; of her Vāyu is calf; let her, with Vāyu as calf, milk for me etc. etc.

The comm. has tasya 'of it (i.e. the atmosphere),' instead of tasyās.

5. In the sky they paid reverence to Āditya; he throve; as in the sky they paid reverence to Āditya, so let the reverencers pay reverence to me.

The corresponding TS. passage has sūrya instead of ādityā.

6. The sky is milch-cow; of her Āditya is calf; let her, with Āditya as calf, milk for me etc. etc.

[In the edition, sá is misprinted for sā.]

7. In the quarters they paid reverence to the moon (candrā); it throve; as in the quarters they paid reverence to the moon, so let the reverencers pay reverence to me.

In TS., the asterisms (nákṣatra) are here connected with the moon; and there follow similar passages respecting Varuṇa with the waters, and several other divinities.

8. The quarters are milch-cows; of them the moon is calf; let them, with the moon as calf, milk for me etc. etc.

Both editions read duhām in this verse, as in vss. 2, 4, 6, following the authority of nearly all the mss.; only our H.D. have the true reading, duhrām, which ought to have been adopted in our text.

9. Agni moves (car), entered into the fire, son of the seers, protector against imprecation; with homage-paying, with homage, I make offering to thee; let us not make falsely the share of the gods.

That is (a), 'Agni is continually to be found in the fire.' Three of SPP's authorities read mānasā in c, thus ridding the verse of an objectionable repetition; but both editions give nāmasā, which the comm. also has. In d our edition has karmabhāgām, following our pada-mss. (which read karmaabhāgām); but SPP. has correctly, with his mss. and the comm. (= mā kārṣṇa), karma bhāgām. More or less of the verse is found in several other texts: thus, in VS. (v. 4) only a, b, ending b with abhiçastipāvā; in MS. (i. 2. 7), with adhirājā eśāh at end of b, a wholly different c, and, for d, mā devānām yūyupāma bhāgadhéyam; in MB. (ii. 2. 12), only a, b, with b ending as in MS.; in TS. (i. 3. 7²), the whole verse, b ending like MS., c beginning with svāhābhītya brāhmaṇā, and d ending with mithuyā kar bhāgadhéyam; in TB. (ii. 7. 15¹), the whole, beginning with vyāghrē yām agnāu car-, and ending b with -pā ayām, its c and d agreeing throughout with ours; in AÇS. (viii. 14. 4), the whole, but ending b* like MS. and TS., and having for c, d tasmāi juhomi haviṣā ghytena mā devānām momuhad bhāgadheyam; [in Ppp., the whole verse, just as in AÇS., except that a ends with praviṣṭā and that d has yūyavad for momuhad and (unless mām is a slip of Roth's pen) mām for mā]. [See Bloomfield's discussion of mithuyā kar, ZDMG. xlviii. 556.] The meter (10+11: 12+11=44) is irregular, but the Anukr. takes no notice of it. * [The Calcutta ed. has avirāja eśāh, misprint for adhi-.]

10. Purified with the heart, with the mind, O Jātavedas — knowing all the ways (vayūna), O god; seven mouths are thine, O Jātavedas; to them I make offering — do thou enjoy the oblation.

Pūtām in a can only qualify havyām in d: compare RV. iv. 58. 6 b, antār hṛdā mānasā pūyāmānāh. The pada-text makes one of its frequent blunders by resolving in c saptāsyāni into saptā: āsyāni instead of into saptā: āsyāni, the designation of the accent in samhitā being the same in both cases, according to its usual method. SPP. accepts the blunder, reading āsyāni.

It is impossible to see why these two concluding verses should have been added to the hymn.

40. Against enemies from the different quarters.

[Çukra.—* kṛtyāpratiharāṇam. bahudevatyam. trāiṣṭubham: 2, 8. jagatī (8. puro'ṭṭakvārī pādāyuj).]

Not found in Pāipp. Somewhat similar formulas are met with in TB. (iii. 11. 5) and ĀpÇS. (vi. 18. 3). Used in Kāuç., with ii. 11 etc., in the preparation of holy water for the counteraction of witchcraft (39. 7), and reckoned to the kṛtyāpratiharāṇa gaṇa (ib., note). * [The Berlin ms. of the Anukr. adds the expected aṣṭarcam.—Weber, in a footnote, p. 152, says that the remarks of the Anukr. on vs. 8 suggest that the author of the Anukr. was a Vedantist. Hence his attribution of hymns 37 and 38 to Bādarāyaṇi.]

Translated: Griffith, i. 185; Weber, xviii. 152.

1. They who make offering from in front, O Jātavedas, [who] from the eastern quarter vex us — having come upon (r̥) Agni, let them stagger (vyath) away; I smite them back with the reverter (pratisarā).

Pratisara, the comm. says, means pratimukhaṁ nivartata abhicārikaṁ karmā 'nena; and juhvatī means homenā 'smān abhicaranti. The analogous formula in the other texts reads thus: prācī dīg agnir devātā: agnīm sá dīçām devām devātānām r̥cchatu yó māi 'tāsyāi dīçò 'bhidāsati (so TB.; ĀpÇS. omits dīçām devām devātānām).

The verses have slight metrical irregularities which are ignored by the Anukr.

2. They who make offering from the right, O Jātavedas, [who] from the southern quarter vex us — having come upon Yama, let them etc. etc.

The other texts make Indra the god of the southern quarter. [See Weber's note, p. 153.]

3. They who make offering from behind, O Jātavedas, [who] from the western quarter vex us — having come upon Varuṇa, let them etc. etc.

The other texts say Soma instead of Varuṇa.

4. They who make offering from above, O Jātavedas, [who] from the northern quarter vex us — having come upon Soma, let them etc. etc.

Nearly all the mss. (all ours save O.Op.; all but three of SPP's) strangely accent sómam in this verse; both editions emend to sómam. In the other texts, Mitra and Varuṇa are the divinities invoked for the northern quarter.

5. They who make offering from below, O Jātavedas, [who] from the fixed quarter vex us — having come upon Earth, let them etc. etc.

Here, again, part of our mss. (E.I.H.), and nearly all SPP's, give the false accent bhūmīm; both editions read bhūmim. The other texts associate Aditi with "this quarter," or "the quarter here," as they style it.

6. They who make offering from the atmosphere, O Jātavedas, [who] from the midway (vyadhvā) quarter vex us — having come upon Vāyu, let them etc. etc.

The comm. understands vyadhva as "trackless" (vigatā adhvāno yasyām). The other texts take no notice of such a quarter.

7. They who make offering from aloft, O Jātavedas, [who] from the upward quarter vex us — having come upon Sūrya, let them etc. etc.

The other texts associate Bṛhaspati with this quarter.

8. They who make offering from the intermediate directions of the quarters, O Jātavedas, [who] from all the quarters vex us — having come upon the brāhman, let them etc. etc.

Several of our mss. accent dīgbhyó 'bhiddās. The other texts have nothing that corresponds to this verse.

This, the eighth and concluding anuvāka of the book, has 5 hymns and 47 verses; the quotation from the old Anukr. is saptadaçā 'ntyah, to which is added ṣadarcava ca.

Here ends also the ninth prapāṭhaka.

One of our mss. (I.) sums up the content of the book as 323 verses; the true number is 324. [Observe that the last vs. of hymn 20 is numbered 7 when it should be 9.]

Book V.

[The fifth book is made up of thirty-one hymns, divided into six anuvāka-groups, with five hymns in each group save the fourth, which has six hymns. The Old Anukramaṇī appears to take 60 verses as the norm of an anuvāka. The number of verses in each hymn ranges from 8 to 18. The Major Anukramaṇī assumes 8 verses as the normal length of a hymn of this book (see p. 142); but there are only two such hymns ("hymns" 9 and 10, both prose!). In fact,

There are in this book,	2	4	2	6	5	3	3	3	2	1	hymns,
Containing respectively	8	9	10	11	12	13	14	15	17	18	verses.

The entire book has been translated by Weber, Indische Studien, vol. xviii. (1898), pages 154-288. This is the first book to which the native commentary is missing.]

1. Mystic.

[Byhaddiva Atharvan. — navakam. vārunam. trāiṣṭubham: 5. (?) parābr̥hatī trīṣṭubh; 7. virāj; 9. 3-av. 6-p. atyaṣṭi.]

Found also in Pāipp. vi. Much and variously used by Kāuṣ., but in situations that have nothing to do with the meaning of the hymn, and cast no light upon its difficulties: thus, it is employed with the following hymn in a battle-rite (15. 1), for victory; and the two hymns together again in a ceremony (22. 1) for welfare, while hymns 1 to 3 (and v. 1. 3 separately) are reckoned [19. 1, note] to the puṣṭika mantras; vs. 1 alone (with vi. 17 and another) appears in a ceremony (35. 12) against abortion; vss. 2-9, in one (35. 13 ff.) for the benefit of a person seized by jambha; vs. 3 is further applied in a charm (21. 12) for good-fortune in regard to clothing; vs. 4, in a women's rite (34. 20) for winning a husband; vs. 5 (with iii. 30, vi. 64, etc.) in a rite (12. 5) for harmony; vs. 6, in the nuptial ceremonies (76. 21), on marking seven lines to the north of the fire, and again (79. 1), with an offering at the beginning of the fourth-day observances; vs. 7, in a remedial rite (28. 12) for one in misery (amati), giving him a portion, and again, in the ceremony against false accusation (46. 1), with vii. 43; vs. 8 in a rite for prosperity (21. 15), on occasion of the division of an inheritance; and vs. 9, later (21. 17) in the last-mentioned ceremony.

The hymn is intentionally and most successfully obscure, and the translation given is in great part mechanical, not professing any real understanding of the sense. It is very probable that the text is considerably corrupted; and one cannot avoid the impression also that the lines are more or less disconnected, and artificially combined.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 394; Griffith, i. 187; Weber, xviii. 157.

1. He who came to (ā-bhū) the womb (yóni) with a special sacred text (? īdhañmantra), of immortal spirit (-ásu), increasing, of good birth, of unharmed spirit, shining like the days — Trita the maintainer maintained three (trí, neuter).

The Pet. Lexx. render īdhañmantra by "lacking speech"; Ludwig, by "of distinguished meditation." Ahe 'va (p. āhāviva) is perhaps rather to be understood as āhāviva. Ppp. puts sujanmā in b before vardhamānas. As elsewhere, part of our mss. (Bp.p.m.P.M.W.) read trítas in d. The last pāda is two syllables short, the Anukr. taking no notice of the deficiency.

2. He who first attained to (ā-sad) the ordinances (dhárman) makes thence many wondrous forms; eager (? dhāsyú) he first entered the womb (yóni), he who understood (ā-cit) speech unspoken.

In b the translation follows Ppp., which reads kr̥nute for -uṣe; Ppp. also has a different c, yaç ca yonim̐ prathamā "viveça; and it ends d with anucitām̐ jigāya.

3. He who left (ric) [his] body to thy heat (çóka), flows the gold; his [men] are bright (çúci) after; there they (two) assume (dhā) immortal names; let the clans (víç) send garments for us.

The first pāda might equally mean "he who left thy body (self) to the heat." In b, ksárat might equally be pres. pple. qualifying htranyam. In d the translation assumes the reading asmé instead of asmāi; nearly all the mss. have the former (p. asmé tti; P.M.W. have asmāi, but doubtless only by the not infrequent error of substituting āi for e), and our understanding of the sense is too defective to justify emendations; Ppp., however, has asmí. In c, Ppp. reads atra dadhr̥ṣe 'mrt. The Kāuç. use of the verse appears to be derived only from the occurrence of vāstrāni in d.

4. When these formerly went further forth, approaching each unfading seat — the poet of the dry (? çuṣá), the two licking mothers — do ye (two) send for the sister (jāmí) a capable (dhúrya) spouse.

The translation is, of course, simple nonsense. None of [our] mss. accent gus in a; P.M. accent púr̥vyām before it; one (T.) combines -nto 'juryám in b.

5. This great homage, verily, to thee, O broad-going one, do I a poet make with poesy (kāvya); when the two (m.), going united (samyáñc) against the earth (kṣá), [then] increase here the (two) great bank-wheeled (? ródhacakra) ones (f.).

"Bank-wheeled," i.e. rolling on between their banks. Tái in our text (beginning of c) is a misprint for yát. Prāt. iii. 4 determines ū; ii. 97 determines śú; vāvr̥dhete (p. vav-) is by iii. 13. The Kāuç. use of the verse seems suggested simply by samyáñcāu. The irregular verse (9+11: 11+12=43) is very imperfectly defined by the Anukr. [The London ms. of the Anukr. is here in disorder: and perhaps we ought to read puro-br̥hatī for parā.]

6. Seven bourns (maryádā) did the poets fashion; unto one of these verily went one distressed; in the nest of the nearest (upamá) community (? āyú) stood the pillar (skambhá), at the release (visargá) of the roads, in the supports (dhavīṇa).

The verse is a RV. one, from a mystic and obscure hymn (x. 5. 6); RV. puts id after ékām in b, and in c accents upamāsya nīdē, which alone is acceptable; all our mss. give upamāsya, which our edition follows; and all save one (D.) read nīde without accent, which we emended to nīdē. Ppp. gives in b tāsām anekām, and omits, probably by an oversight, the second half-verse. "The life of mankind is compared to a race-track, on which the gods have marked many (seven) stations; each generation (yuga) reaches only one such goal, getting as far as the place where the next begins; there its road terminates." R.

7. Also, of immortal spirit, vowed (? vrāta), I go performing; spirit, soul, of the body then (? tāt) with kine (? sumādgu); and either the mighty one (çakrā) assigns treasure, or as the oblation-giver pursues (? sac) with refreshment.

This verse and vs. 5 [4?] are the most utterly hopeless of the hymn; even the conjectures of the comm. respecting them would be welcome. Ludwig renders sumādgu by "erfreut gegangen." For b, Ppp. reads asurāṣ pūtas svadhayā samādgu; in c, vā jyeṣṭho ratnā. Vā in c in our text is a misprint for vā. The verse lacks only one syllable of being a full triṣṭubh, and that deficiency might be made up by reading either çakrās or ratnam as trisyllabic. [A barytone vrāta is unknown elsewhere.]

8. Also son prays (? īḍ) father for dominion; they called for well-being him of the chief bourn (?); may they see now, O Varuṇa, those that are thy shapes (viṣṭhā); mayest thou make wondrous forms of the one much rolling hither.

The translation implies emendation in b to the compound jyeṣṭhāmaryādām,* i.e. 'him who has received the best domain.' In d our āvārvratatas is for the -rvrat- of all the mss.; it can hardly be that the text of this pāda is not further corrupt. The verbs in c, d are augmentless forms, and may, of course, be rendered indicatively. Ppp. begins the verse with putro vā yat pit-, and ends b with svastī. The Kāuṣ. use of this verse and the next is apparently founded on the occurrence in them of "son" and "father" and "half." The second pāda is properly jagatī. * [No ms. has -dām.]

9. Half with half milk thou mixest (? pṛc); with half, O Asura (?), thou increasest [thy] vehemence (?). We have increased the helpful (çagmīya) companion, Varuṇa, lively (iṣirā) son of Aditi; poet-praised wondrous forms have we spoken for him—the (two) firmaments (rōdasī) of true speech.

This translation implies several emendations (or, at least, alterations): in b, çuṣmam, which Ppp. has, instead of the vocative çuṣma, and asura, again with Ppp. (perhaps better *amūra 'not foolish' ? cf. I. I. 5, below); in c, āvīrvdhāma, which also Ppp. gives, while one or two of our mss. offer āvīrvdhāma (D.) and avīrvdhāma (Kp.). In f ought to be accented āvocāma; the pāda-mss., as elsewhere in such cases, mark the pāda-division after the word, thus reckoning it to e, which is obviously wrong. Some of our mss. (O.D.K.) accent in a prnāksi, which is the better reading, the case being one of antithetical accent. Ppp. further has çavasā for payasā in a, vardhayase 'sura' in b, adīter in d, and -vācāu at the end. The verse (11+11: 11+11: 10 (9?)+11=65 [64?]) is more nearly an aṣṭī than an atyāṣṭī. * [This is given by some of SPP's authorities.]

2. Mystic.

[Bṛhadāraṇyaka Atharvan. — navakam. vāruṇam. trāiṣṭubham : 9. bhurik parātijāgatā.]

Found also in Pāipp. v. It is a RV. hymn (x. 120); and the first three verses occur in other texts. For the use of the hymn with its predecessor in Kāuṣ. 15. 1 and 22. 1 and 19. 1, note, see above, under h. 1; it is further applied, with vii. 1, in a kāmya rite (59. 17), with worship of Indra and Agni. The various verses appear also as follows: vs. 3, in a rite for prosperity (21. 21); vs. 4, with vi. 13 in a battle-rite (15. 6); vs. 5 in a similar rite (15. 8); vs. 6, in another (15. 9), and yet again, with vi. 125, and vii. 3 etc., as the king and his charioteer mount a new chariot (15. 11); vs. 7, next after vs. 3 (21. 23), with the holding of a light on the summit of an ant-hill; and vs. 8 in a women's rite [34. 21], next after v. 1. 4 — all artificial uses, having no relation to the texts quoted in them.

Translated: by the RV. translators; and Griffith, i. 189; Weber, xviii. 164.

1. That, verily was the chief among beings whence was born the formidable one, of bright manliness; as soon as born, he dissolves [his] foes, when all [his] aids (ūma) revel after him.

RV. reads in ḍ ānu yāni ulṣve mādanty ūmāḥ, and all the other texts (SV. ii. 833; VS. xxxiii. 80; AA. i. 3. 4) agree with it. The Anukr. ignores the considerable metrical irregularities.

2. Increasing with might (śāvas), he of much force, a foe, assigns (dhā) fear to the barbarian, winning (n.) both what breathes not out and what breathes out; brought forward (n.), they resound together for thee in the revelings.

Sense and connection are extremely obscure; but all the texts (SV. ii. 834; AA. as above) agree throughout. Prābhṛtā, of course, might be loc. sing. of -ti. Sāsni in c is (with Grassmann) rendered as if it were sāsniś.

3. In thee they mingle skill abundantly, when they twice, thrice become [thine] aids; unite thou with sweet (svādū) what is sweeter than sweet; mayest thou fight against yonder honey with honey (mādhu).

RV. differs only by reading vṛñjanti ulṣve at end of a; and SV. (ii. 835) and AA. (as above) agree with it throughout; as does also Ppp.; TS. (iii. 5. 10^r) begins ḍ with āta ā śū, and ends it with yodhi, which looks like a more original reading. [Cf. Geldner, Ved. Stud. ii. 10.]

4. If now after thee that conquerest riches in contest after contest (rāṇa) the devout ones (vīpra) revel, more forcible, O vehement one, extend thou what is stanch; let not the ill-conditioned Kaçokas damage thee.

RV. begins a with tī cid dhī tvā, and b with māde-māde; in c it reads (with Ppp.) dhṛṣṇo for çuṣmin, and at the end of the verse yātudhānā durevāḥ; Ppp. has instead ḍurevā yātudhānāḥ.

5. By thee do we prevail in the contests, looking forward to many things to be fought [for]; I stir up thy weapons with spells (vācas); I sharpen up thy powers (vāyas) with incantation (brāhman).

RV. and Ppp. have no variants.

6. Thou didst set that down in the lower and the higher, in what abode (duroṇā) thou didst aid with aid; cause ye to stand there the moving mother; from it send ye many exploits.

RV. and Ppp. put the verse after our 7. Ppp. has no variants; RV. reads in a āvaram pāram ca, and, for c, ḍ, ā mātārā sthāpayase jigatnū āta inoṣi kārvarā purūṇi: a quite different, but little less obscure version of the text: “Indra checks the revolution of the sky, in order to gain time for his deeds.” R.

7. Praise thou fully, O summit, the many-tracked, skilful (? ṛbhvan), most active (inā) Āptya of the Āptyas; may he look on with might, he of much force; may he overpower the counterpart of the earth.

The RV. version is different throughout: stusēyyam puruvārpaṣam ṛbhvam inātaman āptyām āptyānām: ā darṣate cāvasā sapitā dānūn prā sākṣate pratimānūni bhūtri; and with this Ppp. agrees. The translation follows our text servilely, as it may be called, save in the obviously unavoidable emendation of āptām to āptyām in b; O. is our only ms. that reads āptyām. The verse is far too irregular to be let pass as merely a trīṣṭubh.

8. These incantations (brāhman) may Brihaddiva, foremost heaven-winner, make, a strain (ṣūṣā) for Indra; he rules, an autocrat, over the great stall (gotrā); may he, quick (? tūra), rich in fervor, send (?) all.

The fourth pāda is attempted to be rendered literally from our text, although this is plainly a gross corruption of the RV. text: dūraṣ ca vṣvā avṛṇod āpa svāḥ. RV. has also before it svarājas, and in a vivakti for krnavat. Ppp. agrees with RV. throughout. Svarṣās (p. svaḥosāḥ) is prescribed by Prāt. ii. 49.

9. So hath the great Brihaddiva Atharvan spoken of his own self (tanū) [as of] Indra; the two blameless, mother-growing sisters — [men] both impel them with might (cāvas) and increase them.

The second half-verse seems again a corruption of the RV. version, which has plurals instead of duals in c, and omits the meter-disturbing ene (p. ene tti) in d. Ppp. again agrees with RV.; but in b it has tanum for tanvam. Our text should give, with the others, mātarbhvar- in c; all the mss. have it. [The vs. is svarāj rather than bhurij.]

3. To various gods: for protection and blessings.

[Bṛhaddiva Atharvan. — ekādaśakam. āgneyam: 1, 2. agnim astāut; 3, 4. devān; 5. draviṇo-dādiṣṭārīhanam; 6, 9, 10. vāiṣvadevī; 7. sāumī; 8, 11. āindrī. trīṣṭubham: 2. bhurij; 10. virādjaḡatī.]

Found also in Pāipp. v. (in the verse-order 1-6, 8, 9, 11, 7, 10). It is a RV. hymn, x. 128 (which has the verse-order 1, 3, 5, 4, 6, 2, 9, 8, 10), with its nine verses changed to eleven by the expansion of vs. 5 into two, and by the addition at the end of a verse which is found also in the RV. mss., but not as an acknowledged part of the text. The RV. verses, including this last, are found in their RV. order, and with unimportant variants, in TS. iv. 7. 14¹⁻⁴.

The hymn is variously employed by Kāuṣ. : in the parvan sacrifices (1. 33), at entering on the vow; in rites (12. 10) for glory; in one for prosperity (22. 14; and it is reckoned to the puṣṭika mantras, 19. 1, note); in one for avoidance of quarrels (38. 26 : so Keç.), with tying on an amulet of a kind of rope; and in a witchcraft process (49. 15) against an enemy; further, vs. 11, with vii. 86 and 91, in the indramahotsava (140. 6). In Vāit., in the parvan sacrifices, it (or vs. 1) accompanies the addition of fuel to the three sacrificial fires (1. 12); and vs. 1-4 the propitiation of the gods on commencing sacrifice (1. 14).

Translated : by the RV. translators ; and Griffith, i. 192 ; Weber, xviii. 172.

1. Be splendor mine, O Agni, in rival invocations (vihavā) ; may we, kindling thee, adorn ourselves ; let the four directions bow to me ; with thee as overseer may we conquer the fighters.

The other texts (with MS. i. 4. 1) have no variants in this verse. Ppp. appears to read prathema for puṣema in b.

2. O Agni, pushing back the fury of our adversaries, do thou, our keeper (gopā), protect us about on all sides ; let our abusers (durasyū) go away downwards ; among themselves (amā) let the intent of them awaking be lost.

RV's version of b, c reads thus : ādabāho gopāḥ pāri pāhi naṣ tvām : pratyānco yantu nigūtaḥ pūnas té ; and TS. has the same. But TS. also reads agnis at the beginning, purāstāt for pāreṣām in a, and prabūdā in d. Ppp. has prabudhā for nivṛtā in c, and, for d, mamiṣām cittaṁ bahudhā vi naçyatu. The verse is properly svarāj, b as well as c being jagati. [Correct gūpāḥ to gopāḥ.]

3. Let all the gods be at my separate call — the Maruts with Indra, Vishṇu, Agni ; let the broad-spaced atmosphere be mine ; let the wind blow (pū) for me unto this desire.

RV. reads at the end kāme asmīn, and Ppp. agrees with it, also TS. TS. has further indrāvantas in b, and in c, strangely enough, urū gopām, as two separate words.

4. Let what sacrifices I make make sacrifice for me ; let my mind's design be realized (satyā) ; let me not fall into (ni-gā) any sin soever ; let all the gods defend me here.

RV. and TS. read yajantu and havyā (for iṣṭā) in a, and, for d, vīçve devāso ādhi vocatā naḥ (but TS. me). Ppp. agrees with our text except for ending with mām iha.

5. On me let the gods bestow (ā-yaj) property ; with me be blessing (āçts), with me divine invocation ; may the divine invokers (hōtar) win that for us ; may we be unharmed with our self (tanū), rich in heroes.

RV. has for c dāivyā hōtāro vanuṣanta pūrve ; and TS. the same, except hōtārā and vaniṣanta. One or two of our mss. (Bp.H.) read saniṣam in c. Ppp. begins a with māhyam, and has mama for mayi both times in b.

6. Ye six divine wide ones, make wide [space] for us ; all ye gods, revel here ; let not a portent find us, nor an imprecation ; let not the wrong that is hateful find us.

Only the first half-verse is RV. material, forming its vs. 5 with our 7 c, d; the latter half-verse we have had already as i. 20. 1 c, d. RV. and TS. begin with dévās, and end b with vīrayadhvam; and TS. oddly combines ṣaḍurvīs as a compound word; RV. reads naḥ after it, and TS. naḥ; our mss. are divided between the two, but with a great preponderance for naḥ (only E.I.H. have naḥ), so that it is more probably to be regarded as the AV. reading. Ppp. gives uru nas karātha; it has the second half-verse of the other texts. Some of our mss. accent urōs in a (Bp.P.M.K.), and some accent devāsas in b (P.M.).

7. Ye three goddesses, grant (yam) us great protection, what is prosperous (puṣṭá) for our progeny and for ourselves (tanū); let us not be deserted (hā) by progeny nor selves; let us not be made subject to the hater, O king Soma.

All the mss. accent at the beginning tisrās; our text emends to tisras. The second half-verse, as above noted, goes with our 6 a, b to make one verse in RV. and TS.; and also in Ppp., which has the variant dhanena for tanūbhis in c. For the present verse, Ppp. agrees in the first half with our text, only reading me for nas; for second half it has: mām viṣas saṁmanaso juṣantām pītryam kṣatram pṛta jānātu asmāt. The Anukr. ignores the extra syllable in a.

8. Let the bull (mahiṣá) of wide expanse grant us protection, having much food (-kṣú), [he] the much-invoked in this invocation; do thou be gracious unto our progeny, O thou of the bay horses; O Indra, harm us not, do not abandon us.

RV. and TS. read yānsad at end of a, and mṛdaya at end of c (also our O.); at end of b, RV. and Ppp. have -kṣúḥ, while TS. agrees with our text. In d the pada-text has ririṣaḥ, by Prāt. iv. 86. The Anukr. takes no notice of the two redundant syllables in a.

9. The Creator (dhātár), the disposer (vidhātár), he who is lord of being, god Savitar, overpowerer of hostile plotters, the Ādityas, the Rudras, both the Aṅvins — let the gods protect the sacrificer from perdition (nirṛthá).

RV. and TS. read dhātīṇām for vidhātá in a, and nyarthāt at the end, and have for c imām yajñam aṅvīno bhā bṛhaspátir; in b, RV. has devām trātāram, and TS. d. savitāram, followed by abhimātiṣāham [RV. -hām]. Ppp. has vidhartā in a, savitā devo bhim- in b, and bṛhaspátir indrāgnī aṅvinobhā for c. The combination yás pátir in a is by Prāt. ii. 70. The pada-text reads abhimāti-sahāḥ in b. The verse (12+11 : 9+11=43) is much too irregular to be passed simply as a triṣṭubh.

10. They that are our rivals — away be they; with Indra and Agni do we beat (bādhi) them down; the Ādityas, the Rudras, sky-reaching (? upariṣpṛṣ), have made our over-king a stern corrector.

The other texts have tān for enān at end of b, and akran at end of d, and, for c, vāsavo rudrā ādityā upariṣpṛṣam mā, which makes better sense; they also accent cēttāram in d. And VS., which also has the verse (xxxiv. 46), agrees with them throughout. Ppp. presents instead a verse which is mostly found at TB. ii. 4. 3², next before the verse corresponding to our 11 : ihā 'rvāncam ati hvaya indram jāitrāya jetave : asmākam astu varṇam yataḥ kṛnotu vīryam (instead of c, d, TB. has one pāda: asmākam astu kēvalah). [Our 10 occurs at the end of the hymn in Ppp., which reads in a ye naç çapanty upa te, in b apa bādāhāma yonim, in c mām for nah, and ends with akran.]

11. Hitherward do we call Indra from yonder, who is kine-conquering, riches-conquering, who is horse-conquering; let him hear this sacrifice of ours at our separate call; of us, O thou of the bay horses, hast thou been the ally (medhā).

The verse is found in TS., and in TB. (as above), and is the first of a long addition to RV. x. 128. All these read alike in c, d: vihavé juṣasvā syā kurmo (RV. kulmo) harivo medhnam tvā; Ppp. nearly agrees, reading instead v. j. 'smākam kṛṇvo h. m. tva. The Anukr. apparently balances the redundancy of a against the deficiency of b.

4. To the plant kūṣṭha: against takmán [fever].

[Bhṛgvaṅgiras. — daçakam. yakṣmanāçanakūṣṭhadēvatyam. ānuṣṭubham: 5. bhurij; 6. gāyatrī; 10. uṣṇiggarbhā nicrt.]

All the verses except 4 are found also in Pāipp., but in two books: vss. 1-3, 5-7 in xix. (and not all together); vss. 8-10 in ii. It is not expressly quoted by Kāuç., but the schol. (26. 1, note) regard it as included in the takmanāçana gāna, and (28. 13, note) also in the *kūṣṭhalīṅgā*s, and so employed in a healing rite against rājayakṣma; vs. 10 is separately added (26. 1, note) at the end of the gāna.

Translated: Grohmann, Indische Studien, ix. 421 (vss. 1, 3-6); Zimmer, p. 64 (parts); Grill, 9, 141; Griffith, i. 193; Bloomfield, 4, 414; Weber, xviii. 178.

1. Thou that wast born on the mountains, strongest of plants, come, O kūṣṭha, effacer (-nāçana) of takmán, effacing the fever (takmán) from here.

The kūṣṭha is identified as Costus speciosus or arabicus. The pāda-text reads in c kūṣṭha: ā: ihī; and the passage is quoted as an example under Prāt. iii. 38, which teaches the combination.

2. On an eagle-bearing (-sūvana) mountain, born from the snowy one (himāvant); they go to [it] with riches, having heard [of it], for they know the effacer of fever.

'From the snowy one,' i.e. 'from the Himālaya'; we had the pāda above as iv. 9. 9 b. Ppp. begins with suvarṇasavane, and has for c, d dhanāir abhiçrutam hakti kūṣṭhed u takmanāçanaḥ.

3. The açvatthā, seat of the gods, in the third heaven from here; there the gods won the kūṣṭha, the sight (cdkṣana) of immortality (amṛta).

Or, perhaps, an image or likeness of the amṛta (drink). This verse and the next are repeated below as vi. 95. 1, 2, and again, with slight variations, as xix. 39. 6, 7. The second pāda occurs elsewhere in sundry places, as ChU. viii. 5. 3, HGS. ii. 7. 2. With c compare RV. i. 13. 5; 170. 4.

4. A golden ship, of golden tackle (-bāndhana), moved about in the sky; there the gods won the kūṣṭha, the flower of immortality.

Most of the mss. appear to read avarat in a, but doubtless only owing to the imperfect distinction of ca and va in most Sanskrit writing. So also, for the same reason, in c, they could be read for the most part as either pūsyam or pūṣpam (M. has pūsyām); the former was adopted in our edition as being favored by the meter.

5. Golden were the roads, the oars golden, the ships were golden by which they brought out the kūṣṭha.

Ppp. reads hiraṇmay-, and omits c (doubtless by an oversight). All the mss. agree in accenting āritrāṇi; but this should doubtless be emended to arīt-. In a we may emend to pānthās or combine pānthānā "san.

6. This man of mine, O kūṣṭha — him bring, him relieve (nis-kr), him also make free from disease for me.

With c compare the nearly identical vi. 95. 3 d. E.H. read nīh kuru.

7. From the gods art thou born; of Soma art thou set as companion; do thou be gracious to my breath, out-breathing, sight here.

E.H. accent jātó 'si in a (p. jātāh : asi). Ppp. reads apānāya for vyān- in c, and at the end 'sya mṛḍā, which is easier. [Cf. Hillebrandt, Mythologie, i. 65.]

8. Born in the north from the snowy [mountain], thou art conducted to people (jāna) in the eastern [quarter]; there have they shared out the highest names of the kūṣṭha.

"The highest names" : i.e. the chief sorts or kinds [brands, as we moderns say]. The reading ūdañ in a is assured by quotation under Prāt. iii. 27. Ppp. reads prācyam in b.

9. Highest by name, O kūṣṭha, art thou; highest by name thy father; both do thou efface all yākṣma, and do thou make the fever sapless.

Ppp. has a wholly different second half : yataṣ kuṣṭha prajāyase tad ehy ariṣṭatātaye.

10. Head-disease, attack (? upahatyā), evil of the eyes, of the body — all that may kūṣṭha relieve, verily a divine virility (vīṣṇya).

The reading ntṣ karat in c falls under Prāt. ii. 63. All the mss. give akṣós, but the proper reading is plainly akṣyós, as the meter shows; the same error is found also in other passages. The Anukr. implies akṣós, as akṣyós (-ṣi-ós) would make the verse a regular anuṣṭubh. The Pet. Lexx. take upahatyām as governing akṣyós, and so render it 'blinding.' [Ppp. has for a çīrṣahatyām upahatyā, and for c kuṣṭho no viçvatas pād.]

5. To a healing plant, lākṣā.

[Atharvan. — navakam. lākṣikam. ānuṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. vi. (in the verse-order 1, 2, 4, 5, 3, 7, 6, 8, 9). Not textually quoted by Kāuç., but doubtless intended, as pointed out by the schol., in the lākṣāliṅgās of 28. 14, as employed in a healing rite for flesh-wounds.

Translated: Zimmer, p. 67; Grill, 10, 142; Griffith, i. 195; Bloomfield, 20, 419; Weber, xviii. 181.

1. Night [is thy] mother, cloud (nābhas) [thy] father, Aryaman thy grandfather; silācī, verily, by name art thou; thou art sister of the gods.

Ppp. has for c çilādī nāma vā 'si. The last pāda is found also below as vi. 100. 3 b; and cf. vii. 46. 1 b.

2. He who drinketh thee liveth; thou rescuest a man (pūruṣa); for thou art a sustainer (bhartrī) of all, and a hiding-place (? nyāñcanī) of people.

'Of all,' çaçvatām, lit. 'of constant ones,' i.e. of as many as constantly come to thee. Ppp. reads dhartrī ca for bhartrī hi in c, and, for d, çaçvatām bhyatvamcanī.

3. Tree after tree thou climbest, like a lustful girl; conquering, standing by (? pratyā-sthā), winner (spārañī) verily by name art thou.

Ppp. reads, for d, sañjayā nāma vā 'si.

4. If (yāt) by a staff, if by an arrow, or if by flame (? hāras) a sore is made, of that thou art relief; relieve thou this man.

The two examples of niṣ before k are quoted under Prāt. ii. 65. Ppp. reads in c, d: asi bhīṣajī niṣkrīr nāma vā 'si: cf. 6 d below.

5. Out of the excellent plakṣā thou arisest, out of the açvatthā, the khadirā, the dhavā, the excellent banyan (nyagródha), the parṇā; do thou come to us, O arundhatī.

These are names of various trees. Ppp. combines ne 'hi in d.

6. Thou gold-colored, fortunate, sun-colored one, of most wondrous forms; mayest thou go to the hurt (? rutā), O relief; relief, verily, by name art thou.

Vapuṣtame (p. vapuh-tame) is quoted as an example under Prāt. ii. 83. In c, P. reads ruttām, and H. (and Bp.?) rtām; it might be from root ru 'cry out': 'come to our call.' Ppp. reads at the beginning hiranyabāhū, and, for d, se 'mañ niṣkrdhi pāuruṣam (thus exchanging 4 d and 6 d).

7. Thou gold-colored, fortunate, vehement (? çūṣmā), hairy-bellied one — sister of the waters art thou, O lākṣā; the wind was thy soul.

Lākṣā is not elsewhere met with as name or epithet of a plant: the Anukr. takes it as the principal name: pūrveṇa [sūktena] lākṣām astānt. Ppp. reads yuvate for subhage in a. [Cf. Pischel, Ved. Stud. i. 178; Bloomfield, ZDMG. xlviii. 574.]

8. Silācī by name — thy father, O goat-brown one, is a maid's son; Yama's horse that is dark brown (çyāvā) — with its mouth (? blood?) art thou sprinkled.

The first line is translated in accordance with the text as it stands; Grill emends to kāñmā 'jābabhruḥ [accent, Gram. § 1268: ajābabhru could only be vocative]. The pada-text reads āsnā in d [SPP. asnā], but asnāḥ in 9 a; the translation implies ās- in both; Grill understands as- both times. Ppp. has for a, b ghrtācī nāma kāñīno 'ta babhrū pītā tava.

9. Fallen from the horse's mouth, she invaded the trees; having become a winged brook (? sarā), do thou come to us, O arundhatī.

BR. [iv. 405] take a to mean 'coagulated from the horse's blood,' understanding asnatā, with the pada-text. With c compare RV. x. 97. 9 (VS. xii. 83) sirāḥ patatrīṇiḥ sthana (TS. iv. 2. 6² and MS. ii. 7. 13 read sarāḥ instead). The word sīsyade (p. sīsyade) comes under Prāt. ii. 91, 103; iv. 82, 124. In the printed text, sāpatitā is a misprint for sāmp. [Ppp. has for b sā pānam abhiṣyataḥ and combines ne 'hi in d.]

The first anuvāka, 5 hymns and 48 verses, ends here. The quoted Anukr. says dviṣaḍbhīr ādyah (i.e. twice six short of 60 verses).

6. ? [Disconnected verses.]

[Atharvan. — catuṣṭaḍakam. somārudrīyam: 1. brahmādīyam (astāu); 2. karmāṇi; 3, 4. rudragāṇān; 5-7. somārudrāu; 8. ūyor eva prārthanam; 9. hetim; 10-13. sarvātmakam rudram. trāiṣṭubham: 2. anuṣṭubh; 3, 4. jaḡatī (4. anuṣṭubusṣiḥ-triṣṭubgarbhā 5-p.); 5-7. 3-p. virāṇmāmagāyatrī; 8. 1-av. 2-p. "reyanu-ṣṭubh"; 10. prastārapāṅkti; 11-14. pāṅkti (14. svarāḥ).]

[Verses 9-14 are prose; and so is verse 4, in part.]

Found also (except vs. 6, 7) in Pāipp. vi. The first four verses and the eleventh occur together in K. xxxviii. 14. As this hymn has the same first verse with iv. 1, the quotation of the pratika in Kāuṣ. does not at all show which of the two hymns is intended; but the schol. determine the question by adding the pratika of vs. 2 also, and even, in a case or two, that of vs. 3; and the comm. to iv. 1 agrees with them. On this evidence, v. 6 appears in a battle-rite (15. 12) to show whether one is going to come out alive; in the citrākarman (18. 25), with i. 5 and 6 etc.; on occasion of going away on a journey (18. 27); in a healing rite (28. 15) for the benefit of a child-bearing woman or of an epileptic [see p. xlv. of Bloomfield's Introduction]; and in a ceremony for welfare (51. 7), with xi. 2; it is also reckoned (50. 13, note) to the rāudra gāṇa.

Translated: Griffith, i. 196; Weber, xviii. 185. — The "hymn" is entitled by Weber "Averruncatio beim Eintritt in den Schaltmonat."

1. The brāhman that was first born of old, Vena hath unclosed from the well-shining edge; he unclosed the fundamental nearest positions of it, the womb of the existent and of the non-existent.

The verse occurred above, as iv. 1. 1 [where viṣṭhās is rendered 'shapes'].

2. Who of you did what first unattained deeds — let them not harm our heroes here; for that purpose I put you forward.

This verse too has occurred already, as iv. 7. 7. Ppp. combines ve 'tat in d.

3. In the thousand-streamed one they resounded (svar) together, in the firmament (nāka) of the sky, they the honey-tongued, unhindered. His zealous (blīṅṅi) spies wink not; in every place are they with fetters for tying.

The verse is RV. ix. 73. 4, and is of mystic and obscure meaning. RV. reads -dhāre 'va [p. -ve āva] (for -dhārāḥ īva?) in a, āsya at beginning of c, and sétavas at end of d. Ppp. begins with sahasram abhi te sam.

4. Round about do thou run forward in order to the winning of booty, round about overpowering adversaries (vṛtrā, n.); then thou goest over haters by the sea (arṇavā). Weakling (sanisrasā) by name art thou, the thirteenth month, Indra's house.

The first three pādas of the verse are RV. ix. 110. 1 (repeated, with trase for tyase at the end, as SV. i. 428 ; ii. 714), which reads in a dhanva (without lengthening of the final), and has for c dviśās tarādhyā ṛṇayā na iyase; of this our text appears to be a simple corruption. [In the RV. version, prā dhanva (cf. ix. 109. 1 a) and ṛṇayā naḥ seem to be insertions like those in AV. ii. 5.] Ppp. reads sahasraças instead of sani-srasas in d, and in c divas tad, which comes nearer to making sense. The verse, with its prose ending, is most naturally divided as 12+8 : 12+7+11=50 ; but the pada-mss. put the pāda division strangely after trayodaças.

5. Now (not ?) hast thou succeeded (rādhi) by that, thou yonder (asāu) : hail ! having sharp weapons, having sharp missiles, very propitious, O Soma and Rudra, do ye be very gracious to us here.

For asāu 'thou yonder' is doubtless to be used the name of the person addressed in practice : = O so-and-so. Ppp. reads for the first division of the verse vītenāvāitenāmāitena rātsthīrar asāu svāhā, which seems intended virtually to contain vss. 5-7 ; it has in b, c tigmā- and suçevā gñiṣomāv iha ; and it puts the verse after our vs. 8. The Pet. Lex. makes the pertinent suggestion [s.v. anu + rādhi] that nū at the beginning is for ānu ; nū is nowhere in AV. found at the beginning of a pāda or clause — nor in RV. except as prolonged to nū̄. Unhappily we get no help on the subject from the sense. [Whitney's "(not?)" is not clear to me, unless it is meant to suggest emendation to nāitēna = nā etēna. If we read ānu, we must render, 'Thou hast succeeded by that.' But does not the Ppp. reading suggest rather vt etēna arātsīs ?]

6. Thou hast failed (ava-rādhi) by that, thou yonder : hail ! having sharp etc. etc.

7. Thou hast offended (āpa-rādhi) by that, thou yonder : hail ! having sharp etc. etc.

These two variations on vs. 5 are not given by Ppp. save so far as they may be intimated in its beginning of 5.

8. Do ye (two) release us from difficulty, from reproach (avadyā) ; enjoy ye the offering ; put in us immortality (amṛta).

Some of the mss. (Bp.² O.) read asmāt instead of asmān. Ppp. has asmāt, and after it grbhīhāt.

9. O missile (heti) of sight, missile of mind, missile of incantation (brāhman), and missile of penance ! weapon's weapon (meni) art thou ; weaponless be they who show malice against us.

With this verse and the next is to be compared TB. ii. 4. 2¹ : c. h. m. h. vāco hete brāhmaṇo hete : yō mā 'ghāyūr abhidāsati tām agne menyā 'mentin kṛṇu, etc. [Cf. Geldner, Festgruss an Böhrlingh, p. 32.] The Anukr. omits any metrical definition of the verse. [It seems rather to regard it as included under the general definition "trāiṣṭubham."]]

10. Whoever with sight, with mind, with intention, and whoever with design, malicious, shall attack us — do thou, O Agni, with weapon make them weaponless : hail !

TB. (as above) reads: yó mā cákṣuṣā yó mānasā yó vācā bráhmaṇā 'ghāyúr abhidāsati: táyā 'gne tvám menyā 'mám amentm kṛṇu. Ppp. has in the last clause tvam agne tvam menyā 'menim k-. The metrical definition of this prose "verse" is unaccountably wrong.

11. Indra's house art thou; to thee there I go forth; thee there I enter, with all my kine, with all my men, with all my soul, with all my body, with that which is mine.

Ppp. reads sarvaphāuruṣah.

12. Indra's refuge art thou; to thee etc. etc.

13. Indra's defense art thou; to thee etc. etc.

14. Indra's guard (vārūtha) art thou; to thee etc. etc.

The accent-mark which belongs under tvā in 12 and 13 is omitted in our text, and in 14 it has slipped out of place and stands under tam. The metrical definition is worthless, though each of the four verses contains not far from 40 syllables.

7. Against niggardliness and its effects.

[Atharvan (P).—daçakam. bahudevatyam (1-3, 6-10. arātīyās; 4, 5. sārasvatyāu). ānuṣṭubham: 1. virāḍgarbhā prastārapañkti; 4. pathyābrhatī; 6. prastārapañkti.]

Not found in Pāipp. Used by Kāuṣ. in the nirytikarman (18. 14), with an offering of rice-grains; and, with iii. 20 and vii. 1, in a rite for good-fortune (41. 8); while the schol. also adds it to vi. 7 (46. 4, note), in removing obstacles to sacrifice; of separate verses, vs. 5 (schol., vss. 5-10) appears, with vii. 57, in a ceremony (46. 6) for the success of requests. Vāit. has the hymn (or vs. 1) in the agnicayana (28. 19), with the vanīvāhana rite; further, vs. 6 in the parvan sacrifices (3. 2), with an oblation to Indra and Agni; and vs. 7 at the agniṣṭoma (12. 10) in expiation of a forbidden utterance. The hymn in general seems to be a euphemistic offering of reverence to the spirit of avarice or stinginess.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 305; Grill, 39, 145; Griffith, i. 198; Bloomfield, 172, 423; Weber, xviii. 190.

1. Bring to us, stand not about, O niggard; do not prevent (? raḥs) our sacrificial gift as led [away]; homage be to baffling (virtsā), to ill-success; homage be to the niggard.

P.M.W. omit mā in a. One sees, without approving, the ground of the metrical definition of the Anukr.

2. What wheedling (? parirāpin) man thou puttest forward, O niggard, to him of thine we pay homage: do not thou disturb my winning (vanī).

The third pāda can be read as full only by violence. [See Gram. § 1048.]

3. Let our god-made winning progress (pra-kṣp) by day and by night; we go forth after the niggard; homage be to the niggard.

Bp.² reads vas for nas in a; in c Bp.²P.M.K. read arātīm, and H.E.I. ārātīm; our text should doubtless have adopted ārātīm. The third pāda is redundant by a syllable.

4. Sarasvatī, Anumati, Bhaga, we going call on; pleasant (juṣṭá) honeyed speech have I spoken in the god-invocations of the gods.

5. Whomever I solicit (yāc) with speech, with Sarasvatī, mind-yoked, him may faith find today, given by the brown soma.

‘Faith given,’ i.e. ‘confidence awakened.’ With b compare 10.8, below. [See Bloomfield, AJP. xvii. 412; Oldenberg, ZDMG. l. 448.]

6. Do not thou baffle our winning nor speech. Let Indra and Agni both bring good things to us. Do ye all, willing today to give to us, welcome the niggard.

That is, probably (if the reading is correct), give a pleasant reception that may win favor. The mss. vary between vīrisīs and vīr-; theoretically, the former is decidedly to be preferred, for, if ī + i make ī̄, then a fortiori ī + ī: see note to Prāt. iii. 56. In c, H.E.O.K. read no after sārve. The first half-verse is very irregular.

7. Go thou far away, O ill-success; we conduct away thy missile; I know thee, O niggard, as one putting (? mīv) down, thrusting down.

The fourth pāda lacks a syllable.

8. Likewise, greatly making thyself naked, thou fastenest on (sac) a person in dreams, O niggard, baffling the plan and design of a man (pūruṣa).

It seems as if nagnā bobhuvatī were the equivalent of mahānagni bhavanti ‘becoming a wanton,’ the intensive element being shifted from the adjective to the verb. The pāda-text reads svapna-yā, by Prāt. iv. 30.

9. She that, being great, of great height (-unmāna), permeated all regions — to her, the golden-haired, to perdition have I paid homage.

10. Gold-colored, fortunate, gold-cushioned, great — to her, the golden-mantled, to the niggard have I paid homage.

The tenth prapāthaka, the first of the three very unequal ones into which this book is divided, ends here.

8. Against enemies: to Indra and other gods.

[Aiharvan (?). — navakam. nānādevatyam: 1, 2. āgneye; 3. vāiṣvadevī; 4-9. āindryas. ānuṣṭubham: 2. 3-av. 6-p. jagatī; 3, 4. bhurikpathyāpañkti; 6. prastārapañkti; 7. dvyuṣṇiggarbhā pathyāpañkti; 9. 3-av. 6-p. dvyuṣṇiggarbhā jagatī.]

Found also (except vs. 7) in Pāipp. vii. Not quoted in Vait., and in Kāuṣ. only once, in a witchcraft ceremony (48.8), after iv. 16, with the direction “do as specified in the text.”

Translated: Ludwig, p. 439; Griffith, i. 200; Weber, xviii. 194.

1. With fuel of vikañkata do thou carry the sacrificial butter to the gods; O Agni, make them revel here; let all come to my call.

The vikañkata is identified as Flacourtia sapida, a thorny plant. Ppp. reads sādaya, which is better, in c, and combines sarvā ”yantu in d.

2. O Indra, come to my call; this will I do; that hear thou; let these over-runners (? atisarā) of Indra's bring to pass (sam-nam) my design; by them may we be equal to (çak) heroism, O Jātavedas, self-controller.

The obscure atisarā is rendered etymologically, being found nowhere else; the Pet. Lex. conjectures "start, effort." For idān karisyāmi in b is probably substituted in practical use a statement of the act performed. The Anukr. takes no notice of the redundant syllable in the pāda.

3. What he there yonder, O gods, being godless, desires to do — let not Agni carry his oblation; let not the gods go to his call; come ye only (evā) unto my call.

Some of the mss. (Bp².p.m.Bp.I.D.) read ckhīriṣati in b. We may make the contraction devā 'sya in d, though the Anukr. does not sanction it.

4. Overrun (ati-dhāv), ye over-runners; slay by Indra's spell (vācas); shake (math) ye as a wolf [shakes] a sheep; let him not be released from you alive; shut up his breath.

The end of the verse is different, but without sense, in Ppp. An accent-mark has dropped out under the ta of mathnīta in our text [and under hata there is one which should be deleted]. The Anukr. apparently forbids us to make the familiar contraction vr̥kē 'va in c, and then overlooks the deficiency of a syllable in d. [Cf. Bergaigne, Rel. véd. iii. 7-8.]

5. What brahmān they yonder have put forward for failure (āpabhūti), [be] he beneath thy feet, O Indra; him I cast unto death.

Brahmān: probably performer of an incantation. Ppp. reads abhibhūtaye in b.

6. If they have gone forward to the gods' strongholds (-purā), have made incantation (brāhman) their defenses — if (? yāt) making a body-protection, a complete protection, they have encouraged themselves (upa-vac): all that do thou make sapless.

The verse is found again below, as xi. 10. 17,* but without commentary. Brāhman may have here one of its higher senses; possibly upa-vac is to be understood as = upa-vad 'reproach, impute.' For kr̥vānā yād upociré, Ppp. reads simply cakrīve, with paripānāni before it. The verse is plainly a pathyūpañkti, but the pāda-mss. support the misconception of the Anukr. by putting the pāda-division after kr̥vānās. The Anukr. ought to say āstārapañkti, but it not very rarely makes this confusion. *[Vol. iii. p. 195, of SPP's ed.]

7. What over-runners he yonder has made, and what he shall make, do thou, O Indra, Vṛtra-slayer, turn (ā-kṛ) them back again, that they may shatter (tr̥h) yon person (jāna).

Wanting (as noted above) in Ppp. [For tr̥nāhān, see Gram. § 687.]

8. As Indra, taking Udvācana, put [him] underneath his feet, so do I put down them yonder, through everlasting (çāçvat) years (sāmā).

Udvācana is heard of nowhere else, and the name looks so improbable that the Pet. Lexx. conjecture udvāncana; Ppp. has instead udvātana; it puts this verse at the end of the hymn. The redundancy of ḍ is passed without notice by the Anukr.

9. Here, O Indra, Vṛtra-slayer, do thou, formidable, pierce them in the vitals; just here do thou trample upon them; O Indra, thine ally am I; we take hold on thee, O Indra; may we be in thy favor.

Some of the mss. (H.I.O.K.) read atrāi 'ṇān in a; and some (P.M.W.O.) reckon the last two pādas as a tenth [or separate] verse. Mārmāṇi in b in our text is a misprint for mārmaṇi. The Anukr. appears to count, without good reason, only 7 syllables in ḍ as well as in b.

9. For protection: to various gods.

[Brahman. — aṣṭakam. vāstospātyam. 1, 5. dāivī bṛhatī; 2, 6. dāivī trīṣṭubh; 3, 4. dāivī jagatī; 7. virāduṣṇigbṛhatīgarbhā 5-p. jagatī; 8. puraskṛititriṣṭubhṛhatīgarbhā 4-p. 3-av. jagatī.]

[This piece is prose.] Neither this piece nor the next is found in Pāipp. This one is quoted in Kāuṣ. (28. 17) in a remedial ceremony, together with vi. 91; and it is reckoned (8. 23, note) to the vāstu gaṇa and (26. 1, note) the takmanāṇa gaṇa.

Translated: Griffith, i. 201; Weber, xviii. 197.

1. To heaven hail!
2. To earth hail!
3. To atmosphere hail!
4. To atmosphere hail!
5. To heaven hail!
6. To earth hail!

[The invocations of vss. 4-6 are those of 1-3 with changed order.]

7. The sun my eye, wind my breath, atmosphere my soul (ātman), earth my body; unquelled (astṛtā) by name am I here; [as] such I deposit myself for heaven and earth to guard (gopīthā).

8. Up life-time, up strength, up act (kṛtā), up action (kṛtyā), up skill (manīṣā), up sense (indriyā); O life- (āyus-) maker, O ye (two) mistresses of life, rich in svadhā[m.], be ye my guardians, guard me; be my soul-sitters; do not harm me.

The nouns with 'up' are accusatives, but what verb should be supplied for the construction it is not easy to see. Perhaps āyuskṛt (p. āyuh-kṛt) should be -kṛtā, as dual; at any rate, all that follows it is dual. Apparently the Anukr. would divide vs. 7 as 9+12: 10+7+10=48; and vs. 8 as 9+11: 20: 11=51; but the descriptions are blind and inaccurate. [Weber discusses the peculiarities of gender.]

A passage corresponding to this hymn is found in K. xxxvii. 15.

10. For defense from all quarters.

[Brahman.—aṣṭakam. vāstospatyam. 1-6. yavamadhyā 3-p. gāyatrī; 7. yavamadhyā kakubh; 8. purodhṛtidvyanuṣṭubgarbhā parāṣṭi 3-av. 4-p. atijagatī.]

[This piece is prose.] This piece, like the preceding, is wanting in Pāipp. Parts of vss. 1-7 are apparently used by Kāuṣ. in a magic rite (49. 7-9); and certainly those verses are quoted in a ceremony (51. 14) for the welfare of the house with burying [five] stones in its corners [and middle and putting a sixth above it]; and the hymn is reckoned (8. 23, note) to the vāstu gāṇa; while vs. 8 appears, with vi. 53 and vii. 67, in the savayajñas (66. 2). In Vāit. (29. 11) the verses are addressed to the stones of enclosure in the agnicayana.

Translated: Griffith, i. 202; Weber, xviii. 200.

1. My stone-defense art thou; whoever from the eastern quarter, malicious, shall assail me, this may he come upon (r/h).
2. My stone-defense art thou; whoever from the southern quarter etc. etc.
3. My stone-defense art thou; whoever from the western quarter etc. etc.
4. My stone-defense art thou; whoever from the northern quarter etc. etc.
5. My stone-defense art thou; whoever from the fixed quarter etc. etc.
6. My stone-defense art thou; whoever from the upward quarter etc. etc.

It is possible to read these verses as 7+12 (or 13 [or 14]): 5=24 (or 25 [or 26, vs. 2]).

7. My stone-defense art thou; whoever from the intermediate quarters of the quarters etc. etc.

O. is the only ms. that fills out the paragraphs between 1 and 7; and it leaves agḥāyūr unelided in all the verses. In paragraph 7 of our edition the accent-mark has dropped out under the va of açmavarmā. The Anukr. reads 7+16: 5=28 syllables.

8. By the great one (bṛhāt) I call unto mind; by Mātariṣvan, unto breath and expiration; from the sun [I call] sight, from the atmosphere hearing, from the earth body; by Sarasvatī, mind-yoked, we call unto speech.

The verse divides most naturally as 9+9: 16: 16=50; the metrical definition of the Anukr. fits it very ill. [For c, cf. v. 7. 5.]

The second anuvāka ends here, and contains 5 hymns and 49 verses; the old Anukr. says ādyāt para ekādaçakīnaṣaṣṭiḥ.

11. [Dialogue between] Varuṇa and Atharvan.

[Atharvan.—ekādaçakam. vāruṇam. trāiṣṭubham: 1. bhurij; 3. pañkti; 6. 5-p. atičakvarī; 11. 3-av. 6-p. atyaṣṭi.]

Found also in Pāipp. viii. It is used by Kāuṣ. only once, and in a connection which casts no light upon it, namely at 12. 1, in a rite for general welfare (one eats a dish of milk-rice cooked on a fire of mādānaka-sticks). It is not quoted at all by Vāit. The interpretation in detail is difficult and far from certain.

Translated: Muir, OST. i. 2 396; Griffith, i. 203; Weber, xviii. 201. — Treated by Roth, Ueber den AV., p. 9; also by R. Garbe, Wissenschaftliche Monatsblätter, Königsberg, 1879, no. 1. — A note in lead-pencil shows that Whitney meant to rewrite his ms. of this hymn.* But the reader may consult the recent detailed comment of Weber. — Weber assigns vs. 1-3, 6, 8, and 10 b, c, d to Varuṇa; and 4, 5, 7, 9, and 10 a to Atharvan. Varuṇa has a mind to take back the cow which he gave to Atharvan, but gives up his intention at the request of Atharvan. Further reference to this legend seems to be made at vii. 104. 1. * [Possibly the copy from which this is set is a second draft.]

1. How unto the great Asura didst thou speak here? how, with shining manliness, unto the yellow (hāri) father? having given, O Varuṇa, a spotted [cow] as sacrificial fee, thou hast with the mind intended (? cikits) re-bestowal (?).

The second half-verse is probably meant as what was "spoken." The translation of d implies Aufrecht's acute emendation (in Muir) of the reading to punarmaghatvdm. The sense of punarmagha is very doubtful: Roth "greedy"; Muir (Aufrecht) "to take her back," and "revoking"; neither seems to belong properly to the word, which ought to mean something like 'bountiful in return': i.e. Varuṇa is expected to give back to Atharvan the cow the latter has presented to him (or another and better one). One might conjecture in c vdrune 'to Varuṇa,' and understand cikits as 'impute' or 'expect.' Roth regards the verse as spoken by Varuṇa; Muir, by Atharvan; the former is more acceptable. Ppp. begins kathā diva asurāya bravāmaḥ kathā, and reads pr̥c̥niḥ in c. [R. takes hāri as 'wrathful.']

2. Not at pleasure am I a re-bestower; for examination (?) do I drive home this spotted [cow]; by what poesy (kāvya) now, O Atharvan, [art] thou [poet]? by what that is produced (jātā) art thou jātāvedas?

The rendering of b implies the necessary and obvious emendation of sām cakṣe (P.M.W. -kṣve) to saṁcākṣe, infinitive. Kāmena seems taken adverbially, = kāmāya, kāmam, kāmāt; the god is not to be moved to counter-liberality by the mere desire of his worshiper, but challenges the latter's claim on him. Jātāvedas, lit. 'having for possession whatever is produced (or born),' 'all-possessor.' B.P.M. accent ātharvan in c; one might emend to ātharvā: 'in virtue of what poetic merit art thou Atharvan?' The verse belongs of course to Varuṇa. Ppp. reads in b saṁpr̥c̥chi and upājet.

3. I verily am profound by poesy; verily by what is produced I am jātāvedas; not barbarian (dāsā), not Aryan, by his might, damageth (mī) the course which I shall maintain.

Muir ascribes the verse to Atharvan; Roth, better, to Varuṇa; the god asserts that it is he himself to whom wisdom and possession belong; his worshiper is comparatively nothing. Ppp. begins with satvasaṁ and reads mahitvām in c, and hanīṣya at the end. The Prāt. (iv. 96) establishes the long ī of mīmāya as a pada-reading. The Anukr. absurdly calls the verse a pañkti, although it is an evident trīṣṭubh, not less regular than a great proportion of the verses so called. [The me in c is easier rendered in German than in English.]

4. None else than thou is more poet, nor by wisdom (medhā) more wise (dhīra), O Varuṇa, self-ruling one (svadhāvānt); thou knowest all these beings; even that wily man (jāna) now is afraid of thee.

Ppp. reads in a vedhā anu (for medhāyā), and has at end of b the more antique form svadhāvas; as second half-verse it gives: tvam aṅga viçvā janmāni vettha mataim na tuj jano mām bibhāyah.

5. Since thou verily, O self-ruling Varuṇa, knowest all births, O well-conducting one — is there anything else beyond the welkin (rājas)? is there anything below what is beyond, O unerring one (? amura)?

The version given implies that kim is interrog. particle in c, d, as best suits the answer in the next verse: else, 'what other is beyond' etc. Amura in b is understood as amūra, as required by the meter: cf. v. i. 9. Ppp. again reads svadhāvas in a; and, in b and further, janmā çraddhadanī te kim menā rajasaṣ paro 'sti kim avareṇa avaram asūra. The majority of mss. (B.P.M.H.s.m.O. etc.; only E.I.H.p.m.K. have asti) accent dsti at end of c. [For the combination enā parās = 'beyond,' in 3d pāda, see BR. iv. 494. I suggest for d, 'Is there (kim) (anything behind, āvaram, i.e.) anything beyond that (enā, substantive pronoun) which is beyond (pāreṇa)?']

6. There is one other thing beyond the welkin; there is something, hard to attain, hitherward from what is beyond: this I Varuṇa, knowing it, proclaim to thee. Be the paṇi's of degraded speech; let the barbarians creep (srp) downward to the earth.

The translation implies emendation of varuṇa to vāruṇaḥ in c, which seems necessary, as the verse evidently belongs in Varuṇa's mouth; both Roth and Muir so understand it. In d is implied adhovacasas, which all the mss. read; alteration to -varcasas might be welcome, but is hardly called for. Ppp. is considerably different; it reads: ya ekam enā rajasaṣ paro 'sti pare'kena dūdāhyam tyajan yat: tat tve acchovacasas dāsā yā upa sarpantu rīprā. The meter of a would be rectified by omitting the superfluous enā; that of b, by a like omission (which the Pāipp. text also favors), or, so far as the meaning is concerned, better by reading enā pāreṇa dur- etc. The description of the verse by the Anukr. as an atiçakvārī (though it still lacks one syllable of sixty) helps to authenticate the text as the mss. present it.

[Whitney, on the revision, would doubtless have made clear his views as to b. Both sense and meter indicate that the enā in a and the enā in b are intrusions; they have blundered in from 5 c. Omitting them, I render: 'There is one other thing beyond the welkin; [and,] beyond [that] one thing, [is] something hard to get at (durnāçam cit) [if you start] from this side [of them].'] [I understand tat tve acchovacasas to mean merely that Ppp. reads tve for te and acchovacasas for adhovacasas — not that it omits the rest from te to nīcāir.]

7. Since thou verily, O Varuṇa, speakest many reproachful things among (as to?) re-bestowers, do not thou, I pray, belong to (abhi-bhū) such paṇis; let not people call thee ungenerous (arādhas).

The rendering implies emendation of bhūt to bhūs at end of c, which is made also by Roth and Muir. The pāda is corrupt in Pāipp.

8. Let not people call me ungenerous; I give thee back the spotted [cow], O singer; come thou mightily (śacībhīḥ) to every song of praise (stotrā) of mine, among all human regions (dīç).

Roth's suggested emendation of dīkṣū at the end to vikṣū 'settlers, tribes,' accepted by Muir, is unquestionably an improvement of the text; Ppp. has unfortunately a different reading: ā yāhi janeṣu antar deveṣu mānuṣeṣu riṣrā. Dīkṣu is read in Prāt. iv. 34 c.

9. Let uplifted (ud-yam) songs of praise of thee come, among all human regions. Give now to me what thou hast not given me; thou art my suitable comrade of seven steps;—

That is, apparently, ready to go seven steps (or any indefinite distance) with me. Roth suggests as an improved reading ādattas 'hast taken from me' in c, and Muir so renders. Both words are alike, and equally, wrong grammatically, using the passive pple in the sense of an active; ādattam āsti would be correct, and at this Ppp. perhaps points: dehi tam mahyam yadi tatvam āsti yadyo nas saptaṣṭadaḥ sakhā 'sah. Ppp. also begins with yā te stotrāṇi bandhanāni yāni, and apparently has dīkṣu in b.

10. Of us two, O Varuṇa, [there is] the same connection, the same birth (jā).

I know that which is of us two this same birth; I give that which I have not given thee; I am thy suitable comrade of seven steps;—

It seems necessary to divide this verse between the two speakers, and doubtless Roth's assignment of only the first pāda to Atharvan is better than Muir's of the first half-verse. With Roth's division the nāu is called for in a as in b, and Roth's emendation to samāno bāndhus, though it is read by Ppp. (whose testimony on such a point is of little value), is hardly acceptable; better samó nāu. Ppp. reads also, for b, vada vāitad vadam samā jāh; and, for c, dadāmi tubhyam yadi tatvam āsti; and it omits d. [The translation implies ādattam āsti as in 9.]

11. A god, bestower of vigor on a singing god; a sage (vīpra), of good wisdom for a praising sage.

Since thou, O self-ruling Varuṇa, hast generated father Atharvan, connection of the gods, for him do thou make well-extolled generosity; our comrade art thou, and highest connection.

The first line is here (with Muir, and Zimmer, p. 205) taken as belonging to Varuṇa's reply given in the preceding verse. We must emend at the end either to paramāç ca or to bāndhu. All the mss. leave stuvate in b unaccented, as if it were a verb-form. Ppp. reads svadhāvam in c, viçvadevam at end of d, urvāyus kṛnuhi praç in e, and, for f, sakhā no 'sti varuṇaç ca bandhuḥ. The Anukr. makes no account of the extra syllable in e. In b, the vertical over su is gone. [Pādas c-f are not part of the dialogue.]

12. Āpri-hymn: to various divinities.

[Aṅgiras.—ekādaçarcam. trāiṣṭubham. jātavedasam. 3. pāñkti.]

This is a RV. hymn (x. 110), and found also in VS. (xxix. 25-6, 28-36), MS. (iv. 13. 3, 5), and TB. (iii. 6. 3), with almost no variants from the RV. text. Pāipp. does not contain it. Kāuç. applies it (45. 8: but the pratīka, simply samidhas, might designate any one of several other verses in the text) in the vaçāçamana ceremony, to accompany the offering of the omentum; and in the parvan sacrifices (2. 36) occurs a pāda resembling 2 b. In Vāit. (10. 11: the pratika is unambiguous) it goes with the prayāja offerings in the paçubandha.

Translated: by the RV. translators; and Griffith, i. 205; Weber, xviii. 207. — See Weber's general remarks; and compare hymn 27, below.

1. Kindled this day in the home of man (mānus), thou, a god, O Jāta-vedas, dost sacrifice to the gods; and do thou bring [them], understanding it, O thou of friendly might; thou art a forethoughtful messenger, poet.

The only variant in this verse is that MS. omits the peculiar and problematic accent of vāha in c.

2. O Tanūnapāt (son of thyself?), do thou, anointing with honey (mādhu) the roads that go to righteousness (ṛtā), sweeten them, O well-tongued one; prospering (ṛdh) with prayers (dhī) the devotions (mān-man) and the sacrifice, put (kr) thou also among the gods our service (adhvarā).

The mss. accent, without assignable reason, svaddyā in b, but the edition emends to svadayā, in agreement with the other texts.

The three Yajus-texts insert between this verse and the next an alternative invocation to Narāçansa (RV. vii. 2. 2).

3. Making oblation do thou, O Agni, to be praised and to be greeted, come in accord with the Vasus. Thou art invoker (hōtṛ) of the gods, O youthful one (? yahvā); do thou, sent forth, skilled sacrificer (yājīyāns), sacrifice to them.

Ājuhvāna in a is perhaps to be understood as passive (= āhuta), 'receiving oblation.' There are no variants. The Anukr. absurdly calls this verse a pañkti, because, by omitting resolutions of semivowels etc., it is capable of being read as 40 syllables. The Anukr's of RV. and VS. both reckon it as triṣṭubh.

4. The forward barhīs, through the fore-region of the earth, is wreathed on this dawn (vāstu), at the beginning (āgra) of the days; it spreads out abroad more widely, pleasant to the gods, to Aditi.

'Forward' and 'fore-region,' i.e. 'eastward' and 'east.' All our mss. read vṛjyase in b, but the edition makes the necessary emendation to -te, in accordance with the four other texts, and the translation given implies -te.

5. Expansive let them open (vi-çri) widely, like wives adorned for their husbands; ye great, divine, all-furthering doors, be ye favorable to the advance of the gods.

Our pāda-text divides the last word as su-prāyanāḥ, while the RV. pāda has supra-ayanāḥ; the meter appears to indicate that suprayanāḥ is the true original reading.

6. Let Dawn and Night, dripping (? susvay-), worshipful, close, sit down here in the lair (yóni)—the two heavenly, great, well-shining women, putting on beauty (çrî) with bright adornment.

The other texts differ from ours only by accenting úpāke. [The comment to Prāt. ii. 91 cites suṣvay as a case of reduplication; and BR. vii. 1142 connect it with su 'impel.' Bût see Weber. — He renders đ by 'Heran.']

7. The (two) invokers of the gods, first, well-voiced, shaping (mā) the sacrifice for man (mānus) to sacrifice, urging forward at the councils (vidátha) the (two) singers (kārú), pointing out forward light through the fore-region.

There are no variants. [Griffith, after Mahīdhara, takes the "light" as the āha-vanīya fire.]

8. Unto our sacrifice let Bhāratī come quickly, let Idā, taking note here in human fashion; let the three goddesses, well-working, sit upon this pleasant barhís — [also] Sarasvatī.

The translation implies in d the reading sārasvatī, given by RV.VS.MS.; TB. [both ed's, Bibl. Ind. and Poona] supports AV. in reading -itī, which, however, can hardly be anything but a blunder. The four other texts have at the end sadantu. All our mss. have manusyāt in b [and so have all SPP's authorities], and this form is authenticated by Prāt. iv. 65, the comment explaining how it is derived from manusyavat. As being, therefore, the indubitable AV. reading, it should not have been altered in our edition to -svāt, to conform with the four other texts, even though doubtless a corruption of -svāt. [SPP. also alters it.] [In c, correct devīr to devīr.]

9. To him, god Tvashtar, who adorned (piç) with forms these two generatresses, heaven-and-earth, [and] all existences, do thou today, O invokér, sent forth, skilled sacrificer, sacrifice here, understanding it.

There are no variants.

10. In thy way (? tmānyā) anointing them, pour thou down upon (upa-ava-sy) the track of the gods the oblations in due season; let the forest-tree, the queller (çamitár), god Agni, relish (svad) the oblation with honey, with ghee.

'Forest-tree,' doubtless a big name for the sacrificial post. That the 'queller' is a separate personage is shown by the plural number of the following verb. [E. Sieg discusses pāthas, Gurupūjākaumudī, 97 ff.; later, Oldenberg, ZDMG. liv. 602.]

11. At once, when born, he determined (vi-mā) the sacrifice; Agni became foremost of the gods; at the direction of this invoker, at the voice of righteousness (ritá), let the gods eat the oblation made with "hail!"

The other texts read in c the nearly equivalent pradīçī.

13. Against snakes' poison.

[Garutman.—ekādaśarcam. takṣakadevatyam. jāgatam: 2. āstārapaṅkti; 4, 7, 8. anuṣṭubh; 5. triṣṭubh; 6. paṭhyāpaṅkti; 9. bhurij; 10, 11. nicṛd gāyatrī.]

Found (except vs. 1) also in Pāipp. viii. (in the verse-order 3, 2, 4, 6, 5, 7-11). It is not quoted in Vāit.; but in Kāuṣ. 29. 1-14 all the verses are brought in in their order, in connection with a ceremony for healing poison-wounds; verse 1 (or the hymn) is also used at 48. 9, in a witchcraft rite. [The London Anukr., in 6 places and for 7 poison-hymns, gives Garutmā (not -mān) as ṛṣi.]

Translated: Griffith, i. 208; Bloomfield, 27, 425; Weber, xviii. 211.

1. Since Varuṇa, poet of heaven, hath given [them] to me, with formidable spells (vācas) do I dissolve thy poison; what is dug, undug, and attached (saktā) have I seized; like drink (īrā) on a waste hath thy poison been wasted (ni-jas).

The epithets in c are of obscure application: probably buried in the flesh by the bite, or unburied but clinging.

2. What waterless poison is thine, that of thine have I seized in these; I seize thy midmost, thine upmost juice (vāsa); also may thy lowest then disappear for fright.

'These' in b is fem. (etāsu); doubtless 'waters' is to be supplied. Ppp. reads in a padakam (for apod-), and in b tat tābhir. Yāt ta in a in our edition is a misprint for yāt te. Kāuṣ. (29. 2) calls the verse grahaṇī. [For neṣat, see Skt. Gram. § 847 end, and § 854 b.]

3. A bull [is] my cry, like thunder through the cloud (nābhas); with thy formidable spell do I then drive it off (bādh) for thee; I have seized that juice of his with men [?]; like light out of darkness let the sun arise.

One is tempted to emend nābhasā in a to -sas or -sām, 'the thunder of the clouds.' Ppp. reads tam (which is better) vacasā bādhāitu te in b, grabhis for the strange nṛbhīs [Weber, 'kräftig'] in c, and jyotiṣe 'va tamaso 'dayatu sāryaḥ in d. The i of iva is uncounted in the meter of d. Kāuṣ. calls the verse prasarjanī.

4. With sight I smite thy sight; with poison I smite thy poison; die, O snake, do not live; let thy poison go back against thee.

All the mss. [including SPP's] read āhes at beginning of c, but our edition makes the necessary emendation to āhe. Ppp. has for a balena te balam hanmi; its b is wholly corrupt; for c etc. it reads ṛṣaṇa hanmi te vidam ahe marīṣṭā mā jīvī praty anveta vā viṣam. [As for d—the later Hindus thought that snake poison did not hurt a snake; cf. Indische Sprüche, 3001. But see the interesting experiments of Sir Joseph Fayrer, in his Thanatophidia of India,² London, 1874, p. 74-5. My colleague, Dr. Theobald Smith, Professor of Comparative Pathology, has most kindly examined for me the recent literature concerning the auto-toxic action of snake-venoms. The evidence is not conclusive as yet, but points to the immunity of snakes to snake-poison.— Cf. vii. 88, below.]

5. O Kirātan, O spotted one, O grass-haunter (?), O brown one! listen ye to me, O black serpents, offensive ones! stand ye not upon the track (? stāmān) of my comrade; calling out (ā-grāvay), rest quiet in poison.

It is hardly possible to avoid emending stāmānam in c to sthāmānam [‘station’] or srāmānam [‘course,’ from sr ‘run’ — but not quotable]; Ppp. is very corrupt in c, d, but seems to intend no variants. It reads upatarṇi babhrav in a; our babhra is by Prāt. i. 81, and this passage is quoted in the comment on that rule. It further mutilates to asitalikā in b. The accents in our text [and SPP’s] on āsītās and ālikās are against all rule, and doubtless to be regarded as misreadings; the translation implies their absence. In c correct to sākhyuḥ (accent-sign lost over u). A number of [our] mss. (P.M.H.I.O.) [and five of SPP’s] read miṣe for viṣe in d (and nimiṣe ‘at a wink’ would be an acceptable emendation); M.W. end with rabhadhvam. [Griffith identifies kāirāta with karait, the Hindūstānī name (now well known in the Occident) of an awfully venomous little serpent. This would be most interesting, if certain; but friend Grierson writes me that it is improbable on phonetic grounds. We should expect in Hind. kērā.]

6. Of the Timātan (?) black serpent, of the brown, and of the waterless, of the altogether powerful (?), I relax the fury, as the bow-string of a bow; I release as it were chariots.

The translation is as if the reading at end of c were manyūm.* The pada-reading in c is sātrā-sahāsya, according to Prāt. iii. 23. Ppp. has tayimātasya in a, and in c upodakasya ‘water-haunting,’ which is better. [Whitney would doubtless have revised this carefully. The divergences of the translators reflect the uncertainties of the exegesis. ‘I slacken as it were the cars of the wrath of’ etc. — Griffith. ‘I release (thee) from the fury of’ etc. — Bloomfield. ‘Des Asita . . . des Manyu Streitwagen gleichsam spanne [ich] mir ab’ or ‘die Streitwagen des Grimmes des Asita’ etc. — Weber. For d, ‘as the string from off (āva) the bow.’] * [Ppp. reads manyum.]

7. Both āligī and vīligī, both father and mother — we know your connection (bāndhu) completely; sapless ones, what will ye do?

The wholly obscure words in a (p. ā-ligī, vt-ligī) might also be nom. m. of stems in -in; but their accent is against it. Ppp. reads, for a, b, ālakā ca vyaca luṭtvā yas te mātā. The Anukr. makes no account in b of the two syllables that are lacking to make an anusṭubh pāda.

8. Daughter of the broad-knobbed one (?), born of the black barbarian (f.) — of all them (f.) that have pierced defiantly (?) the poison [is] sapless.

The translation conjectures in a a relationship of -gūla to gūḍa and gola, and implies for b emendation to dāsyaś āsiknyāḥ — since something had to be done to make the line translatable. [One of SPP’s authorities has āsiknyāḥ.] Ppp. begins with udakū-lāyā ‘of the water-bank’; the rest of its version is “without meaning.” The first word is quoted by the commentary to Prāt. iii. 72 in the form urū-gūlāyāḥ (so the ms.) [urū-?]. [W’s version ‘pierced’ implies reference to root dr (not drā ‘run,’ as in Index). For pratāṅkam, both here and at iv. 16. 2, he first wrote ‘rapidly,’ and then interlined ‘defiantly.’ Why? BR. take it as gerund, ‘of all that have run gliding’: i.e., I suppose, ‘that dart along on their bellies’?]

9. The eared hedgehog said this, coming down from the mountain : whichsoever of these (f.) are produced by digging, of them the poison is most sapless.

This verse, which is rather out of place here, seems like a variation of RV. i. 191. 16 : kuṣumbhakās tād abravīd giréḥ pravartamānakāḥ : vṛççikasyā rasām viṣām. Ppp. begins with kanvā. [For the diminutive, cf. iv. 37. 10 and xiv. 2. 63.]

10. Tābūva, not tābūva ; verily thou art not tābūva ; by tābūva [is] the poison sapless.

Ppp. has instead tāvucam na tāvucam aher asiktam tāvucenā rasam viṣam. With this verse, according to Kāuç. (29. 13), one sips water from a gourd.

11. Tastūva, not tastūva ; verily thou art not tastūva ; by tastūva [is] the poison sapless.

Ppp. has for a, b, tastuvam na harisiktam tastuvam. But for the [unlingualized] n of tastūvena, the word in our mss. might be equally read tasrūva [SPP. reports this reading]. With this verse, according to Kāuç. (29. 14), one "binds the navel." [Weber, Sb. 1896, p. 681 (see also p. 873), gives an elaborate discussion of these two verses. He deems tābūva a misread tāthūva (root stu = sthā), 'stopping, bannend.' But see Barth, Revue de l'histoire des religions, xxxix. 26.]

14. Against witchcraft : with a plant.

[Çukra.—trayodaçakam. vānaspatyam. kṛtyāpratiharāṇam. ānuṣṭubham : 3, 5, 12. bhurij ; 8. 3-p. virāj ; 10. nicṛd brhaṭi ; 11. 3-p. sāmnī triṣṭubh ; 13. svarāj.]

[Part of verse 8 is prose.] Found also (except vss. 3, 5, which are wanting, and 9, 13, which occur in ii.) in Pāipp. vii. (in the order 1, 2, 8, 12, 4, 10, 11, 7, 6). Quoted in Kāuç. (39. 7) with ii. 11 and several other hymns, in a ceremony against witchcraft ; vs. 9 also separately in 39. 11. Not noticed in Vāit.

Translated : Zimmer, p. 396 ; Grill, 26, 147 ; Griffith, i. 210 ; Bloomfield, 77, 429 ; Weber, xviii. 216.

1. An eagle (suparṇā) discovered thee ; a hog dug thee with his snout ; seek thou to injure, O herb, him that seeks to injure ; smite down the witchcraft-maker.

We have had the first half-verse already, as ii. 27. 2 a, b. Ppp. has, for d, prati kṛtyākṛto dāha.

2. Smite down the sorcerers, smite down the witchcraft-maker ; then, whoever seeks to injure us, him do thou smite, O herb.

Ppp. omits, probably by oversight, the first half-verse.

3. Having cut around out of [his] skin a strip (parīçāsā), as it were of a stag, fasten, O gods, upon the witchcraft-maker the witchcraft, like a necklace.

That is, apparently, with a thong cut out of his own skin, like a buck-skin thong. As usual, the mss. vary in a between ṛçy- and rīçy-, E. even reading rīçy-, but the majority have ṛṣy-, which is undoubtedly the true text, and should be restored in our edition. Three times, in this hymn (vss. 3, 5, 12), the Anukr. insists on regarding iva as dissyllabic, and therefore reckons the verses as bhurij.

4. Lead thou away the witchcraft back to the witchcraft-maker, grasping its hand; set it straight before (samakṣām) him, that it may smite the witchcraft-maker.

Ppp. has, for b, pratiharāṇām na harāmasi (our 8 c); but in book ii. it has the whole half-verse just as it stands here.

5. Be the witchcrafts for the witchcraft-maker, the curse for him that curses; like an easy chariot let the witchcraft roll back to the witchcraft-maker.

6. If woman, or if man, hath made witchcraft in order to evil, it we conduct unto him, like a horse by a horse-halter.

The Anukr. doubtless scans ḍ as ḍṣvam ivā 'ṣvābhīdhānyā, instead of ḍṣvam 'vā 'ṣvābhīdhāniā, as it should be.

7. If either thou art god-made, or if made by man, thee, being such, do we lead back, with Indra as ally.

Ppp. has a very different version of this verse: yā kṛtye devakṛtā yā vā manusyajā 'si: tāṃ tvā pratyañ prahīṇmasi pratīcī nayana brahmaṇā. The ṇ in pūnar nayāmasi is prescribed by Prāt. iii. 81. Tām at beginning of c is a misprint for tām.

8. O Agni, overpowerer of fighters, overpower the fighters; we take the witchcraft back to the witchcraft-maker by a returner.

Ppp. reads in b prati instead of punar, thus making a better correspondence with pratiharāṇa in c. The Anukr.'s definition of the "verse" is purely artificial; the first pāda is distinctly unmetrical, and the third hardly metrical.

9. O practiced piercer (?), pierce him; whoever made [it], him do thou smite; we do not sharpen thee up to slay (vadhā) him who has not made [it].

This verse is found in Ppp. in book ii., much corrupted, with, for ḍ, vadhāya ṣaṃsamāmahe. Kṛtavyadhantī may possibly be the proper name of the herb addressed: cf. kṛtavedhana or -dhaka, "name of a sort of fennel or anise" (Pet. Lex.).

10. Go as a son to a father; like a constrictor trampled on, bite; go, O witchcraft, back to the witchcraft-maker, as it were treading down [thy] bond.

That is, apparently, escaping and treading on what has restrained thee. Ppp. combines in b svajātīva, and reads for c, ḍ, tantur ivāvayayāṇide kṛtye kṛtyākṛtām kṛtāh. Though the verse is a perfectly good anuṣṭubh, the Anukr., reading iva three times as dissyllabic, turns it into a defective bṛhatī.

11. Up, like a she-antelope (eṇī), a she-elephant (vāraṇī), with leaping on, like a hind, let the witchcraft go to its maker.

A verse of doubtful interpretation ; but it is altogether probable that the animal-names are coördinate in construction with kr̥tyā in c ; and they are feminine doubtless because this is feminine ; the kr̥tyā is to overtake its perpetrator with their swiftness and force. But the Pet. Lex. takes vāraṇī as 'shy, wild,' qualifying enū. Ppp. combines enāi 'va and mṛgāi 'va, and reads vāruṇī, and -krandaṁ for -skandaṁ ; -krandaṁ seems rather preferable. The unaltered s of abhisk- in b falls under Prāt. ii. 104, and the example is quoted there. Though the verse is a fairly regular gāyatrī, the Anukr. stupidly accounts it a sāmnī triṣṭubh, as if it were prose, and contained only 22 syllables.

12. Straighter than an arrow let it fly, O heaven-and-earth, to meet him ; let it, the witchcraft, seize again him, the witchcraft-maker, like a deer.

Ppp. reads, for c, d, sā taṁ mṛgam iva vidat kr̥tyā kr̥tyākṛtaṁ kr̥tā.

13. Let it go like fire up-stream, like water down-stream ; like an easy chariot let the witchcraft roll back to the witchcraft-maker.

'Up-stream,' i.e. contrary to the natural direction (pratīkūlam), or upward. Ppp. has the verse in book ii., and reads at the end of d (cf. its version of 12 d) tāḥ (for kr̥tā). The meter is svarāj only by twice refusing to abbreviate iva to 'va.

15. For exorcism : to a plant.

[Viçvāmitra.—ekādaçakam. vānaspatyam. ānuṣṭubham : 4. purastādbrhatī ; 5, 7, 8, 9. bhurij.]

Found also in Pāipp. viii. Used by Kāuç. (19. 1), with several other hymns, for the healing of distempered cattle ; and its verses and those of hymn 16 are referred to as madhulāvṛsalīṅgāḥ again in 29. 15, following the use of hymn 13.

Translated : Griffith, i. 211 ; Weber, xviii. 220.

1. Both one of me and ten of me [are] the exorcisers (apavaktár), O herb ; thou born of right (ṛtá), thou rich in right, mayest thou, honeyed (madhulá), make honey for me.

Ppp. omits throughout the second me in a, and reads for d madhu tvā madhulā karat. The Anukr. says madhulām oṣadhīm astānt.

2. Both two of me and twenty of me [are] etc. etc.

3. Both three of me and thirty of me [are] etc. etc.

4. Both four of me and forty of me [are] etc. etc.

5. Both five of me and fifty of me [are] etc. etc.

O.D. accent pañca ; the rest, against the usual way, pañcá, and our edition follows the latter.

6. Both six of me and sixty of me [are] etc. etc.

This verse ought to be reckoned by the Anukr. as nīçṛt, not less than 5 etc. as bhurij.

7. Both seven of me and seventy of me [are] etc. etc.

8. Both eight of me and eighty of me [are] etc. etc.

The reckoning of this verse as bhurij implies the (improper) restoration of the elided a of açittis.

9. Both nine of me and ninety of me [are] etc. etc.
10. Both ten of me and a hundred of me [are] etc. etc.
11. Both a hundred of me and a thousand [are] the exorcisers, O herb; etc. etc.

Without any regard to the connection between this hymn and the next, the third anuvāka is made to end here, containing 5 hymns and 57 verses; the quoted Anukr. says accordingly tisr̥bhīs t̥rt̥tyaḥ.

Here ends also the eleventh prapāṭhaka.

16. Exorcism.

[Viṣvāmitra. — ekādaśakam. ekavṛṣadevatyam. [ekāvasānam.] dvāipadam: 1, 4, 5, 7-10. sāmany us̥pih; 2, 3, 6. āsury anuṣṭubh; 11. āsurī gāyatrī.]

[Not metrical.] Found also in Pāipp. viii. Referred to only in Kāuṣ. 29.15, in company with the preceding hymn, as above reported.

Translated: Griffith, i. 212; Weber, xviii. 222.

1. If thou art sole chief, let go; sapless art thou.

We have ekavṛṣā, lit. 'one bull,' in other passages (iv. 22; vi. 86), but dvivṛṣā etc. only here, and they are plainly nothing but schematic variations of it, not admitting of real translation. Perhaps the hymn is directed against insect pests, through their leaders, whether few or many. The definition of the Anukr. implies fourteen syllables: perhaps as yādi ekavṛṣō dsi sṛjā arasō 'si (or sṛjā 'rasō asi). Ppp. has yas for yādi in all the verses. [See Weber's note.]

2. If thou art twice chief etc. etc.

Or perhaps rather 'double chief,' 'triple chief,' etc., or 'one of two,' 'one of three,' etc.

3. If thou art thrice chief etc. etc.
4. If thou art four times chief etc. etc.
5. If thou art five times chief etc. etc.
6. If thou art six times chief etc. etc.
7. If thou art seven times chief etc. etc.
8. If thou art eight times chief etc. etc.
9. If thou art nine times chief etc. etc.
10. If thou art ten times chief etc. etc.
11. If thou art eleven-fold, then thou art waterless.

All the elided a's must be restored in this verse to make out the fifteen syllables called for by the Anukr. Ppp. has yūḥodako 'si sṛjā 'raso 'si.

17. The Brahman's wife.

[Mayobhū. — aṣṭādaśakam. brahmajāyādevatyan. ānuṣṭubham: 1-6. triṣṭubh.]

Found in part (vss. 1-7, 9-11 in ix., also 18, in another part of ix.) in Pāipp. The hymn contains (in vss. 1-3, 6, 5, 10, 11) the seven verses of RV. x. 109, none of which occur elsewhere than in these two texts. Vāit. takes no notice of it, but it is used in Kāuṣ. (48. 11), next after hymn 13, in a witchcraft ceremony; while vs. 4 is quoted also in 126. 9, on occasion of the fall of a meteor.

Translated: Muir, i.² 280; Ludwig, p. 446 (part); Zimmer, p. 197; Griffith, i. 212; Weber, xviii. 222; also, in part, as RV. hymn, by Muir, i.² 256; Ludwig, no. 1020; Grassmann, ii. 495. — Cf. also Oldenberg, Die Hymnen des RV., i. 244.

1. These spoke first at the offense against the Brahman (brāhman-): the boundless sea, Mātariçvan, he of stout rage (-hāras), formidable fervor, the kindly one, the heavenly waters, first-born of right (ṛtā).

RV. reads ugrās in c, and ṛtēna at the end. Ppp. reads -haras and -bhuvās in c, and apas in d. The first pāda is properly jagatī, though the Anukr. takes no notice of the fact.

2. King Soma first gave (pra-yam) back the Brahman's wife, not bearing enmity; he who went after [her] was Varuṇa, Mitra; Agni, invoker, conducted [her] hither, seizing her hand.

Ppp. reads mitro ā- in c. Anvartitār [Gram. § 233 a] is doubtful; perhaps 'one who disputes possession': cf. MS. iii. 7. 3 (p. 78. 1).

3. To be seized by the hand indeed is the pledge (ādhi) of her, if one has said "[she is] the Brahman's wife"; she stood not to be sent forth for a messenger: so is made safe (gupitā) the kingdom of the Kshatriya.

The sense of a and c is obscure; perhaps we ought to read hāste (or -tena) nāt'vā in a, 'nothing of hers is to be meddled with, when once she is declared the Brahman's.' The mss. vary between grāhyās (B.), grāhyas (E.), and grāhyās (the rest). RV. reads āvocan in b, and adds iyām before iti, by omitting which our text damages the meter (but the Anukr. does not notice it). RV. also has in c prahyè for prahyā; the two readings are of virtually identical meaning; emendation to dūtyāya is desirable. Ppp. reads ādīr in a.

4. The misfortune, descending (ava-pad) upon the village, of which they say "this is a star with disheveled hair" — as such, the Brahman's wife burns up the kingdom, where hath gone forth a hare (çaçā) accompanied with meteors (ulkuṣṭ-).

That is, such apparent portents are really the woman, that has been misused. A very awkwardly constructed verse. Ppp. reads in a tārakām vik-, and, in c, tinotu for dunoti. It is, of course, the reference to meteoric portents that causes the verse to be quoted in Kāuç. 126.

5. The Vedic student (brahmacārīn) goes about serving (viṣ) much service; he becomes one limb of the gods; by him Brihaspati discovered the wife, conducted by Soma, like the sacrificial spoon, O gods.

In d RV. has the doubtless better reading devās, 'as the gods [discovered] the sacrificial spoon.' For nītām Ppp. reads nihatām. Though called a triṣṭubh, the verse has two jagatī pādas.

6. The gods of old verily spoke about her, the seven seers who sat down with penance (tāpas); fearful [is] the wife of the Brahman when led away; she makes (dhā) discomfort (durdhā) in the highest firmament (vyòman).

Our mss. (except P.M.W., which often agree in a misreading) give ápanitā (instead of úṣ-) in c, and this is to be regarded as the proper AV. text, and is implied in the translation; our edition reads ápan-, with RV. RV. differs also in having tápase, an easier reading, in b; and it has no vāi in a, the intrusion of which defaces the meter, though unnoticed by the Anukr. Ppp. has ajayanta (for avad-) in a, combines saptar- in b, and gives brāhmaṇasyā 'pinihitā in c.

7. What embryos are aborted (ava-pad), what living creatures (jágat) are torn away (apa-luṣ), what heroes are mutually shattered — them the Brahman's wife injures.

B. reads nr̥tyānte in c, P.M. tr̥hyāte, D. nūhyante. That is, all this mischief is the consequence of her ill-treatment. Ppp. combines garbhā 'vap- in a, and reads abhilupyate in b, and hanyante in c.

8. And if [there were] ten former husbands of a woman, not Brahmins — provided a Brahman has seized her hand, he is alone her husband.

This verse is wanting in Ppp.

9. A Brahman [is] indeed her husband, not a noble (rājanyā), not a Vāiçya: this the sun goes proclaiming to the five races of men (mānavā).

The Anukr. does not notice the deficient syllable in a (unless we are to syllabize br̥-āh-, which is very harsh). Ppp. combines brāhmaṇe 'va in a, and puts the verse at the end of the hymn.

10. The gods verily gave back; men (manuṣyā) gave back; kings, apprehending (grāh) truth, gave back the Brahman's wife.

RV. has utā instead of the repeated adadus in b; and it gives the better reading kr̥v̥vānās in c. And in both points Ppp. agrees with it [but with -no for -nās].

11. Having given back the Brahman's wife, having brought about (kr̥) freedom of offense with the gods, sharing (bhaja) the refreshment (ūrj) of the earth, they occupy (upa-ās) broad space (urugāyā).

RV. has the more antique forms kr̥tvā and bhaktvāya in b and c. P.M.W. read nakilb- in b.

12. Not on his couch lies a beautiful hundred-bringing (-vāhāt) wife, in whose kingdom the Brahman's wife is obstructed through ignorance.

Literally, 'in what kingdom'; 'obstructed,' i.e. 'kept from him.' 'Hundred,' i.e., probably, 'a rich dowry' (so the Pet. Lex.). The mss. have, as is usual in such cases, ācityā.

13. A wide-eared, broad-headed [ox?] is not born in that dwelling, in whose etc. etc.

Muir understands a "son" of such description.

14. A distributor (kṣattār) with necklaced neck goes not at the head of his crates (? sūnā) [of food], in whose etc. etc.

The meaning is not undisputed: Muir renders "charioteer" and "hosts" (emending to sēnā); Ludwig, "kṣattar" and "slaughter-bench."

15. A white, black-eared [horse] does not make a show (mahīy), harnessed to his [chariot-] pole, in whose etc. etc.

16. Not in his field [is] a lotus-pond, the bulb (?bīsa) of the bulb-bearing lotus is not produced (jan), in whose etc. etc.

Compare iv. 34. 5, and note; āṇḍīka and bīsa are perhaps rather to be rendered independently.

17. Not for him do they who attend to (upa-ās) her milking milk out the spotted [cow], in whose etc. etc.

In b, P. begins yò 'syā, I.H. yé 'syā.

18. Not his [is] a beautiful milch-cow, [his] draft-ox endures not the pole, where a Brahman stays a night miserably (pāpāyā) without a wife (-jāni).

Ppp. reads for a na tatra dhenur dohena. [See BR. vi. 1023.]

18. The Brahman's cow.

[Mayabhū.—pañcadaçakam. brahmagavīdevatyam. ānuṣṭubham : 4, 5, 8, 9, 13. triṣṭubh (4. bhurij).]

Found also in Pāipp. ix. (except vs. 7; in the order 1, 2, 4, 13, 5, 6, 14, 3, 15, 9, 8, 10-12). Not noticed in Vāit., but quoted in Kāuç. 48. 13 with the next hymn (as the "two Brahman-cow" hymns), just after hymn 17, in a witchcraft rite.

