Introduction

onventional wisdom informs us that timing is everything. Esoteric philosophy teaches that same truth, but in a deeper and more spiritual way. “Tides of time” is a clichéd phrase, but it is also an accurate one. The heavenly bodies, including the one upon which we stand, move in their courses. Ebb and flow—flux and reflux. The energies stream around us and through us. Nothing stands still except perhaps us, as we pause to contemplate our place in the cosmos. If we are in tune with these energies, we can perceive them. We are then able to notice their effects on us, on others, and on the natural world. If we are adept enough, or possess the requisite knowledge, we can utilize the powerful energies of these tides to empower our magick and rituals.

One of my most cherished childhood possessions was a toy globe. It was just a dented tin thing with bright blue oceans and garishly colored countries, but around its base it had concentric circles that marked the seasons, the houses of the Zodiac, the months, and so on. I spent a lot of time studying that globe and doing what I now know was meditating upon its meaning.

As an adult, I heard the call of the Goddess and began following the Wiccan religion. Wiccans see the year as a wheel, ever turning, and this made perfect sense to me. When Wiccans speak of the Wheel of the Year, we generally mean the solar cycle, the Earth’s annual voyage around the Sun, and the eight sabbats with which we celebrate that voyage. The year is actually composed of many interlocking wheels, however. Those who practice magick do well to learn and remember this. All of these cycles influence the natural world, and we can use them to enhance our magick and rituals.

Perhaps it is because of that toy globe that I have always thought of the year as a series of circles. I have always been able to sense our place on the various wheels at any time, and this has been beneficial to me in my practice of magick. It was what prompted me to gather this information, to write this book, and to share my research with you. Please use it constructively, to work positive magick that benefits yourself or others. I am a witch who bides the Rede of "harm none," so any attempt to work negative magick with the aid of this book is more likely to fail than it is to succeed.

PART ONE

Using This Book

THE OBVIOUS USE FOR The Spellcaster's Reference is to determine auspicious times to cast spells, perform rituals, or engage in other magickal operations. It can, however, also be used in many other ways. Perhaps the most important of these is to understand and use the Principle of Correspondences.

Correspondences

"As above, so below."

This basic metaphysical principle means that everything in the Universe is connected, that the macrocosm influences the microcosm. All things and beings share atoms that are in constant motion. Nothing ever actually stands still. Nothing is truly separate or distinct. Everything is connected, but some things are more connected than others.

The Principle of Correspondences is also called the Law of Association. Correspondences are magickal shortcuts, direct links between things. Knowledge of them is extremely useful, because they help to achieve results.

Correspondences are a particular interest of mine, and I have been researching them for a long time. I am fascinated by how they have been applied in so many cultures, faiths, and traditions throughout history. From Mesopotamia to China, from Nabatea to Ireland, and from India to the New World, we find magickal correspondences. There is often wide agreement, but with variations for local climate, fauna, and flora. Sometimes there are cultural or religious differences. Whatever the case, all correspondences are powerful, and you can make use of them to increase the effectiveness of your workings.

Here, we will briefly discuss ways to incorporate correspondences.

Planets

In classical correspondences “planets” mean the seven heavenly bodies that our ancestors could observe with the naked eye: Jupiter, Mars, Mercury, Saturn, Venus, the Moon, and the Sun. The remote planets and even major asteroids also affect everything with their vibrations, but here we will confine ourselves to those heavenly bodies about which the most lore has been accumulated.

Knowing which planet has dominion over a time period or an intent affords the opportunity to utilize that planet’s correspondences in a working (see Hours, p. 102). It can help in deciding things such as which angels to evoke for a ritual, what flowers to use, or appropriate items to add to a spell bottle.

Elements

The elements recognized by most traditions are Earth, Air, Fire, and Water. As with the planets, knowing which elements have dominion over particular intentions or time periods affords the opportunity to utilize their correspondences in workings. Here are some basic examples:

Earth

Color: black, brown, green, ocher, russet

Tool: beeswax candle, pentacle

Charm: clay, honey, mud, musk, pottery, soil, yellow square

Stone: all

Animal: bison, buffalo, cattle, earthworm, goat, jaguar, mole, stag, tortoise, wolf, all burrowing creatures