Translated: Muir, i². 284; Ludwig, p. 447; Zimmer, p. 199; Grill, 41, 148; Griffith, i. 215; Bloomfield, 169, 430; Weber, xviii. 229.

1. Her the gods did not give thee for thee to eat, O lord of men (nrpāti); do not thou, O noble, desire to devour (ghas) the cow of the Brahman, that is not to be eaten.

An accent-mark under the nya of rājanya in c has been lost.

2. A noble hated of the dice, evil, self-ruined (-pārājita)—he may eat the cow of the Brahman: "let me live today, not tomorrow."

I.e., if such is his wish. Ppp. reads, for b, pāpātman aparājitaḥ. [Cf. Isaiah xxii. 13; I Cor. xv. 32.]

3. Like an ill-poisonous adder enveloped with [cow-] hide, this cow of the Brahman, O noble, is harsh, not to be eaten.

That is (a, b) a poisonous serpent in disguise. At beginning of c, mā in our text is an error for sā.

4. Verily it conducts away his authority, smites his splendor; like fire taken hold of it burns up all; he who thinks the Brahman to be food, he drinks of Timātan poison.

Or 'she' (the cow), or 'he' (the Brahman), instead of 'it,' in a, b. Ppp. reads in b ālābdhaḥ pṛtannoṭa rāṣṭam, and has a wholly different second half-verse, nearly agreeing with our 13 c, d: yo brāhmanam devabandhum hinasti tasya pīṭṭṇam apy etu lokam. The Anukr. reckons the verse unnecessarily as bhurij, since iva in b is to be shortened to 'va.

5. Whatever insulter of the gods, desirous of riches, not from knowledge, slays him, thinking him gentle, in his heart Indra kindles a fire; both the firmaments (nābhas) hate him as he goes about.

Ppp. has in a enām, which is better. The pada-text absurdly reads yé instead of yāh at the beginning. The Anukr. seems to combine ubhāi'nam in d, as the meter demands, although ubhé is even a praghyā; part of the mss. (M.W.I.H.O.) read ubhá e.

6. The Brahman is not to be injured, like fire, by one who holds himself dear; for Soma is his heir, Indra his protector against imprecation.

The Pet. Lex. suggests the (acceptable, but unnecessary) emendation of b to agnéh priyā tanūr iva; this, however, is favored by the reading of Ppp., agneṣ priyatamā tanūh. The expression seems to be incomplete: "as fire [is not to be touched] by one" etc. Ppp. also combines indro 'sya in d. It is strange that the pada-text does not divide dāyādāh [BR. dāyā + āda] as a compound word.

7. He swallows down what (f.) has a hundred barbs; he is not able to tear it out—the fool who thinks of the food of Brahmans "I am eating what is sweet."

The verse is wanting in Ppp. (as noticed above). The mss. read nikkhtdan at end of b; our edition has made the necessary emendation to -dam. The cow, of course, is meant in a, b. Many mss. (B.M.E.I.H.D.K.) accent malvāh in c.

8. His tongue becomes a bow-string, his voice an [arrow-] neck, his teeth [become] shafts (nādākkā) smeared with penance; with these the Brahman (brahmān) pierces the insulters of the gods, with bows having force from the heart [and] speeded by the gods.

Pāda d lacks a syllable, though the Anukr. takes no notice of it. Hrdbalāis is a questionable formation; Ppp. has instead nirjalāis, which may contain hidden a better reading [R. nirjyāis 'without bow-string'?).

9. The Brahmans have sharp arrows, have missiles; what volley (ṣaravyā) they hurl, it is not in vain; pursuing (anu-hā) with fervor and with fury, they split him down even from afar.

Ppp. has te tayā at the end, instead of enam. [Pāda b is of course jagatī.]

10. They that ruled, a thousand, and were ten hundreds, those Vāitahavyas, having devoured the cow of the Brahman, perished (parā-bhū).

Sahāsrām is taken as in apposition with yé, since rāj properly governs a genitive. Ppp. has a different c, tebhyaḥ prabravīmi tvā. A syllable is lacking in a, unnoted by the Anukr.

11. The cow herself, being slain, pulled down those Vāitahavyas, who cooked the last she-goat of Kesaraprābandhā (?).

The second half-verse is totally defaced in Ppp. The pada-text reads in d caramac djām; the accent is anomalous, and the sense unacceptable; Ludwig's translation, “letztgeboren,” implying emendation to carama-jām, suggests a welcome improvement of the text. Kṛsara-prābandhāyās has its long ā of -prā- in pada-text noted in Prāt. iv. 96. Ppp. reads ivā 'carat in b.

12. Those hundred and one fellows (?janātā) whom the earth shook off, having injured the progeny of the Brahmans, perished irretrievably.

Bp. accents properly viśādhūnuta in b, but all the saṁhitā mss. give vyādh-, and D. has correspondingly viśadh-: cf. 19. 11. Ppp. reads vāi for tās in a, and bhūmir yā in b.

13. The insulter of the gods goes about among mortals; he becomes one who has swallowed poison, [becomes] mainly composed of bones; he who injures the Brahman, the connection of the gods, he goes not to the world to which the Fathers go.

Garagīrṇā is an anomalous compound, but its meaning is hardly doubtful; it is so interpreted by the comm. to AÇS. ix. 5. 1; asthibhūyān, virtually 'reduced to a skeleton.' Ppp. exchanges our 4 c, d and 13 c, d, giving the former here without a variant.

14. Agni verily our guide, Soma is called [our] heir, Indra slayer of imprecation (?): so know the devout that.

Ppp. reads, for second half-verse, jayatā 'bhiçasta indras tat satyam devasaṁhitam. Pāda c plainly calls for correction (pada has abhīçastā); Zimmer proposes abhīçastam, the Pet. Lex. [vii. 1515] abhīçastim; abhīçastyās, gen., or even abhīçastipās (cf. vs. 6), might be suggested as yet more probable.

15. Like an arrow smeared [with poison], O lord of men, like an adder, O lord of cattle—that arrow of the Brahman is terrible; with it he pierces the insulting.

Ppp. reads digāhā instead of ghorā in c. The Anukr. does not call the verse bhurij, although the full pronunciation of the iva in a would make it so. In the first half-verse doubtless the two lower castes are addressed.

19. The Brahman's cow.

[Mayobhū. — pañcadaçakam. brahmagavīdevatyam. ānuṣṭubham: 2. virāṭpurastādbyhatī; 7. upariṣṭādbyhatī.]

A part of the verses of this hymn are found also in Pāipp. ix. (namely, and in the order, 1, 2, 3, 7, 4, 10, 8, 12; also 15 in another place). Vāit. does not refer to it, but it is noted at Kāuç. 48. 13 with the preceding hymn (as there mentioned).

Translated: Muir, i². 286; Ludwig, p. 451; Zimmer, p. 201; Grill, 43, 150; Griffith, i. 218; Bloomfield, 171, 433; Weber, xviii. 237. — Cf. Hillebrandt, Veda-chrestomathie, p. 42.

1. They grew excessively; they did not quite (iva) touch up to the sky; having injured Bhrigu, the Sriñjayas, Vāitahavyas, perished.

Ppp. reads, in c, d, mrga hīnsitvā brahmim asaṁbhavyam par-: cf. 18. 12 c, d. The verse is found also in JB. i. 152, with vad for ud in b, and māhenā asaṁheyam (for srñ- vāit-) in c, d: a much corrupted text. The pada-text strangely divides srñojayāh (the word is left undivided in the TS. pada, vi. 6. 2). [Griffith cites MBh. xiii. 30. 1 (= 1940) ff. for the story of the Vāitahavyas. See Weber's notes.]

2. The people who delivered up (?arpay-) the Brahman Brihatsāman, descendant of Aṅgiras — a he-goat with two rows of teeth, a sheep, consumed (av) their offspring (īokā).

The translation implies emendation in c to ubhayāḍdān (nom. of -dant), as suggested in the Index Verborum, and, indeed, assumed also by Zimmer and Muir. Ppp. is so mutilated that nothing is to be learned from it. The definition of the verse given by the Anukr. corresponds with its present form; but a invites emendation.

3. They who spat upon a Brahman, or who sent [their] mucus at him — they sit in the midst of a stream of blood, devouring hair.

Ppp. reads asmāi in b, and combines -ntā "sate" in ḍ. Read in our text īṣiré at the end (an accent-sign, lost under ī).

4. The Brahman's cow, being cooked, as far as she penetrates (?), smites out the brightness (téjas) of a kingdom; no virile (vīṣan) hero is born [there].

Jāṅgahe is doubtful in meaning, although it cannot well be referred to any root but gāh; derivation from a root jañh, proposed in the major Pet. Lex., is apparently withdrawn in the minor. Ppp. reads pumān in ḍ. The separate accent of abhi in b is a case falling under Prāt. iv. 4, and the passage is quoted in the commentary to that rule.

5. Cruel is the cutting up of her; harsh to eat (?) is her prepared flesh (piçitām); in that the milk (kṣīrā) of her is drunk, that verily is an offense against the Fathers.

The translation implies emendation of asyate in b to açyate, as suggested by Zimmer; Ppp. unfortunately lacks the verse.

6. A king who thinks himself formidable, [and] who desires to devour a Brahman — that kingdom is poured away, where a Brahman is scathed (jyā).

Yā jighatsati in b is an error for yó j-. 'Pour away,' doubtless a figure from the pouring off onto the ground of worthless liquid. With a, b compare RV. ii. 23. 12.

7. Becoming eight-footed, four-eyed, four-eared, four-jawed, two-mouthed, two-tongued, she shakes down the kingdom of the Brahman-scather.

Ppp. reads, in c, dvijihvā dviprāṇā bhūtvā, and omits brahmanjyāsya at the end.

8. It leaks verily into that kingdom, as water into a split boat (nāū); where they injure a Brahman, that kingdom misfortune smites.

Ppp. puts bhinnām before nāvam in b, and has for c brāhmaṇo yatra jīyate (like our 6 ḍ). Zimmer and Muir prefer to understand in a a subject, coördinate with udakam in b: "ruin flows into that kingdom." [W. doubtless means to imply that it is not competent to base upon the phrase in b an argument about shipwreck and ocean commerce. But cf. Hopkins, AJP. xix. 139.]

9. Him the trees drive away, saying "do not come unto our shadow," who, O Nārada, plots against that which is the riches of the Brahman.

Or, 'against the real (sāt) riches' etc.; emendation of sāt to tāt (BR. v. 515) seems uncalled for. The verse reads as if taken from a collection of adages.

10. King Varuṇa called that a god-made poison; no one soever, having devoured the cow of the Brahman, keeps watch in the kingdom.

That is, guards successfully his realm: jāgāra, as such passages as xiii. i. 9, xix. 24. 2; 48. 5 plainly show, belongs to gr (jāgr) 'wake,' and not to jr 'waste away, grow old,' as claimed in the minor Pet. Lex. Ppp. has jāgara, and dugdhvā in c.

11. Those same nine nineties whom the earth shook off, having injured the progeny of the Brahman, perished irretrievably.

This verse is nearly the same with 18. 12 above; and the various accentuations of vyādhūnuta are precisely the same here as there.

12. The kūḍī which they tie on after a dead man, as effacer (?) of the track, that verily, O Brahman-scather, did the gods call thy couch (upastāraṇa).

Kūḍī, which occurs several times in the Kāuṣ. (see Bloomfield's edition, p. xlv [where read Kāuṣ. 21. 2, 13], and AJP. xi. 355), is identified by the scholiasts with badarī 'jube.' For the habit of tying a bunch of twigs to a corpse, see Roth in the Festgruss an Böhtlingk, p. 98 [and Bloomfield, AJP. xii. 416].

13. The tears of one weeping (kṛp), which rolled [down] when he was scathed, these verily, O Brahman-scather, did the gods maintain as thy portion of water.

Vāvrtās (p. vāvrtūh) is quoted as example under Prāt. iii. 13; iv. 84. P.M.W. read jīvāsya in b.

14. With what they bathe a dead man, with what they wet (ud) beards, that verily, O Brahman-scather, did the gods maintain as thy portion of water.

15. The rain of Mitra-and-Varuṇa does not rain upon the Brahman-scather; the assembly (sāmitī) does not suit (kṛp) him; he wins (nī) no friend to his control.

Ppp. reads in b -jyām. With c compare vi. 88. 3 d.

20. To the war-drum.

[Brahman.—dvādaçakam. vānaspatyaṃ dundubhidevatyam (20, 21. sapatnasenāparājayāya devasenāvijayāya ca dundubhim astāut). trāiṣṭubham: 1. jagatī.]

Found also in Pāipp. ix. (in the verse-order 1, 2, 4, 3, 5, 8, 6, 7, 9-12). This hymn and vi. 126 are quoted together by Kāuṣ. 16. 1 and Vāit. 34. 11: by the former, in a battle-rite, for infusing terror into a hostile army; by the latter, with beating of a drum in a sattra sacrifice.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 460; Grill, 68, 153; Griffith, i. 220; Bloomfield, 130, 436; Weber, xviii. 244.

1. The loud-noised drum, warrior-like, of forest-tree, brought together (sāmbhṛta) with the ruddy [kine], whetting the voice, dominating our rivals; thunder thou loudly against [them] like a lion, about to conquer.

That is (b), made of wood and bound and headed with cowhide. The mss. make awkward work of writing kṣṇuvānās; nearly all have kṣṇuu-, only Bp.² kṣṇuv-, and E. kṣuv-; but there cannot well be any question as to the true reading. In ḍ, also, most of the mss. have the obviously wrong jyēsyan, only H.E. jeṣ-. The Anukr. strangely reckons the verse (though it is a perfectly regular trīṣṭubh) as a jagati, apparently only on account of the unnecessary full reading iva (for 'va) in ḍ: or can it perhaps count also kṣṇuvāno as four syllables? Ppp. has khaṇvāno; in ḍ it reads siṅha iva dveṣann (= hreṣann?) abhi taṅstanayati.

2. Like a lion hath thundered the wooden one, stretched (vi-bandh), like a bull roaring at a longing cow; virile (vīṣan) [art] thou, impotent thy rivals; Indra-like [is] thy vehemence (ḥṣma), overpowering hostile plotters.

The translation implies emendation to vācītām in b, as made in our edition; the mss. vāsītām. All the samhitā-mss. (after their usual custom: see my Skt. Gr. § 232) abbreviate in a to -nīdruv-, and many of them (P.M.W.E.H.O.) have the misreading -nīdhruv-. The pada-text does not divide druvyaḥ, but the case is quoted in the comment to Prāt. iv. 18 as an exceptional one, vaya being regarded as a suffix added to dru. Ppp. reads at the beginning siṅhāvātānīdruvayo, and combines ḥṣmo 'bhi in ḍ. The Anukr. notes no irregularity in the verse — as if it abbreviated iva to 'va in both a and b.

3. Found (vidānā) suddenly (sāhasā) like a bull in a herd, do thou, seeking kine, bellow (ru) at [them], winning booty; pierce thou with pain the heart of our adversaries; let our foes, leaving their villages, go urged forth (pra-cyu).

Ppp. reads in a yūtham saha sa-, and in c viddhi. The Anukr. notes no irregularity in the verse, although ḍ is clearly a jagati-pāda, and to resolve vidhia in c is contrary to all analogy.

4. Wholly conquering the fighters, shrill-crying, do thou, seizing those that are to be seized, look abroad on many sides; respond (? ā-gur), O drum, devout, to the voice of the gods; bring the possession of our foes.

Vedhās is as superfluous to the sense in c as it is redundant in meter. The Anukr. takes no notice of the irregularity, nor of the deficiency in a (ūrdhua being very harsh, and not found in RV.). The pada-text reads gṛhyāḥ in b; pṛtanās is apparently to be understood with it. The voice of the gods (or of heaven, dātvi) is apparently the thunder.

5. Hearing the uttered (pra-yam) voice of the drum speaking, let the woman, suppliant, noise-wakened, run to her son, seizing his hand — our enemy, frightened in the conflict of deadly weapons.

One might conjecture in a prayatām 'of [us] advancing.' This verse and 6 and 9 are really the only regular trīṣṭubhs of the hymn.

6. Mayest thou first (pūrva), O drum, speak forth thy voice; on the back of earth speak thou, shining (ruc); opening wide the jaws (jabh) on the army of our enemies, speak thou clearly, O drum, pleasantly (sūṅtāvāt).

That is, 'what is pleasant to us,' apparently. Pārva in a might also mean 'in front, in our van.' Ppp. reads in a, b viśahasva çatrūn: vada bahu rocamānaḥ; and it makes the second half-verse exchange places with 8 c, d.

7. Let there be noise between these two firmaments (nábhas); severally let thy sounds (dhvani) go swiftly; roar at [them], thunder, truculent (?), resounding (çlokaçrīt) unto the victory of our friends, a good partizan.

Mitra in mitratūrya has to be taken as subjective instead of objective genitive. It is only with difficulty (iantu?) that b can be made metrically complete [unless we read táva for te]. Ppp. reads at the end çraddhī. [Bloomfield discusses utpāna, AJP. xii. 441.]

8. Made by devices (dhī), may it speak forth its voice; excite thou the weapons of the warriors; allied with Indra, call in the warriors; by friends smite mightily down the enemies.

'By devices': i.e., apparently, with art. Emendation of vadāti to vadāsi in a is very desirable; Ppp. has the 2d pers. bharasva instead; and, as noted above, it substitutes our 6 c, d for the second half-verse. There is a syllable lacking in a.

9. A vociferating herald (? pravadd), with bold army, making proclaim in many places, sounding through the villages, winning advantage, knowing the ways, do thou distribute (vi-hṛ) fame to many in the [battle] of two kings.

The verse seems to relate to the proclamation of victory and of the desert of those to whom it is due: see Roth, Festgruss an Böhrlingh, p. 99. Ppp. reads prasraveṇo for pravado in a, and bhaja for hara in d. [For vayūna, Pischel, Ved. Stud. i. 297.]

10. Aiming at advantage, conquering good things, very powerful, conquering a host, thou art sharpened by brāhman; as the pressing-stone on the [soma-] stalks in the press, do thou, O drum, dance on [their] possession, seeking booty (gavyān).

The translation implies emendation of gavyām (read by all our mss.) in d to gavyān, as made in our edited text; but gavyām védas might perhaps mean 'their possession in kine.' Prāt. ii. 62 prescribes çreyahketas (not -yask-). Bp. alone reads ādhrīḥ in c, which Pet. Lexx. prefer; adris is, to be sure, superfluous beside grāvā, and can hardly be translated. Ppp. has, for b, mitraṁ dadhānas tviṣito vipaçcit; and it reads adhī (not 'dhi') in d. The first pāda is defective, unless we make the violent resolution çr-e- at the beginning; in the third we have to read 'va [or 'driḥ].

11. Overpowering foes, overpowering and putting down, overpowering hostile plotters, seeking kine, overpowering, up-shooting, bring forth thy voice as a speaker (vāgvān) his discourse (māntṛa); speak up force (?īṣ) here in order to the conquering of the host.

Sāmgram- in our text is a misprint for sāmgrām-. Ppp. offers no variants. The words çatrūṣāt and nīṣāt (both unchanged in pada-text) fall under Prāt. ii. 82; iii. 1; iv. 70. Gavēṣaṇa (p. goṣēṣaṇaḥ) is by Prāt. ii. 23. The second pāda is defective by one syllable.

12. Stirring (cyu) the unstirred, going oftenest into contests, conquering scorners, going in front, unsubduable, made safe by Indra, noting counsels (? viddātha), burning the hearts of our adversaries, go thou quickly.

The abbreviated combination hr̥dyo- for hr̥ddyo- has led here, as at i. 22. 1, to the pada-reading hr̥dyótanaḥ in ḍ. The defective meter of a (which is not to be honestly removed by resolving cy into ci) makes the reading suspicious (perhaps samādane?). Ppp. has ḥṛtanāṣāt for puraetā in b, and kl̥ptas for gūptas in c. Viddāthā in c, perhaps 'the gatherings of our enemies'; [see Geldner, ZDMG. lii. 746].

21. To the war-drum.

[Brahman. — *dvādaçakam. vānaspatyaṃ dundubhidevatyaṃ (10-12. ādityādīn devān aprārthayāt). ānuṣṭubham: 1, 4, 5. paṭhyāpañkti; 6. jagatī; 11. bṛhatigarbhā triṣṭubh; 12. 3-p. yavamadhya gāyatrī.]

[Pādas 11 c, ḍ and 12 a, b appear to be prose.] Not found in Pāipp. Not noticed in Vāit.; quoted by Kāuṣ. (16. 2), in a battle-rite (next after the preceding hymn).

*[Cf. extracts from Anukr. under h. 20.]

Translated: Ludwig, p. 374; Griffith, i. 222; Bloomfield, 131, 439; Weber, xviii. 249.

1. Division of hearts, division of minds speak thou among our enemies, O drum; mutual hate, confusion, fear, we put into our enemies: smite them down, O drum.

Pāda a might also be understood as 'heartlessness, mindlessness.' Kāçmaça (in c) occurs here only, and is very possibly only a misreading for kaçmala, as equivalent to which it is here translated.

2. Quaking with mind, with sight, and with heart, let our enemies run fearing with alarm (pratrāsā) when the sacrificial butter is offered.

The pada-mss. unaccountably read utovēpamānā (instead of -nāḥ) in a.

3. Made of forest-tree, brought together with the ruddy [kine], belonging to all the families (-gotrā-), speak thou alarm for our enemies, being smeared with sacrificial butter.

The metrical structure is very irregular, though the right number of syllables can be forced out, if the divisions of pādas be overridden; the Anukr. takes no heed. The first three words constituted 20. 1 b. [The usual sign of pāda-division to be expected after sāmbhṛta is lacking in Bp. In c, we may pronounce pratrāsāmtt-.]

4. As the wild beasts of the forest are all in a tremble at man, so do thou, O drum, roar at [and] alarm our enemies, then confound their intents.

Read in c 'mītrān in our text (an accent-sign lost over trā).

5. As the goats-and-sheep run greatly fearing the wolf, so do thou, O drum etc. etc.

Or 'run from the wolf, greatly fearing.' A sign of punctuation is omitted in our text after bh̥hyatīh.

6. As the birds (patatrīn) are all in a tremble at the falcon, day by day; as at the thundering of the lion, so do thou, O drum etc. etc.

Pāda c [as the sense shows] seems to have dropped in here by accident out of vs. 5 (or possibly 4), where alone it fits the connection. Ahardivi occurs again in Pāipp. v. 3. 1, 3: indrāgnī tasmāt tvāi 'nasah pari pātām ahardivi. The Anukr. calls the verse simply jagatī (on account of its 48 syllables), but probably by an accidental omission of the epithet satpādī, 'of six pādas,' which it usually adds in such a case.

7. Away have all the gods alarmed our enemies by the drum and the skin of the gazelle — [the gods] who are masters of the host.

8. With what foot-noises Indra plays together with shadow, by those let our enemies be alarmed who go yonder in troops (anikaçās).

The playful tactics of Indra here are not very clear.

9. Let the drums, with bow-string noises, yell toward all (yās) the quarters — the armies of our enemies going conquered in troops.

Or iyāghoçās (as indicated by its accent) is independent noun, 'the noises of the bow-strings.' The verse seems rather out of order.

10. O Āditya, take [away their] sight; ye beams, run after; let them that have foot-fastenings fasten on, the arm-power (-vīryā) being gone away.

We should expect a passive verb in c, if patsaṅgnīs, as seems necessary, refers back to śnās in 9 c. It is apparently the enemy who are to be hampered in going, after losing their power of arm.

11. Do ye [who are] formidable, O Maruts, sons of the spotted mother, with Indra as ally, slaughter our foes.

King Soma, king Varuṇa, the great god, also Death, Indra—

The first half-verse is repeated below as xiii. 1. 3 a, b. The verse is translated by Muir (iv². 333). The Anukr. correctly reckons c as a brhatī-pāda, but takes no notice of the redundant syllable in a, or of the deficient one in d, perhaps reckoning them as balancing one another. The second half-verse would be better treated as constituting one paragraph (unmetrical) with our vs. 12.

12. Let these armies of the gods, sun-bannered, accordant, conquer our enemies: hail!

This bit of prose, since it counts 24 syllables (6+9:9), is called by the Anukr. a gāyatrī, and ill described as yavamadhya, although its pādas b and c are equal. It is enumerated in the gaṇamālā (see Bloomfield's note to Kāuç. 14. 7) as belonging to the aparājita gaṇa.

This fourth anuvāka has 6 hymns, with 83 verses, and the quotation (found only in Bp. and D.) is ekatrīṣaṣṭis tryaçṭīḥ, of which the first part is obscure.

22. Against fever (takmán).

[Bhṛgvañgiras. — caturdaçakam. takmanāçanadevatyam (takmāpabādhāyā 'nena devān aprār-thayat takmanāçanam astāut). ānuṣṭubham: 1, 2. triṣṭubh (1. bhurij); 5. vīrāt pathyābrhatē.]

Found also (except vss. 2, 11) in Päipp. Most of it is in xiii., in the order 1, 3, 4, 8, 5, 6, 7 cd, 10; then (beginning a new hymn), 12, 14, 8 cd, 9; but vs. 13 is in i. Used by Kāuç. (29. 18) among various other hymns, in a healing ceremony; reckoned in the gaṇamālā as belonging in the takmanāçana gaṇa (26. 1, note).

Translated: Roth, Zur Litteratur und Geschichte des Weda, 1846, p. 37 (about half); Grohmann, Ind. Stud. ix. 381-423, especially 411 f., as text of an elaborate medical disquisition on takmán (nearly all); Muir, iii. 351 (part); Ludwig, p. 510; Grill, 12, 154; Griffith, i. 224; Bloomfield, 1, 441 (elaborate comment of almost 12 pages); Weber, xviii. 252. — See also Hillebrandt, Veda-chrestomathie, p. 49; E. W. Fay, Trans. American Philological Ass'n, xxv. (1894), p. viii, who compares it with the Song of the Arval Brothers. — As to Bálhika and Mújavant, see Weber, Berliner Sb. 1892, p. 985-995; and as to Mújavant, also Hillebrandt, Ved. Mythol., i. 62 ff.

1. Let Agni drive (bādh) the fever away from here; [let] Soma, the pressing-stone, Varuṇa of purified dexterity, the sacrificial hearth, the barhīs, the brightly gleaming (çuc) fuel; be hatreds away yonder.

Amuyā 'yonder' has always an implication of disgust or contempt. In our text apa and bādhātām should have been separated in a. Ppp. reads in b marutaṣ pūtadaksāt, in c sañçiçāno, and in d rakṣāñsi. Çóçucānās may mean 'causing great pain,' and it may qualify all the persons and things mentioned.

2. Thou here that makest all [men] yellow, heating (çuc) up like fire, consuming; now then, O fever—for mayest thou become sapless—now go away inward or downward.

Or nyāñ 'inward' is another 'downward.' The mss. mostly omit to double the ñ of nyāñ, and several (P.M.W.H.) read nyāñg; P.M.W. have adharāg. Ppp. has our vi. 20. 3 instead of this verse.

3. The fever that is spotted, speckled, ruddy like a sprinkling, do thou, O thou of power (-vīryā) in every direction, impel away downward.

The last half-verse occurs again as xix. 39. 10 c, d. 'Rough, rugged' would be more etymological renderings of paruṣā and pāruṣeyā: cf. vājñ vājineyās, RV. vi. 26. 2. Pāda b, virtually 'as if sprinkled with red.' The address is probably to some remedy. Suvā at the end is a misprint for svva. In place of this verse, Ppp. has takmāñ sākti-nam ichasva vaçī san mṛḍayāsi naḥ (our 9 b): yathe 'hy atra te grhān yat pārteṣu danyatu. [Then, as its vs. 4, Ppp. has our vs. 3.]

4. I send [him] forth downward, having paid homage to the fever; let the fist-slayer of the dung-bearer (?) go back to the Mahāvriṣhas.

Ludwig (and Grill after him) takes the obscure çakambharā in c as a proper name. We may conjecture that the Mahāvriṣhas are a neighboring tribe, looked down upon as gatherers of dung for fuel, on account of the lack of wood in their territory. Ppp. makes the meter of b easier by reading kṛtvāya.

5. Its home (śkas) is the Mūjavants, its home is the Mahāvrihas; as long as born, O fever, so long art thou at home among the Balhikas.

The Prāt. rule i. 46 applies, if we may trust the comment, to the name in ḍ, and proves it to be bālhika, and not bāhlika [cf. Weber, as cited above]; the mss. vary between the two, the majority giving -lh-; but the testimony of no ms. is of any authority on this particular point; Ppp. appears to have -hl-. Some of our mss. (I.H.O.D.) accent tākman in *c; its omission would rectify the meter of c; the Anukr. gives a correct (mechanical) definition of the verse as it stands. We should expect either yāvān or tāvāt. * [So do 11 of SPP's.]

6. O fever, trickish one, speak out (?); O limbless one, keep much away (?); seek the fugitive (?) barbarian woman; make her meet a thunderbolt.

Various points in this verse are very doubtful; in a, a vocative vīgada seems much more probable, if only a suitable meaning could be found for it; and, if so, one may suspect the same character in bhūriyāvaya (perhaps bhūryāvaya 'painful,' connected with āvī); the translation is mechanical, and follows the traditional text, since emendation yields so little satisfaction. Ppp. reads vakada for vi gada. In niṣṭākvarīm is doubtless to be seen a word-play on takman, but the sense is only conjectural; the word is quoted as an example under Prāt. ii. 85.

7. O fever, go to the Mūjavants, or to the Balhikas, further off; seek the wanton Čūdra woman; her, O fever, do thou shake up a bit (iva).

Some of our mss. (O.R.K.) read tāns in ḍ, as if the word were tān instead of tām. Ppp. has girīm gaccha girijā 'si rāntena māyuso gṛhāḥ; dāsīm ṛtyuccha praḥḥarayan tāns takman nī 'va dhūnuhi.

8. Going away, eat thou thy connection (bāndhu), the Mahāvrihas [and] Mūjavants; those [fields] we announce to the fever; others' fields verily [are] these.

'Thy connection,' i.e. 'those with whom thou hast a right to meddle'; 'fields,' i.e. 'territories': ḍ, "these territories here belong to some one else." Pāda b is corrupt in Ppp.; for ḍ, it reads 'nyakṣetrāni vāyasām, and it has further on this verse: nārka-vindāni nārvidālāni nādīyanī rovatukāvātīni: prajā nī takmane brūmo 'nyakṣetrāni vā yumām. At Ppp. v. 5. 1, 2 we find: takmann imāni te kṣetrabhāgam apābhajāni pṛthivyāḥ pūrve ardhe.

9. In another's field thou restest (ram) not; being in control, mayest thou be gracious to us; the fever hath become ready (?); it will go to the Balhikas.

The pada-reading in c is praśrthakḥ; prā-ar- would better suit the meaning given, 'ready to set out,' lit. 'having an object in front' (comm. to PB. xi. 1. 6, prakarsēna iyarti gacchati 'ti prārtho 'naḍvān !). Pāda b is identical with vi. 26. 1 b; Ppp. has instead sahasrākṣo 'martyaḥ; in ḍ it reads bahlikam.

10. In that thou, being cold, then hot (rūrā), didst cause trembling, together with cough—fearful are thy missiles, O fever; with them do thou avoid us.

Ppp. begins with yas for yat, and leaves atho unelided in a. Most of our mss. have tābhi sma in d.

11. Do not thou make them thy companions — the balāsa, the cough, the ud̄yugā (?); come not back hitherward from there: for that, O fever, I appeal to thee.

Zimmer (who translates vss. 10–12, at pp. 381–5) understands ud̄yugā in b as ‘sich anschliessend’; Ludwig as ‘angestrengt,’ qualifying kāsām as adjective; perhaps it means ‘hiccough’; balāsa may be ‘expectoration.’ In c the pada-text has ā: āth (Bp. ā: éh), accent on the verb-form being false. [SPP’s mss. have ā with āth, āih, éh, and eh.]

12. O fever, together with thy brother the balāsa [and] thy sister the cough, together with thy cousin the scab (pāmān), go to yon foreign people.

Ppp. begins with this verse a new hymn, and has, for c, d, apān̄ bhrātrātr̄vyena naçye ‘to marayam̄ abhi.’ Read in our text at end of b sahā (an accent-sign slipped out of place). [Without note of variants, SPP. gives pāpmā in both texts instead of our pām̄nā, and our H. reads pāpmānā. In spite of the possibility of taking pāpmā as instrumental (cf. dr̄agh̄mā, raçmā, JAOS. x. 533), we must deem pām̄nā the true reading and pāpmā a blunder, due perhaps to the frequent collocation pāpmān̄ bhrātr̄vyā, AB. etc.]

13. The fever of the third day, of two days out of three, the constant, and the autumnal, the cold, the hot, that of the hot season, that of the rainy season, do thou cause to disappear.

In a the intermittent phases of the disease, of course, are referred to. The pada-text divides sadam̄d̄m in b, perhaps lit. ‘ever-binding.’ Pāda c lacks a syllable; the Anukr. takes no notice of it; we might add ca at the end. Ppp. has in b hāyanam̄ instead of çāradam; and in c viçvaçāradam instead of çitan̄ r̄uram.

14. To the Gandhāris, the Mūjavants, the Aṅgas, the Magadhas, like one sending a person a treasure, do we commit the fever.

The translation implies in c the easy emendation to pr̄syan (pra-isyān); the accent and pada-reading (pra-esyān) view the word as future from pra-i; the translators assume -syām, and reach no acceptable sense. The comm. to Prāt. ii. 11 correctly quotes the case as one of the assimilation of final n to initial j. The Anukr. this time takes no notice of the extra syllable in c if we should read iva instead of ’va. Ppp. reads gāndhāribhyo māujamad̄bhyāç k̄āçibhyo mayebhyāç: jāne priyam̄ iva çev. [As to the proper names, cf. JRAS. 1890, p. 477.]

23. Against worms.

[Kāṇva. — trayodaçakam. āindram (kr̄imijambhānāya devān̄ apr̄arthayat). ānuṣṭubham:
13. vir̄āj.]

Found, except vss. 10–12, in Pāipp. vii. (vs. 9 coming before vs. 6). Used by Kāuç. (29. 20) in a healing ceremony against worms; part of the last verse (13 c) is specially quoted (29. 24) with the direction “do as prescribed in the text.” [Cf. hymns 31 and 32 of book ii.]

Translated: Kuhn, KZ. xiii. 140; Ludwig, p. 501; Griffith, i. 226; Bloomfield, 23, 452; Weber, xviii. 257. — See Bergaigne-Henry, Manuel, p. 148.

1. Worked in (óta) for me [are] heaven-and-earth; worked in [is] divine Sarasvatī; worked in for me [are] both Indra and Agni: to the effect "let them (dual) grind up the worm."

Here, as everywhere else, the mss. vary with the utmost diversity between krimi and kṛmi; no attempt will be made to report their variations. The first three pādas of the verse are repeated below as vi. 94. 3 a, b, c. The pple. óta (p. áouta) ['woven on, worked in' (ā + vā)] seems to mean 'brought in for my aid'; a root u is insufficiently supported [see Whitney, Roots etc.]. For its forms Ppp. reads in a oṣate, in b okātā, in c okato; Ppp. also has at the end imam for iti.

2. O Indra, lord of riches, smite thou the worms of this boy; smitten are all the niggards by my formidable spell (vacas).

Ppp. reads in b kṛmim, and in c, d viṣvā 'rātayo 'greṇa vacasā mimā.

3. What one creeps about his eyes, what one creeps about his nostrils, what one goes to the midst of his teeth — that worm do we grind up.

Read in c, d in our text gáchatī tām (an accent-sign slipped out of place). Ppp. has in a, b 'kṣāu and nāsāu [and in c apparently gachasī].

4. Of like form two, of various form two, black two, red two; both the brown and the brown-eared, the vulture and the cuckoo (kóka) — they are slain.

In d, the mss. are divided between te (B.I.H.s.m.T.?K.) and té (P.M.W.H.p.m.O.R.), and either reading is acceptable enough. Our text gives te; the translation above implies té. Ppp. makes sarūpāu and virūpāu exchange places, and has in d kokās.

5. The worms that are white-sided, that are black with white arms, and whatever ones are of all forms — those worms we grind up.

The Anukr. does not notice the deficient syllable of c. Ppp. reads in a sitavakṣās, and in b sitabāhavas.

6. Up in the east goes the sun, seen of all, slayer of the unseen, slaying both those seen and those unseen, and slaughtering all worms.

The first half-verse is RV. i. 191. 8 a, b, without variant. Ppp. reads for a ud asāu sūryo agād, and in b adrñhā [the ñ is written with the anunāsika-sign or candrabindu inverted].

7. The yévāshas, the kāshkashas, the stirrers, the ṣipavitnukās — both let the seen worm be slain, and let the unseen be slain.

The pada-text divides ejat-kāh, but not ṣipavitnukāh, both according to Prāt. iv. 25. [For ejat-kā, cf. avat-kā, ii. 3. 1 and note; also bhinna-ka, note to ii. 32. 6, and the frequent Pāli forms like ni-panna-ka, Jātaka, ii. p. 720.] Ppp. has, for a, b, yavāyavā khāsaṣkaṣkī ṣyāmo dhūksāmaṣ ca parivṛkṇavaḥ: and, for d, adrṣtaṣ co 'ta hanyatām.

8. Slain is the yévāsha of the worms, slain also the nadanimān; I have put them all down, smash (?maṣmaṣā)! like khālva-grains with a millstone.

Nadanimān might possibly mean something like 'a buzzing,' coming from a nadana, root nad. The last pāda is identical with ii. 31. 1 d. Ppp. has instead: hato yavākhō hataṣ ca pavir hato sam gaṇavān uta: hatā viṣvā rātaya anena vacasā mama (cf. 2 c, d).

9. The three-headed, the three-humped (-kakūḍ), the variegated, the whitish worm — I₂ crush the ribs of it; I hew at what is its head.

The last three pādas are identical with ii. 32. 2 b-d, above. Some of the mss. (P.M.W.H.p.m.) read in a trāikak-. Ppp. has for a, b yo dviṣṭrṣaṣ caturakṣaṣ krimiḥ carṅgo arjunah (cf. the Ppp. version of ii. 32. 2), and in d apa for api. The deficiency of a syllable (unless we read asia) in c is noticed by the Anukr. neither there nor here. The three following verses are the same with ii. 32. 3-5.

10. Like Atri I slay you, O worms, like Kaṇva, like Jamadagni; with the incantation of Agastya I mash together the worms.

11. Slain is the king of the worms, also the chief of them is slain; slain is the worm, having its mother slain, its brother slain, its sister slain.

12. Slain are its neighbors, slain its further neighbors, also those that are petty, as it were — all those worms are slain.

13. Both of all worms and of all she-worms I split the head with a stone, I burn the mouth with fire.

Ppp. reads açminā in c.

24. To various gods as overlords.

[Atharvan. — saptadaçakam. brahmakarmātmadevatyam. atiçākvaram: 1-17. 4-p. atiçakvarī; 11. çakvarī; 15-17. 3-p. (15, 16. bhuriç atijagatī; 17. virāṭ çakvarī).]

[Not metrical.] In Pāipp. xv. is found a corresponding piece, but one differing considerably in detail; it contains counterparts to our vss. 1, 2, 4, 7-12, 14, 15, 17, but not at all in the same order, and interspersed with nine other verses of similar tenor (1. mitraḥ pṛthivyāḥ; 6. vasus saṁvatsarasya; 7. saṁvatsara ṛtūnām; 11. viṣṇuḥ parvatānām; 12. tvaṣṭā rūpānām; 15. samudro nadīnām; 16. parjanya ośadhīnām; 17. bṛhaspatir devūnām; 18. prajāpatiḥ prajānām). Similar passages occur also in other texts: thus, in TS. iii. 4. 5 (and the part corresponding to our 15-17 is repeated again, with slight variations, at iv. 3. 3²; and the same part, with variations, is found five times as a refrain in MS. ii. 7. 20), in PGS. i. 5. 10 (which closely follows TS. iii. 4. 5), and in ÇÇS. iv. 10. 1, 3 (with nothing corresponding to vss. 15-17). The hymn is used by Kāuṣ. in a royal coronation (17. 30), in the nuptial ceremonies (78. 11), and in the ājyatantra (137. 42). And many of the verses appear also in Vāit., with oblations to the various divinities mentioned, in different ceremonies: thus, in the āgrāyana, vs. 7 (8. 7); in the cāturmāsyaṇi, vss. 1-3, 6, 7 (8. 13), 4 (8. 22), 9 (9. 27); in the agnīṣṭoma, vss. 8 (19. 2), 5 (19. 3), 11 (19. 11).

Translated: Griffith, i. 228; Weber, xviii. 260. — Cf. Weber's Rājasūya, Berliner Abh., 1893, p. 142.

1. Savitar ('the impeller') is overlord of impulses; let him favor (av) me, in this worship (brāhman), in this rite (kārman), in this representation (purodhā), in this firm-standing, in this intent, in this design, in this benediction (āçis), in this invocation of the gods: hail!

This is the tenth item in Ppp.; TS. (with PGS.) and ÇÇS. have the same. The Ppp. order of actions is different, and includes fewer members: brahman, karman, purodhā, devahūti, ākūti, āçis (āçisas [so! twice] svāhā); TS. and PGS. give brāhman, kṣatrá, āçis, purodhā, kárman, deváhūti; MS., brāhman, purodhā, kárman, āçis, deváhūti; ÇÇS., brahman, kṣatra, karman, āçis, pratiṣṭhā, devahūti. The Anukr. text is in part confused and doubtful, and the inaccuracies of its metrical definitions of the parts of the hymn are not worth tracing out and noting. In our edition, the accent mark under the first syllable of ākūtyām is a misprint, and to be removed.

2. Agni is overlord of forest-trees; let him favor etc. etc.

This is the eighth item in Ppp. In TS. and PGS., Agni is made lord of beings (bhūtá); in ÇÇS., of the earth.

3. Heaven-and-earth are overlords of givers; let them favor etc. etc.

Literally, 'are overladies' (ādhipatnī). Neither Ppp. nor the other texts have anything corresponding to this verse. As in a number of other similar cases, the mss. make very awkward work of writing the tī of dātīnām, the majority (Bp.P.M.W.H.E.T.) giving instead tre, one (I.) trr, one (K.) trr, and a few (O.D.R.) correctly tī; the edited text has wrongly trā.

4. Varuṇa is overlord of the waters; let him favor etc. etc.

This item stands second in Ppp.; TS. has it also; but in ÇÇS., Varuṇa is addressed as overlord of ordinances (dharma).

5. Mitra-and-Varuṇa are overlords of rain; let them favor etc. etc.

This item is wanting in all the other texts. The mss. all read vr̥ṣtyā 'dhip- (p. vr̥ṣtyā: ādhip-), the error doubtless originating in a double saṁdhi, such as is extremely frequent in Ppp.

6. The Maruts are overlords of the mountains; let them favor etc. etc.

According to Ppp. (11) and TS., Vishṇu is overlord of the mountains; TS. sets the Maruts over the troops (gaṇa), and ÇÇS. gives them no place.

7. Soma is overlord of plants; let him favor etc. etc.

In Ppp. (14) Soma is overlord of milks (payasām); in TS. and ÇÇS., of herbs.

8. Vāyu is overlord of the atmosphere; let him favor etc. etc.

Here Ppp. (3) and the other texts give the same overlordship.

9. The sun (sūrya) is overlord of sights (or eyes: cākṣus); let him favor etc. etc.

In Ppp. (4), the sun is called overlord of heaven (dīv); and so also in TS.; but ÇÇS. sets him over the asterisms.

10. The moon is overlord of asterisms; let him favor etc. etc.

This item comes fifth in Ppp.; TS. has it also; in ÇÇS. the moon is not mentioned, while the asterisms, as noted above, are put under the sun.

11. Indra is overlord of heaven; let him favor etc. etc.

In Ppp. (9) Indra is overlord of acts or rites (kárman); in TS. and ÇÇS., of chiefs (jyeṣṭhá).

12. The father of the Maruts is overlord of cattle; let him favor etc. etc.

In Ppp. (13) and in TS., this overlordship is ascribed, equivalently, to Rudra; it is wanting in ÇÇS.

13. Death is overlord of creatures (prajā); let him favor etc. etc.

In Ppp. (18) it is Prajāpati instead of death; and so also in ÇÇS.; TS. has nothing corresponding.

14. Yama is overlord of the Fathers; let him etc. etc.

This item is number 19 in Ppp.; but in ÇÇS. it is wanting; and in TS. Yama is set over the earth. Here, again, the reading pitrenām is found in one ms. (Bp.). Additional items in TS. are bḥaspátir bráhmaṇaḥ, mítrāḥ satyānām (ÇÇS. the same), samudráḥ srotýānām, ánnam sánurāyānām, tváṣṭā rūpānām (ÇÇS. tv. samídhām rūpānām); ÇÇS. has only those already given.

15. The upper (pára) Fathers — let them favor etc. etc.

16. The lower (ávāra) Fathers (tatá) — let them favor etc. etc.

17. The Fathers (tatá), the grandfathers (tatāmahá) — let them favor etc. etc.

The translation implies emendation to tatás at the beginning of vs. 17, as the sense seems to require, and as the other texts suggest. Ppp. combines vss. 15-17, reading pítaras páre 'varas tatas tadāmahas te mā etc.; TS. (iii. 4. 5; and PGS.), pítarāḥ pítāmahāḥ páre 'vare tátās tatāmahā ihá mā etc.; TS. iv. 3. 3², pítarāḥ pítāmahāḥ páre 'vare té naḥ etc., with which MS. agrees. Two of our mss. (O.D.) begin vs. 17 with tatás tat-; the rest have tátas, and our printed text follows them.

25. For successful conception.

[Brahman. — trayodaçakam. yonigarbhadevatyam. ānuṣṭubham : 13. virāṭpurastādbṛhatī.]

Found (except vs. 2, and some end-repetitions) also in Pāipp. xiii. (in the verse-order 1, 5, 3, 4, 7, 10, 8, 6, 9). The hymn is quoted in Kāuç. (35. 5) in the ceremony for male conception (puṁsavana); and vs. 7 (unless it be rather vi. 95. 3, which the comm. to vi. 95 holds) in Vāit. 28. 20.

Translated: Weber, Ind. Stud. v. 227; Ludwig, p. 478; Griffith, i. 229; Weber, xviii. 264.

1. Brought together from the cloud (?párvata), from the womb (yóni) of the sky, from every member, let the virile organ, seed-placer of the embryo, set (ā-dhā) [it] like the feather on the shaft.

Or 'from the sky [as] womb.' That which is 'brought together' is the thing (seed) to be 'deposited.' The translation of d implies emendation to çárāu; Weber conjectures tsarāu. The insertion of the feather in the arrow-shaft is elsewhere also the subject of comparison as a work of effective skill; cf. RV. x. 18. 14 b. The verse is cited in Ppp. with its pratika and ity ekā added, as if it had occurred earlier in the text ; but it has not been discovered anywhere. The resolution of -tāt to -taāt in a is necessary to fill out the meter.

2. As this great earth receives the embryo of existences, so do I set thine embryo ; I call thee to its aid.

The first half-verse occurs again below as vi. 17. 1 a, b, and also in the second verse of the addition to RV. x. 184, but with the reading uttānā for bhūtānām (the RV. verse is also found in an addition to AGS. i. 14. 3 ; see Stenzler's translation, p. 36), and in MP. ([i. 12. 4] Winternitz, p. 93) with tṣṭhantī for the same. [Cf. also MGS. ii. 18. 4 b and p. 154.]

3. Place the embryo, O Sinivālī ; place the embryo, O Sarasvatī ; let both the Aṅvins, garlanded with blue lotus, set thine embryo.

The verse is RV. x. 184. 2 and MB. i. 4. 7 and MP. [i. 12. 2], where however is read in c açvīnāu devāv. Ppp. reads both times (in a and b) dēhi. ÇB. (xiv. 9. 4²⁰) follows RV. (but with pr̥thustuke at end of b, and puṣkarasrājāu in d). HGS. (i. 25. 1) differs from our text only by having açvīnāv ubhāv ā. Cf. also HGS. i. 6. 4 ; MB. i. 5. 9. [Cf. MGS. ii. 18. 2 k and p. 150.]

4. Thine embryo let Mitra-and-Varuṇa, [thine] embryo let god Brihaspati, thine embryo let both Indra and Agni, thine embryo let Dhātār place.

Ppp. reads rājā varuṇo for mitrāvaruṇāu in a.

5. Let Vishṇu prepare the womb (yóni) ; let Tvashtar adorn the forms ; let Prajāpati pour on ; let Dhātār place thine embryo.

The verse is also found, without variant, as RV. x. 184. 1 and in ÇB. xiv. 9. 4²⁰, HGS. i. 25. 1, MB. i. 4. 6, and MP. [i. 12. 1]. [Cf. MGS. ii. 18. 2. i and p. 156.]

6. What king Varuṇa, or what divine Sarasvatī knows, what Indra the Vritra-slayer knows, that embryo-maker do thou drink.

One or two of our mss. (P.W.) read -bhamkār- in d. Ppp. has for b veda devo brhaspatih, and in c puts yad after indrās. [See von Schroeder, Tübingen Kāṭha-hss., p. 36.]

7. Embryo art thou of herbs, embryo of forest-trees, embryo of every existence ; mayest thou, O Agni, set an embryo here.

Compare vi. 95. 3, with which the verse is in considerable part identical. It is found also as VS. xii. 37, and in TS. iv. 2. 33, MS. ii. 7. 10, in all with a different d : agne gár̥bho apām asi ; MS. further combines in a gár̥bho 'sy ; and in this last point Ppp. agrees with it.

[See p. 1045.]

8. Mount thou ; play the hero ; set an embryo in the womb ; virile (vṛṣan) art thou, that hast virility ; for progeny do we conduct thee hither.

Ppp. has kranda (for skanda) in a, and, for c, vṛṣānam vṛṣnyāvantaṁ. The verse occurs also in ÇGS. (i. 19. 6), which reads kranda vilayasva in a, sādhāya (for yonyām) in b, vṛṣānam vṛṣann ā dhehi for c, and havāmahe at the end. Our O. has skandha vīday- in a. The retention of the dental s of skanda is by Prāt. ii. 104.

9. Go apart, O Bārḥatsāmā; let an embryo lie unto thy womb (yóni); the gods, soma-drinkers, have given thee a son partaking of both.

Ludwig understands the last epithet as meaning 'belonging to us both,' which is not impossible; Weber, 'der doppelt schafft'; it is literally 'possessing what is of both.' Ppp. has for c dadān te putrāṇi devā. Bārḥatsāme (p. -hatsā-) is an anomalous formation: a stem -mā is against all analogy as fem. of a vṛddhi-derivative, while -mi (which Ludwig assumes) is equally wrong as a feminine; Ppp. has the same form; it doubtless means 'daughter of Bṛhatsāman.' To make c of full meter is impossible without harshness.

10. O Dhātar, with best form, in the two groins of this woman do thou set a male (púmāns) son, to be born in the tenth month.

This verse also (like 2, above) occurs in the additions to RV. x. 184 and to AGS. i. 14. 3 [p. 37, transl.] and in MP. [i. 12. 6], with the variants: *viṣṇoḥ for dhātāḥ in a, and asyām nār्याṇāṃ gavinyām (MP. -nyām [in mss. E. and W., -nyām in the Oxford text]) for b; AGS. has putrān and MP. gārbham in c. Ppp. begins here a new hymn reading savituḥ† cṛeṣṭhena 1; cṛeṣṭhena 2; viṣṇoḥ cṛeṣṭhena: tvaṣṭuḥ cṛeṣṭhena 3. The other texts omit any such variants of vs. 10. [Cf. also MGS. ii. 18. 4 c and p. 156, s.v. viṣṇoḥ.] * [Oxford text, viṣṇo.] † [Or else bhaga or bhagaḥ. Roth sent W. three notes on this vs. and they do not seem to agree. In b Ppp. has nābhā for nār्या.]

11. O Tvaṣṭar, with best etc. etc.

12. O Savitar ('impeller'), with best etc. etc.

13. O Prajāpati, with best etc. etc.

The Anukr., though taking no notice of the extra syllable in 12 a, feels that it cannot pass over the two in 13 a, and defines accordingly, with mechanical correctness.

26. Accompanying a sacrifice.

[Brahman.—dvādaśakam. vāstoṣpatyam uta mantroktabahudevatyam. 1, 5. 2-p. ārcy usṇih; 2, 4, 6, 7, 8, 10, 11. 2-p. prājāpatyā bṛhatī; 3. 3-p. virād gāyatrī; 9. 3-p. pipīlikamadhyā purauṣṇih: 1-11. ekāvastāna; 12. parāṭīcakvārī 4-p. jagatī.]

[Partly unmetrical.] Found also in Pāipp. ix. (in verse-order 1-3, 5, 4, 6-8, 11, 10, 9, 12). Quoted in Kāuṣ. 23. 1, in a ceremony of consecration of a new house, and given in the paddhati (see note to Kāuṣ. 19. 1) among the puṣṭika mantras. Used in Vāit. 16. 6 in counteracting an enemy's soma-offering (agniṣṭoma); and vs. 12 a, b in 19. 4, also in the agniṣṭoma, with a cup for the Aṣvins. Neither treatise teaches us anything whatever as to the real meaning of the hymn. The matter is in considerable part metrical, though in part also too irregular to be so called.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 27; Griffith, i. 231; Weber, xviii. 267.

1. The sacrificial formulas (yájus) at the sacrifice, the fuel, hail! let Agni, foreknowing, here join for you.

Or 'join (yuj) you.' 'Join' is probably used in the sense of 'duly use or apply' (Ludwig, "anwenden"). The verse is plainly composed of two triṣṭubh pādas, but the Anukr. refuses to resolve suāhā, and so reckons only 21 syllables.

2. Let the heavenly impeller (savitār), the bull (mahiṣā), foreknowing, join [them] at this sacrifice : hail !

Ppp. reads, after prajānan, yajñe sayujas svāhā. The Anukr., in this and many of the following verses, simply counts 20 syllables (prāj. brhat), without heeding the fact that each contains a triṣṭubh pāda.

3. Let Indra, foreknowing, at this sacrifice join songs and revels (ukthāmaddā), the well-joined ones (?) : hail !

Ppp. reads and combines sayujas sv. The mechanical definition of the Anukr. implies a division into 7+7+8 syllables. There is some blundering of the mss. over ukthāmaddāni, B. appearing to read ukya-m, and P.W. uktām. Suyūjas, here and in vss. 7-11, may be genitive 'of the well-joined one'; it does not agree in gender with the nouns that precede [aside from ācīṣo].

4. The directions (prāiṣā) at the sacrifice, the notices (nivīdā) : hail ! taught by the wives, carry ye here, joined.

Ppp. reads prāiṣā nivīdā priyo yajūṅsi cīṣāh etc.

5. The meters (chāndas) at the sacrifice, O Maruts : hail ! as a mother her son, fill ye here, joined.

The meter and its treatment by the Anukr. are the same as in the case of vs. 1.

6. Here hath come Aditi, with barhīs, with sprinkling [waters], extending the sacrifice : hail !

A perfectly good pair of triṣṭubh pādas.

7. Let Vishṇu join variously the fervors (tāpas) at this sacrifice, the well-joined ones : hail !

Ppp. again gives sayujas sv.

8. Let Tvashtar now join variously the forms at this sacrifice, the well-joined ones : hail !

All the samhitā mss. read rūpā asmīn, as in our text, the pada-text having rūpāh ! Ppp., on the other hand, gives bahudhā virūpā smīn. Probably it is a case of anomalous saṁdhi (with hiatus), which should have been included in Prāt. iii. 34 (see the note to that rule) ; but one may also conjecture that the true reading is bahudhā 'nurūpāh.

9. Let Bhaga join now for him the blessings (ācīṣ) ; at this sacrifice let him, foreknowing, join the well-joined ones : hail !

Ppp. combines asmā smīn, and reads sayujas, as above. The Anukr. evidently reckons three pādas, of 11+7+8 syllables.

10. Let Soma join variously the milks (pāyas), at this sacrifice, the well-joined ones : hail !

11. Let Indra join variously the heroisms, at this sacrifice, the well-joined ones : hail !

12. O Aṅvins, come ye hitherward with worship (brāhmaṇ), with vāsaṭ-utterance increasing the sacrifice. O Brihaspati, come hitherward with worship; this sacrifice [is] heaven (svār) here for the sacrificer: hail!

Ppp. has instead, for ḍ, yajñāṃ vayan̄ svaritaṃ yajamānāya dhehi svāhā. The Anukr. would have us read the last pāda as 15 syllables, and calls the verse a jagatī because amounting to 48 syllables, though the first three pādas are regularly triṣṭubh.

With this hymn ends the fifth anuvāka, of 5 hymns and 69 verses; the Anukr. citation is navā 'paraḥ; and Bp.D. add further aparā ṣaṣṭe navā 'paraḥ (Bp. -raṇi ca cā 'navākaḥ).

27. Āpri-hymn: to various divinities.

[Brahman.—dvādaçakam. āgneyam. 1. bṛhatīgarbhā triṣṭubh; 2. 2-p. sāmnām bhuriganuṣṭubh; 3. 2-p. ārcī bṛhatī; 4. 2-p. sāmnī bhurīgarbhā; 5. 2-p. sāmnī triṣṭubh; 6. 2-p. virāy nāma gāyatrī; 7. 2-p. sāmnī bṛhatī (imā [2-7?] ekāvāsānāḥ); 8. saṃstā-rapañkti; 9. 6-p. anuṣṭubgarbhā parātijagatī; 10-12. purauṣṇih.]

This peculiar and half-metrical āpri-hymn occurs also in several Yajur-Veda texts: namely, in VS. (xxvii. 11-22), in TS. (iv. 1. 8), and in MS. (ii. 12. 6); further, in K. (xviii. 17), and (acc. to Schroeder's note) in Kap.S. The versions in VS. and TS. agree very closely throughout, in readings and in division; there is in all the verses a more or less imperfect metrical structure, of three triṣṭubh-like pādas to a verse. MS. also in general agrees with these, but has an inserted passage in its vs. 5 which dislocates the division of vss. 2-4. Ppp. has the same hymn in ix., and follows pretty closely the Yajus-version. In our text the proper division is thrown into great confusion, and there are many readings which are obviously mere corruptions. The Anukr. supports our mss. at all points. The division of VS. and TS., as being necessary to any understanding of the hymn, is noted in brackets in the translation below.

The hymn is not used as an āpri-hymn in the liturgical literature, but is quoted in Kāuç. (23. 7) in the ceremony of consecration of a new house, and again (45. 8), in the vāçāçamana rite, to accompany (with the kindred hymn v. 12) an offering of the omentum of a cow; while (19. 1, note) the paddhati reckons it among the puṣṭika mantras. Vss. 1 and 2 (with the division as in our text) are used by Vāit. (10. 13, 12) in the paçubandha ceremony.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 434; Griffith, i. 232. — Weber, xviii. 269, gives a general introductory comment to the hymn, but leaves it, on account of "the numerous misdivisions and corruptions of this, its Atharvan version," untranslated. Cf. hymn 12 of this book.

1. Uplifted becomes his fuel, uplifted the bright burnings of Agni, most brilliant; of beautiful aspect, with his son, — [2.] son of himself (tānūndpāt), āsura, many-handed, —

All the Yajur-Veda texts agree in ending the verse with the third pāda, and in reading at the end suprātīkasya sūnōḥ; of this our text is a palpable corruption, and apparently made after the addition to this verse of the following pāda, in order to help their connection. Ppp. also has -kasya sūnos, and at the end of a bhavantu; it and the Yajus-texts read viçvavedās instead of bhūripānis. The description of the verse by the Anukr. [if we pronounce ūrdhuā in a] is correct, counting the second pāda as of 9 syllables.

2 [2 b]. A god among gods, the god anoints the roads with honey (mādhu), with ghee.

The end of this verse is the proper end of vs. 2; MS., however, adds to it the first pāda of our 3; and it reads for a devó devébhyo devayānān. In b, VS.MS. have anaktu; TS., ā 'nakti; and VS.TS. set the avasāna-mark next before pathás.

3. With honey he attains the sacrifice, pleased, the praised of men (nārāçānsa), Agni the well-doing, the heavenly impeller (savitár), having all choice things.

All the other texts, including Ppp., read in a prīnāns, of which our prāin- is doubtless to be regarded as a blundering corruption. VS.TS. have before it nakṣase; and, in b, agne, with interpunction after it; Ppp. omits agne (or agniḥ); MS. adds as third pāda the first pāda of our and the other texts' vs. 4. Our pāda-text rightly divides the verse into three pādas [10 : 8 : 9], though the Anukr. acknowledges only two.

4. Here he cometh with might (çávas) unto the various ghees, praising, he the carrier, with homage, —

It needs the first part of the next verse to end off this, and the other texts so divide. They have also the much easier reading ghṛtēna for ghṛtā cit; Ppp. gives ghṛtena ūde vahniṁ namasā 'gnim sruco etc. (adding 5 a). VS.TS. have a single interpunction after namasā; MS. makes its verse out of our 4 b and 5 a, b, with interpunction after 5 a. [VS.TS.MS. accent ūdānó.]

5 [4 c]. Agni, unto the spoons, at the sacrifices (adhvará), the profferings (prayáçj). [5.] May he sacrifice his greatness, Agni's, —

The Yajus-texts have at the beginning agnim (also Ppp.: see under vs. 4), and later prayátsu (which the TS. pāda-text divides prayátsu; ours gives prayákṣu). MS's verse is made of ours with our 4 b prefixed.

6 [5 b]. [He] crossing (?) among pleasant profferings; both the Vasus stood and the greater bestower of good (vásu).

This whole verse in our text is corrupt, and the translation, of course, only a mechanical one. The Yajus-texts have sá im (TS. ī) mandrā suprayásah (TS. mandrásu prayásah: this variation shows how uncertain the tradition was as to the sense of the passage); and MS. makes here the insertion spoken of above, reading suprayásā stárīman: barhiṣo mitrámahāḥ; all then finish the verse with vásuç cētiṣṭho vasudhātamaç ca. Ppp. is spoiled, but appears to read at the beginning svenamindrasu. The makers of our texts perhaps understood -dhātaraç as plural of -dhātṛ; the pāda-division vasudhātaraç is specially prescribed by Prāt. iv. 45. The metrical definition concerns only the number of syllables: 8+12=20. [Ppp. ends with -dhātamaç ca.]

7 [6]. The heavenly doors all defend always after his course (vratá) —

This verse is doubtless corrupt in its second half; the Yajus-texts, and also Ppp., read instead vratā dadante agnēḥ (Ppp. 'gneḥ); and MS. has before it viçvā, and Ppp. viçved. The Anukr. ignores the evident triṣṭubh character of a.

8 [6 c]. Lording it with Agni's domain of wide expansion, [7.] dripping, worshipful, close, let dawn and night favor this our inviolable (? adhvará) sacrifice.

The other texts (including Ppp.) read -vyacasas, omit agnés and read phátyamānās in a; and they have an entirely different b, namely té asya yósane divyé ná yónāu; what our text substitutes was found as v. 12. 6 a above. The Anukr. name for the meter, samstārapañkti, is wholly misapplied, since it has to be read as 12+11: 8+7.

9 [8]. O heavenly invokers, sing ye unto our uplifted sacrifice (adhvará) with Agni's tongue; sing in order to our successful offering. [9.] Let the three goddesses sit upon this barhís, Idā, Sarasvatī, Bhārati, the great, besung.

We have here two complete verses combined into one; but the division goes on after this correspondingly in all the texts. The three Yajus-texts, and Ppp., begin with dātvayā hotārā (the accent hótāras in our version is against all rule), and MS. inserts imām after ūrdhvām in a; for b, c they read 'gnér jihvām abhí (but MS. jihvā 'bhí) grñtam: krñtām nah svīṣim (MS. -ṣam); further on they have sadantu for -tām (but MS. instead syondm); near the end, VS.TS. put mahí after bhārati; MS. has a sign of interpunction after mahí; Ppp. reads mahābhārati. The pāda tisró devīr etc. is the same with RV. iii. 4. 8 d (which reads sadantu). The definition of the Anukr. fits the meter very badly; the pada-text notes only 5 pādas, nor is a division into 6 well possible; they would count 11+9+8: 11+14=53, mechanically a bhurig atijagati.

10. That wonderful seminal fluid (turīpam) of ours, abounding in food, O god Tvashṭar, abundance of wealth, release thou the navel of it.

The other texts (including Ppp.) omit deva and read tvāṣṭā (but MS. tvāṣṭar), adding after it *svīryam; all also have at the end asmé instead of the senseless asyá, and all but MS. have ṣyatu for ṣya; their mark of interpunction is set after svīryam (or before rāyás). Compare also RV. ii. 40. 4; iii. 4. 9. Our Bp.² reads in a, by an oversight, adbhum (emended in Bp. to adbhutam); but D.K. have dtobhutam as pada-text. This and the two following verses have small right to be called purauṣṇih; this one counts 11: 8+7=26 syllables. Read at the end in our text asyá (an accent-sign slipped out of place). * [But TS. svītram.]

11. O forest-tree, let thou loose, bestowing; let Agni [as] queller willingly sweeten the oblation for the gods.

Ppp. reads sumanā for tmanā; also, at the end, sūdayāti, with the Yajus-texts. The latter also have (except MS.) devéṣu for devébhyas, and after it they all put their mark of interpunction. The Yajus and Ppp. version of the last pāda is identical with RV. iii. 4. 10 b [save that RV. has havís]. This "purauṣṇih" counts 11: 9+7=27 syllables.

12. O Agni, hail! make thou, O Jātavedas, the sacrifice for Indra; let all the gods⁶ enjoy this oblation.

The Yajus-texts put the pause in its proper place before vīṣve. For yajñám, TS.VS. read havým, and MS. has devébhyas; Ppp. has bhāgam. This "purauṣṇih" counts (if we divide the last two pādas as indicated in the pada-text) 11: 9+7=27 syllables.

28. With an amulet of three metals: for safety etc.

[Atharvan.—caturdaṣarcam. trivṛddevatyam (agnyādīn mantroktān devān samprārthya trivṛtam astīūt). trīṣṭubham: 6. 5-p. atīcakvārī; 7, 9, 10, 12. kakummatyanuṣṭubh; 13. purauṣṇih.]

[The second half of 1 is prose.] Found also (except vs. 2 and vss. 12-14) in Pāipp. ii. Used by Kāuṣ. twice, in company with i. 9 and i. 35, in a ceremony (II. 19) for obtaining one's desires and in one (52. 20) for winning splendor; and vss. 1, 12-14 in one (58. 10, 11) for gaining length of life.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 387; Griffith, i. 234; Weber, xviii. 271.

1. Nine breaths with nine he combines (? sam-mā), in order to length of life for a hundred autumns; in the yellow (hāvita), three; in silver, three; in iron (? āyas), three — enveloped with fervor.

'Yellow,' doubtless 'gold.' Ppp. reads rajasā for tapasā in d. The second half-verse can hardly be called anything but prose, though the Anukr. takes it as good trīṣṭubh meter. It appears doubtful whether this verse belongs with the rest, and whether the nine prānagrahas, or the nine verses of the trivṛt stoma, are not rather intended in it.

2. Fire, sun, moon, earth, waters, sky, atmosphere, directions, and quarters, they of the seasons in concord with the seasons — let them rescue (pāray) me by this triple one.

The verse, as was noted above, is wanting in Ppp. One and another ms., here as later, reads trivṛt. To fill out the meter of c we have to make the harsh and unusual resolution of the first ā of ārtavās.

3. Let three abundances (poṣa) resort to the triple one; let Pūshan anoint it with milk, with ghee; affluence of food, affluence of man (pūruṣa), affluence of cattle — let these resort hither.

Ppp. reads in a trivṛtaḥ; in c anyasya, and bhāumā both times (bhū- in d). We need in a to resolve tr-ayah.

4. O Ādityas, sprinkle this man well with good (vāsu); O Agni, do thou, thyself increasing, increase him; unite him, O Indra, with heroism; let the prospering triple one resort to him.

Ppp. has, for c, d, yasmin trivṛc chetām pūṣayīṣṇur imam etc. (our c). Our mss. vary at the end between poṣayīṣṇū and -nūh, the majority having -nūh (only B.O.I. -nū); our text should be emended to -nūh. [But SPP. reads -nū and notes no variants.] The Anukr., as usual, does not note that a is a jagatī pāda.

5. Let earth, the all-bearing, protect thee with the yellow one; let Agni rescue [thee] in accord with the iron; let the silver one (ārjuna), in concord with the plants, bestow (dhā) on thee dexterity, with favoring mind.

Ppp. reads in c vīrudbhis te arjuno sam-. The meter is like that of verse 4.

6. Triply born by birth [is] this gold: one was Agni's dearest; one fell away of Soma when injured; one they call the seed of devout waters; let that triple gold be thine in order to life-time.

Instead of vedhāsām in d, a much easier reading would be vedhāsas nom. (as tacitly emended by Ludwig); and this is favored by Ppp., which has vedaso vetā "hus"; it further gives in e trivṛtāstu te. With bcd compare TB. i. 1. 3⁸. The name atiçakvarī given to the verse by the Anukr. demands 60 syllables, but only 57 (11+11+12:11+12) can be fairly counted.

7. Triple life-time of Jamadagni, Kaçyapa's triple life-time, sight of the immortal (amṛta) triply, three life-times have I made for thee.

Ppp. reads triyāyuṣam; and, at the end, nas kṛdhi for te karam. JUB. iv. 3. 1 has this version: triyāyuṣam kaçyapasya jamadagnes triyāyuṣam: trīny amṛtasya puṣpāṇi trīṇ āyāṇṣi me kṛnoḥ; and several of the Gṛhya-Sūtras (ÇGS. i. 28; HGS. i. 9. 6; [MP. ii. 7. 2; MGS. i. 1. 24 (cf. p. 150)]; MB. i. 6. 8) give the first half-verse, with a different ending; [also VS. iii. 62. GGS. ii. 9. 21 gives the pratīka.] There is no reason for calling the meter kakummatī.

8. When the three eagles (suparṇā) went with the triple one, becoming, mighty ones (çakrā), a single syllable, they bore back death along with (sākām) the immortal, warding off (antar-dhā) all difficulties.

'Warding off,' literally 'interposing [something between] themselves [and]'; 'along with,' doubtless = 'by means of' (cf. vii. 53. 1: xii. 2. 29). 'Single syllable,' or 'the one indissoluble': probably the syllable om is intended.

9. From the sky let the yellow one protect thee; from the midst let the silver one protect thee; from the earth let that made of iron protect [thee]; this [man] hath gone forward to strongholds of the gods.

Ppp. combines at the end purā yam. This verse also is called kakummatī by the Anukr. without any reason.

10. These [are] three strongholds of the gods; let them defend thee on all sides; bearing these, do thou, possessing splendor, become superior to them that hate thee.

It needs only the usual resolution tu-ām in c to make this verse a regular anuṣṭubh.

11. The stronghold of the gods, deathless (amṛta) gold, what god first bound on in the beginning, to him I pay homage, [my] ten extended [fingers]; let him approve my binding-on the triple one.

Ppp. has at the end trivṛtā vadhena. The translation implies in d the reading manyatām, which is given in our edition, though against part of the mss., that read manyantām. ['Let him (or it) assent to my binding-on,' dative infinitive.]

12. Let Aryaman fasten (çṛt) thee on, let Pūshan, let Brihaspati; what is the name of the day-born one, therewith we fasten thee over.

For the obscure third pāda compare iii. 14. 1. The verse is a regular anuṣṭubh, if b is properly read, as ā pūṣā ā bṛhaspatīḥ (so the pāda-text). This and the two following verses, which are not found in Ppp., seem to be independent of what precedes.

13. Thee with the seasons, with them of the seasons; thee unto life-time, unto splendor; with the brilliancy of the year — with that we make [thee] of closed jaw (? sāmhanu).

The verse is repeated as xix. 37. 4 [in our ed. ; but SPP's repeats iii. 10. 10 instead]. It is found also in HGS. i. 11. 2, with tvā omitted at the end of b, and, for c, ḍ, sainvatsarasya dhāyasā tena sann anu gṛhṇāsi! this gives us no help toward understanding the obscure last pāda; the translation implies emendation to sāmhanum, and understands the verse as directed against involuntary opening of the jaws (divaricatio maxillae inferioris): cf. viii. 1. 16. The Anukr. foolishly calls the verse a purauṣṇih.

14. Snatched (luṣ) out of ghee, anointed over with honey, fixing the earth, unmoved, rescuing, splitting [our] rivals, and putting them down, do thou ascend me in order to great good-fortune.

The verse agrees nearly with xix. 33. 2. The mss. read bhindānt (p. bhindān) for bhindāt in c. A corresponding verse is found in a RV. khila to x. 128: ghṛtād ulluṣtam madhumat suvarṇam dhanamjayam dharuṇam dhārayiṣṇu: ṛṇak sapatnān adharāṅ ca kṛṇvad ā roha mām mahate sāubhagāya. [Given also by von Schroeder, Tübinger Kātha-hss., p. 36.]

29. To Agni: against demons.

[Cātana. — pañcadaṣṭcam. jātavedasam uta mantroktadevatākam. trīṣṭubham: 3. 3-p. virāṇnāma gāyatrī; 5. puroti jagatī virād jagatī; 12-15. anuṣṭubh (12. bhurij; 14. 4-p. parābṛhatī kakummatī).]

Found also (except vss. 10, 11) in Pāipp. xiii. No notice is taken in Vāit. of any part of the hymn; but in Kāuṣ. 8. 25 it is reckoned among the cātana hymns, or as belonging in the cātana gaṇa, and two or three of its verses (2-4) are separately quoted, as will be pointed out below.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 526; Griffith, i. 236; Weber, xviii. 277.

1. Joined in front, carry thou, O Jātavedas; know this, O Agni, as [it is] being done; thou art a physician (bhiṣāj), a maker of remedy (bheṣāj); by thee may we gain cow, horse, man (pūruṣa).

That is (b), take notice of this rite performed in thine honor. The verse is found also in HGS. i. 2. 18, which in a puts (as does Ppp.) purastāt at the end, inserts in b karma after viddhi, and reads in ḍ gā aṣvān puruṣān. Kāuṣ. (3. 16) quotes the verse, in company with several others, at a certain libation in the parvan ceremonies.

2. So, O Agni, Jātavedas, do thou do this, in concord with all the gods: he who hath played [against] us, whosoever hath devoured (gḥas) us, that this enclosure of his may fall.

The sense of c appears to be 'whoever hath pillaged us in or by play.' The sense of the imprecation in ḍ is obscure. Ppp. reads as follows: tvam for tat in a; for b, c 'nena vidvān haviṣā yaviṣṭhaḥ: piṣāco 'syatamo dideva; 'sya* in ḍ; and, as e (or as 3 a), yo 'sya tad eva yatamo jaghāsi. Kāuṣ. 47. 9 quotes the verse (the scholiast says, vss. 2, 3) as accompanying the offering of portions of sacrificial butter in witchcraft ceremonies. The Prāt., in ii. 77, prescribes the combination -dhṛṣ pat- in ḍ. * [Haplography for 'sya yatamo: cf. 4 c.]

3. That this enclosure of his may fall, so, O Agni, Jātavedas, do thou do that, in concord with all the gods.

Ppp. reads yathā somasya paridhṛṣ patātiḥ tathā tvam agne.

4. Pierce thou into his eyes, pierce into his heart, bore into his tongue, destroy (pra-mṛ) his teeth; whatsoever piçācā hath devoured of him, that one, O Agni, youngest [god], do thou crush back.

Ppp. reads for a mokṣāu na viddhi hṛdayaṁ na viddhi and piçāco syatamo in c, and yaviṣṭhaṣ in d. Kāuṣ. (25. 24) quotes the verse in a remedial ceremony.

5. What of him is taken [or] taken apart, what is borne away, whatsoever of himself is devoured by the piçācās, that, O Agni, do thou, knowing, bring again; into his body we send flesh [and] spirit (āsu).

Ppp. reads for d çarīre prāṇam asuṁ erayā saṁ sṛjema. The Anukr. defines the meter correctly, according to its methods.

6. In raw, in well-cooked, in mixed (? çabāla), in ripe, what piçācā hath injured (dambh) me in the partaking—that let the piçācās atone for (? vi-yātay) with self [and] progeny; be this man free from disease.

Ppp. has for a our 8 a (reading tvā for mā), and for 8 a yāme sap. çavale vip.; further, for b odane manthe dīva ota lehe; and here and in the verses that follow, it varies between dadambha and didambha.

7. In milk (kṣīrā), in stirabout whoever hath injured me, who in grain growing uncultivated—in the partaking [thereof]—that let the piçācās etc. etc.

Ppp. reads in a kṣīre tvā māṁse, and in b -pācye.

8. In the drinking of waters whatever flesh-eater hath injured me lying (çī) in the lair (çāyana) of the familiar demons (yātū)—that let the piçācās etc. etc.

We are tempted to emend (with Ludwig) çāyānam to çāyānas at end of b. Ppp. reads here, in a, b, nearly our 6 a, b, a with the three variants given above, and b with imam for yo mā, and with 'çane'; and it adds our 10 c, d instead of the refrain.

9. By day, by night, whatever flesh-eater hath injured me lying in the lair of the familiar demons—that let the piçācās etc. etc.

Ppp. reads tvā for mā in a, and in b çkravyād yātūç çayate piçācaḥ : ud agne dvān prthak : çṛñīky apy enaṁ dehi nirṛter upasthe. In c of the refrain of all these verses is a syllable lacking, unless we make a harsh and unusual resolution.

10. The flesh-eating, bloody (rudhirā), mind-slaying piçācā do thou slay, O Agni, Jātavedas; let the vigorous Indra slay him with the thunderbolt; let bold Soma cut [off] his head.

The Anukr. takes no notice of the lacking syllables in b and c, the latter of which, indeed, is easily made up for by resolving vā-jr-e-na.

11. From of old, O Agni, thou killest the sorcerers; the demons have not conquered thee in fights; burn up the flesh-eaters together with their dupes (?); let them not be freed from thy heavenly missile.

This verse is repeated below as viii. 3. 18, in the midst of the RV. hymn of which it forms a part: see the note upon it there.

12. Bring together, O Jātavedas, what is taken, what borne away; let his members (gātra) increase; let this man fill up like a soma-stalk.

Ppp. begins with samābhara, and has jagdham for hṛtam in b. The Anukr. refuses to sanction the abbreviation 'va in d.

13. Like a stalk of soma, O Jātavedas, let this man fill up; make him, O Agni, exuberant, sacrificial (médhya), free from yákṣma; let him live.

Ppp. is illegible in the last half of the preceding verse and the first of this; it reads at the end jīvase. Our mss. are uncertain about virapṣtnam, B.E.H. having -pṣt-, I. -pītrā-, O. -ṣpt-.

14. These, O Agni, are thy piṣācā-grinding pieces of fuel; them do thou enjoy, and accept them, O Jātavedas.

The irregular and defective meter of this verse is very inaccurately described by the Anukr.; it counts as 8+6: 5+11 syllables, having thus a kakubh-element (b), but no brhati.

15. The pieces of fuel of tārṣṭāghā, O Agni, do thou accept with flame (arcis); let the flesh-eater who wants to take this man's flesh (mānsā) quit his form.

Or 'of tṛṣṭāgha' (a); this name, however, seems not to be met with anywhere; the pada-text reads tārṣṭāoaghā.

30. To lengthen out some one's life.

[Unmocana (āyusyakāma).—saptadaçakam. ānuṣṭubham: 1. pathyāpañkti; 9. bhurij; 12. 4-p. virāḍ jagatī; 14. virāḍ prastārapañkti; 17. 3-av. 6-p. jagatī.]

Found also in Pāipp. ix. Used twice by Kāuç. (58. 3, 11), with a number of other hymns, in a ceremony for length of life; and reckoned (54. 11, note) as belonging to an āyusya gaṇa.

Translated: Muir, v. 441; Ludwig, p. 494; Griffith, i. 238; Bloomfield, 59, 455; Weber, xviii. 281; in part also by Grohmann, Ind. Stud. (1865) ix. 390, 410-411.

1. Thy nearnesses [are] nearnesses, thy distances nearnesses; be just here; go not now; go not after the former Fathers; thy life (āsu) I bind fast.

The first two pādas are obscure; the two nouns in each can also be both or either ablatives (so Muir) or genitives sing. Ppp. reads parāvatas instead of the second āvatas, thus rectifying the meter of a; as it stands, we need to resolve a-āvatas [or read āva for te]. Ppp. also has gatān for pīṭṛn in d.

2. In that men have bewitched thee, one of thine own people [or] a strange person—deliverance and release, both I speak for thee with my voice.

The translation implies emendation to pūruṣās in a; all the mss. have -sas. [SPP's texts have -sas without note of variant. We may construe it with the second yāt: 'If they (subject indef.) have bewitched thee, if a man of thine own' etc.—supply abhicacāra.]

3. In that thou hast shown malice (druh), hast cursed at woman [or] at man through thoughtlessness, deliverance and etc. etc.

4. In that thou art prostrate (çī) from sin that is mother-committed and that is father-committed, deliverance and etc. etc.

Grohmann and Zimmer (p. 395) understand here 'sin committed against mother or father': doubtless wrong.

5. What thy mother, what thy father, sister (jāmi), and brother shall infuse (? sārjatas) — heed (sev) thou the opposing remedy; I make thee one who reaches old age.

Sārjatas is a puzzle, as regards both form and sense; 'give' (Ludwig) and 'offer' (Muir) are wholly unsatisfactory; 'weave witchcraft' (Pet. Lex.) is quite too pregnant. Ppp. gives no help; it reads in c chevasya after pratyak. The translation takes the word as a root-aorist subj. from syj.

6. Be thou here, O man, together with thy whole mind; go not after Yama's (two) messengers; go unto the strongholds of the living.

The Anukr. takes no notice of the defective first pāda; the addition of evā (cf. 1 c) after ihā would be an easy and natural filling-out. Ppp. has for a ehi ehi punar ehi, and reads hi for ihī in d.

7. Being called after, come thou again, knowing the up-going of the road, the ascent, the climb (ākramaṇa), the course (āyana) of every living man.

8. Be not afraid; thou shalt not die; I make thee one who reaches old age; I have exorcised (nir-vac) the yākṣma, the waster of limbs, from thy limbs.

Ppp. reads for b jaradaṣṭir bhaviṣyasi.

9. The splitter of limbs, the waster of limbs, and the heart-ache that is thine, the yākṣma hath flown forth like a falcon, forced (sah) very far away by [my] voice.

The form sādhā is noted in Prāt. iii. 7. Ppp. has for a çirṣarogam aṅgarogam, combines çyenāi 'va in c, and reads nuttas for sādhās in d [and vācā ?]. The Anukr. ignores the abbreviation of iva to 'va in c.

10. The two seers, Wakeful-and-Vigilant, sleepless and he that is watchful — let them, the guardians of thy breath, watch by day and by night.

Ppp. reads, for c, d, te te prānasya goptaro divā svaṇnam ca jāgratu. Pāda-text bodha-pratibodhāu, by Prāt. iv. 96. [Cf. viii. 1. 13; MGS. ii. 15. 1 and p. 153, s.v. bodha-.]

11. This Agni [is] to be waited on; here let the sun arise for thee; come up out of death's profound black darkness.

In c, udehi is a mis-reading for udēhi, which is found in all the mss. except Bp.³

12. Homage to Yama, homage be to Death; homage to the Fathers, and [to them] who conduct [away]; that Agni who understands (vid) deliverance (utpārāṇa) do I put forward (puro-dhā), in order to this man's being unharmed.

With b compare viii. 1. 8 b, which appears to give the clew to the meaning; utpārāṇa is the action-noun to ut-pāray (viii. 1. 17-19; 2. 9). The verse, though by number of syllables a virāḍ jagatī (46 syll.), has plainly five pādas [12+11: 8+7+8; in d, read tām-tam for tām as at iv. 30. 3?]. Ppp. omits the last pāda.

13. Let breath come, let mind come, let sight come, then strength; let his body assemble (? sam-vid); let that stand firm with its (two) feet.

[In a, b, the order of the items of the return to life is (if inverted) in noteworthy accord with that of the items of the process of death, both in fact and also as set forth in the Upanishads — e.g. ChU. vi. 15.]

14. With breath, O Agni, with sight unite him; associate (sam-īray) him with body, with strength; thou understandest immortality (amṛta): let him not now go; let him not now become one housing in the earth.

Most of our mss. (not B.I.T.K.) appear to read tū instead of nū in d. Instead of nu gāt in c, Ppp. gives mṛta, and it has mo su for mā nu in d: both are better readings.

15. Let not thy breath give out, nor let thine expiration be shut up; let the sun, the over-lord, hold thee up out of death by his rays.

Ppp. reads mā 'pāno in b, and yachati in d.

16. This much-quivering tongue, bound, speaks within; by it I have exorcised the yāksma and the hundred pangs of the fever.

Ppp. reads for b, c ugrajihvā paṇiṣpadā tayā romaṁ nir ayāsaḥ: . Our edition reads tvāyā, with all the mss., at the beginning of c, but it must of course be emended to tāyā, as translated. The Anukr. takes no notice of the lacking syllable in a, which no resolution can supply. Paniṣpadā in b is prescribed by Prāt. iv. 96.

17. This [is] the dearest world of the gods, unconquered. Unto what death appointed, O man, thou wast born here, we and it call after thee: do not die before old age.

By one of the most absurd of the many blunders of the pāda-text, we find puruṣaḥ jajñiṣe in d treated by it as a compound. Ppp. reads, for c-e, tasmāi tvam iha jajñiṣe adṛṣṭaḥ puruṣa mṛtyave: tasmāi tvā ni hvayāmasi.

31. Against witchcraft.

[Ḍukra. — dvādaśarcam. kṛtyādūṣaṇadevatyam. ānuṣṭubham: 11. bṛhatigarbhā; 12. pathyābṛhatī.]

Not found (except vs. 12) in Pāipp. Not noticed in Vāit. The hymn is reckoned as belonging in the kṛtyā gaṇa or kṛtyāpratīharaṇa gaṇa (see note to Kāuṣ. 39. 7), and it is quoted with several other hymns in Kāuṣ. 39. 7, in a ceremony for counteracting magic.

Translated: Griffith, i. 241; Bloomfield, 76, 456; Weber, xviii. 284.

1. What [witchcraft] they have made for thee in a raw vessel, what they have made in one of mixed grains; in raw flesh what witchcraft they have made — I take that back again.

That is, doubtless, 'back to its maker': cf. iv. 18.4; and, for the whole verse, iv. 17.4. The Anukr. makes no account of the redundant syllable in c.

2. What [witchcraft] they have made for thee in a cock, or what in a kurīra-wearing goat; in a ewe what witchcraft they have made — I take that back again.

Geldner discusses kurīra 'horn,' Ved. Stud. i. 130.

3. What [witchcraft] they have made for thee in the one-hoofed, in the one with teeth in both jaws, among cattle; in a donkey what witchcraft they have made — I take that back again.

4. What [witchcraft] they have made for thee in a rootless [plant], or [what] secret spell (? valagā) in a narācī; in thy field what witchcraft they have made — I take that back again.

The pada-text does not divide valagām.

5. What [witchcraft] they have made for thee in the householder's fire, also, malevolent (duçcīt), in the eastern fire; in the dwelling what witchcraft they have made — I take that back again.

6. What [witchcraft] they have made for thee in the assembly (sabhā), what they have made at the gambling-board; in the dice what witchcraft they have made — I take that back again.

7. What [witchcraft] they have made for thee in the army (sénā), what they have made in arrow-and-weapon; in the drum what witchcraft they have made — I take that back again.

To make the meter complete in the two preceding verses, we need to make the unusual resolution -ya-am at end of a.

8. What witchcraft they have put down for thee in the well, or have dug in at the cemetery; in the seat (sādman) what witchcraft they have made — I take that back again.

The indefinite 'seat' may be used for 'dwelling,' or for 'place of sacrifice.' The Anukr. takes no notice of the metrical irregularities in a, b.

9. What [witchcraft] they have made for thee in the human-bone, and what in the destroying (? sāṅkasuka) fire, [what] dimming, out-burning, flesh-eating one — I take that back again.

'Human-bone' (if not a corrupt reading) is perhaps an epithet of the funeral fire = 'the fire which leaves of the human body nothing but fragments of bone.'

10. He hath brought it by what was not the road; we send it forth from, here by the road; he unwise, O men, hath brought [it] together, out of thoughtlessness, for the wise (dhīra).

The translation implies the reading maryāḥ : dhīrebhyaḥ : in c, instead of maryāḥ dhīrebhyaḥ, as given by the pada-mss.; the emendation is suggested by BR. v. 1668; but cf. maryādhātrya (maryā[h] dhātrya ?) in MS. i. 4. 8 (p. 56, l. 18). The lingual ṛ in ṛnām at end of a is given by all the samhitā-mss., though the Prāt. does not prescribe it. Even the pada-text has hiṃmasi (as hiṃmah) after pra, here as elsewhere.

11. He who hath made hath not been able to make; he hath crushed a foot, a finger; he, fortuneless, hath made what is excellent for us [who are] fortunate ones.

The first three pādas are identical with iv. 18. 6 a-c, and our ḍ here is read by Ppp. in that hymn [but with abhagā for -gō]. The Anukr. gives the same false definition of meter in both places. [See notes to iv. 18. 6.]

12. The witchcraft-maker, spell-hider, root-possessor, worthy of cursing — let Indra smite him with his great deadly weapon; let Agni pierce him with a hurled [arrow].

This verse is found in Ppp. i., where, for c, ḍ, is read: indras tu sarvāṅs tān hantu sattvaghnaena bhavām iva.

The last or sixth anuvāka contains 5 hymns and 70 verses; the old Anukr. says: ṣaṣṭhe tu navāi 'kā ca parā tu ṣaṣṭhe. One or two of the mss. sum up the Book correctly as 31 hymns, and 376 verses.

With the Book ends also the twelfth prapāṭhaka.

Book VI.

[The sixth book consists mainly of hymns of 3 verses. It is divided into thirteen anuvāka-groups, which have ten hymns each, except the third, seventh, eleventh, and twelfth groups, which have eleven hymns each, and the thirteenth, which has eighteen. It thus contains one hundred and forty-two hymns: and of these, one hundred and twenty-two have 3 verses each; twelve have 4 verses each; and eight have 5 verses each. On account of the intrinsic interest, the variety, and the convenient length of the hymns of this book, they have been favorite subjects of translation and comment. Over half of them (79) have been translated by Ludwig in his Der Rigveda, vol. iii. (Die Mantra-litteratur); over half of them (74) also by Bloomfield in Sacred Books of the East, vol. xlii.; over a third (1-50) by Dr. Carl A. Florenz in Bezzenberger's Beiträge zur Kunde der Indogermanischen Sprachen, vol. xii. 249-314; and nearly a quarter (34) by Grill in his Hundert Lieder.]

[The hymns of 4 verses are hymns 16, 17, 38, 63, 76, 83, 84, 107, 111, 121, 128, and 130. The hymns of 5 verses are hymns 34, 108, 122, 123, 132, 133, 138, and 139. At the beginning of its treatment of this book, the Anukramaṇī calls it the "book of hymns of 3 verses" or ṛcasūktakāṇḍa, and adds that "that number is the norm": tatra ṛcaprakṛtir itarā vikṛtir iti. The possibilities of critical reduction to this "norm" are frequently illustrated among the twenty hymns just cited. Thus the reduction may be effected by omission of some of the refrains and combination of the remainders, as in hymns 38, 107, 130 (this the commentator actually so reduces). Again, the intrusions are sometimes indicated by the meter, as in hymns 111, 123. Or, again, they are indicated by their absence in other versions: thus hymns 16, 17, 34, 63, 83, 108, and 128 consist in fact of only 3 verses in the Pāippalāda text.—For the sequence of the books with reference to the normal lengths of their hymns, see the table on p. cxlviii. See p. clii, end.]

1. Praise to Savitar.

[Atharvan.—sāvitrām. āuṣṇīham: 1. 3-p. pīṭhikamadhyā sāmni jagatī; 2, 3. pīṭhikamadhyā purauṣṇih.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix.; and in AṢ. viii. 1. 18; the first verse, too, is SV. i. 177. Used by Kāuṣ. first (23. 2) in a rite for good fortune on building a house, with offering a second oblation; then (50. 13) for success in traffic, with vi. 3-7, 59, 93, 107, 128, and [xi. 2 — so comm. and Keçava] with offering thirteen different articles; and again (59. 25), in a rite for universal dominion (comm.), worshiping Atharvan; further (note to 42. 11), a schol. adds it to vii. 20. 6, to win wealth by Vedic knowledge. Vāit. has it in the agnis̥toma (17. 2), repeated by the adhvaryu, as he looks at the udgātar. None of the Kāuç. uses seems at all characteristic.

Translated: Florenz, 249 or 1; Griffith, i. 245.

1. Sing at evening; sing greatly; put clearly, O son of Atharvan; praise god Savitar.

All the mss. — and SPP., following them — put the avasāna-mark after dhehi, thus falsely dividing the irregular gāyatrī into two pādas [12:12]; hence, of course, they accent ātharvana; and most of the pāda-mss. (all save our Bp.) read -ṇaḥ (as if the combination -ṇa st- were made by the common and allowable loss of the final ḥ before st: but many of our samhitā-mss. also have -ṇaḥ st-; SPP. makes no such report as to his). Both the other texts make the proper division, after ātharvaṇa; and so does Ppp., reading also gāya for the obscure dhehi. Both SV. and AÇS. have ā'gād (which is better) for the first gāya; and SV. gives dyūmadgāman for dyumād dhehi. The comm. explains doṣo [i.e. doṣā (instr.) u] by rātrāv aḥi, understands brhat as the sāman of that name, and supplies dhanam to dyumat in b. In our edition, the accent-mark over the sa of savitāram in c is lost.

2. Praise thou him who is within the river, son of truth (satyā), [him] the young, of unhateful speech, very propitious.

Again all the mss. spoil the structure of the verse by putting the division-mark after sānuḥ. In both verses, SPP's text follows the mss., while ours emends in accordance with the true sense — which is now further supported by the other text, and by Ppp. An easier reading is offered by AÇS., namely tam u śtuyā antaḥsindhum sānuḥ satyasya yuvānam: adro. Indra is called "son of truth" in RV. viii. 58 (69). 4; the descriptions of the verse suit Savitar ill. The comm. understands 'the river (sindhu)' as "the ocean (samudra), in the midst of which the sun is seen rising," and foolishly gives as alternative sense of yuvan "repeller (yu) of darkness." The Anukr. apparently scans 11: 6+8=25.

3. May he, indeed, god Savitar, impel (sū) for us many amṛtas, both the good praises, unto welfare.

The division of the mss. is this time that also of our text; but the meter is pretty hopeless (bhūri amṛtā would rectify b), and c apparently corrupt. Ppp. has, for b, sāvīṣad vasupatir vasūni (making a, b nearly equal RV. vii. 45. 3 a, b), and AÇS. the same with omission of vasūni. In c, Ppp. ends with sugātum (perhaps 'to sing well both good praises'); AÇS. reads ubhe sukṣitī sudhātuh. The Pet. Lex. [vii. 1045] suggests, for c, ubhe srutī su gātave: cf. RV. ix. 78. 2; the varieties of reading show that the pāda was virtually unintelligible to the text-makers. The comm. takes susṣutī first as the brhat and rathantara sāmans, and then, alternatively, as the stuta and çastra. Of course, if the verse is to be taken (as seems necessary) as a spoiled gāyatrī, we ought to read sāvīṣat, with accent. The Anukr. seems to scan 11+6: 9=26. [See p. lxix, note 2.]

2. Praise and prayer to Indra.

[Atharvan.—vānaspatyaṃ sāumyam. āuṣṇīham: 1-3. paroṣṇīh.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix. (in the order 1, 3, 2). The second verse is used by Kāuṣ. (29. 27) in a remedial rite against demons, while partaking of a rice-mess boiled over birds' nests. Vāit. (16. 13) has the hymn in the agnīṣṭoma, when the soma is turned into the large wooden vessel.

Translated: Florenz, 251 or 3; Griffith, i. 245; Bloomfield, 66, 458.

1. For Indra, O priests, press the soma, and add the water; [Indra] who shall hear the praiser's words and my call.

Or, 'the words and call of me the praiser.' With b compare RV. vii. 32. 6 d. Ppp. has, for b, c, ṣṇotanā tu dhāvata: stotriyaṃ havyaṃ ṣṇavad dhavaṃ tu nah. The comm. regards ā dhāvata as referring to the process called ādhāvana, performed for the adābhya graha, and refers to ĀpṢ. xii. 8. 2: or, alternatively, to the general purification of the soma. The concluding four syllables of each verse seem like secondary appendages.

2. Unto whom enter the drops of soma-plant (andhas) as birds a tree; thou exuberant one, drive away the demon-possessed scorners.

Ppp. reads tvā for yam in a. The comm. takes andhasas as nom. pl., explaining it by annabhūtās.

3. Press ye the soma for the somā-drinker, for the thunderbolt-bearing Indra; young, conqueror, lord [is] he, greatly praised.

The first two pādas are RV. vii. 32. 8 a, b; SV. i. 285 a, b. Ppp. reads in a -pāvane, humoring the meter.

3. To various divinities: for protection.

[Atharvan (svastyayanakāmah).—nānādāivatam. jāgatam: 1. pathyābrhati.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix. In Kāuṣ. (50. 13) hymns 3-7 (pātāṃ na iti pañca; the comm. says it means 'with five verses') are directed to be used with vi. 1 etc. for success in traffic (see under h. 1). Hymn 3 is connected with i. 26, 27 and vi. 76 at the beginning of the welfare-rites (50. 4), and it is reckoned (note to 25. 36) to the svastyayana gaṇa. By Vāit. (16. 9), hymns 3-6 are muttered in the agnīṣṭoma by the hotar after the prātaranuvāka.

Translated: Florenz, 251 or 3; Griffith, i. 246.

1. Protect us, O Indra-and-Pūshan; let Aditi, let the Maruts protect; O child of the waters, ye seven rivers, protect; let Vishṇu protect us, also the heaven.

The accent of c is in part against all rule and analogy, and doubtless corrupt; we ought to read stindhavaḥ sapta pātāna.

2. Let heaven-and-earth protect us in order to assistance (abhiṣṭi); let the pressing-stone protect, let Soma protect us from distress; let the fortunate goddess Sarasvatī protect us; let Agni protect us—the propitious protections that are his.

Ppp. has suhavā instead of subhagā in c. The comm. explains abhiṣṭaye by abhye-ṣaṇāya (taking it from root iṣ) or abhimataḥhalaprāṣṭaye. In c, devó in our edition is a misprint for devī.

3. Let the divine Aṣvins, lords of beauty, protect us; let dawn-and-night also make broad for us; O child of the waters, in case of any detriment to [our] household; O divine Tvasṭar, increase [us] in order to our completeness.

Ppp. has, in a, sudaṅsasā for ṣubhas patī; and in c, d it reads vihvrtī kayasya cid devo 'sūvandadhite ṣarma yacha nah. The comm. partly agrees with it in reading abhihvrtī and kayasya (explaining it as for kasya); it also has at the beginning pātam, and takes the nouns that follow as vocatives. It understands abhihvrtī (p. -tī tti) as a locative (= -hvrtāu or -hvarane), as is done in our translation [cf. JAOS. x. 389]. The accent requires amendment, to abhihrutī. Florenz suggests the substitution of abhihrutas, which would be an easier reading.

4. To various divinities: for protection.

[Atharvan. — nānādāvratam. 1. pathyābr̥hatī; 2. saṁstārapañkti; 3. 3-p. virāḍ gāyatrī.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix. Used by Kāuṣ. (23. 9) in a rite for prosperity in connection with the division of inherited property; and twice (124. 6; 135. 10) in the chapter of portents, when two crowns appear on some one's head and when the house-beam breaks; and it is reckoned to the puṣṭika mantras (note to 19. 1) and to the svastyayana gāna [note to 25. 36]. For its employment with vi. 1, 3 etc., see under vi. 1; and in Vāit. with vi. 3 etc., see under vi. 3.

Translated: Florenz, 252 or 4; Griffith, i. 246.

1. Tvasṭar [protect] my address (vācas) to the gods, [also] Parjanya, Brahmanaspati; with sons, with brothers, let Aditi now protect our hard to surpass [and] saving power.

The verse is found also in SV. (i. 299), which has no for me in a, and, at the end, trāmanam vācaḥ, thus rectifying the meter of the last pāda. Ppp. ends with trāmane ṣavā. The form trāmanam seems to be a bastard neut., corresponding to the masc. trāmānam [cf. JAOS. x. 522, 530: there seem to be no man-stems used as adjectives in the neuter], and to have been avoided in AV. by the substitution of trāyamānam; of the resulting metrical disturbance the Anukr. takes no notice.

2. Let Aṅga, Bhaga, Varuṇa, Mitra, Aryaman, Aditi — let the Maruts protect [us]; may the hatred of that injurer pass away; repel the foe from near by.

The accent of pāntu (if correct) shows that only marūtas is felt to be its subject; but Ppp. reads instead aditiḥ pātvo aṅhasaḥ. In c, the comm. has abhihvrtas. The last pāda is obscure, and at least in part corrupt. The want of accent of yāvayat is wrong, and its form is unmotivated; emendation to yāvūya or -yan can hardly be avoided. A'ntitam (for which Ppp. gives antitam) is read by all the mss., and occurs again at viii. 5. 11, so that it must be regarded as the real AV. reading. It is emended in our edition to ānti tām; and the comm. also so understands it (tam eva ṣatrum antikāt). It is translated as if emended to āntitas; or āntitam might be an anomalous equivalent of antikam. The verse (12+8: 12+8=40) is not properly a saṁstārapañkti.

3. Unto knowledge (? dhī), O Aṣvins, do ye aid us ; make wide for us, O wide-goer, unremitting ; O heaven, father, repel whatever misfortune.

The beginning of the verse is probably corrupt, but Ppp. gives no various reading, merely prefixing deva tvaṣṭar (apparently out of 3. 3) : compare RV. i. 117. 23 b, viṣvā dhīyo aṣvinā prāvratam me. In c, the great majority of mss., which SPP. follows, have the true accent dyāh̄ṣ (i.e. dl-āus, the word requiring to be pronounced as two syllables : see my Skt. Gram. 314 b) ; exceptions among our mss. are only Bp. and I. Several of our samhitā-mss. have h̄ before ṣṭtar (viz. P.M.E.H.). The meter lacks a syllable in a. [Correct the ed. to dyāh̄ṣ.]

5. For some one's exaltation.

[Atharvan. — āindrāṅnam. āmṣṭubham : 2. bhurij.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix., and in VS. (xvii. 50-52) TS. (iv. 6. 3¹), MS. (ii. 10. 4). Used in Kāuṣ. (4. 9) in the parvan sacrifice, with an oblation to Agni ; and again (59. 7), with vi. 6 and vii. 91, by one desiring a village ; and for success in traffic, see under vi. 1. In Vāit. (29. 15) the hymn accompanies the laying on of fuel in the agnicayana, and vs. 2, in the parvan sacrifice (2. 14 ; 3. 3), two offerings to Indra ; for the use in Vāit. 16. 9, see under vi. 3. The comm. further points out vs. 2 as addressed to Indra in the Nakṣ. K. 14.

Translated : Ludwig, p. 431 ; Florenz, 254 or 6 ; Griffith, i. 247.

1. Lead him up higher, O Agni, [thou] to whom oblations of ghee are made ; unite him with splendor, and make him abundant with progeny.

VS.TS. have in a the later form uttarām. In b, ghṛtēna presents the rare case of an instrumental dependent on a vocative, and ought, like a genitive in the like construction, to be unaccented ; it is so in all the three Yajus texts. Ppp. reads ghṛtebhīr āhutaḥ. VS.TS. exchange 1 c and 2 c ; and TS. has dānena ca for bahūn kṛdhi at the end. Ppp. has, for ḍ, devānām bhāgadhā asat (cf. TS. 2 ḍ). This first verse occurs also in Āp. vi. 24. 8, which has, for a, ud asmān uttarān naya, agrees with VS. and TS. in c, and reads bahūn in ḍ.

2. O Indra, put this man far forward ; may he be controler of his fellows ; unite him with abundance of wealth ; conduct him unto life (jīvātu), unto old age.

In a, VS.TS. have again pratarām ; VS.MS. have naya for kṛdhi ; for c (as already noted), VS.TS. have our 1 c ; for ḍ, MS. has devēbhyo bhāgadā asat, VS. and TS. nearly the same, VS. substituting devānām, and TS. -dhā ; Ppp. has, for ḍ, our 1 ḍ. The meter of ḍ might be rectified by abbreviating jīvātave to -tvāi (a form found in MS.ÇB. and Āp.), or by emending it to jīvātum.

3. In whose house we make oblation, him, O Agni, do thou increase ; him may Soma bless, and this Brahmaṇaspati.

The three Yajus texts have, in a, kurmās for kṛmās, and VS.MS. (with Ppp.) put havis after gr̄hé. In c, all three have devā ādhi bravan (but MS. bruvan). The last half-verse occurs below, as 87. 3 c, ḍ (corresponding to RV. x. 173. 3 etc.).

6. Against enemies.

[Atharvan.—brāhmaṇaspatyam ; sāumyam. ānuṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix. For the use of the hymn by Kāuṣ. 59. 7, see under the preceding hymn ; by Kāuṣ. 50. 13, see under vi. 1 ; by Vāit. 16. 9, see under vi. 3.

Translated : Ludwig, p. 430 ; Florenz, 255 or 7 ; Griffith, i. 247.

1. Whatever godless one, O Brahmaṇaspati, plots against us — every such one mayest thou make subject to me the sacrificer, the soma-presser.

Ppp. has abhidāsati at end of b.

2. Whatever ill-famed one, O Soma, shall aim at us of good fame, smite upon his face with the thunderbolt ; may he go away crushed (sam-piṣ).

Notwithstanding the direct antithesis with duḥśāsa, all the mss. in a read susañctnas ; both editions emend to suśaṅstnas, which is also read by Ppp., and by the commentary. [Unless I misunderstand R's note, Ppp. again reads abhidāsati at end of b. In d, SPP's āyati is a misprint for ayati.]

3. Whoever, O Soma, shall assail us, of the same kindred and also a stranger — draw (tr) away his strength, like the great sky, even now (?).

Ppp. reads, in a, ye na somā 'bhidāsatah. The verse is RV. x. 133. 5, which reads indra for soma in a, āva for āpa in c, and ādha tmānā at the end. For this last, the vadhātmanā (not divided in the pada-text) of all the AV. mss. seems merely an unintelligent corruption (altered in our text to vadhā tmānā). The comm., however, naturally makes no difficulty of understanding it as = vadhātmanā (explaining it by aṇanirūpeṇa) and as qualifying āyudhena understood. The emendation māhīm 'va would give a better sense : 'as the sky [subjects] the earth.' [To my thinking, it is licit, without emendation, to interpret māhīva as a correct graphic representation of māhīm iva with "elision and crasis" (see references under this head in my Noun-Inflection, JAOS. x. 599, and p. 331 top), as in RV. iv. 1. 3, rāthyeva = rāthiam iva.]

7. For blessings.

[Atharvan.—sāumyam : 3. vāiṣvadevī. gāyatram ; 1. nicṛt.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix. The hymn appears in Kāuṣ. (46. 4) as a help in removing obstacles to sacrifice, or an expiation for sacrificing for an improper person ; and it is reckoned (note to 25. 36) to the svastyayana gaṇa ; for its use by 50. 13, see under vi. 1.

Translated : Florenz, 256 or 8 ; Griffith, i. 248.

1. By what road, O Soma, Aditi or friends go, not hostile, by that do thou come to us with aid.

The comm. understands mitrās 'friends' to mean "Aditi's twelve sons, Mitra etc." ; i.e. as the equivalent of ādityās, which is not impossible. [The description as nicṛt belongs rather to 8. 1.]

2. By what, O Soma, overpowering one, thou shalt make the Asuras subject to us, by that do ye bless us.

Ppp. has, for a, yebhis soma sahanitya, and, for c, tenā no 'vitā [that is, avitā] bhuvah, thus relieving the embarrassing change of number [in the verb] from a, b to c; emendation to vocatāt in our c would accomplish the same result.

3. By what, O gods, ye did repel (vr) the mights of the Asuras, by that do ye yield refuge unto us.

Ppp. begins with yāni, and has correspondingly tebhis for tena in c. This facilitates the rendering of avṛṇādhvam by its natural meaning 'did choose'; there is no other known example of a nā-form from vr 'repel.' The comm. renders it tataḥ pṛthakḥṛtya jūyam sambhaktavantak. [Ppp. has for c tebhir na adhi vocata.]

8. To win a woman's love.

[Jamadagni. — kāmātmadāivatam. pathyāpaṅkti.]

Not found in Pāipp. Used by Kāuṣ. (35. 21), in the rites concerning women, with vi. 9 and 102 and ii. 30, for bringing a woman under one's control.

Translated: Weber, Ind. Stud. (1862) v. 261; Florenz, 257 or 9; Grill, 54, 158; Griffith, i. 248; Bloomfield, 100, 459.

1. As the creeper (libujā) has completely embraced the tree, so do thou embrace me — that thou mayest be one loving me, that thou mayest be one not going away from me.

The refrain of the hymn is found twice above, at the end of i. 34. 5; ii. 30. 1. SPP. here again, in opposition to his mss., gives the pada-reading āpaogāḥ in e. The Anukr. takes no notice of the metrical deficiency of a [but see note to 7. 1].

2. As the eagle, flying forth, beats down his wings upon the earth, so do I beat down thy mind — that thou etc. etc.

The comparison here is a strikingly ineffective one, and the attempts of the translators to give it aptness are to no purpose.

3. As the sun goeth at once about heaven-and-earth here, so do I go about thy mind — that thou etc. etc.

Part of SPP's mss. read paryātti in b. The comm. gives çighram 'swiftly' as the meaning of sadyas.

9. To win a woman's love.

[Jamadagni. — kāmātmadāivaam. ānuṣubham.]

Found also in Pāipp., but in ii. (not in xix., like the hymns that precede and follow). Used by Kāuṣ. (35. 21) with the preceding hymn, for the same purpose.

Translated: Weber, Ind. Stud. v. 264; Florenz, 258 or 10; Griffith, i. 249; Bloomfield, 101, 459.

1. Want (vāñch) thou the body of me, the feet; want the eyes; want the thighs; let the eyes, the hair of thee, lusting after me, dry up with love.

Ppp. puts tanvām (not -am) after pādāu in a, reads vāccha in b, begins c with akṣo, adds oṣṭhāu after keçās, and ends with āsyatām. Read akṣyāu in c in our text (an accent-sign omitted over the āu). [Delbrück, Vergleichende Syntax, i. 386, joins mām with kāmēna: so Grégoire, KZ. xxxv. 83.]

2. I make thee cling to my arm, cling to my heart; that thou mayest be in my power, mayest come unto my intent.

The second half-verse is the same with iii. 25. 5 c, d, and nearly so with i. 34. 2 c, d [cf. vi. 42. 3, note]. Ppp. reads, for a, b, māi tvā dāṣaṇimṛgaṁ kṛṇomi hṛdaya-sṛgam; and begins c with mame 'd apa kr.

3. They whose navel is a licking, in [whose] heart is made conciliation — let the kine, mothers of ghee, conciliate her yonder to me.

The comm. reads amūś in d, and so is able to understand yāsām at the beginning as relating to “women” understood, and not to gāvas; and he explains ārēhaṇam by āsvādanīyam ‘something to be enjoyed by tasting.’ The obscure and difficult first pāda is perhaps corrupt.

10. Greeting to divinities etc. of the three spheres.

[Çamīti. — nānādevatyam : 1. āgneyī, 2. vāyavyā, 3. sāuryā. 1. sāmni triṣṭubh, 2. prajāpatyā bṛhatī, 3. sāmni bṛhatī.]

This prose hymn is not found in Pāipp. In Kāuṣ. (9. 3, 5), it is quoted after each çānti gaṇa, to accompany a pouring out of water three times (iti triḥ pratyāsiṅcati; the comm. does not notice this use); and again (12. 3), it is prescribed in all rites for success; being further (note to 8. 23) reckoned to the vāstu gaṇa.

Translated: Florenz, 258 or 10; Griffith, i. 249.

1. To earth, to hearing, to the forest-trees — to Agni [their] overlord, hail!

It is not easy to read 22 syllables in the verse.

2. To breath, to the atmosphere, to the birds — to Vāyu [their] overlord, hail!

It is strange that in this verse the sphere is placed after the human faculty.

3. To the sky, to sight, to the asterisms — to Sūrya [their] overlord, hail!

The first anuvāka, of 10 hymns and 30 verses, ends here. The quotation is simply prathama (or -mā): see under the next anuvāka.

11. For birth of sons.

[Prajāpatiḥ. — retodevatyam uta mantroktadevatyam. ānuṣṭubham.]

The hymn is found also in Pāipp. xix. Accompanies in Kāuṣ. (35. 8) a rite for conception of a male child (puṁsavāna); fire is generated between çamī and açvatthā, and is variously applied to the woman.

Translated: Weber, v. 264; Ludwig, p. 477; Zimmer, p. 319; Florenz, 260 or 12; Griffith, i. 250; Bloomfield, 97, 460.

1. The açvatthā [has] mounted upon the çamī; there is made the generation of a male; that verily is the obtainment of a son; that we bring into women.

Some of SPP's mss. read, with the comm., puṁśāvanam in b. Ppp. combines açvatthā "rū- in a, and for c, d has tad eva tasya bheṣajam yat strīṣu āharanti tam, 'that is the remedy of this — namely, that they put this into women.'

2. In the male, indeed, grows (bhū) the seed; that is poured along into the woman; that verily is the obtainment of a son; that Prajāpati said.

Several of our mss. (Bp.P.M.W.E.H.) read puṁst at the beginning. ÇGS. has (i. 19) a nearly corresponding verse: puṁsi vāi puruṣe retas tat strīyām anu ṣiñcatu : tathā tad abravīd dhātā tat prajāpatir abravīt.

3. Prajāpati, Anumati, Sinīvālī hath shaped; may he put elsewhere woman-birth; but may he put here a male.

Ppp. has in c triṣūyam 'triple birth' (or for strīṣūyam?). Two of the Prāt. rules (ii. 88, iv. 83) mention strāṣūyam (p. strāṣūyam). ÇGS. has for this verse also a correspondent (i. 19): prajāpatir vy adadhāt savitā vy akalpayat : strīṣūyam anyānt sv (anyāsv?) ā dadhat puṁśāsam ā dadhād iha.

12. Against the poison of snakes.

[Garutman. — takṣakadāivatam. ānuṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix. Used by Kāuç. (29. 28) in a remedial rite against the poison of serpents.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 501; Florenz, 262 or 14; Griffith, i. 250; Bloomfield, 28, 461. — See Bergaigne-Henry, Manuel, p. 149.

1. I have gone about the race of snakes, as the sun about the sky, as night about living creatures other than the swan (haṁsā); thereby do I ward off thy poison.

It would appear from this that the haṁsa is regarded as exempt from the dominion of night, doubtless as remaining awake: cf. Pliny, Nat. Hist. x. 23. But Ppp. reads, in c, d, rātrāu jagad ivāṁ ni dhvaṁśād avādir imāṁ viṣam. The comm. reads and explains janīm āgamam in b; and in c derives haṁsa from root han, and makes it mean the soul (ātman), to which alone poison does not penetrate! The Anukr. does not heed the redundant syllable in c. [Ppp. combines ahīnām, without elision.]

2. What was known of old by priests (brahman), what by seers, what by gods; what is (bhūtā), is to be, that has a mouth — therewith do I ward off thy poison.

Ppp. has uditam for viditam in b, and āsuvvat at end of c. The comm. explains āsuvvat to mean āsyayuktam: teno 'ccāryamāṇamantrasahitam.

3. With honey I mix (prc) the streams; the rugged (? pārvata) mountains [are] honey; honey is the Pāruṣṇī, the Çīpālā; weal be to thy mouth, weal to thy heart.

The comm. reads at the beginning madhv ā prñce; he takes the streams for the Ganges etc., the mountains (pārvata) for the Himālaya etc., and the hills (giri) for their foot-hills; the paruṣṇī for the great river of that name, and çīpālā as adj., 'rich in water-grass' (çāivāla): all these are to pour on (ā siñcantu) poison-removing honey. The Ppp. text is quite different: abhi nā prkṣa nadyaṣ parvatāi'va girayo madhu: madhu prṣṭi çīpālā samāste 'stu çam hṛdaya. Perhaps paruṣū signifies here an 'eddying' brook, and çīpālā a pool 'rich in water-plants.' [Considering that the effect of snake-bite upon heart and blood must have been well known to even the most unlettered Hindu, I am tempted to suggest emendation of āsne to asné.] [In R. and W's ed., correct nadyòḥ to nadyàrḥ.]

13. To the instruments and ministers of death.

[Atharvan (svastyayanakāma). — mārtya[va]m. ānuṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix. The hymn is variously employed by Kāuç. : in a rite for victory (14. 25), with iii. 26, 27; and again (15. 6), similarly, in favor of a Vāiçya; in the preparation of the house-fire (72. 13), with an offering; four times in the chapter of portents: once (104. 3) when Brahmans quarrel; again (105. 1) when images play pranks; yet again (113. 3) when a cow suckles an ox (these three in company with i. 19); once more (123. 1), when animals touch sacred things; and it is further reckoned (note to 25. 36) to the svastyayana gaṇa.

Translated: Florenz, 264 or 16; Griffith, i. 251.

1. Homage to the weapons (vadhā) of the gods; homage to the weapons of kings; likewise the weapons that are of the Vāiçyas — to them of thine, O death, be homage.

Ppp. has viçvānām in c.

2. Homage to thy benediction; homage to thy malediction; homage to thy favor, O death; this homage to thy disfavor.

Ppp. omits the first half-verse, doubtless by accident. The comm. takes the datives in a and b as nomina agentis.

3. Homage to thy sorcerers; homage to thy remedies; homage to thy roots, O death; this homage to the Brāhmans.

14. Against the balāsa.

[Babhrupiṅgala (?). — balāsadevatyam. ānuṣṭubham.]

Occurs also in Pāipp. xix. Used by Kāuç. (29. 30) in a remedial rite against catarrh (çleṣman), with variously administering prepared water to the patient.

Translated: Florenz, 265 or 17; Griffith, i. 252; Bloomfield, 8, 463; vs. 1 also by Grohmann, Ind. Stud. ix. 397, with an excursus on the balāsa.

1. The bone-dissolving, joint-dissolving, settled (āsthita) heart disease, all the balāsa, cause thou to disappear, that is seated in the limbs and in the joints.

SPP. adopts in a the saṁhitā-reading parusraṁsām (p. paruḥosraṁsām), with nearly all his mss., and with the comm. The majority also of our mss. [not E.O.] omit the ḥ but the Prāt. authorizes no such abbreviation, and the point is one in regard to which the usage of the mss., however seemingly accordant, is not to be trusted. Ppp. reads, in c, niṣ kṛdhi for nāçaya. The comm. takes the two words in a as names of disorders, which is perhaps preferable, and regards them as occasioned by phlegm (çleṣman); balāsa he defines as kāsaçvāsātmaç çleṣmaroga. [For āsthita, see note to iv. 17.8.] [Delete the accent-sign over -sañ in c.]

2. The balāsa of him that has balāsa I destroy like a muṣkarā; I cut its bond like the root of a gourd.

The accent urvārvaś is noted in the commentary to Prāt. iii. 60; Ppp. reads urvālvuo yathā. The comm. defines urvārū as 'the fruit of the karkaṭī' (Cucumis utilissimus) and explains the comparison to be with the stem of this fruit, which becomes loosened of itself when ripe: cf. xiv. 1. 17. Ppp. and the comm. read puṣkaram in b. Ppp. also has kṛṇomi instead of kṣiṇomi, a preferable reading (BR. pronounce kṣiṇomi "false"; but nu-forms of this root occur in Brāhmaṇa and Sūtra; akṣiṇomi, however, would be better in place). [See BR. v. 1348 and 838.]

3. Fly out forth from here, O balāsa, like a young āçuṃgā; then, like the [last] year's bulrush, scud away, innocuous to heroes.

Ppp. has, for b, suparṇo vasater iva [cf. RV. i. 25. 4] 'like a bird from its nest': a much easier reading. The comm. explains āçuṃga as an ordinary adjective, 'swift-going,' and, instead of çiçuka, reads çuçuka "a wild animal so called." For c, d, Ppp. has adhe 'ta ivā 'hano 'padrāhy avāiraha. The comm. reads itas [that is itās], pple of root i, for itās in c. The Anukr. appears to sanction the contraction iṭe 'va in c.

15. For superiority.

[Uddālaka. — vānaspatyam. ānuṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix. Kāuç. applies (19.26) in a rite for prosperity, with vi. 142. 3, using an amulet of barley. It is also reckoned (note to 19. 1) to the puṣṭika mantras.

Translated: Florenz, 267 or 19; Griffith, i. 252.

1. Thou art the highest of herbs; of thee the trees are subjects (upastī); let him be our subject who assails us.

The verse is RV. x. 97. 23 (with which VS. xii. 101 precisely agrees), which has, for a, tvām uttamā 'sy oṣadhe, and accents úpastayas úpastis. Ppp. elides the a of asī in a, and in c, d has upastir asmākañ bhūyād yo 'smān. The comm. regards the palāça tree as addressed.

2. Whoever, both kindred and not of kin, assails us, of them may I be highest, as this one of trees.

The Ppp. version of i. 19. 4 a, b is (as pointed out at that place) nearly our a, b here. In this verse Ppp. reads samb- and asamb-, and its c is sambandhūn sarvāñ tīn tvā.

3. As of herbs soma is made highest of oblations, as the talāçā of trees, [so] may I be highest.

Ppp. reads, for b, c, uttamañ havir ucyate (which is better): yavā tvam āiva vrkṣā-nām. The comm. has palāça in c. If talāçā is a good reading, it may mean the same as tālīçā (Flacourtia cataphracta).

16. To various plants (?).

[Çāṃnaka (anena hinahidevam astāut).—mantroktadevatyam uta cāndramasam. ānuṣṭubham. caturṛcam. 1. nicṛt 3-p. gāyatrī; 3. byhatīgarbhā kakummaty ānuṣṭubh; 4. 3-p. pratiṣṭhā.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix. Appears in Kāuṣ. (30. 1), in a healing rite, explained as intended for disease of the eyes, with various use of mustard plant. Verse 4 is quoted alone later (51. 15), in a rite explained by Keç. simply as one for welfare, by the comm. as for welfare in connection with food (annasvastyayana): and the comm. reads in Kāuṣ. anna- (not āla-) bheṣajam; the three çalāñjālāgrāṇi of 51. 16 the comm. explains as sasyavallīs.

The whole hymn is totally obscure; that it relates to a disease of the eyes, as assumed by the native comment, there appears no good reason to believe.

Translated: Florenz, 268 or 20; Griffith, i. 253 (see his notes); Bloomfield, 30, 464.

1. O ābayu, non-ābayu! thy juice is sharp (ugrā), O ābayu! unto thy broth do we eat.

The hymn is unintelligible, and the translation only mechanical. Ppp. and the comm. read āv-, anāv- in a, b (Ppp. combining ugrā "v"); and the comm. derives the words from the verbal stem āvaya, with suffix u, and renders 'being eaten' (adyamāna), 'not being eaten' (abhakṣyamāna), understanding 'mustard' (sarṣapa) to be addressed. Ppp. has, for c, yā te karmam aṣīmahi [and, in a, elides 'nāvayo].

2. Vihālha by name is thy father, madāvati ('intoxicated') by name is thy mother; for thou art he, not thyself, thou that didst consume thyself.

SPP. reads in a vihāhlas. The translation of the second half-verse implies the altered division and accentuation of c that is made in our edition; the mss. read sā hina (not divided in pada-text) tvām asi; and SPP. follows them. Ppp. has for c çevas tvām asi (its ḍ is like ours), but it omits a, b, and, on the other hand, adds at the end babhruç ca babhrukarnaç ca nīlākalaçālāçavaç paççā. The comm. reads vihanla for vihalha (which is supported by the commentary to Prāt. i. 46) in a, and regards hi na as two words in c. The verse as it stands (8+9: 6+8=31) is very improperly passed as a simple anuṣṭubh. [An ási between hi and nā would mend the meter of c if such stuff were worth mending.]

3. O tāuvilikā, quiet down; this racket hath quieted down; both the brown and the brown-eared one: go away, O nirāla!

It is perhaps by a misprint that SPP. reads ava: ilaya (for il-) in the pada-text of a (though our D. has also il-). To the comm., tāuvilikā is the name of a piçāçī that produces disease; āilaba, a kind of disease of the eyes; babhru and babhrukarna, causes of disease; and nirāla, also a disease. The translation implies the emendation of nir āla to nirāla.* Ppp. has a peculiar text: tāulike 've 'layā 'vā imāilavāilāi: ihas tvām āhutim jusāṇo manasā svāhā; but part of this belongs perhaps to the following piece. [The Anukr. scans as 8+9: 8+6.] * [Comm. reads nirāla; R. has nir āçala, and T. has nīlāçala. Comm. has further apāihi!]

4. Alasālā art thou first; silāñjālā art thou after; nīlāgalasālā.

This verse is wanting in Pāipp. (save so far as its last word is found in that version of vs. 2). The comm. understands the three obscure words it contains to be names of grain-creepers (sasyavallī); he gives the second the slightly different form çalāñjālā. The comment to Prāt. iv. 107 quotes alasālā 'si as instancing the indispensableness of the pada-text to a student; but what good it does him in this instance is quite unclear. Our Bp. gives the third pāda thus: nīlāgalasālā 'ti nīlāgalasālā. The verse is capable of being read as 8+7: 6.

17. Against premature birth.

[Atharvan. — caturṛcam. garbhadrīhaṇadevatyam. ānuṣṭubham.]

Found, except vs. 1 (in the order 4, 2, 3), in Pāipp. xix. Used by Kāuṣ. (35. 12) in the rite for securing the foetus against abortion.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 477; Florenz, 269 or 21; Griffith, i. 254; Bloomfield, 98, 467.

1. As this great earth receives the embryo of existences, so let thine embryo be maintained, in order to birth after pregnancy.

The comm. reads anusūtram for ānu sūtum. The first half-verse has already occurred, as v. 25. 2 a, b [where the note gives the parallel passages]. The comment to Prāt. ii. 103 notes the non-lingualization of the s of sūtum after ānu—which is wholly superfluous unless it read ānusūtum.

2. As this great earth maintains these forest-trees, so let thine etc. etc.

Ppp. begins yathe 'yam urvī pṛthivī, and reads, in c, d, garbha anu and suvitave.

3. As this great earth maintains the rugged (pārvata) mountains, so let thine etc. etc.

4. As this great earth maintains the various (viśṭhita) living beings, so let thine etc. etc.

18. Against jealousy.

[Atharvan (?) — irṣyāvināṣanadevatyam. ānuṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix. Used by Kāuṣ. (36. 25), with vii. 45 and 74. 3, in a rite against jealousy.

Translated: Weber, Ind. Stud. v. 235; Ludwig, p. 514; Florenz, 270 or 22; Grill, 28, 159; Griffith, i. 254; Bloomfield, 106, 467.

1. The first blast of jealousy, and the one after the first, the fire, the heat of the heart—this we extinguish for thee.

Ppp. has readings in part better: for b, madhyamām adhamām uta; for agnim in c, satyam; at end, nir mantrayāmahe. The comm. explains dhrājim by vegayuktānī gatim.

2. As the earth [is] dead-minded, more dead-minded than a dead man, and as [is] the mind of one who has died, so of the jealous man the mind [be] dead.

“Feeling” would be in this verse an acceptable equivalent for manas ‘mind.’

3. That fluttering mind (manaskā) that has found place in (çritā) thy heart — from it I set free thy jealousy, like the hot vapor from a bag of skin.

The translation implies at the end the emendation (first proposed in BR.) of the apparently senseless nṛtes into dṛtes, which the comm. reads, and which SPP. has accordingly admitted into his text; the result of fermentation, escaping when the vessel is opened, is apparently intended. Ppp., however, has nṛtes, although it gives sundry various readings (in part mere corruptions): for a, yad yan me hṛdi srukam; in b, prathayişṇukam; in c, tañ te rişyāmi mu. The comm. divides b into manas kam patayişṇu kam.

19. For ceremonial purification.

[Çantīti. — nānādevatyam uta cāndramasam. gāyatram : 1. anuṣṭubh.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix. Translated by Ludwig (p. 431). Quite various use is made of this hymn in the sūtras. In Kāuṣ. it is included (9. 2) in the br̥hachānti gaṇa; it is associated (as are vi. 23, 24, 51, 57, 59, 61, 62) with i. 4-6 etc. in a rite for good fortune (41. 14); it appears in the savayajñās (66. 16), with the pavitra sava; and the comm. declares it and vi. 51, 62 to be intended by pavitṛāis at 61. 5, also in the savayajña chapter. In Vāit. it accompanies a purifying rite (11. 10) in the agnī-ṣṭoma, and (with vi. 69 etc.) the pouring out of the surā in the sāutrāmañī ceremony [30. 13]; and vs. 2 in the agnyādheya (6. 11), with an offering to Agni pavamāna.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 431; Florenz, 272 or 24; Griffith, i. 255.

1. Let the god-folk purify me; let men (mānu) purify me with prayer (dhi); let all beings purify me; let the purifying one purify me.

Ppp. reads at the end mām. The verse is found in sundry other texts, with considerable varieties of reading: the first pāda is the same in all (only RV. has mām); in the second, RV. (ix. 67. 27) has vāsavas for mānavas, while VS. (xix. 39) reads mānasā dhīyas, and TB. (i. 4. 8¹) and MS. (iii. 11. 10) agree with AV.; in the third, VS. agrees with AV., and MS. differs only by giving bhūtā mā, while TB. has viçva āyāvah, and RV. viçve devāḥ punītā mā; the fourth is omitted in TB., and RV.VS. have jātavedaḥ punīhī mā, while MS. differs only by punāhī. The readings of K. (xxxviii. 2) I have not. The comm. explains dhiyā in a by buddhyā karmaṇā vā, and pavamānas in d as either wind or soma.

2. Let the purifying one purify me, in order to activity, dexterity, life, likewise unharmedness.

Ppp. arranges a as punātu mā pavamānaḥ. It gives, for c, iyok ca sūryam dr̥çe (cf. our i. 6. 3 and xii. 2. 18), and this is also the reading of MS. (ib.), which alone of all the other texts has a correspondent to this verse.

3. With both, O divine impeller (savitār), with purifier and with impulse, do thou purify us in order to seeing.

This verse is found in all the texts that have vs. 1. RV. (ix. 67. 25) VS. (xix. 43) have, for c, mām punīhī viçvātaḥ, and MS. (as above) the same save punāhī; TB. (i. 4. 8²) gives instead idām br̥hma punīmahe.

20. Against fever (takmán).

[Bhṛgvañgīras. — yakṣmanāṣanādāvatam. 1. atijagatī; 2. kakummatī prastārapañktih; 3. satahpañktih.]

Only the last verse is found in Pāipp., in book xiii. Appears in Kāuṣ. (30. 7) in a remedial rite for bilious fever, and is reckoned (note to 26. 1) to the takmanāṣana gāya.

Translated: Grohmann, Ind. Stud. ix. 384, 393; Ludwig, p. 511; Zimmer, p. 380; Florenz, 273 or 25; Griffith, i. 255; Bloomfield, 3, 468.

1. Of him as of burning fire goeth the vehemence (?); likewise, as it were, shall he crying out go away from me; some other one than us let the ill-behaved one seek; homage be to the heat-weaponed fever.

The translation given implies the easy emendation of ṣuṣmñhas to ṣuṣmas, which eases the meter,* and helps the sense out of a notable difficulty. The comm. and the translators understand (perhaps preferably) mattās in b as pple of mad, instead of quasi-ablative of the pronoun ma, as here rendered ("he flees, crying like a madman," R.). The comm. takes avratas as intended for an accusative, -tam. The verse is really a jagatī with one redundant syllable in a. * [The metrical difficulty is in the prior part of a; the cadence of a is equally good with ṣuṣmñhas or with ṣuṣmas.]

2. Homage to Rudra, homage be to the fever, homage to king Varuṇa, the brilliant (tvīṣīmant), homage to the sky, homage to the earth, homage to the herbs.

The Anukr. scans the verse as 12+12:9+6 = 39 syllables.

3. Thou here who, scorching greatly, dost make all forms yellow — to thee here, the ruddy, the brown, the woody takmán, do I pay homage.

Ppp. reads, in a, rūras for yas; its c, d are aruṇāya babhrave tapurmaghavāya namo 'stu takmane. The comm. understands vānyāya in d as gerundive of root van = samsevayāya: perhaps 'of the forest,' i.e., having no business in the village. The verse (9+11:9+12) is too irregular for the metrical definition given [cf. viii. 2. 21].

The second anuvāka ends here, having 10 hymns and 32 verses, and the quotation from the old Anukr. is simply dvitīyāu, which ought to combine with the prathama of the first anuvāka — only one does not see how, as the two are not equal in number of verses.

21. To healing plants.

[Ṣaṁitī. — cāndramasam. ānuṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. 1. Used by Kāuṣ. (30. 8) in a remedial rite for growth of hair.

Translated: Florenz, 275 or 27; Grill, 50, 160; Griffith, i. 256; Bloomfield, 30, 470. — See also Bergaigne-Henry, Manuel, p. 150.

1. These three earths (prthivī) that there are — of them earth (bhūmi) is the highest; from off their skin have I seized a remedy.

Ppp. elides the initial a of aham in c, and its d is sam u jagrabha bheṣajam. [See Griffith's note.]

2. Thou art the most excellent of remedies, the best of plants ; as Soma, lord (? bhāga) in the night-watches (yāma), like Varuṇa among the gods.

The comm. takes yāma in the sense here given (ahorātrabhāgeṣu sādhyeṣu), and Soma as 'moon,' which is doubtless true ; but he renders bhāgas by 'and the sun.' Ppp. exchanges the place of 'remedies' and 'plants,' and reads yajñas for somas in c. The Anukr. appears to authorize bhage'va in c.

3. O ye wealthy (revānt) ones, doing no violence, desirous to bestow ye desire to bestow ; both are ye hair-fasteners, and also hair-increasers.

Ppp. exchanges the place of -dr̥ṇhanīs and -vardhanīs, and reads the equivalent siṣāsantīs for siṣāsavas. Anādhr̥syās in a would seem a better reading. The Anukr. overlooks the deficiency in a ; insertion of sthā after revatīs would rectify it.

22. To the Maruts.

[Çamātāti.—ādityaraçmidēvatya[m]. mārutam. trāiṣṭubham : 2. 4p. bhurigjagatī.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix. Used by Kāuç. (30. 11) in a remedial rite against protuberant belly etc. Keç. and the comm. read further in the rule the pratīka sasruṣīs of hymn 23, and detail a second lengthy process in the same rite as performed with the two. Hymns 22-24 are also explained as among the apām sūktāni (7. 14 and note). In Vāit. (9. 5) this hymn appears in the cāturmāsya sacrifice as addressed to the playing (krīḍin) Maruts.

Translated : Ludwig, p. 463 [vss. 1-2] ; Florenz, 276 or 28 ; Griffith, i. 256.

1. Black the down-track, the yellow eagles, clothing themselves in waters, fly up to the sky ; they have come hither from the seat of righteousness (ṛtā) ; then, forsooth, with ghee they deluged the earth.

The verse comes from the mystic and obscure hymn RV. i. 164 (vs. 47), and is found again twice below (ix. 10. 22, which see ; xiii. 3. 9). It is also found in several of the Black Yajus texts : TS. (iii. 1. 114), MS. (iv. 12. 5), K. (xi. 9, 13). RV.MS. end with pr̥thivī vy ūdyate ; TS. has āsītavarṇās (for kr̥ṣṇān niyānam) in a, mthas (for apās) in b, sūdanāni krtvā in c, and, for d, ād it pr̥thivī ghyr̥tātr vy ūdyate. Ppp. agrees with RV.MS. at the end of the verse, and it combines, in its frequent way, suparṇā'po.

2. Ye make the waters rich in milk, the herbs propitious, when ye bestir yourselves, O golden-backed Maruts ; do ye lavish (pinv) both sustenance and good-will there, where, O manly Maruts, ye pour honey.

The first, third, and fourth pādas are found as b, c, d of a verse in TS. iii. 1. 118 ; TS. reads kr̥ṇuta (as does also Ppp.), and it omits çivās ; it also has, with the comm., pinvatha in c (which is better). Ppp. further reads yamās for çivās, and ejati for -thā ; [and siñcatā for -thā].

3. Water-swimming [are] the Maruts ; send ye that rain which shall fill all the hollows ; the glāhā shall bestir itself, like a girl that is thrust, thrusting the ēru, like wife with husband.

The text of this verse is hopelessly corrupt, and all attempts to make connected sense of the second half must apparently be (like that of Pischel in Ved. Stud. i. 81 ff.) forced and unsuccessful. [Baunack, KZ. xxxv. 532, may also be consulted.] The version of it presented in TS. (iii. 1. 11⁸) rather sets off its difficulties than gives any help in solving them. It makes marutas vocative in a, and the comm. also understands the word as vocative, not heeding its accent; the preferable reading would be údapruto marutas, both vocative. The comm. then takes tān together with udaprūtas as qualifying meghān 'clouds' understood. Ppp., with the majority of SPP's authorities and some of ours (P.M.), reads udaplūtas. Then tān (pada-text tān) is read by all the authorities in both texts, although the sense necessarily requires (as in our translation is assumed) tām, as antecedent to yā. But here, again, all the pada-texts have yāh, which completes their confusion. TS. has, for b, the wholly different and doubtless secondary phrase vīṣṭim yé vīṣve marūto junānti, making of the line 'O Maruts, send those water-swimming ones who, [namely] all the Maruts, hasten the rain.' The comm. understands yā, but then also vīṣvā, as neut. pl. (vrihiyavādisasyāni), while all our pada-texts have correctly vīṣvāh; the comm. then is obliged to supply a ca 'and' after nivātas. In c, d, TS. reads króṣāti for éjāti, gārdā for glāhā, pérum for érum, and tuñjānā for tundānā (some of the mss., including our O. D. R., have tudānā); the comm. also has tuñjānā, but gahlā (so printed; but it should doubtless be galhā, since he derives it from root garh 'chide': one of our mss. (W.) and three of SPP's have gálhā) instead of glāhā or gārdā; he translates it 'thunder.' These changes on glāhā and éru, at least, are plainly no real variations of reading, but blind blunders over an unintelligible text. Ppp. is corrupt and hardly legible: perhaps ye jahāti ktahnā kanye 'va dunnonāni dunnamā patye 'va jāyām. R. suggests that the line c-d belongs to a gambling hymn, and that we are to read glahas and ūrum, a comparison being made between the shaking of the dice-holder and the agitatio of a female at the coitus.

23. To the waters: for blessings.

[Çantāti (?). — abdevatyam. ānuṣṭubham: 2. 3-p. gāyatrī; 3. paraṣṇih.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix. Reckoned by Kāuṣ. (9. 2) to the bṛhachānti gaṇa, and also (note to 7. 14) to the apāni sūktāni; and again (41. 14), with vi. 19 etc., used in a rite for good fortune: as to its combination (30. 11) with the preceding hymn, see that hymn. In Vāit. (4. 14) it accompanies in the parvan sacrifices the pouring out of water.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 431; Florenz, 278 or 30; Griffith, i. 257.

1. Flowing on, devoted to it; by day and by night flowing on; I, of desirable activity, call upon the heavenly waters.

The verse is found as a khila or appendix to RV. x. 9, as vs. 10 of that hymn. It reads there, in a, tādapasas, which is an obvious and called-for emendation of our text, and assumed in our translation; in c, -kratūs, which is also an improvement (our P. has it, but apparently only by an accident); and, for d, ā devīr āvase huve. Ppp. has, for d, ahūpo devīr upa bruve. The first pāda lacks a syllable, unless we resolve sa-sr-u.

2. Let them release here the worked-in waters of the ceremony for conducting forward; let them at once make [them] to go.

The translation implies emendation of āpas in a to apās, or else the use of the former as accusative, as in more than one other passage. O'tās, lit. 'woven in': i.e. brought in as part of the ceremony. But the comm. reads ūtās, and explains it as = samtatās or avicchedena pravahantyaḥ. [In a, b, the reading of Ppp. appears to be like ours; but in c it has bhavantu etave.] [Cf. v. 23. 1 for ōtās.]

3. In the impulse (savā) of the divine impeller (savitār) let men do their [sacred] work; weal to us be the waters, the herbs propitious.

Ppp. reads kr̥vanti in b. Here, to preserve the balance of forms, apās has to be understood as nominative.

24. To the waters: for blessings.

[Çantīti (?). — abdevatyam. ānuṣṭubham.]

* Found also in Pāipp. xix. Reckoned in Kāuṣ. (9.2) to the bṛhachānti gaṇa, and (note to 7.14) to the apām sūktāni; used in a rite for good-fortune (41.14) with vi.19 etc.: see under 19; and also (30.13) in a healing ceremony for heart-burn, dropsy, etc.

Translated: Florenz, 279 or 31; Grill, 13, 161; Griffith, i. 258; Bloomfield, 12, 471.

1. They flow forth from the snowy (mountain); in the Indus somewhere [is their] gathering; may the heavenly waters give to me that remedy for heart-burn.

Ppp. reads, for a, b, himavataḥ prasravatas tās sindhum upagachataḥ. In d, the true reading is of course hr̥dyo-, and SPP. so reads, though doubtless against his mss., as certainly against all ours; it is a very rare thing to find the full form written in such a case (and hence the pada-text blunder hr̥dyota in i. 22. 1).

2. Whatever hath burnt (ā-dyut) in my eyes, and what in my heels, my front feet; may the waters remove all that — they of physicians the most excellent physicians.

The collocation of suffering parts in a, b is very odd; Ppp. seems to read for a, yad aksibhyām ād-, and, for b, pārṣṇibhyām hr̥dayena ca; for d, tvaṣṭā riṣtam ivā 'nasaḥ. One or two of our mss. (P.H.) agree with some of SPP's in reading karat at end of c; and two of his have nīḥ before it. The pada-division subhīṣakotama is taught in Prāt. iv. 46.

3. Ye whose spouse is the Indus, whose king is the Indus, all ye streams that are — give us the remedy for this; for that would we enjoy you.

Ppp. exchanges the place of the two epithets in a. The comm. reads stana at end of b. Before sihāna most of our mss. retain the final h, as usual; SPP. does not note anything as to his authorities.

25. For relief from pains (?) in neck and shoulders.

[Çunaḥṣepa. — mantroktamanyā[di]vināṣanadevatyam. ānuṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix. Used in Kāuṣ. (30.14) in a healing rite against ganḍa-mālās, with kindling fifty-five paraṣu (comm., -ṣū) leaves by chips.

Translated: Kuhn, KZ. xiii. 130 (with Germanic parallels); Florenz, 280 or 32; Griffith, i. 258; Bloomfield, 19, 472 (cf. AJP. xi. 323).

1. Both the five and the fifty that gather against those of the nape — let them all disappear from here, like the noises (? vākā) of the apacīts.

Mānyās etc. may of course as well be nom., and the comm. so understands them, supplying ganḍamālās 'pimples, swellings' for them to agree with; abhī would then be left without object, or with indefinite object, 'one,' understood. The comm. renders vākās by vacanīyā doṣāḥ, and takes apactlām as accus. fem. pple: "as blameworthy faults leave an honored woman"! Under VS. xvii. 57, the comm. renders vākās by vākyaṇi.

2. Both the seven and the seventy that gather against those of the neck — let them all etc. etc.

Part of the mss. (including our D.R.) accent saptā at the beginning, and SPP. with good reason adopts that in his text.

3. Both the nine and the ninety that gather against those of the shoulders — let them all etc. etc.

Ppp., in these verses, exchanges the numbers of 1 and 3, omits yās every time in a, and combines manyā 'bhi, grāivryā 'bhi, skandā 'bhi.

26. Against evil.

[Brahman. — pāpmedevatākam. ānuṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix. Used in Kāuṣ. (30. 17) in a healing rite against all diseases; and reckoned (note to 26. 1) to the takmanāṣana gaṇa. The comm. finds it quoted also in the Naks. K. (15), in a ceremony against nirṛti.

Translated: Florenz, 282 or 34; Griffith, i. 259; Bloomfield, 163, 473.

1. Let me go, O evil (pāpmān); being in control, mayest thou be gracious to us; set me uninjured in the world of the excellent, O evil.

All the mss. leave pāpman unaccented at beginning of ḍ, and SPP. follows them. The second pāda occurred above as v. 22. 9 b. Ppp. rectifies the defective meter of c, by reading ā mā bhadreṣu dhāmasv atve dh-. The comm. gives sam instead of san in b. The Anukr. overlooks the deficiency of two syllables.

2. Thou who, O evil, dost not leave us, thee here do we leave; along at the turning apart of the ways, let evil go after another.

The comm. understands anuvyāvartane as one word in c. Ppp. exchanges the place of 2 c, ḍ and 3 a, b, reading, for the former, patho vya vyāvartane niṣ pāpmā tvam suvāmasi; [and it has mā for naḥ in a].

3. Elsewhere than [with] us let the thousand-eyed immortal one make its home; whomsoever we may hate, him let it come upon (ṛch); and whom we hate, just him do thou smite.

Ppp., as above noted, has the first half of this verse as its 2 c, ḍ, reading corruptly nyucya for ny ucyatu; its version of c, ḍ is yo no dveṣṭi tam gacha yam dviṣmas tam jahi. The comm. renders ny ucyatu by nitarām gacchatu.

27. Against birds of ill omen.

[Bhṛgu. — yāmyam uta nāṛṛtam. jāgātam: 2. triṣṭubh.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix. With 28. 1 and 29. 1, it constitutes RV. x. 165. [MGS. ii. 17. 1 a-e is made up of our vi. 27, parts of 29. 1 and 28. 3, and 28. 1: see also the pratikas in Knauer's Index.] Hymns 27, 28, and 29 are employed together in Kāuç. (46. 7) against birds of ill omen (the comm. to AV. reads patatribhyas for patitebhyas of the edition of Kāuç.).

Translated: Florenz, 282 or 34; Griffith, i. 259; Bloomfield, 166, 474.

1. Seeking what, O gods, the sent dove, messenger of perdition, hath come hither, to it will we sing praises, make removal; weal be [it] to our bipeds, weal to our quadrupeds.

RV. has precisely the same text in this verse. Ppp. begins with devaṣ k-. Some of the mss. (including our P.M.W.T.) read nḥkṛtīm in c. The verse lacks two syllables of being a full jagatī.

2. Propitious to us be the sent dove, harmless, O gods, the hawk (çakunā) [sent] to our house; for let the inspired (vīpra) Agni enjoy our oblation, let the winged missile avoid us.

Ppp. agrees with RV. in the better reading grhēsu (for grhām nah) at end of b. [One suspects that "hawk" may be too specific.]

3. May the winged missile not harm us; it maketh its track on the hearth, in the fire-holder; propitious be it unto our kine and men; let not the dove, O gods, injure us here.

The form āṣṭrī (p. āṣṭrī tti) is quoted under Prāt. i. 74 as an example of a locative in ī (pragr̥hya); RV. has the less primitive form āṣṭryām; the comm. explains it by vyāptāyām aranyānyām. For c, d, RV. has a slightly different text: çām no góbhyaç ca pūruṣēbhyaç cā 'stu mā no hīnsid ihā devāḥ kapótah. The AV. version spoils the meter of c, but the Anukr. does not heed this.

28. Against birds of ill omen etc.

[Bhṛgu.—yāmyam uta nāir̥tam. trāiṣṭubham: 2. anuṣṭubh; 3. jagatī.]

All the verses found also in Päipp., but not together; 1. occurs after the preceding hymn in xix.; 3. at a later point in xix.; 2. in x.; and there is no internal connection perceptible among them. Used by Kāuç., with the preceding and the following hymn, against birds of ill omen (46. 7); and vs. 2 is especially quoted as accompanying the leading of a cow [and] fire three times around the house. [Vss. 1 and 3 occur at MGS. ii. 17. 1 — see under h. 27.]

Translated: Florenz, 285 or 37; Griffith, i. 260.

1. With the praise-verse (īc) drive ye the dove forth (pranōdam); reveling in food (īç) we lead a cow about, breaking up tracks hard to go in; leaving us (our?) sustenance shall it fly forth, swift-flying.

Pranōdam, lit. 'with forth-driving,' a quasi gerundial cognate accusative. RV. (x. 165. 5) has nayadhvam at end of b, a better reading. In Ppp., b, c are omitted. For c, RV. has saṃyopāyanto duritāni viçvā. In d, both RV. and Ppp. (also the comm.) end with prā patāt pātīṣṭhah, of which our reading can only be a corruption; pāthiṣṭhah (p. pāthiṣṭhah) indicates a confusion with pathiṣṭhā [the non-division and accent also point to pātīṣṭhah as true reading]. [Ppp. has hitvām for hitvā na.]

2. These have taken fire about; these have led the cow about; they have gained themselves fame (çrávas) among the gods—who shall venture to attack them?

The RV. has the same verse at x. 155. 5 (also VS., xxxv. 18, precisely the same text with RV.), reading, for a, b, párvī 'mé gām aneṣata páry agnim ahr̥ṣata. Ppp. transposes a and b and reads pary agnim ahar̥ṣata (a false form). The ar̥ṣata of our text is plainly nothing but a corruption; and part of the mss. (including our P.M.W.I.) have instead ariṣata [or ariṣata; K. riṣatu].

3. He who first attained (ā-sad) the slope [of heaven], spying out the road for many, who is master of these bipeds, who of the quadrupeds—to that Yama, to death, be homage.

With the former half-verse is to be compared RV. x. 14. 1 a, b: pareyivāṅsam pravāto mahīr ānu b. p. anuṣaspaçāṅdām (which is AV. xviii. 1. 49 a, b); d is the last pāda also of RV. x. 165. 4 (of which a, b are found here in 29. 1); c is nearly equal to RV. x. 121. 3 c (our iv. 2. 1 c; xiii. 3. 24 c). Ppp. follows RV. in c in putting īçe before asya (reading īçay asya). Our pada-text accents asyá: īçe; in RV. also asyá is accented. The verse lacks two syllables of being a full jagatī. [Pischel discusses the verse, Ved. Stud. ii. 73; cf. 66.] [Ppp. has pravatāsasāda.]

29. Against birds of ill omen.

[Bhṛgu.—yāmyam uta nāir̥ṣtam. bārhatam: 1, 2. virāṅnāmagāyatṛī; 3. 3-av. 7-p. virāḍaṣṭī.]

Not found in Pāipp. Used by Kāuç. (46. 7) with the two preceding hymns.

Translated: Florenz, 287 or 39; Griffith, i. 260; Bloomfield, 166, 475.

1. Them yonder let the winged missile come upon; what the owl utters, [be] that to no purpose, or that the dove makes its track (padá) at the fire.

The second and third pādas are RV. x. 165. 4 a, b (we had d in the last verse of the preceding hymn); RV. omits vā in c; its addition damages the meter of the pāda, but the Anukr. overlooks this. [Pādas b, c also occur at MGS. ii. 17. 1 d—cf. under h. 27.]

2. Thy two messengers, O perdition, that come hither, not sent forth or sent forth, to our house—for the dove and owl be this no place.

The comm. reads etāu for etās in a; he renders āpadam by anāçrayabhūtam.

3. May it fly hither in order to non-destruction of heroes; may it settle (ā-sad) here in order to abundance of heroes; turned away, do thou speak away, toward a distant stretch (? samvāt); so that in Yama's house they may look upon thee [as] sapless, may look upon [thee as] empty (ābhūka).

The sense would favor the accent avāirahatya in a; and avīrahatyāyāi, which the comm. reads, would be a further improvement. The comm. also has paḥadyāt at end of a, and, for c, parām eva parāvatom. He explains ābhūkam by āgatavantam. At the end of e, gr̥hé ought, of course, to be gr̥hè; but most of the mss. (all of ours that are noted) have gr̥hé, and SPP. also has admitted it into his text. [As to Yama's house, cf. Hillebrandt, Ved. Mythol., i. 512. For cākaçān, see Gram. § 1008 b.]

30. To the çamī plant: for benefit to the hair.

[Uparibabhrava. — çamyam. jāgatam: 2. triṣṭubh; 3. 4-p. kakummaty anuṣṭubh.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix. Verse 1 is wholly unconnected in meaning with the others, nor do these clearly belong together. Used by Kāuç. (66. 15) in the savayajñas, at a sava called pāunaḥçila (pāunasira, comm.); and vs. 2 (2 and 3, comm.) in a remedial rite (31. 1).

Translated: Ludwig, p. 512; Florenz, 288 or 40; Griffith, i. 261. — See also Bergaigne-Henry, Manuel, p. 151.

1. This barley, combined with honey, the gods plowed much on the Sarasvatī, in behalf of Manu (?); Indra, of a hundred abilities, was furrow-master; the liberal (? sudānu) Maruts were the plowmen.

Ppp. has this verse only by citation of its pratīka, as if it had occurred earlier; but it has not been found elsewhere in the text. It occurs also in TB. (ii. 4. 87; exactly repeated in ĀpÇS. vi. 30. 20; PGS. iii. 1. 6), MB. ii. 1. 16, and K. (xiii. 15). The TB. version begins with etām u tyām mādāh- (so MB. also), and it gives in b sārasvatyās and manāv: cf. manāv adhi, RV. viii. 61. 2; ix. 63. 8; 65. 16; and the translation follows this reading; MB. has vanāva carkṛdhi. The comm., too, though he reads manāv, explains it by manusyajātāu. In a, he has saṃjītam (for saṃyutam). He explains acarṅṅus by kṛtavantas, as if it came from root kṛ! [SPP. reads manāv, without note of variant.]

2. The intoxication that is thine, with loosened hair, with disheveled hair, wherewith thou makest a man to be laughed at — far from thee do I wrench [out] other woods; do thou, O çamī, grow up with a hundred twigs.

Even the lines of this verse seem unrelated. Ppp. has, in a, mado vikeço yo vikeço; and its c, d are entirely different: bhrūnaghno varivānā janītvān tasya te prajayas suvāmi keçam. SPP. reads çatāvālçā in d, with a part of the mss. (including our P.M.K.Kp.). The comm. explains vṛkṣi by vṛççāmī; but its connection and form, in the obscurity of the verse, are doubtful. [W. Foy discusses root vṛj, KZ. xxxiv. 241 ff., and this vs. at p. 244.] R. writes: "The fruit of the çamī, the pod or kernels, is regarded (Caraka, p. 182, l. 6) as injurious to the hair; and from the designation keçamathani in Rājan. 8. 33 is to be inferred that it makes the hair fall out. But nothing is said of an intoxicating effect. To the two trees usually identified with çamī, Prosopis spicigera and Mimosa suma, belongs neither the one nor the other effect. Nor is either 'of great leaves.'" [The Dhanvantariya Nighaṅṭu, p. 188 of the Poona ed., also speaks of çamī as keçahantrī and of its fruit as keçanāçana.]

3. O thou of great leaves, blessed one, rain-increased, righteous! as a mother to her sons, be thou gracious to the hair, O çamī.

It is possible to read sixteen syllables out of the second half-verse (accenting then mṛdā), but the description of the Anukr. implies 8+8: 8+6=30 syllables [as does also the position of the avasāna-mark, which is put after mṛda]. Ppp. eases the situation by inserting nas before çamī in d; it also reads ūrdhvasvapne (for varṣavṛddhe) in b.

31. At rising of the sun (or moon).

[Uparibabhrava. — gavyam. gāyatram.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix., as in RV. (x. 189. 1-3), SV. (ii. 726-8),* VS. (iii. 6-8), TS. (i. 5. 3¹), K. (vii. 13), MS. (i. 6. 1). Used by Kāuṣ. (66. 14) in the savayajñas, with a spotted cow as sava. And by Vāit. in the agnyādheya ceremony (6. 3), as the sacrificer approaches the āhavanīya fire; and again in the sattra (33. 28), spoken by the Brahman-priest to the hotar, after the mānasastotra. * [Also in i. 631-3 = Nāigeya-çākhā v. 46-8.]

Translated: as RV. hymn, by Max Müller, ZDMG. ix. (1855), p. XI; Geldner, Siebenzig Lieder des RV., 1875, p. 57; Ludwig, number 160; Grassmann, ii. 433; and as AV. hymn, by Florenz, 289 or 41; Griffith, i. 262.

1. Hither hath stridden this spotted steer, hath sat upon his mother in the east, and going forward to his father, the heaven (svār).

All the texts agree in this verse, except that TS. has āsanat and phānah in b, while Ppp. has prayat in c. It seems to be a description of the rising of a heavenly body, — the comm. and the translators say, the sun; but the epithet "spotted," and the number thirty in the third verse point rather to the moon. The "mother" is of course the earth, upon which it seems to rest a moment.

2. He moves between the shining spaces, from the breath of this outbreathing [universe]; the bull (mahiṣā) hath looked forth unto the heaven (svār).

RV. (with which, through the whole hymn, SV. and VS. entirely agree) reads (as does TS.) apānati (p. apa-anati) at end of b; in c, it reads divam for svāh. TS. inverts the order of a and b, and has the same c as our text; on the other hand, MS. has our b, but arṇavé (for rocanā) in a, and a wholly peculiar c: prāti vām sūro dhabhīh. Ppp. has (nearly as TS.), for a, b, yasya prānād apānaty antaṣ carati rocanah; and divam (with RV.) at the end. The sense of the verse is very obscure, made so by the unintelligible second pāda; Roth suggests apānati [as 3d singular], with rocanā "stars" as subject: "They die at his breath": but this teems with difficulties. [In Geldner's note, anati was taken as 3d plural.] Our P.M.I.R.T.K., and all SPP's authorities, separate rocanā asyā in samhitā (the pada-text reading -nā), and SPP. has accordingly, properly enough, adopted it in his text: see the note to Prāt. iii. 34. [Ppp. also has vyākhyān.]

3. Thirty domains (dhāman) he rules over; voice, the bird, hath set up, to meet the day with the lights of morning.

This translation is one of despair, and of no value, like the others that are given of the verse. Taken by itself, the first pāda is well enough, and seems most naturally (as noted above) to refer to the thirty days of the moon's synodical revolution, or spaces of the sky traversed by it in them; to understand it of the thirty divisions of the day (muhūrta) looks like an anachronism; and thirty gods (Ludwig) is wholly senseless. [Roth observes: Ushas, in returning to her point of departure, traverses thirty *yojana*s (RV. i. 123. 8): the path of the light around the world thus appears to be divided into thirty stages.] The variety of reading of the texts indicates, as in many other like cases, the perplexity of the text-makers. RV. (with SV.VS.) has, for b, vāk patamgāya dhīyate; TS. and MS. have patamgāya, but TS. follows it with çīçriye, and MS. with hūyate. Ppp. reads -gāya su çriyat. In c, RV. (etc.) reads āha, particle, for āhas, and the comm. does the same; TS. gives, for the whole pāda, prāty asya vaha dyūbbhīḥ; while MS. substitutes our 2 c, in its RV. version, having given its wholly independent version of this as 2 c (see above); Ppp. has at end divi. In a, MS. reads triṅçāddhāmā, as compound; the other texts (and three of SPP's authorities) have triṅçād dhāma (the pāda-reading is dhāma). Both TS. and MS., it may be added, put vs. 3 before 2.

With this hymn ends the third anuvāka, of 11 hymns and 33 verses; the extracted item of Anukr. is simply trīya (see end of the next anuvāka).

32. Against demons.

[1, 2. Cātana; 3. Atharvan. — agnidāvatam. trīṣṭubham: 2. prastārāpāṅkti.]

The first two verses found also in Pāipp. xix.* Kāuç. has the hymn (or vss. 1, 2) in a remedial rite against demons (31.3); the fire is circumambulated three times, and a cake is offered; and it is reckoned (note to 8.25) to the cātana gaṇa. Verse 3 is by itself reckoned (note to 16.8) to the abhaya gaṇa, and also (note to 25.36) to the svastyayana gaṇa. * [Ppp. then has a third verse, whose a = vi. 40. 1 a, and whose b is corrupt. Roth's note seems incomplete.]

Translated: Florenz, 291 or 43; Griffith, i. 262; Bloomfield, 36, 475.

1. Within the flame, pray, make ye this sorcerer-destroying libation with ghee; from afar, O Agni, do thou burn against the demons; mayest thou not be hot toward our houses.

Our mss. (so far as noted) and nearly all SPP's, accent juhutā in a; but his text, as well as ours, emends to juhuiā. The comm. understands at the beginning antar dāve as two separate words; and that is a preferable, and probably the true, reading. The gen. in ḍ is peculiar; we should expect with it titapāli, in impers. sense: 'may there be no sickness befalling our houses.' Ppp. reads ghṛtam naḥ at end of b; and, for ḍ, mā smākaṁ vasū pa titipanthā. The verse (10+10: 12+11=43) is ill-defined as a mere trīṣṭubh.

2. Rudra hath crushed (çr) your necks, O piçācās; let him crush in (api-çr) your ribs, O sorcerers; the plant of universal power hath made you go to Yama.

A few of SPP's authorities (also the Anukr., in citing the verse) read açarit in a. Some of our mss. accent piçācāḥ at end of a (P.M.I.p.m.), and yātudhānāḥ (P.M.I.); all the pāda-mss. absurdly have viçvātaḥoviryāḥ at end of c. Ppp. has, for a, b, çarvo vo grīvāy açarīṣ piçācā vo pa çṛṇāty agniḥ; and in ḍ it gives mṛtyunā for yamena. [The "verbal forms with suspicious ai" in the AV. (çarāis etc., asaparyāit: cf. Gram. §§ 555 c, 904 b, 1068 a) have been treated by Bloomfield, ZDMG. xlviii. 574 ff., and Böhrtlingk, ibidem, liv. 510 ff. Cf. also note to xviii. 3. 40.]

3. Fearlessness, O Mitra-and-Varuṇa, be ours here; drive ye backward the devourers with your gleam; let them not find a knower, nor a foundation (pratiṣṭhā); mutually destroying one another let them go unto death.

The verse occurs also in AGS. (iii. 10. 11), which has, in a, b, -nā mahyam astu arcīṣā çatrūn dahatam pratītya; in c, vindantu; in ḍ, bhindānās. The latter half-verse is found again as viii. 8. 21 c, ḍ. Pāda a has a redundant syllable unheeded by the Anukr.

33. Praise to Indra.

[Jāṭikāyana.—indrādāivatam. gāyatram : 2. anuṣṭubh.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix., and in AA. (v. 2. 1) and ÇÇS. (xviii. 3. 2); and the first verse, in the Nāigeya supplement to SV. i. (i. 3; or SV. i. 588). Kāuç. quotes, in the section relating to house-building, marking cattle, etc., with the simple direction ity āyojanānām apyayaḥ (23. 17); the schol. and the comm. declare it to relate to the rite for success in plowing (kṛṣīkarman); the details of the process described by them have nothing to do with the expressions of the Atharvan text. Again, it appears in a kāmya ceremony (59. 18), with vii. 2, 6, etc. (by a sarvaphalakāma, comm.); and the comm. holds it to be intended (106. 1, 8) in the portent-rite for the collision of plows. It is further reckoned (note to 19. 1) to the puṣṭika mantras.

Translated : Florenz, 293 or 45; Griffith, i. 263.

1. Of whom the welkin (rājas) here [is] the allies, [who] thrusts (?) people, the wood, the heaven — great [is] Indra's gladness.

This is a mechanical version, not pretending to sense; the verse appears to be too corrupt for anything else. The other texts bring plenty of variants, but no real improvements of reading. All agree in c; also in yāsye 'dām at the beginning of a; between, SV. has ārājo yūjas tuje jāne vānam svāḥ; AA. has ārājas tūjo yūjo vānam sāhaḥ; ÇÇS. has oja ārujas tujo yujo balam sāhaḥ. Ppp. reads tute janam svāḥ, and, for the rest of 1 and 2, indrasya nāgnikeçavaḥ vṛṣānam dhr̥ṣadaç çavaḥ purā yathā dh̥ṣṭināḥ indraç ca rantyam mahat. The comm. explains tuje by tojanāya çatrūnām hiṁsanāya, takes ā yūjas as a verb = saṁnuaddham karoti, vānam as vananīyam, svāḥ as suṣṭhu prāptavyam, etc.: all the purest nonsense.

2. [He is] not to be dared against; [his] might, dared, dares daring against [others]; as, of old, his fame [was] unwavering, Indra's might [is] not to be dared against.

The (provisional) translation given implies emendation of text, in a, d, to ādhr̥ṣe, in b, to dhr̥ṣānām dhr̥ṣitām, and, in c, to 'vyathī. AA's version of the whole is nā "dhr̥ṣa ā dadharṣa dādhr̥ṣānām dhr̥ṣitām çavaḥ: purā yād im ātivyāthir indrasya dhr̥ṣitām sāhaḥ. [Cf. iv. 21. 3 and note, and Geldner, Ved. Stud. ii. 29.] ÇÇS. has nothing corresponding to the second half-line; for the first, it reads anādhr̥ṣtam vipanyayā nā "dhr̥ṣa ādadharsayā: dhr̥ṣānam dhr̥ṣitām çavaḥ. The reading of Ppp. was given under vs. 1. The comm. has vyathī in c.

3. Let him give us that wide wealth, of reddish (piçāṅga-) aspect; Indra [is] most powerful lord among the people.

Ppp., also the comm., and one of our MSS. (H.) read dadhātu in a, and AA. and ÇÇS. and the comm. have tām for tām; Ppp. gives no instead; instead of urām in b, ÇÇS. has purū, and AA. repeats rayīm. In c, both AA. and ÇÇS. read tavastamas; the comm., tuvitamas. Our tuviṣṭamas is vouched for by two rules of the Prātiçākhyā, iii. 96 and iv. 59. Further, the comm. in b reads -sadr̥çam. That the verse is uṣṇīh and not gāyatṛī appears not to be noted in the Anukr. [ÇÇS. omits ā at the end.]

34. Praise and prayer to Agni.

[Cātana. — [pañcarcam.] agnidāivatam. gāyatram.]

Only vss. 1, 3, 4 found in Pāipp. xix. It is also a RV. hymn, x. 187 (with exchange of place between vss. 2 and 3); in other texts is found only the last verse. As in the case of certain previous hymns with a refrain, one may conjecture that, with omission of the refrain, and combination of the remaining parts of verses, it was made into or viewed as three verses; but the case is a much less probable one than those we have had above. [Cf. Oldenberg, Die Hymnen des RV., i. 245.] The hymn is employed by Kāuṣ. (31. 4), with vii. 114. 2, in a remedial rite against demons; and it is added (note to 8. 25) to the cātana gaṇa.

Translated: by the RV. translators; and Florenz, 294 or 46; Griffith, i. 263.

1. Send thou forth the voice for Agni, bull of people (kṣīti): may he pass us over our haters.

2. He who burns down the demons, Agni, with sharp heat (ṣocis): may he etc. etc.

RV. has vṛṣā ṣukrēṇa at beginning of b.

3. He who from distant distance shines over across the wastes: may he etc. etc.

Ppp. reads, for c, tiro viṣvā 'dhirocate.

4. Who looks forth upon and beholds together all beings: may he etc. etc.

Ppp. reads nipaṣyati in a.

5. Who, the bright Agni, was born on the further shore of this firmament (rājas): may he etc. etc.

Nearly all our mss. (all save O.D.K.), and the great majority of SPP's, read ajāyata, without accent, at end of b; both editions give āj. RV. has asya, unaccented, in a. The verse is also found in TS. (iv. 2. 5²), TB. (iii. 7. 8¹), and MS. (ii. 7. 12*), all beginning a with yāt and c with tāt, and having, instead of ṣukrō agnir, ṣukrām jyōtir (but MS. mahāṣ citrām jyōtir); all accent ājāyata, and TB.MS. accent asyā with our text. * [Also at iii. 2. 4, with the same reading, save pariṣad.]

35. Prayer to Agni Vāiṣvānara.

[Kāuṣika. — vāiṣvānaradāivatam. gāyatram.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix., and in the Ṙrāuta-Sūtras of Aṣvalāyana (viii. 11. 4) and Ṙāṅkhāyana (x. 9. 17); the first verse, further, in VS. and MS. This hymn and the one following are called by Kāuṣ. (31. 5) vāiṣvānarīya, and used in a general remedial rite; and verse 35. 2 is reckoned (note to 32. 27) to the aṅholiṅga gaṇa. In Vāit., hymn 35 appears alone, in the agnicayana (29. 5), with i. 21 and vii. 84, accompanying the covering of the first courses of bricks.

Translated: Florenz, 295 or 47; Griffith, i. 264.

1. Let Vāiṣvānara, for our aid, come forth hither from the distance — Agni, unto our good praises.

AÇS. has this verse precisely as in our text, and so has VS. at xviii. 72 [and ÇÇS. has the pratīka, a], but VS. xxvi. 8 has again the first two pādas, with agnir ukthēna vāhasā (see under the next verse) for third; and MS. iii. 16. 4 has the latter version, with the further variant of ūtyā prā (i.e., doubtless, ūtyā ā prā) at the end of a. Ppp. has the bad reading ūtāyā pra; it further exchanges the third pādas of 1 and 2, and reads as 2 c upe mām susṭutiṁ mama.

2. Vāiṣvānara, our ally (sajñs), hath come unto this our offering — Agni, at our songs, in our distresses.

The two Sūtras have for c agnir ukthēna vāhasā (found in VS.MS. in combination with 1 a, b); Ppp., as also noticed above, has for c our 1 c. The translation given implies that ānhasu (which is read by all the mss. without exception, and is quoted so in the commentary to Prāt. iv. 32) is the same with the usual ānhaṣu; no stem ānhan is found anywhere else; the comm. foolishly explains it by abhigantavyesu, adj. to uktheṣu. The translation, moreover, represents the pada-text reading of āgamat in a as ā: agamat; but it seems altogether likely that the true meaning is ā: gamat 'may he come.'

3. May Vāiṣvānara shape the praise and song of the Aṅgirasas; may he extend to them brightness (dyumnā) [and] heaven (svār).

Of the two Sūtras, ÇÇS. supports our cākṣpat (comm. cakṣpat) in sense by reading jījanat; AÇS. has the better reading cākanat 'take pleasure in.' AÇS. also has aṅgīrobhyas in a (both preserve the a of aṅg); Ppp. has no aṅgīrobhis. In b, Ppp. and ÇÇS. have yajñam for uktham; AÇS. has stoma for -mam, and in c omits ā (if it is not a misprint); Ppp. has pra instead of āi'ṣu.

36. In praise of Agni.

[Atharvan (svastyayanakāmaḥ). — āgneyam. gāyatram.]

Found also, imperfect, in Pāipp. xix., and in other texts, as SV. (ii. 1058–60), etc., mentioned under the several verses. For the use of the hymn with its predecessor by Kāuṣ. (31. 5), see under the latter.

Translated: Florenz, 296 or 48; Griffith, i. 264.

1. To Vāiṣvānara, the righteous, lord of right, of light, we pray for unfailing heat (gharmā).

The Sāman version, as also that in VS. (xxvi. 6), in MS. (iv. 11. 1), and AÇS. (viii. 10. 3), is precisely accordant with ours; that in ÇÇS. (iii. 3. 5) has bhānum instead of gharmām in c.

2. He shaped himself unto all things; he, the controlling one, sends out the seasons, drawing out the vigor (vāyas) of the sacrifice.

The verse is corrupt in Ppp., but the second and third pādas in it exchange places, as they do in the SV. version. SV. also reads, for a, yā idām pratīpaprathé, and has svār for vāyas in c; it and all the other versions read ṛtūn; our ṛtūn is quoted in Prāt. ii. 29, and in the comment to i. 68. The comm. reads in a viṣvāḥ and cakṣpe, and some of our authorities (P.I.K.), with the great majority of SPP's, also have viṣvāḥ; but SPP. gives viçvā in his text, as we have done. AÇS. (viii. 9. 7) and ÇÇS. (x. 11. 9) read instead viçvam, and cāklpat. TB. (ii. 4: 19-10) makes an anuṣṭubh verse of our 3 b, c and 2 a, b; it reads, for our 2 a, sá idám prāti paprathe.

3. Agni, in distant domains, the desire of what is and is to be, bears rule as the one universal ruler.

Or, it may be (so Florenz), 'Agni, as Kāma, rules over what has been and is to be,' etc.; the comm. explains kāmas as kāmayitā kāmaprado vā. SV. (also VS. xii. 117) reads priyēsu for pāreṣu in a; AÇS. (viii. 10. 3) has instead pratneṣu. ÇÇS. (iii. 5. 8) has our text without variant; also TB. (see above), in b, c. [Cf. iii. 21. 4 and Muir, v. 403.]

37. Against curses.

[Atharvan (svastyayanakāmah).—cāndramasam. ānuṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. xx. Quoted by Kāuç. (48. 23) in a witchcraft ceremony (against the effect of an opponent's sorcery, comm.), with giving a pale lump (piṇḍam pāṇḍum: the comm. explains it as a lump of white dirt) to a dog; and vs. 3 is, doubtless correctly, regarded by the comm. as intended at 48. 37 (the pratīka would equally designate vii. 59), with the laying on of fuel from a tree struck by lightning. The hymn is further reckoned (note to 25. 36) to the svastyayana gaṇa.

Translated: Florenz, 297 or 49; Grill, 25, 161; Griffith, i. 264; Bloomfield, 93, 475.

1. Hither hath come forth, having harnessed his chariot, the thousand-eyed curse, seeking after my curser, as a wolf the house of a sheep-owner.

Ppp. has, in a, abhi (which is better) for upa; in c, yāti for mama; and, in d, it combines vrkai va—which contraction the Anukr. appears to ratify. Yuktāvāya would fill out b more acceptably.

2. Avoid us, O curse, as a burning fire a pond; smite our curser here, as the bolt from heaven a tree.

The distinction of hr and hra in manuscripts is so slight that some of our mss. might be viewed as reading hrdām in b, and SPP. estimates most of his authorities as giving it (and the comm. idam), though he also accepts hradām in his text. Ppp. reads iva in b, and tvam for nas in c, and divyā for divās in d.

3. Whoever shall curse us not cursing, and whoever shall curse us cursing, him, withered (?), I cast forth for death, as a bone (??) for a dog.

The first half-verse is repeated below, as vii. 59. 1 a, b, with a different second half; it is also found, with still another ending, in TB. (iii. 7. 6²³), TA. (ii. 5. 2¹¹), and Āp. (iv. 15. 1): these three put çāpatas in b next before çāpāt. The meaning of both peṣtram (for which cf. iv. 12. 2) and āvakṣāmam in c is extremely doubtful, and the translation of the line must be regarded as only tentative. [Bloomfield takes āva-kṣāmam as 'down upon the ground': on the score of form and accent (Gram. § 1313 b, 1310), this is admissible; but I can hardly cite an example of āva thus used, except Pāṇini's ava-lomam.] The comm. reads peṣtam, explaining it by piṣṭamayāni khādyaṃ; āvakṣāmam is glossed with avadagdhām. Ppp. gives the verse the same second half as our vii. 59. 1. The Anukr. appears to ratify the contraction -tram va in c. [Pāda d = v. 8. 5 d. Compare also iv. 36. 2 a, b.]

38. For brilliance.

[Atharvan (varcaskāmah).—caturṛcam. bṛhaspatidevatyam uta tvīsidevatyam. trāiṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. ii. (in the order 1, 2, 4, 3); and in TB. ii. 7. 7¹⁻² (in the order 1, 4, 2, 3) and K. xxxvi. 15 (in the order 3, 2, 1, 4). This hymn and its successor are employed together by Kāuṣ. (13. 3-6) in a rite for glory, with the navel-hairs of sundry creatures [cf. Weber, Rājasūya, p. 99, n. 3], and splinters of ten kinds of trees; and they are reckoned to both varcasya gaṇas (notes to 12. 10 and 13. 1). They are further included [139. 15] with several others (i. 30; iv. 30, etc.) in a rite (called utsarjana, comm.) in the ceremony of entering on Vedic study.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 240; Florenz, 297 or 49; Griffith, i. 265; Bloomfield, 116, 477.

1. What brilliancy (tvīṣi) is in lion, in tiger, and what in adder, in fire, in the Brāhman, what in the sun: the fortunate goddess that gave birth to Indra—let her come to us, in union with splendor.

Ppp. reads vavardha for jajāna in c, and sā ā nāi 'tu in d. TB. has in the refrain ā 'gan (or ā gan) for āt 'tu.

2. What brilliancy is in elephant, in leopard, what in gold, in waters, in kine, what in men (pūruṣa): the fortunate goddess etc. etc.

Ppp. and TB. agree in reading acveṣu pūruṣeṣu goṣu in b.

3. In chariot, in dice, in the bull's strength (vāja), in wind, in rain-god, in Varuṇa's vehemence (śūṣma): the fortunate goddess etc. etc.

Ppp. inverts the order of vāte and parjanya in b; TB. [and comm.] read vṛṣabhāsya in a.

4. In a noble (vājanya), in the drum, in the drawn [arrow], in the horse's vigor, in man's roar (?): the fortunate goddess etc. etc.

Ppp. and TB. agree in prefixing yā at the beginning of the verse, and TB. has krāndye for vāje in b, while Ppp. has, for b, tvīṣir acve māyām stanayitna goṣu yā. Māyū is not properly used of pūruṣa 'man,' and the expression is obscure and doubtful. The comm. takes āyatāyām as = ātādyamānāyām and qualifying dundubhāū! [For the meaning here assigned to it, see note to vi. 65. 1.] In this hymn, again, it appears as if the equivalence to three verses were recognized, the refrain of vss. 2, 3 being left out of account. But the Anukr. acknowledges four verses, and each of the four has its refrain in TB.

39. For glory.

[Atharvan (varcaskāmah).—bṛhaspatidevatyam. 1. jagatī; 2. trīṣṭubh; 3. anuṣṭubh.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix. Used by Kāuṣ. always in connection with hymn 38: see under that hymn.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 240; Florenz, 299 or 51; Griffith, i. 265; Bloomfield, 117, 478.

1. [As] glory (yācas) let [my] oblation increase, quickened by Indra, of thousand-fold might; well-brought, made with power; me, proceeding mightily onward unto long sight, [me] with my oblation, do thou increase unto chiefhood.

Ppp. has, for b, sahasratṛṣṭis sukṛtam sahasvat; in c, jīvase (which is better) for cakeṣase; in d, it omits mā, which improves the meter. The comm. has svvṛtam in b. The "jagatī" (11+12: 12+13=48) is an irregular one. [Cf. RV. v. 44. 3, where we have the intensive of ṣṛ with anu-pra.]

2. Unto our glorious Indra, rich in glory, would we, rendering homage, with glories pay worship; do thou bestow on us royalty quickened by Indra; in thy bestowal here may we be glorious.

This verse is found in Ppp. in a different connection, further on in the same book, and with quite different readings: vayam for nas in a; for b, yaçasvino haviṣāi 'nanī vidhema; in c, dadhad for rāsva; for d, tasya rātre adhiṣvāke syāma.

3. Glorious was Indra, glorious was Agni, glorious was Soma born; glorious, of all existence am I most glorious.

Ppp. combines yaçā 'gnir in a. This verse is repeated below, as 58. 3.

40. For freedom from fear.

[Atharvan (? : 1-2. abhayakāmaḥ; 3. svastyayanakāmaḥ). — 1-2. mantroktadevatye. jagatyāu. 3. āindrī. anuṣṭubh.]

The first two verses are found also in Pāipp. i., much altered. Used, according to Kāuṣ. (59. 26), by one who desires absence of danger, with vi. 48, with worship or offering to the seven seers in as many directions; and Keçava and the comm. regard it as further intended by 16. 8, in a rite for courage in an army; vss. 1, 2 are reckoned (note to 16. 8) to the abhaya gaṇa, and vs. 3 (note to 25. 36) to the svastyayana gaṇa; the comm. notes its application according to 139. 7 in the rite for one beginning Vedic study.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 373, also 242; Florenz, 300 or 52; Griffith, i. 266.

1. Let fearlessness, O heaven-and-earth, be here for us; let Soma, Savitar, make us fearlessness; be the wide atmosphere fearlessness for us; and by the oblation of the seven seers be there fearlessness for us.

In d, saptarṣiṇām is read by one or two mss. Ppp. has only the first pāda of this verse. Neither vs. 1 nor vs. 2 is a good jagatī; easy emendations would make both good trīṣṭubh.

2. For this village [let] the four directions — let Savitar make for us sustenance, well-being, welfare; let Indra make for us freedom from foes, fearlessness; let the fury of kings fall on (abhi-yā) elsewhere.

Ppp. rectifies the redundancy of b by reading subhūtam savitā dadhātu; in c, it reads açatrum and omits nas; for d, it has madhye ca viṣām sukṛte syāma. The comm. reads açatrus in c.

3. Freedom from enemies for us below, freedom from enemies for us above; O Indra, make freedom from enemies for us behind, freedom from enemies in front.

Or, these four directions admit of being understood (so the comm.) as from the south, from the north, from the west, in the east. The verse is found also in the Kāṇva version of the Vājasaneyi-Samhitā (iii. II. 6), with me adharāḡ in a, uddh kṛdhi in b, and paçcān me in c; further, in K. (xxxvii. 10).

41. To various divinities.

[Brahman.—bahudāivatam uta cāndramasam. ānuṣṭubham : 1. bhurij ; 3. triṣṭubh.]

Not found in Pāipp., nor, so far as observed, in any other text. Used by Kāuṣ. (54. 11), with ii. 15, in the godāna ceremony, as the youth is made to eat a properly cooked dish of big rice (mahāvrihi).

Translated : Florenz, 301 or 53 ; Griffith, i. 266.

1. To mind, to thought, to device (dhī), to design, and to intention, to opinion (matī), to instruction (ṣrutā), to sight, would we pay worship with oblation.

The meter in b would be rectified by reading ḍkūtyāi. [In his note to i. 1. 1, W. took ṣruta here as 'sense of hearing.']

2. To expiration, to perspiration (vyānā), to breath the much nourishing, to Sarasvatī the wide extending, would we pay worship with oblation.

3. Let not the seers who are of the gods leave us, who are self (tanū)-protecting, self-born of our self ; O immortal ones, attach yourselves to us mortals ; grant life-time (āyus) in order to our further living.

With the first line is to be compared AB. ii. 27. 7 : ṛṣayo dāivyāsas tanūpāvānas tanvas tapojāḥ (Florenz). Tanū (lit. 'body') 'self' apparently refers throughout to ourselves. This verse is translated by Muir, OST. v. 296. [Mā hāsiṣur ṛṣayo dātvā naḥ would make good meter.]

The fourth anuvāka ends here, having 10 hymns and 33 verses ; and the old Anukr. says of it and its predecessor together trītyacaturthāu trayastriṅṣakāu (trītya- given above, not here).

42. To remove wrath.

[Bhṛgvañgiras (parasparamcittāikikaraṇaḥ).—manyudevatyam. ānuṣṭubham : 1, 2. bhurij.]

Found also, with considerable variation, in Pāipp. xix. Used by Kāuṣ. (36. 28-30), in the section of rites concerning women, for the appeasement of anger : with vs. 1, one takes a stone on seeing the angry person ; with vs. 2 one sets it down toward the same ; with vs. 3 one spits upon it (abhinīṣṭhīvati : the text would suggest rather abhitīṣṭhati). The hymn is reckoned also (note to 26. 1) to the takmanāçana gaṇa. In Vāit. (12. 13) it is employed in the agnīṣṭoma in case of an outbreak of anger.

Translated : Ludwig, p. 515 ; Florenz, 302 or 54 ; Grill, 29, 162 ; Griffith, i. 267 ; Bloomfield, 136, 479.

1. As the string from the bow, do I relax (ava-tan) fury from thy heart, that, becoming like-minded, we (two) may hold together (sac) like friends.

The Ppp. version is in many points different : ava jyām iva dhanvinaç çuṣmanī tanomi te hṛdaḥ : adhā sa manasāu bhūtvā sakhike va sacāvake. The first half-verse occurs [at MP. ii. 22. , with hṛdas transferred to the beginning of b ;] also in HGS. (i. 15. 3), with dhanvinaç (like Ppp.), and with hṛdas transferred [as in MP.], and with dyām for jyām. In this verse and the next, the Anukr. does not allow the abbreviation 'va after sakhāyāu.

2. We (two) will hold together like friends ; I relax thy fury ; we cast in thy fury under a stone that is heavy.

Perhaps better 'thy fury that is heavy'; but the version of Ppp. [with the comm.] decidedly supports the translation as given: açmanā manyuṁ guruṇā 'pi nī dadhmasi. Ppp's version of a, b is this: vi te manyuṁ nayāmasi [cf. MP. ii. 22. 2] sakhike 'va sacāvahāi.

3. I trample upon (abhi-sthā) thy fury, with heel and with front foot, that thou mayest speak not uncontrolled, mayest come unto my intent.

[I do not see why prāpada may not here be rendered by 'toe.'] Ppp. reads, for b, pārṣṇibhyām prapadābhyām; and, for c, d, parā te dasyām vadham parā manyuṁ suvāmi te. [The second half-verse recurs at the end of the next hymn. Pāda d is a stock-phrase: see i. 34. 2; iii. 25. 5; vi. 9. 2; 43. 3.]

43. To assuage wrath.

[(As 42.)—manyuçamanadevatākam. ānuṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix. In Kāuç. (36. 32), the hymn appears, next after hymn 42, in a rite for appeasement of anger, darbha being treated as an amulet (? oṣadhivat).

Translated: Florenz, 303 or 55; Grill, 30, 162; Griffith, i. 267; Bloomfield, 137, 480.

1. This darbhā [is] fury-removing, both for one's own man and for a stranger; and this is called a fury-removing fury-appeaser of fury.

The translation implies the emendation of vimanyukasya in c to -kaç ca (as proposed by Grill, and virtually by Florenz). Ppp. supports the change, reading vimanyako manyuçamano 'stu me; it has vimanyakas also in a.

2. This that is many-rooted, [that] reaches down (ava-sthā) to the sea, the darbhā, arisen out of the earth, is called a fury-appeaser.

Ppp. reads, in b, prithivyām 'in the earth,' instead of samudrām 'to the sea'; end of c, and d, niṣṭhitas sa ce 'stu vimanyakah. The Anukr. takes no notice of the deficiency of a syllable in a.

3. We conduct away the offense (? çarāṇi) of thy jaws, away that of thy mouth, that thou mayest not speak uncontrolled, mayest come unto my intent.

The last half-verse is a repetition of vi. 42. 3 c, d [which see]; it is wanting in Ppp., perhaps as result of a lacuna. Most of the mss. have the false reading mūkhyaṇ in b, but SPP. also emends to -ām, being supported by the comm. The latter explains çarāṇim by hinsāhetubhūtām krodhābhivyāñjikām dhamanim.

44. For cessation of a disease.

[Viçvāmitra.—mantroktadevatyam uta vānaspatyam. ānuṣṭubham: 3. 3-p. mahābṛhatī.]

[Partly prose—vs. 3.] The verses 1, 2, are found also in Pāipp., 1 a, b in iii.; 1 c, d and 2 in xix. Used in Kāuç. (31. 6) in a remedial rite against slander (apavāda; but the text [cf. Bloomfield, p. xlv.] reads apavātā), with help of a self-shed cow-horn properly prepared.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 509; Florenz, 304 or 56; Griffith, i. 268; Bloomfield, 10, 481. — Cf. Bergaigne-Henry, Manuel, p. 151; Zimmer, p. 390.

1. The heaven hath stood; the earth hath stood; all this living world hath stood; the trees have stood, sleeping erect; may this disease of thine stand.

The peculiar epithet ūrdhvasvapna was applied by Ppp. to a tree also in its version of 30. 3, above. [“Stand,” i.e. ‘come to a standstill.’]

2. What hundred remedies are thine, and [what] thousand, assembled — [with them thou art] the most excellent remedy for flux, the best effacer of disease.

Ppp. has yat for yā in a, and sambhṛtāni (for -gatāni) in b; instead of c, it reads *tesām asi tvam uttamam anāsrāva sarogaṇam (= ii. 3. 2 c, d); in d, -ṣṭha. The Ppp. reading, and ii. 3. 2, suggest supplying rather ‘of them’ than ‘with them’ between the half-verses. The comm. understands a, b as addressed to the patient (vyādḥita). * [Intending, presumably, anāsrāvam arogaṇam.]

3. Rudra’s urine art thou, the navel of the immortal (amṛta); viṣānakā (‘horny’) by name art thou, arisen from the root of the Fathers, an effacer of the vātīkṛta.

This prose-stanza is reckoned by the Anukr. as if metrical. Vātīkṛta, like vātīkārā, is too doubtful to render; its derivation from vāta ‘wind’ is extremely unsatisfactory, and Zimmer’s connection of vāta with our “wound” etc. is also questionable; the comm. understands vātī kṛtanūcanī (vātī = āsrāvāsyā rogasya ṣoṣayitrī). The name viṣānakā points to some use of a horn, such as is indicated in the Kāuṣika (svayamsrasta goṣṛṅga ‘a self-shed cow-horn’). [Note that the epithet “deciduous” (svayamsrasta) corroborates the etymology of viṣānā as set forth by W. at iii. 7. 1, note.] The verse (7+6: 8+8+7) does not at all agree with the description of the Anukr.

45. In atonement of offenses.

[Aṅgiras (pracetās) Yamaṣ ca. — duḥsvapnanāṣanaḍevatyam. 1. pathyāpāṅkti; 2. bhurik trīṣṭubh; 3. anuṣṭubh.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix. This hymn and the one next following are used together by Kāuṣ. (46. 9) in a rite against bad dreams; and they are both reckoned (note, ib.) to the duḥsvapnanāṣana gāna.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 443; Florenz, 305 or 57; Griffith, i. 269; Bloomfield, 163, 483.

1. Go far away, O mind-evil! why utterest (ṣaṅs) thou things unuttered? Go away; I desire thee not; do thou frequent (sam-cara) trees, woods; in houses, in kine [is] my mind.

The combination manaspāpa is expressly prescribed by Prāt. ii. 79, and the anomalous conversion of the final of vrkṣān to anusvāra by Prāt. ii. 28. Ppp. has, for a, ape hi manasas pate (which RV. has at the beginning of x. 164. 1), and omits e. The comm. regards manas and pāpa as two independent words in a, and reads ṣaṅsati in b, and vrkṣavanāni in d.

2. If (yāt) by down-utterance, out-utterance, forth-utterance we have offended (upa-?), waking or (yāt) sleeping, let Agni put far away from us all disagreeable ill-deeds.

The verse corresponds to RV. x. 164. 3, which reads in a yād āçāsā niḥçāsā 'bhiçāsā; of these words the first and third have usage elsewhere, and a determinable meaning, 'wish' or 'expectation' and 'imprecation.' The Atharvan substitutes occur only here, and the root ças is not met with combined with either ava, nis (except in the doubtful āniḥçasta, RV. once), or parā; so that it has been necessary to render the words mechanically above. TB. (iii. 7. 124) has a only, with niçāsā (instead of niḥçāsā), which is equally unsupported.* The comm. regards all the words as containing the root ças 'cut,' paraphrasing it by hiṁs 'injure'; upārīma he renders by upārīāh pīdītā bhavema, turning the active into a passive. [Pāda b recurs at vi. 96. 3.] * [TB. has yād āçāsā niçāsā yāt parāçāsā, blending RV. and AV. readings.]

3. If (yāt), O Indra, O Brahmanaspati, we also proceed falsely, let the Āngirasa, forethoughtful, protect us from difficulty, from distress.

The verse is RV. x. 164. 4, which, however, has the better readings abhidrohām for āpi mīçā in b, and dviçatām for duritāt in d. Ppp. reads, for d, dviçatas pātu tebhyaḥ.

It is probably only on account of the occurrence in it of the word svapantas (2 b) that this hymn is in our text put in connection with the one that follows.

46. Against evil dreams.

[Āngiras.—pūrvoktadevatyam uta svāpnam. 1. kakummatī vistārapañktiḥ; 2. 3-av. çakvarī-garbhā 5-p. jagatī; 3. anuṣṭubh.]

The first and third verses are found also in Pāipp. xix.,* but not in connection with the hymn which here precedes. The first two "verses" are pure prose, and their description as metrical gives the Anukr. much trouble, with unsatisfactory result. The hymn is used by Kāuç. (46. 9) with the preceding: see under the latter; further, in the same ceremonies against bad dreams appears (46. 13) a pratīka which might signify either vs. 2 or xvi. 5. 1: the comm. holds that the former is intended (as including vss. 2 and 3). * [Roth reports xix. 57. 1 (= vs. 3 here) as occurring in Pāipp. ii.]

Translated: Ludwig, p. 498; Florenz, 306 or 58; Griffith, i. 269; Bloomfield, 167, 485.

1. Thou who art not alive, not dead, immortal-embryo of the gods art thou, O sleep; Varuṇānī is thy mother, Yama thy father; Araru by name art thou.

Ppp. reads yamaç pītā. The mss. are much at variance as to two points in this verse: whether asi or āsi after -garbhās, and whether ārarus or arārus. As regards the former, they are nearly equally divided; both printed texts give asi, which is doubtless preferable. In the other case, the great majority of authorities have ārarus, which is accordingly adopted in both texts (our Bp.E.T.K. read arārus); but TB. (iii. 2. 94) and MS. (iv. 1. 10), which have a legend about an Asura of this name, accent arāru, and this was probably to have been preferred.

2. We know thy place of birth (janitra), O sleep; thou art son of the gods' sisters (-jāmi), agent of Yama; end-maker art thou; death art thou; so, O sleep, do we comprehend thee here; do thou, O sleep, protect us from evil-dreaming.

This verse is repeated below as xvi. 5. 6. The comm. renders -jāmi by -strī.

3. As a sixteenth, as an eighth, as a [whole] debt they bring together, so do we bring together all evil-dreaming for him who hates us.

'Bring together,' i.e. 'pay off, discharge.' This verse is RV. viii. 47. 17 a-d, where, however, is read saṁ-nāyāmasi also at end of b (instead of -yanti), and āpīyé for āviṣaté in d; it is also found again below, with slight differences, as xix. 57. 1. 'Eighth' is literally 'hoof' (ṣaphā), from the eight hoofs of cattle etc. The sixteenth or eighth is possibly the interest. All the authorities, for once, agree in reading yátha rñám (instead of yátha ṛñám), and it is accordingly received in both published texts.