Metal: coal, lead, mercury ☠

Fungus: mushroom

Incense: amber, benzoin, musk, patchouli, sage, sandalwood

Plant: all, but especially grain, roots, banyan tree, all root vegetables

Goddess: Bona Dea, Ceres (Mother of Corn), Cerridwen, Coatlicue, Danu, Demeter (Queen of the Fruitful Earth), Gaia, Hebat, Isis (Lady of the Land, Queen of the Solid Earth, Goddess of Green Things), Ki, Nerthus, Ninhursag (Lady of the Stone Ground), Nokomis, Onatha, Ops, Parvati (Lady of the Mountain), Persephone, Pomona, Rhea, Sita, Terra Mater (Mother Earth), Tonantzin (Bringer of Maize)

God: Adonis, Arawn, Attis, Bacchus, Cernunnos (Lord of the Forest), the Dagda, Damuzi, Dionysus, Geb, Green Man, Horned God, Marduk (Lord of Growth), Osiris (The Great Green, Grain of the Gods), Pan (Lord of the Woods), Saturn

Evocation: dryads, gnomes, nature spirits, plant devas, Uriel

Air

Color: blue, pale blue, sky blue, clear, white, pastels

Tool: athame, censer, sword, whistle

Charm: bellows, blue circle, fan, feather, flute, perfume

Stone: aventurine, lapis lazuli, clear quartz crystal

Animal: dragon, sphinx, all flying birds and insects

Metal: aluminum, mercury ☿

Fungus: fly agaric ☠, puffball

Incense: all

Plant: almond, angelica, anise, baby's breath, cedar, citronella, all citrus, dandelion, freesia, white geranium, goldenrod, honeysuckle, jasmine, lavender, lemongrass, lilac, pansy, parsley, pennyroyal, snowdrop, thyme, wormwood, yarrow, all plants and trees with spores, aerial roots, fluffy seed heads, winged seed pods, or which provide incense

Goddess: Aditi (Cosmic Space), Aine, Allat, Aradia, Arianrhod, Cardea, Cybele, Freya, Frigg, Hathor (Lady of Heaven), Hera, Iris, Isis (Mistress of the Sky), Juno, Lilith, Mary, Nut, Sekhmet, Semiramis

God: Adad, Amon (The Invisible One), Anu (Expanse of Heaven), Baal (Rider of the Clouds), Boreas, Enlil (Lord of Air), Great Spirit, Horus, Hurukan, Indra (God of the Blue Vault), Jupiter, Kephera, Krishna (Infinite One), Marduk (Wakener of Winds), Mercury, Odin, Quetzalcoatl (Feathered Serpent, Nine Wind), Shiva, Thor, Thoth

Evocation: angels, elves, fairies, Pegasus, Raphael

Fire

Color: gold, orange, hot pink, red, white

Tool: athame, candle, censer, sword

Charm: bonfire, civet, star, red triangle

Stone: coal, flint, hematite, red jasper, lava, obsidian

Animal: dragon, horse, lion, phoenix, salamander, snake

Metal: brass, gold, iron, steel

Incense: brimstone, copal, dragon's blood, frankincense, rose, rosemary

Plant: cactus, carnation, chili pepper, cinnamon, clove, dittany of Crete, eye of Satan ☠, garlic, ginger, High John, horseradish, jalapeño pepper, marigold, mustard, nettle, nutmeg, onion, pepper, radish, rowan, sunflower, tobacco ☠

Goddess: Aetna, Ashtoreth, Ayida Wedo, Bast, Brigid (The Bright One, Lady of the Forge), Chantico (Lady of the Hearth), Coatlicue, Fuji, Graine, Hestia, Kali, Oya, Pelé, Vesta (The Shining One)

God: Agni (Divine Fire), Baal, Belenus (The Brilliant One), Dazhbog, Hephaestus, Lugh (The Shining One), Mithras, Ogun (Lord of Metals), Prometheus, Shango, Tsao Chun (Lord of the Hearth), Vulcan

Evocation: djinna, Michael, Raphael, seraphs, Uriel

Water

Color: aqua, black, blue, clear, green, sea green, ultramarine, white

Tool: bowl, cauldron, chalice

Charm: ambergris, ice, rain, tears, inverted triangle

Stone: blue lace agate, aquamarine, coral, mother-of-pearl, water opal, pearl, clear quartz crystal, river rock, sea salt

Animal: crab, crocodile, dolphin, fish, frog, porpoise, seabirds, diving and wading birds, all marine life

Metal: copper, mercury ☠, silver

Fungus: all

Incense: camphor, coconut, myrrh, strawberry, vanilla

Plant: bat nut, cabbage, calamus, camellia, cantaloupe, cattail, cucumber, driftwood, eryngo, eucalyptus, fern, frangipani, gardenia, kelp, lettuce, lotus, papyrus, rice, rushes, watercress, watermelon, water lily, willow, aromatic rush roots, all gourds, reeds, aquatic plants, succulent plants, and those that grow near water

Goddess: Anahita (Great Goddess of Waters), Atargatis, Benzaiten, Bona, Chalchihuitlcue, Coventina, Danu, Ganga, Ilmatar, Inanna, Luonnotar (The Water Mother), Nantosuelta, Nehalennia (The Seafarer), Oshun, Ran, Sarasvati (Flowing Water), Sulis, Tefnut, Tiamat, Yemaya (Holy Queen Sea)

God: Aegir, Apsu, Dagon, Dylan, Ea (Lord of the House of Water), Enki (God of the Sweet Waters), Hapy, Mannan, Neptune, Njoerd, Poseidon, Tlaloc, Yamm (Prince Sea)

Evocation: Gabriel, Ganymede, merfolk, Michael, nereids, Raphael, water nymphs

Directions

Direction may determine which way you face during a ritual, or while casting a spell. Alternatively, they can help decide things like how to stir a potion, or where to place candles during a working.

Colors

You may incorporate color into a working with your choice of things like fabric for a charm bag, a robe for a ritual, candles for a spell, or an altar cloth for a season.

Numbers

You can incorporate numbers by answering the question “How many?” Examples include how many times you repeat an incantation during a working, how many ingredients you add to a magickal recipe, how many of a deity’s titles you use during an invocation, how many candles you place on an altar, how many participants speak during a ritual, or how many knots you tie in a mojo bag.

Metals

You may incorporate metal by your choice of tool for a working—an iron cauldron or a copper wand. You may instead reflect it in altar furnishings like a brass brazier or silver candlesticks. Many different types of objects can be used—copper pennies that you add to a charm bag, or jewelry like a gold necklace or platinum ring that you wear during a ritual.

Stones

You can incorporate a stone by wearing it during a working, such as an amber necklace or a pearl brooch. You may instead place the stone on the altar, using a large crystal, an amethyst sphere, or a dish of turquoise pieces. Small stones can be used in many ways, for instance to encircle candles while spells are cast, or to weave into witch’s ladders.

Animals

Real animals, as well as mythical creatures like basilisks and unicorns, are included in this category. The best results are obtained from workings that do not harm animals. Items that have been acquired without causing harm have no negative vibrations that can make your magick go awry. For this reason, images of animals are widely employed instead of actual creatures.

You can wear things like ceramic scarabs and carved stone fetishes on necklaces, for example, or add similar items to medicine pouches. Alternatively, you can place images of creatures—such as wood carvings or clay sculptures—on altars during workings. You can use representations of animals to decorate clothing—for example, a phoenix kimono or a dragon T-shirt that you wear during a working. Magickal tools can also represent animals, like a serpentine wand, or bear images of animals, like a knife with a lion on its handles.

You can also incorporate items provided by animals, such as feathers, into your workings. This means only using things that animals have shed naturally, like fur or snakeskin, or cast off after death, like seashells. You can place shark's teeth or cat hairs into spell bottles, for instance.

Plants

Here are a few examples of the myriad ways that plants can be used magickally. Dried flowers and herbs can be added to wax when candles are made, or ground and added to magickal powders. Fresh flowers can be used to decorate altars and ritual spaces, or woven into chaplets or garlands to wear during workings. Seeds and dried herbs can be added to mojo bags. Wood that is appropriate to a working could be used to kindle a ritual fire for it.

Creativity and imagination are your only limits, except to use common sense. Do not work with plants to which you are allergic. Toxic plants such as henbane or poison hemlock are better avoided. If a plant is illegal where you live, find a magickal substitute for it and use that instead. In this book, poisonous or dangerous substances will be marked with the icon ☠. The best magickal results are generally obtained when a working incorporates only those plants which correspond to its intent, or to its timing.

Fungi

Fungi can be used in the same way as plants. You can add dried mushrooms, for example, to spell bottles and charm bags. You can safely avoid poisonous fungi by only using fungi that are sold as food.

Incense

Burning an appropriate incense can greatly empower a working. You can burn a vanilla joss stick, toss frankincense tears onto a brazier, smolder dragon's blood resin on a charcoal disk, or burn a cone of sandalwood incense or a dried branch of rosemary. The method is not important. What matters is that the incense correspond to the intent or the timing of the ritual, spell, or other magickal working.

Charms

A charm is an object that is incorporated into a working. It can be honey or an egg you eat, milk or wine you drink, ambergris incense you burn, almond oil or musk cologne you use for anointing, a piece of driftwood you add to a fire, a tool you use, or something you wear. A charm may also take the form of an image or an item you place on an altar, at the center of a ritual circle, or elsewhere. I provide a great variety of charms in this book.