47. For blessings: at the three daily libations.

[Aṅgīras (?). — āgneyam; 2. vāiṣvadevī; 3. sāudhanvanā. trāiṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix. and in TS. (iii. 1. 9¹⁻²), and KṢS. Not used by Kāuṣ.; appears in Vāit. (21. 7) in the agniṣṭoma, with vi. 48 and ix. 1. 11-13, at the savanas.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 429; Florenz, 308 or 60; Griffith, i. 270.

1. Let Agni at the morning libation (sāvana) protect us, he that belongs to all men (vāiṣvānarā), all-maker, all-wealful; let him, the purifier, set us in property (drāvīṇa); may we be long-lived, provided with draughts.

Ppp. ends b with pathikṛd viṣvakraṣṭiḥ, and TS. has mahinā, KṢS. (ix. 3. 21) mahī-nām, and MS. (i. 3. 36) viṣvakraṣṭis, for viṣvakraṣṭi; all have drāvīṇam (for -ne) in c; and MS. reads prātāḥ sāvanaṭ in a. [As to the morning invocation of Agni, see Bloomfield, JAOS. xvi. 10.] The comm. explains sahābhakṣās by samānasomaphānāḥ putrapāutrā-dībhīḥ sahabhojanā vā.

2. May all the gods, the Maruts, Indra, not leave us at this second libation; long-lived, speaking what is dear to them, may we be in the favor of the gods.

Neither Ppp. nor TS. nor KṢS. (ix. 14. 17) have any variant in this verse.

3. This third libation [is] of the poets (kavi), who rightfully (ṛtēna) sent out the bowl; let those Sāudhanvanas, who have attained heaven, conduct our happy-offering unto what is better.

That is (a), of the Ribhus, one of whose merits, leading to the conferral of immortality upon them, was their service to the ceremonial in connection with the libational bowl, which they made four. [For this the comm. gives ample citations, e.g. RV. i. 161. 2.] Ppp. combines, in c, sāudhanvanā 'mṛtā 'naçānās, and ends the verse with nayātha. TS. has the insignificant variants of sūvar in c, and vāsīyas in d; KṢS. (x. 3. 21) reads trīya-savanam in a, and no 'bhi vasīyo n- in d.

48. To the deities of the three daily libations.

[?]-mantroktarṣidevatyam. āuṣṇīham.]

[Not metrical.] Not found in Pāipp., but occurs in ÇB. (xii. 3. 43-5), TS. iii. 2. 11, PB. i. 3. 8 and 5. 12, 15, GB. (i. 5. 12-14), ÇÇS. (vi. 8. 10-12), and KÇS. (xiii. 1. 11). Used by Kāuṣ. (56. 4), in the upanayana ceremony, as the teacher gives and the pupil accepts a staff; and again (59. 26) in the kāmya rites, with vi. 40: see the latter; [and again (59. 27), alone, with delivering a staff to one consecrated or to a Vedic student;] and Keç. [schol. to 16. 8] regards the hymn as going with hymn 40 in the battle incantations. In Vāit. it is employed with the preceding hymn (see the latter), and also (17. 10) at an earlier part of the agniṣṭoma, with the savanas [in the verse-order 1, 3, 2].

Translated: Florenz, 309 or 61; Griffith, i. 271. — Treated at length by Bloomfield, JAOS. xvi. 3 ff., 23; or Festgruss an Roth, p. 149 ff. Cf. also JAOS. xix., 2d half, p. 11.

1. A falcon art thou, with gāyatrī for meter; I take hold after thee; carry me along to welfare at the close (udṛc) of this offering: hail!

All the other texts read sām pāraya for sām vaha, and ÇB.TS.PB.GB.KÇS. end there; ÇÇS. adds our further refrain, but with udṛcam (for -ci), and omitting svāhā; ÇÇS. also adds patvā after asi at the beginning, in all the three verses. The comm. regards the sacrifice itself as addressed in each verse. He says of udṛci: uttamā vasānavartiny ṛg udṛk. The metrical definitions of the Anukr. are so far correct that the verses can be read as 28 syllables.

2. A Ribhu art thou, with jāgat for meter; I take hold etc. etc.

All the other texts put this verse last, as it properly belongs. ÇB.TS.GB. end all three verses in the same way; ÇÇS. omits the refrain after the first verse, but states that it is the same in the others; KÇS. ends also with -chandās in the second and third verses. Instead of rbhūr asi, TS. has sāghā 'si (and jāgatīchandās), GB. and PB. have svaro 'si gayo 'si, and ÇÇS. has sakhā 'si patvā.

3. A bull art thou, with triṣṭubh for meter; I take hold etc. etc.

At the beginning of this verse the authorities vary greatly: ÇB.TS.KÇS. have suparṇḍ 'si; ÇÇS. the same, with patvā added (as in the other verses); PB. vṛṣako 'si; GB. samrād asi. The comm. identifies the "bull" with Indra.

49. To Agni etc.

[Gārgya.—āgneyam. 1. anuṣṭubh; 2-3. jāgatī (3. virāj).]

Found also in Pāipp. xix. Further, in K. (xxxv. 14-15), and the first two verses in ĀpÇS. xiv. 29. 3, the first in TA. (vi. 10. 1) and JB. (ii. 218), the last in RV. (x. 94. 5); they seem to be three unconnected verses. Their very obscure and questionable content is explained by the comm. as accompanying and referring to the fire that consumes a deceased teacher; the hymn is to be spoken by a pupil: this the Kāuṣika prescribes (46. 14). In ĀpÇS., the two verses are two out of six with which a consecrated person is to accompany six oblations offered in case he spills his seed. Parts of the hymn relate to the action of the pressing stones in crushing the stalks of the soma-plant.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 432; Florenz, 310 or 62; Griffith, i. 272.

1. Surely no mortal, O Agni, hath attained the cruelty of thy self (tanñ). The ape gnaws (bhas) the shaft (téjana), as a cow her own after-birth.

That is, perhaps (a) hath succeeded in inflicting a wound on thee. Ppp. differs only in reading martyam at end of a. For tanvas in a, TA.Āp. have the equivalent tanú-vāi; for ānūṅca in b, TA. caḥāra, Āp. ānūca; for svām in c, TA. pūnar. The comm. has bibhasti in c (also 2 d [which see]).

2. Like a ram, thou art bent both together and wide apart, when in the upper wood [the upper] and the lower stone devour; exciting (arā) head with head, breast (āpsas) with breast, he gnaws the soma-stalks (añcū) with green mouths.

In a, 'ram' (meśī) perhaps means something made of ram's wool or skin; or the action of the stones is compared to that of a ram, butting and drawing back. K. (of which I happen to have the readings in this verse) gives meśa iva yad ūpa ca vi ca carvati, and Āp. the same, except the blundering carvari for carvati. The comm. has ucyase for acyase. Ppp's a is tveśāi 'va siñca itaror varṇyate. In b, which is the most hopeless part of the verse, K. reads yad āpsaradrūr ūparasya khādati, and Āp. doubtless intends the same, but is corrupted in part to āpsararūparasya. The comm. has āparas for ūparas. In c, K. has vakṣasā vakṣa ejayann, Āp. the same, and also, blunderingly, girāu for çiro. Ppp. has āpsarā 'pso. In d, K. begins with añcum; Āp. has the same and also gabhasti; the comm. again bibhasti. The comm. has two different conjectures, both worthless, for uttaradrāu: [Pischel discusses āpsas, Ved. Stud. i. 308 ff., and this vs. at p. 312. Aufrecht discusses the roots bhas, KZ. xxxiv. 458. Hillebrandt discusses this vs., Ved. Mythol. i. 154.]

3. The eagles have uttered (kr) their voice close in the sky; in the lair (ākharā) the black lively ones have danced; when they come down to the removal of the lower [stone], they have assumed much seed, they that resort to the sun.

In c, RV. has nyān (p. nyāk) nī yanti, for which our reading is evidently a corruption — as is probably also niṣkṛtim for RV. niṣkṛtām, and sūryaçrttas for RV. çvltas at the end. The comm. has divi instead of dyavi in a. Ppp. has a very original d: puro vāco dadhire sūryasya. There is no reason for reckoning this jagati as virāj.

50. Against petty destroyers of grain.

[Atharvan (abhayakāmah). — āçvinam. 1. virāj jagati; 2, 3. pathyāpañkti.]

Only the second verse is found in Pāipp., in book xix.; and no occurrence of any part of the hymn has been noted elsewhere. Its intent is obvious. In Kāuç. (51.17) the hymn is applied in a rite for ridding the fields of danger from mice and other pests; one goes about the field scratching lead with iron (? the comm. reads ayaḥsīsam gharṣan); and it is reckoned (note to 16.8) to the abhaya gaṇa.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 499; Florenz, 312 or 64; Griffith, i. 272; Bloomfield, 142, 485.

1. Smite, O Açvins, the borer, the samañkā, the rat; split their head; crush in their ribs; lest they eat the barley, shut up their mouth; then make fearlessness for the grain.

All the mss. accent áçvinā, as if the word began the second pāda instead of ending the first, and SPP. follows them; our text emends to açv-. In b, SPP. reads, with most of the mss., chintām, which is better, being prescribed by Prāt. ii. 20. The comm. reads at the beginning of c yuvām ned adāt. Tarda perhaps denotes a special kind of ākhū or rat. The comm. regards samañka as adj. to ākhū and = samañcanam bilāñ sampraviçya gaçchantam.

2. Hey, borer! hey, locust! hey, grinder, upakvasa! as a priest (brahmān) an unfinished oblation, not eating this barley, go up away, doing no harm.

Ppp's version is quite corrupt: tarda hem patañga hem jabhyā upakvasah anadanta idam dhānya hiñsanto 'podita. The comm. reads apakvasas in b (explaining it by adagdhāñ santah), and brahma (instead of brahmā) in c, and anudantas at beginning of d. The first two pādas are deficient by a syllable each. [I think Roth intended hi twice, not hem.]

3. O lord of borers, lord of vāghā's! with arid jaws do ye (pl.) listen to me: what devourers (vyadvarā) there are of the forest, and whatever devourers ye are, all them do we grind up.

In vyadvarās, some of our mss. blunder the dv into ddh or dhv, even ddhv; but most of them, with all SPP's authorities save one, have vyadvarās, which is accordingly, doubtless with reason, admitted by SPP. into his text as the true reading, and our vyadhv- is to be corrected accordingly. [For vy-advarā, vy-ādvarī, see note to iii. 28. 2. But at HGS. ii. 16. 5 we have vyadhvara with maçaka; cf. note to ii. 31. 4.] Some mss. appear to read vatyāpate in a, but SPP. gives vaghā- as supported by all his authorities, and the comm. also has it, giving it a fictitious etymology from ava-han; he explains it by patañgādī. Pāda b is redundant, unless we contract -bhā "çṛṇota.

51. For various blessings.

[Çamṭāti. — āpyam; 3. varuṇastuti. trāiṣṭubham: 1. gāyatrī; 3. jagatī.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix., in the verse-order 1, 3, 2. The hymn is reckoned by Kāuç. (9. 2) to the bṛhachānti gaṇa; it is used (25. 20) in healing rites against various diseases, and (25. 21) especially against disorders arising from soma drinking; and (41. 14), with hymn 19 and others, in a ceremony for good fortune; it is further (note to 7. 14) one of the apām sūktāni. Vāit. (30. 7) has it in the sāutrāmañi ceremony with the preparation of surā for one disordered by soma. [Keçava (to 61. 5) counts this hymn (not 57) to a pavitra gaṇa.]

Translated: Griffith, i. 273.

1. Purified with Vāyu's purifier, Soma [hath] run over opposite (pratyāñ), Indra's suitable companion.

The translation implies, at the end of b, ātī drutās (or atidrutas, as the comm. appears to read), which SPP. has rightly in his text. In most mss. dru and hru are hardly distinguishable (and not easily distinguishable from du and hu), and hru was unfortunately adopted in our text, because the first mss. consulted favored that reading. Ppp. has instead adhīçrutah. The verse is found twice* in VS. (x. 31 d; xix. 3 a), twice in TB. (ii. 6. 1²⁻³: two immediately successive versions), and thrice in MS. (ii. 3. 8; and iii. 11. 7 two immediately successive versions), and, what is unusual, with differences of reading in the different versions. VS. differs from our text [see note*] in b, having in x. átisrutas, and in xix. átidrutas. TB. has both times vāyús at the beginning, but in b the first time prāñk and the second pratyāñk, both times átidrutas. MS. has in ii. vāyos (doubtless a misprint for vāyós) and átisrutas; in iii., the first time vāyús, prāk, and átidrutas, the second time vāyós, pratyāk, and átisrutas. The Atharvan reading, according to the Prāt. phonetic rule ii. 9, ought to be pratyāñk before a following s; but (as explained in the note to that rule) the mss. read simple ñ, and both printed texts adopt it. [Cf. Weber, Rājasūya, p. 101, n. 7.] * [Should be "thrice": W. overlooked that at xix. 3 also there are two immediately successive versions, the first with pratyāñk . . . átidrutaḥ, the second with prāñk . . . átidrutaḥ. Moreover, VS. has in x. (like TB.) vāyúḥ.]

2. Let the mother waters further (sūd) us; let the ghee-purifying ones purify us with ghee; since the heavenly ones carry forth all evil (riprá), forth from them, indeed, I come clean, purified.

The verse is found also as RV. x. 17. 10, with the single variant ṣundhayantu at end of a; the comm. gives to sūd the same meaning (ksālayantu pāparahitān ṣuddhān kurvantu). VS. (iv. 2) also has it, precisely in the RV. version; and MS. (i. 2. 1), with mā for asmān and nas in a and b, and with -vāhantu in c. Ppp. has -vāhantu likewise, and at the end it reads pūtay emi, which, curiously enough, Schröder notes as read by two of his mss. and by the Kapiṣṭhala text. Ppp. has further the phonetic [? graphic] variant ghrtapuvvas in b.

3. Whatever, O Varuṇa, that is hateful to the people of the gods human beings practise here, if without intention we have obstructed thine ordinances (dhárman), do not, O god, harm us for that sin.

The verse is RV. vii. 89. 5, which, however, reads at end of b cārāmasi, and at beginning of c áccitī yát táva etc. TS. (iii. 4. 11⁶) and MS. (iv. 12. 6) agree precisely with RV.

The fifth anuvāka, 10 hymns with 30 verses, ends here; the Anukr. quotation, pañcama, has to be combined with that to the next anuvāka.

Here ends also the thirteenth prapāṭhaka.

52. For deliverance from unseen pests.

[Bhāgali. — mantroktabahudevatyam. ānuṣṭubham.]

Also found in Pāipp. xix. (in the verse-order 1, 3, 2). The first two verses are RV. i. 191. 9, 4. Used by Kāuṣ. (31. 8) in a remedial rite against demons.

Translated: Griffith, i. 273. — See also Henry, Mém. Soc. Ling., ix. 241 top, and 239.

1. The sun goes up from the sky, burning down in front the demons; he, the Āditya, from the mountains, seen of all, slayer of the unseen.

All the mss. read -jūrvaṭ at end of b, but both editions make the nearly unavoidable emendation to -van, which the comm. also reads. The first half-verse in RV. is very different: úd apaptad asāú sūryaḥ purú viṣvāni jūrvan (should be viṣvā nijūrvan? [rather, viṣvāni nijūrvan?]). Ppp. has viṣvāni jūrvan, and, for c, ādityaḥ parvatāni abhi. The "unseen" in d are, according to the comm., the demons and piṣācas and the like. [Whitney's M. reads -jūrvan.]

2. The kine have sat down in the stall; the wild beasts have gone to rest (ni-viç); the waves of the streams, the unseen ones, have disappeared (ni-líp).

For c, RV. has ni ketāvo jānānām, and again Ppp. agrees with it. The comm. takes alipsata as impf. of the desiderative of root labh (nitarām labdhum āicchan)!

3. The life(āyus)-giving, inspired (vīpaççit), famous plant of Kaṇva, the all-healing one, have I brought; may it quench this man's unseen ones.

Ppp. begins a with āyurvidam, and c with aharṣam. SPP. has, in c, ā'bhāriṣam, although it is both ungrammatical and unmetrical, because nearly all his authorities read so (the comm. gives -rṣam), as do part of ours (H.D.R.). [As to Kaṇva's plant, cf. iv. 19. 2.]

53. For protection: to various gods.

[Brhachukra. — nānādāivatam. trāiṣṭubham: r. jagatī.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix., and in other texts as noted under the several verses. Kāuç. uses the hymn (31. 9) in a remedial rite against boils etc.; also, in the kāmya rites (59. 28), with worship of heaven and earth, when valuables are lost; and in the savayajñas (66. 2), with v. 10, vii. 67, in a response; and, according to the comm. (the pratīka might also designate xii. 1. 53), in the medhājanana [10. 20], with vi. 108, to accompany the partaking of some dish (milk-rice, comm.) and worshiping the sun. And vs. 2 occurs in the godāna ceremony (54. 2), with vii. 67, with wiping (the razor, comm.) thrice; and vs. 3 in the upanayana (55. 20), with vii. 97. 2, on releasing a cow. In Vāit., vs. 2 is employed in the agniṣṭoma (11. 15), near the beginning of the ceremony; and vs. 3 twice in the parvan sacrifice (4. 8, 17), once with the patnīsamīyāja offerings, and once as the sacrificer strokes his face with his wetted hands.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 506; Griffith, i. 274.

1. Let both the sky now and the earth, forethoughtful—let the bright (çukrā) great one, by the sacrificial gift, rescue (pr) me; let the svadhā favor (anu-ci) [me, let] Soma, Agni; let Vāyu protect us, [let] Savitar and Bhaga.

For the embarrassing ma idām in a, Ppp. reads simply mā, which is better. TB., in its version of the verse (namely of a, b, c, ii. 7. 8², 16²: each has a different ḍ) has tvā instead, and inserts it again before pīpartu; it also reads prācetasā at end of a, and brhād dākṣiṇā in b. "The bright one" is doubtless soma; the comm. explains it as sūrya, and to dakṣiṇayā supplies diçā. [Cf. Bloomfield's remark on b at AJP. xvii. 409.] The combination anu-ci, elsewhere unknown, must be the equivalent of anu-jñā or anu-man (the comm., anujānātu). Three of the pādas are triṣṭubh, but a has 13 syllables unless we contract me 'dam.

2. Again let breath, again let soul (ātman) come unto us; again let sight, again let spirit (āsu) come unto us; let Vāiçvānara, our unharmed body-protector, stand between [us and] all difficulties.

Compare TA. ii. 5¹⁷, MS. i. 2. 3, Āp. x. 18. 3, all of which have a different (and TA. a much longer) enumeration in a, b, with the verb ā'gāt 'hath come.' In c, MS. and

Āp. omit nas, TA. reads instead me; in ḍ, for antās tiṣṭhāti, TA. and Āp. have dva bādhatām, MS. āpa b. Ppp. agrees nearly with MS. by reading in a ḥunar manaḥ ḥunar āyur na mā "gañ; in c it has adbhutas for adabdhās; its ḍ is antas tiṣṭhāsi dūritād avadyāt; [and it combines tanūpāntas]. [Cf. also MGS. i. 3. 2 and p. 152, s.v. ḥunar me; and MB. i. 6. 34.]

3. We have become united with splendor, with fatness (phāyas), with bodies (tanū), with propitious mind; let Tvashṭar make for us here wider room; let him smooth down what of our body is torn apart.

This verse is found also in many other texts, its first half generally without variation; only PB. (i. 3. 9: this half-verse alone) has tapobhis for tanūbhis at end of a. VS. (ii. 24 et al.) has for c, ḍ: tvāṣṭā sudātro vā dadhātu rāyó 'nu mārṣṭu tanūv yád viliṣṭam, and the rest follow this rather than our text; only TA. (ii. 4. 1) has no dtra in c, and TS. (i. 4. 44) no dtra varivaḥ kṛnotu; MS. (i. 3. 38 et al.) and ÇÇS. (iv. 11. 6) add nas (like AV.) after anu in ḍ, and MS. ends with vriṣṭam (TS., of course, has tanūvas). Ppp. has, in c, sudatro varivaṣ kṛ, differing from all. The comm. renders anu mārṣṭu by hastena ṣodhayatu. [Cf. von Schroeder's Tübingen Kaṭha-hss., p. 72.]

54. To secure and increase some one's superiority.

[Brahman. — āgnīṣomīyam. ānuṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix. Used by Kāuṣ. (48. 27), in a sorcery, with vii. 70, with the direction ity āhitāgnim pratinirvāpati; vs. 2 appears also in the parvan sacrifice (4. 19), with an offering to Agni and Soma. And vs. 2 appears in Vāit. (3. 4), in the parvan sacrifice, with a silent offering to the same gods.

Translated: Griffith, i. 275. — He entitles it "Benediction on a newly elected King."

1. Now do I adorn this man as superior to his fellow, for attainment of Indra; do thou increase his authority, his great fortune, as the rain the grass.

The first half-verse is very obscure, and the rendering given only tentative; it implies the emendation of tāt in a to tām, or else of idām to imām (as antecedent to asyé in c), and the understanding of yujá as for yujás, instead of yujé, which the padatext gives for it both here and in 2 ḍ; to read further indrā (voc.) in b would much lighten the difficulty here, and also furnish a subject for the appeal in the next line. A dative with uttara is a construction perhaps unknown elsewhere. The comm. comfortably explains yujé as a verb "= yojayāmi." Ppp. reads yujam (probably a mere error of the transcriber); and, for b, the corrupt yene 'ndram ṣumbhā nu iṣṭaye; in c it has yasya for asya. The Anukr. seems to allow the contraction vṛṣṭir 'va in d. [Roth's collation gives yugam in a, and yuga in 2 ḍ; but it may be a mere omission of the accent by which he distinguishes the palatal sonant (g' = our j) from the guttural sonant (g).] [Plate 453¹⁷ reads yugam.]

2 For him, O Agni-and-Soma, maintain ye dominion, for him wealth; in the sphere of royalty make ye him superior to his fellow.

Two or three of our mss. have in b the bad reading dhārayatām; and, in c, even the majority of them give vargre (as Bp. at iii. 5. 2, and B. Kp. at xi. 2. 4: but SPP. reports nothing of the sort in his authorities). Ppp. has yasya for the first asmāi, and asya for the second, and vardhayatas for dhārayatam in b; also aho for imam in c.

3. Whoever, both related and unrelated, assails us — every such one mayest thou make subject to me, the sacrificer, the soma-presser.

The first half-verse is also 15.2 a, b, above; the last half-verse is also 6.1 c, d. Ppp. has, for b, yo jāto yaç ca niṣtyaḥ; it further puts d before c, in the form sarvaṁ tvaṁ rīradhāsi naḥ.

55. For various blessings.

[Brahman (?). — 1. vāiṣvadevī, jagatī; 2, 3. rāudryāu: 2. triṣṭubh; 3. jagatī.]

Not found in Pāipp., but in TS. (v. 7. 23-4) etc. as noted below. Used by Kāuṣ. (52. 1) in a rite for welfare, on going away; and vs. 2 is reckoned (note to 50. 13) to the rāudra gaṇa. With vs. 2, according to Vāit. 2. 16, are offered the prayājas in the parvan sacrifice; and with vs. 3 (8. 5), the initial and final homas in the āgrayana.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 218; Griffith, i. 275. — As to cycles of lunar years, see Zimmer, p. 370.

1. The many paths, traveled by the gods, that go between heaven-and-earth — whichever of them shall carry [one] to unscathedness, to that one, O gods, do ye all here give me over.

The first half-verse is also iii. 15. 2 a, b. TS. begins yé catvāraḥ pathāyo, and ends b with vīyānti (metrically better); its c is tēṣāṁ yó ājyānim ājītim āvadhāt; and in d it has nas for mā, and datta for dhatta. PGS. (iii. 1. 2) agrees with TS. except in this last point, and in combining yo 'jyānim in c; MB. (ii. 1. 10) [also agrees with TS. save that it] has ajītim for ājītim. The comm. has datta, like TS., and it is the better reading. Both this verse and vs. 3 are incomplete as jagatī.

2. Hot season, winter, cool season, spring, autumn, rains — do ye set us in welfare (svitā); portion ye us in kine, in progeny; may we verily be in your windless shelter.

TS. and MB. (ii. 1. 11) read utā nas for çīçiras in a, end b with suvitāṁ no astu, and have, for c, d, tēṣāṁ ṛtūṇāṁ çatāçārādānāṁ nivātā eṣāṁ ābhaye syāma. [See also MGS. ii. 8. 6 a, and p. 158, s.v. hemanto. PGS. (iii. 2. 2) follows TS. except that it ends with vasema and has for b çivā varṣā abhayā çaran naḥ.]

3. Unto the idā-year, the pari-year, the sam-year, pay ye great homage; may we be in the favor of these worshipful ones, likewise in their auspicious well-willing.

TS. begins with the idvatsara or id-year (in the form iduvat-), and has, for d, jyóg ājītā āhatāḥ syāma; MB. (ii. 1. 12) differs from it only in the form idvat-; PGS. (iii. 2. 2) also agrees except in giving in a the whole series of five year-names of the cycle: samv-, pariv-, idāv-, id-vatsarāya, and vatsarāya. Our latter half-verse occurs repeatedly in RV. (e.g. iii. 1. 21 c, d*), and once more in AV. (xviii. 1. 58 c, d). Ppp. xvii. 6. 15 enumerates in succession ṛtavas, ārtavās, and idā-, anu-, pari-, and samvatsarās. The comm. quotes from an unknown source the following verse: cāndrāṇām prabhavādīnām pañcake-pañcake yuge: sam-pari-dā-nv-id-ityetacchabdapūrvās tu vatsarās. * [With slight changes; and verbatim at x. 14. 6.]

56. For protection from serpents.

[Çamîtâti. — 1. vâçivadvî, usñiggarbhâ pathyâpañkti; 2, 3. râudryâu: 2. anuṣṭubh; 3. nicrî.]

Found also in Pâipp. xix. (in the verse-order 1, 3, 2). Used by Kâuç. (50. 17), in a rite for welfare, with iii. 26, 27 and xii. 1. 46, against serpents, scorpions, etc.; and again (139. 8), with various other verses and hymns, in the ceremony for commencing Vedic study. In Vâit. (29. 10), in the agnicayana, it and other passages accompany oblations to Rudra.

Translated: Aufrecht, ZDMG. xxv. 235 (1871); Ludwig, p. 502; Grill, 5, 162; Griffith, i. 276; Bloomfield, 151, 487. — See also the introduction to iii. 26.

1. Let not the snake, O gods, slay us with our offspring, with our men (pûruṣa); what is shut together may it not uncloze; what is open may it not shut together: homage to the god-people.

Pâdas c and d are found again below as x. 4. 8 a, b. [Read samyatam yân nâ vi ṣparad, viâttam yân nâ etc.?] Ppp. reads in b sahaṣāuruṣân, and omits the concluding pāda. The comm. has vi sphurat in c; he understands the 'open' and 'shut' of the snake's mouth, doubtless correctly. MB. (ii. 1. 5) has a parallel phrase: samhatam mā vivadhîr vihatam mā 'bhisañvadhîh.

2. Homage be to the black [snake], homage to the cross-lined, homage to the brown constrictor; homage to the god-people.

Ppp. reads haye for astu in a. The comm. explains svaja 'constrictor' as "self-born" [and Aufrecht as the "natural" color, that is, "green"].

3. I smite thy teeth together with tooth, thy (two) jaws together with jaw, thy tongue together with tongue, thy mouth, O snake, together with mouth.

Ppp. reads at the beginning sam te dadāmi dadbhîr datas, omits u in b, and ends with āsnāhasyam. The comm. understands "thy lower teeth with thine upper tooth," and so in the other cases: but this is very unacceptable; and more probably the tooth, jaw, etc. are said of some object or instrument used in the incantation.

57. With a certain remedy against disease.

[Çamîtâti. — 1, 2. râudryâu; anuṣṭubh; 3. [?]; pathyâbrhatî.]

Found also in Pâipp. xix. Used by Kâuç. (31. 11) in a healing rite, while treating a bruise [? akṣata: cf. Bloomfield, Introd. p. xliii] with foam of urine; and vs. 3 is reckoned (9. 2) to the brhachāntî gaṇa, and employed, with vi. 19 etc. (41. 14), in a rite for welfare.

Translated: Griffith, i. 276; Bloomfield, 19, 488.

1. This verily is a remedy; this is Rudra's remedy; wherewith one may spell away (apa-brū) the one-shafted (-tējaṇa), hundred-tipped arrow.

The comm. has at the end upabruvat. He regards the remedy as used against the vraṇaroga, and the arrow of c, d as that of Mahādeva, used tripurasamhrtisamaye.

2. Pour ye on with the jālāṣā; pour in with the jālāṣā; the jālāṣā is a formidable remedy; with it do thou be gracious to us, unto life (jīvās).

Ppp. has, for second half-verse, jālāṣe bhadrām bheṣajam tasyo no dehi jīvase, which is better. The comm. reads jal- in all three cases; and it has the RV. form mṛla in ḍ; it understands the foam of cows' urine to be intended by jālāṣa [see Bloomfield, AJP. xii. 425].

3. [Be there] both weal for us and kindness (māyas) for us, and let nothing whatever ail (am) us; down with [our] complaint (rāpas)! be every remedy ours; be all remedy ours.

Pāda b and the first two words of our c occur at RV. x. 59. 8 e, ḍ, 9 f, e, 10 f, e, where, however, we have mó sú te instead of mā ca nas, and dyāúh pṛthivi before kṣamā rāpas, making a complete pāda. [Cf. also RV. viii. 20. 26.] The comm. explains kṣamā by kṣāntir upaṣamo bhavatu. Our b occurs also elsewhere (as AV. x. 5. 23 c, and RV. ix. 114. 4 ḍ [this time with mó ca nas]). The first pāda lacks a syllable [unheeded by the Anukr.: read ṣām cāstu no?]. [The Anukr. scans as 7+8 : 12+8 : but perhaps the "12-syllabled pāda" contains, as the RV. hints, the damaged remnants of two (8+8).] [Ppp. omits our last pāda, sárvaṃ etc.]

58. For glory.

[Atharvan (yaçaskāmah).—mantraktadevatyam. bārhaspatyam. 1. jagatī; 2. prastārapāṅkti; 3. anuṣṭubh.]

Found also, except vs. 3, in Pāipp. xix. The hymn is reckoned (note to Kāuç. 13. 1) to the varcasya gaṇa, and is employed (59. 9) among the kāmya ceremonies by one desiring glory; also (139. 15), in the introduction to Vedic study (utsarjanakarmani, comm.), it appears with various other hymns (vi. 38, 39, etc.), with an oblation to Agni.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 240; Griffith, i. 277.

1. Glorious let the bounteous Indra make me; glorious both heaven-and-earth here; glorious let god Savitar make me; may I be dear here to the giver of the sacrificial gift.

Ppp. reads me indro maghavā in a; for b, yaçasam somo varuṇo vāyur agnih; and ends with -ṇāyā syām aham. The comm. has dhātur instead of ḍā- in ḍ. As jagatī, the verse is both irregular and deficient.

2. As Indra is possessed of glory in heaven-and-earth, as the waters are possessed of glory in the herbs, so among all the gods may we, among all, be glorious.

Ppp. omits yaçasvatīs in b, and has, for c, ḍ, yathā viçveṣu devēṣu evā devēṣu yaçasaḥ syāma. The verse (11 + 12 : 8 + 11) is very ill defined by the Anukr.

3. Glorious was Indra, glorious was Agni, glorious was Soma born; glorious, of all existence am I most glorious.

This verse is a repetition of 39. 3 above.

59. For protection to cattle.

[Atharvan (?).—rāudram uta mantroktadevatyam. ānuṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix. Reckoned by Kāuṣ. (9.2) to the bṛhachānti gaṇa, and used (41.14), with vi. 19, 23, 24, etc., for good fortune; and also (50.13), with vi. 1, 3, etc., in a similar rite.

Translated: Grill, 65, 163; Griffith, i. 277; Bloomfield, 144, 490.

1. To the draft-oxen [do thou] first, to the milch kine [do thou], O arundhatī, to the non-milch cow, in order to vigor (vāyas), to four-footed creatures do thou yield protection.

For the arundhatī cf. iv.12 and v.5; the comm. identifies it with the sahadevī. Instead of tvam in a, Ppp. reads nas, which is better. The sense of c is very doubtful; Grill conjectures avayase, to fill out the meter as well as ease the translation; the comm. explains vayase as a cow or horse or the like under five years old; perhaps the corruption of the reading is a deeper one. A'dhenu may signify young kine, not yet yielding milk. Both this verse and vs. 3 are defective by a syllable.

2. Let the herb, the arundhatī, allied with the gods (?), yield protection; may it make the cow-stall rich in milk, and the men (pūruṣa) free from disease (yākṣma).

The translation implies the emendation of sahā devīs in b to sahādevī; this the comm. gives (it is conjectured also by Grill); it may be here simply the name of the plant, but yet probably with pregnant implication of its etymological sense. Ppp., in d, reads -mām and pāuruṣām.

3. I appeal to the all-formed, well-portioned, vivifying one; let it conduct the hurled missile of Rudra far away from our kine.

The comm. understands, in b, achā vadāmi, and explains jīvalām as jīvanam lāti dadāti.

60. For winning a spouse.

[Atharvan (?).—āryamaṇam. ānuṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix. Used by Kāuṣ. (34.22), in a women's rite, for obtaining a husband, with an oblation to Aryaman (it is added, purā kākasampātāt, which the comm. explains by kākasaincārāt pūrvam).

Translated: Weber, Ind. Stud. v. 236; Zimmer, p. 306; Grill, 56, 164; Griffith, i. 278; Bloomfield, 95, 491.

1. Here cometh Aryaman, with locks [-stupa] loosened in front, seeking a husband for this spinster, and a wife for a wifeless one.

Ppp. reads in b viṣatastugah (i.e. viṣitastukah). Our edition has -srupah, the manuscript distinction of sru and stu being always doubtful, and the majority of the authorities here giving as plainly sru as it is possible to give it. The comm. explains viṣita- as viṣeṣeṇa sito baddhah, and as used of the "rays" (stupa-) of the sun (aryaman) in the east (pūrastāt). Aryaman is perhaps properly rendered here by 'suitor, match-maker' ('Brautwerber,' Weber, Grill); but doubtless at any rate the address implies an identification of such a functionary with the god Aryaman. The pad-

reading in b, visitaostupaḥ, is quoted under Prāt. iv. 77. In c, asyā'ichān is the chosen example in the Prāt. commentary (under ii. 21 et al.) of the sam̐dhi it illustrates, although the meter shows that the irregular combination asye'chan requires to be made, and the Anukr. apparently winks at it. Ppp. has the corrupt reading sa vāi chāyad ag- [intending sa vāi'ched?]. [Correct the ed. to -stupaḥ.]

2. This woman, O Aryaman, hath toiled, going to other women's assembly; now, O Aryaman, shall another woman come to her assembly.

Ppp. reads in c nu asyā'ryaman. The comm. has çamanam in b and d, and anu for nu in c. He makes no difficulty in taking āyati (p. āsāyati) as a 3d pl., which it is not; we ought to have either āyan (āśāyan), or anyā instead of anyāḥ: the translation implies the latter. The proper paḍa reading would be ā: ayati. [For sāmanam 'wedding-assembly,' see Bergaigne, Rel. Véd. i. 159, n. 3. Comm. renders aṅgā by he; Bloomfield, "without fail."]

3. The creator (dhātār) sustains the earth; the creator [sustains] the sky and the sun; let the creator assign (dhā) to this spinster a husband that is according to her wish.

Ppp. combines asyā'gruvāi in c, and reads dadātu in d.

61. Prayer and boasts.

[Atharvan (?).—rāudram. trāiṣṭubham: 2, 3. bhurij.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix., and in K. xl. 9. Reckoned by Kāuṣ. (9. 2) to the br̥hachānti gaṇa, and used (41. 14), with vi. 19, 23, 24, etc., in a rite for good fortune; in the kāmya ceremonies (59. 10), for splendor*; also, in the chapter of portents (133. 2), on occasion of one's house burning down; it is further (note to 50. 13) included in the rāudra gaṇa. In Vāit. (2. 17) vs. 3 accompanies, in the parvan sacrifice, two offerings of butter to Agni and Soma. * [Varcas: so the comm.; but Bloomfield reads vyacas, which accords better with d of the text.]

Translated: Griffith, i. 278.

1. To me let the waters send what has sweetness; to me the sun brought [it] in order to light; to me the gods, and all those born of penance—to me let god Savitar assign expansion [vyacas].

Ppp. has, for b, mahyam sūryo bharaj jyotiṣā gam, and, in c, samotā for taḥojā. K. has, in c, mām for mahyam, and anu for uta, and ends with bhāt (?). Abharat in b cannot well be correct; we might conjecture instead bhavatu. The Anukr. disregards the deficiency of a syllable in d.

2. I expanded (?) earth and heaven, I generated the seasons, seven together; I speak true what is untrue; I encompass (pāri) divine speech and people (viṣas).

For the doubtful viveca in a, Ppp. has dādihāra, and K. astabhnām. Some of the mss. read ajanayan in b (also in 3 b); K. has ajanam (if the reading is correct); Ppp. substitutes sindhūn sarje (for rtūr aj). The second half-verse in K. is quite different: ahan vācam pari sarvām babhūva ya indrāgnī asanam sakhāyāu (the last pāda is parallel with our 3 d). The sense of c is obscure, and the rendering given only tentative; it implies vadāmi instead of vādāmi: perhaps, 'I declare what [is] true [and what] untrue.' The comm. reads viçam for viças at the end. He understands viveca in a as 'winnow, separate' (paraspāravivikte asaṁkīrṇarūpe kṛtavān asmi).

3. I generated earth and heaven; I generated the seasons, the seven rivers; I speak true what is untrue (?): [I] who enjoyed Agni-and-Soma as companions.

Ppp. reads, from b on,* as follows: *ahaṁ vācaspatīs sarvā bhī śiṅca: ahaṁ vinejmi pṛthivīm uta dyām ahaṁ ṛtūn sṛje sapta sākam: ahaṁ vācam pari sarvām babhūva yo gñiṣomā viduṣe sakhāyuh. K. has, for jajāna . . . ajanayam (a, b), dyāvāpṛthivī ā babhūva ahaṁ viçvā ṣadhīs; and, for c, d, mahyaṁ viças sam anamanta dāivir ahaṁ ugras smatahavyo babhūva. * [Perhaps this is an error of Roth for 2 d. If so, 3 a would begin with ahaṁ vinejmi.] [See p. 1045.]*

62. To Vāiçvānara etc.: for purification.

[Atharvan (?). — rāudram uta mantruktadevatyam. trāiṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix. (but the first verse is given only by its pratīka, and has not been found elsewhere), and its first two verses in other texts, as noted below. Agrees in use with the preceding hymn as regards the gaṇas to which it is reckoned (Kāuç. 9. 2, and note to 50. 13; Keç. [to 61. 5] and the comm. [page 37 end] further have it, with vi. 19 and 51, in a pavitra gaṇa), and (41. 14) in the rite for good fortune; and it appears (41. 15) in another similar rite, with worship of the rising sun; and is added (note to 41. 13) in one for luck in gambling.

Translated: Griffith, i. 279.

1. Let Vāiçvānara (Agni) by his rays purify us, the wind, lively with mists (? nābhas), by his breath; let heaven-and-earth, rich in milk, righteous, worshipful, purify us by milk.

The verse is found also in TB. (i. 4. 83) and MS. (iii. 11. 10). They read mā for nas in a and d, mayobhīs (which is decidedly better) for nābhobhis at end of b, and pāyo-bhis for pāyasvatī in c. Pāda c is jagatī.

2. Take ye hold upon the pleasantness of Vāiçvānara, of which the regions are the smooth-backed bodies; with that, singing in joint revelings, may we be lords of wealth (pl.).

The sense, especially of b, is obscure, and the version mechanical; b is perhaps a reminiscence of RV. i. 162. 7 b. Found, considerably altered in a, b, in VS. (xix. 44), and TB.MS. (as above). They read for a, b vāiçvadēvī punatī devy ā gād yāsyām (TB. yāsyāi, MS. yāsyās) imā (TB.MS. omit) bahvyaś (TB. bahvīs) tanvō (TB. tanūvo) vītāpṛsthāḥ; all have mādas for grāntas in c, and TB.MS. -mādyeṣu — this last an alteration plainly called for by the meter; and the Anukr. does not describe the verse as nicṛt. Ppp. has at the beginning vāiçvadēvyam, for b a wholly different text, çuddhā bhavanta çucayaṣ pāvakāḥ (our 3 b), and in c, corruptly, -nia sasada ādayema. The variants indicate, as often elsewhere, the hopelessness of a rendering.

3. Take ye hold upon that (f.) of Vāiçvānara in order to splendor, becoming cleansed, clear, purifying; here, reveling in joint reveling with Idā, may we long see the sun going up.

The first half-verse is nearly identical with xii. 2. 28 a, b. Durga to Nir. vi. 12 (Calcutta ed'n, iii. 187) quotes vāiçvadevīm sūnṛtām ā rabhadhvam, showing that sūnṛtā is meant here also, as in vs. 2. Ppp. reads in a vāiçvānaryam, combines varcasā "rabh-; [has for b our 2 b, combining yasyā "çās;] and begins c with īde 'ha sadh-.

63. For some one's release from perdition (nirṛti).

[Druhvāṇa (?). — caturṛcam. nūṛrtam: 4. āgneyī. jāgataṃ: 1. atijagatigarbhā; 4. anuṣṭubh.]

Found also (excepting vs. 3) in Pāipp. xix., the fourth verse not in company with the others. For other correspondences, see under the verses. Used by Kāuṣ. (46.19) in an expiatory rite for incontinence, fastening on a rope of darbha; and in rites for welfare (52.3), with vi. 84 and 121, to accompany acts of release; vs. 4, further (46.22), in an expiatory rite for a spontaneously kindled fire. Vāit. has the vss. 1, 2, and 4 singly in the agnicayana (28.27, 26; 29.8), with the laying of bricks consecrated to nirṛti etc.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 433; Griffith, i. 279.

1. The tie that the divine Nirṛti (perdition) bound upon thy neck, [and] that was unreleasable, that do I untie for thee, in order to long life (āyus), splendor, strength; do thou, quickened (pra-sū), eat uninjurious (?) food.

Ppp. reads in b avicṛtyam, omits vārcasē, which is metrically redundant and probably intruded, in c, and has, for d, anamivam pitum addhi prasūtah, thus getting rid of the extremely obscure adomadām (made more obscure by the occurrence of adomadhā in viii. 2. 18). The comm. takes adomadām as two independent words, and renders it 'producing pleasure for a prolonged time.' The translation given is that of the Petersburg Lexicons. A corresponding verse is found in VS. (xii. 65), TS. (iv. 2. 53), and MS. ii. 7. 12. VS. and MS. have, in a, b, yām . . . pāçam; VS. ends b with avicṛtyām, TS. MS. with avicartyām (all omitting yāt). In c, for tāt te, VS. MS. have idm te, and TS. idm te tāt; VS. TS. end it with āyuso nū mādhyāt, MS. with -so nū mādhye. For d, TS. MS. have āthā jvāh pitum addhi prāmuktah, VS. āthā 'tām pitum addhi prasūtah. The verse has no jagatī character.

2. Homage be to thee, O Nirṛti, thou of keen keenness; unfasten the bond-fetters of iron. Yama verily giveth thee back to me; to that Yama, to death, be homage.

The "thee" of the second half-verse is doubtless the person on whose behalf the spell is uttered. The first half-verse is found combined with our 3 c, d into one verse in VS. (xii. 63) and TS. MS. (as above). They all read sū for astu in a, and for tigmatejas TS. has viçvarūpe (Ppp. has viçvavāre); their b is ayasmāyam vi çṛtā bandhām etām. Ppp. has -yān pra mumugdhī pāçān for b, and, for c, d, our 3 c, d. The whole verse is nearly repeated below, as 84. 3. Only the last pāda is jagatī.

3. Thou wast bound here to an iron post (druvadā), bridled with deaths that are a thousand. Do thou, in concord with Yama, with the Fathers, make this man ascend to the highest firmament.

We have the same change of address here as in the preceding verse, and it proves that the make-up of the material as given by the Yajus texts is more original and correct.

They read, in c, d, yaména tvám yamyā (TS.MS. -yā) samvidāno 'ttamé (TS. -mām) nāke (TS. -kam) ādhi rohayāi 'nam (TS. -ye 'mām). Ppp., as noticed above, has c, d of this verse as 2 c, d, reading -dāno 'ttame nāke (like VS.MS.). The last pāda is found also as that of i. 9. 2, 4; xi. 1. 4. With the contraction bedhise 'ha, the verse would be a good triṣṭubh. [The vs. recurs at vi. 84. 4.]

4. Thou collectest together for thyself, O Agni, bull, all things from the foe (?); thou art kindled in the track of sacrifice (id); do thou bring to us good things.

This is a RV. verse, found at x. 191. 1 (vss. 2-4 are our next hymn), and is also to be met with at VS. xv. 30, TS. ii. 6. 114, and MS. ii. 13. 7 — in all its occurrences offering precisely the same text. It was noticed above that it occurs in Ppp., but not in connection with the three preceding verses of this hymn — with which, indeed, it has nothing to do as regards sense. It was pointed out in the note to Prāt. ii. 72 that the prescription in that rule of s as the final of only iḍāyās before pada seems a strong indication that this verse was not a part of the AV. text as recognized by the Prāt. The comm. explains iḍas by iḍāyā bhūmyāḥ. [For consistency, sām sam ought to be printed sām-sam.]

64. For concord.

[Atharvan. — sāmmanasyam. vāiṣvadevam. ānuṣṭubham: [2. triṣṭubh].]

The first two verses are found in Pāipp. xix. The whole hymn is RV. x. 191. 2, 3, 4, and is also read in TB. ii. 4. 4+5, and (with the order of the verses inverted) in MS. ii. 2. 6. In neither of these texts does the first verse of the RV. hymn (our 63. 4) stand in connection with the other verses; and as the situation of the RV. hymn is one that calls for three verses only, it is pretty evident that the first verse (which also has nothing to do with the others in point of sense) is a later addition, and has also, by an extremely curious process, not paralleled elsewhere in our text, been added at the end of our 63, in order to stand in its RV. relation to the other verses. See Oldenberg, Die Hymnen des RV., i. 244. The hymn is used by Kāuṣ. (12. 5) in a rite for harmony, with iii. 30, v. 1, etc.

Translated: by the RV. translators; and, as an AV. hymn, by Ludwig, p. 372; Grill, 31, 164; Griffith, i. 280; Bloomfield, 136, 492.

1. Do ye concur; be ye closely combined; let your minds be concurrent, as the gods of old sat concurrent about their portion.

The other texts begin sām gachadhvam sām vadadhvam (but MS. jānidhvam); at the end, TB. reads (if it be not a misprint) upāsata; the pūrve gives, at any rate, a past meaning to -te. [Poona ed. has -ata.]

2. [Be] their counsel (māntra) the same, their gathering the same, their course (vratā) the same, their intent alike (sahā); I offer for you with the same oblation; do ye enter together into the same thought (cetas).

The other texts differ from ours in the first half-verse only in this, that RV. TB. read mānas instead of vratām in b; but our c is their d (TB.* having samjñānena for samānēna), and their c agrees nearest with our d, TB. reading s. kēto abhi sām rabhadhvam, RV. s. māntram abhi mantraye vah, and MS. s. krātum abhi mantrayadhvam. Ppp. has, for b, samānām cittān saha vo manānsi, and omits d. The Anukr. omits to describe the verse as a triṣṭubh. * [TB. has also yajāmas for juhomi.]

3. Be your design the same, your hearts the same, your mind the same, that it may be well for you together.

MS. has, for a, samānā vā (i.e. vas) ākūtāni. The comm. appears to understand su saha as two independent words in d. [See MGS. i. 8. 10 and p. 156, s.v. samānā.] [Pāda a lacks a syllable, easily supplied.]

65. For success against enemies.

[Atharvan (?). — cāndram utāi "ndram; pārāçaryam. ānuṣṭubham: 1. pathyāpañkti.]

Found also (vss. 1, 2) in Pāipp. xix. Used by Kāuç. (14. 7), with i. 2, 19-21, vi. 66, 67, 97-99, in a rite for victory over enemies; belongs (note to 14. 7) to the aparājita gana.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 372; Griffith, i. 281.

1. Down (dva) [be] the fury, down the drawn [arrow], down the two mind-yoked arms. O demolisher (parāçarā), do thou vex (ard) away the vehemence (çūṣma) of them; then get us wealth.

One can hardly help emending manyūs in a to dhānus 'bow.' For āyatā used pregnantly of an arrow ready to be launched, cf. vi. 38. 4 and xi. 2. 1 and vi. 66. 2. The combined idea of crushing and removing in parāçara cannot be briefly rendered; the comm. regards it as an epithet of Indra. For adhā nas in e, Ppp. reads better arvāñcam, as antithesis to parāñcam; the comm. has atha instead of adha.

2. The handleless shaft, O gods, which ye cast at the handleless ones — I hew [off] the arms of the foes with this oblation.

Apparently the oblation itself is the "shaft," called 'handleless' (nāirhastā) because it makes 'handleless' (nirhastā): so the comm. Ppp. has for second half-verse our 3 c, d. Our second half-verse is identical with iii. 19, 2 c, d, above.

3. Indra made the handleless one first for the Asuras. Let my warriors conquer by means of stanch Indra as ally (medin).

The last half-verse, as noted above, is found in Ppp. as 2 c, d.

66. For success against enemies.

[Atharvan (?). — cāndram utāi "ndram. ānuṣṭubham: 1. triṣṭubh.]

Found also in Ppp. xix. [but confused with h. 65]. Used by Kāuç. (14. 7) in a battle rite with the preceding hymn, which see; and reckoned to the aparājita gana.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 372; Griffith, i. 281.

1. Handleless be the assailing foe — they who come with armies to fight us; make them, O Indra, collide with the great weapon; let their evil-doer (? aghaḥarā) run (drā), pierced through.

The comm. to SV. explains aghaḥāra by atipratyavara; ours, by maraṇalakṣaṇasya duḥkhasya prāpayitā.

2. Ye who run (dhāv) stringing [the bow], drawing [the arrow] (āyam), hurling — handleless are ye, O foes; Indra hath now demolished you.

[For ā-yam, cf. vi. 65. 1.] Our text reads at the end -çarāit, on the authority of Bp.E.I.R.T. and O.; all SPP's authorities [save his B., which has -çarān] give -çarīt, which he has accordingly rightly adopted, as the better supported as well as the regular form [cf. vi. 75. 1]. Ppp. has parā 'çarī. [With regard to these āi-forms, see the note to vi. 32. 2.] SPP., contrary to his usual practice, retains the h of çatravaḥ before sth-. The comm. has stana in c. ["Demolished" stands in rapport with "demolisher" of 65. 1.]

3. Handless be the foes; their limbs we make to relax (mlā); then will we, O Indra, share among us their possessions hundred-fold.

All our mss. but one (D.), and nearly all SPP's, read çatravas, vocative, in a; both texts emend to çāt-.

67. For success against enemies.

[Atharvan (?). — cāndram utāi 'ndram. ānuṣṭubham.]

Not found in Pāipp. Used by Kāuç. (14. 7) in a battle rite with the two preceding hymns (and reckoned with them to the aparājita gaṇa): see under 65; also (16. 4) in another rite of the same class, for terrifying enemies, with vi. 98, with the direction "the king goes thrice about the army."

Translated: Ludwig, p. 518; Griffith, i. 282.

1. Everywhere about the routes Indra and Pūshan have gone; let yonder armies of our enemies today be confounded further away.

That is (a), to prevent access to our villages. The comm. takes parastarām as simply = atiçayena.

2. Go about confounded, ye enemies, like headless snakes; of you there, confounded by Agni, let Indra slay each best man (vāra).

This verse is SV. ii. 1221, and one of the supplementary verses to a RV. hymn (RV. x. 103. 15). SV. has, for a, b, andhā amitrā bhavatā 'çirṣāṇō 'haya iva, and, in c, agninunnānām. The RV. version (see Aufrecht's 2d edition, ii. 682) accents amitrā, reads -ṣāṇā āh- in b, and, in c, agnidagdānām agnimūlhānām. The translation implies the emendation amitrās instead of amitrās, which latter is given by all the authorities, and hence accepted in SPP's text. The comm. understands amitrās, voc.; and he explains b to mean as snakes with their heads cut off can merely move about, but not do anything in particular.

3. Fasten thou, as bull, the skin upon them; make the fear of the fallow-deer; let the enemy hasten (çs) away; let the cow hasten hither to us.

The sense of a is very obscure. One is tempted to combine vṛṣājinam into one word. The comm. makes harīnasya (= kṛṣṇamṛgasya) depend on ajnam, which cannot well be right, though it may be questioned whether, as dependent on bhīyam, it is subjective or objective genitive.* He explains the "skin" as used for somamanīve-ṣṭana; and the "cow" (d) as the enemy's wealth, in cows and the like. The combination of ūpa çatu into ūpeçatu falls under Prāt. iii. 52, and the case is quoted in the commentary to that rule. [Correct nahyā to nahya (accent-mark slipped out of place).]

*[In a marginal note, W. compares mitra-tūrya, v. 20. 7.]

68. To accompany the act of shaving.

[Atharvan (?).—mantruktadevatyam. 1. puruvirāḍ atīcākevarīgārbhā 4-p. jagatī; 2. anuṣṭubh; 3. atījagatīgārbhā triṣṭubh.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix. (in the verse-order 1, 3, 2), and in part in various Gṛhya-Sūtras, as noted under the several verses. [Further, in MP. ii. 1. 1-3; and MGS. i. 21. 2, 3, 14, 6 (cf. also Knauer's Index, p. 148, s.v. uṣṇena, p. 146, and p. 154).] The hymn is used by Kāuṣ., as was to be expected, in the godāna ceremony (53. 17-20), vs. 1 being addressed to the vessel of water used, vs. 2 accompanying the wetting of the youth, and vs. 3 the parting and cutting of the hair. Further, in the upanayana, at the beginning of the whole ceremony (55. 2), with the directions "do as directed in the text" etc.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 430; Griffith, i. 282.

1. Savitar here hath come with razor; come, O Vāyu, with hot water; let the Ādityas, the Rudras, the Vasus, wet [him] in accordance; do ye, forethoughtful, shave [the head] of king Soma.

'Wet,' corresponding to our 'lather.' Dignity is sought to be given to the operation by identifying the participants in it with various divinities. The second pāda is given, without variation, in AGS. i. 17. 6 and PGS. ii. 1. 6; the first and second are found in GGS. ii. 9. 10, 11, MB. i. 6. 1, 2, with agāt in a, and -kenāi 'dhi in b. Ppp. has, in b, vāyav udakena chi, and omits undantu in c. The combination vāya ud- is quoted under Prāt. ii. 21, 24; iii. 35; -kenē " 'hi, under iii. 38, 66. [Hillebrandt, Ved. Mythol., i. 472, may be consulted.]

2. Let Aditi shave the beard; let the waters wet [it] with splendor; let Prajāpati nurse (cikits) [it], in order to length of life, to sight.

Ppp's version of c, d is dhārayatu prajāpatiḥ punaḥ-punaḥ suvaptave. AGS. (i. 17. 7) has a, b, reading kecān for ṣmaṣru, and varcase for -sā; PGS. (ii. 1. 6) has adite kecān vapa, parallel to our a.

3. With what razor the knowing Savitar shaved [the head] of king Soma, of Varuṇa, therewith, ye priests (brahmān), shave [it] now of this man; be he rich in kine, in horses, in progeny.

Ppp. reads, for d, aḥyāmodīyur ayam astu vīraḥ. AGS. (i. 17. 10) and PGS. (ii. 1. 11) have our a, b, c without variant, but add as d, āyusmān jaradaṣṭir yathā 'sat. TB. (ii. 7. 17²) also has the verse, differing only in d: ūrjē 'mūn rayyā vārcasā sām syjātha; and with this HGS. (ii. 6. 10) agrees throughout. The ÇGS. version [i. 28] differs throughout: yenā 'vapat savitā ṣmaṣru agre kṣureṇa rājño varuṇasya vidvān: yena dhātā bṛhaspatir indrasya cā 'vapaḥ chiraḥ: tena brahmāṇo vapatē 'dam adyā 'yusmān dīrghāyur ayam astu vīraḥ (agreeing at the end with Ppp.). MB. (i. 6. 7) has a still other text: yena pūṣā bṛhaspater vāyor indrasya cā 'vapat: tena te vafāmi brahmaṇā jīvātave jīvanāya dīrghāyusṭvāya varcase. The verse (10+11: 11+12=44) contains no atījagatī element. [Ppp. combines asyā 'cyāmodīyur; and R. notes that c, d appears in Ppp. ii.]

69. For glory etc.

[Atharvan (? varcaskāmo yaçaskāmaç ca).—bṛhaspatyam utā 'çvinam. ānuṣṭubham.]

Verses like the first two are found in Pāipp., in two different books (1 in ii., 2 in xix.), but perhaps correspond rather to the nearly equivalent verses ix. 1. 18, 19. It is employed by Kāuṣ. (10. 24) at the end of the medhājanana ceremony, with iii. 16 and ix. 1, on rising and wiping the face; also twice (12. 15 and 13. 6) in varcasya rites, with the same two hymns (and is reckoned to both varcasya ganas: notes to 12. 10 and 13. 1); further, in the ceremony on beginning Vedic study, with vi. 38, 39, 58 and others (139. 15); and vs. 3 in the savayajñas (68. 7), as expiation for an error in the ceremonial. In Vāit., in the sāutrāmaṇī (30. 13), the hymn accompanies, with vi. 19 and ix. 1. 18, the pouring out of the surā.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 240; Griffith, i. 283.

1. What glory [is] in the mountain, in the aragdrāṭas, in gold, in kine, in strong-drink when poured out, [what] honey in sweet-drink, [be] that in me.

The verse corresponds nearly to ix. 1. 18, below; but the latter has a quite different first half, and with it Ppp. precisely agrees. What our aragarāṭa's are is wholly obscure, and the word is most probably a corruption. The comm. explains it in two alternative ways: as kings that 'go' (aṭa) in 'spoke(ara)-swallowers(gara),' i.e. chariots; or, as 'shouts' (rāṭa) of soldiers that 'go' (ga) at the 'enemy' (ara = ari)!

2. O ye Aṣvins, lords of beauty! anoint me with the honey of bees, that I may speak brilliant words among the people.

The verse is found below as ix. 1. 19, with the difference of a single word (vārcasvatīm for bhārgasv-). The comm. reads āvadāmi in ḍ. [SPP. gives the fuller spelling añhītam: cf. Gram. § 231 a.]

3. In me [be] splendor, also glory, also the fatness (pāyas) that belongs to the offering; let Prajāpati fix (dṛṣṭi) that in me, as the heaven in the sky.

The verse corresponds to iii. 1 in the Nāigeya supplement to the Sāma-Veda (or SV. i. 603), which, however, rectifies the meter of c by reading parameṣṭhī for tān māyi. "Heaven" and "sky" in ḍ are the same word; the comm. renders the latter by "atmosphere." The Anukr. does not note the deficiency in c.

70. To attach a cow to her calf.

[Kāñkāyana. — āghnyam. jāgataṃ.]

Not found in Pāipp. Used by Kāuṣ. (41. 18) in a rite for producing mutual attachment between cow and calf.

Translated: Grill, 65, 165; Griffith, i. 283; Bloomfield, 144, 493.

1. As flesh, as strong-drink, as dice on the gambling-board; as of a lustful man the mind is fastened (ni-han) on a woman — so let thy mind, O inviolable one (aghnyā), be fastened on thy calf.

The verses are six-pāda jagatī (6 × 8 = 48). [The stanza is wrongly numbered.]

2. As the elephant strains foot with foot of the she-elephant; as of a lustful man etc. etc.

The obscure first line is with intention rendered obscurely; the Petersburg Lexicon conjectures 'hastens after, step with step,' which then Grill follows. The comm. takes udyuṣṭe as = unnamayati, "bends up, for love (preṃṇā), her foot with his foot."

3. As the felly (pradhī), as the rim (upadhī), as the nave upon the felly; as of a lustful man etc. etc. [See p. xcii.]

The first line is again obscure, both in its internal relations and in its relation to the refrain (in this resembling 1 a, b). BR. define upadhī as 'the part of the wheel between the felly and nave,' but this ought to be arās 'the spokes': the comm. explains it as 'the circle, bound together by the felly, that is the binder together of the spokes' (nemisambaddhaḥ arāṇām sambandhako valayah) — i.e. a sort of rim inside the felly. Probably a solid wheel, without spokes, is had in view. We should expect some other preposition than adhi 'on' to express the relation of the nave to the felly.

71. Against harm from improper food.

[Brahman. — āgneyam : 3. vaiçvadevī. jāgatyam : 3. trīṣṭubh.]

Found also in Pāipp. ii. (in the verse-order 1, 3, 2), and vs. 1 a second time in xx. [For Yajus versions of vss. 1 and 3, see v. Schroeder's Zwei Hss., p. 16, and Tübingen Katha-hss., p. 77.] Used by Kāuṣ. (45. 17), with iii. 29, vii. 67, etc., in a rite (following the vaçāçamana), explained as for obviating ill effects from acceptance of gifts and the like; also (57. 29), in the upanayana, accompanying an offering by the pupil from the food obtained by begging. And Vāit. (4. 16) has it in the parvan sacrifice, as the priest eats his portion.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 433; Grill, 66, 165; Griffith, i. 284; Bloomfield, 196, 494.— See also Bergaigne-Henry, Manuel, p. 152.

1. What food of various form I eat oftentimes (bahudhā) — gold, horse, also cow, she-goat, sheep, just whatsoever I have accepted — let Agni the offerer (hōtar) make that well-offered.

Ppp. has, in c, kim cit, and for d, a. t. viçvād agadam k. TA. (ii. 6. 2¹²) has pādas a, b, c as a, b, d of a verse of five pādas: in b it inserts vāsas (Ppp. vāusu) before htraṇyam and omits (not Ppp.) āçvam after it; after b it inserts yād devānām cākṣusy āgo dṣti; in c it contracts jagrāhā 'hām into -jagrāhām; and it ends with agnir mā tūsmād anṛṇām kṛṇotu. The comm. (unless it is a misprint) reads jagrāha in c. The last pāda is x. 9. 26 d. The first two vss. are mixed jagatī and trīṣṭubh.

2. Whatever, offered [or] unoffered, hath come to me, given by the Fathers, assented to by human beings (manuṣyā), what my mind is as it were excited at — let Agni the offerer make that well-offered.

The comm. reads rārajitu in c, but explains it as an indicative. The mss. are divided between manuṣyāḥ (which both editions give) and -yāḥ at the end of b (our Bp.P.M. H.T.K. have the latter). Ppp. inserts yat after lutam in a. [W. has here overlooked a part of R's note, which (if I understand him) means that our vs. 2 continues in Ppp. thus: (b) yasmād anna manaso 'drārajīmi, (c, a corruption of TA's c given under vs. 1 above) yād devānām cākṣuṣākaçīnā, (d) 'gnīṣ etc.]

3. What food I eat unrighteously, O gods, and promise, intending to give [or] not intending to give — by the greatness of the great Vaiçvānara let [it] be propitious honeyed food for me.

TA. (ii. 6. 2¹¹) has the first half-verse, adding the same three pādas as above (see under vs. 1). For the doubtful saṅgrāmi it reads vā karīṣyān, and Ppp. has the same, also omitting (perhaps by accident) ūdāsyān. The second pāda is nearly repeated as 119.1 b, below. The comm. renders saṃgr̥ṇāmi by pratijānāmi. The Daç. Kar. cites (to Kāuç. 57.29: see the note to that rule) the three verses in full, but substitutes for 3 c, d our 53.2 c, d, vāiçvānaro no ad-, etc.

72. For virile power.

[Atharvāṅgīras. — çepo 'rkadevatyām. ānuṣṭubham : 1. jagatī ; 3. bhurij.]

Found also in Pāipp. xx. Used by Kāuç. (40.16, 17) in a rite for sexual vigor, with an amulet. The arka-thread spoken of in 16 may find its explanation in the peculiarity reported by Roxburgh (Flora Indica, ii. 31): "A fine sort of silky flax is in some parts prepared from the bark of the young shoots."

Translated: Griffith, i. 474. — Cf. iv. 4; vi. 101.

1. As the black snake spreads himself at pleasure, making wondrous forms (vāpus), by the Asura's magic (māyā), so let this arka suddenly make thy member altogether correspondent (? sāmsamaka), limb with limb.

The comm. reads sitas instead of asitās in a, and explains it as 'a man that is bound.' He takes arka as 'an amulet of arka-tree' (Calotropis gigantea, of which various medicinal use is made). In d he reads saṃ samagam and paraphrases the latter with 'of like going' (samānagamana). The Petersburg Lexicon conjectures for sāmsamaka 'joined to one another.' The verse is mixed triṣṭubh and jagatī.

2. As the member of the tayādara is made big by the wind — as great as is the member of the pārasvant, so great let thy member grow.

What creature the pārasvant is is unknown (Pet. Lex. "perhaps the wild ass"); the tayādara is yet more obscure, being mentioned only here. The comm. reads tāyodaram, and defines the tayodara as 'a kind of animal'; the bha of sthūlabha he takes as representing a verbal root: sthāulyena bhāsamānam.

3. As much of a limb as is that of the pārasvant, that of the elephant, and that of the ass — as great as of the vigorous (vājīn) horse, so great let thy member grow.

The comm. reads and explains yāvād aṅgīnam at the beginning as two independent words; the metrical irregularity, as well as the anomalousness of the word as a derivative and compound, suggest emendation to yāvād aṅgam (aṅgam = pasas). [Cf. Pischel, Ved. Stud., i. 83, with reference to the ass.]

The seventh anuvāka, having 11 hymns and 34 verses, ends here; and the mss. quote the old Anukr. to this effect: catasṛbhir adhikas tu sapṭamaḥ syāt.

73. To assure supremacy.

[Atharvan. — sāmmanasyam. mantroktanānādevatyam. trīṣṭubham : 1, 3. bhurij.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix. (with the verse-order 1, 3, 2). This hymn with iii. 12, vi. 93, xii. 1, is reckoned by Kāuç. to the vāstoṣṭpatyāni (8. 23) or the vāstu gaṇa; and the following hymn, with others (12. 5), to the sāmmanasyāni; also, by the schol. (note to 19. 1), to the puṣṭika mantras; and vs. 3 [so comm.: not vii. 60. 7] by itself (23. 6) in the ceremony of entering a new house.

Translated: Griffith, i. 284; Bloomfield, 135, 494.

1. Let Varuṇa come here, Soma, Agni; let Brihaspati with the Vasus come here; come ye together, [his] fellows, all of you, like-minded, unto the fortune of this stern corrector (ugrā cettī).

Ppp. reads abhi- instead of upa- in c, and has at the end sujātās. The comm. explains cettī as "one who properly understands the distinction of what is to be done and what is not to be done"; in this word cit seems to take the value of ci or cāy: 'one who notes and visits or requites.'

2. The vehemence (ṛiṣma) that is within your hearts, the design that has entered into your mind — that I frustrate with the oblation, the ghee; in me, O [my] fellows, be your satisfaction (ramāti).

Intended to restrain intending emigrants, apparently; as also vs. 3. All the mss., and both editions with them, read tān at the beginning of c, although it is unquestionably an error for tām, referring to ākūtim, as the comm. correctly reads and understands. Only one ms. (our Bp.²) has srīvayāmi, all the rest ṛīv-, or its phonetic product, chrīv-; but SPP. quite unaccountably (against the sense, and against the use of $\sqrt{sīv}$, which has no causative conjugation quotable before the Lalita-Vistara) adopts srīvayāmi from the comm. (= parasparasambaddhāu karomi): Ppp. has ṛevayāmi; and in d (as in 1 d) sujātās. The Anukr. should have noted the verse as nicrt. [Read yó vó 'stī in a?]

3. Be ye just here; go not away from us; let Pūshan make [it] pathless for you in the distance; let the lord of the dwelling (vāstu) call aloud after you; in me, O [my] fellows, be your satisfaction.

Ppp. has, in a, e 'ha yāta mā 'pa, at the beginning; it rectifies the meter of b by omitting vas; in c, it reads 'yam ahvan for johavītu; in d, it again has sujātās.

74. For harmony.

[Atharvan. — (as above.) ānuṣṭubham : 3. triṣṭubh, triṣṭubhadevatyā.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix. (in the verse-order 2, 1, 3). Reckoned by Kāuṣ. (12. 5), with the preceding hymn and others, to the sāmmanasyāni.

Translated: Griffith, i. 285; Bloomfield, 135, 495.

1. Together let your bodies be mixed (pīc), together your minds, together your courses; together hath this Brahmanaspati, together hath Bhaga made you come.

Ppp. has, for d, somaḥ saṁ sparṣayātu mām. The comm. renders samprcyantām by parasparānurāgeṇa saṁsrjyantām.

2. Concurrence of the mind for you, also concurrence of the heart, also what of Bhaga is wearied (ṛāntā) — therewith I make you concur.

Ppp. has, in d, saṁ jñāpayāti mām. It is one of the most peculiar and unaccountable of the occasional peculiarities of the paḍa-text that in d it reads sāmsjñāpayāmi, combining the preposition with the verb, though the former has the accent. Of all the mss. noted, only one of SPP's has the usual reading.* Ṛāntām in c seems an impossible reading, but even Ppp. gives nothing else. The comm. explains it as 'toil-born penance' (çramajanitani tapaḥ). Emendation to çāntam 'tranquillized,' i.e. tranquillity, would be very easy, and tolerably satisfactory. * [Whitney's collation certainly notes also D.Kp. as reading sām : jñāpayāmi; probably his eye rested on the samojñāpanam of b (which in his collation-book stands just above the samojñāpayāmi of d), when he wrote the above statement. I suspect that the avagraha of samojñāpayāmi has blundered in from the samojñāpanam of a and b by a similar mistake of the scribes.] [Cf. the pada reading ūpaçcekima at vi. 114. 2.]

3. As the Ādityas, severe (ugrā), not bearing enmity, united with the Vasus, with the Maruts, so, O three-named one, not bearing enmity, do thou make these people here like-minded.

Ppp. reads, in a, vasavas instead of vasubhis, and, in c, d, yamānam imāni janā sammanasāni kṛṇu tvam, which is better in so far as it makes ahṛṇ- adjunct of the object rather than of the subject in the sentence; our text desiderates āhṛṇīyamānān. The verse is found also in TS. (ii. 1. 113), which has, in b, marūdbhī rudrāḥ (our reading seems a corruption of this) samājānatā 'bhī; and, in c, d, yamānā vicve devāḥ sāmānaso bhavantu. A god triṇāman appears to be met with only in this verse; the one meant is probably Agni, as conjectured by BR., and also explained by the comm.

75. To eject a rival.

[Kabandha (sapatnakṣayakāmāḥ).—mantruktadevatyam; āindram. ānuṣṭubham : 3. 6-p. jagatī.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix. (with the verse-order 1, 3, 2); and in TB. (iii. 3. 113-4) and Āp. (iii. 14. 2). [TB. and Āp. agree with Pāipp. in the verse-order and several other points.] Used by Kāuç. (47. 10) in a rite of sorcery; and again similarly (48. 29-31), with strewing of darbha grass.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 373; Grill, 22, 165; Griffith, i. 285; Bloomfield, 92, 495.

1. I thrust yon man out of home, the rival who fights [us], with the oblation of ejection; Indra hath demolished him.

One of our mss. (O.) reads at the end also here (cf. 66. 2, above [and note to 32. 2]) -çarāit. Ppp., also TB.Āp., have nirb- at the beginning of c; and TB.Āp. have enāni in d (the two agree in every point through the hymn). [Ppp. parāçarī, as at 66. 2.]

2. Let Indra, Vritra-slayer, thrust him to the most distant distance, whence he shall not come back, through constant years (sāmā).

Ppp. TB.Āp. read tvā for tām in a, and TB.Āp. nayatu for nudatu in b, while Ppp. has, for b, indra devo acikṣat; all three have -yasi at end of c.

3. Let him go [beyond] three distances; let him go beyond the five peoples; let him go beyond the three shining spaces, whence he shall not come back, through constant years, so long as the sun shall be in the sky.

Instead of stu, TB.Āp. have three times ihī, and they omit pādas d, e; RV. (viii. 32. 22 a, b) agrees with them in pādas a, b. Ppp. reads anu for atī at end of b, and has, for c, the corrupt iha ca tvā tu rocanā; it omits d, e, like the other texts. The pada-text reads rocanā (not -nāḥ), maintaining the usual and proper gender of the word, although, being qualified by tisrās, it is apparently taken here as feminine, and should be rocanāḥ.

The mark of punctuation added after ḍ in our edition is not in the mss.; it was heedlessly introduced in going through the press; and the accent of çaçvatībhyaḥ is misprinted.

76. For a kṣatriya's security from death.

[Kabandha. — caturṛcam. sām̐tapānāgneyam. ānuṣṭubham : 3. kakummatī.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix. Used by Kāuṣ. (50. 4), with i. 26, 27 and vi. 3, by one desirous of success in conquest, and for other like purposes.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 459; Griffith, i. 286.

1. They who sit about him, who pile on [fuel] in order to beholding [him]—let Agni, fully kindled, with his tongues arise out of [their] heart.

The sense is somewhat obscure. In b, ckkṣase probably 'that he may become conspicuous'; the comm. very strangely renders it 'for injury' (hiṁsāyāi) and regards the "they" as demons and the like. Ppp. begins yene 'dam̐ par-, and elides the a of agnir in c.

2. Of the heating (? sām̐tapānā) Agni I take hold of the track (? padā), in order to length of life (āyus)—out of whose mouth the soothsayer (addhātī) sees the smoke arising.

Ppp. reads, for c, d, dhātur yasya paçyata mama dyantaç çritak̐, corrupt. The comm. explains pada as either 'place' (sthāna) or 'sound' (çabda).

3. He who knoweth the fuel of him, piled on by the kṣatriya—he setteth not the foot (padā) in detriment unto death.

Ppp. elides the initial a of asya in a, and begins c mā vihvare. To the comm., abhivāra is 'a roundabout crooked cause of meeting death.'

4. They that go about (paryāyīn) do not slay him, he goes not down to the dead (? sannā)—the kṣatriya who, knowing, takes the name of Agni unto length of life.

Ppp. has, in b, evam for ava; and, in c, viçvā for vidvān. The comm. understands sannān as '(the enemies) even when in his neighborhood'; Ludwig, 'die [im Hinterhalt?] gelagerten': cf. TB. ii. 4. 7¹¹ sannān mā 'va gāta.

[A supplementary note from Roth says that Ppp. has, inserted just before iv. 9. 7 of the Vulgate, the following: nāi 'nam̐ ghnantu paryāyaṇo na manvāṁ̐ iva gacchati : jane mana pramiyate yas tvāṁ̐ bibharty āñjana (cf. iv. 9. 5 ḍ).]

77. For recovery and retention of what is lost.

[Kabandha. — jātavedasam. ānuṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix. The comm. regards this hymn, and not vi. 44 (which has the same pratīka), as intended in Kāuṣ. 36. 5, in a rite concerning women (the prevention of a woman's escape, etc., comm.).

Translated: Ludwig, p. 468; Griffith, i. 286; Bloomfield, 106, 496.

1. The heaven hath stood; the earth hath stood; all this living world hath stood; on their base (āsthāna) the mountains have stood; I have made the horses stand in their station.

The first half-verse is 44. 1 a, b, above; the second is nearly vii. 96. 1 c, d, below. But Ppp. is different in c, d, and partly illegible; tiṣṭha . . . ime sthāmann aṣvā 'raṅsata can be read. The comm. inserts 'thee, O woman' in d, and regards aṣvān as an incomplete comparison: 'as they bind vicious horses with ropes!' Prāt. iv. 96 prescribes the unchanged pada-reading atiṣṭhīṣam. [Most of SPP's authorities have asthuh in saṁhitā.]

2. He who hath attained the going away, he who hath attained the coming in, the turning hither, the turning in — he who is herdsman, on him I call.

The first half-verse is nearly RV. x. 19. 5 a, b, and the second exactly ib. 4 c, d. RV. reads vyāyanam for parāyanam in a, and parāyanam for nyāyanam in b. The comm. appears to read nyayanam.

3. O Jātavedas, cause to turn in; be thy turners hither a hundred, thy turners this way a thousand; with them get for us again.

Ppp. has, for d, tābhir enaṁ ni vartaya, thus defining the object of all this recovering action to be some male person or thing. The comm. interprets it all through as a woman who has escaped or wants to escape. RV. x. 19 is aimed at kine. Pādas b and c are found in VS. xii. 8, which also ends with pūnar no naṣṭām ā kṛdhi pūnar no raytm ā kṛdhi. Santi would be a better reading in b.

78. For matrimonial happiness.

[Atharvan. — 1, 2. cāndramasyāu; 3. tvāṣṭrī. 1-3. anuṣṭubh.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix. [and at MP. i. 8. 6, 7, 10]. Employed by Kāuṣ. twice (78. 10, 14) in the marriage ceremonies, with other passages, with anointing the heads of the married pair, making them eat together, etc.

Translated: Weber, Ind. Stud. v. 238; Ludwig, p. 371; Grill, 57, 166; Griffith, i. 287; Bloomfield, 96, 498; also, as part of the MP. hymn, by Winternitz, Hochzeitsrituell, p. 73.

1. By this actual (? bhūtā) oblation let this man be filled up again; the wife that they have brought to him, let him grow superior (abhi-vṛdh) to her by essence (rāsa).

Ppp. has bhūtasya for bhūtena in a, and inverts the order of words in b. Grill acutely suggests bhūtyena in a, 'for prosperity (bhūti),' and the comm. paraphrases it with saṁṛddhikareṇa 'prosperity-making.' Abhi in d, and in 2 a, b, seems to have a meaning like that which it has in abhi-bhū. The comm. makes no difficulty of rendering the neuter vardhatām as if it were causative. Ppp. takes away the difficulty of the expression in this verse by the very different reading jāyām yām asmā 'vidam sā rasenā 'bhi vardhatām.

2. Let him grow superior to [her] by fatness (pāyas), let him grow superior to [her] by royalty; by wealth of thousand-fold splendor let these two be unexhausted.

Ppp. has, in a, prajayā instead of payasā. The accent stām is read by all but one (O.) of our mss. and by all but one [or two] of SPP's.

3. Tvashtar generated the wife, Tvashtar [generated] thee as husband for her; let Tvashtar make for you two a thousand life-times (āyus), a long life-time.

[Ppp. adds dadhāu after patim in b, which is better; has, in c, sahasra āy-; and, in d, mām for vām.]

79. For abundance at home.

[Atharvan. — samsphānadevatyam. gāyatram: 3. 3-p. prājāpatyā jagatī.]

[“Verse” 3 is prose.] Found also in Pāipp. xix.; and in TS. iii. 3. 8²⁻³. Kāuṣ. uses the hymn in a rite [21. 7] for prosperity (for fatness in grain, comm.), and it is reckoned (note to 19. 1) to the puṣṭika mantras. Vāit. (31. 4) has it in the sattra, on the ekāṣṭakā day, with offerings to the two deities mentioned.

Translated: Griffith, i. 288; Bloomfield, 141, 499.

1. Let the lord of the cloud (nābhas) here, the fattener, protect us, [grant] unequalledness (?) in our houses.

For the obscure āsamāti in c, the minor Pet. Lex. conjectures āsamarti ‘unharmlessness,’ which TS. has in the corresponding pāda, making an anuṣṭubh of the verse, with grhāṇām āsamartyāi bahavo no grhā asan for second half; the comm. explains it as ‘absence of division (pariccheda)* of the grain lying in our storehouses’; Ppp. is defaced, but appears to have read something different. TS. further has nābhasā purāś for -sasphāti in a. Most of our samhitā mss. (except E.H.s.m.O.) read nah after grhāsu; SPP. reports nothing of the kind from his authorities. The comm. regards Agni as intended by the “fattener.” * [I think the comm. intends rather ‘absence of determination or measure’: i.e. “may the grain be abundant beyond measure.”]

2. Do thou, O lord of the cloud, maintain for us sustenance (ūrj) in our houses; let prosperity, let good (vāsu) come.

TS. prefixes sā at the beginning, and has, for b, ūrjanē no dhehi bhadrāyā, then running off into an entirely different close. The comm. regards Vāyu as addressed.

3. O divine fattener, thou art master of thousand-fold prosperity; bestow upon us of that; assign to us of that; of that from thee may we be sharers.

In the first clause, Ppp. corrupts to sahasrapoṣe; it omits tasya no rāsva, and has bhākṣīmahi for bhaktivānsaḥ syāma. TS. has sahasrap-, and, after the division-mark, sā no rāsvā jyānim etc. (an entirely different close). The last part of the verse is found in K. v. 4, which reads at the end bhaktivāno bhūyāsma; and TB. iii. 7. 57 has the last phrase with [tāsyās te] bhaktivānaḥ syāma: a curious set of variants, all irregular or anomalous. The verse, according to the comm., is addressed to the sun.

80. The heavenly dog and the kālakāñjās.

[Atharvan. — cāndramasam. ānuṣṭubham: 1. bhurij; 3. prastārāpañkti.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix. (with the verse-order 1, 3, 2). The use of the hymn in Kāuṣ. and Vāit. is obscure and indefinite: the former applies it only (31. 18) in a healing rite for one who is pakṣahata (‘wounded in the side’? [Bl. suggests hemiplagia or paralysis.] The comm. reads in the Kāuṣ. text aṅgam mantroktamṛttikayā for mantroktam caṅkramayā of Bl's ed.); the latter has vs. 3 in the agniṣṭoma sacrifice, accompanying (23. 20) the avabhṛtha iṣṭi etc.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 373; Bloomfield, JAOS. xv. 163, with detailed discussion and comment; Griffith, i. 288; Bloomfield, again, SBE. xlii. 13, 500. — Bloomfield identifies the two "heavenly dogs" spoken of in various places with the dogs of Saramā and of Yama, and ultimately with the sun and moon.

1. He flies through the atmosphere, looking down upon all existences; what the greatness is of the heavenly dog, with that oblation would we pay worship to thee.

The first half-verse is RV. x. 136. 4 a, b, which differs only by reading rūpā instead of bhūtā in b; it is part of the hymn that extols the powers of the munī. Ppp. has a very different version of b, c, d: svar bhūtā vyacācalat: sa no divyasyāi 'dam mahas tasmā etena haviṣā juhomi.

2. The three kālakāñjās that are set (çritā) in the sky like gods — all them I called on for aid, for this man's unharmedness.

In explaining this verse, the comm. quotes from TB. (i. 1. 24-6) the legend of the Asuras named kālakāñjā, whose efforts to reach heaven Indra thwarted by a trick, except in the case of two of them, who became the heavenly dogs; a corresponding legend is found in MS. i. 6. 9 (p. 101, l. 1 ff.). The different numbers in our hymn, as regards both dog and kālakāñjas, are important, and suggest naturally the dog of our sky (Canis major or Sirius: so Zimmer, p. 353) and the three stars of Orion's belt, pointing directly toward it. The Anukr. does not notice the deficiency of a syllable in a.

3. In the waters [is] thy birth, in heaven thy station, within the ocean thy greatness, on the earth; what the greatness is of the heavenly dog, with that oblation would we pay worship to thee.

Ppp. substitutes [for c, d] again its own refrain, sa no divy- etc., as in vs. 1. The comm. regards the verse as addressed to Agni.

81. For successful pregnancy: with an amulet.

[Tvaṣṭar. — mantroktadcvatyam utā "dityam. ānuṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix. Applied by Kāuṣ. (35. 11) in a rite for conception of a male, with the direction iti mantroktam badhnūti; and the schol. (note to 35. 26) quotes it also in a women's rite.

Translated: Weber, Ind. Stud. v. 239; Ludwig, p. 477; Griffith, i. 289; Bloomfield, 96, 501. — Cf. Bergaigne-Henry, Manuel, p. 153.

1. Thou art a holder, thou holdest (yam) the two hands, thou drivest away the demons. Seizing (grah) progeny and riches, this hath become a hand-clasp (parihastā).

In Ppp., the a of abhūt in d is elided. The comm. reads kr̥vānas in c; he understands Agni to be addressed in a, b.

2. O hand-clasp, hold apart the womb, in order to placing of the embryo; O thou sign (? maryādā), put in a son; him do thou make to come, thou comer (? āgamā).

The obscure words maryādā and āgamā are apparently epithets of the parihasta; the comm. understands the [first] of the woman: maryādā = marya + ā-dā 'taken possession of by men'; [and he takes āgame as = āgamane sati 'when sexual approach takes place,' which would be acceptable if it did not wholly disregard the accent]. One might conjecture maryādās 'giver of a male.' Ppp. has at end -gamah.

3. The hand-clasp that Aditi wore [when] desiring a son — may Tvashṭar bind that on for her, saying "that she may give birth to a son."

Ppp. reads suṅāt in d. For Aditi desiring a son, compare xi. 1. 1.

82. To obtain a wife.

[Bhaga (jāyākāmah). — āindram. ānuṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix. Used by Kāuṣ. (59. 11), in a kānya rite, by one desiring a wife; and again, in the nuptial ceremonies (78. 10), with vi. 78 etc.

Translated: Weber, Ind. Stud. v. 239; Ludwig, p. 470; Grill, 57, 167; Griffith, i. 289; Bloomfield, 95, 502.

1. I take the name of the arriving, the arrived, the coming one; Indra the Vritra-slayer I win (van), him of the Vasus, of a hundred-fold power.

The construction of van with a genitive is apparently elsewhere unknown, and is of doubtful sense. Ppp. has instead rājño 'of the king,' which makes the correctness of vanve very doubtful. Ppp. also combines āgachatā "gatasya in a. The comm. reads at the end çatakrato, vocative; he apparently takes āyatās in b as āyatas, from yam (niyato 'ham') [or, alternatively, with indrasya].

2. By what road the Aṣvins carried Sūryā, daughter of Savitar, by that, Bhaga said to me, do thou bring a wife.

In b, açvino "hātus is perhaps better to be taken apart to açvina: ā-nhātus, but the pada-text has no ā. [Cf. Bergaigne, Rel. Véd., ii. 486-7.]

3. The good-giving, great, golden hook that is thine, O Indra — with that, O lord of might (çācī-), assign thou a wife to me who seek a wife.

Ppp. retains the a of añkuças, and has, for d, tvam dhehi çatakrato. The comm. reads, in a, vasudhānas.

The eighth anuvāka, containing 10 hymns and 31 verses, ends with this hymn; the old Anukr. says: ekatriṅçakam aṣṭamanī vadanti.

83. To remove apacits.

[Aṅgiras. — caturṛcam. mantroktadevatyam. ānuṣṭubham: 4. 1-av. 2-p. nicṛd ārcy anuṣṭubh.]

[Part (vs. 4) prose.] Found also in Pāipp. i. (but without the added vs. 4). Kāuṣ. (31. 16) employs it in a healing rite, with vii. 76 (against gaṇḍamālā, schol., comm.); vss. 3 c, d and 4 are specified in the sequel of the rite (31. 20, 21); the comm. treats vs. 4 as beginning of hymn 84; it is applied by Kāuṣ. in the treatment of a sore of unknown origin (ajñātārus: catuspād gaṇḍa, comm.).

Translated: Ludwig, p. 500; Bloomfield, JAOS. xiii., p. ccxviii (= PAOS., Oct. 1887), or AJP. xi. 324; Griffith, i. 290; Bloomfield, agan, SBE. xlii. 17, 503.

1. O apacīts, fly forth, like a bird (suparṇā) from its nest; let the sun make remedy; let the moon shine you away.

It was Bloomfield (in the article referred to above) who first maintained that the apacīts is a pustule or sore. The comm. directly identifies the apacīts with the ganḍa-mālās, "scrofulous swellings of the glands of the neck" (BR.), and explains all the processes implied in the hymn as referring to such. His etymology of the word under this verse is 'gathered offward by reason of defect' (doṣavaçād apāk cīyamānāḥ), and he describes them as 'beginning from the throat [and] proceeding downward' (galād ārabhya adhastāt prasṛtāḥ). The accent of hṛṇōtu in c is the usual antithetical one; SPP. makes a wholly unnecessary and very venturesome suggestion to explain it.

2. One [is] spotted, one whitish (cyēnī), one black, two red; of all have I taken the name; go ye away, not slaying [our] men.

The comm. explains enī as iṣadraktamiçraçveta.

3. Barren shall the apacīts, daughter of the black one, fly forth; the boil (glāū) shall fly forth from here; it shall disappear from the neck (? galuntās).

The translation here given of galuntās is the purest conjecture, as if the word were a corruption of some form of gala (our W.O.D. read galantās), with ablative-suffix tas. It might contain gaḍu 'excrecence on the throat'; indeed, the comm. etymologizes it as gaḍūn + \sqrt{tas} ! He understands na çīsyati as two independent words. Ppp. has sakalan tena çudhyati (or çusyati), perhaps 'thereby it dries wholly up.' For rāmāyaṇī, compare vii. 74. 1.

4. Partake (vī) of [thine] own oblation, enjoying with the mind; hail! as now I make oblation with the mind.

This verse, which breaks the uniformity of the book, is evidently an intrusion, and has no apparent connection with the rest of the hymn, although it is acknowledged by both Anukr. and comm. The latter curiously mixes it up with vs. 1 of the next hymn, reckoning it with 84. 1 a, b as one verse, and reckoning 84. 1 c, d and 2 as the following verse, thus [making 83 a tr̥ca and 84 a catur̥ca]. [An ārcy anuṣṭubh would seem to be 24 syllables.]

84. For release from perdition.

[Āngiras. — catur̥cam. nāir̥tam. 1. bhurig-jugatī; 2. 3-p. ārcī bh̥hatī; 3. 4. jagatī; 4. bhurik triṣṭubh.]

This hymn is not found in Pāipp. Kāuç. applies it (52. 3), with vi. 63 and 121, in a rite for welfare. The comm. takes no notice of this, but regards the hymn as implied in 31. 21: see under the preceding hymn. In Vāit. (38. 1) it is found used in a healing rite in the puruṣamedha: this also the comm. overlooks.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 444; Griffith, i. 291.

1. Thou in whose terrible mouth I make oblation, in order to the release of these bound ones; people think of thee as "earth"; I know thee completely as "perdition" (nīr̥ṛti).

The verse is found also in VS. (xii. 64), TS. (iv. 2. 53), and MS. (ii. 2. 1). In a, for āsāni ghoré, VS.MS. have ghorá āsān, and TS. krūrā āsān; before it, TS. inserts asyās, while MS. begins yád adyá te; in b, all (also our comm.) read bandhānām, which is better; MS. has after it pramācanāya, and all omit kām; for c, d, VS.MS. have yāñi tvā jāno bhūmir iti pramādate nrytiñ tvā hām pári veda viçvātañ, while TS. agrees nearly with our text, though having simply jānā vidūr for abhiprāmanvate jānāñ, and at the end viçvātañ. The chief result for our text is the demonstration of manvate as probably a corruption of mandate. It was noted at the end of the preceding hymn that the comm. mixes up the end and beginning of the two hymns. The metrical definition of the Anukr. is very poor.

2. O earth (?), be thou rich in oblations; this is thy share which is in us; free these [and] those from sin: hail!

The translation follows Ludwig's suggested emendation of bhūte at the beginning to bhūme.

3. So, O perdition, do thou, free from envy, kindly unfasten from us the bond-fetters of iron. Yama verily giveth thee back to me; to that Yama, to death, be homage.

All of this verse except the first pāda is a repetition of 63. 2 b, c, d, above. The comm. explains anehā by anāhantri. The fourth is the only jagatī pāda.

4. Thou wast bound here to an iron post, bridled with deaths that are a thousand; do thou, in concord with Yama, with the Fathers, make this man ascend to the highest firmament.

This verse is a repetition of 63. 3, above.

85. For relief from yákṣma.

[Atharvan (yákṣmanāçanakāmañ).—vānaspatyam. ānuṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix. Used by Kāuç. (26. 33-37) in a healing rite, with vi. 109, 127 and others; in 37 with the direction mantroktam badhnāti; and reckoned (note to 26. 1) to the takmanāçana gaṇa. And the first half of vs. 2 is part of a verse given entire in 6. 17.

Translated: Griffith, i. 291; Bloomfield, 39, 505.

1. The varaṇá, this divine forest-tree, shall ward off (vāray-); the yákṣma that has entered into this man — that have the gods warded off.

The verse is repeated as x. 3. 5. An amulet made of varaṇá is used, as the comm. points out. [Similar word-play at iv. 7. 1— see note.] The deficiency of a syllable in a is not noticed by the Anukr.

2. With the word (vācas) of Indra, of Mitra, and of Varuṇa, with the voice (vāc) of all the gods, do we ward off thy yákṣma.

3. As Vritra stopped (stambh) these waters [when] going in all directions, so, by means of Agni Vāiçvānara, do I ward off thy yákṣma.

For viçvādhā yatīs, in b, the comm. reads viçvadhāyanis. Ppp. combines, in a, vritrāi mā pah.

86. For supremacy.

[Atharvan (vṛṣakāmaḥ). — ekavṛṣadevatyam. āmiṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix. Employed by Kāuṣ. (59.12), in a kāmya rite, by one who is vṛṣakāma (ṣrāiṣṭhyakāma, comm.); and the schol. (note to 140.6) adds it to v. 3. 11 and vii. 86, 91 as used in the indramahotsava.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 241; Griffith, i. 292.

1. Chief (vṛṣan) of Indra, chief of heaven, chief of earth is this man, chief of all existence; do thou be sole chief.

“Chief,” lit’ly ‘bull’: foremost, as the bull is of the herd. Indrasya in a can hardly stand; rather āindrasya, or, we may conjecture, īdhrasya (cf. īdhriya, vīdhra).

2. The ocean is master of the streams; Agni is controller of the earth; the moon is master of the asterisms; do thou be sole chief.

Ppp. has, in c, sūryas instead of candramās; the latter makes a redundant pāda, unnoticed by the Anukr.

3. Universal ruler art thou of Asuras, summit of human beings; part-sharer of the gods art thou; do thou be sole chief.

The comm. understands ‘part-sharer’ to mean “having a share equal to that of all the other gods together,” and applies it to Indra.

87. To establish some one in sovereignty.

[Atharvan. — dhrāvvyam. ānuṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix. [This hymn and verses 1 and 2 of the next, form one continuous passage in the RV. (x. 173. 1-5): see Oldenberg, Die Hymnen des RV., i. 248-9; and cf. introduction to our iii. 12.] It is further found in TB. (ii. 4. 2⁸⁻⁹) and K. (xxxv. 7). This hymn and the one next following are used together by Kāuṣ.: in a kāmya rite (59.13), by one desiring fixity (dhrāvvyam or sthāirya); in a rite of expiation for earthquakes (98.3), with xii. 1; and the comm. regards them (and not iii. 12. 1, 2) as intended by dhruvāu at 136.7 (and the same should doubtless be said of 43.11), in the rite against the portent of broken sacred vessels; further, they appear in the indramahotsava (140.8), 87. 1 c being curiously specified in addition. In Vāit. (28.16), this hymn alone (or vs. 1) appears in the agnicayana, at the raising of the ukhṛyāgni.

Translated: by the RV. translators, and Zimmer, p. 163; and, as AV. hymn, by Ludwig, p. 373; Griffith, i. 292.

1. I have taken thee; thou hast become within; stand thou fixed, not unsteady; let all the people (vīṣas) want thee; let not the kingdom fall away from thee.

The RV. version has, in a, edhi for abhūs; and RV.TB. (also VS.xii. 11) have -cācalis at end of b; and so has TS. (iv. 2. 14), though it reads [in ḍ asmln for mā tvāt and ṣraya for bhraṣat]; while MS. (ii. 7.8) agrees with our text in a, b, c, but gives for ḍ asme rāṣṭrāṇi dhārāya. The comm. explains antar abhūs by asmākam madhye ‘dhipatīr abhavah, which reminds us of madhyameṣṭhā and madhyamaṣi [see note to iv. 9.4]. [Our c is the c of iv. 8.4 (see the note thereon), of which the TB. version has our d here as its d.]

2. Be thou just here; be not moved away; like a mountain, not unsteady; O Indra, stand thou fixed just here; here do thou maintain royalty.

RV.TB. have again -cācalis at end of b, and TB. has vyathīṣṭhās for āpa cyoṣṭhās in a. The metrical contraction parvate 'va is not opposed by the Anukr. At beginning of c, RV.TB.Āp. have the better reading indra ive 'hā (to be read indre 've 'hā: whence, doubtless, the AV. version); and, as the comm. gives the same, SPP. has adopted it in his text, against all his authorities as well as ours. The AV. version (found also in Ppp.) is not to be rejected as impossible; the person is himself addressed in it as Indra: i.e., as chief. Ppp. has ni for u in d. ĀpÇS. (xiv. 27. 7) has the RV. version, except yajñam for rāṣṭram in d. In our text an accent-sign has dropped out under the ṣṭhe of -ṣṭhe 'hā in c-d.

3. Indra hath maintained this man fixed by a fixed oblation; him may Soma bless, and Brahmanaspati here.

RV. begins imām indro ad-, and has, in d, tāsmā u for ayām ca. TB. (also ĀpÇS. xiv. 27. 7, which agrees with it throughout [except bruvan for bravan]) has enam for etām in a, and tāsmāi devā ādhi bravan for c. [Our c, d occurred above, 5. 3 c, d.]

88. To establish a sovereign.

[Atharvan.—dhrūvayam. ānuṣṭubham: 3. triṣṭubh.]

The hymn does not occur in Pāipp., but its first two verses are RV. x. 173. 4, 5 (continuation of those corresponding to our 87). For its use by Kāuṣ. with the preceding hymn, see under the latter.

Translated: by the RV. translators and by Zimmer (p. 163), in part; and Ludwig, p. 255; Griffith, i. 293.

1. Fixed [is] the sky, fixed the earth, fixed all this world of living beings (jāgat), fixed these mountains; fixed [is] this king of the people (viçām).

RV. varies from this only in the order of pādas, which is a, c, b, d. TB. (ii. 4. 2⁸) and ĀpÇS. (xiv. 27. 7) follow our order, but have dhruvā ha for dhruvāśas in c; MB. (i. 3. 7) has our a, b, c.

2. Fixed for thee let king Varuṇa, fixed let divine Brihaspati, fixed for thee let both Indra and Agni maintain royalty fixed.

The RV. verse differs in no respect from this.

3. Fixed, unmoved, do thou slaughter the foes; make them that play the foe fall below [thee]; [be] all the quarters (dīç) like-minded, concordant (sadhryāñc); let the gathering (sāmiti) here suit (k!p) thee [who art] fixed.

With d compare v. 19. 15 c. The comm. reads pātayasva at end of b. The last pāda is jagatī. The comm. renders kalpatām by samarthā bhavatu.

89. To win affection.

[Atharvan.—mantroktadāvatam. ānuṣṭubham.*]

This hymn also, like the preceding, is wanting in Pāipp. Kāuṣ. (36. 10-11) applies it in a women's rite, for winning affection, addressing the head and ear, or wearing the hair, of the person to be affected. * [The Anukr. text is confused here; but the Berlin ms. seems to add manyuvināṣanam.]

Translated: Weber, Ind. Stud. v. 242; Griffith, i. 293.

1. This head that is love's (? preñt), virility given by Soma — by what is engendered out of that, do we pain (çocaya) thy heart.

Preñt is as obscure to the comm. as to us; he paraphrases it by premaḥrāpaka 'that obtains (or causes to obtain) affection.' He takes vṛṣṇya as adj., treats pari prajātena in c as one word, and supplies to it snehaviçeṣeṇa. [Whitney's O. combines tātas pari.]

2. We pain thy heart; we pain thy mind; as smoke the wind, close upon it (sadhryāñc), so let thy mind go after me.

The sign in our text denoting kampa in sadhryāñ should have been, for consistency's sake, 1 (as in SPP's text) and not 3; the mss., as usual, vary between 1 and 3 and nothing. The comm. reads sadhrim.

3. Unto me let Mitra-and-Varuṇa, unto me divine Sarasvatī, unto me let the middle of the earth, let both [its] ends fling (sam-as) thee.

The comm. renders samasyatām by samyojayatām.

90. For safety from Rudra's arrow.

[Atharvan.—rāudram. 1, 2. anuṣṭubh; 3. ārṣi bhurig uṣṇih.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix. (in the verse-order 2, 1, 3). Used by Kāuṣ. (31. 7) in a healing rite against sharp pain (çūla); also reckoned (note to 50. 13) to the rāudra gaṇa.
Translated: Grill, 14, 168; Griffith, i. 294; Bloomfield, 11, 506.

1. The arrow that Rudra hurled at thee, at thy limbs and heart, that do we now thus eject asunder from thee.

Ppp. has, for c, imāñ tvām adya te vayam. The comm. understands the infliction to be the çūlaroga (colic?). [In c, idām, 'thus' or 'herewith' i.e. 'with this spell' ?]

2. The hundred tubes that are thine, distributed along thy limbs, of all these of thine do we call out the poisons.

Ppp. reads hirās for çatam in a, and sākam for vayam in c. The comm. takes nirviṣāñi as a single word in d (= viṣarahitāñi). [Cf. i. 17. 3.]

3. Homage to thee, O Rudra, when hurling; homage to [thine arrow] when aimed (prātihita); homage to it when let fly; homage to it when having hit.

Ppp. has, in b, pratihatābhyas; in c, d, viṣṭjyamanābhyo namas trayatābhyak (but in i., where the verse is also found, nipatitābhyak). The verse is uṣṇih only by number of syllables.

91. For remedy from disease.

[Bhṛgvañgīras. — mantroktayakṣmanāṣanadevatyam. ānuṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix. Used by Kāuṣ. (28. 17–20) in a healing rite against all diseases (in 17 with v. 9; in 20 alone), with binding on of a barley amulet; also reckoned to the takmanāṣana gaṇa (note to 26. 1).

Translated: Grill, 14, 168; Griffith, i. 295; Bloomfield, 40, 507.

1. This barley they plowed mightily with yokes of eight, with yokes of six; therewith I unwrap away the complaint (rāpas) of thy body.

The last half-verse is defaced in Ppp.; it appears to end pratīcīna apahvayatā.

2. Downward blows the wind; downward burns the sun; downward the inviolable [cow] milks; downward be thy complaint.

This verse is RV. x. 60. 11; the latter rectifies the meter of a by introducing áva ('va') before vāti [or rather, by not being guilty of the haplography which spoils our AV. text: cf. note to iv. 5. 5]. The Anukr. ignores the deficiency of our text.

3. The waters verily are remedial; the waters are disease-expelling; the waters are remedial of everything; let them make remedy for thee.

The first three pādas are the same with those of iii. 7. 5, above; and the whole verse corresponds with RV. x. 137. 6, which differs only by reading sarvasya for viśvasya in c. Ppp. has a wholly original second half-verse: āpaḥ samudrārthāyatīḥ parā vahantu te rapāḥ.

92. For success of a horse.

[Atharvan. — vājīnam. trīṣṭubham: 1. jagatī.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix. Applied by Kāuṣ. (41. 21) in a rite for the success of a horse; and by Vāit. (36. 18) in the aṣvamedha, as the sacrificial horse is tied.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 459; Griffith, i. 295; Bloomfield, 145, 507.

1. Be thou, O steed (vājīn), of wind-swiftness, being harnessed (yuḡ); go in Indra's impulse, with mind-quickness; let the all-possessing Maruts harness thee; let Tvashṭar put quickness in thy feet.

The verse is also VS. ix. 8, where, for b, is read Indrasye 'va dākṣiṇaḥ ṣṛiyāt' dhi. Ppp. puts bhava after vājīn in a, and reads dāiviyasya for viśvavedasas in c. The comm. gives an alternative explanation of viśvavedas, as often of its near equivalent jātavedas: viśvadhanaḥ sarvagocarañāno vā. The Anukr., as often, takes no note of the trīṣṭubh pāda d.

2. The quickness, O courser, that is put in thee in secret, also that went about committed to the hawk, to the wind — with that strength do thou, O steed, being strong, win the race, rescuing in the conflict.

This verse also is found in VS. (ix. 9 a), with considerable variants: at the beginning, javō yās te vājīn; for b, ṣyené páritto ácarac ca vāte; in c, nas for tvám; for d, vājajíc ca bháva sámāne ca pār-. Ppp. resembles this in b: ṣyene caratī yaḥ ca vāte. Half SPP's authorities end with -iṣṭú; I have noted no such reading among our mss.

The Anukr. ignores the irregularity of this verse and of vs. 3. [The vs. is discussed by Bloomfield, JAOS. xvi. 17, or Festgruss an Roth, p. 154. For d, see Pischel, Ved. Stud., ii. 314, and Baunack, KZ. xxxv. 516.]

3. Let thy body, O steed, conducting a body, run pleasance (vāmā) for us, protection for thyself; uninjured, great, a god for maintaining, may he set up his own light in the sky, as it were.

This is translated literally according to the AV. text, although comparison with the corresponding RV. verse (x. 56. 2) shows that its readings are in part pure corruptions. So, in b, RV. makes [the meter good and] the sense easy by giving dhātu for dhāvatu; in c it has devān for devās (the comm. gives instead divas); and, in d, mimīyās (ā mimīyāt = āgacchatu, comm.). Ppp. has, for a, aste vājīn tanvaṃ vahantu; in c, avīhvytas; in d, svarānasīvām. The verse is probably originally addressed to Agni, and added here only because of the occurrence of vājīn at its beginning. The comm. understands tanvaṃ in a of a rider: ārūḍhasya sādīnaḥ ṣarīram.

The ninth anuvāka, of 10 hymns and 32 verses, ends here; the old Anukr. is thus quoted: devyadhikāṃ apacit.

93. For protection: to many gods.

[Ṣaṃtāti. — rāudram: 3. bahudevatyā. trāiṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix. Reckoned by Kāuṣ. (8. 23) to the vāstoṣpatyāni, and also (9. 2) to the brhachānti gaṇa; used (50. 13), with vi. 1, 3, 59, and others, in a rite for welfare; further added (note to 25. 36) to the svastyayana gaṇa.

Translated: Muir, iv. 333; Ludwig, p. 322; Griffith, i. 296.

1. Yama, death, the evil-killer, the destroyer, the brown Ṣarva, the blue-locked archer, the god-folk that have arisen with their army—let them avoid our heroes.

All the authorities read āstrā in b; both editions make the necessary emendation to āstā, which is also read by the comm. and by Ppp. Ppp. further, in b, has bhava instead of babhrus, and ends with -khaṇḍi; in c it has vṛñjanti (its exchange of -ti and -tu is common).

2. With mind, with libations, with flame (? hāras), with ghee, unto the archer Ṣarva and unto king Bhava—to them (pl.), who are deserving of homage, I pay homage; let them conduct those of evil poison away from us.

The pāda-text, in d, reads aghā-viṣāḥ, doubtless accus. pl. fem., and belonging to śūś 'arrows' understood; but the comm. supplies instead krtyās. [For c, 'to the homage-deserving ones,—homage to th'm I pay.']

3. Save ye us from them of evil poison, from the deadly weapon, O all ye gods, ye all-possessing Maruts; Agni-and-Soma, Varuṇa of purified skill; may we be in the favor of Vāta-and-Parjanya.

The third pāda in our text is made up of nominatives, coördinated neither with the vocatives of b nor with the genitive of d. Ppp. has, for b, c, agnīṣomā marutaḥ pūta-dakṣāḥ: viṣve devā maruto vāiṣvadevās, which may all be vocatives. The Anukr. takes no notice of the metrical irregularities of the verse.

94. For harmony.

[Atharvāṅgiras. — sārasyatyam. ānuṣṭubham. 2. virād jagatū.]

The first verse (= iii. 8. 5; the four preceding verses of iii. 8 occurred elsewhere) is found in Pāipp. xix. The comm. regards it as intended by Kāuṣ. 12. 5, in a rite for harmony; as, in almost identical terms, he had above (under iii. 8) declared iii. 8. 5, 6 to be intended.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 514; Griffith, i. 296; Bloomfield, 138, 508.

1. We bend together your minds, together your courses, together your designs; ye yonder who are of discordant courses, we make you bend [them] together here.

Ppp. in ḍ apparently saṁ jñāpayāmasi.

2. I seize [your] minds with [my] mind; come after my intent with [your] intents; I put your hearts in my control; come with [your] tracks following my motion.

These two verses are a repetition of iii. 8. 5, 6. In our text, -rete at the end of b is a misprint for reta. [As to the meter, see note to iii. 8. 6.]

3. Worked in for me [are] heaven-and-earth; worked in [is] divine Sarasvatī; worked in for me [are] both Indra and Agni; may we be successful here, O Sarasvatī.

Save the last pāda, this verse is a repetition of v. 23. 1. The comm. paraphrases ota by ābhimukhyena samītata or parasparam sambaddha.

95. For relief from disease: with kúṣṭha.

[Bhṛgvaṅgiras. — vānaspatyam; mantroktadevatyam. ānuṣṭubham.]

The hymn is not found in Pāipp. As in the case of the preceding hymn, the first two verses have already occurred in the AV. text: namely, as v. 4. 3, 4. The comm. regards this hymn as included in the kúṣṭhalīṅgās of Kāuṣ. 28. 13; and vs. 3 (instead of v. 25. 7) as intended in Vāit. 28. 20, in the agnicayana.

Translated: Griffith, i. 297.

1. The aṣvatthá, seat of the gods, in the third heaven from here; there the gods won the kúṣṭha, the sight of immortality.

2. A golden ship, of golden tackle, moved about in the sky; there the gods won the kúṣṭha, the flower of immortality.

SPP. reads in c púṣpam, with, as he claims, all his authorities save one; as the verse is repeated from a book to which the comm. has not been found, we do not know how he read. [See W's note to v. 4. 4. But a note in his copy of the printed text here seems to prefer púṣpam.]

3. Thou art the young (gárbha) of herbs; the young also of the snowy [mountains], the young of all existence; make thou this man free from disease for me.

The comm. understands the third verse as addressed to Agni; but much more probably the kuṣṭha is intended. From garbho in c the superfluous accent-mark above the line is to be deleted. [Our a, b, c are nearly v. 25. 7 a, b, c; and d is nearly v. 4. 6 c.]

96. For relief from sin and distress.

[Bhṛgvañgīras. — vānaspatyam : 3. sāumyā. ānuṣṭubham : 3. 3-p. virāṇ nāma gāyatrī.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix. (for other correspondences, see under the verses). Employed by Kāuṣ. (31. 22) in a remedial rite against reviling by a Brahman, against dropsy, etc. (the direction in the text is simply iti mantroktasyāu ṣadhābhir dhūpayati), making incense with herbs; and it is regarded (note to 32. 27) as included among the anholīṅgās.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 506; Grill, 38, 168; Griffith, i. 297; Bloomfield, 44, 509.

1. The herbs whose king is Soma, numerous, of hundred-fold aspect (? vicakṣaṇa), impelled by Brihaspati — let them free us from distress.

The first half-verse is RV. x. 97. 18 a, b (with ṣadhīs [which makes better meter] for -dhayas) and VS. xii. 92 a, b (like RV.); TS. iv. 2. 64 agrees only in a (with -dhayas). The second half-verse is RV. x. 97. 15 c, d and VS. xii. 89 c, d, and TS. in iv. 2. 64 c, d, and MS. in ii. 7. 13 (p. 94. 12) c, d — all without variation. The comm. explains ṣata-vicakṣaṇās by ṣatavidhadarṣanāḥ, nānāvidhajñānopetāḥ. [MB. ii. 8. 3 a, b follows the RV. version of our a, b.]

2. Let them free me from that which comes from a curse, then also from that which is of Varuṇa, then from Yama's fetter, from all offense against the gods.

The verse is repeated below, as vii. 112. 2. It is RV. x. 97. 16, VS. xii. 90, which have sārvasmāt in d; and Ppp. reads the same; and LṢ. ii. 2. 11, ĀpṢ. vii. 21. 6 are to be compared. Whether padbīṣāt or padvīṣāt should be read is here, as elsewhere, a matter of question; our edited text gives -b-, but most of our mss. read -v-, as also the great majority of SPP's authorities, and he prints (rightly enough) -v-; VS. has -v-, RV. -b-; the comm. has -b-.

3. If (yāt) with eye, with mind, and if with speech we have offended (upa-ṛ) waking, if sleeping, let Soma purify those things for us with svadhā.

Compare vi. 45. 2, of which the second pāda agrees with ours. Ppp. inserts another yat before manasā in a, and has, for c, d, somo mā tasmād enasaḥ svadhayā punāti vidvān.

97. For victory.

[Atharvan. — māitrāvaruṇam. trāiṣṭubham : 2. jagatī ; 3. bhurij.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix. The three hymns 97–99 are used together in a battle rite, for victory, with vi. 65–67 and others, by Kāuṣ. (14. 7); and they are reckoned to the aparājita gaṇa (note to 14. 7), and noted by the comm. as therefore intended at 139. 7; they are again specifically prescribed in the indramahotsava (140. 10): a full homa is offered, with the king joining in the act.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 460; Griffith, i. 298; Bloomfield, 122, 510.

1. An overcomer (abhibhñ) [is] the sacrifice, an overcomer Agni, an overcomer Soma, an overcomer Indra; that I may overcome (abhi-as) all fighters, so would we, Agni-offerers, pay worship with this oblation.

The comm. paraphrases agnihotrās by agnāu juhvataḥ. [The Anukr. balances the deficiencies of a, b by the redundancies of c, d.]

2. Be there svadhā, O Mitra-and-Varuṇa, inspired ones; fatten (pinv) ye here with honey our dominion, rich in progeny; drive off perdition far away; put away from us any committed sin.

Ppp. has, in a, b, prajāpatis for vīp. praj.; in c, dveṣas for dūram; and, for d, asmāi kṣatram vacā dhattam ojaḥ. The second half-verse is RV. i. 24. 9 c, d, also found in TS. (i. 4. 45¹) and MS. (i. 3. 39); all have bādhasva and mumugdhi, 2d sing.; for dūram in c, RV. has dūrē, TS. (like Ppp.) dvēṣas, and MS. omits it, prefixing instead ārē to bādhasva. The comm. takes svadhā in a as havirlakṣaṇam annam. Only the first half-verse is jaḡatī.

3. Be ye excited after this formidable hero; take hold, O companions, after Indra, the troop-conqueror, kine-conqueror, thunderbolt-armed, conquering in the course (ājman), slaughtering with force.

This verse appears again as xix. 13. 6, in the midst of the hymn to which it belongs, and which is found also in various other texts. The verse corresponds to RV. x. 103. 6, SV. ii. 1204, VS. xvii. 38, and one in TS. iv. 6. 4², MS. ii. 10. 4. They all reverse the order of the two half-verses, begin our c with gotrabhīdam govīdam, and have, instead of our a, imām sajātā ānu vīrayadhvam; TS. differs from the rest by reading 'nu for anu in our b. The comm. explains ājma by ajānaçilām kṣepaṇaçilām çatrubalam. [The word "in" were better omitted from the translation of d.]

98. To Indra: for victory.

[Atharvan. — āindram. trāiṣṭubham: 2. byhatīgarbhā "stārapañktiḥ.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix. Besides the uses in Kāuç. of hymns 97-99, as stated under 97, hymn 98 is further applied, with vi. 67, in another battle rite (16. 4); and the schol. add it to vii. 86, 91, etc., in the īndramahotsava (note to 140. 6). Vāit. also (34. 13) has it in the sattra, when the king is armed.

Translated: Griffith, i. 299.

1. May Indra conquer, may he not be conquered; may he king it as over-king among kings; be thou here one to be famed, to be praised, to be greeted, to be waited on, and to be revered.

The verse is found also in TS. (ii. 4. 14²) and MS. (iv. 12. 3), but with a very different second half: c, TS. vīçvā hi bhūyāñ pñtanā abhiññir, MS. vīçvā abhiññiḥ pñtanā jayaty; d, both upasadāyo namasyd yāthā 'sat. In the first half, at end of a, MS. jayate; at end of b, TS. rājayāti, MS. yate. The last pāda occurs again as iii. 4. 1 d. The comm. regards the king as identified with Indrā through the hymn. [MS. has jayati for jayāti.]

2. Thou, O Indra, art over-king, ambitious (çravasyū), thou art the overcomer of people; do thou rule over these folk (vīçās) of the gods; long-lived, unfading (ajāra) dominion be thine.

The verse is mutilated in Ppp. MS. (in iv. 12. 2) has a corresponding verse: tvám indrā 'sy adhirājās tvám bhavā 'dhipatir jānānām: dātūr vīças tvám utā vī rājāū 'jasvat kṣatram ajāram te astu. The metrical definition of the Anukr. is not very successful.

3. Of the eastern quarter thou, O Indra, art king; also of the northern quarter art thou, O Vritra-slayer, slayer of foes; where the streams go, that is thy conquest; in the south, as bull, thou goest worthy of invocation.

The verse is found in TS. (ii. 4. 14¹) and MS. (iv. 12. 2). Both begin with prācyān diçī, and have udācyām (without [the meter-disturbing] diçāh) in b, ending with vṛtrahā 'sī; in d, TS. has (better) edhi for eçi, and MS. the same, with hācyas before it. Ppp. is mutilated, but has evidently prācyān diçī. The third pāda evidently describes the west; that does not suit the basin of central India.

99. For safety: to Indra.

[Atharvan. — āndram : 3. sāmyā sāvitri ca. ānuṣṭubham : 3. bhuriç bṛhatī.]

[Partly prose, "vs." 3.] Found also in Pāipp. xix. No use of the hymn is made by Kāuç. except in connection with its two predecessors, as explained under hymn 97. But Vāit. has it in the agniṣṭoma, as whispered stotra (18. 16).

Translated: Grill, 18, 168; Griffith, i. 299; Bloomfield, 123, 510.

1. Unto thee, O Indra, on account of width, thee against (purā) distress I call; I call on the stern corrector, the many-named, sole-born.

In spite of its wrong accent (cf. *animatās, sthavimatās) vārimatas is probably an adverb in tas. The comm. interprets it, doubtless correctly, "for the sake of width" (urutvād dhetoh): i.e., of free space, opposed to distress or narrowness. [The derivatives of añh and uru are in frequent antithesis, as, e.g., at RV. v. 24. 4.] 'Sole-born,' i.e. 'unique.' Ppp. ends b with añhūranebhyaḥ. * [MS. iii. 10. 4, p. 135, l. 4.]

2. The hostile (? sénya) weapon that goes up today, desiring to slay us — in that case we put completely about us Indra's two arms.

Ppp. reads at the beginning yo 'dya, and at the end pari dadmahe, which rectifies the meter of d. The pāda mss. strangely read jighānsam in b; both editions make the necessary emendation to -san, which the comm. also has. The comm. further has the better reading dadhmas, as have three of our mss. (Bp.M.T.); and this [which, in connection with the Ppp. reading, suggests the emendation dadhmahe] is adopted in our text, though not in SPP's. The metrical irregularity of the verse should not have been overlooked by the Anukr. [Cf. i. 20. 2 a, b.]

3. We put completely about the two arms of Indra the savior; let him save us. God Savitar! king Soma! make thou me well-willing, in order to well-being.

In this verse, only our Bp.M. read dadhmas, but it is adopted in our text. The comm. again gives it. Ppp. has dadman; and in d it reads, for kṛnu, kṛnutam, which is preferable for sense, though it makes the verse still less metrical. The verse is bṛhatī only by count.

100. Against poison.

[Garutman. — vānaspatyam. ānuṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix. Used by Kāuṣ. (31. 26) in a remedial rite against various poisons, with aid of earth from an ant-hill etc.; and the comm. [considers this (and not xviii. 4. 2) to be intended at 81. 10] when the sacrificial cake is laid on the breast of a deceased sacrificer on the funeral-pile.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 511; Griffith, i. 300; Bloomfield, 27, 511. — See also Bergaigne-Henry, Manuel, p. 153; Bloomfield, AJP. vii. 482. Griffith quotes an interesting paragraph about the moisture of the white-ants.

1. The gods have given, the sun has given, the sky has given, the earth has given, the three Sarasvatīs have given, accordant, the poison-spoiler.

Ppp. combines devā 'duḥ in a, and has sarvās instead of tisras in c. The comm. renders the first verb correctly, by dattavantas, but the others as imperatives.

2. The water which the gods poured for you, O upajikās, on the waste, with that, which is impelled by the gods, spoil ye this poison.

All the authorities* read upajikās, vocative, which was, without good reason, altered to upajikās in our edition. The comm., however, with his ordinary disregard of accent, understands devās as vocative, and upajikās as nominative. He quotes from TA. v. 1. 4 the passage which describes the upadikās (so called there) as 'penetrating to water, wherever they dig'; they are a kind of ant: cf. note to ii. 3. 4. Ppp. reads upacikā, and combines -kā 'siñcan; also, in b, dharvann. *[But SPP's Bh. has upajikās!]

3. Thou art daughter of the Asuras; thou, the same, art sister of the gods; arisen from the sky, from the earth, thou hast made the poison sapless.

Ppp. omits sā in b, and reads jajñise instead of sambhūtā in c. The second pāda is found also as v. 5. 1 d. The comm. has, in d, cakarṣa instead of cakartha; he regards earth from the ant-hill (valmīkamṛttikā) as addressed in the verse.

101. For virile power.

[Atharvāṅgiras (ṣepahprathanakāmah). — brāhmaṇaspatyam. ānuṣṭubham.]

Not found in Pāipp. Used by Kāuṣ. (40. 18) in a rite for sexual vigor, after vi. 72. Translated: Griffith, i. 474. — Cf. iv. 4; vi. 72.

1. Play thou the bull, blow, increase and spread; let thy member increase limb by limb; with it smite the woman.

The comm. takes yathā and aṅgam in c as two separate words, and many of SPP's samhitā mss. accent yathā 'ṅgam. According to the comm., the amulet of arka-wood is the remedy here used. [Cf. also the Bower Manuscript, ed. Hoernle, Part I., p. 5, ḥloka 60, and p. 17, where pomegranate rind and mustard oil take the place of arka.]

2. Wherewith they invigorate one who is lean, wherewith they incite (hi) one who is ill — with that, O Brahmaṇaspati, make thou his member taut like a bow.

Our Bp. reads vājayānti in a. The second half-verse is nearly a repetition of iv. 4. 6 c, d. The comm. reads vaçam for krçam in a.

3. I make thy member taut, like a bowstring on a bow; mount, as it were a stag a doe, unrelaxingly always.

This verse is a repetition of iv. 4. 7. The Anukr. passes unnoticed the abbreviated iva both here and in vs. 2.

102. To win a woman.

[Jamadagni (abhisammanaskāmaḥ). — āçvinam. ānuṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix. Used by Kāuç. (35.21) in a rite concerning women, with vi. 8, 9, etc., for reducing to one's will. Verse 3 is also reckoned (19. 1, note) to the puṣṭika mantras.

Translated: Weber, Ind. Stud. v. 243; Grill, 54, 169; Griffith, i. 301; Bloomfield, 101, 512.

1. As this draft-horse (vāhā), O Açvins, comes together and moves together [with his mate], so unto me let thy mind come together and move together.

The comm. paraphrases vāhas with suçikṣito 'çvaḥ, 'a well-trained horse,' but regards the driver (vāhaka) as the unexpressed object [? or adjunct] of the verbs— which is also possible.

2. I drag along (ā-khid) thy mind, as a king-horse a side-mare (?); like grass cut by a whirlwind, let thy mind twine itself to me.

Some of SPP's authorities give prṣṭhyām in b; but in general the mss. cannot be relied on to distinguish ṣṭy and ṣṭhy. The Pet. Lex. understands the word with ṣṭhy, but the minor Pet. Lex. with ṣṭy, in the sense here given, which Grill (following Roth) accepts. [Cf. W's note to xviii. 4. 10.] The comm. explains the word as çāṅkubaddhām '[a mare] tied to a stake (to the pole of the chariot?)', rājāçva as açvaçreṣṭha, and ā khidāmi as madabhimukham utkhanāmy unmulayāmy āvarjayāmi. The reading tṣṭma in c, which our edition wrongly accepts, is that of only two of our mss. (Bp. Bp.²). [Read therefore tṣṭam.] The comm. explains reṣman as reṣako vātyātmako vāyuh. Ppp. ends b with prṣṭyāmayaḥ.

3. Of ointment, of madhūgha, of kūṣṭha, and of nard, by the hands of Bhaga, I bring up quick a means of subjection.

The construction of the genitives in the first half-verse is obscure. The comm. makes them depend on anurodhanam, and so also Grill. They are perhaps rather the means by which the anurodhana (= anulepana, comm.) or gaining to one's purposes of the desired person is to be brought about, and so are coördinate with Bhagasya, the latter's 'hands' taking the place of the 'means' or 'aid' which would have better suited them. Turds in c is possibly genitive, 'of quick' (or powerful) Bhaga (so the comm. : = tvaramānasya). Ppp. reads (as in other places) madhugasya in a; the comm. madhughasya. Ppp. has also ā for ud in d. Several of our mss. (P.M.I.O.T.) accent ānu rōdh-, [and so do six of] SPP's authorities.

The tenth anuvāka, of 10 hymns and 30 verses, ends here; the quoted Anukr. says simply daçama.

Here ends also the fourteenth prapāṭhaka.

103. To tie up enemies.

[Ucchocana.—bahudevatyam utāi "ndrāgnam. ānuṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix., in reversed order of verses. Used by Kāuṣ. (16.6) in connection with the following hymn, in a battle rite for victory over enemies: fetters, as the comm. explains, are thrown down in places where the hostile army will pass.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 518; Griffith, i. 301.

1. Tying-together may Brihaspati, tying-together may Savitar make for you; tying-together may Mitra, Aryaman, tying-together may Bhaga, the Aṣvins [make].

Instead of mitro aryamā, Ppp. has, in c, indraḥ cā 'gniḥ ca.

2. I tie together the highest, together the lowest, also together the middle ones; Indra hath encompassed them with a tie; do thou, Agni, tie them together.

The comm. reads paramām, avamām, and madhyamām in a, b, supplying ṣatrusenām in each case. [The r of ahār is prescribed by Prāt. ii. 46.]

3. They yonder who come to fight, having made their ensigns, in troops — Indra hath encompassed them with a tie; do thou, Agni, tie them together.

The comm. glosses anīkaṣas with saṁghaṣas.

104. Against enemies.

[Pračocana.—bahudevatyam utāi "ndrāgnam. ānuṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix., in reversed order of verses. Used by Kāuṣ. (16.6) in connection with the preceding hymn, which see.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 518; Griffith, i. 302.

1. With tying-up, with tying-together, we tie up the enemies; the expirations and breaths of them, lives with life (dsu) have I cut off.

The translation implies acchidam at the end, instead of -dan, which all the authorities (and hence both editions) read, save the comm., which has -dam. Ppp. has in c, ḍ, teṣām prāṇān samāsūn amamasutam (corrupt). One might conjecture asinā for asunā in ḍ.

2. This tying-up have I made, sharpened up with fervor by Indra; our enemies that are here — them, O Agni, do thou tie up.

Ppp. reads indriyeṇa ṣāṁsitam in b, and, for ḍ, metān ādān dviṣato mama.

3. Let Indra-and-Agni tie them up, and king Soma, allied; let Indra with the Maruts make tying-up for our enemies.

Ppp. has for b the better version rājñā somena medinā (the construction of our medināu being anomalous); also me for nas at the end. Some of the pada texts (including our D.Kp.) read enām in a, and the samhitā mss. generally enām instead of enān; the comm. gives enān. The comm. explains medināu badly by medasvināv asmābhīr dattena haviṣā mādyantāu vā.

105. To get rid of cough.

[Ummocana.—kāsādevatyam. ānuṣṭubham.]

Not found in Pāipp. except 2 a, b in xix. Employed by Kāuṣ. (31.27) in a remedial rite against cough and catarrh.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 510; Zimmer, p. 385; Griffith, i. 302; Bloomfield, 8, 513.— Cf. Hillebrandt, Veda-chrestomathie, p. 50.

1. As the mind with mind-aims flies away swiftly, so do thou, O cough, fly forth, after the forth-driving (?) of the mind.

The comm. paraphrases manasketāis with manasā buddhivṛityā ketyamānāir jñāyamānāir dūrasthāir viṣayāih; and the obscure pravāyiyam with pragantavyam avadhim.

2. As the well-sharpened arrow flies away swiftly, so do thou, O cough, fly forth, after the stretch (?) of the earth.

The comm. explains saṁvat by saṁhatapradeṣa, which at least shows his perplexity.

3. As the sun's rays fly away swiftly, so do thou, O cough, fly forth, after the outflow of the ocean.

In all these verses, all the authorities anomalously accent the vocative, kāse; our edition makes the called-for emendation to kāse; SPP. reads kāse.

106. Against fire in the house.

[Pramocana.—dūrṅvācālādevatyam. ānuṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix. (with the verse-order 2, 1, 3). Kāuṣ. employs the hymn (52.5) in a rite for welfare, to prevent conflagration of the house: a hole is made inside, and water conducted into it, etc. And vss. 3, 2 appear in Vāit. (29.13), with others, in the agnicayana, in the rite of drawing a frog, water-plant, and reed over the site of the fire-altar.

Translated: Ludwig, Der Rigveda, iv. 422; Grill, 63, 170; Bloomfield, AJP. xi. 347, or JAOS. xv. p. xlii (= PAOS., Oct. 1890); Griffith, i. 303; and again, Bloomfield, SBE. xlii. 147, 514.

1. In thy course hither, [thy] course away, let the flowery dūrṅvā grow; either let a fountain spring up there, or a pond rich in lotuses.

The verse corresponds to RV. x. 142.8; where, however, the words in b are all plural, and c, d read thus: hradāḥ ca puṇḍarikāṇi samudrāsya grhā ime. SPP., against the majority of his authorities, strangely adopts in his text the RV. version of b; it is read also by the comm., and apparently by Ppp.; we have noted only one of our mss. as having puṣṭinīḥ (O.s.m.). The comm. says: anenā 'gnikṛtabādhasyā 'tyantābhāvaḥ prārthitaḥ.

2. This is the down-course of the waters, the abode (nivēṣana) of the ocean; in the midst of a pool are our houses: turn thy faces away.

The first half-verse is RV. x. 142.7 a, b (also VS. xvii. 7 a, b; TS. iv. 6. 13; MS. ii. 10. 1), without variation. The last pāda is by the comm. regarded as addressed to the fire (one of whose common epithets is viçvatomukha 'having faces in every direction'); perhaps rather 'the points of thine arrows': cf. VS. xvi. 53.

3. With a fetal envelop of snow, O house, do we envelop thee; for mayest thou be for us having a cool pond; let Agni make a remedy.

The first two pādas correspond to VS. xvii. 5 a, b (also in TS. iv. 6. 1¹, MS. ii. 10. 1), which, however, has agne instead of çāle; a RV. khila to x. 142 differs only by dadātu for kṛnotu in d. Ppp. has, in c, -hradāya for hradā hi, and, in d, also dadātu for kṛnotu. None of our mss., and very few of SPP's authorities, read agnīḥ k- in d, though it appears to be called for by Prāt. ii. 65, and both editions accept it. The comm. explains the envelop to be avakārūpeṇa çāivālena. [Ppp. combines bhuvvo 'gnīr'.]

107. For protection: to various divinities.

[Çaṁtāti. — caturṛcam. viçvajiddevatyam. ānuṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix. Reckoned by Kāuç. (9. 2) to the brhachānti gana; and used (50. 13), with vi. 1, 3-7, etc., in a rite for welfare. The metrical definition of the Anukr. is forced and bad; although the number of syllables is each time not far from 32 (29-33).

Translated: Griffith, i. 303.

1. O all-conqueror (viçvajit), commit me to rescuer; O rescuer, protect both all our bipeds, and whatever quadrupeds are ours.

Ppp. begins trāyamāṇe sarvavide mām; it omits nas before rakṣa in the refrain. All the beings addressed are doubtless female; the comm. has nothing to say in explanation of them otherwise than that they are divinities so named.

2. O rescuer, commit me to all-conqueror; O all-conqueror, protect both all etc. etc.

Ppp. has sarvavide instead of viçvajite. The comm. prefixes viçvajit at the beginning.

3. O all-conqueror, commit me to beauty; O beauty, protect both all etc. etc.

Ppp. has sarvavid viçvavid instead of viçvajit at the beginning.

4. O beauty, commit me to all-possessor; O all-possessor, protect both all etc. etc.

Ppp. reads trāyamāṇyāi instead of sarvavide, and rakṣata instead of no rakṣa. Sarvavid might, of course, mean 'all-knower.'

108. For wisdom.

[Çāunaka. — pañcarcam. medhādevatyam: 4. āgneyī. ānuṣṭubham; 2. urobyhatī; 3. pathyābyhatī.]

Pāipp. xix. has vss. 1, 2, 5, thus reducing the hymn to the norm of this book. Found used in Kāuç. (10. 20), with vi. 53 [so the comm.: but Dārila understands xii. 1. 53 as intended], in the medhājanana ceremony; and also (57. 28) in the uṣanayana, with worship of Agni.

Translated: Muir, i². 255; Griffith, i. 304.

1. Do thou, O wisdom (medhā), come first to us, with kine, with horses, thou with the sun's rays; thou art worshipful to us.

The comm. explains medhā as ṣrutadhāraṇasāmarthyarūpīṇī devī, and finds in c an elliptical comparison (luptopamā): "as the rays of the sun quickly pervade the whole world, so come to us with own capacities able to pervade all subjects."

2. I call first, unto the aid of the gods, wisdom filled with brāhman, quickened by brāhman, praised by seers, drunk of (?) by Vedic students.

Ppp. omits brahmajūtām in b, without rectifying the meter, which can only be saved by leaving out the superfluous prathamām in a. It avoids, in c, the doubtful prāpītām by reading instead prāṇihītām; and it has avasā (for avase ā?) vṛṇe in d. Prāpītām should perhaps be understood as coming from pra-pī or pra-pyā; the comm. takes it alternatively * both ways, paraphrasing it with either sevitām or pravardhitām. The Anukr. reckons brahmanvatīm to b (so do the pada-mss.), and passes without notice the deficiency of a syllable in a; in fact, prathamām is intruded, and the verse otherwise a good anuṣṭubh. * [That is, he refers it to pībati by sevitām and to pī or pyā by pravardhitām.]

3. The wisdom that the Ribhus know, the wisdom that the Asuras know, the excellent wisdom that the seers know — that do we cause to enter into me.

It is the intrusion of bhadrām in c that spoils the anuṣṭubh, but does not make a regular brhatī.

4. The wisdom that the being-making seers, possessed of wisdom, know — with that wisdom do thou make me today, O Agni, possessed of wisdom.

Many of the mss. (including our P.M.H.I.K.O.) leave vidus unaccented at the end of b. The second half-verse is VS. xxxii. 14 c, d (which has kuru for kṛṇu); [so also RV. khila to x. 151].

5. Wisdom at evening, wisdom in the morning, wisdom about noon, wisdom by the sun's rays, by the spell (vācas), do we make enter into us.

Ppp. is corrupt in c, d: medhām sūryeṇo 'dyato dhūrāṇā uta stvama.

109. For healing: with pippalī.

[Atharvan. — mantroktapippalīdevatyam; bhāṣajyam. ānuṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix. Employed in Kāuṣ. once (26.33) with vi. 85, 127, and other hymns, and once (26.38) alone, in a remedial rite against various wounds.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 509; Zimmer, p. 389; Griffith, i. 305; Bloomfield, 21, 516. See Bergaigne-Henry, Manuel, p. 154.

1. The berry (pippalī), remedy for what is bruised (? kṣiptā), and remedy for what is pierced — that did the gods prepare (sam-kalpay); that is sufficient for life.

As elsewhere, the mss. waver between pippalī and piṣpalī (our Bp.E.O.R.p.m. read the latter). All the pada-mss. stupidly give jīvita: vāl as two independent words.

Ppp. has, in a, ksupta- for ksipta-; and, for b, uta ca viçvabh-; further, for d, alam jivātavā yati.* In the kampa between a and b, SPP. unaccountably reads ū3ta instead of u1ta; the fact that his mss. happen in this case all to agree in giving ū3ta is of no account whatever, since they are wildly inconsistent in this whole class of cases; among our mss. are found ū3, ū1, and u3. The comm. gives two alternatives both for ksipta- and for atviddha-: for the former tiraskṛta (of other remedies) and vātara-gaviçṣa, and so on. * [Intending -tavāi iti?]

2. The berries talked together, coming from their birth: whomever we shall reach living, that man shall not be harmed.

The second half-verse is the same, without variant, as RV. x. 97. 17 c, d (found also as VS. xii. 91 c, d, and in TS. iv. 2. 65 and MS. ii. 7. 13: the latter reading -mahe in c); while the first half is a sort of parody of the corresponding part of the same verse: avapātantīr avadan divā śadhayas pāri; our -vadantā "yatis" is probably a corruption of -vadann āy-. There is again, in a, a disagreement among the mss. as to pippalyās, our Bp.E.I.O., with a number of SPP's authorities, giving piṣṣ-. The comm. explains the word by hastipippalyādijātibhedabhinnāḥ sarvāḥ pippalyāḥ; and their "birth" to have been contemporaneous with the churning of the amṛta. [Ppp. ends with pāuruṣāḥ.]

3. The Asuras dug thee in; the gods cast thee up again, a remedy for the vātīkṛta, likewise a remedy for what is bruised.

The comm. understands vātīkṛta as vātarogāviṣṭacarīra. [Cf. vi. 44. 3.] [In Ppp., d is wanting, perhaps by accident.]

110. For a child born at an unlucky time.

[Atharvan.—āgneyam. trāiṣṭubham: 1. pāṅkti.]

This hymn is not found in Pāipp. Kāuç. (46. 25) applies it for the benefit of a child born under an inauspicious asterism.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 431; Zimmer, p. 321; Griffith, i. 305; Bloomfield, 109, 517.—With reference to the asterisms, see note to ii. 8. 1; Zimmer, p. 356; Jacobi in Festgruss an Roth, p. 70.

1. Since, an ancient one, to be praised at the sacrifices, thou sittest as hótar both of old and recent—do thou, O Agni, both gratify thine own self, and bestow (ā-yaj) good fortune on us.

The verse is RV. viii. 11. 10 (also TA. x. 169). Our text has several bad readings, which are corrected in the other version: kām in a should be kam, satsi should be sātsi, and pīprāyasva should be -prāy- (TA. has, in a, prānōṣi, which its comm. explains by visārayasi!): this last the comm. also reads, but renders it ājyādikaviṣā pūraya. The verse is not at all a pāṅkti, although capable of being read as 40 syllables.

2. Born in jyeṣṭhaghñī, in Yama's two Unfasteners (vicīṭ)—do thou protect him from the Uprooter (mūlabārhaṇa); may he conduct him across all difficulties unto long life, of a hundred autumns.

The consecutiveness of the verse is very defective, inasmuch as 'born' (jātās, nom.) in a can hardly be understood otherwise than of the child, while Agni is addressed in b, and spoken of in third person in c, d. Three asterisms are here [and in 112] referred to, all in our constellation Scorpio: Antares or Cor Scorpionis (either alone or with σ , τ) is usually called jyesthā 'oldest,' but also (more anciently?), as an asterism of ill omen, jyesthaghni 'she that slays the oldest'*; mūla 'root,' also in the same manner mūla-barhanī [or -na], lit. 'root-wrencher,'* is the tail, or in the tail, of which the terminal star-pair, or the sting (λ , ν), has the specific name vicrītau. [See note to ii. 8. 1.] The comm. takes yamasya as belonging to mūlabarhanāt. By a misprint, our text begins with jyāi- (read jye-). * [See TB. i. 5. 2^s.]

3. On the tiger day hath been born the hero, asterism-born, being born rich in heroes; let him not, increasing, slay his father; let him not harm his mother that gave him birth.

We should expect at the beginning vyāghryé or vātyāghre; the comm. paraphrases the word with vyāghravat krūre. [In d, read sā mā mātāram? — As to minīt, see Gram. § 726.]

III. For relief from insanity.

[Atharvan. — caturyam. āgneyam. ānuṣṭubham : 1. parānuṣṭub trīṣṭubh.]

This hymn, like the preceding, is wanting in Pāipp. Kāuṣ. (8. 24) reckons it as one of the mātrnāmāni (with ii. 2 and viii. 6); and the comm. quotes a remedial rite against demons (26. 29–32) as an example of their use.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 512; Zimmer, p. 393; Grill, 21, 170; Griffith, i. 306; Bloomfield, 32, 518. — Cf. Hillebrandt, Veda-chrestomathie, p. 50.

1. Free thou this man for me, O Agni, who here bound, well-restrained, cries loudly; thenceforth shall he make for thee a portion, when he shall be uncrazed.

Nearly all our mss., and the great majority of SPP's, have the false accent atds at beginning of c; both editions give atas. The comm. reads yathā for yadā in d. The comm. paraphrases suyatas by suṣṭhu niyamito niruddhaprasaraḥ san. Pāda b has a redundant syllable.

2. Let Agni quiet [it] down for thee, if thy mind is excited (ud-yu); I, knowing, make a remedy, that thou mayest be uncrazed.

The comm. reads udyatam (= grahavikāreṇo dbhrāntam) instead of udyutam in b.

3. Crazy from sin against the gods, crazed from a demon — I, knowing, make a remedy, when he shall be uncrazed.

A few of the authorities (including our O.) accent yādā in d; yāthā would be a preferable reading. [Bloomfield, "sin of the gods," AJP. xvii. 433, JAOS., etc.]

4. May the Apsarases give thee again, may Indra again, may Bhaga again; may all the gods give thee again, that thou mayest be uncrazed.

The samhitā reading in a and c would, of course, equally admit of tvā : aduḥ 'have given thee,' and this would be an equally acceptable meaning; the comm. so understands and interprets. In our text, read pūnas at beginning of c (the sign for u dropped out).

The difference of meter tends to point out vs. 1 as an alien addition by which this hymn has been increased beyond the norm of the book.

112. For expiation of overslaughting.

[Atharvan.—āgneyam. trāṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix. (vs. 3 in i.). Used by Kāuṣ. (46. 26), with vi. 113, in a spell to expiate the offense of parivitti 'overslaughting,' or the marriage of a younger before an elder brother [see Zimmer, p. 315].

Translated: Ludwig, p. 469; Grill, 15, 171; Griffith, i. 306; Bloomfield, AJP. xvii. 437 (elaborate discussion, p. 430 ff.), or JAOS. xvi. p. cxxii (= PAOS., March, 1894); SBE. xlii. 164, 521.

1. Let not this one, O Agni, slay the oldest of them; protect him from uprooting; do thou, foreknowing, unfasten the bonds of the seizure (grāhi); let all the gods assent to thee.

The allusions in this verse to the same trio of asterisms that were mentioned in 110. 2 are very evident. According to the comm., "this one" in a is the parivitta [which he takes quite wrongly as the overslaughting — see comm. to vs. 3 a]. Ppp. reads prajā nas at end of c, and has, for d, pitāputrāu mātaram muñca sarvān (our 2 d).

2. Do thou, O Agni, loosen up the bonds of them, the three with which they three were tied up; do thou, foreknowing, unfasten the bonds of the seizure; free all — father, son, mother.

The comm. reads utthitās for utsitās in b; the word is, strangely, not divided into utsitāḥ in the pada-text, which [non-division] would be proper treatment for utthitās, and part of the mss. (including our H.I.O.) read utthitās. The second half-verse is wanting in Ppp. (save as d is found in it as 1 d: see above).

3. With what bonds the overslaughted one is bound apart; applied and tied up on each limb — let them be released, for they are releasers; wipe off difficulties, O Pūshan, on the embryo-slayer.

The comm. again commits the violence of understanding parivittas in a as if it were parivettā 'the overslaughting.' The participles in b are nom. sing. masc., applying to the bound person. The comm. again reads utthitas, again supported by a few mss. (including our H.I.), and the pada-text again has utsitāḥ, undivided. All our mss. save one (K.), and all but one of SPP's, read te (without accent) in c; the translation given implies the emendation to té, which is made in SPP's text, also on the authority of the comm. After it, SPP. reads mucyantām, with, as he claims, all but one of his authorities; of ours, only D.Kp.T. have it, and K. mucyatām, all the rest muñcantām, as in our text. In Ppp., this verse is found in i., in this form: ebhiṣ pācāir muduṣāu patir nibaddhaḥ paroparārṣito aṅge-aṅge vi te cṛtyantām vicṛtām hi santi etc. (d as in our text).

113. For release from seizure (grāhi).

[Atharvan.—pāuṣṇam. trāṣṭubham: 3. pañkti.]

In Pāipp. [i.] is found only the first half-verse, much corrupted. It is employed by Kāuṣ. (46. 26) in company with the preceding hymn, which see. Verse 2 c, d is specified in the course of the rite, as accompanying the depositing of the "upper fetters" in river-foam.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 444; Grill, 15, 171; E. Hardy, Die Vedisch-brahmanische Periode etc., p. 210; Griffith, i. 307; Bloomfield, AJP. xvii. 437 (elaborate discussion, p. 430 ff.) or JAOS. xvi. p. cxxii (= PAOS., March, 1894); SBE. xlii. 165, 527. — See Bergaigne-Henry, Manuel, p. 154.

1. On Trita the gods wiped off that sin; Trita wiped it off on human beings; if from that the seizure hath reached thee, let the gods make it disappear for thee by the incantation (bráhman).

SPP. properly emends the name, here and in vs. 3, to trítá, though all his authorities, like ours, read trítá; he also, with equal reason, emends enam to enat (enan) in b. TB. has (in iii. 7. 12⁵) what corresponds to the first three pādas, reading both trítá and *enan; for c it has táto mā yádi kbh cid ānaçé. The comm. reads trita and etat. He also quotes from TB. iii. 2. 89-12, some passages from the story, as there told, of Ekata, Dvita, and Trita, and of the transference of guilt by the gods to them and by them to other beings. A similar story is found in MS. iv. 1. 9 (where read krūrám mārks, twice). The TB. verse relating to this is in our text adapted to another purpose. The comm. holds the "sin" to be still that of overslaughting, as in the preceding hymn. The Anukr. disregards the irregularities of meter. * [And māmrye.]

2. Enter thou after the beams, the smokes, O evil; go unto the mists or also the fogs; disappear along those foams of the rivers: wipe off difficulties, O Pūshan, on the embryo-slayer.

The last pāda is a repetition of 112. 3 d, and discordant with the rest of the verse. Some of SPP's authorities read naçyan at end of c. The comm. has instead viksva. The comm. explains maricir by agnisūryādiprabhāviçeçān, udārān by ūrdhvam gatān meghātmanā pariṇatāns tān (dhūmān), and nihārān by tajjanyān avacyāyān.

3. Twelvefold is deposited what was wiped off by Trita—sins of human beings; if from that the seizure hath reached thee, let the gods make it disappear for thee by the incantation.

'Twelvefold': i.e., apparently, in twelve different places, or classes, or individuals. TB. (l.c.) specifies eight offenders to whom the transference was successively made; and the "twelve" is made up, according to the commentator, of the gods, Trita and his two brothers, and these eight. [The vs. is no pañkti.]

This hymn is the last of the 11, with 37 verses, that constitute the eleventh anuvāka; the Anukr. says: prāk tasmāt saptrīṅçaḥ.

114. Against disability in sacrifice.

[Brahman. — vāiçvadevam. āniṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. xvi. Kāuç. (67. 19), in the savayajña chapter, uses hymns 114, 115, and 117, with the offering of a "full oblation," the giver of the sava taking part behind the priest; and, according to the schol. and the comm., the whole anuvāka (hymns 114-124) is called devaheḍana, and used in the introduction to the savayajñas (60. 7), and in the expiatory rite for the death of a teacher (46. 30); and the comm. quotes it as applied in Nakṣatra Kalpa 18, in the mahāçānti called yāmyā, in the funeral ceremony. And hymns 114 and 115 (not verses 114. 1, 2) are recited with an oblation by the adhvaryu in the agniṣṭoma, according to Vāit. (22. 15); and again in the same ceremony (23. 12) in an expiatory rite; also 114 alone (30. 22), in the sāutrāmaṇī sacrifice, with washing of the māsara vessel.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 443; Grill, 45, 172; Griffith, i. 308; Bloomfield, 164, 528.

1. O gods! whatever cause of the wrath of the gods we, O gods, have committed — from that do ye, O Ādityas, release us by right of right (ṛtā).

The whole hymn is found in TB. (in ii. 4. 4⁸⁻⁹), with mā for nas in c as the only variant in this verse. Then this verse occurs again with a somewhat different version of c, d in TB. ii. 6. 6¹, with which a version in MS. iii. 11. 10 precisely agrees; and yet again, more slightly different, in TB. iii. 7. 12¹, with which nearly agree versions in TA. ii. 3. 1 and MS. iv. 14. 17. In TB. ii. 6. 6¹ (and MS.), the second half-verse reads thus: agnr mā tāsmād énaso víçvān muñcatv áñhasah; in TB. iii. 7. 12¹, it is ādityās tāsmān mā muñcata ṛtāsya ṛtēna mām utā (TA. itā for utā [cf. v. Schroeder, Tübinger Kāṭha-hss., p. 68]; MS. omits mā in c, and has, for d, ṛtāsya tv énam ā 'mūtah, with variants for the last two words). VS. xx. 14 has our a, b, without variant [and adds the c, d of TB. ii. 6. 6]. [In b, MS. iv. 14. 17 has yād vācā 'nṛtam ódima (accent! Kāṭha ūdīmā).]

2. By right of right, O Ādityas, worshipful ones, release ye us here, in that, O ye carriers of the sacrifice, we, desirous of accomplishing (çak) the sacrifice, have not accomplished it.

Both editions read at the end, as is necessary, -çekimā, although only two* of our mss. (I.D.), and a small minority of SPP's authorities, accent the a (the pada mss. absurdly reading ñpaççekima). Ppp. has instead, for d, sikṣantu upārīma. TB. has mā for nas at end of b, yajñātr vas for yajñām yāt in c, and, for d, āçkṣanto nā çekima, which is better. Yajñāvāhasas would be better as nominative. The comm. explains çikṣantas by niṣpādayitum icchantas. [For the pada blunder, cf. vi. 74. 2.] * [Whitney's collations seem clearly to give Bp.²p.m.I.H.D. as reading -çekimā.]

3. Sacrificing with what is rich in fat, making oblations of sacrificial butter (ājya) with the spoon, without desire, to you, O all gods, desirous of accomplishing we have not been able to accomplish.

Part of the mss. (including our P.M.I.) accent viçve in c, and the decided majority (not our Bp.M.W.R.s.m.T.) accent çekimā at the end (by a contrary blunder to that in 2 d), which SPP., accordingly, wrongly admits into his text. TB. has (also Ppp.) ājyena in b; also it reads vo viçve devāḥ in c, and, of course, çekima at the end; Ppp. çesima.

115. For relief from sin.

[Brahman. — vāiçvadevam. ānuṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. xvi. For the use of this hymn by Kāuç., and in part by Vāit., with the preceding, see under that hymn; Vāit. has this one also alone in the āgrayana īṣṭi (8. 7), with ii. 16. 2 and v. 24. 7; and vs. 3 appears (30. 23) in the sāutrāmaṇī, next after hymn 114.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 443; Zimmer, p. 182 (vss. 2, 3); Grill, 46, 172; Griffith, i. 308; Bloomfield, 164, 529.

1. If knowing, if unknowing, we have committed sins, do ye free us from that, O all gods, accordant.

The reading sajósasas at the end in our text is, though evidently preferable, hardly more than an emendation, since it is read only by our P.M.T.; SPP. gives sajósasas; the comm. takes the word as a nominative. With the verse may be compared VS. viii. 13 f (prose). The redundant syllable in a is ignored by the Anukr.

2. If waking, if sleeping, I sinful have committed sin, let what is and what is to be free me from that, as from a post (drupadá).

The verse nearly corresponds with one in TB. ii. 4. 49, which reads in a y. dīvā y. náktam, ákarat at end of b, and muñcatuḥ (-tu?) at end of d. With a, b is to be compared VS. xx. 16 a, b, which has svápne for svápán, and, for b, enānsi cakṛmā vayám. Our svápán in a is an emendation for svápan, which all the authorities read, and which SPP. accepts in his text. The pada mss. mostly accent enasýáḥ in c (our D. has -áḥ, the true reading), and SPP. wrongly admits it in his pada text. The comm. explains drupada, doubtless correctly, by pādabandhanārtho drumáḥ.

3. Being freed as if from a post, as one that has sweated from filth on bathing, like sacrificial butter purified by a purifier—let all cleanse (çumbh) me of sin.

This verse is found in several Yajus texts : in VS. (xx. 20), TB. (ii. 4. 49), K. (xxxviii. 5), and MS. (iii. 11. 10). TB.MS. add íd after iva in a; in b, for snātó, VS. gives snātás, and MS. snātó; in d, TB.MS. read muñcantu for çumbhantu, while VS. reads (better) çundhantu and before it āpas instead of vīçve; Ppp. reads vīçvān muñcantu; and it further has sindhu for svinnas in b. This time the comm. gives kāṣṭhamayāt pādabandhanāt as equivalent of drupadāt. The Anukr. passes without notice the excess of syllables in a. [The vs. occurs also TB. ii. 6. 63, with íd again, and with d as in VS. And the Calc. ed. of TB. prints both times svinnú snātó.] [As to çumbh, see BR. vii. 261 top.]

116. For relief from guilt.

[Jātikāyana. — vāivasvatadevatyam. jāgatam : 2. triṣṭubh.]

Found also in Pāipp. xvi. The hymn is used by Kāuṣ. in the chapter of portents (132. 1), in a rite for expiation of the spilling of sacrificial liquids. As to the whole anuvāka, see under hymn 114.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 443; Griffith, i. 309.

1. What that was Yama's the Kārshīvaṇas made, digging down in the beginning, food-acquiring, not with knowledge, that I make an oblation unto the king, Vivasvant's son; so let our food be sacrificial (yajñīya), rich in sweet.

Perhaps better emend at beginning to yády ānám [Bloomfield makes the same suggestion, AJP. xvii. 428, SBE. xlii. 457]; the comm. explains by yamasambandhī krūram. The kārshīvaṇas are doubtless the plowmen, they of the kindred of krṣṭvan (= krṣṭvala) 'the plower': whatever offense, leading to death or to Yama's realm, they committed in wounding the earth. The comm. calls the krṣṭvanas Çūdras, and their workmen the kārshīvaṇas; in b, he reads na vidas for annavidas. The metrical irregularities are ignored by the Anukr.

2. Vivasvant's son shall make [us] an apportionment ; having a portion of sweet, he shall unite [us] with sweet — whatever sin of [our] mother's, sent forth, hath come to us, or what [our] father, wronged,* hath done in wrath.

For bhāgadheyam in a, Ppp. reads bheṣajāni. The two half-verses hardly belong together. The comm. explains aparāddhas by asmakṛtāparādhena vimukhaḥ san. * [In his ms. Whitney wrote "guilty" (which seems much better) and then changed it to "wronged."]

3. If from [our] mother or if from our father, forth from brother, from son, from thought (cētas), this sin hath come to [us] — as many Fathers as have fastened on (sac) us, of them all be the fury propitious [to us].

In most of the pada-mss. āgan at end of b is wrongly resolved into ā : agan, instead of ādgan (our Kp. has āagan). Cētasas the comm. understands to mean 'our own mind' ; we should be glad to get rid of the word ; its reduction to ca, or the omission of bhrātur or putrāt, would rectify the redundant meter, which the Anukr. passes unnoticed. The comm. paraphrases pari in b apparently by anyasmād api parijanāt !

117. For relief from guilt or debt.

[Kāuṣika (anṛnakāmaḥ).—āgneyam. trāiṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. xvi. The hymn [not 1 cd, 2 cd] occurs in TB. (iii. 7. 9⁸⁻⁹), and parts of it elsewhere, see under the verses. [For 1 and 3, see also v. Schroeder, Tübingen Kaṭha-hss., p. 70 and 61.] Hymns 117-119 are used in Kāuṣ. (133. 1) in the rite in expiation of the portent of the burning of one's house ; and Keç. (to Kāuṣ. 46. 36) quotes them as accompanying the satisfaction of a debt after the death of a creditor, by payment to his son or otherwise ; the comm. gives (as part of the Kāuṣ. text) the pratīka of 117. [For the whole anuvāka, see under h. 114.] In Vāit. (24. 15), in the agni-ṣṭoma, h. 117 goes with the burning of the vedī.

Translated : Ludwig, p. 444 ; Griffith, i. 309.

1. What I eat (?) that is borrowed, that is not given back ; with what tribute of Yama I go about — now, O Agni, I become guiltless (anṛṇā) as to that ; thou knowest how to unfasten all fetters.

The translation implies emendation of āsmi to ādmi in a ; this is suggested by jaghāsa in vs. 2, and is adopted by Ludwig also ; but possibly apratīttam asmi might be borne as a sort of careless vulgar expression for "I am guilty of non-payment." More or less of the verse is found in several other texts, with considerable variations of reading : thus TS. (iii. 3. 8¹⁻²), TA. (ii. 3. 1⁸), and MS. (iv. 14. 17) have pādas a, b, c (as a, b, d in TS.) ; in a, all with yāt kūsīdam for apamītyam and without asmi, and TA.MS. with āpratīttam, and TS. ending with māyi (for yāt), and TA.MS. with māye 'hā ; in b, all put yēna before yamāsyā, and TA.MS. have nidhīnā for ballnā, while MS. ends with cārāvās ; in c (d in TS.), all read etāt for idām, and MS. accents anṛṇas (c in TS. is ihāt 'vā sūn nirāvadaye tāt : cf. our 2 a) ; d in TA. is jīvann evā prāti tāt te dadhāmi, with which MS. nearly agrees, but is corrupt at the end : j.e.p. hastānṛṇāni. TB. (iii. 7. 9⁸) corresponds only in the first half-verse (with it precisely agrees ĀpÇS. in xiii. 22. 5) : thus, yāny apamītyāny āpratīttāny āsmi yamāsyā ballnā cārāmi ; its other half-verse corresponds with our 2 a, b. MB. (ii. 3. 20) has yat kusīdam apradattam maye 'ha yena yamasya nidhinā carāni: idam tad agne anṛṇo bhavāmi jīvaan eva pratidatte dadāni. [This suggests bhavāni as an improvement in our c.] Finally GB. (ii. 4. 8) quotes the pratīka in this form: yat kusīdam apamityam apratītam. Ppp. reads for a, b apamṛtyum apratītam yad asminnasyena, etc., and, for d, jīvaana ena prati dadāmi sarvam (nearly as TA. d, above). The comm. takes balinā as = balavatā.

2. Being just here we give it back; living, we pay it in (ni-hṛ) for the living; what grain I have devoured having borrowed [it], now, O Agni, I become guiltless as to that.

With the first half-verse nearly agrees TB. (as above; also ĀpÇS., as above), which reads, however, tūḍ yātayāmas for dadma enat. The comm. has dadhmas for dadmas in a; he explains ni harāmas by nitarāni niyamena vā 'pākurmah. Ppp. has etat at end of a; in c, apamṛtyu again, also (c, d) jaghāsā agnir mā tasmād anṛṇam kṛṇotu. Apamṛtyam in this verse also would be a more manageable form, as meaning 'what is to be measured (or exchanged) off,' i.e. in repayment. Jaghāsa in our text is a misprint for -ghās-.

3. Guiltless in this [world], guiltless in the higher, guiltless in the third world may we be; the worlds traversed by the gods and traversed by the Fathers—all the roads may we abide in guiltless.

The verse is found in TB. (iii. 7. 9^{s-o}), TA. (ii. 154), and ĀpÇS. (xiii. 22. 5), with -mīs tr- at junction of a and b (except in TB. as printed), with utī inserted before pītyānās and ca lokās omitted after it (thus rectifying the meter, of which the Anukr. ignores the irregularity), and with kṣiyema (bad) at the end. Anṛṇā means also 'free from debt or obligation'; there is no English word which (like German schuldlös) covers its whole sense. The comm. points out that it has here both a sacred and a profane meaning, applying to what one owes to his fellow-men, and what duties to the gods. Ppp. combines anṛṇā 'smin in a, and has the readings of TB. etc. in c, and adīma for ā kṣiyema at the end.

118. For relief from guilt.

[Kāuṣika (anṛṇakāmah).—āgneyam. trāiṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. xvi. [The Kaṭha-version of vss. 1 and 2 is given by v. Schroeder, Tübingen Kaṭha-hss., p. 70 f.] Is not used by Vāit., nor by Kāuṣ. otherwise than with [the whole anuvāka and] hymn 117: [see under hymns 114 and 117].

Translated: Ludwig, p. 455; Griffith, i. 310.

1. If (yāt) with our hands we have done offenses, desiring to take up the course (?) of the dice, let the two Apsarases, fierce-(ugrā)-seeing, fierce-conquering, forgive today that guilt (ṛṇā) of ours.

Our mss., like SPP's, waver in b between gatnūm and gattūm or gantūm, but it is a mere indistinctness of writing, and gatnūm (which not even Böhlingk's last supplement gives) is doubtless the genuine reading, as given by SPP.; our ganām is an unsuccessful conjecture. The comm. paraphrases the word with gantavyam çabdasparçādvīṣayam, and upalīps- with anubhavitum icchantah: 'desiring to sense the sound, feeling, etc.'; our knowledge of the ancient Hindu game of dice is not sufficient to enable us to translate the pāda intelligently. The verse is found also in several Yajus texts, TB. (iii. 7. 123), TA. (ii. 4. 1), and MS. (iv. 14. 17); all read cakāra in a, and vagnūm (MS. vagnūm) for gatnūm in b, and TB.TA. end b with upajighnamānah (while MS. has the corrupt reading dvajighram āpah); in c, d, TB.TA. have the version dūrepaçyā (TA. ugrampaçyā) ca rāṣṭrabhīc ca tāny aṣarasāv ānu dattām ṛṇāni, and MS., very corruptly, ugrām paçyāc ca rāṣṭrabhīc ca tāny aṣarasām ānu dattā 'nrṇāni. The comm., heedless of the accent, takes the first two words in c as vocatives. Ppp. reads, in a, b, kilviṣam akṣam aktam avilīpsamānāh.

2. O fierce-seeing one! realm-bearing one! [our] offenses, what happened at the dice — forgive ye that to us; may there not come in Yama's world one having a rope on, desiring to win from us debt (ṛṇā) from debt.

Two of the other texts (TA.MS., as above) have this verse also, and with unimportant variations in the first half: TA. simply omits nas in b, thus rectifying the meter; MS. does the same, but it is also corrupt at the beginning, reading ugrām paçyéd rāṣṭrabhīc k-. Ppp. reads u. rāṣṭrabhītas kilviṣam y. a. a. dattan vas tai. But in the difficult and doubtful second half, the readings are so diverse as to show themselves mere corrupt guesses: thus, TA. nēn na ṛṇān ṛṇāva tt samāno y. l. a. āya; MS. nēnna (p. nēt : nah) ṛṇān ṛṇāvān īpsamāno y. l. nidhtr ājarāya; Ppp. (c) nrṇvāno nrṇvā yad ayacchamāno. The comm. explains ṛṇān (nah) as either for ṛṇān or for ṛṇāt; the pada-text gives the latter, of course. The pada-text does not divide ērts-, as it doubtless should, into ā'irts-, in c; the comm. reads instead ecchamānas (= ṛṇān grahītum abhīta icchan) and explains adhiraçjus by asmadgrahaṇāya pāçakastah. The other texts, it will have been noticed, mentioned rāṣṭrabhīc instead of ugrajit as second Apsaras in the first verse. The irregularities of meter are passed unnoticed by the Anukr. [Böhtlingk, ZDMG. lii. 250, discusses the vs. at length. He suggests for c, ṛṇāvno no nā ṛṇām ērtsamāno, or perhaps nēd ṛṇām.]

3. To whom [I owe] debt, whose wife I approach, to whom I go begging (yaç), O gods — let them not speak words superior to me; ye (two) Apsarases, wives of gods, take notice!

Ppp. has a different version (mostly corrupt) of b, c, d: yañ yājamānāu abhyemahe: vāte vājin vājibhir mo 'ttarām mad devapatnī aṣarasāpaditam. The comm. reads abhyemi in b. By analogy with abhyāmi, the pada-text understands upāmi as upāmi in a. Our pada-mss. also leave mā unaccented in c. The comm. paraphrases adhī 'tam with madvijñāpanam citte 'vadhārayatam.

119. For relief from guilt or obligation.

[Kāuçika (anṛṇakāmāh).—āgneyam. trāiṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. xvi. (in the verse-order 1, 3, 2). All the verses occur, but not together, in TA. [See also v. Schroeder, Zwei Hss., p. 15, for vss. 2 and 3; and Tübingen Kaṭha-hss., pp. 70, 75, for 1, 2, and 3.] Is not used by Vāit., nor by Kāuç. otherwise than with [the whole anuvāka and with] hymns 117 and 118; see under [hymns 114 and 117].

Translated: Ludwig, p. 442; Griffith, i. 310.

1. If (yát), not playing, I make debt, also, O Agni, promise (sam-g?) not intending to give, may Vāiçvānara, our best over-ruler, verily lead us up to the world of the well-done.

Ppp. puts aham before ṛṇam in a, and reads urum for ud it in d. The first half-verse has correspondents in TB. (iii. 7. 12³) and TA. (ii. 4. 1¹). In a, TB. reads cakāra and TA. babhūva for krṇómi and TB. puts yát after ṛṇám; for b, TB. reads yád vā 'dāsyant saṃjagāra jānebhyaḥ, and TA. áditsan vā saṃjagāra j. [For b, cf. vi. 71. 3 b.]

2. I make it known to Vāiçvānara, if [there is on my part] promise of debt to the deities; he knows how to unfasten all these bonds; so may we be united with what is cooked (pakvā).

The first three pādas have correspondents in TA. (ii. 6. 1¹), which reads, in a, b, veda-yāmo yádi ṛṇám, and, in c, pāçān pramūcan (i.e. -cam) prá veda; Ppp. also has pra vedu instead of veda sárvaṇ. Our d, which seems quite out of place here, occurs again at the end of xii. 3. 55-60, which see (TA. has instead sá no muñcātu duritād avadyát). The comm. explains pakvena here as paripakvena svargādiphalena, or the ripened fruit of our good works. The Anukr. seems to allow the contraction sāi 'iān in c.

3. Let Vāiçvānara the purifier purify me, if (yát) I run against a promise, an expectation (āçā), not acknowledging, begging with my mind; what sin is therein, that I impel away.

The whole verse, this time, has its correspondent in TA. (ii. 6. 1²), which, however, reads for a v. pávayān naḥ pavitrāir (Ppp. means the same, but substitutes pāvayā nas); and has, in d, ātra for tātra and āva for āpa. Ppp. has saṅgalam near beginning of b. The comm. reads -dhāvāni in b, and explains by ābhimukhyena prāḥnavāni; the minor Pet. Lex. suggests emendation to ati-dhāv 'transgress.' Ludwig emends āçām to āsām (referring to devatāsu in 2 b); the reading and pada division āçām are vouched for by Prāt. iv. 72, to which rule the word is the counter-example; the comm. explains it by devādinām abhilāṣam. [Bergaigne comments on root sāi, Rel. Véd. iii. 44.]

120. To reach heaven.

[Kāuṣika. — mantroktadevatyam. 1. jagatī; 2. pañkti; 3. triṣṭubh.]

Found also in Pāipp. xvi. [Von Schroeder's Zwei Hss., p. 16, and Tübingen Kātha-hss., p. 76, may also be consulted for all three vss.] Not used by Kāuṣ. otherwise than with the whole anuvāka: see under hymn 114.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 442; Grill, 72, 173; Griffith, i. 311; Bloomfield, 165, 529.

1. If (yát) atmosphere, earth, and sky, if father or mother we have injured (hiñs), may this householder's-fire lead us up from that to the world of the well-done.

The first half-verse is found, without variation, in a number of other texts: in TS. (i. 8. 5³), TB. (iii. 7. 12⁴), TA. (ii. 6. 2⁵), MS. (i. 10. 3), AÇS. (ii. 7. 11); they do not agree entirely in the second half which they put in place of ours. Ppp. agrees with some of them, reading agnir mā tasmād enaso gārhapatyah pramuñcatu. Only b is really jagatī.

2. May mother earth, Aditi our birthplace, brother atmosphere, [save] us from imprecation; may our father heaven be weal to us from paternal [guilt]; having gone to my relatives (jāmi), let me not fall down from [their?] world.

The verse is found also in TA. (ii. 6. 29), which reads at end of a ābhīcāsta énaḥ; and, in c, d, bhavāsi jāmi mitvā (jāmtm itvā?) mā vivitsi lokān: the variants are of the kind that seem to show that the text was unintelligible to the text-makers, and that we are excusable in finding it extremely obscure. Ppp. brings no help.* Our translation implies in b abhīcāstyās, but the pada reading is abhīcāstyā, as if instr.; the comm. understands -tyās. Our pada mss. also leave mā unaccented in d. Ludwig and Grill supply lokāt to pītryāt: "from the paternal world." The comm. divides alternatively jāmi mṛtvā and jāmin ṛtvā. The verse is a good triṣṭubh, though capable of being contracted to 40 syllables. * [Grill reports a Ppp. reading trātā for bhrātā, although I do not find it in Roth's collations. Might it represent a trātv antarikṣam?]

3. Where the well-hearted, the well-doing revel, having abandoned disease of their own selves, not lame with their limbs, undamaged in heaven (svargā)—there may we see [our] parents and sons.

[The first half we had at iii. 28. 5.] The verse corresponds to TA. ii. 6. 2¹⁰, which reads mādante at end of a, tanvām svāyām at end of b, aṣṇāṅgār (so Ppp. also) in c (also dhṛtās, but this is doubtless a misprint [the Poona ed. reads in fact dhṛtās]), and pītrām ca pūtrām at the end. The comm. reads tanvās in b, with part of the mss. (including our P.M.I.O.), and aṣṇās in c. [For the substance of the vs., cf. Weber, Sb. 1894, p. 775.]

121. For release from evil.

[Kāuṣika.—[caturṛcam.] mantroktadevatyam. 1, 2. triṣṭubh; 3, 4. anuṣṭubh.]

Found also in Pāipp. xvi. [For vss. 3, 4, cf. v. Schroeder, Zwei Hss., p. 15, Tübinger Kāṣa-hss., p. 75.] Used by Kāuṣ. (52. 3) with vi. 63 and 84, in a rite for release from various bonds; [and with the whole anuvāka—see under h. 114.]

Translated: Ludwig, p. 442; Zimmer, p. 182 (3 vss.); Griffith, i. 311.

1. An untier, do thou untie off us the fetters that are highest, lowest, that are Varuṇa's; remove (nis-sū) from us evil-dreaming [and] difficulty; then may we go to the world of the well-done.

Viṣṭāṇā (p. viśāṇā) is doubtless 'antler' here, as at iii. 7. 1, 2 [which see] (though neither Kāuṣ. nor the schol. nor our comm. make mention of such an article as used here); but it was necessary to render it etymologically, to bring out the word-play between it and vī sya; the comm. treats it as a participle (= vimuñcati), disregarding, as usual, the accent (really vi-sā + ana [Skt. Gram. § 1150 e]). The second pāda is the same with vii. 83. 4 b. The proper readings in c are (see note to Prāt. ii. 86) duṣṣvā-ḥnyam and nīṣṣva, which the mss. almost without exception * abbreviate to duṣṣvāḥ- and nīṣṣva, just as they abbreviate dattvā to datvā, or, in vs. 2 a, rājvām to rājvām (see my Skt. Gr. § 232). SPP. here gives in his samhitā-text nī sva, with all his authorities; our text has nīḥ sva, with only one of ours (O.): doubtless the true metrical form is nīṣṣvā 'smāt. [Cf. Roth, ZDMG. xlviii. 119, note.] Ppp. lacks our second half-verse, having instead 2 a, b. * [That is, if we take the occurrences of the words as a whole in AV.]

2. If (yāt) thou art bound in wood, and if in a rope; if thou art bound in the earth, and if by a spell (vāc)—may this householder's-fire lead us up from that to the world of the well-done.

The second half-verse here is the same with 120. 1 c, d, and seems unconnected with the first half. Ppp. reads, in a, dāruṇā and rajvā, and omits the second half-verse, thus reducing the hymn to three verses, the norm of the book.

3. Arisen are the two blessed stars named the Unfasteners; let them bestow here of immortality (amṛta); let the releaser of the bound advance.

The first half-verse is the same with ii. 8. 1 a, b; compare also iii. 7. 4 a, b. The verse corresponds to TA. ii. 6. 13, which has, for a, amṛ [AV. iii. 7. 4, amṛ] yé subhāge divi, and, in d, etād for prāt 'tu.

4. Go thou apart; make room; mayest thou free the bound one from the bond; like a young fallen out of the womb, do thou dwell along all roads.

A corresponding verse is found in TA. (ii. 6. 14), which has, for a, vī jihṛṣva lokān kṛdhi,* and, at the end, ānu śva (also pathās after sāvān). Ppp. reads at the end anu gacha, and this is what the comm. gives as paraphrase of ānu kṣiya. The Anukr. seems to authorize the contraction yonye 'va in c. * [In c, yónes for yónyās.]

122. With an offering for offspring.

[Bhṛgu. — pañcarcam. vāiṣvakarmaṇam. trāiṣṭubham : 4, 5. jagatī.]

Verses 2, 3 are found in Pāipp. xvi. [For vss. 1-3, cf. v. Schroeder, Zwei Hss., p. 15, Tübinger Kathu-hss., pp. 75-76.] It appears in Kāuṣ., with the hymn next following,* in the savayajñas (63. 29), accompanying the offering of saṁsthātakomas; and the comm. regards vs. 5 (instead of xi. i. 27, which has the same pratīka) as intended at 63. 4, in the same ceremonies, with distribution of water for washing the priests' hands. Vāit. (22. 23) has both hymns in the agnīṣṭoma, with vii. 41. 2, as recited by the sacrificer. [For the whole anuvāka, see under h. 114.] * [And with x. 9. 26.]

Translated: Ludwig, p. 432; Griffith, i. 312.

1. This portion I, knowing, make over [to thee], O Viṣvakarman, first-born of right; by us [is it] given, beyond old age; along an unbroken line may we pass (ti) together.

The connection in this verse is obscure; prathamajāts 'first-born' in b can only qualify "I" grammatically; doubtless it should be vocative, belonging to Viṣvakarman. The comm. connects dattam directly with bhāgam, which he explains by pakvam annam havirbhāgam vā. The second half-verse corresponds to TA. ii. 6. 15 c, d (in immediate connection with the two preceding verses of our text also), which differs only by reading at the end carema; and this the comm. also reads. The first half-verse in TA. is as follows: sā prajānān prātigrbhṇita vidvān prajāpatiḥ prathamajā ṛtāsya; and Ppp. apparently intends a similar reading; it has taṁ prajānan ity ekā, as if the verse had occurred earlier in the text; but it has not been found.

2. Some pass along the extended line, of whom what is the Fathers' [was] given in course (? āyanenu); some, without relatives, giving, bestowing — if they be able to give, that is very heaven.

The TA. (ii. 6. 2⁶) has this verse also, with variants: ānu sāmcaranti for taranti (besides the preceding ānu) in a, āyanavat at end of b, yācchāt at end of c (Ppp. has -yachān), *çaknuvānsas for çlksān and eṣām for evā in d. Both comm's understand ṛṇām 'debt' with pītryam, and abandhū (which appears to be used adverbially) as equivalent to abandhavas: though without descendants, they too reach heaven as reward of their gifts. Ppp. has also te for cet in d. * [The Calc. ed. seems to have çaknūvānsāh sv. Does it intend çaknūvān (or çaknūvān — see Gram. § 701) sā sv.?]

3. Take ye (both) hold after, take hold together after; to this world they that have faith attach themselves (sac); what cooked [offering] of yours is served up in the fire, combine ye, O husband and wife, in order to the guarding of it.

The verse is found in TA. (ii. 6. 27), with great differences of text: anu- is omitted at the beginning; anu, second time in a, is accented, ānu; b is samānām pānthām avatho ghr̥tēna; pūrtām for pakvām is read (also by Ppp.), and yād inserted before agnāū, in c*; d is tāsmāi gōtrāye 'hā jāyāpatī sām rabhethām. The reading pūrtām is against our understanding pakvām of the body prepared by fire for the other world. The comm. explains pāriviṣṭam by praksiptam, the TA. comm. by pariprāpitam, both apparently taking it from root viç. The verse is found repeated, with a different beginning, as xii. 3. 7. It is too irregular to be called a simple triṣṭubh. * [Thus rectifying its meter.]

4. The great sacrifice, as it goes, with mind, I ascend after, with fervor (? tāpas), of like origin; being called upon, O Agni, may we, beyond old age, revel in joint reveling in the third firmament.

The connection of mānasā, in a, is probably with anvārohāmi; that of tāpasā is possibly with sāyonis; but the comm. understands "connected with the sacrifice in virtue of penance"; he guesses two different interpretations of the half-verse. Some of our mss. (P.M.H.p.m.O.) make in c the combination ūpakūtā 'gne which the meter demands. Neither this verse nor the next [save its a] has anything of a jagatī character.

5. These cleansed, purified, worshipful maidens I seat in separate succession in the hands of the priests (brahmān); with what desire I now pour you on, let Indra here with the Maruts grant me that.

The verse occurs again, with a slight variation at the end, as xi. 1. 27, and, with much more important differences, as x. 9. 27. In the latter verse, instead of the figurative appellation "maidens," we have "the divine waters (fem.)" themselves addressed.

123. For the success of an offering.

[Bhṛgu. — pañcarcam. vāiçvadevam. trāiṣṭubham: 3. 2-p. sāmny anuṣṭubh; 4. 1-av. 2-p. prājāpatyā bhurig anuṣṭubh.]

[Partly prose, 3 and 4.] This hymn and the one following are not found in Pāipp. Its uses by Kāuç. and Vāit. with hymn 122 are explained under that hymn. And vss. 3-5 appear also in Vāit. (2. 15), at the parvan sacrifice, in the ceremony of pravaraṇa. [For the whole anuvāka, see under h. 114.]

Translated: Muir, v. 293 (vss. 2, 4, 5); Ludwig, p. 302; Griffith, i. 313.

1. This one, O ye associates (?sadhāstha), I deliver to you, whom Jātavedas shall carry [as] a treasure; the sacrificer follows after well-being; him do ye recognize in the highest firmament.

The verse is found also in VS. (xviii. 59) and K. (xl. 13). VS. reads, in a, sadhastha and te (for vas); in b, it puts çevadhīm after āvāhāt; in c, it reads a. yajñápatir vo átra. The comm. explains sadhasthās as meaning 'the gods' (saha tiṣṭhanty ekatra svarge loka sthāne yajamānena saha nivasanti).

2. Recognize ye him in the highest firmament; ye divine associates, ye know [his] world there; the sacrificer follows after well-being; make ye what he has offered and bestowed plain for him.

This verse is found with the preceding in VS. (xviii. 60) and K. (xl. 13), and also in TB. (iii. 7. 133-4), but with considerable variants: at the beginning, etām jānātha (TB. jānātā) par-; in b, TB. vīkās for dévās, both VS. and TB. sadh- unaccented, which is better, but VS. vida, which is bad, and both rūpām asya (for lokām átra), which gives a better sense; for c, both yád āgāchāt pathibhir devayānāis; in d, both iṣṭāpūrté, and VS. kr̥ṇavātha, but TB. kr̥ṇutāt, both without sma.

3. O gods! O Fathers! O Fathers! O gods! who I am, he am I.

The comm., with his usual carelessness of accent, takes the vocatives here for nominatives. Some of SPP's authorities (also our O.s.m.) omit the accent of the first asmī.

4. He do I cook, he do I give, he do I offer; [as] he, let me not be parted from what is given.

That is, from my gifts, or their reward. The comm. counts and explains these two quasi-verses, 3 and 4, as one. But the Anukr. reckons this hymn (as it reckoned the preceding one) as one of five verses (pañcarca), and SPP's edition as well as ours so divides. ['As that one, I cook' etc. would be an equally accurate translation, and the English of it is not so harsh.]

5. In the firmament, O king, stand firm; there let this stand firm; know of what we have bestowed, O king; do thou, O god, be well-willing.

The comm. understands the addresses of this verse as made to Soma, which is very questionable; and the "this" of b to be the iṣṭāpūrtām, which (or dattām, vs. 4) is right. It must be by a corruption of the text that the Anukr. does not define the verse as an anuṣṭubh.

124. Against evil influence of a sky-drop.

[Atharvan (nirṛtyaṣarāṇakāmah). — mantroktadevatyam uta divyāpyam. trāiṣṭubham.]

This hymn, like the preceding, is not found in Pāipp. It is employed by Kāuṣ. (46. 41) in an expiatory rite for the portent of drops of rain from a clear sky. In Vāit. (12. 7) it is used in the agnisṭoma when one has spoken in sleep; and vs. 3 separately (11. 9), in the same ceremony, when the man who is being consecrated is anointed. [For the whole anuvāka, see under h. 114.]

Translated: Ludwig, p. 498; Griffith, i. 314.

1. From the sky now, from the great atmosphere, a drop of water hath fallen upon me with essence (rāsa); with Indra's power, with milk,

O Agni, [may] I [be joined], with the meters, with offerings, with the deed of the well-doing.

The verse is found also in HGS. i. 16. 6, with sundry variants: mā for mām in a; apatac chivāya at end of b; in c, d, manasā 'ham ā 'gām brahmaṇā guptaḥ sukṛtā kṛtena; these are in some respects improvements, especially in relieving the embarrassing lack of a verb in our second half-verse. The comm. paraphrases antarikṣāt by ākāṣān nirmeghāt, and supplies saṃgaccheya (as in the translation). It is a little strange that the fall of water out of the air upon one is so uncanny and must be atoned for (ākāṣodakaplāvanadoṣaṣānti).

2. If from a tree it hath fallen upon [me], that is fruit; if from the atmosphere, that is merely Vāyu; on whatever part of my body, and what part of my garment, it hath touched, let the waters thrust perdition away.

This verse also is found with the preceding in HGS.; which in a reads vṛkṣāgrād abhya-patat and omits tat; and in b reads yad vā for yadī and tat for sa; for c, it has yatrā vṛkṣas tanuvāi yatra vāsaḥ, and in d bādhanām instead of nudantu. The comm. paraphrases the end of b thus: vāyvatmaka eva nā 'smākaṃ doṣāya. The third pāda is really jagati.

3. A fragrant ointment, a success is that; gold, splendor, just purifying is that. All purifiers [are] stretched out from us; let not perdition pass that, nor the niggard.

That is, the uncanny drop is all these fine things. The comm. renders pātrimam in b by śuddhikaram; and adhi in c by "above." The second pāda is redundant by a syllable.

With this ends the twelfth anuvāka, of 11 hymns and 38 verses; the old Anukr. says aṣṭatrinṣo dvādaśaḥ.

125. To the war-chariot: for its success.

[Atharvan.—vānaspatyam. trāṣṭubham: 2. jagatū.]

Found also in Pāipp. xv. (in the verse-order 2, 3, 1). This hymn and the next are six successive verses of RV. (vi. 47. 26-31), and also of VS. (xxix. 52-57), TS. (iv. 6. 65-7), and MS. (iii. 16. 3). In Kāuṣ. (15. 11) it [and not xii. 3. 33] is used in a battle-rite, with vii. 3, 110, and other passages, as the king mounts a new chariot (at Kāuṣ. 10. 24 and 13. 6 it is ix. 1. 1 that is intended [so SPP's ed. of the comm. to iii. 16], not vs. 2 of this hymn). In Vāit. (6. 8), vss. 3 and 1 are quoted in the agnyādheya, accompanying the sacrificial gift of a chariot; and the hymn (or vs. 1), in the sattra (34. 15), as the king mounts a chariot.

Translated: by the RV. translators; and, as AV. hymn, by Ludwig again, p. 459; Griffith, i. 314. — See also Bergaigne-Henry, Manuel, p. 155.

1. O forest-tree! stout-limbed verily mayest thou become, our companion, furtherer, rich in heroes; thou art fastened together with kine; be thou stout; let him who mounts thee conquer things conquerable.

There is no difference of reading among all the versions of this verse. GB. (i. 2. 21) quotes its pratīka [and so does MGS. at i. 13. 5; cf. p. 155]; MB. (i. 7. 16) has the whole verse. "Kine," as often elsewhere, means the products of cattle, here the strips of cow-hide; and "tree" the thing made of its wood [cf. i. 2. 3, note].

2. Forth from heaven, from earth [is its] force brought up; forth from forest-trees [is its] power brought hither; to the force of the waters, brought forth hither by the kine, to Indra's thunderbolt, the chariot, do thou sacrifice with oblation.

Or all the nouns ("force" and "power" in a, b as well) are to be taken as accusatives with yaja 'sacrifice to.' Ppp. reads ābhṛtaṃ at end of a, and parisambhṛtaṃ in b. All the other versions have the better reading āvṛtaṃ at end of c; and so has the comm., followed by three of SPP's mss.; and it is accordingly adopted in SPP's text. MS. reads āvṛtaṃ also in b, and antāriḥśāt instead of ōja ūdbhṛtaṃ in a. TS.VS. have divāh p- at the beginning. The comm. refers to TS. vi. 1. 34 as authority for identifying the chariot with Indra's thunderbolt.

3. Indra's force, the Maruts' front (ānṛka), Mitra's embryo, Varuṇa's navel—do thou, enjoying this oblation-giving of ours, O divine chariot, accept the oblations.

All the other versions have vājras for ōjas in a, and Ppp. agrees with them. All, too (not Ppp.), combine śe 'mām at beginning of c, against the requirement of the meter. The GB. quotes (i. 2. 21) the pratīka of this verse in its form as given by our text. [Ppp. has dharuṇasya for vār- in b.]

126. To the drum: for success against the foe.

[Atharvan.—vānaspatyadundubhidevatyam. bhuriktrāiṣṭubham: 3. purobṛhātī virādgarbhā triṣṭubh.]

Found also in Pāipp. xv.* (but 1 c, d and 2 a, b are wanting, probably by an error of the copyist), and in the same other texts as the preceding hymn (RV.VS.TS.MS.: in MS. the three verses are not in consecution with those of 125). Applied by Kāuṣ. (16. 1) in a battle rite, with v. 20, as the drums and other musical instruments of war, duly prepared, are sounded thrice and handed to those who are to play them. Vāit. (34. 11) has it (also with v. 20) in the same ceremony as the preceding hymn, as the drum-heads are drawn on. * [Seems to be an error for Pāipp. vii.]

Translated: by the RV. translators; and Griffith, i. 315.—See also Bergaigne-Henry, Manuel, p. 156.

1. Blast thou unto heaven and earth; in many places let them win for thee the scattered living creatures (jāgat); do thou, O drum, allied with Indra [and] the gods, drive away our foes further than far.

The second pāda is translated according to the reading of our text, whose vanvatām, however, can hardly be otherwise than a corruption of the manutām of the other texts; Ppp. has instead sunutām, which is yet worse; the comm. has vanutām. MS. has, in d, arāt for dūrāt.

2. Resound thou at [them]; mayest thou assign strength [and] force to us; thunder against [them], forcing off difficulties; drive, O drum, misfortune away from here; Indra's fist art thou; be stout.

The other texts have, in b, nīh ṣṭanīhi for abht ṣṭana, and, in c, protha for sedha, and the plural duchūnās (save TS., which gives -nān, in pada-text -nān).

3. Conquer thou those yonder ; let these here conquer ; let the drum speak loud [vāvad-] [and] clear ; let our horse-winged heroes fly together ; let our chariot-men, O Indra, conquer.

All the other texts have, for a, ā'mūr aja pratyāvartaye māh, and vāvadīti at end of b ; in c, for patantu, cāranti (but MS. cārantu) ; while Ppp. reads patayanti. Amūm before jaya doubtless means amūn, and is so translated above ; but the pada-text understands it as amūm, and the comm. supplies çatrusenām. The Anukr. contracts the first pāda into 9 syllables.

127. Against various diseases : with a wooden amulet.

[Bhṛgvañgiras. — vānaspatyam uta yakṣmanāçanadevatyam. ānuṣṭubham : 3. 3-a. 6-p. jagatī.]

This hymn is not found in Pāipp. Kāuṣ. applies it (26. 33-39), with ii. 7, 25 ; vi. 85, 109 ; viii. 7, in a healing rite against various diseases (with this hymn specially the person treated is to be smeared by means of a splinter of palāça, ib. 34 ; and the head of one seized by Varuṇa is to be anointed, ib. 39) ; and it is reckoned (note to 26. 1) to the takmanāçana gava.

Translated : Zimmer, p. 386 (with comment on the diseases) ; Griffith, i. 315 ; Bloomfield, 40, 530. — See also Grohmann, Ind. Stud. ix. 396 ff.

1. Of the vidradhā, of the red balāsa, O forest-tree, of the visālpaka, O herb, do thou not leave even a bit (? piçitā).

Or lōhitasya may be a separate disease (so rendered by Zimmer : the comm. takes it as either "red" or "[a disease of] the blood"). The form visālpaka is given here on the strength of SPP's authorities (among which living repeaters of the text are included), and of the comm., which derives it from root sṛp (viividham sarpati), with substitution of l for r ; no manuscript is to be trusted to distinguish lpa and lya, and, as the word is unknown save in this hymn and in ix. 8 and xix. 44, there was nothing to show which was the true reading. The comm. takes caturañgulapalāçaavrkṣa to be the tree addressed, and vidradha as vidarānaçilo vranāviçeṣaḥ ; also piçita as nidānabhūtam duṣṭam mān-sam ; and balāsa as kāsaçvāsādi. [Our P.M.E.I.O.R.K. combine visālpakasyoṣadhe in samhitā in c ; and this SPP. adopts in his text, and reports nothing to the contrary from his authorities.]

2. The two testicles that are thine, O balāsa, laid away in thine arm-pit (? kākṣa) — I know the remedy for that, the çipūdru, a looking-upon.

By a blundering confusion of c and ç in transcription, in our text and in the Index Verborum founded upon it, the form çipūdru instead of cī has been adopted for this verse. The comm. reads çipādru, and calls it "a kind of tree having this name" ; perhaps çipūdu is the true form. We should have expected rather ūpa- or āpi- than āpa-çritāu in b (= apakṛṣṭam āçritāu ; and kākṣe = bāhumūle, comm.). ["Testicles" : perhaps swellings of the axillary "glands."]

3. The visālpaka that is of the limbs, that is of the ears, that is in the eyes — we eject the visālpaka, the vidradhā, the heart-disease ; we impel away downward that unknown yākṣma.

128. For auspicious time: with dung-smoke.

[Atharvāṅgiras (nakṣatrarājānaṁ candramasam astāu).—caturṛcam. sāumyam; çakadhūmadevatyam. ānuṣṭubham.]

Except the third verse, this hymn occurs also in Pāipp. xix. Besides the ceremony reported under vs. 1, Kāuṣ. has the hymn (50. 13) in a general rite for good fortune, with vi. 1, 3-7, 59, etc. etc.; and also, in the chapter of portents (100. 3), in an expiatory ceremony on occasion of an eclipse of the moon (somagrahana, comm.); vs. 3, too, is specially quoted in the aṣṭakā ceremony (138.8), as accompanying a nineteenth [oblation?].

Translated: Weber, Omina und Portenta (1858), p. 363; Zimmer, p. 353; Griffith, i. 316; Bloomfield, 160, 532.—Bloomfield had already treated it at length, AJP. vii. 484 ff., and JAOS. xiii. p. cxxxiii (= PAOS., Oct. 1886). A pencilled note on Whitney's ms. shows that he considered the propriety of rewriting the translation and comment for vi. 128.

1. When the asterisms made the çakadhūma their king, they bestowed on him auspicious (bhadra-) day, saying "This shall be [his] royalty."

Çakadhūma (with irregular but not unparalleled accent: see my Sk. Gr. § 1267 b) means primarily 'dung-smoke,' i.e. smoke arising from burning dung (or else the vapor from fresh dung). According to the comm., it signifies here the fire from which such smoke arises, and then, "on account of inseparability from that, a Brahman"; and he quotes TS. v. 2. 8¹⁻²: "a Brahman is indeed this Agni Vāiçvānara." The Kāuṣika-Sūtra, in a passage (50. 15, 16) also quoted by the comm., says that, with this hymn, 'having laid balls of dung on the joints of a Brahman friend, one asks dung-smoke, "what sort of day today?"' He (of course, the Brahman*) answers "propitious, very favorable." Prof. Bloomfield takes çakadhūma to be out-and-out the title of a Brahman, "weather-prophet"; but this seems not to follow from the Sūtra, also not from the Anukr., and least of all from the hymn. The Pāipp. version differs considerably from ours (but nearly agrees with one in an appendix to the Nakṣatra-kalpa: see Bloomfield, AJP. vii. 485): it reads yad rājānaṁ çakadhūmaṁ nakṣatrāṇy akṛṇuita: bhadrāham asmāi prā'yachan tato rāṣṭram ajāyata. The accent of āsāt in ḍ is not explained by any known rule. * [So Keçava to Kāuṣ. 50. 16.]

2. Auspicious day ours at noon, auspicious day be ours at evening, auspicious day ours in the morning of the days; be night auspicious day for us.

That is, may each of these times be free from omens and influences of ill-luck. The Ppp. version runs thus: bh. astu nas sāyaṁ bh. prātar astu nah: bh. asmabhyaṁ tvaṁ çakadhūma sadā kṛṇu (as in the appendix to the Nakṣatra-kalpa just cited).

3. From day-and-night, from the asterisms, from sun-and-moon, do thou, O king çakadhūma, make auspicious day for us.

This verse, as already noted, is wanting in Ppp., but its second half nearly agrees with that of the Ppp. version of vs. 2. The accent in b should be emended to sūryācandramasābhyaṁ, as is read below [see W's note] in xi. 3. 34. The first half-verse is metrically irregular.

4. Thou who hast made auspicious day for us at evening, by night, also by day — to thee as such, O çakadhūma, king of the asterisms, [be] always homage.

Ppp. reads akarāt at end of a, and prātar for naktam in b. All the mss. leave akaras unaccented, and SPP. accordingly gives akaras in his text; ours emends to ākaras.

One may conjecture that it is the Milky Way, which is not unlike a thin line of smoke drawn across the sky, that is the real king of the asterisms, and that its imitation by a column of the heavy smoke of burning dung is what was relied on to counteract any evil influences from the asterisms; or the behavior of such smoke, as rising upward or hanging low, may have been really a weather-sign.