Deities

Invocation is an appeal to a higher power. Gods and/or goddesses can be invoked to empower magick. This is especially true when they are specific to a working, or to the auspicious time for it. This book can be used to determine whom it is appropriate to invoke at any given time. When a deity has a relevant title, it is provided in parentheses after his or her name. An example of this is Juno (Light of Heaven), a title for that Roman goddess in her solar aspect.

Invocation may be voiced or psychic, formal or informal—whatever seems correct to you. Remember that it is always polite to show respect and thank deities after you have called upon them.

Evocations

You can also appeal to lesser beings than deities for help in magick and rituals. These include angels, demigods, fairies, heroes, nymphs, and other mythological figures. These beings are evoked rather than invoked. Simply saying their names aloud and sincerely requesting their assistance is usually sufficient. With this book, you can identify appropriate entities to evoke for workings at specific times.

Rituals and Spells

You can use the information provided here to create spells and rituals, as well as schedule them. Several examples follow. Use them to help create your own magickal workings.

A Ritual for Justice

Let us suppose that you and the members of your metaphysical circle are concerned about justice being done in an impending murder trial. You discuss it and decide to hold a ritual to influence the trial's outcome. Checking Part 4 of this book, Intent and Magickal Timing, you discover these correspondences under "Justice":

Monday/Thursday/Saturday/first hour after sunrise on Sunday, Thursday, or Saturday/first hour after sunset on Sunday, Tuesday, or Wednesday/Waning Moon/Dark Moon/Full Moon in October/October/Libra/Pisces

To bring someone to justice: Saturday/first hour after sunrise on Saturday/first hour after sunset on Tuesday

You are all outraged by the murder, believe that the accused is guilty of it, and want him convicted. The calendar tells you that the Full Moon, one week hence, will fall on a Saturday. It seems clear that holding your ritual at dawn on that Saturday is very auspicious, so that is when you schedule it.

You consult this book's correspondences for Saturday and plan the rite. Everyone agrees to dress in black, wear diamond jewelry, and hold black feathers. You will use seven dark blue pillar candles to delineate the ritual area, each surrounded by a ring of poppy seeds. You will burn frankincense and invoke the Norns.

A Spell to Banish Negativity

Imagine that meditation has helped you to identify a negative pattern that you keep repeating in your life. You are determined to banish this. A friend has given you a Banishing Spell that you think will be good, but you must choose a time to cast it. You check Part 4, and note these correspondences for Banishing:

Sunset/Saturday/first hour after sunrise on Tuesday or Saturday/first hour after sunset on Tuesday or Friday/Waning Year/Waning Moon/Waning Crescent Moon/Dark Moon/Full Moon in February, September, October, November, or December/Disseminating Moon/Winter/January

It's July, so you are in the Waning Year. The Waning Moon will begin in a few days, so you decide to wait for that. Sunset feels auspicious to you. It is also convenient, so you decide to cast the spell at sunset on your next day off.

As directed by the spell, you gather items that represent the negative pattern and put them on your altar. The spell does not mention other props, so you refer to this book's correspondences for sunset. With their aid, you decide to burn purple candles and jasmine incense while you cast the spell. You also decide to invoke Dusk Zorya and request her help with the banishing.

A Personal Ritual for Strength

Suppose that physical weakness has been a problem for you. You face some upcoming challenges and need to be strong enough to meet them, so you decide to create a personal ritual. You check Part 4, and find these correspondences for Strength:

Sunday/Tuesday/first hour after sunrise on Sunday or Tuesday/first hour after sunset on Wednesday or Friday/Summer/June/Aries/Taurus/Leo physical strength: Sunday/Tuesday/first hour after sunrise on Tuesday/first hour after sunset on Friday/Sagittarius

Physical strength is your primary concern. You decide to hold your rite on a Tuesday, and consult an almanac to choose a time that is under the House of Sagittarius. You refer to this book's section on the Zodiac for Sagittarius correspondences, and design your ritual. Four purple candles will mark the quarters. The altar will have a censer of dragon's blood and a large vase of peacock feathers on it. You will wear a purple robe and an amethyst ring. While holding a bow or an arrow, you will invoke Artemis and Apollo, and ask them to send you strength with the speed of an arrow's flight.