129. For good-fortune: with a çiñçāpā amulet.

[Atharvāṅgiras. — bhagadevatyam. ānuṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix. (in the verse-order 1, 3, 2). Used by Kāuç. (36. 12), with vi. 139 and vii. 38, in a rite relating to women, for good-fortune: one binds sāuvarcala on the head after the fashion of an herb (-amulet? Keç. and the comm. explain as the root or flower of the çāñkhaṣṭhikā) and enters the village.

Translated: Griffith, i. 317. — The association of this hymn with 139 seems to imply something more specific than "good-fortune," namely, luck in love for a man, as Keçava's yasya (not yasyās) sāubhāgyam ichatī indicates.

1. Me with a portion (bhāga) of çiñçāpā, together with Indra [as] ally, I make myself portioned; let the niggards run away.

The mss. blunder over the word çāñçāpā. SPP. reports only çāñçāphēna as variant (read by two of his); ours have that, and also çāñsayēna and sāñçayēna; our text reads wrongly çāñçayēna [correct to çāñçāpā]. The comm. gives sāñçāphena, and etymologizes it accordingly as sam + çapha! Ppp. has sāñçāpā. The çiñçāpā is the Dalbergia sisu, a tree distinguished for height and beauty. The comm. understands bhāga throughout the hymn as the god Bhaga. [The refrain recurs at xiv. 2. 11.] The Anukr. overlooks the lack of a syllable in c.

2. With what portion thou didst overcome the trees, together with splendor, therewith make me portioned; let the niggards run away.

Ppp. reads quite differently: athā vṛkṣān adyabhatvat sākam indreṇa medinā: evā mā etc.

3. The portion that is blind, that is reverted (punahsarā), set in the trees — therewith make me portioned; let the niggards run away.

Extremely obscure. There must be some special connection, unclear to us, between bhāga and çiñçāpā. The comm. understands the god Bhaga, and explains the epithet 'blind' in this verse by referring to Nirukta xii. 14, and 'reverted' as relating to his consequent inability to go forward; he reads āhatas in b for āhitas, and pictures the blind Bhaga as running against the trees along his way! The sense is, perhaps, the fortune or beauty that lies invisible and withdrawn in the trees. Ppp. ends b with vṛkṣe sārpiṭah, and has, for c, bhage nī rāme 'stu çāñçāpo.

130. To win a man's love.

[Atharvāṅgiras. — caturṛcam. smaradevatākam. ānuṣṭubham: 1. virāṭpurastādbrhatī.]

Hymns 130–132 are not found in Pāipp. Hymn 130 and the next two are used by Kāuṣ. (36. 13–14) in a women's rite (duṣṭastrīvaçīkaranakarmani, comm. and Keç.), with strewing of beans (comm. and Keç. read māsān, not māsasmarān), burning of arrow-tips, and [comm. and Keç.] piercing of an effigy.

Translated: Weber, Ind. Stud. v. 244; Ludwig, p. 515; Grill, 58, 174; Griffith, i. 317; Bloomfield, 104, 534.

1. Of the Apsarases, chariot-conquering, belonging to the chariot-conquering, [is] this the love (smard): ye gods, send forth love; let yon [man] burn for (anu-çuc) me.

Our pada-mss. (and three of SPP's) make in a the absurd division rāthasjite: yñām, for which the comm. reads rathajite dhīnām (= rathena jetariye māṣākhye oṣadhī; and dhyānajanānīnām). The two terms (of which one is an evident derivative of the other) have so little applicability to the Apsarases that Grill resorts to the violent and unacceptable measure of substituting arthajitām arthajitīnām. Perhaps nothing more is meant than to mark strongly the all-conquering power postulated for the Apsarases in this spell. Ludwig renders smara by "love-charm." The comm., in spite of priyas in 2 b and amuṣya in 3 b, thinks it a woman whose love is sought.

2. Let yon [man] love (smṛ) me; being dear, let him love me: ye gods, send etc. etc.

At the end of pādas a and b is added iti, not translated; it appears to indicate an expression of the purpose for which the gods are to despatch love. The comm. combines vss. 2 and 3 into one verse, thus restoring the norm of the book; but the Anukr. calls the hymn one of four verses, and that is plainly its value in the present state of the text. [Here the comm., alternatively, allows that it may be a man whose love is sought.]

3. That yon [man] may love me, not I him at any time, ye gods, send etc. etc.

SPP's pada-text, probably by an oversight, leaves amuṣya unaccented; the comm. undauntedly explains it by amūñ striyam.

4. Craze (ūn-māday-) [him], O Maruts; O atmosphere, craze [him]; O Agni, do thou craze [him]; let yon [man] burn for me.

131. To win a man's love.

[Atharvāṅgiras. — smaradevatākam. ānuṣṭubham.]

Not found in Pāipp. (like the preceding and the following hymn). Used by Kāuṣ. only with the preceding and the following hymn (see under the former).

Translated: Weber, Ind. Stud. v. 244; Grill, 58, 175; Griffith, i. 318; Bloomfield, 104, 535.

1. Down from the head, down from the feet, thy longings (ādhi) I draw down. Ye gods, send forth love; let yon [man] burn for me.

Again the comm. stupidly (see vs. 3) understands a woman to be addressed.

2. O Anumati, assent to (anu-man) this; O design (ākūti), mayest thou constrain (sam-nam) this. Ye gods, send etc. etc.

‘Design’ (ākūti) is evidently here a personification (saṅkalpābhīnānī devatā, comm.), as is often ānumati ‘assent.’ No ms. reads namas, without accent, and SPP. accordingly prints nāmas in his text; ours emends to namas; the comm. takes the word as a noun; īdam in a he explains by madabhilaṣitam. The Anukr. heeds not that the first pāda is trīṣṭubh.

3. If (yāt) thou runnest three leagues, five leagues, a horseman’s day’s journey, thence shalt thou come back; thou shalt be father of our sons.

The proper division of āyasi in c is doubtless ā: ayasi, which is, however, read only by one of SPP’s pada-mss.; the others give ādyasi (cf. ādyati at vi. 60. 2) or āayasi, and this last is adopted by SPP.—quite unaccountably, since such accent and such division do not properly go together in any pada-text.

132. To compel a man’s love.

[Atharvāṅgiras.—pañcarcam. smaradevatākam. ānuṣṭubham: 1. 3-p. anuṣṭubh; 3. bhurij; 2, 4, 5. 3-p. mahābhyatī; 2, 4. virāj.]

Like the two preceding hymns, not found in Pāipp. Used by Kāuṣ. only with its two predecessors (see under 130). The metrical definitions of the Anukr. are artificial and worthless.

Translated: Weber, Ind. Stud. v. 245; Griffith, i. 319; Bloomfield, 104, 535.

1. The love that the gods poured within the waters, greatly burning, together with longing—that I heat for thee by Varuṇa’s ordinance (dhārman).

2. The love that all the gods poured etc. etc.

3. The love that Indrāṇī poured etc. etc.

4. The love that Indra-and-Agni poured etc. etc.

5. The love that Mitra-and-Varuṇa poured etc. etc.

133. To a girdle: for long life etc.

[Agastya.—pañcarcam. mekhalādevatākam. trīṣṭubham: 1. bhurij; 2, 5. anuṣṭubh; 4. jagatī.]

Found also in Pāipp. v. Used by Kāuṣ. (47. 14–15) in a rite of sorcery, with the following hymn, for due preparation of girdle and staff; vs. 3 also alone in the same rite (47. 13), with laying fuel of bādhaka on the fire; and vss. 4 and 5 twice in the upanayana ceremony (56. 1; 57. 1), with tying on a girdle.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 432; Griffith, i. 319.

1. The god that bound on this girdle, that fastened [it] together (sam-nah), and that joined (yuj) [it] for us, the god by whose instruction we move—may he seek the further shore, and may he release us.

Ppp. has in c the singular carāmi. ‘Further shore’ is a familiar expression for the end of a difficult or dangerous act or process (prārīpsitasya karmanah samāptim, comm.). Tāsya at beginning of c in our text is a misprint for yāsya. [The Anukr. refuses to sanction the contraction ye 'mām.]

2. Offered to art thou, offered unto ; thou art the weapon of the seers (ṛṣi); partaking (pra-aç) first of the vow (vrata), be thou a hero-slayer, O girdle.

For the first pāda Ppp. has only the single word āhuta (perhaps by accidental omission); in d it reads avīraghnī. The comm. explains vrata as either 'vow' or, by the usual secondary application, 'milk etc.' (kṣīrādīkām); to abhikutā in a it prefixes an explanatory sampāta.

3. Since I am death's student (brahmacārīn), soliciting from existence (? bhūtā) a man (puruṣa) for Yama, him do I, by incantation (brāhman), by fervor, by toil, tie with this girdle.

It is the duty of a Vedic student to beg provision for his teacher. Ppp. begins b with bhūtāu niryācan. The comm. reads niryācam, explaining it as first person sing. (= yāce)! The result he takes to be "by this binding on of a girdle I impede the progress of my enemy." Pāda c has a redundant syllable.

4. Daughter of faith, born out of fervor, sister of the being-making seers was she; do thou, O girdle, assign to us thought (matī), wisdom; also assign to us fervor and Indra's power.

All the mss. (and both editions) accent babhūva at end of b, as if a relative were expressed or implied in the line somewhere. The verse is really mixed triṣṭubh and jagatī; [a is jagatī only by count; no in c looks like an intrusion]. [As to the combination -sa ṛs-, see note to Prāt. iii. 46.]

5. Thou whom the ancient being-making seers bound about, do thou embrace me, in order to length of life, O girdle.

134. To crush an enemy with a thunderbolt.

[Çukra. — *mantruktavajradevatyam. ānuṣṭubham : 1. parānuṣṭubḥ triṣṭubḥ ; [2.] * bhurik 3-p. gāyatrī.*]

Found also in Pāipp. v. Used by Kāuç. (47. 14) in a rite of sorcery with the preceding hymn (which see); and also later in the same rite (47. 18), with smiting down the staff three times. * [The Anukr. text is here confused and defective. Its reading (with the probable omission supplied in brackets) is, antyā bhurik [anuṣṭub, dvitīyā bhurik] tripadā gāyatrī.]

Translated: Ludwig, p. 448; Griffith, i. 320.

1. Let this thunderbolt gratify itself with right (? ṛtāsya), let it smite down his kingdom, away his life; let it crush [his] neck, crush up his nape, as Çachipati of Vritra.

Ppp. reads vratena instead of ṛtāsya in a, meaning perhaps mṛtena, which would be a welcome improvement, suggesting emendation of our text to -iām mṛtāsya 'on the dead man,' anticipating the result of the action imprecated in the next pāda. Ludwig translates as if it were amṛtāsya, which is to be rejected. The comm. renders it simply

'truth, or sacrifice,' and regards a staff (dhāryamāṇo daṇḍaḥ) as intended by vajra; in b he apparently overlooks and omits ava. The pāda-reading at end of c is uṣṇihā, as if for -hāu, dual; the comm. reads -hāh, which is doubtless the right form. Ppp. leaves off the last pāda, but whether it ends c with uṣṇihāh I am not informed. Ppp. also has jīvam for jīvitam in b, and skandhā for grīvās in c. [The Anukr. ignores the jagatī rhythm of a and c.]

2. Beneath, beneath them that are above, hidden, may he not creep out of the earth; let him lie smitten down by the thunderbolt.

[The mark which should divide a from b is not noted in W's collation-book.]

3. Whoever scathes, him seek thou after; whoever scathes, him smite; the crown of the scather, O thunderbolt, do thou cause to fall following after.

The last pāda is very obscure; it is rendered as if it meant an involving of the offender's crown (sīmanta : = çiraso madhyadeça, comm.) in the fall of the thunderbolt (but the comm. explains anvañcam by anulomam!). Ppp. reads sāyakas for tvam in c. The Prāt. gives an obiter dictum (iii. 43) on the derivation of sīmanta (or sīmānt). The metrical definition [bhurig anuṣṭub] seems to be omitted in the Anukr.

135. To crush an enemy.

[Çukra. — mantroktavajradevatyam. ānuṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. v. Used by Kāuç. (47. 20) in the same rite of sorcery as the two preceding hymns, with the direction "do as stated in the text."

Translated: Griffith, i. 321.

1. When (yāt) I eat, I make strength; thus do I take the thunderbolt, cutting to pieces (çat) the shoulders of him yonder, as Çachīpati of Vritra.

Skandhā 'shoulder' is always plural [in AV.], and so is not precisely equivalent to the word used to render it. Ppp. has for b, vajram anuṣṭatayati. Pāda b is deficient unless we read va-jr-am.

2. When I drink, I drink up, an up-drinker like the ocean; drinking up the breath of him yonder, we drink him up.

Ppp. combines samudrāi 'va in b, and reads, in c, d, saṃpīvām saṃpīvāmy ahaṃ pīvā.

3. When I swallow, I swallow up, a swallower-up like the ocean; swallowing up the breath of him yonder, we swallow him up.

Ppp. reads, for c, d, prāṇam amusya saṃgīraṃ saṃgīrāmy ahaṃ gīraṃ. The accent gīrāmi in our text is doubtless wrong (read gīrāmi), but it is read by all the authorities, and accordingly is adopted in both editions.

136. To fasten and increase the hair.

[Atharvan (keçavardhanakāmah [vītahavyah]). — vānaspatyam. ānuṣṭubham : 2. 1-av. 2-p. sāmnī br̥hatī.]

Not found in Pāipp. Used by Kāuç. (31. 28), with the following hymn, in a remedial rite for the growth of the hair.

Translated : Zimmer, p. 68 ; Grill, 50, 176 ; Griffith, i. 321 ; Bloomfield, 31, 536.

1. Thou art born divine on the divine one, [namely] the earth, O herb ; thee here, O down-stretcher, we dig in order to fix the hair.

The comm. explains the plant addressed to be the kācamāci etc. ; nītatnī is apparently not the name, but an epithet, " sending its roots far down " (nyakprasaraṇaṣṭilā, comm.).

2. Fix thou the old ones, generate those unborn, and make longer those born.

The comm. strangely divides vss. 2 and 3 differently, adding 3 a, b to 2, and leaving 3 c, d to form by themselves a verse. [The Anukr. scans as 9+9. The " verse " seems to be prose.]

3. What hair of thine falls down, and what one is hewn off with its root, upon it I now pour with the all-healing plant.

The comm., as well as all the mss. (and both editions), has the false form vṛççāte (for vṛççyāte).

137. To fasten and increase the hair.

[Atharvan (keçavardhanakāmah [vītahavyah]). — vānaspatyam. ānuṣṭubham.]

Of this hymn only the second verse is found in Pāipp. (i.). It is used by Kāuç. only with the preceding hymn, as there explained.

Translated : Ludwig, p. 512 ; Zimmer, p. 68 ; Grill, 50, 176 ; Griffith, i. 321 ; Bloomfield, 31, 537.

1. [The herb] which Jamadagni dug for his daughter, [as] hair-increaser, that one Vītahavya brought from Asita's houses.

Or vītahavya may be understood (with the Anukr.) as an epithet, ' after the gods had enjoyed his oblations.' The comm. takes it as a proper name, as also āsītasya (= kṛṣṇa-keçasyāi tatsamjñasya muneh).

2. To be measured with a rein were they, to be after-measured with a fathom : let the black hairs grow out of thy head like reeds.

The Ppp. version, though corrupt, suggests no different reading. The comm., startled at the exaggeration implied in abhīçu, declares it to mean " finger." In ḍ, āsītās is read by all the mss., and consequently by both editions ; it apparently calls for emendation to āsītās, and is so translated (kṛṣṇavarṇāḥ, comm.). The Anukr. seems to admit the contraction nade'va in 2 c, 3 c.

3. Fix thou the root, stretch the end, make the middle stretch out, O herb ; let the black hairs grow out of thy head like reeds.

Yāmaya, in b, is yamaya in pada-text, by Prāt. iv. 93.

138. To make a certain man impotent.

[Atharvan (klībakartukāmah).—pañcarcam. vānaspatyam. ānuṣṭubham : 3. pathyāpañkti.]

Found (except vs. 5) also in Pāipp. i. Used by Kāuṣ. (48. 32) in a rite of sorcery, with wrapping, crushing, and burying urine and faeces.

Translated : Weber, Ind. Stud. v. 246 ; Ludwig, p. 470 ; Geldner, Ved. Stud. i. 131 (in part and with comment) ; Griffith, i. 322, 474 ; Bloomfield, 108, 537.

1. Thou art listened to, O herb, as the most best of plants ; make thou now this man for me impotent (klībā), opaçā-wearing.

The opaçā is some head-ornament worn distinctively by women (comm. strīvyāñjanam). Geldner holds that opaça, kurīra (vs. 2), and kumba (vs. 3) all mean alike 'horn.' Ppp. reads pāuruṣam in c. The comm. does not attempt to identify the plant addressed.

2. Do thou make him impotent, opaçā-wearing, likewise make him kurīra-wearing ; then let Indra with the (two) pressing-stones split both his testicles.

Ppp. gives kṛtvā for kṛdhi in a (combining kṛvo 'p-), and reads throughout klīva and opaçu ; in c, d it has ubhābhyām asya gr. indro bhinattv ā. The comm. explains kurīra as = keça, and quotes from TS. iv. 1. 53 the phrase sinīvālī sukaparādā sukurīrā svāupaçā ; and also, from an unknown source, stanakeçavattī strī syāl lomaçaḥ puruṣaḥ smṛtaḥ.

3. Impotent one, I have made thee impotent ; eunuch (vādhrī), I have made thee eunuch ; sapless one, I have made thee sapless ; the kurīra and the kūmba we set down upon his head.

The comm. explains kurīra here as 'a net of hair' (keçajāla) and kumba as 'its ornament' (tadābharanam), and he quotes from ĀpÇS. x. 9. 5 the sentence atra pat-nīçirasi kumbakurīram adhy ūhate. Both words plainly signify some distinctively womanish head-dress or ornament. Ppp. reads (as also our P.s.m.) kumbham in e ; and, for c, arasaṁ tvā 'karam arasā 'raso 'si.

4. The two god-made tubes that [are] thine, in which stands thy virility, those I split for thee with a peg, on yon woman's loins (muṣkā).

Ppp. combines amuṣyā 'dhi in d (but perhaps the true samhitā-reading?). [Ppp. has a gap in the place where our çamyayā stands.]

5. As women split reeds with a stone for a cushion, so do I split thy member, on yon woman's loins.

In this and the preceding verse, the comm. strangely connects muṣkāyo with the preceding noun (nādyāū, çépas) and supplies çilāyās with amuṣyās.

139. To compel a woman's love.

[Atharvan.—pañcarcam. vānaspatyam. ānuṣṭubham : 1. 3-av. 6-p. virādjaçatī.]

The hymn is wanting in Pāipp. Kāuṣ. (36. 12) uses it in a women's rite, with vi. 129 and vii. 38 : see under the former.

Translated: Weber, Ind. Stud. v. 247; Ludwig, p. 515; Griffith, i. 323; Bloomfield, 102, 539.

1. Nyastikā hast thou grown up, my good-fortune maker; a hundred [are] thy forth-stretchers, three and thirty thy down-stretchers. With this thousand-leafed [herb] I make dry thy heart.

The great majority of mss. (including of ours all but Bp.D.R.Kp.) read subhāgamk- in b, and this appears to be probably the true sarhitā-reading, with -bhag- for pada-reading, although neither the Prāt. nor its commentary notes the case; SPP's edition, like ours, reads -bhag-. The comm. explains nyastikā as nitarām asyantī 'casting downward' (namely, any omen of ill-fortune). OB. takes it as a fem. of nyasta-ka 'stuck in'; perhaps rather diminutive of nyasta, as if 'something thrown down, cast away, insignificant.' The comm. understands the plant intended to be the ṣaṅkha-ḥṣṣikā (Andropogon aciculatus: "creeping; grows on barren moist pasture-ground. Of very coarse nature. I never found it touched by cattle." Roxburgh). The comm. ends vs. 1 with the fourth pāda, adding the other two to vs. 2.

2. Let thy heart dry up on me, then let [thy] mouth dry up; then dry thou up by loving me; then go thou about dry-mouthed.

Read perhaps rather mām-kāmēna. Two pādas count an extra syllable each.

3. A conciliator, a love-awakener (?), do thou, O brown, beauteous one, push together; push together both yon woman and me; make [our] heart the same.

The mss. hardly distinguish ṣy and ṣp, but ours, in general, seem, as distinctly as the case admits, to read samūṣyālā in a; yet SPP. has -uṣpa- (noting one ms. as reading -uṣya-), and, as he has living scholars among his authorities, the probability is that he is right. Save here and at xiv. 1. 60 (ūṣyālāni or ūṣpa-), the word appears to be unknown. The comm. gives a worthless mechanical etymology, samyak uṣṭaphalā satī. [Is samubjalā (root ubj) intended, as a marginal note of Mr. Whitney's suggests?] Our P.M.I. read amūm at beginning of c.

4. As the mouth of one who has not drunk water dries away, so dry thou up by loving me, then go thou about dry-mouthed.

The third pāda has a redundant syllable.

5. As a mongoos, having cut apart, puts together again a snake, so, O powerful [herb], put together the divided of love.

This capacity of the mongoos is unknown to naturalists, nor have any references to it been noted elsewhere.

140. With the first two upper teeth of a child.

[Atharvan. — brāhmaṇaspatyam uta mantroktadantadevatyam. ānuṣṭubham: 1. urobr̥hatī; 2. upariṣṭājyotiṣmatī triṣṭubh; 3. āstāraḥpañkti.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix. Used by Kāuṣ. (46. 43-46) in an expiatory rite when the two upper teeth of a child appear first; it "is made to bite the things mentioned in the text; and both it and its parents are made to eat of the grain so mentioned after it has been boiled in consecrated water."

Translated: Zimmer, p. 321; Grill, 49, 176; Griffith, i. 323; Bloomfield, 110, 540.

1. The (two) tigers that, having grown down, desire to devour father and mother — those (two) teeth, O Brahmaṇaspati, make thou propitious, O Jātavedas.

Our P.M.W. read kṛṇuki in d. Ppp., instead of ḍ, gives the refrain of 2, 3 : mā hiṁs- etc.

2. Eat ye (two) rice; eat ye barley; then beans, then sesame; this is your deposited (nīhita) portion for treasuring, ye (two) teeth; do not injure father and mother.

Instead of atho māsam in b, Ppp. has māsām attam; it begins c with sa for eṣa, and reads -dheyam in d. The comm. paraphrases ratnadheyāya by ramaṇṇyaphalāya. The verse (8+8 : 8+7+11=42) is but ill-defined by the Anukr. [It is really an anuṣṭubh with ḍ catalectic, and with a triṣṭubh refrain.]

3. Invoked [are] the two conjoint, pleasant, very propitious teeth; let what is terrible of your selves (tanū) go away elsewhere, ye teeth; do not injure father and mother.

Ppp. reads aghorāu sayujā sanividānāu, and adds at the end anyatra vām tanvo ghoram astu. The comm. reads tanvās in c. The definition of the Anukr. fits the verse (7+8 : 13+11) very ill. [Whitney's notes show that he had suspected sayujāu to be a misreading for suyujāu, and the latter is the form actually given by the Index Verborum; but further notes show that Bp. and the Anukr. read sa-. With them agree SPP. and the comm. and Ppp. Correct the Index accordingly.]

141. With marking of cattle's ears.

[Viçvāmitra. — āçvinam. ānuṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix. (in the verse-order 1, 3, 2). Used by Kāuṣ. (23. 12-16) in a ceremony for welfare called citrākarma: after due preparation and ceremony, the ears are cut with vs. 2, and the blood is wiped off and eaten (by the creature, comm.) with vs. 3. The hymn is reckoned (note to 19. 1) to the puṣṭika mantras. The schol. also uses vs. 2 in the ceremony of letting loose a bull (note to 24. 19).

Translated: Ludwig, p. 469; Zimmer, p. 234; Griffith, i. 324.

1. May Vāyu collect them; let Tvashṭar stay fast in order to [their] prosperity; may Indra bless them; let Rudra take care for [their] numbers.

Samākarat (p. samo-ākarat) might, of course, also be indicative (sam-ā-akarāt). Ppp., in c, combines indrā "bhyo, and reads bruvat; in d, it has 'va gachatū for cikīsatu. The comm. renders dhriyatām by dhārayatu, and d by pādāsyādirogaparihāreṇa bahvīḥ karotu.

2. With the red knife (svādhitī), make thou a pair (mithunā) on [their] two ears; the Açvins have made the mark; be that numerous by progeny.

The comm. explains mithunam as striṇuṣātmakeṇi cihnam, and regards it as applied to the calf's ears. [If the comm. is correct on this point, as is altogether likely, this marking the cattle's ears with marks resembling the genitals is a bit of symbolism most interesting to the student of folk-lore.] The 'red' knife is doubtless of copper [so also the comm.]. Ppp. reads lakṣmī in c (but lakṣma in vs. 3). MB. (i. 8. 7) has the first half-verse, with kṛtam for kṛdhi.

3. As the gods and Asuras made [it], as human beings also, so, O Aṅvins, make ye the mark, in order to thousand-fold prosperity.

142. For increase of barley.

[Viçvāmitra. — vāyavyam. ānuṣṭubham.]

Not found in Pāipp. Used by Kāuṣ. (24. 1) in a rite of preparation for sowing seed, and reckoned (19. 1, note) among the puṣṭika mantras; vs. 3 also appears (19. 27) in a rite for prosperity, with binding on an amulet of barley.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 463; Zimmer, p. 237; Grill, 66, 177; Griffith, i. 324; Bloomfield, 141, 541. — See also Bergaigne-Henry, Manuel, p. 156.

1. Rise up (ut-ṛzi), become abundant (bakū) with thine own greatness, O barley; ruin (mṛ) all receptacles; let not the bolt from heaven smite thee.

Instead of mṛṇīhi in c, the comm. reads vṛṇīhi, which he says is, 'by letter-substitution, for ṣṛṇīhi 'fill'! Ṡṛṇīhi would be an easier reading, and was conjectured by Ludwig, and before him by Aufrecht (KZ. xxvii. 218). [Griffith and Bl., 'fill them till they burst.']

2. Where we appeal unto thee, the divine barley that listens, there (tāt) rise up, like the sky; be unexhausted, like the ocean.

The comm., in b, reads tatra and acharvad-.

3. Unexhausted be thine attendants (? upasād), unexhausted thy heaps; thy bestowers be unexhausted; thy eaters be unexhausted.

The comm. explains upasādas as here rendered (= upagantūrah karmakarāḥ); the translators conjecture 'piles,' a meaning which cannot properly be found in the word.

By a strangely unequal division, the thirteenth and last anuvāka is made to consist of 18 hymns and 64 verses; the quoted Anukr. says yaḥ paraḥ sa catuḥṣaṣṭīḥ.

The fifteenth prapāṭhaka ends with the book.

Some of the mss. sum up the book correctly as containing 142 hymns and 454 verses.

Book VII.

[The seventh book is made up mostly of hymns of one verse or of two verses. No other one of the books i.-xviii. contains such hymns. Book vii. is thus distinguished from all the others of the three grand divisions (to wit, books i.-vii., books viii.-xii., and books xiii.-xviii.) of the Atharvan collection, and constitutes the close of the first of those divisions. If we consider the facts set forth in the paragraphs introductory to the foregoing books (see pages 1, 37, 84, 142, 220, 281, and especially 142), it appears that this division is made up of those seven books in which the number — normal or prevalent — of verses to a hymn runs from one to eight. Or, in tabular form, division one consists of

Books	vii.	vi.	i.	ii.	iii.	iv.	v.,	having for
Verse-norm:	~ 1 or 2	3	4	5	6	7	8,	respectively.

In the Berlin edition, the book contains one hundred and eighteen hymns: of these, fifty-six are of 1 verse each, and twenty-six are of 2 verses each; while of the remaining thirty-six

There are in this book	10	11	3	4	3	3	1	1	hymns,
Containing respectively	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	11	verses.

The 11-versed hymn is 73; the 9-versed is 50; the 8-versed are 26, 56, 97; the 7-versed are 53, 60, 109; the 6-versed are 20, 76, 81, 82. The whole book has been translated by Victor Henry, Le livre VII de l'Atharva-Véda traduit et commenté, Paris, 1892.]

[As the Major Anukramaṇī speaks of book vi. as the tr̥ca-sūkta-kāṇḍa, tr̥ca-prakṛti, so it speaks of book vii. as the eka-r̥ca-sūkta-kāṇḍa. Presumably, therefore, we are to regard the 1-versed hymn as the "norm" of the book, although the 2-versed hymn is undeniably "prevalent."] [See p. cxlix.]

[The book is divided into ten anuvāka-groups. These, with the number of hymns in each group and the number of verses in each group, are here given :

Anuvāka:	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10
Hymns:	13	9	16	13	8	14	8	9	12	16
Verses:	28	22	31	30	25	42	31	24	21	32

Total, 286 verses. The Old Anukramaṇī seems to take 20 verses as the norm of the anuvāka. The Paris codex, P., in this book numbers the verses through each anuvāka without separating the hymns. The commentator divides the anuvākas into hymns (from two to four in each anuvāka), which "hymns," however, are nothing more than mechanical decads of verses with an overplus or shortage in the last "decad" when the total is not a multiple of ten: thus, anuvāka 1 has three hymns, of $10+10+8=28$ verses; 2 has two hymns, of $10+13=23$ verses; 3 has three hymns, of $9+10+11=30$ verses; 4 has three hymns, of $10+10+10=30$ verses; and so on. His anuvāka endings coincide throughout with those of the Berlin edition, save that vii. 23 is reckoned by him (and P.) to anuvāka 2 instead of 3, thus making for 2 and 3 his verse-totals 23 and 30 instead of 22 and 31 (as the Old Anukramaṇī gives them) and spoiling the count of his first "decad" in 3. (Note that vii. 23 is a galita-verse.) His "decad"-divisions cut in two our hymns 26, 45, 54, 68, 72, 76, 79, 97, and 109.]

[It should here be mentioned that the Bombay edition, following the Major Anukramaṇī, counts hymns 6, 45, 68, 72, and 76 each as two hymns. From vii. 6. 3 to the end of the book, accordingly, Whitney gives a double numeration of the hymns: first the numeration of the Berlin edition, and then, in parenthesis, the numeration of the Bombay edition. As against the former, the latter involves a plus of one from vii. 6. 3 to vii. 45. 1; a plus of two from vii. 45. 2 to vii. 68. 2; a plus of three from vii. 68. 3 to vii. 72. 2; a plus of four from vii. 72. 3 to vii. 76. 4; and a plus of five from vii. 76. 5 to the end. Finally it may be noted that vii. 54. 2 is reckoned (forwards) to vii. 55, but that this does not affect the hymn-numbers save for the verse concerned.] [Respecting book vii. in general, see pages cli, clii.]

1. Mystic.

[Atharvan (brahmavaracasakāmah). — divyrcam. ātmadevatyam. trāiṣṭubham: 2. virāḍjagatī.]

Found also in Pāipp. xx. Used by Kāuṣ. (41. 8), with iii. 20 and v. 7, in a rite for success in gaining wealth; and again (59. 17), with v. 2, in one of the ceremonies for obtaining various objects of desire (kāmyāni), with worship of Indra and Agni.

Translated: Henry, 1, 47; Griffith, i. 327.

1. They either who by meditation led the beginning (āgra) of speech, or who by mind spoke righteous things (ṛtā) — they, increasing with the third incantation (brāhman), perceived (man) with the fourth the name of the milch cow.

The book, like some of those preceding, begins with mystic, obscure, and un-Atharvanic material. The comm. has no idea what it means, and sets forth his ignorance at immense length, giving about five quarto pages of exposition to this first hymn, with wholly discordant alternative explanations. The verse occurs also in ÇÇS. (xv. 3. 7), with samvidānās for vāvṛdhānās in c, and manvata in d. For 'vadann in b Ppp. has vadeyann, and turyeṇa at beginning of d. For pāda a cf. RV. x. 71. 1; for d, RV. iv. 1. 16 and v. 40. 6. The commentary to Prāt. i. 74 quotes dhītī as an i-form with non-pragr̥hya final, because not locative; and the pada-text does not treat it as pragr̥hya.

2. He, [as a] son, knows his father, he his mother; he is (bhuvat) a son (sūnū), he is one of generous returns (? pūnarmagha); he enveloped the sky, the atmosphere, he the heaven (svār); he became this all; he came to be here (ā-bhū).

This verse is found also in TS. (ii. 2. 12¹) and TB. (iii. 5. 7²), with difference of reading only in the second half, where they have āūrṇod antāriḥṣaṇī sā sūvaḥ sā vīḥvā bhūvo abh-. Ppp. so far agrees with them as to have, for d, vīḥvāṇ bhūvo bhavat svābhuvat. The comm., in b, takes pūnarmaghas first as two separate words (magha=dhana) and then as a compound, "with wealth repeatedly increased in spite of giving of much wealth to his praisers." The comment to TS. says punaḥ-punar yajamānāya dātavyam dhanam yasya. The verse lacks two syllables of being a full jagatī.

2. Of Atharvan.

[Atharvan (as above).—ātmadevatyam. trāiṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. xx. Used by Kāuṣ. (59. 18 : the comm. says, hymns 2-5) in a kāmya rite, like the preceding hymn, with vi. 33, and vii. 6, 7, 16; and, according to the schol. (note to 30. 11), with hymn 3, in a healing ceremony.

Translated: Henry, 1, 48; Griffith, i. 328.

1. Father Atharvan, god-relative, mother's foetus, father's spirit (āsu), young, who understands (cit) with the mind this sacrifice — him mayest thou proclaim to us here, here mayest thou speak.

Ppp. has a quite different version, reading viṣvadevam instead of devabandhum in a, and, for c, d, ayanḥ ciketā mṛtasya dhāma nityasya rājaṣ paridhīr apaçyat. The second half-verse is the same with 5. 5 c, d below. The accent of the second iḥā seems to require that the sentence be divided between the two. [The comm., to be sure, reads the second iḥā as accentless. Cf. Gram. § 1260 c.]

3. Mystic.

[Atharvan (as above).—ātmadevatyam. trāiṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. xx., and in a whole series of other texts: TS. (i. 7. 12²), MS. (i. 10. 3), AÇS. (ii. 19. 32), KÇS. (xxv. 6. 10), ÇÇS. (iii. 17. 1). Kāuṣ. (15. 11) prescribes the use, with vi. 125 and vii. 110 and a couple of single verses from elsewhere (the comm. includes also vii. 4), in the battle incantations, while the king and his charioteer mount a new chariot; as to its medical employment with vii. 2, see under the latter. Vāit. (9. 15) uses the verse in the sākamedha ceremony, on leaving the sacrificial hut.

Translated: Henry, 2, 48; Griffith, i. 328.

1. By this shape (viṣṭhā) generating exploits (kārvara), he verily, fiery, a wide way for space (? vāra); he went up to meet the sustaining top (āgra) of the sweet; with his own self (tanū) he sent forth (īraya-) a self.

The translation given is purely mechanical. With c compare iv. 32. 7 c. The comm., after a mystic explanation, gives as alternative another, accordant with the use in Kāuṣ., making the verse relate to a king who desires victory and mounts a new chariot. He understands viṣṭhā as -ās; our pada-text reads viṣṭhā [as does SPP's]. The other texts all agree with ours in a, b (but TS. understands viṣṭhās, MS. viṣṭhā); in c (cf. iv. 32. 7 c), all* have dharūnas, TS. accents prāti, and MS. reads pratyān (!) āit; for d, TS.KÇS. have svāyām yāt tanūvām tanūm ārayata, and MS.AÇS.ÇÇS. svām yāt tanūm tanvām ārayata. Doubtless ārayata is the reading to be given at the end of the verse in our text; it is accepted by SPP., being favored by the considerable majority of his authorities, as it is of ours (Bp.W.T.R.p.m. -at; K. has -yanta). Ppp. has dharūne in c. *[AÇS.ÇÇS. in fact have -am.] [KÇS. has tanvām.]

4. To the wind-god with his steeds.

[Atharvan (as above).—vāyavyam. trāiṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. xx., and in a series of other texts: VS. (xxvii. 33), ÇB. (iv. 4. 1⁵), MS. (iv. 6. 2), TA. (i. 11. 8²¹), AÇS. (v. 18. 5), ÇÇS. (viii. 3. 10). Kāuç. (41. 26) teaches the repetition of the verse three times at the end of a rite for the benefit of a horse; and Vāit. (9. 27: misunderstood by the editor) applies it with an oblation to Vāyu at the cāturmāsya sacrifice.

Translated: Henry, 2, 49; Griffith, i. 328.

1. Both with one and with ten, O easily-invoked one (masc.); with two and with twenty, for [our] wish; both with three and with thirty separately yoked ones drivest thou, O Vāyu — those do thou here release.

All the other texts read svabhūte at end of a, and niyūdbhis at beginning of d (the Pet. Lex. proposes the latter by emendation here); VS.ÇB.ÇÇS. have vinçati for vinçatyā in b, and (as also AÇS.) combine vāyav ihā in d. SPP. strangely reads suhute in a, against the meter, and against the great majority of his authorities, but with the comm. (who, however, explains it as if it were suhūte). The comm. explains iṣṭāye by yāgāya, then again by icchāyāi; Henry translates "for conquest." Ppp. has, corruptly, cā bhūte (probably intending the reading of the other texts); in d it gives vīyudbhir vāyuv iha tā vi m-. The second pāda is only by violence trīṣṭubh. ["One," "three," and "those" are fem.: the comm. supplies "mares."] [Perhaps the force of the accent of vāhase is, "If thou drivest with 11 or 22 or 33 (no matter how many), — here release thou them." See Gram. § 595 d.]

5. Mystic: on the offering or sacrifice.

[Atharvan (as above).—pañcarcam. ātmadevatākam: trāiṣṭubham: 3. pañkti; 4. anuṣṭubh.]

Found (the first two verses only) also in Pāipp. xx., and (the same verses) also in other texts, as noted below. Kāuç. takes no notice of the hymn; but it is prescribed by Vāit. (13. 13), in the agnīṣṭoma ceremony, in connection with the entertainment (ātithyā) of Soma.

Translated: Henry, 2, 49; Griffith, i. 329.

1. By the sacrifice the gods sacrificed to the sacrifice; those were the first ordinances (dhárman); those greatnesses attach themselves to (sac) the firmament, where are the ancient (pūrvā) perfectible (sādhyā) gods.

The verse is RV. i. 164. 50,* found also in VS. (xxxi. 16), TS. (iii. 5. 11⁵), TA. (iii. 12. 7), MS. (iv. 10. 3), ÇB. (x. 2. 2², with comment); [Kaṭha-hss., p. 83;] the only variant is sacante for sacanta in TS.TA. "This passage and vii. 79. 2 cast light upon the idea of sādhyā; there are two kinds of gods: those with Indra at their head and the sādhyā 'they who are to be won' (sādhyā 'what is to be brought into order, under control, or into comprehension'). They are thus the unknown, conceived as preceding the known. Later they are worked into the ordinary classification of Vasus, Rudras, etc.; and what was formerly a serious religious problem, a hierarchy conceived as possible before the now-accepted gods (something like the pre-Olympians with the Greeks), has become an empty name." R. * [Also RV. x. 90. 16.]

2. The sacrifice came to be; it came to be here; it was propagated; it increased again; it became over-lord of the gods; let it assign wealth to us.

This verse is found also in TS. (i. 6. 63-4 et al.) and ÇÇS. (iv. 12. 15); TS. omits u and punaḥ in b, and both have, for d, só asmān ádhipatīn karotu (ÇÇS. kṛnotu), TS. adding further vayānī syāma pátayo rayiṇām. Ppp. combines sā "babhūva" in a, and inserts after it saṣ pṛthivyā adhipatir babhūva: omitting later the pāda sa devānām a. b.; it omits u before vāvṛdhe, and combines so 'smāsu' in the last pāda. The Anukr. overlooks the metrical deficiency of a.

3. As the gods sacrificed to the gods with oblation, to immortals, with immortal mind — may we revel there in the highest firmament; may we see that at the rising of the sun.

The verse is no pañkti, but a good triṣṭubh.

4. When, with man (pūruṣa) for oblation, the gods extended the sacrifice — even than that is it of more force that they sacrificed with the vihāvya.

Nearly all the mss. read atanvata, without accent, in b (our Bp. and O. have á, and both editions give it); in c they have ásthi instead of ásti, which latter is read in both editions, SPP. having the comm. and one of his many authorities in its favor. The first half-verse is RV. x. 90. 6 a, b (also VS. xxxi. 14; TA. iii. 12. 3, and our xix. 6. 10). The comm. explains vihāvya as meaning an offering without oblation, an offering of knowledge (jñānayañña); and this is perhaps acceptable; or the half-verse is perhaps to be understood as a question.

5. The gods, confounded, both sacrificed with a dog and sacrificed variously with limbs of a cow; he who knoweth with the mind this sacrifice — him mayest thou proclaim to us here, here mayest thou speak.

The second half-verse is the same with 2. 1 c, d above. Tam (rendered 'him') in d might refer grammatically to the offering itself, instead of to him who knows it. All the pada-mss. read at the beginning mugdḥā instead of -dhāḥ, as which latter the word must be understood, and is translated. SPP. admits -dhāḥ in his pada-text. Henry emends to mūrdhnā [cf. also Mém. Soc. Ling. ix. 248].

6 (6, 7). Praise of Aditi.

Found (together with 7. 1) also in Pāipp. xx. (in the verse-order 6. 1; 7. 1; 6. 4, 2, 3); for other correspondences, see under the several verses. The numbering of the mss. on which our edition is founded is confused and unclear in these verses; but the Anukr. distinctly divides our hymn 6 into two, of two verses each, and this division, doubtless the correct one, is followed by SPP. Both numberings will accordingly be given here, from our 6. 3 on. The sixth hymn (that is, our 6. 1, 2: or merely its first verse) is prescribed by Kāuṣ. (59. 18) only in connection with hymn 2 etc.; see above, under 2. But its second verse is quoted at 52. 10, in a rite for welfare (svastyayana: in crossing water, comm.) with the direction iti taraṇāny ālambhayati; and again, at 79. 3, in the marriage ceremonies of the fourth day, with the direction iti talpam ālambhayati. Further, the second verse is associated with the third and fourth (properly a separate hymn, 7) at 71. 23, in the rites for preparing the house-fire, and at 86. 26, in the pitṛnīdhāna ceremony, in each case in connection with embarking on a boat (and both times our second verse is quoted after the others). In Vāit. (6. 11), the first verse (or first and second?) is quoted as used, with other verses, at the end of the agnyādheya ceremony, and verse 3 (11.11), or properly hymn 7, in the agnīṣṭoma, when the sacrificer is made to sit down on the black-antelope skin; and further (29. 20), verse 4 in the agnīcayana, with the offering of oblations called, from the first words of the verse, the vājaprasavīyahomas.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 533; Henry, 3, 51; Griffith, i. 330. — Cf. also Bloomfield, ZDMG. xlviii. 552.

1. Aditi [is] heaven, Aditi atmosphere, Aditi mother, she father, she son; all the gods [are] Aditi, the five races (jāna); Aditi [is] what is born, Aditi what is to be born.

This verse is, without variation, RV. i. 89. 10 (also VS. xxv. 23; TA. i. 13. 2; MS. iv. 14. 4); only RV. (in F. M. Müller's editions: but probably by an error) divides the last word jāni-tvam in the pada-text, while AV., more correctly, leaves it undivided.

2. We call for aid verily on the great mother of them of good courses, the spouse of righteousness (ṛtá), on her of mighty authority, not growing old, wide-spreading, on the well-sheltering, well-conducting Aditi.

The verse is also VS. xxi. 5, and is found further in TS. (i. 5. 115), MS. (iv. 10. 1), K. (xxx. 4, 5), ÇÇS. (ii. 2. 14), their only variant being (in all) huvema for havāmahe at end of b; and Ppp. has the same.

3 (7.1). The well-preserving earth, the unenvious sky, the well-sheltering, well-conducting Aditi, the well-oared ship of the gods, unleaking, may we, guiltless, embark on in order to well-being.

This verse is also RV. x. 63. 10 (and VS. xxi. 6; TS. i. 5. 115; MS. iv. 10. 1; K. ii. 3 [cf. MGS. i. 13. 16, and p. 157]), which (as also the others) reads anāgasam at end of c. It and the preceding verse are associated in VS.TS.MS., and are so closely kindred in application and expression that, numbered as they are as successive verses in Bp., and lacking the usual sign of the end of a hymn after vs. 2, we naturally enough regarded them as belonging to one continuous hymn. The verse lacks but one syllable of a full jagatī. [In c, Ppp. has svidatrām (a faulty reminiscence of sv-aritrām) anāgasam.]

4 (7.2). Now, in the impulse of might (vāja), will we commemorate (? karāmahe) with utterance (vācas) the great mother, Aditi by name, whose lap is the broad atmosphere; may she confirm to us thrice-defending protection.

The first half-verse is found also in VS. (ix. 5 b), TS. (i. 7. 71), MS. (i. 11. 1), without variant; the second half-verse, common to them all, is totally different from ours. A whole series of VS. verses begin with vājasya prasava- (ix. 23-25 etc.): Weber (Vājapeya, p. 796 ff.) renders "Zeuger der Kraft." All the pada-mss. read in c upāo sthaḥ, but SPP. strangely prefers to substitute -sthe on the authority of the comm. The comm. glosses karāmahe with kurmahe, but then explains it by stumas; the true text is perhaps vācasā "kar- 'would we gain' (Henry translates "puissions-nous la gagner"). TS. has c in iii. 3. 114 c, and its pada-text reads upāosthaḥ. [Ppp. has for c the c of VS. etc., and for ḍ sāv no devī suhavā ṣarma yacchatu.]

7 (8). Praise of the Ādityas.

[Atharvan (as above).—aditidevatyam. āṛṣī jagatī.*]

Found also in Pāipp. xx. Used by Kāuṣ. (59. 18) with 2, as explained under that hymn. * [The Anukr., defining as trāiṣṭubhāni the "first eight hymns," included this among them: by inadvertence, it would seem, since he here calls it āṛṣī jagatī.]

Translated: Henry, 3, 52; Griffith, i. 331.

1. Of Diti's sons, of Aditi's, I have commemorated the aid, of the great inviolable gods; for their domain (dhāman) is deep in the sea; no one soever is beyond them by homage.

This translation is in part mechanical, understanding also āvas at beginning of b (which = RV. x. 36. 11 b: cf. also 65. 3 a), regarding anarvānām as = anarvānām (so RV.), and giving gabhiṣāḥ (p. gabhiṣāḥ) the sense conjectured for it by BR., which is also that of the comm. (gambhīram). The variants of Ppp. and of MS. (i. 3. 9) indicate that our text is without much authority: MS. has d. p. a. akārīṣam urūṣarmaṇām bṛhatām varūthnām: yēṣām nāmāni vīhitāni dhāmaḥṣ cītātṛ yajanti bhūvanāya jīvāse; Ppp. (after a), mahāṣarmaṇām mahatām anṛmṇām: tveṣāyu dhāmi gabhiṣat samudram na hi śām ye āpasas paro 'sti kiṃ cana. Nāmasā is perhaps corrupted from mānasā [cf. iv. 39. 9 n.] and enām from enā. The great majority of our mss. (all save D.R.) read akārīṣam at end of a; SPP. reports the great majority of his as giving akārīṣam, which he accordingly adopts in his text. Ppp. has akārīṣam, MS. akārīṣam. Our Bp. has enām in ḍ. The testimony of the Anukr. as to akārīṣam or -īṣam is of no value.

8 (9). For some one's success.

[Uparibabhava. — bārhaspatyam. trāiṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. xx. Kāuṣ. (42. 1) prescribes its use when setting out upon a business journey; and the comm. quotes it from Çānti Kalpa 15, as accompanying various ceremonies for Bṛhaspati.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 431; Henry, 4, 52; Griffith, i. 331.

1. Go thou forth from what is excellent to what is better; be Brihaspati thy forerunner. Then do thou make this man, on the width of this earth, remote from foes, with all his heroes.

Literally (ḍ) 'having his foes at a distance, having his heroes whole.' The verse occurs also in TS. (i. 2. 33), ÇÇS. (v. 6. 2), and AÇS. (iv. 4. 2), with abhi for ādhi in a, and, as c, ḍ, āthe "m āva sya vāra ā pṛthivyā āre ṣātrūn kṛṇuhi sārvaṅvīrah"; and its pratīka (with abhi) in KB. (vii. 10), and Āp. (x. 19. 8); and compare MB. ii. 1. 13. The comm. takes āre and ṣātrum as two independent words. Ppp. shows no variants. The first pāda lacks three syllables of being trāiṣṭubh.

9 (10). Praise and prayer to Pūshan.

[Uparibabhrava. — caturṛcam. pāuṣṇam. trāiṣṭubham : 3. 3-p. āṛṣī gāyatrī ; 4. amuṣṭubh.]

Of this hymn only vs. 4 is found in Pāipp. (xx.). For other correspondences see under the several verses. Kāuṣ. (52. 12), among the rites for welfare (svastyayana), uses the hymn in one for the recovery of lost articles of property; and verse 2 is reckoned (on account of abhayatamena in b) to the abhaya gaṇa (note to 16. 8). Vāit. (8. 13) makes it accompany a libation to Pūshan in the cāturmāsya ceremony.

Translated: Henry, 4, 52; Griffith, i. 332; Bloomfield, 159, 542.

1. On the forward road of the roads hath Pūshan been born, on the forward road of heaven, on the forward road of the earth; unto both the dearest stations, both hither and yon, goeth he, foreknowing.

The verse is, without variation, RV. x. 17. 6 (also TB. ii. 8. 53, and MS. iv. 14. 16, the latter with ājanīṣṭa accented).

2. Pūshan knows throughout all these places; he shall conduct us by that which is most free from fear; giving well-being, glowing, preserving heroes, let him go before unremitting, foreknowing.

This verse is again, without variation, RV. x. 17. 5 (also MS. iv. 14. 16, with meṣat for neṣat; TB. ii. 4. 15 and TA. vi. 1. 16, with āghṛṇi in c; but TA. has further pravi-dvān at end).

3. O Pūshan, in thy sphere (vratā) may we at no time soever be harmed; thy praisers are we here.

RV. vi. 54. 9 differs from this verse only by the accent kādā in b; VS. (xxxiv. 41) is the same with RV.; TB. (ii. 5. 55) has kādā, and combines at the beginning pūṣaṁś tāva. SPP. reports three of his authorities as reading nā at beginning of b.

4. Let Pūshan place about his right hand in front; let him drive back to us what is lost; may we be united with what is lost.

The first three pādas of the verse are RV. vi. 54. 10, which differs only by reading parāstāt instead of pur-. SPP., having the comm. and three of his (thirteen) authorities to support it, wrongly receives parāstāt into his text. [Pāda a is catalectic.] [Ppp's c is unintelligible; its d is punar ṇo naṣṭam ā kṛdhī.]

10 (11). To Sarasvatī.

[Çāunaka. — sārāsvatam. trāiṣṭubham.]

This hymn and the one next following are not found in Pāipp. This verse is RV. i. 164. 49 (which has the pāda-order a, c, b, d), also occurring in VS. (xxxviii. 5), TA. (iv. 8. 2), MS. (iv. 14. 3), and ÇB. (xiv. 9. 4. 28). [See also Kaṭha-hss., p. 104.] Kāuṣ. (32. 1), in the chapter of remedies, has it accompany the suckling of a child seized by the demon Jambha (suffering from dentition?).

Translated: Henry, 4, 53; Griffith, i. 332.

1. The breast of thine that is unfailing(?), that is kindly, that is favorable, easy of invocation, that is very liberal, with which thou gainest

(?pus) all desirable things — O Sarasvatī, mayest thou cause [us] to suck that here.

RV. reads in a çaçayās; and in b (its c) ratnadhā vasvata (for sumnayūh suhāvo). TA.MS. agree in all respects with RV.,* save that TA. has absurdly vlçvāh in c (its b). VS. and ÇB. have the RV. readings,* but our order of the pādas. The comm. reads çicayus in a, explaining it as either 'causing the prosperity of [its] young (çicū)' or 'hidden (nigūdha).' [In d, Henry understands the "child" rather than "us.]" * [VS.ÇB.TA. have akar, combined (dhātave) 'kaḥ'; but the comm. to each of these texts renders it by kuru.]

11 (12). Against injury to the grain by lightning.

[Çāunaka. — sārasvatam. trāiṣṭubham.]

Like the preceding hymn, not found in Pāipp.; also not in any other known text. Kāuç. uses it (38. 8), with i. 13, in a ceremony against the effect of lightning; and also (139. 8), with the same and other hymns, in the rites of entrance upon Vedic study (upākarma, comm.). And the comm. quotes it as applied in Çānti-Kalpa 15 with observances to ketu.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 463; Grill, 66, 178; Henry, 5, 54; Griffith, i. 333; Bloomfield, 142, 543.

1. Thy broad thundering, which, exalted, a sign of the gods, spreads over (?ā-bhūṣ) this all — do not, O god, smite our grain with the lightning, and do not smite [it] with the sun's rays.

Sundry of the mss. (including our Bp. P.M.E.O.) read riṣvās in a (P.M. yā before it); the comm. has ruṣvaṣ. The latter explains ā bhūṣati as = vyāpnoti. Some mss., as usual, retain the h of prthūh before stan-

12 (13). For success in the assembly.

[Çāunaka. — caturṛcam. sabhāyam: 1. [dvidevatyā] *uta pitryā; 3. āindrī; 4. mantrōktadevatyā. ānuṣṭubham: 1. bhurik triṣṭubh.]

The first two verses are found in Pāipp. xx. Kāuç. (38. 27) uses it, with v. 3 and other hymns, in a ceremony for gaining the victory in debate, or in the deliberations of an assembly (the comm. describes it repeatedly as "of five verses," apparently including in its uses 13. 1). * [The London ms. reads dvidevatyāuta pitryā; the Berlin ms., -tyāutatpitryā.]

Translated: Muir, v. 439; vss. 1, 3, 4, Ludwig, p. 253; vss. 2-4, Zimmer, p. 173; Grill, 70, 178; Henry, 5, 55; Griffith, i. 333; Bloomfield, 138, 543. — Cf. Hillebrandt, Veda-chrestomathie, p. 44.

1. Let both assembly (sabhā) and gathering (sāmiti), the two daughters of Prajāpati, accordant, favor me; with whom I shall come together, may he desire to aid (?upa-çikṣ) me; may I speak what is pleasant among those who have come together, O Fathers.

Ppp's version of c, d is very different: yena vadām upa mā sa tiṣṭhā 'ntar vadāmi hrdaye janānām. The verse is also found in PGS. (iii. 13. 3), with much variation: ubhe for avatām in a, sacetasāu for samvidāne in b; and, for c, d, yo mā na vidyād uṣa mā sa tiṣṭhet sacelano bhavatu çānsatke janaḥ. The comm. explains uṣa çikṣāt as either upetya çikṣayatu : samīcīnam vādayatu or mām vaktum çaktam samartham icchatu. He reads vadāmi in ḍ. Henry renders uṣa-çikṣ by "pay homage," and emends pitaras to uṣu. The meter is irregular.

2. We know thy name, O assembly; verily sport (nariṣṭā) by name art thou; whoever are thine assembly-sitters, let them be of like speech with me.

Ppp. reads very differently: veda vāi sabhe te nāma subhadrā 'si sarasvati: atho ye te sabhāsadaḥ sūvācasah. Our Bp. also reads sūvācasas. The comm. takes nariṣṭā as na-riṣṭā 'not injured.' The Anukr. ignores the deficiency of a, as the redundancy of 3 a.

3. Of these that sit together I take to myself the splendor, the discernment (vijñāna); of this whole gathering (samsād) make me, O Indra, possessor of the fortune (bhagīn).

4. Your mind that is gone away, that is bound either here or here — that of you we cause to turn hither; in me let your mind rest.

This verse does not appear to have anything to do with the rest of the hymn.

13 (14). Against one's foes.

[Aitharvan (dviṣo varcohartukāmah). — dvyr̥cam. sūryam. ānuṣṭubham.]

Verse 1 found also in Pāipp. xix.* In Kāuṣ. (48. 35, 36) the hymn is used in a rite of sorcery, against enemies; with the second verse the user goes and looks at them. The mention of the pratīka in the edition of Kāuṣ. as contained in 58. 11 appears to be an error. On the other hand, the comm. regards this hymn as intended in Kāuṣ. 39. 26 (not x. 1. 32, as in the edition), in a rite against sorcery. The comm. further quotes the pratīka from the Nakṣatra [error for Çānti, Bl.] Kalpa 15, in a rite against niryti. * [If I understand Nakṣatra's note, Ppp. has vs. 1 without variant, and for vs. 2 what is reported below.]

Translated: Ludwig, p. 241; Grill, 23, 179; Henry, 5, 56; Griffith, i. 334; Bloomfield, 93, 544.

1. As the sun rising takes to itself the brilliancies (téjas) of the asterisms, so of both women and men that hate me I take to myself the splendor.

2. Ye, as many of my rivals as look upon me coming — as the rising sun that of sleepers, do I take to myself the splendor of them that hate me.

[Ppp. reads varcānsi yavater iva: evā sapatnānām aham varca indriyam ā dadhe.] Pratīpaçyatha, literally 'that meet me with your looks' as I come. The comm. reads paçyata. The Anukr. appears to allow the contraction sūrye 'va in c.

The first anuvāka ends with this hymn; it contains 13, (14) hymns and 28 verses; the quoted Anukr. says aṣṭāv ādye; and another quotation, given in many mss. (Bp. P.M.W.D.T.), says prathame trayodaça sūktāḥ, thus approving the division made in our edition.

14 (15). Prayer and praise to Savitar.

[Atharvan.—caturṛcam. sāvitram. ānuṣṭubham : 3. triṣṭubh; 4. jagatī.]

The third and fourth verses are found in Pāipp. xx. The first and second form together one long verse in SV. (i. 464), VS. (iv. 25), MS. (i. 2. 5), and AÇS. (iv. 6. 3), and two, as in our text, in ÇÇS. (v. 9. 11). In Kāuṣ. (24. 3) the hymn appears only in a general rite for prosperity; in accordance with which, it is included (note to 19. 1) among the puṣṭika mantras. Vāit. (13. 7) uses it in a more specific office, to accompany the winnowing of the soma, in the agniṣṭoma ceremony.

Translated: Henry, 6, 56; Griffith, i. 334.

1. Unto this god Savitar, of poets' skill (-krātu), of true impulse, treasure-bestowing, unto the dear one, I, in the two oṅi's, sing (arc) [my] prayer.

VS.ÇÇS.AÇS. add at the end haviṃ, and MS. has satyāsavasam (for -savam). Two or three of the mss. (including our O.) read satyāsavām, as if agreeing with matīm. The comm. explains oṅyās as 'heaven and earth, the two favorers (avitr) of everything,' and makes matī at the end masc., = sarvāir mantavyam. The construction of the verse is intricate and doubtful. The metrical definition by the Anukr. of the first two verses as anuṣṭubh is bad; they are really four jagatī pādas, to each of which are added four syllables that encumber the sense. [From a critical point of view, these additions seem to me comparable with those in ii. 5; see introduction to ii. 5.]

2. He whose lofty light (amātī), gleam, shone brightly in his impelling—he, gold-handed, of good insight, fashioned the heaven with beauty.

The translation assumes at the end the emended reading krpāt, which is that of all the other texts and of the comm., and is also given by one or two of the AV. mss. (including our O.*); SPP. adopts krpāt. ÇÇS.AÇS. curiously read at the end krpā svas tṛpā svar iti vā, taking as it were a variant into the text. All the pada-mss. have ūrdhvāḥ at the beginning, instead of -vā, as the sense demands; SPP. emends to -vā in his pada-text. The comm. paraphrases amatis by amanaçilā vyāpanaçilā. * [Mistake for P.M.? — Note to Prāt. i. 65 may be compared.]

3. For thou didst impel, O god, for the first father—height for him, width for him; then unto us, O Savitar (impeller), do thou day by day impel desirable things, abundance of cattle.

The verse is found also in TB. (ii. 7. 15'), AÇS. (iv. 10. 1), and ÇÇS. (v. 14. 8); all read, in c, d, savitah sarvātātā divé-diva ā; and in a TB. has prasavāya instead of prathamāya. With d compare also RV. iii. 56. 6 (quoted here by the comm.). Ppp. shows no variants.

4. May the household god, the desirable Savitar, assign to the Fathers treasure, dexterity, life-times; may he drink the soma; may [it] exhilarate him at the sacrifice; any wanderer walks (kram) in his ordinance.

Ppp. differs only by combining pitṛbhyā 'yūṅsi in b; but AÇS. (v. 18. 2) and ÇÇS. (viii. 3. 4: AB. iii. 29. 4 quotes the pratīka only) have important and in part preferable variants, especially in the second line, where they read amadann enam iṣṭayaḥ, and ramate for kramate. In b, both give dakṣa and āyuni, and AÇS. rainā. [The verse has one trīṣṭubh pāda (c); and b is a very poor jagati.]

15 (16). Prayer to Savitar.

[Bṛgu. — sāvitram. trīṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. xx.; and in VS. (xvii. 74), TS. (iv. 6. 5⁴), MS. (ii. 10. 6), and ÇB. (ix. 2. 3. 38). This hymn, like the preceding, is used by Kāuç. (24. 7) in a general rite for prosperity, with the binding on of a heifer-rope as amulet. In Vāit. (29. 18), it accompanies the laying on of fuel in the agnicayana ceremony.

Translated: Henry, 6, 58; Griffith, i. 335.

1. This favor, O Savitar, of true impulse, very wondrous, having all choice things, do I choose for myself; which of him, full-fed, thousand-streamed, Kaṇva the bull (mahiṣā) milked for Bhaga.

Or (at the end) 'for a portion,' as the comm. understands it (bhāgyāya). The reading (alike in all) of the other texts is very different: for a, tām savitir vārenyasya citrām; in b, viçvājanyām at end; in d (for mah- etc.) pāyasā mahim gām. This gives a decidedly more intelligible meaning. Ppp. is still different: in a, satyasavasya citrām; for b, vayam devasya prasave manāmahe; and, in c, praṣṭhāni.

16 (17). Prayer to Savitar (or Brihaspati).

[Bṛgu. — sāvitram. trīṣṭubham.]

Not found in Pāipp., but occurs as VS. xxvii. 8, and in TS. (iv. 1. 7³) and MS. (ii. 12. 5). Used by Kāuç. (59. 18) in a kāmya rite with hymn 2 etc.: see hymn 2; but to it alone seems to belong (so also comm.) the added direction "wakens a Vedic student [found asleep after sunrise (abhyudita)]"; since in Vāit. (5. 9), in the agnyādheya ceremony, one awakens with it priests who may have fallen asleep. Both applications seem to imply (as Henry suggests) the reading bodhaya in a.

Translated: Henry, 7, 58; Griffith, i. 335.

1. O Brihaspati, Savitar, increase thou him; enlighten him unto great good-fortune; however sharpened, sharpen him further; let all the gods revel after him.

The other texts make b and c exchange places; in a, they read savitār without accent (as does also the comm.; it suits better with the singular verbs that follow), and bodhāya for vardhāya; in (our) b, they give vardhāya for jyotāya (the comm. dyotāya); in (our) c, VS.TS. read saṁtarām; in d, MS. inserts ca after viçve.

17 (18). Prayer to Dhātār for blessings.

[Bṛgu. — caturṛcam. sāvitram uta bahudevatyam. ānuṣṭubham: 1. 3-p. āvī gāyatri; 3, 4. trīṣṭubh.]

The first verse is found in Pāipp. i., the other verses in Pāipp. xx. For further correspondences, see under the several verses. In Kāuç. (59. 19), in the kāmya section, hymns 17, 19, 20, 24-26, 29, 42, 46, 51, 79, 80, 82, and 103 of this book are addressed to Prajāpati by one desiring all kinds of benefits (sarvakāma). Further, apparently (so Keçava and the comm.; the text of Kāuç. is not wholly clear), in a women's rite (35. 16), to procure the birth of a male child: the hymn offers little to suggest this save the recurrence of the phrase dhātā dadhātu; the verse v. 25. 10 would be much more to the point.

Translated: Henry, 7, 59; Griffith, i. 335.

1. Let Dhātar assign (dhā) to us wealth, [he] being master (īç), lord of the moving creation; let him yield to us with fulness.

Literally (at the end) 'with full,' to which the comm. supplies dhanena. Ppp. shows no variants. TS. (ii. 4. 5¹ et al.) has dadātu in a, and vāvanat for yachatu at the end. MS. [iv. 12. 6] has only a (with dadhātu), combining it with our 2 b-d.

2. Let Dhātar assign to his worshiper an unexhausted further life; may we obtain the favor of the all-bestowing god.

TS. (iii. 3. 113), MS. (iv. 12. 6), AÇS. (vi. 14. 16)*, ÇÇS. (ix. 28. 3), and ÇGS. (i. 22), have the same verse, with sundry differences: all † read dadātu in a, and TS.MS. have no raytm for dāçūşe (thus substituting our 1 a); in b, ÇÇS. and ÇGS. have akṣitim at end; in d, for viçvārādhasas, TS. has satyārādhasas, MS. ÇÇS. ÇGS. satyādharmanas, and AÇS. vājinīvatas. Ppp. is defective in this verse, but presents no variants. The comm. explains dhīmahi once by dhārayema and once by dhyāyema. * [So also AGS. (transl.), p. 36, note, as in AÇS.] † [Save MS.]

3. Let Dhātar assign all desirable things unto the progeny-wishing worshiper in his home; for him let the gods wrap up immortality (amṛta) — all the gods, Aditi, in unison.

This verse occurs only in TS. (iii. 3. 113) and MS. (iv. 12. 6), both reading alike: for a, dhātā dadātu dāçūşe vāsūni; mīdhūşe (for dāçūşe) in b; amṛtāḥ sām vyayantām in c; and devāsas in d. Ppp. gives, for a, dhātā viçvūni [which rectifies the meter] dāçūşe dadātu; for c, tasyā prajāṃ amṛtas samvayantu; and, in d, devāsas (rectifying the meter) [and confirming my conjecture made at the former occurrence of this pāda at iii. 22. 1 d].

4. Let Dhātar, Rāti, Savitar enjoy this, let Prajāpati, Agni our treasure-lord; let Tvashtar, Vishṇu, sharing (rā) together with progeny, assign wealth to the sacrificer.

The beginning of this corresponds with that of iii. 8. 2, above. The verse is found without variant* in TS. (i. 4. 44¹); VS. (viii. 17) and MS. (i. 3. 38) have different readings: in b, after prajāpatiḥ, VS. nidhipā devō agnīḥ, MS. vāruṇo mitrō agnīḥ; in c, MS. begins viṣṇus tvāṣṭā, VS. ends -rarāṇās; in d, VS. ends dadhāta. Ppp., in d, has pāsā instead of viṣṇus. [MP. has c at i. 7. 12.] * [Save nidhipātis for nidhipātis: cf. Gram. § 1267 a.]

18 (19). For rain, etc.

[Atharvan. — dvyrcam. pārjanyaṃ uta pārthivam. 1. 4-p. bhurig usṇih; 2. triṣṭubh.]

Found also in Pāipp. xx. For the use of this hymn by Kāuç. (41. 1; 103. 3; 26. 24, note) in various rites, in conjunction with iv. 15, see under the latter. Verse 2 appears in Vāit. (4. 8), in the parvan ceremonies, accompanying, with other verses, the offering of the patnīsamīyāja oblations.

Translated : Henry, 7, 59 ; Griffith, i. 336.

1. Burst forth, O earth ; split this cloud of heaven ; untie for us, O Dhātar, that art master, the skin-bag of the water of heaven.

Ppp. reads, for a, un nambhaya pṛthivīm, which is better ; it reads bilam for ḍrtim at the end ; also udhno at beginning of c ; not a single ms. has the right reading of this word, either here or in the other places [cf. iii. 12. 4, n.] where it occurs ; here they vary between utnó (the great majority, including all SPP's pada-mss.), unnó, untó, utvó ; the comm. reads correctly udnas, and SPP. receives it into his text ; our ūdhnó was a mistaken emendation. Our Bp. leaves bhindhi unaccented, putting after it the mark of pāda division, and several of the mss. (including our P.s.m.E.p.m.I.) accent in samīhitā accordingly. The verse is found also in TS. (ii. 4. 8²) and MS. (i. 3. 26) ; both have a like Ppp. ; MS. has adās for idām in b ; both read udnó in c, and TS. has dehi for dhātar ; and, in d, TS. has syā for syā. The comm. gives three independent explanations of pra nabhasva : either prakarṣeṇa saṅgatā ucchvasitā bhava, or vṛstyā (? mss. krṣṭyā, pṛṣṭyā) prakarṣeṇa bādhitā nṛditā bhava, or [nabhasva = nahyasva] samīnaddhā bhava. For dhātar, in c, he reads dhāta " = dhehi." The verse is really anuṣṭubh (resolving at the beginning pṛ-ḍ). [Play of words between nabhasva and nabhas : cf. iv. 7. 1.] [Correct ūdhnó to udnó.]

2. Not heat burned, not cold smote ; let the earth, of quick drops, burst forth ; waters verily flow ghee for him ; where Soma is, there is it ever excellent.

In b, Ppp. reads sadasyate for nabhatām ; in c, sadam for ghṛtam. With c compare RV. i. 125. 5 c.

19 (20). For progeny, etc.

[Brahman. — mantruktadevatyam. jāgatam.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix. Kāuṣ. (35. 17) uses it in a women's rite, with an oblation in the lap of a woman desirous of offspring ; and further (59. 19), with hymn 17 etc. : see under the latter.

Translated : Henry, 8, 60 ; Griffith, i. 337.

1. Prajāpati generates these offspring (prajāś) ; let Dhātar, with favoring mind, bestow (dhlā) [them] ; harmonious, like-minded, of like origin ; let the lord of prosperity put (dhlā) prosperity in me.

The verse is to be compared with one in MS. (ii. 13. 23) and ĀpṠS. (xiv. 28. 4), of which the second pāda precisely agrees* with ours, and the fourth nearly (but reading puṣṭim puṣṭipatir) ; while for a both have ā nah prajāñ janayatu prajāpatih, and, for c, samvatsarā ṛtūbhīḥ samvidānūḥ (ĀpṠS. ṛtūbhīḥ cākupānaḥ †) ; and d is MB. ii. 4. 7 c. ‡ Our c, nom. plur. words, is left without any construction (but emendation to sayonīs would make them accus., helping both the construction and the meter) ; Ppp. has the same c as MS., and also gives janayatu (for -ti) in a, as does the comm. ; it is doubtless the better reading. Two of the pādas are trīṣṭubh. * [But Āp. has dadātu.] † [Intending ca a-kupānaḥ, as an isolated root-aorist pple? see Gram. § 840 b.] ‡ [But with puṣṭim puṣṭipatir, like MS. Āp.]

20 (21). Praise and prayer to Anumati.

[Brahman.—śadr̥cam. ānumatīyam. ānuṣṭubham : 3, [4]. triṣṭubh; 4. bhurij; 5, 6. jagatī; 6. atiçākvaragarbhā.]

Found also in Pāipp. xx. (in the verse-order 1, 2, 3, 5, 6, 4). Used by Kāuṣ. (59. 19) with hymn 17 etc. : see under 17; and vs. 1 a appears also (45. 16) as first pāda of a gāyatrī verse accompanying an oblation at the end of the vaçāçamana ceremony. Verse 6 is also understood by the schol. as intended by ānumatī, occurring in the rule ānumatīm caturthīm in three different rites, house-building (23. 4), acquisition of Vedic knowledge (42. 11), and vaçāçamana (45. 10). In Vāit. (1. 15), the hymn is quoted in the jarvan ceremonies on the day of full moon.

Translated: Henry, 8, 60; Griffith, i. 337.

1. Let Anumati ('approval') approve [anu-man] today our sacrifice among the gods; and let Agni be oblation-carrier of me worshipping.

Ppp's only variant is yachatām for manyatām at end of b. The verse is found in various other texts: VS. (xxxiv. 9), TS. (iii. 3. 113), MS. (iii. 16. 4), AÇS. (iv. 12. 2), and ÇÇS. (ix. 27. 2). In a, MS.ÇÇS. preserve the a after no; the others put no before adyā ('dyā'); in d, all save TS. change bhđvatām to -tam, and all have māyah for māma. MB. (ii. 2. 19) also has mayas, but in a iyam for adya, and in d sa no 'dād dāç. The translation given implies emendation in d to dāçūças; the comm. regards it as a case of substitution of dative for genitive. The comm. takes bhđvatām as 3d sing. middle; but it may perhaps better be viewed (like the -tam of the other texts) as dual active, with anumati and agni together as subject; the corruption of māyas to māma has rather spoiled the whole construction. The comm. explains Anumati as intending here also, as elsewhere, the goddess of the day of full moon; there is nothing in the hymn that demands or implies that character.

2. Mayest thou, indeed, O Anumati, approve, and do thou make weal for us; enjoy thou the offered oblation; grant us progeny, O goddess.

The first half-verse, with a wholly different second half, is found in the same texts that have vs. 1 (VS. xxxiv. 8; the others as quoted above; also K. xiii. 16): all read mānyāsāi instead of mānsase, and TS. combines nah krdhi. Ppp. has, for c, d, iças tokāya no dadhat pra na āyūñši tāriçat, of which the last pāda agrees* with the other texts (they have, for c, krátve dākṣāya no hinu). The comm. reads mañsiçe for -sase, both here and in 6 d. Our last half-verse is also 68. 1 c, d, and nearly 46. 1 c, d. * [But VS. TS. ÇÇS. have tāriças.]

3. Let him, approving, approve wealth rich in progeny, not being exhausted; let us not come to be within his wrath; may we be in his very gracious favor.

The first three pādas correspond to that part of a verse in TS. iii. 3. 114 (to which the comm., by an almost isolated proceeding, refers, with notice of the differences of reading) which preserves the consistency of the hymn by reading the feminines, -mānā at end of a, and tāsyāi in c; Ppp. apparently intends the same with -mānāṣ and tasyā, and it further agrees with TS. in giving, for d, sā no devī suhavā çarma yachatu. The change of our text to masculines seems a mere corruption. Our d is nearly RV. viii. 48. 12 d.

4. The easily-invoked, approved, generous (sudānu) name that is thine, O well-conducting Anumati—therewith fill our sacrifice, O thou of all choice things; assign us, O fortunate one, wealth rich in heroes.

Ppp. reads sudāvas at end of b, and has a wholly different second half-verse: tena tvam sumatim devy asma isam pinva vicvavāram suvīram. The last half-verse is repeated below as 79. i c, d. [In c, no is superfluous.]

5. Anumati hath come unto this well-born offering, in order to [our] abounding in fields and in heroes; for her forethought (prāmati) hath been excellent; let her, god-shepherded, aid this offering.

Ppp. has a different first half: ā no devy anumatir jagamyāt suksatrā vīratā yā sujātā; [its d appears to be sa imam yajnam bhavatu nevajustā, intending perhaps avatu devajustam: Roth's collation is not quite consistent with his note.] Neither this verse nor the next has any jagati character. [For b, the Ppp. version suggests that the original reading may have been suksetrā suvīratāyāi sujātā: cf. Roth, Ueber gewisse Kürzungen im Wortende im Veda, page 6.]

6. Anumati hath become all this—what stands, moves, and all that stirs; may we be in the favor [sumatī] of thee as such, O goddess; O Anumati, for mayest thou approve us.

Ppp. has, for a, anumatir vicvam idam jajāna; [in b (omitting u and vicvam), it reads yad ejati carati yac ca tiṣṭhati, thus rectifying the meter].

21 (22). In praise of the sun.

[Brahman.—mantroktātmadevatyam. cakvarvīrādgarbhā jagatī.]

Found also in Pāipp. xx., and in SV. (i. 372). According to Kāuṣ. (86. 16), the verse is used in the pitṛnidhāna division of the funeral ceremony accompanying the application of the dhruvanas (sic); [see xviii. 3. 10, 17.]

Translated: Henry, 9, 61; Griffith, i. 338.

1. Come ye together all with address (vācas) to the lord of the sky; [he is] the one mighty (vibhū) guest of people; may he, ancient, conciliate the present one; him, being one, the track hath much turned after.

The verse is here literally rendered according to the AV. version, but comparison with SV. and Ppp. shows plainly that its readings are very corrupt. SV. reads, in a, s. ulcva ojasā; it has at beginning of b yā ēka id bhūr; in c, ājlgāsam; in d, vartanūr, and ēka it at the end (omitting purū). Ppp's version is this: a, b, sam āitu vicvā oham ā pati divo esa ita bhūr aditir janānām; in d, vivṛte kam it paruh. [Henry suggests some emendations.] The meter (12+10: 11+14=47) is not accurately defined by the Anukr.

22 (23). To the sun (?).

[Brahman.—dyvīcam. liṅgoktādevatyam. 1. 2-p. 1-av. vīrādgarātrī; 2. 3-p. anuṣṭubh.]

Found also in Pāipp. xx. Both verses form a single long verse in SV. (i. 458). Appears in Kāuṣ. (66. 14), in the savayajñas, with vi. 31, on giving a spotted cow. In Vāit. (13. 8) it follows, in the agniṣṭoma, next after hymn 14.

Translated: Henry, 9, 61; Griffith, i. 338.

1. This one [is] a thousand for our seeing, thought of the poets, light in extent.

The translation is only mechanical, the real sense being wholly obscure. SV. reads ānavao dṛçāh (for ā no dṛçé); Ppp., ā na ṛṣiṣ; and aditir for matir. SV. ends with vidharma. The comm. divides the verses differently, ending the first with sam āirayan, against the mss., the Anukr., the SV., and the evident connection [but apparently with Ppp.]. The metrical definitions of the Anukr. are bad; each verse is 12+8, the second having an added pāda of 11 syllables.

2. The ruddy one sent together the collected dawns, faultless, like-minded, most-furious, in the gathered stall of the cow.

Even to make a mechanical version it has been necessary to read āirayat, with SV., which has further, at the end, manyumāntaṣ citā gōh; Ppp. gives īraya, and citayo gōh.

The second anuvāka, ending here, has 9 hymns and 22 verses; the Anukr. quotation says dve dvitīye tu vidyāt.

[In the head-line of p. 150 of the Berlin edition, correct the misprinted kāṇḍa-number 6 to 7.]

23 (24). Against ill conditions and beings.

[Yama.—antroktaduṣvapnanāṣanadevatyam: ānuṣṭubham.]

The hymn is merely a repetition of iv. 17. 5 above, and is not found in Pāipp. otherwise than as part of the latter hymn. It is used neither by Kāuṣ. nor by Vāit. [As to its insertion in the second anuvāka, see p. 389, near top.]

Translated: Henry, 9, 62; Griffith, i. 338.

1. Evil-dreaming, evil-living, demon, monster, hags, all the ill-named (f.), ill-voiced — them we make disappear from us.

24 (25). To various gods.

[Brahman.—sāvitrām: trīṣṭubham.]

Not found in Pāipp. Used by Kāuṣ. (59. 19) only with 17 etc.: see under hymn 17. Translated: Henry, 10, 62; Griffith, i. 339.

1. What Indra dug for us, what Agni, all the gods, what the well-singing Maruts — that may Savitar of true ordinances, may Prajāpati, may Anumati confirm to us.

The comm. reads asanat (= adadāt) in a, and so do our Bp.I. (E. aṣanat p.m.), although SPP. reports no such variant among his authorities.

25 (26). Praise to Vishṇu and Varuṇa.

[Medhātīthi.—devṛcam. vāiṣṇavam. trīṣṭubham.]

The hymn is found also in Pāipp. xx. Used by Kāuṣ. (59. 19) only with hymn 17 etc. (which see).

Translated: Ludwig, p. 429; Henry, 10, 63; Griffith, i. 339.

1. By whose [du.] force were established the spaces (rájas), who by heroisms are most heroic, most mighty, who by their powers lord it unopposed—to Vishṇu, to Varuṇa hath gone the first invocation.

The verse is found also in a number of other texts: VS. (viii. 59), TB. (ii. 8. 45), MS. (iv. 14. 6), ŚB. (i. 5), AÇS. (v. 20. 6), ÇÇS. (iii. 20. 4); all of them agree nearly in their variations from our text: thus, vīryēbhir (but MS. vīrēbhir) for our yāu vīryāir in b; yā and āpratītā (but TB. -tītā) in c; and vīṣṇū, vāruṇā, and pūrvāhūtāu (but MS. -tim) in d; TB. further śaciṣṭhā in b. Ppp. has stabhitā in a, and śacibhiḥ (for śaviṣṭhā) in b.

2. In whose (sing.) direction is whatever shines out here, [whatever] both breathes forth and looks abroad mightily (śacībhis), of old, by the god's ordinance, with powers (sáhas)—to Vishṇu, to Varuṇa hath gone the first invocation.

The first pāda is found above as iv. 23. 7 a, and nearly as iv. 28. 1 b; also in TS. iii. 3. 114. Ppp. reads, for c, *maho * ṛtasya dharmanā yuvānā*, and begins with yayos. The comm., in b, seems to give prā 'niti ca. The first pāda is rather jagati. * [So Roth's collation: his notes give mahā.]

26 (27). Praise and prayer to Vishṇu.

[Medhātīthi. — aṣṭarcam. vāiṣṇavam. trāiṣṭubham: 2. 3-p. virādgāyatrī; 3. 3-av. 6-p. virāṭṣakvarī; 4-7. gāyatrī; 8. trīṣṭubh.]

Only vss. 1-3, and those not complete, are found in Ppp. (xx.). Most of the material of the hymn is found in RV. [i. 154 and 22] and elsewhere: see under the different verses. The hymn is found in Kāuṣ. (59. 19) only in connection with hymn 17 etc. (see 17). But in Vāit. the different verses appear many times. Verse 1 is used (13. 14) in the entertainment of Vishṇu, in the agnīṣṭoma (next after hymn 5, above), and later in the same ceremony (15. 12), with setting up the support of the havīrdhānas. Verse 3, in the parvan ceremonies, accompanies (4. 20) the sacrificer's approach to the āhavanīya fire; and again, in the agnīṣṭoma (13. 5), his exit from the sacrificial hut; while its second part (c-f) goes with the offering of an oblation to Vishṇu at the beginning of the paçubandha (10. 1). Verses 4 and 5 accompany (15. 10) offerings to the two wheel-tracks of the havīrdhāna-carts in the agnīṣṭoma. With verse 6, in the agnicayana (29. 2), mortar and pestle are set down; and with 6 and 7, in the paçubandha (10. 10), the sacrificial post is set upright; and the comm. regards vs. 4 as intended by the "verse to Vishṇu" in 2. 3 and 23. 14. The comm., moreover, quotes the hymn as used by the Nakṣatra Kalpa (18) in a mahāçānti ceremony named vāiṣṇavī; and vs. 3 c-f by the same (14) with an offering to Vishṇu in the adbhutaçānti; and vs. 4 by the same (19), in the rite called tvāṣṭrī, with tying on of a triple amulet.

Translated: Muir, iv². 68, 63 (nearly all); Henry, 10, 63; Griffith, i. 339.

1. Of Vishṇu now I would speak forth the heroisms, who traversed (vi-mā) the spaces of the earth, who established the upper station, striding out triply, he the wide-going one.

The verse is RV. i. 154. 1 (also VS. v. 18; TS. i. 2. 133; MS. i. 2. 9, all precisely like RV.), which reads at end of a, in different order, vīryāni prā vocam. Prā in our text is a misprint for prā, which all our samhitā-mss. give. [The vs. seems to be suggested by RV. i. 32. 1.]

2. So Vishṇu praises forth his heroisms, like a fearful wild beast, wandering, mountain-staying, —

From distant distance may he come hither. —

The first two pādas of this verse, with the first two of our vs. 3, form one verse in the other texts: RV. i. 154. 2; TB. ii. 4. 34; MS. i. 2. 9; Āp. xi. 9. 1; and also in Ppp., which has it alone, besides our vs. 1. RV.MS. read vīryēṇa, which is better, in a; TB.Āp. vīryāya instead. Our second pāda forms, together with our (intruded) third pāda, a first half-verse in several other texts: RV. x. 180. 2; SV. ii. 1223; VS. xviii. 71; TS. i. 6. 124; MS. iv. 12. 3; instead of jagamyāt is read jaganthā by all except TS., which has jagāmā; the whole (RV. etc.) verse is our vii. 84. 3 below. The comm. unites to this verse the first two pādas of the one following, which certainly belong much more properly with it; but the mss. and the Anukr. require the division as made in our text; and SPP. also follows them.

3. Upon whose three wide out-stridings dwell all beings.

Widely, O Vishṇu, stride out; widely make us to dwell; drink the ghee, O thou ghee-wombed one; prolong the master of the sacrifice on and on.

Made up of the second half of a RV. etc. tristubh verse (see above: no text shows in this half any various readings) and a whole anustubh verse, which also is found in a number of other texts (VS. v. 38; TS. i. 3. 4¹; MS. i. 2. 13; AÇS. v. 19. 3; ÇÇS. viii. 4. 3), and almost without variants (only TS. combines naḥ kṛdhi in b, and MS. reads ghṛtavane in c). [Ppp. ends with b (viçvā).]

4. Here Vishṇu strode out; thrice he set down his steps; [it is] collected in his dust.

This and the three following verses form one connected passage also in RV. (i. 22. 17–20) and SV. (ii. 1019–22), but not in the other texts in which they are, in part or all, found. In this verse, RV.SV. read padām at end of b,* and SV. has pān-sulē at end of c. Of the other texts, VS. (v. 15) and TS. (i. 2. 13¹) agree with RV.; MS. (i. 2. 9 et al.) has padā, like our text. The meaning of c is obscure and disputed: the comm. here explains thus: viṣṇoḥ . . . pānsumati pāde lokatrayam . . . samavas-thāpitaṁ samākṛṣṭam vā. Henry renders “for him it is reduced to a dust-heap.” * [SV. also at i. 222.]

5. Three steps Vishṇu strode out, the unharmable shepherd, ordaining (dhr) here (itās) [his] ordinances.

RV.SV. read atas at beginning of c, and VS. (xxxiv. 43) agrees with them; TB. (ii. 4. 6¹) has instead tātas. It seems hardly possible to give itās its distinctive meaning ‘from here’; but Henry combines it with ut cakrame: “from here.” The comm. has atas.

6. Behold ye the deeds of Vishṇu, from where he beholds [your] courses (vratā), [he] Indra’s suitable companion.

Or yātas in b may mean simply ‘as.’ Not only RV.SV., but also the other texts containing this verse (VS. vi. 4 et al.; TS. i. 3. 6²; MS. i. 2. 14), have the same readings with ours. The comm. explains paspaçe as sprçati badhnāti vā!

The comm. strangely * closes the hymn here, and treats its last two verses as [belonging to the next: see p. 389]. * [Because he has got to the end of his "spoiled decad"?]

7. That highest step of Vishṇu the patrons (sūri) ever behold, like an eye stretched on the sky.

In all the texts, this verse is given in connection with the preceding one. RV.SV., and also VS. (vi. 5), have precisely our text; TS. (i. 3. 6² et al.) differs only by accenting, according to its usage, *dīvī'va; MS. (i. 2. 14) reads śacyā for sādā in b. * [Gram. § 128; Prāt. iii. 56.]

8. From the sky, O Vishṇu, or also from the earth; from the great wide atmosphere, O Vishṇu, fill thy hands abundantly with good things; reach forth hither from the right, hither also from the left.

The verse is found also in VS. (v. 19), TS. (i. 2. 13²), and MS. (i. 2. 9). VS.TS. insert vā after dīvās in a and mahās in b, and TS. reads utā vā for urós in b, while MS. has, for b, urór vā viṣṇo bṛható antárikṣāt; TS. combines both times viṣṇav u; VS. has, for c, ubhā́ hí hástī vdsunā́ pṛṇśva; TS.MS. accent vasavyāis, which is decidedly more regular (but SV. i. 298 has vasāvye); and all three accent ā́ prá y-, which is also more in accordance with usage (our pada-text āopráyacha). The first two pādas are of 10 syllables each; [but the vā's of VS.TS. make them good trīṣṭubh].

27 (28). Prayer and praise to Idā.

[Medhātīthi (?).—mantrōktedādāvatam. trīṣṭubham.]

Not found in Pāipp., but occurs in ĀpÇS. iv. 13. 4. Kāuç. makes no use of the verse; but in Vāit. (3. 15) it accompanies a libation to Idā in the parvan ceremonies.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 433; Henry, 11, 64; Griffith, i. 341.

1. Let Idā herself dress us with the vow (vratā), [she] in whose place (padā) the pious purify themselves; ghee-footed, able, soma-backed, she, belonging to all the gods, hath approached the offering.

Or vratā in a may mean the vrata-milk (comm. simply kārman). ĀpÇS. omits eva and reads ghṛtena for vratena in a, and has for c, vāiçvānarī çakvārī vāvṛdhānā. The comm. reads upā́ 'stṛta in d.

28 (29). Of the instruments of offering.

[Medhātīthi (?).—vedadevatākam. trīṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. xx. To this hymn, as to the preceding, Kāuç. pays no attention; but it is used twice by Vāit.: once in the parvan ceremony (4. 12), as the hotar unties the veda-bunch; and once in the agniṣtoma (13. 2), in connection with the prāyanīya iṣṭi.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 19; Henry, 11, 65; Griffith, i. 341.

1. The vedā [is] well-being, the tree-smiter well-being; the rib [is] sacrificial hearth (védi), the ax our well-being; oblation-making, worshipful, lovers of the offering, let those gods enjoy this offering.

The first half-verse corresponds to the initial clauses of TS. iii. 2. 4¹: sphyaḥ svastir vighandh svastih pārcur védih paraçur nah svastih. By the vedā is doubtless here meant the bunch of sacred grass so called, used in the ceremonies of offering (darbhamuṣṭi, comm.). The ṇ of drughaṇas (p. drughanaḥ) is prescribed by Prāt. iii. 76. The comm. explains it by lavitrādīḥ, because drur drumo hanyate 'nena. Half of SPP's authorities accent paraçus the first time, and of ours all but one (D.), and we accordingly adopted that reading in our text, as it seemed very unlikely that it would be so distinguished from paraçus in the same pāda without reason—and the reason in fact seems to be that it stands for pārçus (TS.) [which pronunciation the meter decidedly favors—for the suasti at the end of b must scan as 3 syllables]. SPP. accents paraçus both times. The comm. apparently understands páraçus, as he explains it as parçuḥ pārçvavañkeris [trpādīchedanī], but the second paraçus by vṛkṣachedanasādhana. He takes away the strange inconsistency in the use of svasti by reading (like TS.) svastiḥ at end of b. [Discussions of drughaṇa: Geldner, Ved. Stud. ii. 3; von Bradke, ZDMG. xlvi. 462; Bloomfield, ib. xlviii. 546; Franke, WZKM. viii. 342.] [In b, Ppp. reads paraçur vedis paraçu nas svasti, and, in d, havir idam for yajñam imam.]

29 (30). To Agni and Viṣṇu.

[Medhātīthi (?).—avyrcam. mantroktadāivatam. trāiṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. xx. (in inverse order of verses); and, as connected passage, further in TS. (i. 8. 22¹) and ÇÇS. (ii. 4. 3). Used by Kāuç. (32. 3), with hymns 42, 46, 78, 112, in a remedial rite for various diseases, with binding of grass on the joints; and also (59. 19) with 17 etc.: see 17. In Vāit. (8. 1), it accompanies an offering to Agni and Viṣṇu at the beginning of the parvan ceremony. [Whitney seems to doubt whether the Anukr. does not mean to ascribe this hymn (and 27, 28) to Bhṛgvañgiras.]

Translated: Ludwig, p. 374; Henry, 12, 65; Griffith, i. 341.

i. O Agni-and-Viṣṇu, great [is] that greatness of yours; ye drink of the ghee that is called secret, assuming seven treasures in each house; may your tongue move on to meet the ghee.

TS. has, in b, the imperative vītām, and ÇÇS. pātām, and both gūhyāni, which makes of nāma an accus. pl.; at the end, TS. has caranyet, and ÇÇS. -nyat; and both dādhanā at end of c: ÇÇS. further exchanges 1 c and 2 c, and has upa for prati at beginning of d. MS. mixes up the material of the two verses still more, putting our 1 b, c after our 2 a in iv. 10. 1, and our 2 b, c after our 1 a in iv. 11. 2 (in iv. 10. 1 it reads gūhyāni and dādhanā, like the other two texts, but pāthās, like ours); in d (iv. 11. 2), it has anu (the text wrongly nū) instead of prati, and at the end -nyat. KB. (vii. 2) has two pādas resembling d (one with upa and one with prati at the beginning, and both ending with caranyat). With b compare further RV. iv. 58. 1 c, and with c RV. v. 1. 5 [c and vi. 74. 1 c]. Ppp. exchanges the place of 1 b and 2 b, and reads in the former (like ÇÇS.) pātām and gūhyāni [see my addition to note to vs. 2].

2. O Agni-and-Viṣṇu, great [is] your dear domain (dhāman); ye partake of (vī) the ghee, enjoying secret things, increasing by good praise in each house; may your tongue move up to meet the ghee.

For the exchanges of pādas in the other texts, see under the preceding verse; for this verse we have here further AÇS. (ii. 8. 3), without such exchange. In the material corresponding to our 2, all the other texts read juṣānū at end of b; at end of d, TS. has, again -nyet, and all the others -nyat; TS.MS. have vāvṛdhānū at end of c, and TS.

susṭutīr, MS. susṭutī, before it; while AÇS.ÇÇS. read instead susṭutīr vām iyānā, evidently corrupt. Ppp. has, for b (putting it in the other verse), pātaṁ ghṛtasya guhyā juṣānaḥ. VS. (viii. 24) and MS. (in i. 3. 39), finally, have a second half-verse nearly like our c, d, but addressed to Agni, with a wholly different first half: it reads dāme-dame samidham yakṣy (MS. yakṣy) agne prāti te jihvā ghṛtām ūc caranyat. [The "inversion" of the verses in Ppp., taken with the "exchange of pādas 1 b and 2 b," seems to mean that the Ppp. reading is as follows: agnāvīṣṇū mahi dhāma priyān vām pātaṁ ghṛtasya guhyāni nāma: dame-dame etc.; and then, agnāvīṣṇū mahi tad vām mahitvām pātaṁ ghṛtasya guhyā juṣānaḥ: dame-dame etc.]

30 (31). For successful anointing.

[Bhṛgvaṅgīras. — dyāvāpṛthivīyam uta pratipādoktadevatāham. bārhatam.]

Not found in Pāipp. Used by Kāuç. (54. 6) in the godāna ceremony, to accompany the anointing of the youth's eyes. Vāit. (10. 5) makes it accompany, in the paçubandha, the anointing of the sacrificial post.

Translated: Henry, 12, 65; Griffith, i. 342.

1. Well anointed for me have heaven-and-earth, well anointed hath Mitra here made [it]; well anointed for me may Brahmaṇaspati, well anointed may Savitar make [it].

The comm. supplies akṣiyugam yūpaṁ vā for svāktam to agree with. The meter is plainly anuṣṭubh.

31 (32). To Indra: for aid.

[Bhṛgvaṅgīras. — āindram. bhurikṛiṣṭubh.]

Like the preceding, not found in Pāipp. Used by Kāuç. (48. 37), with hymns 34 and 108, and with vii. 59 [or vi. 37. 3 (but see note to vii. 59)], in a witchcraft ceremony against enemies, while laying on the fire fuel from a tree struck by lightning.

Translated: Henry, 12, 66; Griffith, i. 342.

1. O Indra, with abundant best possible aids, O generous hero, quicken us today; whoever hates us, may he fall downward; and whom we hate, him let breath quit.

The verse is RV. iii. 53. 21, which has for sole variant yācchreṣṭhābhis [which the meter alone would suggest as an emendation] (p. yātoçre-) in b. The combination sās padīṣṭa is prescribed by Prāt. ii. 58. The comm. treats yāvat and çreṣṭhābhis as independent words.

32 (33). Homage to Soma (?).

[Brahman. — āyusyam. ānuṣṭubham.]

Found also (except d) in Pāipp. xx. It is, without variant, RV. ix. 67. 29 (which also lacks d). Used by Kāuç. twice (58. 3, 11) in rites for length of life (on account of the concluding pāda), with iii. 31, iv. 13, and other passages, in the ceremony of initiation of a Vedic student. It is reckoned (54. 11, note) to the āyusya gaṇa.

Translated: by RV. translators; and Henry, 12, 66; Griffith, i. 342.

1. Unto the dear, wonder-working, young, oblation-increasing one have we gone, bearing homage; long life-time let him make for me.

The verse is in RV. addressed to Soma. The comm. understands it here of Agni. He explains pānīnatam as ṣabdāyamānaṁ stūyamānaṁ vā.

33 (34). For blessings: to various gods.

[Brahman.— mantruktadevatyam. pathyāpāñkti.]

Found, without variant, in Pāipp. vi.; also in a number of other texts: see below. The verse has various uses in Kāuṣ.: next after hymn 15, in a rite for prosperity (24. 8), with offering a dish of mixed grain; in the ceremony of reception of a Vedic student, twice (57. 22, 25), in the [agnikārya], with sprinkling thrice repeated; and (note to 53. 4) the schol. add it in other rites, the godāna etc. In Vāit. (29. 21), the *brahman-*priest makes the sacrificer repeat it on being anointed, in the agnicayana ceremony.

Translated: Henry, 13, 66; Griffith, i. 342.