A Ritual for Healing

Imagine that you were injured in an accident. You have had all appropriate medical treatment but want to help your healing go quickly, and go well. You check Part 4, and see these correspondences for Healing:

Dawn/Sunday/Monday/Tuesday/Wednesday/Thursday/
Friday/first hour after sunrise on Sunday, Monday, Wednesday, or Friday/first hour after sunset on Monday, Wednesday, Thursday, or Saturday/New Moon/Waxing Moon/Full Moon (especially in February, March, May, August, September, October, November, or December)/Dark Moon/Spring/
January/February/June/Gemini/Virgo/Scorpio/Aquarius

to heal wounds: Monday

You have many choices. A large gash in your leg is the injury that worries you the most. Evening is the most convenient time for you to work, so you decide to cast your spell the first hour after sunset on the next Monday.

You decide to make a charm bag, empower it for healing, and carry it until you are fully recovered from the accident. That is when you will enchant it.

Referring to this book's correspondences for Monday, you get a small white muslin bag and add a silver cord as its drawstring. You had already decided to fill the bag with dried healing herbs from your magickal supplies, but now you add some crystal chips, two dimes, and two drops of menstrual blood that your girlfriend has kindly provided.

On that Monday evening, you don a silver ring and a heavy silver bracelet, and prepare your altar. Upon it, you place a pair of pearly white candles in silver candlesticks, a large sphere of clear quartz crystal, and two coconut incense sticks in a holder that is inlaid with mother-of-pearl. At the center of the altar, you make a circle of willow twigs, and you put your charm bag in the middle of that.

You have not written a spell. Instead, you light the incense and candles, call quarters, raise power, and cast a magick circle. You speak sincerely to the Great Mother and ask Her to help you to heal. You hold your charm bag over the incense smoke to suffume it, and empower it with your spell's intent. You promise the Goddess that you will carry the charm bag with you, and sleep with it beside your bed, until your healing is finished. You thank Her, ground power, put the charm bag in your pocket, and clean up. A few weeks later, when you have completely recovered, you dig a hole beneath your favorite tree and bury the charm bag there.

Inspiration & Magickal Things

The Spellcaster's Reference can also be used as a source of inspiration. Here are suggestions for some of the many ways that you can use it. They are merely suggestions, however. You should be creative, and devise your own ways to make ethical use of the information provided in these pages. The information can be used to create many different magickal items. I give you several examples, but please regard them only as guidelines. Use this book to create your own unique amulets, formulas, potions, powders, talismans, and tools.

Francis Barrett wrote in The Magus (1801):

It is here to be particularly noticed by us, that, in forming of a charm, or amulet, it will be of no effect except the very soul of the operator is strongly and intensely exerted and impressed, as it were, and the image of the idea sealed on the charm, or amulet for, without this, in vain will be all the observation of times, hours and constellations therefore, this I have thought fit to mention, once for all, that it may be almost always uppermost in the mind of the operator, for, without this one thing being observed and noticed, any who form seals, &c., do fall short of the wished for effect.

Remember that simply making something at an auspicious time is not enough to imbue it with magick. You must raise power and focus your intent while you make it. The more creativity, ingenuity, intensity, and effort you put into making a magickal object or tool, the more powerful and effective the item is likely to be.

Candles

A stock of candles is a very handy thing for most practitioners of magick to have on hand. Here are two types of candles that you can make.

Daily Solar Cycle Candles

Perhaps it is your practice to pray or make offerings daily, at regular times. If so, you can prepare special candles for that. For instance, you can make pink candles for dawn, and invoke Aurora to empower them. For noon, make bright yellow candles and call upon Ra to charge them. Make purple candles for sunset and invoke the Crone to empower them. For midnight, you can make midnight-blue candles and call upon Hecate to charge them. Finally, for the overnight hours, you can make black candles and invoke Amon to empower them. Alternatively, you can buy candles in those colors and call upon those deities to charge them, as appropriate.

Lunar Cycle Candles

Perhaps you are attuned with the Moon, and generally hold your workings in accord with its cycles. If so, you can use this book to prepare special candles for those workings. For example, you can make silver ones for the New Moon and invoke Selene to enchant them. For the Waxing Crescent Moon, make orange candles, scent them with rose oil, and invoke Tanith or Thoth to empower them. Make red candles for the Waxing Moon and call upon the Maiden to charge them.

For Full Moon workings, make deep-yellow candles, scent them with jasmine oil, and invoke Diana to empower them. Make gray candles for the Waning Moon and call upon Cailleach to enchant them. For the Dark Moon, make black candles and invoke Hecate to empower them. Finally, for a Blue Moon, you can make blue candles. If you prefer, you can also buy a stock of candles in those colors, invoke the appropriate deities to charge them, and use appropriate oils to consecrate them.