1. Let the Maruts pour me together, together Pūshan, together Brihaspati, together let Agni here pour me with both progeny and wealth; long life-time let him make for me.

'Pour together' (sam-sic), i.e. mingle, combine, unite; the expression probably chosen as accompanying an action of mixing things together by pouring. In their corresponding verses, TA. (ii. 18+), JB. (i. 362), ĀpÇS. (xiv. 18. 1), and PGS. (iii. 12. 10) have indras instead of pūṣā in b; ĀpÇS. has vas instead of mā in a and c; in d, TA.JB.ĀpÇS. have āyusā for prajāyā, and TA.JB. bālena for dhānena; e is wanting in PGS.; ĀpÇS. has sarvam and dadhātu, TA. āyusmantam karota mā. The variants of K. (xxxv. 2) are not accessible.

34 (35). To Agni: against enemies.

[Atharvan.— jātavedasam. jāgatam.]

Found also in Pāipp. xx. (but only the first half-verse). Used by Kāuṣ. (36. 33), in a rite concerning women, to prevent generation of a male child; also (48. 37), with hymn 31 etc., against enemies: see under 31. Vāit. (29. 6) applies the verse, with the next, 35. 1, in the agnicayana, while the bricks called asapatna are laid on the fifth course of the fire-altar.

Translated: Henry, 13, 66; Griffith, i. 343.

1. O Agni, thrust forth my rivals that are born; thrust back, O Jātavedas, those unborn; put underfoot those that want to fight [me]; may we be guiltless for thee unto Aditi.

The first half-verse (with a totally different second half) occurs also in VS. (xv. 1), TS. (iv. 3. 12²), TA. (ii. 5. 2), and MS. (ii. 8. 7). [Cf. Kaṭha-hss., p. 73.] They all read nas instead of me in a; and VS. has nuda (not nudā) before it, and nuda jāta-vedaḥ at end of b. The comm. (backed up by two or three of SPP's authorities) understands te instead of te in d, and SPP. (unwisely) adopts that reading in his text. The meter is too irregular to be properly called simple jagati. [The excision from d of vaydm and the worse than superfluous te would make all regular, 11+11: 12+11.] [Ppp. in a exchanges the place of jātān and sapatnān and omits me; has ṣṛṇhi for nudasva in b; and omits c, d.]

35 (36). Against a rival (woman).

[Atharvan. — trcam. jātavedasam. ānuṣṭubham : 1, 3. triṣṭubh.]

The first two verses are found also in Pāipp. xx., but not together. Kāuṣ. employs the hymn in the same rule (36. 33) as hymn 34, to prevent an enemy's wife from bearing children; only vss. 2 and 3 are suited to such use. For the use of vs. 1 by Vait. (29. 6), see under the preceding hymn.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 477 (vss. 2, 3); Henry, 13, 67; Griffith, i. 343, and 475; Bloomfield, 98, 545.

1. Overpower away with power [our] other rivals; thrust back, O Jātavedas, those unborn; fill this royalty unto good fortune; let all the gods revel after him.

Of this verse also the first half, with a wholly different second half, is found in VS. (xv. 2), TS. (iv. 3. 12¹), and MS. (ii. 8. 7); all read, for a, sahasā jātān prā nudā naḥ sapātṇān. Our second half, especially the last pāda, is rather wanting in connection with what precedes; Ppp. improves d by reading anu tvā devās sarve juṣantām. The comm. explains rāṣṭram by asmādīyaṁ janapadam, and enam by çatruhananakarmanah prayoktāram.

2. These hundred veins that are thine, and the thousand tubes — of them all of thine I have covered the opening with a stone.

Ppp. reads sākam for aham in c. The comm. regards the verse as addressed to a vidveṣiṇī strī. To him the hirās are the minute, and the dhamanīs the large vessels.

3. The upper part of thy womb I make the lower; let there not be progeny to thee, nor birth; I make thee barren (asū), without progeny; I make a stone thy cover.

The mss. are divided between sītuh and sūnuh at end of b (our Bp.D. read sūnuh), and SPP. adopts sūnuh (following half his authorities and the comm.), but wrongly, as the accent plainly shows.* The comm. reads açvām at beginning of c, and supports it by a ridiculous explanation: it stands for açvatarim 'a she-mule,' and she-mules are not fruitful! [In the Berlin ed., the r of kr̥nomi in c is wanting.] * [Cf. the note to i. 11. 1.]

The discordance between vs. 1 and vss. 2 and 3 is so complete that it is difficult to believe them all to form one hymn together; and vs. 1 evidently belongs with hymn 34; vss. 2 and 3, moreover, are probably combined on account of their resemblance in the closing pādas. But there is no disagreement among the authorities with regard to the division.

36 (37). Husband and wife to one another.

[Atharvan. — mantrōktākṣidevatyam. ānuṣṭubham.]

Of this verse are found in Pāipp. only the first words, a lacuna following. Kāuṣ. (79. 2) prescribes its use in the marriage ceremonies of the fourth day, as the two spouses anoint one another's eyes.

Translated: Weber, Ind. Stud. v. 248; Grill, 55, 179; Henry, 13, 67; Griffith, i. 343; Bloomfield, 96, 546. — Cf. also Bergaigne, JA. 8. iii. 200, note (1884).

1. The eyes of us two [be] of honey-aspect ; our face [be] ointment ; put (kr) thou me within thy heart ; may our mind verily be together.

The comm. begins with akṣāu, and Ppp. also reads the same. The pada-text divides sahā 'sati into sahā : āsati, which is plainly wrong (should be asati).

37 (38). The wife to the husband.

[Atharvan. — līṅgoktadevatyam. ānuṣṭubham.]

Wanting in Pāipp., but perhaps by reason of the lacuna noted under the preceding verse. Employed by Kāuç. (79.7) in the same ceremony as the preceding hymn, with the direction ity abhichādayati, which may well enough mean, as plainly required by the sense of the verse, 'she envelops him,' but is explained by the schol. as 'one envelops the two spouses.'

Translated : Weber, Ind. Stud. v. 248 ; Grill, 55, 179 ; Henry, 14, 67 ; Griffith, i. 343 ; Bloomfield, 96, 546.

1. I bridle (abhi-dhā) thee with my Manu-born garment, that thou mayest be wholly mine, mayest not make mention of other women.

The comm. explains manu- alternatively by mantraṇa, and takes kīrtayās as = uccares ; and he supplies nāmadheyam as the latter's direct object, governing anyāsām. "Manu-born" is a strange epithet for a garment ; perhaps the woman's embrace is intended, or her hair — if this be not too poetic. The second half-verse is nearly identical with 38.4 c, d.

38 (39). To win and fix a man's love : with a plant.

[Atharvan. — pañcarcam. vānaspatyam. ānuṣṭubham : 3. 4p. uṣṇih.]

The first two verses of this hymn are found in Pāipp. xx., but in a fragmentary and corrupt condition ; the remaining three, in iii. Used, according to Kāuç. (36.12), with vi. 129, 139, in a rite concerning women ; the plant is fastened to the head (of the woman [so the comm.]), and she enters the village. (Keçava explains differently.) [He regards a man as object of the rite (tasya çirasi baddhvā), as indeed the text of vs. 2 d requires.]

Translated : Weber, Ind. Stud. v. 249 ; Ludwig, p. 515 ; Grill, 59, 179 ; Henry, 14, 68 ; Griffith, i. 344 ; Bloomfield, 103, 546.

1. I dig this remedy, me-regarding, greatly wailing, the returner of one going away, greeter of one coming.

Only the first half-verse is found in Ppp. The comm., after Kāuç., understands the remedy to be that named sāuvarcala,* "Sochal salt." Māmpaçyam he explains as either mām eva nārīm paçyat or mām eva asādhāranyena patye pradārçayat ; there can properly be no causative force in paçya. [Weber suggests that māmpaçyam may be a misprint for sā ; but the mss. of SPP. and W. all appear to have mā-, except W's Bp., which has sā-.] The other difficult epithet, abhirorudam, he makes no difficulty of explaining as if it contained the root rudh instead of rud : patyuh anyanārisamsargam abhito nirundhat ! That might be convenient, if admissible ; the abhi with roruda is obscure : perhaps 'wailing at or after [me].'

*[But Kāuṣ., Dārila and Keçava, and the comm. seem to intend by sāuvarcalā a root or flower and not a salt decoction (cf. OB. vii. 195) therefrom. See Bloomfield's note, p. 539. He observes that the Sūtra does not here inspire us with confidence in its exactness. — See further my addition to note on vs. 5.]

2. Wherewith the Āsurī put down Indra from among the gods, therewith put I thee down, that I may be very dear [fem.!] to thee.

The comm. explains āsuri alternatively as asurasya māyā, and renders nī cakre by yuddhe svādhīnam kṛtavati. [Weber, Henry, and Bloomfield understand this vs. as relating to Indra's seduction by an āsuri: cf. Oertel, JAOS. xix. 2. 120.] [Ppp. corrupt, as noted above.]

3. Correspondent (praticī) to Soma art thou, correspondent also to the sun, correspondent to all the gods; as such we address [acha-ā-vad] thee.

'Correspondent,' perhaps 'a match for, as effective as'; Henry translates: "looking in the face." The comm. declares the plant ṣaṅkhapūṣṭī to be addressed in the verse, and paraphrases praticī by vaçikaraṇārtham pratyag-añcanā. Ppp. inserts oṣadhe at end of a, and reads anu for uta in b. The verse admits of being read, artificially, as 7×4=28.

4. I am speaking; not thou; in the assembly verily do thou speak; mayest thou be mine wholly; mayest thou not make mention of other women.

Ppp. has, in a, vadāni mahattvam, and vadāni would be a preferable reading, but it is given by only one of our mss. (D.) and three of SPP's, and is not admitted in either printed text. All the mss. (except our I.) accent vāda at end of b, which accent SPP. accordingly properly enough accepts; the accent is no more anomalous than that of kīrtiyās in d: which, however, we might regard as imitated after 37. 1 d above, where the same half-verse is found nearly unchanged.

5. If thou art either beyond people, or if beyond streams, may this herb, having as it were bound [thee], conduct thee in hither to me.

With tirojanām compare the oftener used atijanām *; the virtual meaning is 'in uninhabited regions.' Ppp. makes better meter in c by reading iyam tvā mahyam oṣadhīh. The comm. curiously reads tirocanam, "with concealed going" [tiras and acanam]. The meter of the second half-verse is too irregular to be passed unnoticed. * [See OB. vii. 385 and BR. i. 94.]

[Henry, in his note, conjectures that a plant was fastened to the man before his departure in order to ensure his return to the woman. Later, 1897, JA. 9. ix. 328, he cites a symbolic practice, reported by Prince Henri d'Orléans from the Upper Irawadi: a young woman fastens a hempen cord on the arm of her husband, who is about to be separated from her for a time, and he does the like. This seems to him (and to me) to confirm his view.—OB., under sūvarcalā, reports that some assign to the word the meaning "hemp." Cf. my addition to note to vs. 1.]

With this hymn ends the third anuvāka, containing 16 hymns and 31 verses; the Anukr. quotations are, for the hymns, ṛtīyāntīyāu [cf. anuvāka-note following h. 118] ṣoḍaṣa, and for the verses aṣṭāu tisraṣ cā vabodhyās ṛtīye.

39 (40). In praise of Sarasvant (?).

[Praskaṇva. — mantroktadevatyam. trāiṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. xx. Kāuṣ. (24. 9) employs it in a rite for prosperity, with offering to Indra of the omentum of a best bull; the verse is reckoned (note to 19. 1) to the puṣṭika mantras.

Translated: Henry, 14, 69; Griffith, i. 344.

1. [Him], the heavenly eagle, milky, great, embryo of the waters, bull of the herbs, gratifying with rain from close by (?), in our cow-stall standing in wealth may [one] establish.

The first three pādas are, with variants, RV. i. 164. 52 a, b, c (also TS. iii. 1. 113). Our very senseless payasām in a is RV. vāyasām (TS. vay-); our vr̥ṣabhām (so TS.) in b is RV. darṣatām; and RV. (not TS.) has vr̥ṣṭibhis in c. Then, for d, RV. has sārasvantam dvase jōhavīmi (TS. nearly the same), which makes the whole verse one consistent construction; our d fits very badly. Ppp. reads samudram for suṣarṇam in a, and has, for c, d, abhīptam rayyā tapanti sarasvantam rahiṣṭhyā (i.e. rayiṣṭhām) sādāye 'ha. The comm. understands Sarasvant to be intended throughout the verse, and supplies indrās as subject for the concluding verb; abhīptas he explains variously: sarvataḥ saṃgatā āpo 'smiṇ or abhīpatanaçilān vr̥ṣṭikāmān sarvaprāṇināḥ. Henry renders "those who invoke him."

40 (41). Prayer and praise to Sarasvant.

[Praskaṇva. — dvyr̥cam. sārasvatam. trāiṣṭubham: 1. bhurij.]

Found also in Pāipp. xx. Kāuṣ. makes no use of the hymn; but it is quoted by Vāit. (8. 2), with hymn 68, as accompanying offerings to Sarasvatī and Sarasvant at the full-moon sacrifice.

Translated: Henry, 14, 70; Griffith, i. 345.

1. [He] whose [established] course all the cattle go, in whose course stand the waters, in whose course the lord of prosperity is entered — him, Sarasvant, we call to aid.

The verse is found in several other texts: TS. (iii. 1. 113), MS. (iv. 10. 1), AÇS. (iii. 8. 1), ÇÇS. (vi. 11. 8); and it is a supplement (Aufrecht,² p. 678) to RV. vii. 96. All these agree in reading vr̥tatām in b, puṣṭipātis (the comm. also has this) in c, and juhuvema at the end. Ppp. has vr̥tate in a and vr̥tatam in b, and juhuvema at the end.

2. We, putting on abundance of wealth [and] ambition (?), would [here] call hither to [us] Sarasvant, a bestower coming to meet his bestower (dāçvāns), lord of prosperity, standing in wealth, seat of wealths.

The translation implies substitution of the Ppp. reading, çravasyam, for -syūm in c; the construction is hard enough, even with that change. Ppp. also has rayiṇām for rayiṣṭhām in b, and vasānam (which seems better) at end of c. SPP. reads in a the impossible form dāçvānsam (the comm. has -vāns-), alleging for it the support of most of his authorities; if any of ours have it, the fact was overlooked. [Bp.¹ has dāçvānsam; Bp.² dāçvānsam!]

41 (42). To the heavenly falcon (the sun).

[Praskaṇva. — dvyṛcam. cyeṇadāvratam. 1. jagatī; 2. triṣṭubh.]

Found also in Pāipp. xx. (in inverted verse-order). Used by Kāuṣ. (43.3) in the house-building ceremony (to purify the site, Keç., comm.): compare Bloomfield in JAOS. xvi. 12; further added by the schol. (note to 8.23) to the vāstu gaṇa; moreover, the verses are called (40.9) samprokṣanyāu, and are variously made to accompany rites involving sprinkling (Bloomfield, ib. p. 13). Verse 2 appears in Vāit. (22.23) in the agniṣṭoma, with vi. 122 and 123.

Translated: Henry, 15, 71; Griffith, i. 345. — Cf. Hillebrandt, Ved. Mythol. i. 285.

1. Across wastes, across waters penetrated the men-beholding falcon, seeing a resting-place; passing all the lower spaces, may he come hither, propitious, with Indra as companion.

Ppp. combines (as often) -kṣā vasāna- in b, and çivā jagāma in d. Avasāna-, either 'his goal' (so Henry) or 'the settlements of men.' The meter is pure triṣṭubh.

2. The men-beholding falcon, heavenly eagle, thousand-footed, hundred-wombed, vigor-giving — may he confirm to us the good that was borne away; let ours be what is rich in svadhā among the Fathers.

That is, probably, 'a pleasant life.' Ppp. makes nṛcaksās and suparṇas exchange places in a, and reads vayo dhāt at end of b. Pāda c is jagatī.

42 (43). To Soma and Rudra.

[Praskaṇva. — dvyṛcam. mantroktadevatyam. trīṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. i. Used in Kāuṣ. (32.3) with hymn 29 etc.: see that hymn.

Translated: Henry, 15, 71; Griffith, i. 346.

1. O Soma-and-Rudra, eject asunder the disease that has entered our household; drive far to a distance perdition; any committed sin put away from us.

The first three pādas occur in RV. vi. 74. 2 (a, b, c) and MS. iv. 11. 2, and the last two (repeating c) in RV. i. 24. 9 and MS. i. 3. 39; TS. i. 8. 22^s has the whole verse. At beginning of c, all (RV.MS. in the former occurrence) have ārē bādhetām, omitting dūrām (in the latter occurrence, RV. bādhasva dūrē, MS. ārē bādhasva; both numugāhi in d). Ppp. reads, in c, dveṣo nirṛtiṃ ca, and in d asmāt. The comm. explains gayam as grham çariraṃ vā. [We had c, d also above at vi. 97. 2; see also TS. i. 4. 45^r, which has dveṣo like Ppp.]

2. O Soma-and-Rudra, do ye put all these remedies in our bodies; untie, loosen from us what committed sin may be bound in our bodies.

Found also in RV. (vi. 74. 3), TS.MS. (as above) [TS. yivam, by misprint]; all read asmē for the ungrammatical asmāt in a, and the translation follows them; and they have āsti for āsai in c.

43 (44). Of speech (?).

[Praskaṇva. — vāgdevatyam. trāiṣṭubham.]

Not found in Pāipp., nor elsewhere. Used in Kāuṣ. (46. 1), with v. 1. 7, in a rite against false accusation; the details cast no light on the meaning of the verse.

Translated: Henry, 15, 72; Griffith, i. 346.

1. Propitious to thee [are] some; unpropitious to thee [are] some; all thou bearest, with well-willing mind. Three voices (vāc) [are] deposited within him (it?); of these, one flew away after sound (ghōṣa).

A mystical saying, of very doubtful interpretation; the comm. gives a long and worthless exposition. The 'some' and 'all' in a, b are feminine, like vāc; the 'thou' is masculine; the comm. (after Kāuṣ.) understands it of a 'man causelessly reproached.' Henry imagines the thunder to be intended, asmin signifying Parjanya, and renders d "one of them has gone to pieces with no other result than sound: i.e., without rain."

44 (45). Extolling Indra and Viṣṇu.

[Praskaṇva. — mantroktadevatyam. bhurik trīṣṭubh.]

Found also in Pāipp. xx. Further, in RV. (vi. 69. 8), TS. (iii. 2. 11² et al.), MS. (ii. 4. 4), and PB. (xx. 15. 7); AB. (vi. 15) gives a sort of comment on the verse, and a story fabricated to explain its meaning. Used in Kāuṣ. (42. 6) in a rite for establishing harmony (on the arrival of a distinguished visitor, Keç.). In Vāit. (25. 2), joined with hymns 58 and 51 in recitation in the atyagniṣṭoma ceremony.

Translated: Henry, 16, 72; Griffith, i. 347. — Discussed, as RV. verse, by Muir, iv². 84. — It seems that W. intended to rewrite this.

1. Ye have both conquered; ye are not conquered; neither one of them hath been conquered; O Viṣṇu, Indra also, what ye fought, a thousand — that did ye triply disperse.

The other texts have but a single* variant, enos for enayos at end of b; but Ppp. has instead of this eva vām; and further, in d, sahasram yad adhīraethām. Some of the pada-mss. (including our D.) divide apa-sprdhethām in c. Henry renders d "ye made then three thousand (treasures?) to appear." The comm. renders yat in c by yad vastu prati, and makes tredhā refer to the three things (loka, veda, vāc) stated to be conquered in the AB. legend. TS. vii. 1. 67 views the act as a division of a thousand by three. * [The accent viṣṇo, we must suppose, is a misprint (delete the sign under ca): for the other texts have viṣṇo, accentless, as does the Index Verborum; and so has SPP. Of his fourteen authorities, seven indeed give viṣṇo, and so does our I. — doubtless wrongly: cf. Haskell, JAOS. xi. 66.]

45 (46, 47). To cure jealousy.

[1. Praskaṇva. — bhāiṣajyam. ānuṣṭubham. — 2. Atharvan. — mantroktadevatyam; ṛgyāpanayanam. ānuṣṭubham.]

These two verses, notwithstanding their close accordance in meter and subject, are treated by the Anukr. and by part of the mss., hence also by the comm.* and in SPP's text, as two separate hymns; and the double reckoning from this point on involves a plus of two. Both are found together in Pāipp. xx.; and the quoted Anukr. (see after hymn 51) counts thirteen and not fourteen hymns in the anuvāka. The first verse (hymn 46) is used by Kāuṣ. (36. 25), in a women's rite, with vi. 18 and vii. 74. 3, for removal of jealousy; the second (hymn 47), later in the same rite (36. 27), with paraṣu-phāṅṅa: that is, apparently, giving to drink water into which a heated ax has been dipped (taṭṭaparaṣunā kvāthitam udakam, comm.). * [Cf. p. 389.]

Translated: Weber, Ind. Stud. v. 250; Ludwig, p. 514; Grill, 29, 180; Henry, 16, 72; Griffith, i. 347; Bloomfield, 107, 547.

1. From a people belonging to all peoples, away from the river (śindhu) brought hither, from afar I think thee brought up, a remedy, namely, of jealousy.

Very probably (b) rather 'from the Indus' (śindhu). Ppp. reads janīnām viçān arukṣatinām (= urukṣit-?); its second half-verse is corrupt. The comm. explains janāt by janapadāt and its epithet by viçvajanahitāt.

2 (47.1). Of him as of a burning fire, of a conflagration burning separately, this jealousy of this man do thou appease, as fire with water.

Aśya in a is here regarded as anticipatory of the etāsya of c; it cannot be taken as adjective unless by emendation we give it an accent. Again (cf. 18. 1 above) all the mss. read, in d, unnā, untā, utnā, or uttā instead of the correct udnā, which the comm. has, and which is given, by emendation, in both printed texts. Ppp. has a very different text: tat sainvegasya bheṣajam tad asunāman gṛbhāhitam: and then, as second half-verse, our a, b, with yathā instead of prthak; in an added verse occurs the phrase udhnā gñim iva vāraye. ["Do I appease," çamaye, would be more natural; cf. Ppp's vāraye.]

46 (48). To Sinīvālī (goddess of the new moon).

[Atharvan.—trçam. mantruktadevatyam. ānuṣṭubham: 3. triṣṭubh.]

Found also in Pāipp. xx. (in the verse-order 2, 1, 3). Used by Kāuṣ. (32. 3), with hymn 29 etc., and again (59. 19) with hymn 17 etc.: see under hymns 29 and 17. In Vāit. (1. 14), in the parvan sacrifice, it conciliates Sinīvālī.

Translated: Henry, 16, 73; Griffith, i. 347.

1. O Sinīvālī, of the broad braids, that art sister of the gods! enjoy thou the offered oblation; appoint us progeny, O goddess.

Some of the mss. (including our Bp.P.) wrongly leave āsi unaccented in b. Most of our mss. read didīḍḍhi in d, but SPP. reports nothing of the kind from his authorities; Ppp. gives didīḍhi. The verse is RV. ii. 32. 6 (also VS. xxxiv. 10; TS. iii. 1. 113; MS. iv. 12. 6), without variant.* The second half is nearly the same with 20. 2 c, d; 68. 1 c, d. The comm. gives several discordant interpretations of prthustuke, and is uncertain whether to take didīḍḍhi from diç [Gram. § 218] or from dih. * [And b is nearly v. 5. 1 d and vi. 100. 3 b.]

2. She that is of good arms, of good fingers, bearing well, giving birth to many — to that Sinīvālī, mistress of the people, offer ye oblation.

The verse is RV. ii. 32. 7, without variant (also TS.MS., as above, both with supāntis for subāhūs). Ppp. reads in a, b sumāṅgalis suṣumā.

3. Who, mistress of the people, art a match for (? praticī) Indra, the thousand-braided goddess coming on, to thee, O spouse of Vishṇu, are the oblations given; stir up thy husband, O goddess, unto bestowal.

Ppp. reads viçvatas (for viçpatnī) in a, sahasrastutā in b, and rādhasā in d. Henry acutely points out that this verse probably belongs to Anumati, who is else left unaddressed in this group of hymns to the lunar deities, and that its description applies best to her.

47 (49). To Kuhū (goddess of the new moon).

[Atharvan.—divyrcam. mantruktadevatyam. 1. jaḡatī; 2. triṣṭubh.]

Found also in Pāipp. xx. Further, in TS. iii. 3. 11⁵, MS. iv. 12. 6, K. xiii. 16, AÇS. i. 10. 8, ÇÇS. ix. 28. 3. This hymn, with the preceding (or also 48 and 49?) and hymn 6, makes up (Kāuç. 59. 18, note), according to the schol., a patnīvantagana (not acknowledged nor used in the Kāuç. text). In Vāit. (i. 16), it and hymn 48, paired respectively with 79 and 80, are used on the days of new and full moon at the parvan sacrifices.

Translated: Henry, 17, 74; Griffith, i. 348.

1. The goddess Kuhū, well-doing, working with knowledge, in this sacrifice I call upon with good call; may she confirm to us wealth having all choice things; let her give a hero of hundred-fold value, worthy of praise.

All the other texts read ahām for devīm in a, and for sukṛtam AÇS.ÇÇS. give suṃṛtam and TS. subhāgām (Ppp. has amṛtam); all, in b, have suhāvām, which is better (so also the comm.). Their second half-verse is different from ours: sā no dadātu çrāvānam pitṛñām tāsyaī te devī havīṣā vidhema*; and Ppp. gives the same, but with ā (for sā), çrāvānam, and ta (for te). Our Bp. divides vidmanāçāpasam; two of SPP's mss. give -nāçāp-. For çatadāya, see Roth in ZDMG. xli. 672; the comm. says bahudhanam bahupradam vā. The meter is not full jaḡatī. * [TS. pitṛñām tāsyaūs.]

2. May Kuhū, spouse of the gods, [mistress] of the immortal, invocable, enjoy this our libation; let her listen eager to our sacrifice today; let her, knowing (cikītiṣṭ), assign abundance of wealth.

Asya, in b, ought of course to be asyā (so TS. MS.), but this, so far as noted, is read by only a single ms. (our D.), and both printed texts give asya. At end of a, ÇÇS. has patnūr (h-); at end of b, TS. has ciketu, MS. AÇS. çṛnotu, and ÇÇS. çṛnotu. Instead of our c, all give sām (MS. sā; misprint?) dāçūṣe kirātu bhūri vāmām; and Ppp. has the same, save kirate, and puṣṭā (for vāmām). At the end, ÇÇS. has dadātu; just before, TS. MS. ÇÇS. read cikītiṣe and AÇS. yajamāne. The comm. gives several diverse explanations of amṛtasya patnī.

48 (50). To Rākā (goddess of the full moon).

[Atharvan.—divyrcam. mantruktadevatyam. jāḡatam.]

Found also in Pāipp. xx. Further, as RV. ii. 32. 4, 5 and in TS. (iii. 3. 11⁵), MS. (iv. 12. 6), and MB. (i. 5. 3, 4). As to use in Kāuç. and Vāit., see under hymn 47. The second half of verse 2 is further found in the adbhuta chapter of Kāuç. (106. 7) as part of a series of verses there given in full.

Translated: Henry, 17, 74; Griffith, i. 348.

1. Rākā I call with good call, with good praise; let the fortunate one hear us; let her willingly note; let her sew the work with a needle that does not come apart; let her give a hero of hundred-fold value, worthy of praise.

The other texts agree throughout,* and differ from ours only by reading in a suhāvām, which Ppp. also has, and the comm. The latter explains Rākā as sampūrṇacandrā pāurnamāsī. [Our ḍ repeats 47. 1 ḍ.] *[But MB. has ṣatadāyu-mukhyam.]

2. The well-adorned favors that are thine, O Rākā, wherewith thou givest good things to thy worshiper, — with them do thou come to us today favoring, granting, O fortunate one, thousand-fold prosperity.

The other texts agree throughout and differ from ours only by reading in ḍ sahasra-ḥṣām, which is given also by the comm., and by three of SPP's (ten) authorities. The meter is mixed triṣṭubh and jagatī.

49 (51). To the spouses of the gods.

[Atharvan. — dvyr̥cam. mantroktadevapatnīdevatākam. 1. ārṣī jagatī; 2. 4-p. pañkti.]

Not found in Pāipp. The verses are RV. v. 46. 7, 8, also in TB. iii. 5. 12^r and MS. iv. 13. 10. Not used in Kāuṣ. (unless included in patnīvanta gaṇa: see under hymn 47). Vāit. has it (4. 8: not ix. 7. 6, comm.) in the parvan sacrifice, with one of the patnīsamyāja offerings.

Translated: Henry, 17, 75; Griffith, i. 349.

1. Let the spouses of the gods, eager, help us; let them help us forward unto offspring (?tujī), unto winning of booty (vāja); they that are of earth, they that are in the sphere (vratā) of the waters — let those well-invoked goddesses bestow on us protection.

The translation implies the accent devīs in ḍ. The other texts read accordantly devīḥ suhavāḥ and yachata; ours substitutes yachantu and adapts suhāvās to it, but absurdly leaves devīs vocative. The comm. reads yacchatu at the end; he explains tujāye by tokāyā 'patyāya.

2. And let the women (gnā) partake (vī), whose husbands are gods — Indrāṇī, Agnāyī, Aṣvinī the queen; let Ródasī, let Varuṇānī listen; let the goddesses partake, [at] the season that is the wives'.

The other texts offer no variants, save that the RV. pada-text unaccountably reads in c ródasī tti, as if the word were the common dual, instead of a proper name. The verse can be read as of 40 syllables.

50 (52). For success with dice.

[Aṅgiras (kitavabāadhanakāmas *). — navar̥cam. āindram. āmuṣṭubham: 3, 7. triṣṭubh; 4. jagatī; 6. bhurik triṣṭubh.]

Most of the verses (viz. excepting 4 and 6) are found in Pāipp., but not together: 5, 1, 2 in xx.; 3 also in xx., but in another part; 7 in xvii.; 8, 9 in i. The hymn is plainly made up of heterogeneous parts, pieced together with a little adaptation. Used in Kāuṣ. (41. 13) with iv. 38 and vii. 109, in a rite for good luck in gambling; the dice, steeped (vāsita) in a liquid [dadhi-madhu], are cast on a place that has been smoothened for the purpose. * [The mss. seem to have kitava-dvamdhana-kāmas. Bloomfield suggests -bandhana-; Dr. Ryder, -dvamdva-dhana-; but, considering the relation of bādḥ with badh, W's -bādhana- seems best in accord with badhyāsam of 1 d.]

Translated: Ludwig, p. 455; Zimmer, p. 285 (5 verses); Grill, 71, 180; Henry, 18, 75; Griffith, i. 349; Bloomfield, 150, 548. — Muir, v. 429, may be consulted. — Whitney seems to have intended to rewrite the matter concerning this hymn.

1. As the thunderbolt always strikes the tree irresistibly, so may I today smite [badh, vadh] the gamblers irresistibly with the dice.

Ppp. reads, in b, viṣvāham, and, for c, evā 'ham amuṁ kitavam. The comm. has vadhyāsam in d. Compare vii. 109. 4, below. The Anukr. overlooks the deficiency in a.

2. Of the quick, of the slow, of the people that cannot avoid it (?), let the fortune come together from all sides, my winnings in hand.

That is, apparently, so as to be won by me. The meaning of āvarjūṣṇām in b is extremely problematical; the translators: "wehrlos" etc. Comparison with viṣṇām vavarjūṣṇām, RV. i. 134. 6, and the irregularity of the unreduplicated form, make the reading very suspicious; Ppp. gives instead devayātim; the comm. explains it [alternatively] as dyūtakriyām aparityajantīnām, sticking to the game in spite of ill luck. For d, Ppp. has antarhastyam kṛtam manah.

3. I praise Agni, who owns good things, with acts of homage; here, attached, may he divide (vi-ci) our winnings; I am borne forward as it were by booty-winning chariots; forward to the right may I further the praise of the Maruts.

The verse is RV. v. 60. 1, found also in TB. (ii. 7. 124) and MS. (iv. 14. 11). All these texts give sv-āvasam in a, of which our reading seems an awkward corruption; in b they have prasattās (but TB. prasaptās); in c they accent vājayādbhis; in d they (also Ppp.) read pradakṣiṇit; at the end MS. has aḥyām. Some of our mss. (Bp.R.T.) give ṛndhyām. The comm. explains vi cayat as simply = karotu [karotu itself may be used technically; cf. Ved. Stud. i. 119]. Kṛtam he understands throughout as the winning die (kṛtaḥabdāvācyam lābhahetumayam). The verse is brought in here only on account of the comparison in b.

4. May we, with thee as ally, conquer the troop (? vṛt); do thou help upward our side in every conflict; for us, O Indra, make thou wide space, easy-going; do thou break up the virilities of our foes, O bounteous one.

The verse is RV. i. 102. 4, where vāriyas is read in c instead of vāriyas. The comm. explains vṛt as antagonist at play, aṅṣa as victory (jayalakṣaṇa), and bhara as the contest with dice.

5. I have won of thee what is scored together (?); I have won also the check (?); as a wolf might shake a sheep, so I shake thy winnings.

Samlikhitam and samrudh are technical terms, obscure to us. The comm. ingeniously states that players sometimes stop or check (samrudh) an antagonist by marks (añka) which they make with slivers of dice and the like, and that such marks and the one who checks by means of them are intended—a pretty evident fabrication. Ppp. reads samvṛtam instead of samrudham; the comm. explains the latter word simply by samroddhāram.

6. Also, a superior player, he wins the advance (?); he divides in time the winnings like a gambler; he who, a god-lover, obstructs not riches—him verily he unites with wealth at pleasure (?).

The verse is full of technical gambling expressions, not understood by us. It is RV. x. 42. 9, with variants: RV. reads atidṛvyā jayāti in a; in b, yāt for iva, and hence vicinōti; in c, dhānā ruṇāddhi; in d, rāyā (which the translation given above follows: the comm. reads it) and svadhāvān. The comm. also has jayāti, as demanded by the meter, in a. He explains prahām by akṣūṣi prahantāram pratikṛitavam, and vi cinoti this time by mṛgayate. With nā dhānam ruṇāddhi compare the gambler's vow, nā dhānā ruṇādhmi, in RV. x. 34. 12; the comm. says dyūtalabdham dhanam na vyartham sthāpayati kim tu devatārtham viniyūkte. The Anukr. distinctly refuses the contraction to kṛtam 'va in b.

7. By kine may we pass over ill-conditioned misery, or by barley over hunger, O much-invoked one, all of us; may we first among kings, unharmed, win riches by [our] stratagems.

Or perhaps 'unharmed by [others'] stratagems.' The verse has no reason here; it is RV. x. 42. 10, with variants: RV. omits the meter-disturbing vā in b (the Anukr. ignores the irregularity), and reads vīṣvām at the end of the pāda; also rājabhis in c, and, in d, asmākena vrjānenā. Ppp. has, for c, vayam rājānas prathamā dhanānām. The comm., against the pāda-text (-māḥ; RV. pāda the same), understands prathamā as neut. pl., qualifying dhanāni. [Cf. Geldner, Ved. Stud. i. 150; Foy, KZ. xxxiv. 251.]

8. My winnings in my right hand, victory in my left is placed; kine-winner may I be, horse-winner, riches-winning, gold-winner.

Ppp. reads, for b, save me jayā "hitah, and, in d, kṛtamcayas for dhanamjayas.

9. O ye dice, give [me] fruitful play, like a milking cow; fasten me together with a stream(?) of winnings, as a bow with sinew.

Ppp. reads divam for dyuvam in a, and dhārāya in c. Dhārā, in whatever sense taken, makes a very unacceptable comparison; the comm. paraphrases it with samṛitayā uparyuparilābhahetukṛitāyapṛavāhena. [His interpretation seems to mean 'Unite me with a succession (samṛitati or pravāha) of fours' (kṛtā-aya), or, as we should say, 'Give me a run (dhārā or pravāha) of double sixes,' 'Give me a run of luck.']

51 (53). For protection by Brihaspati and Indra.

[Aṅgiras. — bārhaspatyam. trāistubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. xv. The verse is RV. x. 42. 11 (also in TS. iii. 3. 11^r). In Kāuṣ. (59. 19) it is used with hymn 17 etc. (see under that hymn); and it is reckoned (note to 25. 36) to the svastyayana gaṇa. In Vāit. (25. 2) it goes with hymns 44 and 58; see under 44. The comm. quotes it also from Çānti K. (15) in a sacrifice to the planets (grahayajñe), and from Nakṣ. K. [should be Çānti] (18), in a mahāçānti called bārhaspatyā.

Translated: Henry, 19, 78; Griffith, i. 351.

1. Let Brihaspati protect us round about from behind, also from above, from below, against the malignant one; let Indra from in front and from midway make wide space for us, a companion for companions.

The directions admit also of being understood as from west, north, south, and east. RV. (and TS.) reads vāriivas in ḍ, and so does Ppp. (vāriivas kṛṇotu).

The fourth anuvāka ends here; it has, according to our division, 13 hymns and 30 verses; the other division counts 14 hymns; the quoted Anukr. is to this effect: dvāu pañcarcāu saṁnīviṣṭāu caturthe; and, for the hymns: caturthe trayodaça sūktāḥ—thus sanctioning our division.

52 (54). For harmony.

[Atharvan.—dvyr̥cam. sāmmanasyam; āçvinam. 1. kakummaty anuṣṭubh; 2. jagatī.]

Not found in Pāipp. Kāuç. reckons it (9. 2) to the bṛhachānti gaṇa, and also (12. 5), with iii. 30 etc., to the sāmmanasyāni or harmony-hymns.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 428; Grill, 31, 181; Henry, 19, 79; Griffith, i. 351; Bloomfield, 136, 550.

1. Harmony for us with our own men, harmony with strangers—harmony, O Açvins, do ye here confirm in us.

The verse is found in TB. ii. 4. 4⁶ and MS. ii. 2. 6, and in a khila to RV. x. 191; TB. reads svāts and āraṇāts in a, b; MS. and the khila have svēbhyaḥ and āraṇēbhyaḥ, and MS. also asmābhyaḥ in ḍ. The verse is also uṣṇiggarbhā.

2. May we be harmonious with mind, with knowledge (cikīṭú); may we not fight (?) with the mind of the gods; let not noises arise in case of much destruction (?); let not Indra's arrow fall, the day being come.

Or (as the other translators), 'let not the arrow fly, Indra's day being come'; the comm. understands 'Indra's arrow,' i.e. the thunderbolt.* The comm., in c, reads vinihrute (= kāuṣṭīye nimitte or stāinyādīkāuṣṭīlyanimitte). Yutsmahi in b is doubtful; SPP. reads yuṣmahi, with the comm. (= vīyuktā bhūma) and the minority of his mss. (also our K.Kp.); the rest have either yutsmahi or yuchmahi (the latter also our O.s.m.D.R.s.m., which seems to be only an awkwardness of the scribes for yutsmahi); on the whole, yutsmahi is better supported, and either gives an acceptable sense. SPP. strangely reads, with the comm. and the majority of his authorities, and with part of ours (P.?O.R.), it sthur in c, against both general grammar and the Prātiçākhyā (ii. 18; its commentary quotes this passage as an illustration of the rule). With a Grill compares RV. x. 30. 6 c, sām jānate mānasā sām cikitre. Pāda b is triṣṭubh, if not a also: [is the second sām an intrusion?]. * [Alternatively, and as açanīrūpā para-kīyā vāk.]

53 (55). For some one's health and long life.

[Brahman. — saṅtarcam. ānyuṣyam uta bārhaspatyam; āṣvinam. trāiṣṭubham : 3. bhūrij ;
4. uṣṣiḡgarbhā "vṣī pañkti; 5-7. anuṣṭubh.]

Verses 1-4 and 7 are found also in Pāipp. : 1 in xx. ; 2-4 also in xx., but not with 1 ; 7 in v. In Kāuḡ. (besides the separate use of vs. 7, which see), addressed* with i. 9, 30 ; iii. 8, etc. by the teacher to the pupil in the ceremony of initiation (55. 17). And the comm. quotes it from Nakṣ. K. [should be Čānti] (18) with hymn 51 (which see).
* [According to the comm., p. 402¹², only vss. 1-6.]

Translated : Muir, v. 443 ; Grill, 15, 182 ; Henry, 20, 80 ; Griffith, i. 351 ; Bloomfield, 52, 551.

1. When thou, O Brihaspati, didst release [us] from Yama's other-world existence, from malediction, the Aṣvins bore back death from us, O Agni, physicians of the gods, mightily.

'Other-world existence,' lit. 'the being yonder.' The verse is VS. xxvii. 9, and is found also in TS. iv. 1. 74, TA. x. 48 (Appendix), and MS. ii. 12. 5, the four texts nearly agreeing : they read ādha for dāhi in a (Ppp. appears to do the same) ; for b, bṛhaspate abhṭcaster amuñcaḥ ; in c, asmāt for asmāt (and MS. āhatām). SPP. reads, for b, bṛhaspater abhṭcaster amuñcaḥ ; the mss. are greatly at variance ; half SPP's authorities read bṛhaspate, which he ought accordingly to have adopted, since bṛhaspates is ungrammatical, being neither one thing nor another ; the comm., to be sure, has no scruple about taking it as a vocative : he bṛhaspateh ! Our Bp. reads bṛhaspāteḥ ; P. has -pate 'bhi', which we followed in our text, but wrongly, as it is found in no other authority. For amuñcas SPP. finds no authority ; but it is given by our P.R.T., and, considering the necessity of the case, and the support of the other texts, that is enough. The pāda, then, should be made to agree with that of the parallel texts (changing our 'bht- to abht-). Ppp. has a different text, bṛhaspatir abhṭcastyā 'muñcat ; its c, also, is peculiar : prati mṛtyum āhatām aṣvinā te. [W. usually renders abhṭcasti by 'imprecation.']

2. Walk (kram) ye (two) together ; leave not the body ; let thy breath and expiration be here allies ; live thou increasing a hundred autumns ; [be] Agni thy best over-ruling shepherd.

Ppp. makes the second halves of this verse and of 4 exchange places, and in place of c, d reads sainrabhya jīva ṣaradas suvarcā 'gnis etc. The change from 2d pers. in a to third in b is sudden beyond the usual liberal measure. [In the Berlin ed., an accent-sign is missing under the ṣa of ṣatām.]

3. Thy life-time that is set over at a distance — [thy] expiration, breath, let them come again — Agni hath taken that from the lap of perdition ; that I cause to enter again in thy self.

With a, b compare the similar half-verse xviii. 2. 26 a, b. The comm. explains ātihitam as from either of the roots hi or dhā. Ppp. begins differently : yat tā "yur ; in b it reads prāno yūva te paretah ; and it leaves off te at the end. Prāt. ii. 46 notes ā 'hār in c [render it rather 'brought hither or back' ?].

4. Let not breath leave this man ; let not expiration, leaving him low, go away ; I commit him to the seven sages (ṣṣi) ; let them carry him happily (svastī) unto old age.

Ppp. fills out the meter of a by reading mā tvā prāno hāsīd yas te pravīṣṭo, and begins its b thus: mā tvā 'pāno 'v-; in c and d (its 2 c, d) it has dadhvahe and nayantu. Part of the mss. accent apāno 'va- in b. SPP. reads, with the small majority of his mss., saptarṣṭbhya in c (against our saptarṣ-); our mss. vary, as usual. With a, b compare the nearly equivalent xvi. 4. 3 a, b. The Anukr. apparently scans the first line as 7+11, but the pada-mss. mark the division after apānas (as 11+7). Henry fills the meter conjecturally by adding mō vyāno.

5. Enter ye in, O breath and expiration, as (two) draft-oxen a stall; let this treasure of old age increase here unharmed.

The first half-verse is also iii. 11. 5 a, b. In c, perhaps rather 'let this man, a treasury of old age' (so Henry).

6. We impel hither thy breath; I impel away thy yāksma; let Agni here, desirable one, assign us life-time from all sides.

A corresponding verse is found in TS. i. 3. 14⁺ and AÇS. ii. 10. 4, but with great difference of text: thus, āyus te viçvāto dadhad ayām agnir vārenyah : pūnas te prānā ā 'yati (AÇS. ā yātu) pārā yāksmanḥ suvāmi te.

7. Up out of darkness have we, ascending the highest firmament, gone to the sun, god among the gods, highest light.

This verse (with a different second pāda, jyōtiṣ pāçyanta úttaram, which Ppp. also gives) is RV. i. 50. 10, and found also in a whole series of other texts: VS. xx. 21 et al. (with svāh for jyōtiṣ in b), TS. iv. 1. 7⁺ (with pāçyanto jyōtir in b), TB. ii. 4. 49* (as TS.), TA. vi. 3. 2 (as TS.), MS. ii. 12. 5 et al. (with jyōtiḥ p- in b), LÇS. ii. 12. 10 (with jyōtiḥ p. u. svāh p. u. for b), ChU. iii. 17. 7 (as MS., but jyōtiṣ p-).† It is used by Kāuç. (24. 32) in the āgrahāyanā ceremony, with the direction ity utkrāmati 'with this he steps upward'; and the schol. adds it (note to 55. 15) in the ceremony of initiation of a Vedic scholar, as one looks at the sun and asks his protection for the boy; and further (note to 58. 18), in the nirṇayana, or infant's first carrying out of doors. In Vāit. (24. 4) it accompanies the coming out of the bath in the agniṣṭoma. *[And ii. 6. 64: the d of ii. 4. 49 has uttaram.] †[Also K. xxxviii. 5.]

54 (56, 57. 1). Extolling verse and chant.

[vs. 1. Brahman.—ṛksāmādevatyam. ānuṣṭubham. — vs. 2, and 55. 1. Bhṛgu.—dvyrçam. āindram. ānuṣṭubham.]

Notwithstanding the close relationship of the two verses reckoned in our edition as constituting this hymn, and their discordance with the following verse (our 55), the Anukr. and some of the mss. (and hence the comm. and SPP's text) take our vs. 1 as a whole hymn, and our vs. 2 and hymn 55 as together one hymn; and this is probably to be accepted as the true traditional division.* Pāipp. has our two verses in xx., but in different places. Kāuç. (42. 9-10), in a rite for the gaining of wealth by teachers (adhyāpakānām arthārjanavighnaçamanārtham, comm., p. 402, end), gives as pratīka simply ṛcam sāmā, which would imply either or both verses; Dārila explains dvābhyām 'with two,' which might mean either hymns or verses. The comm. [p. 410¹¹] appears to regard vs. 2 (57. 1) as intended in rule 9, and both vs. 1 and vs. 2 (56 and 57) in rule 10. *[The decad-division comes between vss. 1 and 2: cf. p. 389.]

Translated: Muir, iii². 4; Henry, 21, 81; Griffith, i. 352.

1. To verse (śc), to chant (sāman) we sacrifice, by (both) which men perform rites (kārman); these bear rule at the seat (sādas); they hand (yam) the offering to the gods.

The verse is SV. i. 369, which, however, reads yacāmahe in a, kṛṇvāte in b, vī te for etē in c, and vakṣataḥ in d; GGS. iii. 2. 48, giving the pratīka, has yajāmahe. Ppp. also has kṛṇvate and vī te, but yachatām at the end. The comm. explains sādasī by etannāmake māṇḍape.

2 (57. 1). When (yād) I have asked verse [and] chant [respectively] for oblation [and] force, [and] sacrificial formula (yājus) for strength, let not therefore this Veda, asked, injure me, O lord of might (śācī-).

The construction of the six bare accusatives in the first line is made in accordance with the comm., and appears perhaps the most probable, though not beyond question. [In c, Ppp. has bhūtīr; but whether for eṣa or for tasmāt is not clear from R's note.]

55 (57. 2). To Indra (?).

[Bhṛgu. — āndram. virāt paroṣṇih.]

For the true position of this verse, see the introduction to the preceding hymn. It is not found in Pāipp. This verse (separate from its predecessor) is used in Kāuṣ. (50. 1-3) for welfare on setting out upon a road, etc. (so at least the comm. determines: the pratīka is doubtful, being identical with that of xii. 1. 47).

Translated: Henry, 21, 82; Griffith, i. 353.

1 (57. 2). The paths which are thine, downward from the sky, by which thou didst send the all — by those, O Vasu, do thou set us in what is pleasant.

The first two pādas nearly correspond to SV. i. 172 a, b: yē te pānthā adho divo yēbhīr vyācṣvam ātrayaḥ; with the wholly different close utā crosantu no bhūvaḥ. The comm. (as also the Anukr.) regards the verse as addressed to Indra; 'O Vasu' may be 'O good one.' The construction seems so decidedly to call for a locative in c that sumnayaḥ (p. sumnaoyā, by Prāt. iv. 30) is rendered as if it were for -yāu, from -yū; the comm. glosses it with sumne sukhe. The irregular verse (8+7:10=25) is but ill defined by the Anukr.

56 (58). Against poison of snakes and insects.

[Atharvan. — aṣṭarcam. mantroktavyṛcīkadevatākam: 2. vānaspatyā; 4. brāhmaṇaspatyā. ānuṣṭubham: 4. virātprastārapañkti.*]

The first four verses are found in Pāipp. xx.† It is used in Kāuṣ. (32. 5) in a remedial rite against venomous bites, with the direction "do as stated in the text"; and vs. 5 accompanies, with vi. 56 etc., an offering in the ceremony of entering on Vedic study (139. 8). * [The mss. have -patyam ute'dam: but the statement should refer rather to the verse than to the hymn.] † [Also vs. 8: see below.]

Translated: Ludwig, p. 502; Grill, 5, 183; Henry, 21, 82; Griffith, i. 353; Bloomfield, 29, 552.

1. From the cross-lined [snake], from the black snake, from the adder (pr̥dāku) [what is] gathered — that poison of the heron-jointed (?) one hath this plant made to disappear.

Ppp. reads aṅgaparvaṇas in c; the comm. says simply etannāmakād danṣakaviṣeṣāt. According to the comm., the plant intended is the madhuka (or -kā), which is the name of various trees and herbs.

2. This plant [is] sweet-(mādhu-)born, sweet-dripping, sweetish, sweet; it is the remedy of what is dissevered (vi-hru), also grinder-up of stinging insects.

The comm. reads in b madhuḥcyut. [Henry renders vhruta by 'la morsure.']

3. Whence bitten, whence sucked — thence do we call [it] out for thee; of the petty, hastily-biting (?) stinging insect the poison [is] sapless.

The great majority of SPP's authorities, with some of ours (Bp.O.) read in c triprad-, and so also the comm., who explains it as 'stinging with three organs, namely, mouth, tail, and feet'; the pada-division trprad- is against this (it would be trioṣrad-), and SPP. also accepts in his text trpra°d. The comm. further reads nir vayāmasi in b. He explains yātas in a as for yātra, 'in whatever part thou art bitten' etc.; and dhītām by pītaṁ sarpādīnā. Ppp. reads yataṣ prataṁ at end of a, nayāmasi at end of b, and trpradaṅcmano in c.

4. Thou who here, crooked, jointless, limbless, makest crooked twisted (vr̥jinā) faces — those [faces] mayest thou, O Brahmanaspati, bend together like a reed.

Sam-nam, lit. 'bend together,' virtually 'straighten out': i.e., apparently, 'reduce the distortion' (r̥jūkuru, comm.). Half SPP's authorities read nama. Ppp. has a different text in part: ayaṁ yo vikaro vikaṣo viparvā aha mukhāny eṣāṁ vr̥j-; and, in c, deva savitar (for brahmanaspatē).

5. Of the sapless ṣarkōṭa, crawling on, on the ground (nīcīna) — its poison, verily, I have taken away, likewise I have ground it up.

The comm. reads in c adiṣi (taking it from dā 'cut') instead of ādīsi (p. asya : ādīsi). He understands the ṣarkōṭa to be a kind of snake; Henry renders it "scorpion" [after Grill].

6. Not in thy (two) arms is there strength, not in thy head, nor in thy middle; then what petty thing bearest thou in that evil way in thy tail?

Or kim may be 'why?' (so the comm.) instead of 'what?' In this verse the comm. regards a [pucchena] danṣi vr̥cikaḥ as the thing addressed. Amnyā is an adverb of disgust or contempt; pāpāyā here apparently intensifies it.

7. Ants eat thee; pea-hens pick thee to pieces; verily may ye all say "the poison of the ṣarkōṭa is sapless."

All SPP's pada-mss. read pīp̥likā (not -kāḥ) in a. SPP. understands (one does not see why) the comm. to take bhalabravātha as one word; he (the comm.) glosses it with sādhu brūta; in a, b he makes the addressee a snake. [Pischel, Ved. Stud. i. 62, discusses bhala.]

8. Thou that strikest (pra-hṛ) with both, with both tail and mouth — in thy mouth is no poison; how then may there be in thy tail-receptacle?

Or, again, 'what may there' etc. The last two verses lack each a syllable, unheeded by the Anukr. The comm. this time once more declares a scorpion (vṛścika) intended; pucchadhī, according to him, designates a romavān avayavaḥ. [Ppp. has for c āsye cana te viṣaṁ.]

57 (59). Prayer to Sarasvatī etc.

[Vāmadeva. — dvyr̥cam. sārāsvatam. jāgātam.]

The two verses are both found in Pāipp. xx., but in different places. In Kāuṣ. (46.6) it is joined with v. 7. 5 in a rite for success when asking for something (the schol. and comm. specify both verses as employed).

Translated: Ludwig, p. 446; Henry, 22, 84; Griffith, i. 354.

1. What has gone wrong (vi-kṣubh) on the part of me speaking with expectation, what of [me] going about among people begging, what in myself of my body is torn apart — that may Sarasvatī fill up with ghee.

Ppp. arranges differently the matter in a, b: yad āṣasā me carato janānī anu yad yācamānasya vadato vicukṣubhe; and it has a different c: yan me tanvo rajasi pra-viṣtam; further, it reads pr̥ṇād in d. The authorities are divided between tād and yād at beginning of c; our Bp.W.I.O.s.m.T.K. and the comm. have tād; both editions give yād. Some of our mss. (Bp.E.D.O.p.m.) have sārāsvatī in d, and one (E.) has correspondingly pr̥ṇa. Both verses are irregular as jagatī.

2. Seven flow for the Marut-accompanied young one (çīçu); for the father the sons have made to understand righteous things; both indeed bear rule over this of both kinds; both strive, both prosper (puṣ) of it.

The verse is RV. x. 13. 5; but RV. reads ṛtām at end of b, and twice (in c, d) ubhū-yasya for ubhū asya. The translation follows the RV. reading in c. "Both," it is to be noticed (in c, d), is neuter (or fem.), not masculine. The sense is intended to be mystic, and is very obscure. SPP. reads in b, with all his authorities (at least, he reports nothing to the contrary), and with the comm., avivṛtann (the comm. glosses it with varīyanti anutiṣṭhanti); the same is given by our M.W.I. Ppp. has a text that is partly different and partly corrupt: sapta sravanti çīçavo marutvate pitā pitre-bhvo apy avīvat padvataḥ: ubhaye pīprati ubhaye 'sya rājahi ubhe ubhe ubhaye 'sya piṣyakaḥ.

58 (60). Invitation to Indra and Varuṇa.

[Kāurupāthi. — dvyr̥cam. mantroktadvatyam. jāgātam: 2. triṣṭubh.]

Found also in Pāipp. xx. The two verses are part of a RV. hymn (vi. 68. 10, 11). They are not used in Kāuṣ.; but Vāit. (25.2) introduces them with hymns 51 and 44: see under the latter.

Translated: Henry, 23, 85; Griffith, i. 355.

1. O Indra-and-Varuṇa, soma-drinkers, this pressed soma, intoxicating, drink ye, O ye of firm courses; let your chariot, the sacrifice (? adhvarā), for the god-feast, approach toward the stall (svāsara), to drink.

RV. reads -vratā at end of b, adhvarām (which is much better) in c, and yāti in d. Ppp. has 'dhvaram in c, with ayo for yuvō [p. yuvōh], and yāhi in d. The comm. explains adhvaras as hiṁsārahitas, qualifying rathas, and svāsaram as = yajamānasya gr̥ham.

2. O Indra-and-Varuṇa, of the bull soma, most rich in sweet, pour in, ye bulls; here is your beverage (āndhas), poured about; sitting on this barhīs, do ye revel.

RV. fills out the meter and sense of c by adding at the end asmé (the Anukr. ignores the deficiency), and Ppp. seems to read idaṁ vām asme pariśiktam andhā 'sad- etc.; it also has vṛšetā at end of b. The comm. explains ā vṛsethām by āçñitam, quoting ÇB. ii. 4. 2. 20 as authority.

59 (61). Against cursers.

[Bādarāyaṇi. — arināçanamantroktadevatākam. ānuṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. xx. (as part of our hymn vi. 37). This verse has the same pratīka as vi. 37. 3; but the comm. [on vi. 37, page 70, line 2], doubtless with reason, regards vi. 37. 3 as intended at Kāuç. 48. 37 [Bloomfield there gives both]; this hymn, then, is left without ritual use. [In fact, the comm. on this hymn, at p. 418, line 4, does cite yo naḥ çapāt for use in the same rite for which he cited it in his comment on vi. 37.]

Translated: Henry, 23, 86; Griffith, i. 355.

1. Whoever shall curse us not cursing, and whoever shall curse us cursing, like a tree smitten by a thunderbolt, let him dry up from the root.

The first half-verse is vi. 37. 3 a, b, and is found in other texts* as there referred to. Ppp. has the whole verse as our vi. 37. 3, and it combines in c, as often, vṛkṣāi 'va. The Anukr. seems to ratify the contraction vṛkṣe 'va. * [See also Kaṭha-hss. p. 74.]

The fifth anuvāka ends here; it has 8 hymns and 25 verses; the Anukr. quotation for the verses is pañcāi 'vo 'rdhvaṁ viṅçateḥ pañcame syuh, and, for the hymns, pañcamo 'ṣṭāu.

Here ends also the sixteenth prapāthaka.

60 (62). To the home: on returning or leaving.

[Brahman (vanyān gr̥hān vāstospāṇi aprārthayat). — saṭtarcam. vāstospātyam. ānuṣṭubham: 1. parānuṣṭup triṣṭubh.]

Found also in Pāipp. iii. (in the verse-order 1, 2, 6, 3, 4, 5). Used by Kāuç. several times: first, it* is muttered (24. 11) in front of the house by one who has been absent for some time, he taking fuel in his hands; second, it again accompanies the action of taking fuel, in a rite for the harmony of all inmates of the house (42. 8); third, in the ceremony of preparing duly the house-fire (72. 5), with the direction iti prapādayati, for making the persons concerned enter the house; fourth, in the pīrmedha (82. 15), with the same direction; fifth, in the pinḍapitryajña (89. 11), at the end, on entering the house; further, the schol. add it (note to 8. 23) to the vāstugaṇa, and (note to 19. 1) reckon it among the puṣṭīka mantras. As to the separate uses of vs. 7, see under that verse. * [For the first, fourth, and fifth uses, the comm., p. 422, lines 5, 18, prescribes only vss. 1-6.]

Translated: Ludwig, p. 434; Henry, 23, 86; Griffith, i. 356.

1. Bearing sustenance (ūrj), good-winning, very wise, with mild friendly eye, I come to the houses, well-willing, greeting; be quiet, be not afraid of me.

The first and third pādas are found in VS. iii. 41, as a second half-verse, and also in LÇS. iii. 3. 1, ĀpÇS. vi. 27. 5, ÇGS. iii. 7. For vasuvānis in a, all read vah sumānās; in c, their reading is grhān āt'mi (LÇS. emi, ĀpÇS. ā'gām) mānasā mōdamānaḥ (LÇS. dātvena). Ppp. has a very different text: grhān emi manasā mōdamāno 'rjān bibhrad vasumatī sumedhā' ghoreṇa cakṣuṣā mitriyena grhānān paçyaṇ paya ut tarāmi. [HGS. (i. 29. 1 a) and Āp. (vi. 27. 3) have a verse whose c is our a (but Āp. has vah suvanīḥ), and whose d is Ppp's a (but Āp. has āi'mi).]

2. These houses [are] kindly, rich in sustenance (ūrjas-), rich in milk, standing filled with what is pleasant; let them recognize us coming.

Ppp. reads in c vāmasya, and at the end jānatas.

3. On whom the absent one thinks (adhi-i), in whom is abundant well-willing — the houses we call on; let them recognize us coming.

The verse is VS. iii. 42, and also found in ĀpÇS. vi. 27. 3, ÇGS. iii. 7 (both these agreeing in text with VS.), LÇS. iii. 3. 1, HGS. i. 29. 1. VS. reads at the end jānatās for āyatās (like Ppp. in 2 d; but Ppp. in this verse has āyatas); LÇS. has eṣu for yeṣu in b, hūyāmahe in c, and jāna (misprint?) at the end; HGS. has eti for yeṣu, babhus for bahus in b, and jānatas at the end. [Cf. also MGS. i. 14. 5 and p. 155, under yeṣu a.] The comm. glosses ādhyeti with smarati.

4. Called on [are] they of much riches, companions, enjoying sweets together; be ye hungerless, thirstless; ye houses, be not afraid of us.

Ppp. has svādusamnaras at end of b, and its second half-verse is ariṣṭās sarvapūrṇā grhā nas santu sarvadā. Āp. and HGS. (as above) have our a, b, and a c-d like that of Ppp., save sarvapūruṣās for -pūrṇās (HGS. also bhūrisakhās in a).

5. Called on here [are] the kine, called on the goats and sheep; likewise [is] the sweet drink of food called on in our houses.

The majority of authorities read naḥ at the end (our E.O.R. have n); both editions give naḥ with the minority, and with the other texts (VS. iii. 43; Āp. vi. 27. 3; LÇS. iii. 3. 1; ÇGS. iii. 3. 7; HGS. i. 29. 1); the only variant is in LÇS., yo rasas for kīlālas in c.

6. Full of pleasantness, well-portioned, full of refreshing drink (trā), merry (hasāmudā), thirstless, hungerless be ye; O houses, be not afraid of us.

HGS. makes up a verse thus: a = our 2 b; b = our 6 b; c, anaçyā atrṣyā; d = our 6 d. Ppp. reads (in b, c) hasāmuda akṣudhyā 'trṣyā sta.

7. Be ye just here ; go not after ; adorn yourselves with all forms ; I shall come along with what is excellent ; become ye more abundant through me.

‘Go not after’: that is, ‘do not follow me as I go away’ (so the comm.). The verse is used in Kāuṣ. (23. 6) in the ceremony of house-building, on the breaking of previous silence ; and again (24. 16), in a rite for prosperity, by one setting out on a journey, contemplating the house and its occupants.

61 (63). For success of penance.

[Atharvan. — divyācam. āgneyam. ānuṣṭubham.]

In Pāipp. (xx.) is found only the second half * of vs. 1. The hymn is, according to Kāuṣ. (10. 22), to be pronounced at āgrahāyana full-moon, in a medhājanana rite (for acquisition of sacred knowledge) ; also (57. 23), in the ceremony of reception of a Vedic student, in the [agnihārya], next after hymn 33 (both verses are quoted, each by its pratīka) ; and the schol. (note to 53. 4) introduce both verses in the godāna ceremony. * [But R’s notes give a variant for 1 b, as below !]

Translated: Henry, 24, 87 ; Griffith, i. 357.

1. In that, O Agni, penance with penance, we perform additional (?) penance, may we be dear to what is heard, long-lived, very wise.

‘What is heard’ (śrutā), the inspired or revealed word. Nearly all the mss. (all ours save Bp. M.) read priyā instead of priyāḥ at beginning of c. Ppp. has for b upa prekṣāmahe * vayam. The comm. gives several diverse guesses at the sense of the obscure first half-verse. [The vs. recurs with variants at MGS. i. 1. 18.] * [R. suggests that prkṣāmahe (root prc) may be intended.]

2. O Agni, we perform penance, we perform additional penance — we, hearing things heard, long-lived, very wise.

It is questionable whether upa-tapya in both these verses has not a more pregnant meaning [as above: BR., simply, ‘Kasteiung leiden’]: Henry takes it as equivalent to simple tapya.

62 (64). To Agni: against enemies.

[Kaṣyapa Mārīca. — āgneyam. jagatī.]

Found also, almost without variant, in Pāipp. xx. Kāuṣ. (69. 7) uses it, with xii. 2, in the preparation of the house-fire, with scattering of holy water. In Vāit. (29. 9) it appears in the agnicayana.

Translated: Henry, 24, 88 ; Griffith, i. 357.

1. This Agni, lord of the good, household priest, conquered them of increased virility (?), as a chariot-warrior [conquers] footmen ; set down on earth in the navel, brightly shining, let him put under foot them who desire to fight [us].

Our pādas a, c, d are b, c, d of a verse that is found in VS. xv. 51, TS. iv. 7. 133, MS. ii. 12. 4 with the following first pāda: ā vācō mādhyam aruḥad bhuranyūs ; they also read cékītānas for vrdhāvṛṣṇas, and, at beginning of c, prṣṭhē prthivyaś, and TS.

has kr̥nute in ḍ. Ppp. has in c pr̥thivya(s), which is better. The new version of our text so decidedly calls for an accus. in a that the translation implies vr̥ddhāvṛṣṇyān, or else the understanding of -vr̥ṣṇas as accus. pl. of -ṣan, which is perhaps not impossible, though against usage in composition. The comm. reads -nyas, also patnīm in b (having to labor hard to make out a sense for the latter). The mss. vary between patnīm and patīn (our Bp.P.M.W.E.I. have the former). The first pāda is tristubh.

63 (65). To Agni: for aid.

[Kaṣyapa Mārīca. — jātavedasam. jagatī.]

Found also in Pāipp. xx. Kāuṣ. (69. 22) uses it in the preparation of the house-fire, with invocation.

Translated: Henry, 25, 88; Griffith, i. 357.

1. The fight-conquering, overpowering Agni do we call with songs from the highest station; may he pass us across all difficult things; may divine Agni stride (?) across arduous things.

The translation implies emendation of ks̥āmat to kr̥āmat in ḍ, as suggested by BR. (and adopted also by Henry), since the former seems to give no good sense, and both form and composition with ati are elsewhere unknown for root ks̥am: cf. also xii. 2. 28 c. But the parallel verse TA. x. 1. (68) has ks̥āmat [so both ed's, text and comm.] and Ppp. reads ks̥āmād devo 'dhi. Our comm. explains ati ks̥āmat as = atyarthān ks̥āmāni dagdhāni karotu! TA. further gives ugrām agnīm for agnīm ukthāis, rectifies the meter of b by reading huvema, leaves the combination devó āti in ḍ, and has duritā 'ty for -tāni. Our c is the same with RV. i. 99. 1 c. The verse has no jagatī character at all.

64 (66). Against evil influence of a black bird.

[Yama. — dvyr̥cam. mantroktadevatyam uta nāir̥rtam. 1. bhur̥ig anuṣṭubh; 2. nyañ-kusāriṇī br̥hatī.]

Found also, with very different text, in Pāipp. xx. Used by Kāuṣ. (46. 47), in a rite to avert the evil influence of a bird of ill omen.

Translated: Grill, 41, 186; Henry, 25, 88; Griffith, i. 357; Bloomfield, 167, 555.

1. What here the black bird, flying out upon [it], has made fall — let the waters protect me from all that difficulty, from distress.

Ppp. reads thus: yad asmān kṛṣṇaḥkunir nīṣatann ānaḥ: ā. m. t. enaso d. p. viṣvataḥ. The second half occurs also in LḶS. ii. 2. 11, which (like Ppp.) has viṣvataḥ at the end.* Prāt. iv. 77 appears to require as pada-reading in b abhi-nīṣpatan; but all the pada-mss. give -niṣp, and SPP. also adopts that in his pada-text: abhiniṣpatan would be a decidedly preferable reading. The second half-verse is found again as x. 5. 22 c, ḍ. The comm. says that the bird is a crow. * [And enaso in c.]

2. What here the black bird hath stroked down with thy mouth, O perdition — let the householder's fire release me from that sin.

Ppp. has instead: yadi vū 'mr̥ksata kṛṣṇaḥkunir mukhena nir̥rte tava: agniṣ tat sarvañ cundhatu harvyavāñ ghytasūdanaḥ, which is the same with ĀpḶS. ix. 17. 4 (only this begins yad apā 'mr̥ksac chakunir, rectifying the meter, and has -vād in ḍ).

The second half-verse is found without variant in AÇS. ii. 7. 11. The comm. takes amṛkṣat from root mṛç, as the translation does; cf. TS. iii. 2. 6², yāt kṛṣṇaṣakundh . . . avamṛçēt . . . yāc chvā 'vamṛçēt. [See the note of Henry or Griffith.] Such a verse (8 + 11 : 8 + 8) is elsewhere called by the Anukr. an uroḅṛhatī.

65 (67). To the plant apāmārgá: for cleansing.

[Çukra. — trcam. apāmārgaviruddāivatam. ānuṣṭubham.]

Not found in Pāipp. Used by Kāuç. (46. 49) in a ceremony of expiation, with a fire of apāmārgá; and vss. 1, 2 are reckoned (note to 39. 7) to the kṛtyā gaṇa. And the comm. regards vss. 2 and 3 as intended at 76. 1 in the nuptial ceremonies, instead of xiv. 2. 66 (both verses having the same pratīka); in this he is evidently wrong.

Translated: Grill, 38, 186; Henry, 25, 89; Griffith, i. 358; Bloomfield, 72, 556.

1. Since thou, O off-wiper (apāmārgá), hast grown with reverted fruit, mayest thou repel (yu) from me all curses very far from here.

[The verse closely resembles iv. 19. 7.] All the authorities (except one of SPP's) read apāmārga without accent at beginning of b; both texts make the necessary correction to āp-. The comm. understands the plant (Achyranthes aspera: see note to iv. 17. 6) to be used here as fuel.

2. What [is] ill-done, what pollution, or what we have practised evilly — by thee, O all-ways-facing off-wiper, we wipe that off (apa-mṛj).

Or (b) 'if we have gone about evilly.' All the authorities have tāyā instead of tvāyā at beginning of c, but both texts make the obviously necessary correction. The comm. reads tvayā.

3. If we have been together with one dark-toothed, ill-nailed, mutilated, by thee, O off-wiper, we wipe off all that.

The comm. reads vandena in b; and he has also āçima for āsima, which is not a bad emendation.

66 (68). For recovery of sacred knowledge (brāhmaṇa).

[Brahman. — brāhmaṇam. triṣṭubh.]

Found also in Pāipp. xx. Reckoned in Kāuç. (9. 2) to bṛhachāntigaṇa, with some of the hymns next following.

Translated: Henry, 25, 89; Griffith, i. 359.

1. If it was in the atmosphere, if in the wind, if in the trees, or if in the bushes — what the cattle heard uttered — let that brāhmaṇa come again to us.

Ppp. reads: yady antarikṣam yadi vā rajānsi tata vṛkṣeṣu bhayanalapeṣu : ajas-ravan paç- etc. Nearly all the authorities give āsraṇam in c; our D. has āçr-, and, according to SPP., three of his pada-mss.; he therefore gives in his text āçraṇam, which is also the comm's reading; and that is implied in the translation. The comm. connects the hymn with the prescriptions as to the time of study or refraining from study of the sacred texts (referring to ĀpÇS. xv. 21. 8), and regards it as a spell for recovering what has been lost by being learned under wrong circumstances—in cloudy weather, in sight of green barley, within hearing of cattle, etc.

67 (69). For recovery of sense, etc.

[Brahman.—ātmadevatyam. puraḥparaṣṇig br̥hatī.]

Not found in Pāipp. Employed by Kāuç. for several purposes: first (45. 17, 18), after the end of the vaçāçamana, in a rite of due acceptance of sacrificial gifts, after any ceremony performed; second, in the godāna ceremony (54. 2), with vi. 53. 2; third, in the Vedic student ceremonies (57. 8), when supplying the place of a staff lost or destroyed; fourth, in the savayajñas (66. 2), with v. 10. 8 and vi. 53, with the direction iti pratimantrayate; it is also reckoned (9. 2), with 66 etc., to the br̥hachānti gaṇa; and the schol. add it (note to 6. 2) to hymn 106 in a rite of expiation for anything spilt or forgotten in the parvan sacrifices, and further, in the upanayana, in the reception of girdle and staff (notes to 56. 1 and 3). In Vāit. (18. 4) it appears in the agnis̥toma, following the distribution of the fires.

Translated: Henry, 26, 90; Griffith, i. 359.

1. Again let sense (indriyā) come to me, again soul, property, and br̥hmaṇa (sacred knowledge); let the fires of the sacred hearth again officiate just here in their respective stations.

The verse occurs in ÇÇS. viii. 10. 2, with mām for mā in a, and, in c, d, dhiṣṇyāso yathāsthānam dhārayantām ihāi'va; and the pratīka pūnar mām āitu indriyam is found in TA. i. 32. 1, but might rather be intended to quote the parallel but quite different verse found at AGS. iii. 6. 8: pūnar mām āitu indriyam pūnar āyuh pūnar bhagah: pūnar draviṇam āitu mām pūnar br̥hmaṇam āitu mām; which MB. (i. 6. 33) also has, with mā in c and d. [Cf. TA. i. 30. 1; also MGS. i. 3. 1, and p. 152.] AGS. adds a second verse, of which the first half corresponds with our c, d: ime ye dhiṣṇyāso agnayo yathāsthānam iha kalpatām [cf. MGS. i. 3. 1]. The Anukr. seems to scan a and c as 7 syllables each.

68 (70, 71). Praise and prayer to Sarasvatī.

[1-2. Çamīti.—divyrcam. sārsvatam. 1. anuṣṭubh; 2. triṣṭubh. —3. Çamīti.—sārsvatam. gāyatrī.]

None of the verses are found in Pāipp. Here again the Anukr., the comm., and some mss. differ in division from our first mss., and make our third verse a separate hymn.* In Kāuç. (81. 39) the first two verses (= hymn 70) come in with other Sarasvatī verses in the pitṛmedha; the third verse (= hymn 71) not with them, in spite of its kindred character, but in both the br̥hat and laghuçānti gaṇas (9. 2, 4). Vāit. introduces the hymn (doubtless the two verses) twice (8. 2, 13), once with hymn 40, once with hymn 9 and other verses, in praise of Sarasvatī. * [So also SPP's text. The decad-division cuts the hymn between vss. 2 and 3: cf. p. 389.]

Translated: Henry, 26, 90; Griffith, i. 359.

1. O Sarasvatī, in thy courses, in thy heavenly domains, O goddess, enjoy thou the offered oblation; grant us progeny, O goddess.

The second half-verse is the same with 20. 2 c, d, and nearly so with 46. 1 c, d.

2. This [iṣ] thine oblation, rich in ghee, O Sarasvatī; this the oblation of the Fathers that is to be consumed (?); these thy most wealful utterances; by them may we be rich in sweet.

The translation implies the emendation of āsyām in c to āḥyām; the comm. makes it from the root as 'throw,' and = kṣepañīyam. Perhaps (Roth) ājyam is the true reading; Henry understands yāt as pple: "going to the mouth of the Fathers." The first pāda is jagatī.

3 (71. 1). Be thou propitious, most wealful to us, very gracious, O Sarasvatī; let us not be separated from sight of thee.

The verse occurs in TA. iv. 42. 1 and AA. i. 1. 1, with the variant, for c, mā te vyōma samdṛṣṭi; and LṢ. v. 3. 2 has the same, but with samdaças (misprint for -dṛṣṭi?) at the end. In i. 1. 3, TA. has another version, with the same ending, but with bhava in a expanded to bhavantu divyā āpa śadhayaḥ. [Cf. also Katha-hss., p. 115; MGS. i. 11. 18 and p. 156 under sakhā.]

69 (72). Prayer for good fortune.

[Çāntāti. — sukhadevatākam. pathyāpāṅkti.]

Found also in Pāipp. xx. Included, like the preceding hymn, in the two çānti gaṇas (Kāuṣ. 9. 2, 4), and by the schol. (note to 9. 7) in yet a third.

Translated: Henry, 26, 91; Griffith, i. 360.

1. Weal for us let the wind blow; weal for us let the sun burn; be the days weal for us; [as] weal let the night be applied; weal for us let the dawn shine forth.

The whole verse occurs in TA. iv. 42. 1, with ḥavatām mātarīṣvā for vātu in a, and rātrīḥ in d. MS., in iv. 9. 27, has only four pādas, with bhī* added before vātu in a. VS. has the same amount, our a, b being xxxvi. 10 a, b (with ḥavatām for vātu in a), and our c, d being xxxvi. 11 a (with rātrīḥ instead of our rātrī). All have alike in d the strange expression prāti dhīyatām. The Anukr. ignores the deficiency of two syllables in a. [Ppp. has me for nas all four times; also bhīvāte* for vātu, and tapati for -tu.]

70 (73). Against an enemy's sacrifice.

[Atharvan. — pañcarcam. mantrōktadevatyam uta çyenadevatākam. trāiṣṭubham : 2. atijagatīgarbhā jagatī; 3-5. anuṣṭubh (3. puraḥkakummatī).]

The first two verses are found in Pāipp. xix. Used by Kāuṣ. (48. 27), with vi. 54, in a charm to spoil an enemy's sacred rites.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 374; Grill, 46, 187; Henry, 26, 91; Griffith, i. 360; Bloomfield, 90, 557.

1. Whatsoever he yonder offers with mind, and what with voice, with sacrifices, with oblation, with sacred formula (yājus), that let perdition, in concord with death, smite, his offering, before it comes true.

That is, before its objects are realized (comm. satyabhūtāt karmaphalāt pūrvam). This verse and the next are found also in TB. ii. 4. 2¹⁻², which reads here, at end of b, yájuṣā havtrbhiḥ (Ppp. has the same); in c, mṛtyúr nṛṛtyā samvidānāh, and, for d, purā diṣṭād āhutiṛ asya hantu; Ppp. has, for d, purā diṣṭā rājyo hantu asya [intending diṣṭād ājyam?].

2. The sorcerers, perdition, also the demon — let them smite his truth with untruth; let the gods, sent by Indra, disturb (math) his sacrificial butter; let not that meet with success which he yonder offers.

TB. (as above) omits the meter-disturbing devās in c, and reads, in d, samṛddhim (error for sám ardhī?), and, at the end, karóti. The comm. understands at the beginning yātudhānā (as fem. sing.). The verse (11+11:13+11) is in no proper sense jagatī.

3. Let the two speedy over-kings, like two falcons flying together, smite the sacrificial butter of the foeman, whosoever shows malice against us.

The comm. understands in a, 'two messengers of death, thus styled'; the meaning is obscure. Almost all the authorities (save our R. P. T., and this doubtless by accident) have at the end -aghāyānti; the comm., however, reads -yāti, as do, by emendation, both the edited texts.

4. Turned away [are] both thine arms; I fasten up thy mouth; with the fury of divine Agni — therewith have I smitten thine oblation.

The comm. understands bāhū in a also as object of nahyāmi, and understands the arms as fastened behind (pr̥ṣṭhabhāgasambaddhāu). [TB. (ii. 4. 2²) has our a, b (with dpa for the āpi of our b) as the c, d of a vs. which is immediately followed by our next vs.]

5. I fasten back thine arms; I fasten up thy mouth; with the fury of terrible Agni — therewith have I smitten thine oblation.

SPP. has at the beginning āpi, his authorities being equally divided between āpi and dpa. The majority of ours (only D. noted to the contrary) have dpa, which is decidedly to be preferred, as corresponding also to 4 a, and as less repetitious. [TB. (ii. 4. 2³) has our vs., with dpa again (see vs. 4) in b, devāsya brāhmaṇā for ghorāsya manyūnā in c, and sārvam for tēna and kr̥tām for havis in d.]

71 (74). To Agni: for protection.

[Atharvan. — āgneyam. ānuṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. xix. Used in Kāuṣ. (2. 10), in the parvan sacrifices, to accompany the carrying of fire thrice about the offering. In Vāit., it occurs in the agnisṭoma (21. 15), and also in the agnicayana (28. 8), in the same circling with fire.

Translated: Henry, 27, 92; Griffith, i. 361.

1. Thee, the devout [vīpra], O Agni, powerful one, would we fain put about us [as] a stronghold, [thee] of daring color, day by day, slayer of the destructive one.

The verse is RV. x. 87. 22, which has at the end the plural (-vatām); further found in VS. (xi. 26) and MS. (ii. 7. 2), both of which agree with RV., and in TS. (i. 5. 64 et al.), which has for ḍ bhettāram bhaṅgurāvataḥ. Emendation in b to vāpram 'rampart' seems called for; moreover, dr̥ṣādv- in c would be acceptable [see Roth, ZDMG. xlviii. 108]. Ppp. has at the end -vataḥ, and sahasva in b.* The verse is also found in our text as viii. 3. 22. [Winternitz, Hochzeitsrituell, p. 57, cites it from Bāudh. i. 6.] [W. interlines a mark of doubt as to his version of bhaṅg- and gives Henry's trompeur in the margin.] * [Roth's Collation says simply "71 ebd. citiert." That means 'Found in Pāipp. xix., cited' [from its previous occurrence in xvi., where, according to R's Collation for viii. 3. 22, the variants are sahasva and bhaṅgurāvātām]. R. in his Notes says expressly that Ppp. too "has vāpram for the correct vāpram."]]

72 (75, 76). With an oblation to Indra.

[1, 2. Atharvan.—dyvyrcam. āindram. 1. anuṣṭubh; 2. triṣṭubh.—3. Atharvan.—āindram. trāiṣṭubham.]

Here again, following our leading ms. and the sense, we combined into one what the Anukr. etc. treat as two hymns, our vs. 3, which begins a new decad,* being reckoned as a separate hymn. No one of the three verses is found in Pāipp.; but they are a RV. hymn (x. 179). Kāuṣ. (2. 40) uses the hymn in the parvan sacrifices, for Indra (the schol. adds iti tisras, as if the three verses were to be regarded as one hymn; there is no quotation of vs. 3 as a separate hymn). In Vāit., vs. 1 (or vss. 1, 2?) is repeated (14. 3) by the hotar in summoning the adhvaryu to milk the cow in the agniṣṭoma ceremony; and again in the same (21. 18), vs. 3 (= hymn 76) accompanies the offering of the dadhigharmahoma. * [Cf. p. 389.]

Translated: Henry, 27, 92; Griffith, i. 361.

1. Stand ye up; look down at Indra's seasonable portion; if cooked, do ye offer [it]: if uncooked, do ye wait (mad).

RV. makes the construction in the second half-verse more distinct by reading ṣrātās and āṣrātās, nominatives; the comm. regards our ṣrātām (= ṣakvam) and āṣrātām as made neuter to qualify a havis understood; he explains mamāttana [cf. BR. v. 471] as = ṣacata or taptām kuruta (referring to the expression madantīs applied to water), or, alternatively, as indram siutābhīr madayata; those addressed are the priests (he r̥vijāḥ).

2. The oblation [is] cooked; hither, O Indra, please come forward; the sun hath gone to the mid-point of his way; [thy] companions wait upon (pari-ās) thee with treasures (nidhī), as heads of families on a chieftain (vrājāpatī) as he goes about.

RV. reads in b vimadhyam, for which our text is only a corruption, and accents [cf. Gram. § 1267 a] vrājāpatīm in ḍ. The comm. explains vimadhyam as vikalam madhyam, ṣadānam madhyabhāgam; he calls the offering referred to the dadhigharma (as Vāit.).

3 (76. 1). Cooked I think [it] in the udder, cooked in the fire; well cooked I think [it], that newer rite (? ṛtā); of the curds of the midday libation drink thou, O thunderbolt-bearing Indra, much-doing, enjoying [it].

RV. reads sūṣrātām in b, and purukṛd (vocative) in ḍ. [For a, cf. Aufrecht's *Rigveda*² i. p. xvii, preface.]

73 (77). With a heated offering to the Aṅvins.

[Atharvan. — ekādaścarcam. gharmasūktam. āṅvinam uta pratyṛcammantroktadāivatam. trāṣṭubham: 1, 4, 6. jagatī; 2. pathyābyhatī.]

Found also, except vss. 7-9, in Pāipp. xx. (the first six verses in the order 2, 1, 4, 5, 6, 3); the first six verses, further, in AṂS. iv. 7 and ÇṂS. v. 10 (in both, in the order 2, 1, 6, 5, 4, 3); the last five are RV. verses etc.; see under the several verses. The hymn in general does not appear in Kāuṅ. (the sacrifice which it accompanies not falling within its sphere); but the last verse (so the comm.; it might be ix. 10. 20) is applied (24. 17) in settling the kine in their pasture by one who is going away from home; and again (92. 15), in the madhuparka ceremony, when the presented cow is released instead of being sacrificed. Vāit. uses several of the verses, all in the agnisṭoma ceremony: vss. 3 and 4 (14. 5) with the offering of the gharma; vs. 7 (14. 4) in summoning the gharma cow; vs. 11 (14. 9) before the concluding homa.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 429 (vss. 1-6); Henry, 28, 93; Griffith, i. 361.

1. Kindled, O ye two bulls, is Agni, the charioteer of heaven; heated is the gharmā; honey is milked for your food (īṣ); for we singers (kārū), of many houses, call on you, O Aṅvins, in joint revelings.

The translation implies in b the accent duhyāte, which is found in no ms.; the comm. makes the same construction. Ppp. reads aṅvinā for vṛṣaṇā in a; and also, with both AṂS. and ÇṂS., phurutamāsas in c; doubtless our word is a corruption of this [Roth, ZDMG. xlvi. 107]. But for rathī, in a, AṂS. has ratis and ÇṂS. rayis, plain corruptions. The gharmā is either the hot drink into which fresh milk is poured, or the heated vessel containing it. The comm. interprets the verses according to their order and application in AṂS. He explains the gharma as the heated sacrificial butter in the mahāvira dish.

2. Kindled is Agni, O ye Aṅvins; heated is your gharmā; come! now, ye bulls, the milch-kine are milked here, ye wondrous ones (dasrā); the pious ones are reveling.

AṂS. and ÇṂS. both read gāvas for nūnam in c, and (with Ppp.) kāravas for vedhasas at the end. The first half-verse occurs also in VS. (as xx. 55 a, b), which omits vām in b, and reads virāt sūtāh for ā gatam.

3. The bright (śuci) sacrifice to the gods accompanied with "hail," the Aṅvins' bowl that is for the gods to drink of—this all the immortals, enjoying, lick respectively by the Gandharva's mouth.

The two Sūtras and Ppp. agree in reading gharmas for yajñas in a; the former have also īm for u in c. The comm. declares this verse to be used after the gharma offering; the "bowl" is the one called upayamana; the "Gandharva" is either the sun or the fire.

4. The offered ghee, the milk, which is in the ruddy [kine], that is your portion here, ye Aṅvins; come; ye sweet ones, maintainers of the council (vidātha), lords of the good, drink ye the heated gharmā in the shining space of the sky.

In b, ÇÇS. has su for sa; at the end, AÇS. has soyam madhu (for rocane divah). There ought to be more than one accent on the series of vocatives in c, to guide us to their right combination, which is doubtful. The comm. takes mādhvī as mādhvidyā-veditārāu.

5. Let the heated gharmā, its own invoker (hótar), attain to you; let your offerer (adhvaryú) move forward, rich in milk; of the milked sweet, O Açvins, of the offspring(?), eat (vī) ye, drink ye, of the milk of the ruddy [cow].

The two Sūtras read nakṣati in a, and carati prayasvān at end of b; the comm. also has pray-, and explains it as prīnanakārīpayoyuktaḥ; pray- is doubtless the more genuine reading. The obscure tanāyās in c (omitted in Ludwig's translation)* is made by the comm. an adjective qualifying usriyāyās, and signifying payodadhyājyarūpaha-viḥpradānena yajñam vistārayantyāḥ. Ppp. has in a sma hotā; the comm. takes svāhotā as possessive, which suits the accent better. Verses 4 and 5 the comm. declares to have the value of yājyā verses in the ceremony. * [In fact Ludwig does render tanāyās (accent!) by "this," and tānā and tānāya correspondingly. Tānāya is the Ppp. reading here for tanāyās.]

6. Run up with milk, O cow-milker, quickly; pour in the milk of the ruddy [cow] in the gharmā; the desirable Savitar hath irradiated (vi-khyā) the firmament; after the forerunning of the dawn he shines forth (vi-rāj).

SPP's text has godhuk (voc.) in a, but nearly half his authorities have godhuk, and so also nearly all ours (all those noted save Bp.), for which reason our text gives it; godhuk is doubtless the true reading, and it is followed in the translation. ÇÇS. reads after it (perhaps by a misprint?) oṣum; AÇS. (also probably by a misprint?) gives payasā goṣam (omitting dhug o). ÇÇS. has damūnās for varenyas in c, and its ḍ is anu dyāvāprthivī supranīte, while AÇS. and Ppp. have nearly the same: 'nu dyāvāprthivī supranītiḥ. This seems most likely to be the true ending of the verse; in our text has been somehow substituted a half-verse which is RV. v. 81. 2 c, ḍ, and found also in several other texts: VS. xii. 3, TS. iv. 1. 104, MS. ii. 7. 8; all of them accent ānu as an independent word, as our text doubtless ought to do (p. anuoprayānam); one of SPP's authorities, and the comm., do so. The comm. does not recognize the adverb oṣām, but renders it by taptam [gharmam, 'the heated gharma-vessel']; he explains vi akhyat by prakāṣayati. Two, if not three, of the pādas are trīṣṭubh.

7. I call upon that easy-milking milch-cow; a skilful-handed milker also shall milk her; may the impeller (savitār) impel us the best impulse; the hot drink is kindled upon — that may he kindly proclaim.

This and the following verse are also two successive verses in RV. (i. 164. 26, 27; they are repeated below as ix. 10. 4, 5, where the whole RV. hymn is given). RV. has at the end the better reading vocam. The comm. declares the verse to be used in the calling up of the cow that furnishes the gharma drink, that she may be milked.

8. Lowing (hiñ-kr), mistress of good things, seeking her calf with her mind, hath she come in; let this inviolable one (aghnīā) yield (duh) milk for the Açvins; let her increase unto great good-fortune.

RV. (as above) reads abhyāgāt (p. abht : ā : agāt) at end of b. The RV. pāda-text divides hiñokṛṇvatī at the beginning, and SPP. gives the same reading; but our pada-mss. (with the doubtful exception of D.) read here hiñkṛ-, without division; at ix. 10. 5 they agree with RV. The verse accompanies, says the comm., the coming up of the cow for milking.

9. As enjoyable (jūṣṭa) household guest in our home (duroṇá), do thou come, knowing, unto this our sacrifice; smiting away, O Agni, all assaulters (abhiyúj), do thou bring in the enjoyments of them that play the foe.

This verse and the following one are found in RV. (v. 4. 5; 28. 3), and also occur together in TB. ii. 4. 1^r and MS. iv. 11. 1. RV.MS. read at end of c vihátýā, p. viśhátýā; there is no other variant. The comm. paraphrases abhiyujas in c by abhiyoktrīḥ parasenāḥ. [For d, cf. iv. 22. 7 d.]

10. O Agni, be bold unto great good-fortune; let thy brightnesses (dyumná) be highest; put together a well-ordered house-headship; trample on the greatnesses of them that play the foe.

The verse is (as noted above) RV. v. 28. 3, and found also in TB. and MS., and further in VS. xxxiii. 12 and ĀpÇS. iii. 15. 5 — everywhere without variant. Our comm. explains ṣardha as = ārdrahrdayo bhava. The Prät. iv. 64, 83 prescribes jāḥpatyām as pada-reading in c, but all the pada-mss. read jāḥpatyām, divided, and SPP. accordingly gives that form in his pada-text. The RV. pada reads jāḥpatyām and jāḥpātīḥ, but, strangely, jāḥpatim (the two latter occurring only once each). [Winternitz, Hochzeitsrituell, p. 57, cites the verse.]

11. Mayest thou [verily] be well-portioned, feeding in excellent meadows; so also may we be well-portioned; eat thou grass, O inviolable one, at all times; drink clear water, moving hither.

The verse is RV. i. 164. 40 (hence repeated below, as ix. 10. 20), found also in ĀpÇS. ix. 5. 4, and KÇS. xxv. 1. 19; all these read átho for ádḥū in b, and KÇS. has bhagavati in a (if it be not a misprint).

The sixth anuvāka, with 14 (or 16) hymns and 42 verses, finishes here. The quoted Anukr. says of the verses dvir ekaviñçatīḥ ṣaṣṭhaḥ, and, of the hymns, ṣaṣṭhaḥ caturdaça.

74 (78). Against apacīts: against jealousy: to Agni.

[Atharvāṅgiras. — caturṛcam. mantróktadevatyam uta jātavedasam. ānuṣṭubham.]

This hymn and the one following are not found in Pāipp. There is apparently no real connection between the three parts of the hymn. Used by Kāuç. (32. 8: according to Keç. and the comm., vss. 1 and 2, which alone are applicable) in a healing ceremony, with the aid of various appliances, "used as directed in the text." It is added: "with the fourth verse one puts down upon and pierces [them]" (32. 9), but the fourth verse of this hymn suggests no such use, and Keç. declares 76. 2 to be intended.* Verse 3 appears (36. 25), with hymn 45 etc., in a rite against jealousy; and vs. 4 is made (1. 34) an alternate to v. 3 when entering on a vow; in Vāit. (1. 13) it follows v. 3 in a like use. The comm. here [p. 457^r] quotes apacitām [vii. 74] as read at Kāuç. 31. 16, and understands this hymn instead of vi. 83 [apacitas] to be there meant; but under vi. 83 he quotes apacitas, and understands accordingly!

*[If we may trust Keçava (p. 333²⁷⁻³²), the verses are indeed four in number, and are vii. 74. 1 and 2, vii. 76. 1, and then vii. 76. 2. With each of the first three the performer pricks the boil with a colored arrow; and with the fourth verse (caturthyā: namely vii. 76. 2) he pricks it with a fourth arrow. — But why should Kāuç. in 32. 9 say caturthyā? are we to assume a gap in the text of Kāuç.? — Cf. Bloomfield's hypothesis, SBE. xlii. 558, n. 2, that vii. 74. 1-2 and 76. 1-2 together formed a single hymn for Keçava. They are so associated by the comm. at p. 457¹, as Whitney observes in the preceding paragraph.]

Translated: Bloomfield, JAOS. xiii. p. ccxviii = PAOS. Oct. 1887, and AJP. xi. 324 (vss. 1 and 2); Henry, 29, 95; Griffith, i. 363; Bloomfield, SBE. xlii. 18, 557.

1. Of the red apactī's black is the mother, so have we heard; by the root of the divine anchoret I pierce them all.

The comm. makes at great length several discordant attempts to explain who the divine anchoret (mūni) is. His explanation of apactī, fuller than elsewhere given, may be reported: doṣavaçād apāk cīyamānā galād ārabhya adhasāt kakṣādīsamdhīsthāneṣu prasrītā gaṇdamālāḥ : yadvā 'pacinvanti puruṣasya vīryam ity apacitāḥ. [At vi. 83. 3, the apactī is "daughter of the black one."]

2. I pierce the first of them; I pierce also the midmost; now the hinder one of them I cut into like a tuft (stūkā).

The comm. says, at the end, yatho "rṇāstukā 'nāyāsena chidyate tathā.

It is strange that the two following verses, which concern different matters, are combined with the above and with one another. But the hymn is not divided by any one of the authorities.

3. With the spell (vācas) of Tvasṭar have I confounded thy jealousy; also the fury that is thine, O master (pāti), that do we appease for thee.

Some of the mss. (including our W.) combine manyās te in c.

4. Do thou, O lord of vows, adorned by the vow, shine here always, well-willing; thee being so kindled, O Jātavedas, may we all, rich in progeny, wait upon (upa-sad).

Nearly all the mss. (our Bp.E.p.m. are exceptions, with four of SPP's authorities) read tvām in a, and so do the mss. of the Kāuçika [save Ch. Bū.] and Vāitāna Sūtras in the pratīka; both printed texts give tvām [with the comm.]. His full exposition of his uncertainty as to the meaning of jātavedas may be quoted: jātānām bhūtānām vedītar jātāir vidyamāna jñāyamāna vā jātaprajña jātadhana vā. The definition of the verse as trīṣṭubh is lacking in the Anukr.

75 (79). Praise and prayer to the kine.

[Uparibabhraṇa. — dvyrcam. āghnyam. trīṣṭubham : 2. 3-av. bhurik pathyāpañkti.]

Like the preceding hymn, not found in Pāipp. Not used in Kāuç. (if iv. 21. 7 is intended in 19. 14). But the comm. says here that the ritual application in the rite for prosperity of kine has already been stated, referring, probably, to his exposition under iv. 21. 7, where he spoke of two verses, although the hymn had none after 7; possibly the two verses of this hymn are what he had in mind.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 469; Henry, 30, 96; Griffith, i. 364.

1. Rich in progeny, shining in good pasture, drinking clear waters at a good watering-place — let not the thief master you, nor the evil-plotter; let Rudra's weapon avoid you.

Repeated here from iv. 21. 7; for the parallel passages with their variants etc., see the note to that verse.

2. Track-knowing are ye, staying (ramati), united, all-named; come unto me, ye divine ones, with the gods; to this stall, this seat; sprinkle us over with ghee.

Ramati is called by the comm. a gonāman; to "united" he adds "with their calves, or with other kine." [The Anukr. seems to scan 8 + 7 : 10 : 8 + 8.]

76 (80, 81). Against apacits and jāyānya: etc.

[1-4. Atharvan. — caturṛcam. apaciddbhāṣajyadevatyam. ānuṣṭubham: 1. virāj; 2. paraṣūh.
5, 6. Atharvan. — divyṛcam. jāyānyāindrādāivatam. trāṣṭubham: 5. bhurig anuṣṭubh.]

Once more (and for the last time) we followed our first mss. and the anuvāka-endings in reckoning as one hymn what other mss., the Anukr., the comm., etc., and hence SPP., regard as two. The verses (except 2) are found scattered in different parts of Pāipp.: 1 in i.; 3-5 (as two verses) in xix.; 6 in xx. This, and not either our division or SPP's, is in accordance with the sense of the verses: 1-2 concern the apacits, 3-5 the jāyānya; and 6 is wholly independent. The hymn (that is, doubtless, the first two verses [cf. the comm., p. 456²¹]) is used [with vi. 83 (apacitas) or else vii. 74 (apacitām) — see introd. to hymn 74] by Kāuṣ. (31. 16) in a remedial ceremony against apacits; and Keç. adds vs. 1 also to [the citation apacitām (which he takes to mean vii. 74. 1 and 2) made in Kāuṣ.] 32. 8; for the use, according to Keç., of vs. 2, see under hymn 74. The third verse (the comm. says, vss. 3-5) appears also by itself in 32. 11, in a rite against rājayakṣma, with a lute-string amulet. Of vss. 5-6 (= hymn 81) there is no appearance in Kāuṣ.; but verse 6 is used by Vāit. (16. 14) at the noon pressure of Soma.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 500; Zimmer, p. 377 (vss. 3-5); Bloomfield, JAOS. xiii. p. ccxvii (vss. 1-2), p. ccxv (vss. 3-5) = PAOS. Oct. 1887, or AJP. xi. 324, 320; Henry, 30, 97; Griffith, i. 364; Bloomfield, SBE. xlii. 17, 559.

1. More deciduous (pl.) than the deciduous one, more non-existent than the non-existent ones, more sapless than the séhu, more dissolving than salt.

Said, of course, of the apacits, which are distinctly mentioned in the next verse. The translation implies the emendation of the second susrásas to susrástarás, suggested by Bloomfield, as helping both sense and meter; Henry alters instead to asisrasas. The á at the beginning seems merely to strengthen the ablative force of the first susrásas; or we might conjecture it to be an interjection of contempt or disgust. The comm. understands ásusrasas as one word, the á having an intensive force; he paraphrases by pūyā-dīsravanaçillās, as if sru were the root of the word. He reads çehos in c, and explains it as vīprakīrnāvayavo 'tyantam nihsāras tūlādirūpak padārthak, which seems a mere guess; Henry substitutes arasāt. The prefixion of á to séhos would rectify the meter. Ppp. gives no help in explaining the verse; it reads, for a, b, nāmann asari svayam srasann asatībhyo vasattarā.

2. The apacits that are on the neck, likewise those that are along the sides, the apacits that are on the perineum (? vijāman), self-deciduous.

In translating the obscure vijāman, the comm. is followed; he says viççeṣa jāyate 'patyam atre 'ti vijāmā guhyapradeçaḥ; Ludwig renders it "knöchel." Upapakṣyās he paraphrases with upapakṣe pakṣasamīḥa upakakṣe bhavāḥ.

3. He that crushes up the breast-bone (? kākasās), [that] descends to the sole (?) — the whole jāyānya have I cast out, also whatever one is set in the top.

That is, apparently, has become seated in the head (or the prominence at the base of the neck behind?); Ppp. reads kaçcit kakudhi. The obscure talidyam is here translated according to Bloomfield's suggestion in AJP. xi. 329 or JAOS. xv. p. xlvii. The comm. explains the word as follows: talid ity antikanāma: antike bhavam talidyam: ... asthisamīpagatam mānsam: a worthless guess; Ppp. reads talābhyām,* which might mean 'palms' or 'soles.' For nir āstam in c was conjectured nir-astam in the AV. Index — not successfully, on account of the gender of jāyānya (m.). Ludwig proposes nir āstham, and Bloomfield [l.c.] does the same; this seems acceptable (whatever the real origin of āstham), and the translation follows it. [For the "root asth," see note to xiii. i. 5 below.] The comm., however, reads nir hās (hār, from the root hr: = nir haratu) tām, which SPP. accepts, thinking that the comm. "has doubtless preserved the genuine reading" (!), and he even admits it into his text. The comm. further reads prasṛuāti in a, and cit for ca in d. He calls the jāyānya a rājayakṣma, and also regards it as identical with the jāyēnya of TS., and quotes the TS. passage (ii. 3. 5²) that explains the origin of the latter: yāj jāyābhyō 'vindat; he states it thus: sa ca jāyāsambandhena prāpnoti, or nirantarajāyāsambhogena jāyamānam; this might be understood as pointing to a venereal disease; R. conjectures gout. * [In fact, R's Collation gives talābhyam: W. seems to take it as a slip for -bhyām. — Further, this is followed by upa-, not ava-.]

4. Having wings, the jāyānya flies; it enters into a man; this is the remedy of both, of the ākṣita and of the sūkṣata.

Ppp. has in b yā viçati (i.e. ya ā v-) pāu-, and lacks c, d. The meaning of the words ākṣita and sūkṣata is very doubtful and much disputed. They seem most likely to be two kinds of jāyānya, as the intrusion of any other [malady] here would be very harsh. Yet it is also much to be questioned whether the two half-verses belong together. Their discordance of form is strange: one would expect an antithesis of ākṣita and sūkṣita, or else of ākṣata and sūkṣata. In fact, the comm. reads sūkṣita, and explains the two as meaning respectively çarīre cirakālāvasthānarahitasya and cirakālam avasthitasya, or, alternatively, as ahiṅsakasya çarīram açoṣayataḥ and çarīragatasarvadhātūn suṣṭhu niḥçeṣam çoṣayataḥ. Ludwig's translation accords with the former of these two explanations. Zimmer and Bloomfield, on the other hand, would emend to ākṣatasya, Bloomfield quoting for ākṣata from both the Kāuçika and its commentary and from the later Hindu medicine; his rendering, however, 'not caused by cutting' and 'sharply cut,' is unacceptable, since kṣan does not mean distinctively 'cut,' but more nearly 'bruise.' There is no variation of reading in the mss. as regards the two words; and it seems extremely unlikely that, if they once agreed, they should have become thus dissimilated.

5 (8i. 1). We know, indeed, O jāyānya, thine origin (jāna), whence, O jāyānya, thou art born [jāyase]; how shouldst thou smite there, in whose house we perform oblation?

Ppp. has only c, d, as second half-verse to our 4 a, b, and reads tvaṃ hanyād yatra kuryān maham haviḥ. [We had our d at vi. 5. 3 a. — The new decad begins here: cf. p. 389.]

6 (81. 2). Daringly drink the soma in the mug, O Indra, being a Vritra-slayer, O hero, in the contest for good things; at the midday libation pour [it] down; a dépôt of wealth, assign wealth to us.

The verse is RV. vi. 47. 6; RV. has rayisthānas in d. Ppp. offers no variant.

77 (82). To the Maruts.

[Aṅgiras. — tycam. mantruktamaruddevatākam. 1. 3-p. gāyatrī; 2. trīṣṭubh; 3. jagatī.]

The second and third verses are found also in Pāipp. xx. Used by Kāuṣ. (48. 38), next after hymn 31 etc., with laying on of fuel from an upright dry tree, in a witchcraft rite. In Vāit. (9. 2) it appears in the cāturmāsya sacrifice, with noon offering to the Maruts.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 373; Henry, 31, 99; Griffith, i. 366.

1. Ye much-heating (sāntapanā) ones, here [is] oblation; enjoy that, ye Maruts; with favor to us, O foe-destroyers (?riçādas).

This verse and the next following are two successive RV. verses (in inverted order, vii. 59. 9, 8), and are also found together (in the AV. order) in MS. (iv. 10. 5), and, with our verse 3 added, in TS. (iv. 3. 13³⁻⁴). The other texts all have yusmāka for asmāka in c. The warming winds after the cold season are probably intended by the sāntapana Maruts.

2. Whatever very inimical mortal, O Maruts, desires to smite us, O good ones, across [our] intents, let that man put on the fetters of hate; smite ye him with the hottest heat.

Tirāç cittāni, in b, is an obscure and doubtful expression; Henry renders "without our suspecting it." The RV. text (with which MS. agrees throughout) omits mārtas in a, inserting abhi after marutas; in c, it has sā mucīṣṭa for muñcatām sā, and, in d, hānmanā for tāpasā. TS. makes marutas and vasavas exchange places in a and b, reads in b satyāni (for cittāni) and jīghāṃsāt, and has in c pāçam prati sā mucīṣṭa. Ppp. has, for c, d, tasmin tān pāçān prati muñcata yūyam tapīṣṭhena tapasām açvinā çam. SPP. reads, in c, d, sās tāp-, with half his authorities; we have noted no such reading in ours, and it appears to be unparalleled elsewhere. The verse (11 + 12 : 10 + 11 = 44) is irregular, but sums up as trīṣṭubh.

3. The Maruts, of the year, well-singing, wide-dwelling, troop-attended, humane (mānuṣa) — let them release from us the fetters of sin, they the much-heating, jovial, reveling.

TS., in b, accents uruḥśyās and reads mānuseṣu (which is better); in c it combines tē smāt and reads dñhasas (for énasas); in d it has madirās (for matsarās). Ppp. gives, in c, pāçān prati muñcantu sarvān. The comm. explains saṃvatsarinās by varṣevarṣe prādurbhaviṣyantah. This "jagatī" is half trīṣṭubh.

78 (83). To Agni: in favor of some one.

[Atharvan.—dvyr̥cam. āgneyam. 1. paroṣṇih; 2. triṣṭubh.]

Found also in Pāipp. xx. Used in Kāuṣ. (32. 3) with 29 and other hymns of this book, in a remedial rite: see under 29. Also vs. 2 by itself (2. 41), with x. 6. 35, as substitute for xii. 1. 19–21, with laying on of fuel, in the parvan sacrifices; and in the ājyatantra (137. 30), with other verses, with strewing (of barhis); its second pāda is further found as first part of a verse given in full in 3. 1. In Vāit. (4. 11) it accompanies, with other verses, the untying of the sacrificer's wife in the parvan sacrifice.

Translated: Henry, 31, 99; Griffith, i. 366.

1. I loosen off thy strap, off thy harness, off thy halter; be thou just here, unfailing, O Agni.

TS. (i. 6. 4³) and MS. (i. 4. 1) have a verse corresponding to the first part of this and the second half of the next following verse: the first half reads thus: vt te muñcāmi raṣanā (MS. -nām) vt raṣm̐n vt yōktrā yāni paricārtanāni (MS. yōktrāni par-). [Cf. MGS. i. 11. 23, and p. 155.] Ppp. combines ajasre 'dhi in c. The comm. gives a double explanation, regarding the verse as addressed either to Agni or to one vexed with disease; and he adds at the end that the sacrificer's wife may also be regarded as addressed. The commentary to TS. views the sticks of paridhi as intended by the harness etc.

2. Thee, O Agni, maintaining dominions for this man, I harness (yuj) with the incantation of the gods; shine thou unto us here excellent property; mayest thou proclaim this man as oblation-giver among the deities.

The second half-verse is given quite differently by TS. and MS. (as above): thus, dhattād asmāsu (MS. asmābhyam) drāvīṇam yāc ca (MS. drāvīṇe 'hā) bhadrām prāno (MS. mā) brūtād bhāgadhān (MS. -dām) devātāsu. Ppp. makes a and b change places. The pada-text analyzes in c drāvīṇā : ihā, but probably the original value was -vinam, and this the translation assumes.

79 (84). To Amāvāsyā (night or goddess of new moon).

[Atharvan.—catur̥cam. amāvāsyādevatākam. triṣṭubham: 1. jagatī.]

The first verse is found in Pāipp. xx., the second and third in Pāipp. i. Used by Kāuṣ. (5. 6) in the parvan sacrifice on the day of new moon; also (59. 19) with hymns 17 etc. (see under 17), for various benefits. It has in Vāit. (1. 16) an office similar to that prescribed by Kāuṣ. 5. 6.

Translated: Henry, 32, 100; Griffith, i. 367.

1. What portion (bhāgadhēya) the gods made for thee, O Amāvāsyā, dwelling together with might, therewith fill our offering, O thou of all choice things; assign to us, O fortunate one, wealth rich in heroes.

The verse occurs in TS. (iii. 5. 1¹), with ādadhus for ākṛṇvan in a, and [rectifying the meter] sā for tēnā in c. Ppp. combines devā 'kṛṇvan in a, and has sañvadantas in b, and sa imam y- at beginning of c. Sam-vas plays upon the equivalent amā-vas, which gives name to the day and its goddess. The verse has no jagatī character. [We had the second half-verse above at 20. 4 c, d.]

2. I myself am Amāvāsyā; on me, in me dwell these well-doers; in me came together all, of both classes, the gods and the sādhyās, with Indra as chief (jyēṣṭha).

The Petersburg Lexicon * suggests the plausible emendation of mām ā to amā at beginning of b: if it is not rather ā mā vasanti intended as a play on amāvāsyā. For the sādhyas, see note to vii. 5. 1. The Anukr. overlooks the irregularity of a. * [vi. 832.]

3. The night hath come, assembler of good things, causing sustenance, prosperity, [and] good to enter in; we would worship Amāvāsyā with oblation; yielding (dih) sustenance with milk is she come to us.

TS. has (iii. 5. 1¹) a verse quite accordant with this in general meaning, but too different in detail to be called the same; it reads nivēcanī saṅgāmanī vāsūnām vīṣvā rūpāni vāsūny āveḍyanti: sahasraposāni subhāgā vārānā sā na ā gan vārcasā saṅvidānā. Ppp. reads, in b, viṣvam for ūrjam; and, in d, vasānā (for duhānā) and nā "ganī.

The comm., and some of the mss., end the hymn here, carrying over our vs. 4 to the following hymn; our division agrees with the sense, the Anukr., and other of the mss.; and SPP. accepts the same. [The decad ends here: cf. p. 389.]

4. O Amāvāsyā, no other than thou, encompassing, gave birth to all these forms; what desiring we make libation to thee, be that ours; may we be lords of wealth.

This is, with alteration of the first word only, a repetition in advance of 80. 3. For the parallels etc., see under that verse.

80 (85). To the night or goddess of full moon (pāurnamāsī).

[Atharvan. — caturṛcam. pāurnamāsam: 3. prājāpatyā. trāiṣṭubham: 2. anuṣṭubh.]

The first and fourth verses are found also in Pāipp. i. The hymn is used in the same manner as the preceding one (Kāuṣ. 5. 5; Vāit. 1. 16), but on full-moon day; it also appears (Kāuṣ. 59. 19) with hymn 17 etc. For the separate use of vs. 3, see under that verse.

Translated: Henry, 32, 101; Griffith, i. 367. See also Zimmer, p. 365 (vss. 1-2).

1. Full behind, also full in front, up from the middle hath she of the full moon been victorious; in her, dwelling together with the gods, with greatness, may we revel together with food (īṣ) on the back of the firmament.

The first half-verse is met with in TS. (iii. 5. 1¹) and TB. (iii. 1. 1¹²), without variant; the second half-verse reads thus: tīsyām devā dāhi saṁvāsanta uttamē nāka ihā mādayantām. Ppp., in b, puts pāurnamāsī before madhyatas [and ends b with uj jigāya].

2. We sacrifice to the vigorous bull of the full moon; let him give us unexhausted unailing wealth.

The first half-verse occurs in TB. (iii. 7. 5¹³) and ĀpṚS. (ii. 20. 5), both of which read ṛṣabhām and pāurnamāsam; their second half-verse reads thus: sā no dohatām suvīryam rāyāspōsam sahasrīnam. The comm. reads dadhātu in c.

3. O Prajāpati, no other than thou, encompassing, gave birth to all these forms; what desiring we make libation to thee, be that ours; may we be lords of wealth.

[Cf. vii. 79. 4.] This verse is RV. x. 121. 10, and is repeated in various other collections: VS. (x. 20 et al.), TS. (i. 8. 14² et al.), TB. (ii. 8. 1² et al.), MS. (ii. 6. 12; iv. 14. 1), MB. (ii. 5. 9). [Cf. MP. ii. 22. 19.] RV. reads, for b, utvā jātāni pāri tā babhūva; and TS.TB.MB. agree with it throughout; VS. differs by giving, with our text, rūpāni; MS. is more independent, having in the second occurrence naht tvāt tāni (for nā tvāt etāni) in a, and in both occurrences yāsmāi kām (for yātkāmās te) in c. The verse is variously employed by the sūtras: in Kāuṣ., in the parvan sacrifice (5. 9), by addition to iv. 39; and by special mention, beside vs. 1, with h. 17 etc. (59. 19: see under 17); while it is added by a schol. to the ceremony of acceptance (56. 2, note) of a staff by the Vedic student;—in Vāit. (1. 3) as an introductory formula prescribed by Yuvan Kāuṣika [cf. note to Kāuṣ. 1. 6]; also (2. 12), in the parvan sacrifice, with an offering of fat to Prajāpati; and it is to be had in mind (7. 12) as accompanying an offering in the agnihotra. The comm. quotes it further from the Nakṣatra Kalpa (18), as used in a mahācānti called mārudgānti.

4. She of the full moon was the first worshipful one in the depths (?) of days, of nights. They who, O worshipful one, gratify (ardhāya-) thee with offerings, those well-doers are entered into thy firmament.

The translation implies in d the reading te, given in our edition on the authority of part of our mss. (Bp.P.M.T.K.*) and as decidedly better suiting the requirements of the sense [than tē] (a combination of antē tē is hardly possible); SPP. reads tē, with the great majority of his authorities. Ppp. has uta çarvareṣu for atiç- in b, and, in d, nākaṁ sukṛtaṣ paretākḥ. The comm. gives ardayanti in c. He explains atiçarvarāṇi to mean either rātrim atītya vartamāneṣu somādihaviṣṣu or else trītyasavanavyāpiṣu haviṣṣu: thus akin in meaning with atirātra; and this is perhaps right. * [I find no note of P.M.]

81 (86). To the sun and moon.

[Atharvan.—ṣaḍṛcam. sāvitṛisūryacāndramasam. trāiṣṭubham: 3. anuṣṭubh; 4, 5. āstāra-pāṅkti (5. samrāj).]

[Partly prose—4 and 5.] Wanting in Pāipp. The verses of this hymn are by Bloomfield regarded as intended by the name dārçibhis, and so directed by Kāuṣ. (24. 18) to be used [to accompany the worship of the darça (see vs. 3 and note)]; Keç. also says that some mutter the hymn at new moon on first sight of the moon, for the sake of prosperity; and this seems to be the true value of the hymn; but the comm. does not acknowledge it. The comm. regards vss. 1 and 2 as intended to be quoted at Kāuṣ. 75. 6, in the nuptial ceremonies, with xiv. 1. 1, but the verse intended must be rather xiv. 1. 23, as marked in the edition. The comm. further quotes a use of vss. 3–6 from the Nakṣatra Kalpa (15), in a planet-sacrifice, with an offering to Mercury (budha).

Translated: Henry, 33, 101; Griffith, i. 368.—Cf. Hillebrandt, Ved. Mythol., i. 302–3.

1. These two move on one after the other by magic (māyā); two playing young ones (çīçu), they go about the sea; the one looks abroad upon all beings; thou, the other, disposing the seasons art born new.

Said of the sun and moon. This and the next following verse are RV. x. 85. 18, 19, and are also found in MS. iv. 12. 2; this one, further, in TB. ii. 7. 12² (repeated in ii. 8. 9³): all read adhvarām (for ṛṣavām) at end of b; they have, for c, viṣvāny anyō bhīrvanā bhī- (but MS. vi-) cāṣṭe, and, at end of d, jāyate (the comm. also has jāyate) pūnaḥ; and TB. combines ṛtūn an-. Repeated below as xiv. 1. 23 and (a, b, c) xiii. 2. 11 [on the latter verse Henry has an elaborate comment, Les Hymnes Rohitas, p. 38-40]. [As for the thrice occurring haplography, viṣvānyō for viṣvānyanyō, cf. iv. 5. 5, note.] Too irregular (11 + 12 : 9 + 12 = 44) to be passed simply as trīṣṭubh. [The other texts suggest the true rectification of the meter of c.]

2. Ever new art thou, being born; sign (ketū) of the days, thou goest to the apex (āgra) of the dawns; thou disposest their share to the gods as thou comest; thou stretchest out, O moon, a long life-time.

In RV. and MS. (as above), and TS. ii. 4. 14², the four verbs are in the third person, and we have candrāmās nom. in d. Further, TS. reads āgre at end of b, and tirati in d. The application of b to the moon is obscure. The absence of any allusion to the asterisms is not without significance. [Over "stretchest" W. interlines "extendest."] [Vss. 1-2 are repeated below as xiv. 1. 23-24.]

3. O stem of soma, lord of fighters! not-deficient verily art thou by name; make me, O first-sight (darṣā), not-deficient, both by progeny and by riches.

The darṣā is the slender crescent of the new moon when first visible, and here compared with one of the stems or sprouts from which the soma is pressed, and which swell up when wetted, as the crescent grows. The identification of the moon and soma underlies the comparison. The comm. first understands the planet Mercury (called, among other names, somaṣputra 'son of the moon') to be addressed, and explains the verse on that basis, and then gives a second full explanation on the supposition that the address is to the moon itself.

4. First sight art thou, worth seeing art thou; complete at point art thou, complete at end; complete at point, complete at end may I be, by kine, by horses, by progeny, by cattle, by houses, by riches.

[Prose.] Some mss. (including our O.) combine darṣatō 'si. The pada-division sāmsantah is prescribed by Prāt. iv. 38.

5. He who hateth us, whom we hate—with his breath do thou fill thyself up; may we fill ourselves up with kine, with horses, with progeny, with cattle, with houses, with riches.

[Prose.] The mss. read in c pyāṣiṣmahī, which SPP. accordingly adopts in his text, although it is an obvious and palpable misreading for pyāsiṣmahī (which the comm. gives); pyāsiṣmahī is found in many texts (VS.TA.ÇÇS.ÇGS.HGS.), but also pyāyiṣmahī (as iṣ-aorist from the secondary root-form pyāy) in ĀpÇS. (iii. 4. 6). It is by an error that our printed text has pyāyis- [instead of pyāsiṣ-: see Gram. § 914 b]. These two prose "verses" are very ill described by the Anukr.

6. The stem which the gods fill up, which, unexhausted, they feed upon unexhausted—therewith let Indra, Varuṇa, Brihaspati, shepherds of existence, fill us up.

The verse is found also in TS. (ii. 4. 14¹), MS. (iv. 9. 27 ; 12. 2), ÇÇS. (v. 8. 4) : in a, all read ādityās, thus rectifying the meter, and MS. has yāthā before it, and also at beginning of b, with a correlative evā at beginning of c ; in b, all end with ākṣitayaḥ pībanti, and MS.ÇÇS. have ākṣitim before it ; in c, TS.ÇÇS. give no rājā for asmān Indrah. The late idea of the subsistence of the gods upon the moon is to be seen in the verse. The Anukr. seems to balance deficient a with redundant c.

With this hymn ends the seventh anuvāka, of 8 (or 9) hymns and 31 verses ; the quoted Anukr. says of the verses triṅśad ekā ca sapṭamaḥ ; and, of the hymns, saptamāv [is this to be joined with the colophon of the fifth anuvāka, p. 428 ? thus, pañcamasaptamāv] aṣṭāu.

82 (87). Praise and prayer to Agni.

[Çūnaka (samṣatkāmah). — śadycam. āgneyam. trāiṣṭubham : 2. kakummatī bṛhatī ; 3. jagatī.]

Of this hymn, verses 2 and 6 are found in Pāipp. xx., and verse 3 in iii. It is used in Kāuṣ. (59. 15), with ii. 6, in a rite for success ; and also (59. 19), with hymn 17 etc. : see under 17 ; further, vss. 2-6, in the upanayana ceremony (57. 21), accompany the laying of five pieces of fuel in renewing a lost fire* ; and the comm. quotes it from the Nakṣatra Kalpa (17-19) in various mahācānti ceremonies. Vāit. (29. 19) employs it (or vs. 1?) in the agnicayana, after laying on fuel with vii. 15 ; further (5. 16) vs. 2, in the agnyādheya ceremony, while blowing the fire with one's breath ; and yet again (2. 7) vs. 6, in the parvan sacrifice, while ladling out the sacrificial butter. * [Keç., p. 359²³ ; comm., p. 484 end.]

Translated: Ludwig, p. 428 ; Henry, 34, 102 ; Griffith, i. 369.

1. Sing (arc) ye good praise unto the contest for kine ; put ye in us excellent possessions ; lead ye this sacrifice of ours unto the gods ; let streams of ghee purify themselves sweetly.

The verse is found also as RV. iv. 58. 10 and VS. xvii. 98. Both read in a arṣata (which is better), and at the end parvante. The comm. understands devatās in c. He regards the waters or the kine as addressed, and explains a in several different ways.

2. I seize in me Agni at first, together with dominion, splendor, strength ; in me I put progeny, in me lifetime, — hail ! — in me Agni.

The first and third pādas are read in TS. v. 7. 9¹, and the first three in MS. i. 6. 1, with sundry variants : both put grhṇāmi in a before āgre, and MS. rectifies the meter by inserting ahām between the two ; for b, MS. has sahā prajāyā vārcasā dhānena (TS. entirely different, rāyas pōṣāya etc.) ; in c, MS. puts ḥṣatrām in place of prajām, and, for āyus, MS. gives rāyas and TS. vārcas (d is different in each text). Ppp. reads at the end agnih. The meter (8 + 11 : 11 + 6 = 36) is imperfectly described by the Anukr.

3. Just here, O Agni, do thou maintain wealth ; let not the down-putters, with previous intents, put thee down ; by dominion, O Agni, be it of easy control for thee ; let thine attendant increase, not laid low.

The verse occurs also in VS. (xxvii. 4), TS. (iv. 1. 7²), MS. (ii. 12. 5) ; all have the better reading ḥṣatrām at beginning of c ; and, for the difficult and probably erroneous pūrvacittās of b, VS. TS. read pūrvacittas, and MS. pūrvacittāu (the editor noting that K. and Kap. S. read with VS.). The word, in whatever form, probably refers to other worshipers who get the start of us and outdo our Agni by their own; the comm. says: asmattaḥ pūrvam tvadviśayamanaskāḥ or tvadviśayayāgakarānamanasaḥ. All the pada-mss. read at the end āniḥ-śrītaḥ, and this is required by Prāt. ii. 86; but SPP. alters to āni-śrītaḥ — which, to be sure, better suits the sense. The RV. pada-text also has (viii. 33. 9) āniḥ-śrītaḥ; TS. (and by inference MS., as the editor reports nothing), āniśrītaḥ, unchanged. The verse in Ppp. stands in the middle of our hymn ii. 6 (between vss. 3 and 4); [and it is important to remember that its position in the Yajus texts, VS.TS.MS., is similar: see note to ii. 6. 3]. Ppp. reads dabhan for ni kran in b, and kṣatram [and sūyamam] in c. This jagatī has one triṣṭubh pāda.

4. Agni hath looked after the apex of the dawns, after the days, [he] first, Jātavedas, a sun, after the dawns, after the rays, after heaven-and-earth he entered.

Anu 'after' seems here to have a distributive force: Agni is ever present to meet the first dawn etc. with his brightness; or it is the opposite of prati in vs. 5: anu 'from behind,' as prati 'from in front.' The verse is found as VS. xi. 17, and in TS. iv. i. 22, TB. I. 2. 123, and MS. i. 8. 9. All these have in c ānu sūryasya puruṣtrā ca raçmīn (an easier and better reading), and, at the end, VS.MS. give ā tatānha, and TS.TB. ā tatāna. This verse and the next are repeated as xviii. 1. 27, 28.

5. Agni hath looked forth to meet the apex of the dawns, to meet the days, [he] first, Jātavedas, and to meet the rays of the sun in many places; to meet heaven-and-earth he stretched out.

A variation of the preceding verse, perhaps suggested by RV. iv. 13. 1 a, which is identical with its first pāda; its second half agrees much more closely with the version of the other texts than does 4 c, d. The comm. is still more faithful to that version, by giving the (preferable) reading puruṣtrā in c.

6. Ghee for thee, Agni, in the heavenly station; with ghee Manu kindleth thee today; let the goddesses thy kin (nap̄tī) bring thee ghee; ghee to thee let the kine milk, O Agni.

Ppp. reads duhrate in d. The comm. gives nap̄tryas in c, and declares it to mean the waters; it is more probably the daughters of the sky in general.

83 (88). For release from Varuṇa's fetters.

[Çunahçepa. — caturrcam. vāruṇam. ānuṣṭubham: 2. pathyāpāñkti; 3, 4. triṣṭubh (4. br̄hatīgarbhā).]

The first two verses are found in Pāipp. xx. The hymn (the whole, says the comm.) is, according to Kāuç. (32. 14), to be repeated in a remedial rite for dropsy, in a hut amid flowing waters; also (127. 4) all the verses in a sacrifice to Varuṇa, after iv. 16. 3, in case of the portent of obscuration of the seven ṝṣis. Vāit. (10. 22) has vs. 1* at the end of the paçubandha, when the victim's heart has been set upon a spit; and vs. 3 in the agnicayana (28. 17), on loosening the cords by which the fire-dish has been carried. The comm. quotes the hymn from Nakṣatra Kalpa (14), with an offering to Varuṇa in a mahāçānti for portents. * [According to Garbe, the whole hymn.]

Translated: Henry, 35, 104; Griffith, i. 370; Bloomfield, 12, 562.

1. In the waters, O king Varuṇa, is built for thee a golden house; thence let the king of firm courses release all bonds (dāman).

All the authorities have mīthās at end of b, and SPP. admits this in his text, although it is a palpable misreading for mitās [cf. Roth, ZDMG. xlvi. 107], which is given by Ppp. and by AÇS. in the corresponding verse (iii. 6. 24); our text has by emendation mītās; the comm. makes for mīthās the forced interpretation ananyasādharāṇaḥ pareṣām anabhigamyo vā. Our text also makes the clearly called-for emendation of dhāmāni to dāmāni [Roth, l.c., p. 108] in ḍ (the translation is made accordingly), and of *dhāmno-dhāmna*s in 2 a to dā-; yet not only all AV. authorities, but also Ppp. and AÇS., are opposed to it in both verses and a whole series of texts in vs. 2; it is not without sufficient reason, then, that SPP. retains dhā-, although we can only wonder at the wide-spread corruption of the text. The comm. explains dhāmāni muñcatu by sthānāny asmadīyāni tyajatu. The AÇS. version of the verse reads: dvīpe rājño varuṇasya grho mito hiraṇyayaḥ: sa no dhrtavratō rājā dhāmno-dhāmna iha muñcatu. Ppp. has its b like AÇS.; in ḍ it reads dhāmā vi no suce.

2. From every bond, O king, here, O Varuṇa, release us; if "O waters, inviolable ones!" if "O Varuṇa!" we have said, from that, O Varuṇa, release us.

The whole verse is found in many other texts: VS. vi. 22 b, c; TS. i. 3. 11^r; MS. i. 2. 18; AÇS. iii. 6. 24; ÇÇS. viii. 12. 11; LÇS. v. 4. 6; TB. ii. 6. 6² and VS. xx. 18 have pādas c-e; [and MGS., ii. 1. 11, has the pratīka: cf. p. 151, under dhāmno]. All, including also Ppp., as noted above, begin with dhāmno-dhāmnaḥ (so SPP.: the comm. explains by sarvasmād rogasthānāt; our text emends to dā-: [see note to vs. 1]); VS.ÇÇS.LÇS. have (in a-b) rājāns tāto; all, as also Ppp., have no muñca in both b and e; VS. unaccountably gives āhūs instead of āpas in c (but it has āpas in xx. 18); TS.MS.TB. accent āghnyās and, with LÇS., omit the iti after it; for yād ūcimā in ḍ, VS.TS.TB.AÇS.ÇÇS.LÇS. read çāpāmahe (printed ṣayā-, LÇS.), while MS. has çāpāmahāi. The accent āghnyās (as nom.) and the reading varuṇa (voc.) are inconsistent, and āghnyās of TS. etc. seems to be preferable; but all the AV. pāda-mss. (except a single one of SPP's) read varuṇaḥ, though all the samhitā-mss. without exception combine varuṇé 'ti. Our translation implies āghnyās (or aghnyās); the comm. says he āghnyāḥ. Pādas c, ḍ are repeated below as xix. 44. 9 a, b; they relate doubtless to adjurations made in support of what is false. [The Anukr. seems to sanction our pronouncing the āmredīta as six syllables.]

3. Loosen up the uppermost fetter from us, O Varuṇa, [loosen] down the lowest, off the midmost; then may we, O Āditya, in thy sphere (vratā), be guiltless unto Aditi.

The verse is RV. i. 24. 15, and found also as VS. xii. 12, and in TS. (i. 5. 11³ et al.), MS. (i. 2. 18 et al.), SV. i. 589 (Nāigeya appendix i. 4), and MB. (i. 7. 10). All agree in reading āihā at beginning of c instead of our ādihā (the comm. has atha), and SV. and MB. further put vayām after vraté in c, while SV. accents anāgāsas in ḍ. [Knauer, Index to MGS., p. 148, cites many occurrences of the verse.] [Repeated below as xviii. 4. 69.]

4. Release from us, O Varuṇa, all fetters, that are uppermost, lowest, that are Varuṇa's; remove from us evil-dreaming [and] difficulty; then may we go to the world of the well-done.

The last three pādas are identical with those of vi. 121. 1, above. Our text ought to read in c, as there, nīh sv-. [Pronounce, as there, niṣ svvāsmāt.] There is no brhatī element in the verse.

84 (89). To Agni: and to Indra.

[Bhr̥gu. — t̥cam. āindram: 1. āgneyī. trāiṣṭubham: 1. jagatī.]

Only the first verse is found in Pāipp., in iii. For the use by Kāuç. and Vāit. (not of vs. 1), see under vss. 2, 3.

Translated: Henry, 35, 105; Griffith, i. 371.

1. O Agni, shine thou here unassailable, Jātavedas, immortal, wide-ruling (virāḍi), bearing dominion; releasing all diseases by humane, propitious [aids], do thou protect round about today our household.

The comm. supplies ūtibhis in c, d, and the translation given follows his lead. The verse is found also as VS. xxvii. 7, and in TS. iv. 1. 7³ and MS. ii. 12. 5; MS. makes c easy by reading mānuṣānām (it also has vi for ulvās), and VS.TS. by reading mānuṣīr bhivāḥ. MS.VS. give after this çivebhis; and VS.TS. have āçās for āmivās in c. All read āniṣṭṛtas (Ppp. aniṣṭatas) for āmartyas in a, and vṛdhé for gāyam at the end (Ppp. gayāih). Ppp. has, in c, d, manuṣyebhyaḥ çivebhir. All the texts thus relieve in various ways the difficulties and awkwardnesses of the second half-verse.

We should expect here a separation of the hymn into two, as the remaining verses are addressed to Indra; but no ms. or other authority so divides.

2. O Indra, unto dominion, [unto] pleasant force, wast thou born, thou bull of men (carṣanī); thou didst push away the inimical people; thou didst make wide room for the gods.

This verse and the next are two verses, connected (but in inverted order), in RV. (x. 180. 3, 2), found also in TS. i. 6. 124. Both these read in c amitrayāntam, their only variant in this verse. In d carṣanīnām is most naturally made dependent on vṛṣabha, although, as such, it ought to be without accent; Henry takes it as governed by the nouns in a. The verse (doubtless with vs. 3) is used by Kāuç. (17. 31) in the consecration of a king [Weber, Rājasūya, p. 142], and (140. 17) in the īndramahotsava, with libation to Indra, and service of Brahmans. [RV.TS. accent carṣanīnām and all of W's and SPP's mss. seem to do so. Perhaps, in spite of W's version, we have no right to correct our text by deleting the accent; but the accent can hardly be aught else than an old blunder.]

3. Like a fearful wild beast, wandering, mountain-staying, from distant distance may he come hither; sharpening, O Indra, [thy] missile (?sṛkā), [thy] keen rim, smite away the foes, push away the scorners.

The first half-verse was read above as 26. 2 b, c. The verse is RV. x. 180. 2, TS. i. 6. 124 (as noted under the preceding verse), and also SV. ii. 1223, MS. iv. 12. 3, VS. xviii. 71; their only variant is at jagamyāt in b, for which TS. has jagāmā, and all the rest jaganthā. The comm. takes sṛkā as an adj., = saraṇaçīla. [Cf. Knauer's Index to MGS., p. 153.] [For use by Kāuç., see under vs. 2.] Vāit. (29. 5) uses the verse in the agnicayana, in the covering of the first layers.

85 (90). Invocation of Tārksya.

[Atharvan (svastyayanakāmah).—tārksyadevatyam. trāiṣṭubham.]

Not found in Pāipp. Used in Kāuṣ. (59. 14), with 86 and 117, in a rite for general welfare, and by the schol. (note to 137. 4) in making a sacrificial hearth for the ājya-tantra; it is also reckoned (note to 25. 36) to the svastyayana gaṇa.

Translated: Henry, 36, 105; Griffith, i. 372.— See also Foy, KZ. xxxiv. 268.

1. We would fain call hither for [our] welfare Tārksya, this vigorous, god-quickenened, powerful overcomer of chariots, [Tārksya,] having uninjured tires, fight-conquering, swift.

The verse is RV. x. 178. 1 and SV. i. 332. For our sāhovānam, in b, RV. reads sahāvānam and SV. sahovānam; both have prtanājam (undivided in RV. pada-text) in c instead of -ājīm (p. -ājīm); and, in d, the RV. pada-text understands ihā as simply ihā, ours as ihā: ā. The comm. also reads prtanājam, but explains it as containing either the root aj or ji.

86 (91). Invocation of Indra.

[Atharvan (svastyayanakāmah).—āindram. trāiṣṭubham.]

Wanting in Pāipp. Follows in its applications closely those of 85 (Kāuṣ. 59. 14, and notes to 137. 4 and 25. 36); but appears further (140. 6) in the īndramahotsava, with hymn 91 and v. 3. 11, accompanying an offering of butter.

Translated: Henry, 36, 106; Griffith, i. 372.

1. The savior Indra, the helper Indra, the hero Indra, of easy call at every call—I call now on the mighty (çakrā), much-called Indra; let the bounteous (maghāvan) Indra make well-being for us.

The verse is RV. vi. 47. 11, also SV. i. 333, VS. xx. 50, TS. i. 6. 125, MS. iv. 9. 27 et al. In a, TS. accents āvitāram; in c, RV. VS. begin hvyāmi (for huvē nū); for d, they all read svastī no (but SV. idān havīr) maghāvā dhātvo (SV. vetvo) īndrah. [Cf. also MGS. i. 11. 16, and p. 150.]

87 (92). Homage to Rudra.

[Atharvan.—rāudram. jāgatam.]

Found also in Pāipp. xx. Found in Kāuṣ. (59. 29) in a rite for welfare, with worship of the Rudras; and reckoned (note to 50. 13) to the rāudra gaṇa. Used repeatedly by Vāit.: in the parvan sacrifice (4. 10), when the clear ~~is~~ is thrown in the fire, and again, in the cāturmāsya sacrifice (9. 18), with a cake to Tryambaka; also (24. 17) at the end of the agniṣṭoma, when the priests quit the place of sacrifice.

Translated: Muir, iv². 333; Henry, 36, 106; Griffith, i. 372.

1. The Rudra that is in the fire (agnī), that is within the waters, that entered the herbs, the plants, that shaped (klp) all these beings—to that Rudra, to Agni, be homage.

TS., at v. 5. 93, has a nearly corresponding address, but making no pretense to a metrical character: it reads yó rudrō agnāu (so far, Ppp. agrees) yó apsi yá śsadhīṣu yó rudró vḷvā bhūvanā "viveḷa tasmāi rudrāya nāmo astu; thus omitting the perplexing agnaye at the end, for which Ppp. also has the better reading adya. The comm. explains cāhḷpe by (sraṣṭuṅ) samartho bhavati. Pāda b is trīṣṭubh; [but a is not to be made good by pronouncing rudró as a trisyllable].

88 (93). Against poison.

[Garutman. — takṣakadevatyam. 3-av. brhātī.]

[Prose.] Found in Pāipp. xx., but so defaced as not to be comparable in detail. Used by Kāuḷ. (29. 6) in a healing rite against snake-poison, rubbing the bite with grāss and flinging this out in the direction of the snake.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 511; Henry, 36, 106; Griffith, i. 373.

1. Go away! enemy (āri) art thou; enemy verily art thou; in poison hast thou mixed poison; poison verily hast thou mixed; go away straight to the snake; smite that!

It can be seen in Ppp. that the combination arir vā 'si is made. Addressed to the poison (comm.), or to the wisp of grass that wipes it off (Henry)—or otherwise. The "verse" (12 : 14 : 10 = 36) is brhātī only in number of syllables. [The comm. reads abhyuḷpehi. He takes the "that" to mean the snake. With regard to the auto-toxic action of snake-venoms, see note to v. 13. 4.]

89 (94). To Agni and the waters.

[Sindhudvīpa. — caturṛcam. āgneyam. ānuṣṭubham: 4. 3-ḷ. nicṛtḷparosṇih.]

[Partly prose—"verse" 4.] The first three verses are found also in Pāipp. i. Various use is made of the hymn and of its several verses in the sūtras. In Kāuḷ. it is addressed to the holy water (42. 13) on occasion of the Vedic student's return home, and (42. 14) vs. 1, 2, 4 accompany his laying of fuel on the fire after sunset; with vs. 3 (57. 24) his hands are washed in the upanayana ceremony, and with vs. 4 (57. 27) he partakes of hot food; two phrases occurring in the latter (edho 'si, tejo 'si) appear (6. 12, 13) in the parvan sacrifice, but are hardly to be regarded as quotations from it (the comm., however, considers them such); and the schol. (note to 46. 17) and comm. reckon the hymn as intended by the snānīyās, or verses to be recited at the bath taken after the death of one's teacher. In Vāit. (3. 18), vs. 1-3 accompany in the parvan sacrifice the priests' cleansing; vs. 1 (or more?) in the agniṣṭoma (24. 6) is repeated on approach to the āhavanīya fire; with vs. 3, the sacrificer's wife is decked in the cāturmāsya sacrifice (8. 20); with vs. 4, fuel is laid on the fire in the parvan sacrifice (4. 1).

Translated: Henry, 36, 106; Griffith, i. 373.

1. The heavenly waters have I honored (cāy); with sap have we been mingled; with milk, O Agni, have I come; me here unite with splendor.

The verse is, with differences, RV. i. 23. 23, and is found also in VS. (xx. 22), TS. (i. 4. 45³), MS. (i. 3. 39), JB. (ii. 68), LḷS. (ii. 12. 13). RV. has, for a, āpo adyā 'nu acārīṣam; the others nearly the same [see also note to vs. 4, below], only all give the more regular grammatical form apās, and TS. omits adyā, while JB. reads acārīṣam; in b, RV. has at end agasmahi, LḷS. aganmahi, VS.TS.MS. asṛkṣmahi; in c, TS. combines pāyasvān ag-, and RV. reads gahi for agamam; VS. adds a fifth pāda. The verse is repeated as x. 5. 46, and its second half is the last part of ix. 1. 14. Ppp. agrees in a with RV., and has aganmahī in b. The comm. glosses acāyīṣam with phūjayāmi.

2. Unite me, O Agni, with splendor, with progeny, with life-time; may the gods know me as such; may Indra know, together with the seers (ṛṣi).

The verse is repeated below as ix. 1. 15 and x. 5. 47. It is RV. i. 23. 24; RV. reads, in c, asya unaccented, as the comm. also defines our word to be; and one or two of our mss. (Bp.K.R.s.m.) so give it. The comm. explains mḡ asya by enam mām (supplying phūtam), or, alternatively, etādṛṣasya me (supplying abhimataphalanī sādhayitum). Ppp. reads, for b, prajayā ca bahum krdhi, and combines in d sahas. [Perhaps the Anukr. scans c, d as 7+9.]

3. O waters, do ye carry forth both this reproach and what is foul (māla), and what untruth I have uttered in hate, and what I have sworn fearlessly (?).

The majority of our mss. (all but R.T.) accent āpas in a, and SPP. reports that three of his mss. also do the same: both texts emend to āpas. Ppp. omits abhi in c, and combines in d ṣepe bhī. The verse is found, with pervading differences of reading, as RV. i. 23. 22, and also, less discordant, in VS. vi. 17, ĀpÇS. vii. 21. 6, LÇS. ii. 2. 11. VS. differs from our text only by accenting abhīruṇam; Āp. has vā for ca in c and d; LÇS. agrees throughout. The RV. text is this: idām āpaḥ prā vahata yāt kīm ca dūritām mayi: yād vā hām abhidudrōha yād vā ṣepā utā nrtam. The sense of our abhīruṇam at the end is extremely questionable; very possibly it may contain abhi and have nothing to do with the root bhī; it occurs only in this verse. The comm. explains it as abhi and ruṇa for ṛṇa 'debt.'

4. Fire-wood (ēdhas) art thou, may I be prosperous (edh); fuel (samidh) art thou, may I altogether prosper (sam-edh); brightness art thou, put thou brightness in me.

[Prose.] This address to the pieces of kindling-wood or fuel piled on the sacred fire, punning on the similarity of the roots idh 'burn' and edh 'prosper,' is found also in VS. xxxviii. 25, K. ix. 7, xxxviii. 5, AÇS. iii. 6. 26, LÇS. ii. 12. 12, ÇGS. ii. 10. VS. and ÇGS. have all three parts, only omitting sām edhiṣya in the second*; LÇS. has only the first two addresses, and reads in each edhiṣimāhi; AÇS. reads as LÇS., but has also our third address prefixed as its first, with the variant me dehi. The Anukr. scans 8+9:10=27. [MGS. has the first two addresses at i. 1. 16 (cf. p. 149, 156); then follows apo adyānu acāriṣam; and tejo si is at ii. 2. 11 (cf. p. 150).] * [And reading edhiṣimāhi in the first.]

3. 3-av. 6-p. bhurig jagatī.]

Found also in Pāipp. xx. Used by Kāuç. (36. 35) in a women's rite, being directed against the lover of one's wife.

Translated: Henry, 37, 107; Griffith, i. 374 and 475.

1. Hew on, after ancient fashion, as it were the knot of a creeper; harm the force of the barbarian (dāś).

This verse and the first half of the next are the first five pādas (a refrain being added as sixth) of RV. viii. 40. 6, with no variant in this verse. The two parts of the hymn, as divided after 2 b, do not appear to belong together. The tradition makes the hymn directed against one's wife's paramour; and the comm. regards this first verse as an appeal to Agni. Ppp. reads at end jambhaya.

2. We, by Indra's aid, will share among us this collected good of his; I relax the vigor (? ṣibhrām) of thy member (?) by Varuṇa's vow (vratā).

In the first half-verse (see above), RV. reads bhajemahi. The translation of c is tentative only; ṣibhrām (our W. ṣibhram) is possibly a corruption of ṣibham; for bhrājās (understood here as gen. of bhrāj) comparè iv. 4. 1. The comm. reads ṣubhram, and (doubtless merely on account of its apparent connection with root bhrāj) explains bhrajās by dīptam (supplying retas). Ppp. reads (corruptly) mlāpayāvi bhrati cakra. The intrusion of vayām or of vāsu in a turns the anuṣṭubh into a bad bṛhatī; but RV. has both.

3. That the member may go off, and may be impotent (? ānāvayas) toward women, of the depending, inciting (?), peg-like, in-thrusting one, what is stretched, that do thou unstretch; what is stretched up, that do thou stretch down.

The epithets in this verse are very obscure, and are rendered for the most part only at a venture. The comm. explains ānāvayas as either 'not arriving' (from root vī = gam) or 'not enjoying' (from ā-vī = ad, i.e. bhaks 'enjoy'); knādīvant (our text reads incorrectly klād, with only one ms., Bp.², and the Petersburg Lexicon conjectures "perhaps 'wet,' " from a reminiscence of klīd) he regards as from root krad, with substitution of n for r, and renders 'inviting' (āhvānavant); ṣāṅkurā he derives from ṣāṅku; avastha is to him simply = (strīsamīpe) avatiṣṭhamāna, or (as for avaḥ-stha) striyā adhaḥpradeṣe sambhogāya tiṣṭhataḥ. [In a, b, Ppp. is quite defaced.]

Here ends the eighth anuvāka, of 9 hymns and 24 verses. The quoted Anukr. says aṣṭamāu nava, and caturviṅṣa. [See p. 1045.]

91 (96). To Indra: for aid.

[Atharvan. — cāndramasam (!). trāiṣṭubham.]

This and the two following hymns are wanting in Pāipp. This one (the comm. says, with 92 and 93 also) is used by Kāuṣ. (59. 7), with vi. 5 and 6, by one desiring a village; also (140. 6), with v. 3. 11 and vii. 86, to accompany an offering of butter in the īndramahotsava; and it is reckoned to the abhaya gaṇa (note to 16. 8), and to the svastyayana gaṇa (note to 25. 36).

Translated: Henry, 37, 108; Griffith, i. 374.

1. Let Indra be well-saving, well-aiding with aids, very gracious, all-possessing; let him put down (bādhi) hatred, let him make for us fearlessness; may we be lords of wealth in heroes.

This hymn and the following are two successive verses in RV. (x. 131. 6, 7, or vi. 47. 12, 13), and are also found together in VS. (xx. 51, 52), TS. (i. 7. 13⁴⁻⁵), and MS. (iv. 12. 5). All these agree in leaving out the nas which disturbs the meter of c. Our pada-text agrees with that of RV. in both verses in falsely dividing svāvān, and the comm. explains the word correspondingly with dhanavān hitātmā vā.

92 (97). To Indra: for aid.

[Atharvan (etc. as hymn 91).]

Wanting in Päipp. Reckoned to the svastyayana gaṇa (note to Kāuṣ. 25. 36), and by the comm. joined with 91: see under 91.

Translated: Henry, 38, 108; Griffith, i. 374.

1. Let this Indra, well-saving, well-aiding, keep far away apart from us any hatred; may we be in the favor of him the worshipful, also in his excellent well-willing.

The other texts (see under the preceding hymn) invert the order of the two half-verses, and all but MS. read asmé at end of (our) a. The saṁhitā-reading sanutār is prescribed by Prāt. ii. 48. The comm. explains the word as = tirohitān or gūdhān.

93 (98). For Indra's aid.

[Bṛhvaṅgīras.—āindram. gāyatram.]

Wanting in Päipp. Not employed by Kāuṣ., except as by the comm. declared to be joined with 91 and 92 in 59. 7 (see under 91).

Translated: Henry, 38, 108; Griffith, i. 374.

1. With Indra, with fury may we overcome them that play the foe, smiting Vritras irresistibly.

The verse is found also in TS. iii. 5. 3^a and MS. i. 3. 12. TS. reads sayūjas for manyūnā, and sāsahyāma for abhi syāma; MS., yujā for vayām, āva bādhe for abhi syāma, and ghnatā for ghnāntas. Most of the saṁhitā-mss. give syāma (our W.O., and two fifths of SPP's authorities, sy-), and both printed texts read it; but the Prāt. (ii. 107) expressly requires syāma, and that accordingly should be the accepted text. [In c, rather, 'smiting adversaries' ?]

94 (99). For Indra's help to unanimity.

[Atharvan.—sāmyam. ānuṣṭubham.]

Found also in Päipp. xix. Not used by Kāuṣ. In Vāit. (13. 12) it accompanies, in the agniṣṭoma, the conducting of king Soma to his throne; and again, later (23. 7), the bringing of the dhruvagraha of soma into the cup.

Translated: Henry, 38, 109; Griffith, i. 375.— Cf. Oldenberg, Rigveda i. p. 249.

1. Fixed (dhruvā), with a fixed oblation, do we lead down Soma, that Indra may make the clans (vīç) like-minded, wholly ours.

The verse is RV. x. 173. 6 and VS. vii. 25 c, and the first half is found in MS. i. 3. 15; also in TS. iii. 2. 8^b, followed at the interval of two pādas by the second half. RV. has, for āva . . . nayāmasi, abhi . . . mṛçāmasi (Ppp. abhi soma bhṛçāmahī); for yāthā nas in c it reads dīho te (Ppp. atrā te)*; and in d balihṛtas (also Ppp.) for sāmmanasas. TS. has, for c, d, yāthā na Indra id vīçāḥ kēvalīḥ sāvṛāḥ sāmmanasah kērat. MS. reads vah (!) for va in b; VS. is quite different: dh. dh. mānasā vācā sōmam āva nayāmi: āthā na Indra id vīço sapatnāḥ sāmmanasas kērat. * [And hence kērat for kārat in d.— The vs. is also noted as occurring at K. xxxv. 7.]

95 (100). A spell against some one.

[Kapīñjala. — tycam. mantrōktagrāhradēvatyam. ānuṣṭubham: 2, 3. bhurij.]

Not found in Pāipp. Used by Kāuṣ. (48. 40) in a witchcraft rite against enemies, with tying up a striped frog with two blue and red strings under the forelegs, putting it in hot water, and poking and squeezing it at each offering (pratyāhuti).

Translated: Ludwig, p. 517; Henry, 38, 109; Griffith, i. 375.

1. Up have flown his two dark-brown (cyāvā) quiverers (? vithurā), as two vultures to the sky — up-heater-and-forth-heater, up-heaters of his heart.

The comm. renders vithurā by santatām calanaṣīlāu (also vyathanaṣīlāu bhayavāntāu), and understands by them (through the hymn) either the two lips or the breath and expiration of the enemy who is represented by the frog (maṇḍūkātmanā bhāvī-tasya) — which is very unsatisfactory. To the vultures he applies the epithet tārksyāu. Roth suggests, as intended in the second half-verse, the heat and passion of love, which are to be expelled from some woman's heart.

2. I have made them (dual) rise up, like (two) weary-sitting kine, like (two) growling dogs, like (two) lurking (? ud-av) wolves.

The comm. explains udavantāu by goyūthamādhye vatsān udgrhya gacchantāu; Henry renders "that watch one another." [He would reject ūd in a.]

3. The (two) on-thrusters, down-thrusters, also together-thrusters: I shut up his urinator who bore [away] from here — [whether] woman [or] man.

Strī in d would be a welcome emendation: "of the man who bore away the woman from here"; but the analogy of i. 8. 1 c favors the text as given by the mss. The comm. supplies āsmākinām dhanam as object of jabhāra; or, alternatively, he takes the latter as = prahītavān asmān bādhitavān; medhra (mih + tra) he paraphrases with marmasthānopalakṣaṇam. His ignorance of the sense of the hymn is as great as that of Kāuṣ. — or as ours. SPP. retains the ḥ of itāḥ before strī in d, against his usual practice elsewhere, and with only a small minority of his mss.

96 (101). For quiet kidneys (?).

[Kapīñjala. — prākṛtam [?]*; vāyasam. ānuṣṭubham.]

Found in Pāipp. xx. Occurs in Kāuṣ. (48. 41) just after the preceding hymn, but in a different rite against an approaching enemy, who is made to drink a preparation. * [Berlin ms. prāg ukṭam.]

Translated: Henry, 39, 111; Griffith, i. 376.

1. The kine have sat in their seat; the bird has flown to its nest; the mountains have stood in their site; I have made the (two) kidneys stand in their station.

Instead of the unsatisfactory and questionable * vṛkkāu, the comm. reads vṛkāu, and understands it to mean "the he-wolf and the she-wolf"; they are to be made to stay in an enemy's house. He also reads in c ā sthāne, regarding ā as prefix to asthūh. SPP. combines again (cf. 95. 3 d) in his text, with the minority of his authorities, asthuḥ sth. Atiṣṭhiṣan at the end in our text is a misprint for -ṣam. Ppp. appears to read avṛvamam instead. The second half-verse is nearly identical with vi. 77. 1 c, d. [Bp. has vṛkāvāu; O., vṛkāvāu; E. and SPP's D., vṛkāv: this last is, to be sure, not vṛkāv 'wolves.' But has not the phraseology of vs. 2 of the preceding hymn (atiṣṭhiṣan vṛkāv) something to do with the placing of this one here?]

97 (102). Accompanying an offering.

[Atharvan (yajñasampūrṇakāmaḥ *)—aṣṭarcam. mantroktāindrāgnam. trāiṣṭubham:
5. 3-p. ārci bhurig gāyatṛi; 6. 3-p. prājāpatyā bṛhatī; 7. 3-p. sāmnī bhurig jagatī; 8. upariṣṭād bṛhatī.]

[Partly prose, 5-8.] Found also in Pāipp. xx. Accompanies in Kāuḥ. (6. 3), in the parvan sacrifice, the offering of the so-called saṁsthitahomas; vs. 8 is then (6. 4) specified, with the direction ity uttamaṁ caturgrhītena. Verse 2 is further found in the upanayana ceremony (55. 20), with vi. 53. 3, accompanying the release of a cow (the comm. says, with different reading and division, accompanying a contemplation of the water-pot). In Vāit. (4. 13), vss. 3-8 go with final offerings in the parvan sacrifice. [The decad division cuts the hymn between vss. 2 and 3: cf. p. 389.] * [The text reads anena yajñasampūrṇekāmo yajñe patim iṣṭvā 'prārthayat!]

Translated: Ludwig, p. 429; Henry, 39, 111; Griffith, i. 376.

1. Since today, as this sacrifice goes forward, we chose thee here, O knowing hótar, mayest thou go fixedly, and, O mightiest one, do thou, foreknowing, go unto the fixed sacrifice, the soma.

The translation follows our text, but this is, as the parallel texts plainly show, much corrupted in c. The verse is RV. iii. 29. 16, found also in VS. (viii. 20), TS. (i. 4. 44²), MS. (i. 3. 38). In a, VS. begins vayám hí tvā; in b, RV. reads cikitvo 'vṛṇ-, while the other texts have ágne hótāram dvṛṇ-. In c, RV. reads ayās and utā 'çamiṣṭhās; VS. has the same, and also ḥdhak both times for dhruvām; TS.MS. have ḥdhak, but ayāt between, and MS. -miṣṭa, while TS. has -miṣṭhās. In d, RV. begins prajānān vidvān úp-, VS.TS. begin prajānān yaj-, and have vidvān (for sómam) at the end; and MS. reads, for d, vidvān prajānān úpa yāhi yajñām. The comm. apparently has ayas in c, but he explains it as = ayāksīs = yaja (quoting the TS. version of the pāda), as if it were ayās; certainly, when it is reduced to ayas, all recognition of its connection with yaj must be lost. The comm. also reads utā 'çamiṣṭhās, with the other texts. Ppp. has ayas in c, but otherwise agrees with RV.

2. Lead us together, O Indra, with mind, with kine, together with patrons, thou of the bay horses, together with well-being, together with what of the prayers (bráhman) is pleasing (-hitā) to the gods, together with the favor of the worshipful gods.

The verse is RV. v. 42. 4, and also occurs in VS. (viii. 15), TS. (i. 4. 44¹), TB. (ii. 8. 26), and MS. (i. 3. 38). All save MS. read no after indra in a (also the comm., and one of SPP's mss.), and all (also Ppp.) nesi for neṣa; in b, RV.MS. (also the comm.) have harīvas, the others maghavan instead, and RV. at end svastī; in c, all (with Ppp.) bráhmanā, and all save RV. devākr̥tam (so Ppp. also) after it; in d, RV.TS.TB. (also Ppp.) have the more proper sumatyā (-tāu involves an anacoluthon which is disregarded in the translation). SPP. follows the comm. and a single one of his mss. in reading (with the other texts) bráhmanā in c.

3. The eager gods, O god, that thou didst bring — them, O Agni, send forward in [thine] own station (sadhāstha); having eaten, having drunk sweet things, assign to this man good things, ye good ones (vāsu).

This and the following verse are given together in VS. (viii. 18, 19), TS. (i. 4. 44²⁻³), MS. (i. 3. 38), but in different order and combination: namely, in VS., our 4 before 3,* and in the others our 4 a, b and 3 c, d as one verse, and our 3 a, b and 4 c, d as a following one. In our 3 a, VS. begins with yāñ āv-, and TS. ends with devāñ (t-); in c, all end with -saç ca vṛve, and after it VS. has asmé, and TS.MS. sme*. Ppp. reads, in b, preraya punar agne sve sadhasthe. The fourth pāda is deficient. * [More precisely, our 4 a-c with 3 d before our 3 a-c with 4 d.]

4. We have made for you easily accessible seats, O gods, ye that have come enjoying me at the libation; carrying, bearing [your] own good things, ascend ye to heaven after the good hot drink (?).

TS. (as above) reads at the beginning svagā, and later in a sādanam, MS. sādanā kṛnomi; in b, VS.MS. have gmé'dām sāvanam ju-, TS. sāvane 'dām j-; Ppp. also has kṛnomi, followed by the unintelligible yā caṣṭe 'dām savane juṣānāḥ; the AV. text (p. sāvane : mā) is apparently a corruption of sāvane 'mā, which the comm. reads. In c, VS. inverts the order of the two participles, and all read havīṅṣi for svā vāsūni; in d, VS.MS. have āsum for vāsum, and VS. svār for dvam, and all tiṣṭhata for rohata. Ppp. gives, for c, d, v. bh. dudhās tvam gharman tam u tiṣṭhatā 'nu. All the AV. pāda-mss. (except a single one of SPP's) read vāhamānā : bhāramānā, without final visarga, and all the samhitā-mss. (except our P.p.m.) have -nā svā; both printed texts make the necessary emendation in samhitā to -nāḥ svā (which the comm. also reads), and SPP. adds the visarga to both p'ples in his pāda-text. The pāda reading in a is sādanā : akarmā (our Bp. -nāḥ s. m.), and the irregular hiatus must be regarded as falling under Prāt. iii. 34, although the passage is not quoted by the commentary to that rule; SPP. takes no notice of the anomaly. The comm. explains gharmām in d by ādityam. The Anukr. passes without notice the redundancy of c, due to the apparently intruded svā.

5. O sacrifice, go to the sacrifice; go to the lord of sacrifice; go to [thine] own source (yōni): hail!

[Prose.] The same formula is found, without variant, as VS. viii. 22 a, and in TS. i. 4. 44³* and MS. i. 3. 38. The samhitā-mss. add a stroke of punctuation before svām which is wanting in the other texts, and which our edition also omits; SPP. retains it. The comm. explains Vishṇu as intended by yajñam. * [Also vi. 6. 2².]

6. This [is] thy sacrifice, O lord of sacrifice, accompanied with song-utterance, of excellent heroism: hail!

[Prose.] Again the AV. mss. add a punctuation-mark before svōtryah,* omitted in our text, but given by SPP.; the other texts (VS. viii. 22 b; TS.MS. as above) do not have it. TS. differs only by reading svōtrah; MS. does the same and omits svāhā (adding instead tēna sām bhava bhṛājām gacha); VS. ends with sāvaviras tāj juṣasva svāhā. Ppp. has a yet more different version: esa te yajño yajamānas svāhā sūktanamovākas svōtrās svāhā. * [To avoid taking the word as an adjective, BR., s.v., would read with TS. svōtrah.]

7. Váshaṭ to those offered to; váshaṭ to those not offered to; ye way-(gātú-)finding gods, having found the way, go ye on the way.

[Prose.] The second part of the formula is found without a variant in VS. viii. 21 et al., TS. i. 4. 44³ et al., MS. i. 3. 38. Ppp. reads svāhūtebhyo vaṣaḍhūtebhyah.

8. O lord of mind! [put] this offering of ours in heaven among the gods; hail! in heaven—hail! on earth—hail! in atmosphere—hail! in wind may I put [it]; hail!

[Prose.] In VS.TS.MS. (as above) a corresponding formula immediately follows our 7 b; but it is briefer: thus, VS. mánasas pata imám deva yajñám svāhā vāte dhāh; TS. m. p. i. no deva devéṣu yajñám svāhā vāct svāhā vāte dhāh; MS. m. p. sudhātva imám yajñám divt devéṣu vāte dhāh svāhā. Ppp., again, m. p. imám deva yajñám svāhā: vāce svāhā vācaye dhās svāhā. The Anukr. apparently scans this bit of prose as 8 + 7 : 9 + 12 = 36.

98 (103). With an oblation to Indra.

[Atharvan.—mantroktadāivatam. trāiṣṭubham: 1. virāj.]

Found also in Pāipp. xx. In Kāuṣ. (6. 7), the verse accompanies, at the parvan sacrifice, the distribution of barhis to each divinity; and again (88. 6), in the piṇḍa-pīṭṭyajña, the sprinkling of rice-grains joined with darbha. In Vāit. (4. 6), it goes with the casting of the prastara into the fire in the parvan sacrifice.

Translated: Henry, 40, 112; Griffith, i. 377.

1. The barhis is all (sám) anointed with oblation, with ghee, all by the good Indra, all by the Maruts; [it is] all anointed by the gods, by the all-gods; let the oblation go to Indra: hail!

A corresponding but quite different verse is found as VS. ii. 22 (immediately following a repetition of the VS. version of our 97. 7, 8): it reads añktām instead of aktām in a and c, has ādityātr vāsubhis for Indreṇa vāsunā in b, Indras for devāts in c, and, for d, divyām nābho gachatu yāt svāhā. Ppp. also has (better) vasubhis for vasunā in b, and devebhis in c, rectifying its meter. The comm. reads barhis for havis in d. The verse lacks three syllables in its second half.

99 (104). When bestrewing the védi.

[Atharvan.—mantroktadāivatam. trāiṣṭubham: 1. bhurij.]

Wanting in Pāipp. Is in Kāuṣ. (2. 20) the priest's direction for strewing the barhis; and the same in Vāit. (2. 7): both in the parvan sacrifice.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 434; Henry, 40, 113; Griffith, i. 377. — Henry gives an elaborate comment. Oldenberg, Indogermanische Forschungen, Anzeiger, iii. 3, refers to Hillebrandt, Neu- und Vollmondsopfer, 19, 64.

1. Strew thou around, enclose the sacrificial hearth (védi); do not rob the sister lying down yonder; the hótar's seat [is] yellow, golden; those [are] jewels (niṣká) in the sacrificer's world.

The comm. regards the bunch of darbha grass as addressed. Ludwig conjectures the 'sister' to be the uttaravedi; and Henry also understands the same; it is perhaps rather the grass that lies about; the comm. gives several diverse guesses. A corresponding verse is found in TB. iii. 7. 5¹³ and Āp. iii. 13. 5: they read abhī for pāri at beginning of a; jāmtm mā hīnsīr amuyā cdyānū for b; -danā hāritāh svāvrṇāh in c, and, in d, imé for eté and bradhñé for loké.

100 (105). Against bad dreams.

[Yama.—duḥsvapnanācanadevatyam. ānuṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. xx. Used by Kāuṣ. (46. 11) in a rite against bad dreaming, and reckoned (note to 46. 9) to the duḥsvapnanācana gaṇa.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 498; Henry, 40, 115; Griffith, i. 378.

1. I turn away from evil-dreaming, from bad dreaming, from ill-success (ābhūti); I make brāhman my inner [defense]; [I put] away the pains having the aspect of dreams.

The comm. (also Ppp.) reads svapnāt in b. A corresponding verse is found in KṢS. xxv. 11. 20: for b it has pāpah svapnād abhūtyāi; it reads karave for krṇve in c, and, for d, parah svapnamukhā krdhi. Ppp. ends with -mukhā suva. Near half of SPP's authorities have pārāh in d. The comm. explains svapnamukhās by svapnadvārikāh. [Griffith says: "I turn away: and lie on my other side"—to prevent the recurrence of nightmare. As to c, cf. i. 19. 4 and v. 8. 6.]

101 (106). As to food enjoyed in a dream.

[Yama.—duḥsvapnanācanadevatyam. ānuṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. xx. Used by Kāuṣ. (46. 12) in a rite against ill effect from food eaten in dreams, and reckoned (note to 46. 9) to the duḥsvapnanācana gaṇa.

Translated: Ludwig, p. 444; Henry, 40, 115; Griffith, i. 378.—Given by Bergaigne-Henry, Manuel, p. 157, without other comment than is implied in the title.

1. What food I eat in dream, [and that] is not found in the morning—be all that propitious to me, for that is not seen by day.

The comm. appears to regard nahī in c as two independent words. A corresponding verse is found in ĀpṢS. x. 13. 11 and HGS. i. 17. 4; reading thus: yad annam adyate naktam (H. sāyam) na tat prātaḥ kṣudho vati (H. av. kṣ.): sarvam tad asmān mā hīnsīr (H. -sīn) nahī tad dadṛṣe divā (H. divā dadṛṣe divaḥ). Ppp. has nas instead of me in c. [See p. 1045.]

102 (107). Accompanying self-relief.

[Prajāpati.—mantroktanānādevatyam. virāt purastādbṛhatī.]

Wanting in Pāipp. Kāuṣ. (52. 15) prescribes it in a rite for welfare, "with action as given in the verse" (iti mantroktam).

Translated: Henry, 41, 115; Griffith, i. 378.

1. Having paid homage to heaven and earth, to the atmosphere, to Death, I will urinate standing erect; let not the lords (īcvarā) harm me.

All the authorities read mekṣāmi in c, and SPP. retains it in his text, although it is a wholly impossible form, and the misreading of ṣ for ṣy is an easy and familiar one; even the meter demands me-kṣi- [rather ūrḍhuās?]. The comm. has instead māi 'syāmi, explaining it as = mā gamisyāmi! Virtually all the authorities, too, leave tiṣṭhan unaccented (two out of fourteen of SPP's and our R.s.m. tiṣṭhan); this both editions emend. [The Anukr. seems to scan as 11 + 8 : 7 + 8 = 34.]

[The squatting posture in making water is, I believe, general with the natives of India to this day. So Hesiod, Works and Days, 727 : μηδ' ἀντ' ἡελίου τετραμμένος ὀρθὸς ὀμχεῖν . . . ἐξόμενος κτλ. Cf. xiii. i. 56 and my note.]

Here ends the ninth anuvāka, of 12 hymns and 21 verses: the old Anukr. says navamo dvādaça and ekaviṅça.

103 (108). For betterment.

[Brahman. — ātmadāivatam. trāiṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. xx. Used by Kāuç. (59. 19) with hymn 17 etc. (see under 17). Translated: Ludwig, p. 269; Henry, 41, 116; Griffith, i. 378. — Cf. Bloomfield, AJP. xvii. 408-9.

1. What Kshatriya, seeking betterment, shall lead us up out of this reproachful hate,—who that desires sacrifice, or who that desires bestowal? who wins long life-time among the gods?

This is apparently the appeal of a Brahman seeking employment (so Ludwig also). The comm. (also Ppp.) reads vanate in d; he gives alternative conjectural explanations, and tries, of course, on account of the repeated ka, to bring the verse into connection with Prajāpati (Ka). Ppp. further has no 'syā in a, and kaṣ pūr. ko yaj. in c.

104 (109). Concerning Atharvan's cow.

[Brahman. — ātmadāivatam. trāiṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. xx. Used by Kāuç. (66. 17) in a savayajña, having as sava a cultivated field (urvarākkhye savayajñe, comm.).

Translated: Henry, 41, 116; Griffith, i. 379. — Cf. above, v. 11, introduction.

1. Who, enjoying companionship with Brihaspati, shall shape [its] body at his will—the spotted milch-cow, well-milking, with constant calf, given by Varuṇa to Atharvan?

The translation implies in d tanvām as read by Ppp.; compare RV. x. 15. 14 d (AV. xviii. 3. 59 reads tanvās, but with much better reason than here), also iii. 48. 4 b and vii. 101. 3 b. The comm. refers to v. 11 as explaining the cow referred to. Some of the mss. (including our Bp.E.O.K.) accent sakhyām in c, and SPP. adopts it in his text; ours has the correct sakhyām. Ppp. begins with kaṁ, and has in b, for nītyavatsām, dhenum etām, and in c tāṁ bṛhaspatyā sakhyā.

105 (110). An exhortation to holy life.

[Atharvan. — mantroktadevatyam. ānuṣṭubham.]

Found also in Pāipp. xx. Quoted by Kāuç. (55. 16) in the upanayana ceremony, as the teacher takes the pupil by the arm and sets him facing eastward; and the second half-verse later in the same (56. 16), as he makes the pupil turn so as to face him.

Translated: Henry, 41, 117; Griffith, i. 379.

1. Striding away from what is of men, choosing the words (vacas) of the gods, turn thou unto guidances, together with all [thy] companions.

Ppp. reads saha for vacas in b, and, for ḍ, devo devānām sakhyā jṣāṇaḥ. The comm. paraphrases prāṇītis by prakṛṣṭanayanādīvedabrahmacaryaniyatīḥ.

106 (111). Deprecation for offenses.

[Atharvan. — mantroktadāivatam uta jātavedasam (c, ḍ, vāruṇam). byhatigarbhā triṣṭubh.]

Found also in Pāipp. xx. Applied by Kāuṣ. (6. 2), in the parvan sacrifice, with offerings in expiation of any thing spilt or overlooked in the ceremony; and later (46. 24), when a direction at the sacrifice has not been fully executed. Used also for a similar purpose in Vāit. in the agnisṭoma (12. 5), and again later (16. 8).

Translated: Henry, 41, 117; Griffith, i. 379.

1. If (yāt) in forgetfulness we have done aught, O Agni, have offended, O Jātavedas, in our behavior (cāraṇa), from that do thou protect us, O forethoughtful one; unto beauty be there immortality for us [thy] companions.

The sense of the last pāda is obscure and doubtful. The comm. takes ṣubhé as loc., = ṣobhane sāṅge karmaṇi. Ppp. reads tasmāt for tatas in c, and ṣukhe in ḍ. The second half-verse is more irregular than the Anukr. admits.

107 (112). To relieve a stinging pain.

[Bhṛgu. — sāuryam utā'bdāivatam. ānuṣṭubham.]

Wanting in Pāipp. Used by Kāuṣ. (31. 27) with vi. 105, in a remedial rite against cold and catarrh.

Translated: Henry, 42, 117; Griffith, i. 379.

1. Down from the sky the seven rays of the sun make pass the waters, streams of ocean; these have made fall thy sting (ṣalyā).

The comm. regards ṣalya as used figuratively of a stinging disease: ṣalyavat pīḍā-kāriṇām kāsaṣṭmādīrogam. The seven rays are to him the seven forms of the sun, as given in TA. i. 7. 1.

108 (113). Against enemies: to Agni.

[Bhṛgu. — āvyṛcam. āgneyam. trāiṣṭubham: 1. byhatigarbhā.]

Wanting in Pāipp. Used by Kāuṣ. (48. 37) in a witchcraft rite with hymns 31, 34, and 59 (see under 31); and both verses separately are reckoned to the duḥsvapnanā-ṣana gaṇa (note to 46. 9).

Translated: Ludwig, p. 517; Henry, 42, 118; Griffith, i. 380.

1. Whoever seeks to harm us in secret, whoever us openly — us, O Agni, one of our people, knowingly, or a stranger — to meet them let the toothed āraṇi go; let there be of them no abode (vāstu), O Agni, nor offspring.

The comm. explains āraṇī as ārtikāriṇī rākṣasī 'a pain-causing she-demon'; by its form it should be a fem. to āraṇa 'strange.' Again (as at iv. 16. 1) SPP. unaccountably reads (with the comm., who explains it as an antarhitanāman) in a nas tāyāt (instead of na stāyāt), and in pada-text tāyāt, although every known pada-ms. [begins the word with s- and] stāyāt alone has etymological justification. Some of the samhitā-mss. (including our W.I.) read āvī sv- in a-b. The mss. also vary between tān and tām (our Bp. and all our samhitā-mss. have the latter; both editions give the former). [One does not easily see how the Anukr. justifies its definition.]

2. Whoever shall assail us asleep or waking, standing or moving, O Jātavedas, in accord with Vāiṣvānara as ally, do thou meet and burn them out, O Jātavedas.

All SPP's pada-mss., and one of ours (D.), read suptām in a, by a frequent error. Ludwig suggests vāivasvatena for vāiṣvānareṇa in c; it would certainly be an improvement to the sense.

109 (114). [For success with the dice.]

[Bādarāyaṇī.*—saptarcam. āgneyam uta mantruktadāivatam. ānuṣṭubham : 1. virāṭ purastādbrhatī ; 2, 3, 5, 6. triṣṭubh.]

Found also in Pāipp. iv. (in the verse-order 6, 1, 2, 5, 3, 7, 4). Used by Kāuṣ. (41. 13), with hymn 50 etc., in a rite for success in gambling: see under 50; and by Vāit. (6. 10), in the agnyādheya ceremony, when the sacrificer hands the adhvaryu the anointed dice, for winning at play the somakrayaṇī cow. [The decad division cuts the hymn between vss. 3 and 4: cf. p. 389.] * [Note that iv. 38 is for luck in gambling and is ascribed to the same rishi. Cf. introd. to iv. 38 and 40.]

Translated: Muir, v. 429 (vss. 1-4); Ludwig, p. 456; Henry, 42, 118; Griffith, i. 380. — Cf. Zimmer, p. 285, 284.

1. This homage to the formidable brown one, who among the dice is self-controller; with ghee do I aid (?) Kali; may he be gracious to us in such plight.

[In a, Henry would suppress either idām or else nāmo.] Ppp. combines yo 'kṣeṣu in b, and reads kalyam in c. The comm. explains babhrāve as babhrvarṇayāi 'tatsamjñakāya dyūtajayakārīṇe devāya; of Kali he says parājayahetuḥ pañcasamkhyāyukto 'kṣaviṣayo 'yaḥ kalir ity ucyate, and quotes TB. i. 5. 11¹; ṣikṣāmi is either tādāyāmi or samarthaṁ kartum icchāmi.

2. Do thou, O Agni, carry ghee for the Apsarases, dust for the dice, gravel and waters; enjoying in their respective shares the oblation-giving, the gods revel in both kinds of oblations.

Ppp. puts agne after ghrtam in a [a great improvement of the meter], reads nakhebhyaḥ in b, makes c refer to Agni by giving yathūbhāgas and juṣāṇas, and has madantu in d. Some of the mss. (including our D.K.) also read madantu, and it gives the preferable sense; but both editions have -ti, as being better supported. Half SPP's mss., and at least one (D.) of ours, give pāñcān in b. The comm. boldly declares akṣebhyaḥ in b to mean pratīkitavebhyaḥ: they are to have dust etc. flung at them, that they may be beaten.

3. The Apsarases revel a joint reveling, between the oblation-holder (havirdhāna) and the sun; let them unite my hands with ghee; let them make the rival gambler subject to me.

Ppp. begins yā 'ps-, puts antarā first in b, reads in c tā nāu [intending no?] hastānī kṛtena (this is a great improvement) saṁ sr-, and has naṣ kit- in d. The comm. understands havirdhāna in b to signify the earth. The first half-verse is identical with xiv. 2. 34 a, b.

4. Ill luck (?) to the opposing player; do thou shed upon us with ghee; smite thou him who plays against us as a tree with a thunderbolt.

Compare above, 50. 1. The obscure word at the beginning is divided ādīnavām by the pada-mss.; SPP., however, alters his pada-text to ādinavām, simply to agree with the comm's grammatical explanation! as if that were of the smallest authority or value; and here it is even worse than usual; the comm. makes the word a verb-form from root dīv + ā, and glosses it with ādīvyāmy akṣāir ādīvanam karomi!* Ppp. treats the verse as a cited one; but it has not been found elsewhere in its text. * [In the Corrections to vol. ii., p. 535, SPP. suggests ādevanam.]

5. He who made this riches for our playing, who the taking (?) and leaving of the dice—that god, enjoying this libation of ours—may we revel a joint reveling with the Gandharvas.

The Ppp. version is quite different: yo no devo dhanam idam dideṣa yo 'kṣānām grāhanam ṣaṣanam ca: sa no 'vatu havir etc.; also gandharvāis sadh- in d. The comm. explains glāhanam and ṣaṣanam respectively by grāhanam svakṛtyāir akṣāir jīvā svīkaranam, and svīyānām akṣānām jayāhvasthāne (one ms. -yāṅhva-) 'vaceṣanam.

6. Having good things in common (? sāmvasu)—that is your appellation; for stern-looking, realm-bearing [are] the dice; you as such, O drops, would we worship with oblation; may we be lords of wealth.

Ppp. begins c with tasmāi ta indro hav-. Emendation in b to akṣāh (voc.) would be a welcome improvement; Henry so translates. The minor Pet. Lex. conjectures that indavas in c means 'the marks or pips on the dice': perhaps rather applied figuratively to the dice themselves*; the comm. renders by somavantah somopalakṣitahaviryuktāh, † as adj. qualifying vayam. The comm. is uncertain whether the Gandharvas or the dice are addressed in a; in b he understands the two epithets to be gen. sing., ugrapacyā being for -yāyās! and he refers to and quotes TA. ii. 4. 1, where they are found as singular, instead of our own text vi. 118. 2. The third pāda is jagatī [only by count]. * [The major Lex. takes it as 'dice.'—W. put a sign opposite indavo as if he meant to make a text-critical remark about it. His Collation-book notes no variant ms. reading; but SPP. reports idūm vah and indavāh; none give induvah.] † [As if it were induvah = indumantah.]

7. If (yāt) a suppliant I call on the gods, if we have dwelt in Vedic studentship, if I take up the brown dice—let them be gracious to us in such plight.

Ppp. begins with yad devān, and reads uvima in b. One would like to emend to ālebhé in c.

110 (115). To Indra and Agni: for help.

[Bhṛgu.—tr̥cam. āindrāgnam. 1. gāyatrī; 2. tr̥ṣṭubh; 3. anuṣṭubh.]

Found also in Pāipp. xx., vs. 3 not with vss. 1, 2. Kāuṣ. (15. 11) employs the hymn (the comm. says, vss. 1 and 2), with vii. 3 etc., in battle incantations: see under 3; further (59. 20), for the satisfaction of various desires, with worship of the deities mentioned in the verses. Vāit. (8. 6) has it (vss. 1, 2?) with an oblation to Indra and Agni, in the āgrayāna iṣṭi; and vs. 3 (3. 17), in the parvan sacrifice, as the priests receive and partake of their iḍā-portion.

Translated: Henry, 43, 121; Griffith, i. 381.

1. O Agni, together with Indra, ye slay the Vritras irresistibly for your worshiper (dāçvāns); for ye are both best Vritra-slayers.

The translation implies emendation of hatás in b to hathás, which the construction clearly demands, and which is read by the comm., as also, in a corresponding verse, by TB. (ii. 4. 57: this has also medlnā for dāçṣe in a, and yuvām for ubhā in c). Both editions give hatás, with all the mss. Ppp. is defaced, but seems to read atho for hato, and for c ugrāya vṛtrahantām. [Render rather, 'ye slay the adversaries . . . adversary-slayers'? cf. iv. 32. 7, note.] [MS. has agnā indraç ca dāçṣo just after its version of our vs. 2.]

2. By whom in the very beginning they won the heaven (svār), who stood unto all existences, the two men-helpers (?), bulls, thunderbolt-armed — Agni, Indra, Vritra-slayers, do I invoke.

Found also in TB. (ii. 4. 57) and MS. (iv. 12. 6); TB. puts in a sívar before ájayan, much improving the meter; MS. does the same, but corrupts to ájanan; in b, TB. has bhūvanasya mādhye; in c, both accent prá carṣantī, and TB. vṛṣanā (as voc.)*; in d, MS. ends with -hānam huvema, while TB. has agnī indrā vṛtrahānā huve vām. Ppp. has at the beginning yābhyān svar itayaty agre (eva wanting), and huvāma at the end. The 'they' of a, according to the comm., are the gods. For prácarṣanī is given a conjectural rendering, though the word is doubtless a corruption; the Pet. Lex. had conjectured an emendation to prá carṣantī [comparing RV. i. 109. 5]; the comm. gives it an alternative explanation: either prakarṣena draṣṭārāu, or prakṛṣṭā manusyā yayor yastr̥tvena santi. [As to vṛtra-, see note to vs. 1.] *[And MS. reads vājrabāhum.]

3. Divine Brihaspati hath served (? upa-grah) thee with a bowl; O Indra, enter into us with songs — for the sacrificer, the soma-presser.

In a, upa-grah is rendered as if equivalent to upa-hr; the comm. takes it thus: anyatra yathā na gacchasi tathā svādhinām krtavān. The comm. regards Indra as addressed in a, b, but it is rather the drink itself, as received in the bowl: so in Vāit. iii. 17. One might conjecture indo for indra in c (our P.O. indram), but indra is cited in Vāit. (ib.); [Garbe overlooked the fact that the second half of this vs. was intended]. Ppp. adds to the somewhat meaningless d a fifth pāda: sarvān tam riradhūsi naḥ: compare the Ppp. version of vi. 54. 3. [Ppp. reads in a upāi 'nam devās.]

111 (116). To a soma-vessel.

[Brahman. — vārṣabham. parabhātī triṣṭubh.]

Found also in Pāipp. xx. For uses, see below.

Translated: Henry, 44, 122; Griffith, i. 382.

1. Indra's paunch art thou, soma-holding, soul of gods and of human beings; here do thou generate offspring that [are] thine in them (f.); let those that [are] elsewhere rest here for thee.

Ppp. combines -dhānā "tmā, and reads in b (after devānām) asya viṣvarūpaḥ, and at the end tās te svadhito gṛṇantu. The comm. regards the verse as addressed either to a bull let loose (as quoted in Kāuṣ. 24. 19) or to the pūtabhyi soma-vessel (as quoted in Vāit. 17. 9). In c, āsū is obscure, and is perhaps to be emended to āsūs; the comm. explains it as either = purovartiniṣu goṣu or yajamānādirūpāsu vikṣu. The verse is further reckoned [note to Kāuṣ. 19. 1] to the puṣṭika mantras. It is a pure triṣṭubh, without br̥hātī element; but the pāda-mss. make the third pāda end with yā. [With a, cf. RV. iii. 36. 8 a.]

112 (117). For release from guilt and distress.

[Varuṇa. — divyrcam. mantroktābdāivatam. anuṣṭubham: 1. bhurij.]

Wanting in Pāipp. Used in Kāuṣ. (32.3) in a remedial rite, with vii. 29 etc.: see under 29; it is also reckoned to the añholiṅga gaṇa (note to 32.27). The comm. regards it as quoted by Kāuṣ. (78.10); but doubtless the verse there intended is the equivalent xiv. 2.45.

Translated: Henry, 44, 122; Griffith, i. 382.

1. Beautiful (çūmbhanī) [are] heaven and earth, pleasant near by, of great vows; seven divine waters have flowed; let them free us from distress.

The epithets in the first half-verse are found only here,* and are obscure; for anti-sumne the comm. substitutes antaḥsvapne; çūmbhanī † he renders by çobhākāriṇyāu, and mahivrate by mahat karma yayoḥ. Henry would rectify the meter of c by reading ā for āpas. The verse is repeated below as xiv. 2.45. * [Mahivrata occurs elsewhere.] † [BR. conjecture çūndhanī. cf. note to vi. 115.3.]

2. Let them free me from that which comes from a curse, then also from that which is of Varuṇa, then from Yama's fetter, from all offense against the gods.

This verse is a repetition of vi. 96.2.

113 (118). Against a (woman) rival: with a plant.

[Bhārgava. — divyrcam. triṣṭikādevatyam. 1. virād anuṣṭubh; 2. çāṅkumatī 4-p. bhurij usṇih.]

Found also in Pāipp. xx. Used by Kāuṣ. (36.38), in one of the rites concerning women, against a wife's lover, with a plant called bānāpārnī 'arrow-feather' (Dārila, [çirapuñkhā: for which Bl. conjectures] çarapuñkhā, which is Thephrosia purpurea [Roth], though T. spinosa is the spinous species).

Translated: Weber, Ind. Stud. v. 250; Henry, 44, 122; Griffith, i. 382.

1. O rough one! thou of rough creepers! cut up yon woman, O rough one! — that thou mayest be hateful (?) to yon man of virile power.

PPP. reads trīṣṭ- everywhere, and trīṣṭinandanā; and its second half-verse is: adhā-grdṛṣṭayadyamas tam asmāi ṣeṣyāvataḥ. The comm. gives, as one of his suggested synonyms for trīṣṭikā, dāhajānikā or bānāparṇyākhyānsadhi; vandanas [cf. below, 115.2] are, according to him, latānām vṛkṣāṇām co 'pari prarūdhās tadīyaçākḥām āveṣṭamānā vibhinnaṣṭālatāvīçeṣāḥ. Kṛtādviṣṭā in c is literally 'having done what is hated' (ḍveṣakāriṇī, comm.). The second half-verse is plainly addressed to the rival. There is considerable discordance among the mss. in regard to the concluding word, ṣeṣyā-, ṣeṣyā-, ṣaṣyā- being the variants, but evidently only inaccuracies of copyists; the comm. explains the word as = prajānanasāmarthyavate. The verse is a good anuṣṭubh, not virāj.

2. Rough art thou, a rough one; poisonous, a poisonous one art thou; — that thou mayest be avoided, as a barren cow (? vaçā) of a bull.

The first part in PPP. reads: trīṣṭā 'si trīṣṭakā 'si vṛṣā vṛṣāṭaky asi. The comm. tries to find root tañc + ā in viṣṭakī (= viṣam ātanāyati); vaçā he paraphrases with vandhyā gāuh. The verse is rather kakummatī than ṣaṅkumati. [It becomes a perfectly regular anuṣṭubh if we add at the end of a (with PPP.) an asi.]

114 (119). Against enemies.

[Bhārgava. — dvyr̥cam. agnīṣomīyam. ānuṣṭubham.]

The first verse is found also in Pāipp. xx. Used by Kāuç. (36.39: doubtless only vs. 1) in connection with the preceding hymn, at the end of the women's rites; vs. 2, on the other hand, appears in a healing rite (31.4) against demons, with vi. 34.

Translated: Weber, Ind. Stud. v. 265; Henry, 45, 123; Griffith, i. 383.

1. I take from thy entrails (vakṣāṇā), I take from thy heart, from the aspect of thy face, I take all thy splendor.

PPP. has, for b, ā dade hṛdayād adhi, and, for the second half-verse, ā te mukhasya yad varca āçam mā abhyatṛṣasi. The comm. says ūrusamdhīr vañkṣaṇa ity ucyate; or, alternatively, the vakṣāṇās are kaṭivīkatyūrupādāḥ. This verse appears to belong properly with hymn 113, as vs. 2 with 115.

2. Forth from here let anxieties go, forth regrets (? anudhyā), and forth imprecations; let Agni smite the she-demoniacs; let Soma smite the abusers (f.).

[In the edition, the final r-sign of rakṣasvīnīr has slipped to the left from its place over the syllable ha. The vs. seems to belong to h. 115: see note to the preceding vs.]

115 (120). Against ill luck.

[Atharvāṅgīras. — catur̥cam. sāvitram; jātavedasam. ānuṣṭubham: 2, 3. trīṣṭubh.]

The first two verses are found also in Pāipp. xx. It is used by Kāuç. (18.16-18) in rites against nīrti ('perdition'), with the driving off of a crow to whose leg certain things have been fastened, and with casting into the water certain wraps or garments. The comm. quotes it also from the Çāntikalpa (6.16) in expiatory rites.

Translated: Muir, v. 348; Ludwig, p. 499; Grill, 41, 187; Henry, 45, 124; Griffith, i. 383; Bloomfield, 168, 564.

1. Fly forth from here, O evil sign (lakṣmī); disappear from here; fly forth from yonder; with a hook of metal (ayasmāya) we attach thee to him that hates [us].

Ppp. reads in a pāpa- for pāpi, and, for ḍ, ya dviṣmas tasmīn tvā sajjāmaḥ. The comm. has at the end sacūmasi. He paraphrases pāpi lakṣmī by pāparūpīny alakṣmī; it might be rendered also by 'luck' or 'fortune'; the expression is found also in MB. i. 4. 1, 5.

2. The unenjoyable flying sign that hath mounted me, as a creeper a tree—that, O Savitar, mayest thou put hence elsewhere than on us, being golden-handed, granting good to us.

Ppp. offers no variants. SPP. reports his pada-mss. as reading in a pataya: lī or pataya: līh, which is very strange, as ours have the true reading, patayālīh. All the pada-mss. give in b vādanaḥśiva, and Prāt. ii. 56 expressly recognizes this and prescribes the irregular combination to vādanāśva; but SPP., on the sole authority of the commentator, alters his pada-text to vādanāśiva! The comm. explains vādanā simply as latāvīṣeṣa, and refers back to 113.1 as another instance of the use of the word; patayālīs he paraphrases with pātayitrī dāurgatyakārīnī.

3. A hundred and one [are] the signs of a mortal, born from his birth together with his body; the worst of these we send forth out from here; to us, O Jātavedas, confirm propitious ones.

The Anukr. appears to allow the contraction śivāśm- in ḍ. [As to "101," see iii. 11. 5 note.]

4. These same have I separated, like kine scattered on a barren (khilā); let the good (pūṇya) signs stay; those that are evil have I made disappear.

The pada-mss. read in a enāh; probably it is rather enā 'thus.' The comm. reads blunderingly at the end anīnaṣan, and understands tās as its subject, as if the form were not causative.* He glosses khila by vraja. The pada-reading vīsthitāśiva in b is according to Prāt. iv. 77. [In a good pasture, the cows would keep close together; on a barren, they would naturally scatter. Quite otherwise Pischel, Ved. Stud. ii. 205.] [ApṛS. iv. 15. 4 may be compared.] [The Anukr. does not note that c is catalectic.] * [Alternatively, however, he does take it as a causative.]

116 (121). Against intermittent fever.

[Atharvāṅgiras.—dvyyacam. cāndramasam. 1. puroṣṇih; 2. 1-av. 2-p. ārcy anuṣṭubh.]

This and the two following hymns are not found in Pāipp. This appears in Kāuṣ. (32. 17: Keç. adds, with hymn 117) in a remedial rite against fever, with aid of a frog as in hymn 95; and it is reckoned (note to 26. 1) to the takmanāṣana gāya.

Translated: Grohmann, Ind. Stud. ix. 386, 414; Zimmer, p. 381; Henry, 45, 124; Griffith, i. 384; Bloomfield, 4, 565. — Cf. also Bloomfield, JAOS. xvii. 173.

1. Homage to the hot, stirring, pushing, bold one; homage to the cold, former-desire-performing one.

The last epithet is extremely obscure and probably corrupt; the comm. makes kṛtvān from the root kṛt, and explains it as "cutting up or deferring the fruition of previous wishes"; Henry says "doing its will of old." Again SPP. changes the códanāya of five-sixths of his authorities and all of ours to nódanāya, because the comm. has the latter. The verse (9 + 7 : 12 = 28) is no uṣṇih except in the sum of syllables.

2. He that attacks (abhi-i) every other day, on both [intermediate] days, let him, baffled (avratā), attack this frog.

The comm. reads ubhayedyus. The verse, though really metrical (11 + 12) is treated by the Anukr. as prose (24 syllables).

117 (122). Invitation to Indra.

[Atharvāṅgiras. — āndram. pathyābrhatī.]

Wanting in Pāipp. Used by Kāuṣ. (59. 14), with hymns 85 and 86, in a rite for welfare; and it is, with 118, reckoned (note to 25. 36) to the svastyayana gaṇa; while a schol. (note to 137. 4) adds it and 118 in the introduction to the ājyatantra; that another uses it with 116 was noted under that hymn. And Vāit. (23. 9) repeats it in the agnisṭoma with the offering of the hāriyojanagraha.

Translated: Henry, 46, 125; Griffith, i. 384.

1. Come, O Indra, with pleasant peacock-haired bays; let not any hold thee away, as snarers a bird; go over them as [over] a waste.

The verse is RV. iii. 45. 1, found also as SV. i. 246 et al., VS. xx. 53, TA. i. 12. 2. Our (and SPP's) reading yāht in b agrees with all these, but is against our mss. and all but two of SPP's; they leave the word unaccented. RV.VS. in c have ut, which is plainly the better reading, instead of ut; SV. has the corruption ut yemur tu nā, and TA., yet worse, nyémūr tu nā. [TA. has at the end, corruptly, nidhanvéva tām imi.]

118 (123). When arming a warrior.

[Atharvāṅgiras. — bahudevātyam uta cāndramasam. trāṣṭubham.]

Wanting in Pāipp. Used in Kāuṣ. (16. 7) in one of the battle rites, for terrifying a hostile army, with arming a king or kshatriya; for its connection with hymn 117, see under that hymn; and some mss. read it in 39. 28, in a rite against witchcraft (probably wrongly, as the comm. knows no such use). Vāit. has it (34. 12) in the sattra sacrifice, with arming a king.

Translated: Henry, 46, 125; Griffith, i. 384.

1. I cover thy vitals with armor; let king Soma dress thee over with the immortal (amṛta); let Varuṇa make for thee [room] wider than wide; after thee conquering let the gods revel.

The verse is also RV. vi. 75. 18, found further as SV. ii. 1220, VS. xvii. 49, all these without variation from our text; but TS. (in iv. 6. 45) has vārmabhis in a, abht (for ānu) in b, vāriṇas te astu for vāruṇas te kṛnotu [improving the meter] in c, and, for ḍ, j. tvām ānu madantu devāh. The third pāda has a redundant syllable.

The last or tenth anuvāka, of 16 hymns and 32 verses, ends here; and the quoted Anukr. says [trītyā] 'nityāu soḍaṣa [cf. p. 413 end], and paro dvātriṅcaka ucyaṭe.

Two of our mss. sum up the book as of 118 hymns, others note only the number of vargas or decads; none say 123.

Here ends also the seventeenth prapāthaka.