Incense

Incense is burned in many traditions, for every kind of working. Incense works best if it is prepared at a time that is auspicious for it, and if it is made with ingredients that correspond to its purpose. Each incense should smell appropriate to the intent of the working, in the opinion of the one who burns it. Scent is very subjective, so experiment to create incense that works for you. If you do not wish to make incense, you can buy sticks or cones of it in specific scents, and use this book's information to empower them at auspicious times for their intended purposes.

Loose incense burns best when its ingredients are powdered, finely crushed or chopped, and well blended. All incense stores best in airtight containers, away from moisture and strong light.

Astrological Incense

Perhaps you often reflect the Zodiac in your workings by casting spells and doing other things at times that are astrologically auspicious for them. If so, you can use this book to make twelve different types of loose incense that can be burned over self-igniting charcoal during workings, as appropriate.

Aries Incense: This may contain equal parts copal, dragon's blood, and myrrh resins, along with cedar chips that have been impregnated with musk oil. It can be made on a Tuesday afternoon after anointing yourself with musk cologne, and invoking Macha or Mars to empower it.

Taurus Incense: This may contain equal parts benzoin resin, dried oak-moss, and patchouli leaves, along with six drops each of hyacinth, rose, and violet oils. It can be blended at midnight on a Friday with a bronze dagger, while wearing green garments and a ring with a green stone. Invoke Frigg or Dionysus to empower it.

Gemini Incense: This may contain equal parts dragon's blood, labdanum, and mastic resins, along with drops of mint oil. It can be made on a breezy Wednesday morning while facing West, mixing it in a container that stands between a pair of stone obelisks. Evoke the Dioscuri to empower it.

Cancer Incense: This may contain equal parts powdered sandalwood, camphor, and myrrh resins, along with drops of ambergris oil. It can be made on a Monday night, while standing in moonlight and wearing something silver. Invoke Diana or Kephera to empower it.

Leo Incense: This may contain equal parts amber chunks, copal and frankincense resins, along with dried saffron threads and drops of civet oil. It can be made on a Sunday morning after anointing yourself with civet oil, while wearing something gold. Invoke Sekhmet or Ra to empower it.

Virgo Incense: This may contain equal parts sandalwood powder, dried patchouli leaves, and cedar chips that have been impregnated with honey-suckle oil. It can be made on a Wednesday night while the Sun or Moon is in Virgo. Invoke Athena or Forseti to empower it.

Libra Incense: This may contain galbanum resin to which drops of apple blossom, rose, and thyme oils have been added. It can be made on a Friday afternoon after anointing with rose oil. Invoke Minerva or Shango to empower it.

Scorpio Incense: This may contain equal parts dried patchouli leaves, benzoin, and myrrh resins, along with drops of pine and violet oils. It can be made on a Tuesday night while the Sun is in the house of Scorpio. Invoke Selqet or Pluto to empower it.

Sagittarius Incense: This may contain equal parts dried copal resin, dried rosemary and sage leaves, along with drops of sweet orange oil. It can be mixed with a peacock feather on a Thursday morning in the Autumn while facing East, wearing purple clothes. Invoke Epona or Jupiter to empower it.

Capricorn Incense: This may contain benzoin resin to which drops of cypress, pine, and spruce oils have been added. It can be made during the Winter, while the Moon is in the house of Capricorn. Invoke Freya or Pan to empower it.

Aquarius Incense: This may contain equal parts benzoin, galbanum, and mastic resins, along with drops of eucalyptus and lavender oils. It can be mixed with a metal wand on a Saturday morning while facing West, wearing blue garments. Evoke Ganymede to empower it.

Pisces Incense: This may contain equal parts dried sage leaves, sandalwood powder, and storax resin, along with drops of ambergris and fish oils. It can be made on a rainy Thursday night while wearing a necklace that has a coral horn on it. Invoke Atargatis or Enki to empower the incense.

Elemental Incense

An Elemental Incense can be used for any working that corresponds to a certain element, or to a time period over which that element has dominion (see Part 2). Here are some examples:

Earth Incense: This may contain equal measures of amber chunks, benzoin resin, dried patchouli leaves, and several drops each of honey and musk oil. It can be mixed atop a pentacle at midnight on a Saturday during the Waxing Moon. Invoke Gaia or the Horned God to empower it.

Air Incense: This may contain equal measures of powdered myrrh resin, sandalwood powder, and cedar wood chips that have been impregnated with lavender oil. It can be blended with a blue feather at dawn on a Wednesday, while wearing blue garments. Evoke Pegasus to empower it.

Fire Incense: This may contain equal measures of copal, dragon's blood, and frankincense resins, along with several drops of rose oil. It can be mixed with an athame at noon on a Sunday during the Summer. Invoke Brigid or Agni to empower it.

Water Incense: This may contain equal measures of powdered camphor and myrrh resin, along with several drops of gardenia oil. It can be mixed in a cauldron during the first hour after sunset on a Monday. Invoke Anahita or Ea to empower it.

Magickal Oils

Magickal oils are most often used for anointing and consecrating. They can also be added to bathwater, or to magickal recipes such as those for incense and powders. A magickal oil generally contains scented oils that are added to a base oil like olive or mineral oil. Essential oils are natural and the most powerful, but you can also use artificial fragrance oils. The amount of scented oil you add depends on the volume of base oil, and on personal preference. Scent is highly individual. Something that smells beautiful or overwhelming to one person, often elicits a totally different reaction in someone else. You should experiment, and make magickal oils that are pleasing and useful to you.

It is important that an oil's ingredients correspond to its magickal intent, and that the oil be made with that intent firmly in mind. Magickal oils are most effective when they are prepared in this way at a time that is auspicious for their intent, and if a deity who has dominion over the intent or the timing is invoked to empower them.

Number correspondences can be incorporated into the creation of magickal oils in many ways. These may include how many ingredients are used in a formula, or how many charms are placed in a bottle, or how many drops of scented oils are added to the base oil. Substances like dyes, inks, and food coloring can be used to include color correspondences. These substances often do not mix well with oil, however, so you must shake the bottle well to blend the oil each time it is used. Magickal oils may also contain other ingredients that augment their potency. Small items like seeds or crystal chips can be added to them for this purpose.

It is best to store magickal oils in dark, tightly sealed bottles, in places that are cool, dark, and dry. Shake them to mix before using, and discard them before their base oil's shelf life expires. When an oil's scent is gone, so is its magick.

Here are a few examples of some of the many types of magickal oils you can make with the information in this book. Remember that this is only meant as a guide. You should make oils that please your sense of smell and are appropriate for your workings.

Daily Oils

Some traditions consider the day that corresponds to a person's astrological sign their personal power day. Practitioners who hold this belief often like to work magick on that day. Try making a Personal Power Oil using this book, and use it to anoint yourself or dress candles for workings held on that day. If you burn candles every day, you can use The Spellcaster's Reference to help you create a special set of seven oils for consecrating them. Here are some sample recipes:

Sunday Oil: This may contain drops of cinnamon, clove, and bitter orange oils. They can be added to a base of sunflower oil along with drops of tincture of benzoin and yellow food coloring, and a small piece of amber or flakes of gold leaf. It can be mixed on a Sunday at noon while wearing yellow clothes, standing in sunlight, and burning cinnamon incense. Invoke Sunna or Shamash to empower it.

Monday Oil: This may contain drops of jasmine, lavender, and rose oils. They can be added to a base of rice bran oil along with drops of camphor spirit, and flakes of dried coconut and silver leaf. It can be mixed on a Monday night, while standing in moonlight and burning coconut incense. Invoke Luna or Chandra to empower it.

Tuesday Oil: This may contain drops of carnation, cedar, and cinnamon oils. They can be added to a base of mineral oil along with drops of red food coloring, a pine needle, and a small piece of dragon's blood resin. It can be mixed on a Tuesday with a dagger, sword, or athame on the altar, while facing East, burning dragon's blood incense and wearing an iron ring. Invoke the Morrigan or Tyr to empower it.

Wednesday Oil: This may contain drops of bayberry, rosemary, and violet oils. They can be added to a base of hazelnut oil along with a small cinnamon chip, a hematite chip, and some orange glitter. It can be mixed on a Wednesday while wearing blue clothes and burning sage incense. Invoke Ma'at or Odin to empower it.

Thursday Oil: This may contain drops of calendula (marigold), lemon balm, and sage oils. They can be added to a base of olive oil, along with drops of blue food coloring, three rye seeds, and some saffron threads. It can be mixed on a Thursday with a peacock feather, while wearing a crown of laurel (bay) leaves and burning sage incense. Invoking Asase Yaa or Thor to empower it.

Friday Oil: This may contain drops of apple blossom, peppermint, and rose oils. They can be added to a base of almond oil along with drops of pink or green food coloring, a very small piece of copper wire, and five dried coriander seeds or rose hips. It can be mixed at dawn on a Friday with a pigeon feather, while wearing green garments and burning rose incense. Invoke Freya or Freyr to empower it.

Saturday Oil: This may contain drops of basil, hyacinth, and thyme oils. They can be added to a base of sesame oil along with drops of black ink or food coloring, a sliver of pumice stone, and seven poppy seeds. It can be mixed with a black feather on a Saturday while dressed in black, facing North and burning patchouli incense. Invoke Cybele or Ninib to empower it.

Planetary Oils

A Planetary Oil can be used for any working or time period over which a planet has dominion (see page 102). Here is an example of a Planetary Oil for each planet:

Jupiter Oil: A Jupiter Oil may contain drops of cedar, cinnamon, and clove oils. They can be added to a base of olive oil along with a small piece of lapis lazuli, a raw almond, and some blue glitter. It can be mixed on a Thursday during a thunderstorm, while wearing something made of wool and burning vanilla incense. Invoke Hera or Jupiter to empower it.

Mars Oil: A Mars Oil may contain drops of carnation, cedar, and musk oils. They can be added to a base of olive oil along with red coloring, a rose thorn, a few cactus needles, and a coffee bean. It can be mixed with an athame on a Tuesday night while wearing a red garment, facing South, and burning dragon's blood resin. Invoke Sekhmet or Mars to empower it.

Mercury Oil: A Mercury Oil may contain drops of bergamot, mint, and pennyroyal oils. They can be added to a base of hazelnut oil along with two dill seeds, two star anise, and some multicolor glitter. It can be mixed on a breezy Wednesday while facing North and burning sandalwood incense. Invoke Pombagira or Mercury to empower it.

Moon Oil: A Moon Oil may contain drops of gardenia, jasmine, and lemongrass oils. They can be added to a base of mineral oil, along with a drop of spirits of camphor, a tiny white seashell, and a freshwater pearl. It can be mixed on the night of a Full Moon, while wearing a white cotton garment and a silver ring, and burning jasmine incense. Invoke Diana or Sin to empower it, then leave it to stand in moonlight overnight.

Saturn Oil: A Saturn Oil may contain drops of fir, hyacinth, and violet oils. They can be added to a base of mineral oil, along with two caraway seeds, two pomegranate seeds, and a small piece of a black root. It can be mixed on a Saturday afternoon with your left hand while wearing black clothes and burning brimstone. Invoke Kali or Saturn to empower it.

Sun Oil: A Sun Oil may contain drops of cinnamon, lemon, and orange essential oils. They can be added to a base of sunflower oil, along with a drop of honey, yellow coloring, and a tiny chunk of amber. It can be mixed at noon on a sunny Sunday while wearing a gold ring and burning frankincense. Invoke Amaterasu or Phoebus Apollo to empower it, then leave it to stand in bright sunlight for an hour.

Venus Oil: A Venus Oil may contain drops of gardenia, lavender, and rose oils. They can be added to a base of almond oil, along with three coriander seeds, a rose-quartz chip, and some rose hips. It can be mixed at midnight on a Friday while wearing a copper bracelet and burning sweetgrass. Invoke Venus or Angus to empower it.

Mojo Bags

Charm bags, mojo bags, medicine bags—different traditions have different names for them, but they are basically the same thing: small bags, generally with a drawstring closure, that contain charms like herbs and stones, and are empowered with specific magickal intentions. A mojo bag can be for courage, healing, protection, spiritual growth, or any other purpose, but it will work best if it is made at an auspicious time and kept close to the body. For this reason, mojo bags are often worn around the neck, hanging on the chest. This book can help you make many different kinds of mojo bags. Some examples follow:

Love Mojo Bag

Suppose that you want love to enter your life. You refer to the entry for Love and find:

Dawn/Monday/Thursday/Friday/first hour after sunrise on Monday, Wednesday, or Friday/first hour after sunset on Monday, Thursday, or Saturday/Waxing Year/New Moon/Waxing Moon/Full Moon (especially in March, May, October, and November)/Blue Moon/Summer/April/May/June/October/Taurus/Libra/Capricorn

Many auspicious times are given, but mornings are best for you. You decide to make and consecrate your bag just after dawn on the next Friday, when both the Moon and the Year happen to be waxing.

To your way of thinking, the planet Venus has prime dominion over love, so you decide to incorporate its correspondences into your mojo bag. You fashion it from green fabric, sew it with pink thread, and use a silver cord for its drawstring. Into it, you place three sugar cubes, three cowry shells, three vanilla beans, three rose hips, powdered honey, and dried lavender flowers or rose petals.

You light a pink rose-scented candle and three vanilla joss sticks. Next, you raise power, call quarters, and cast a magick circle. Within it, you close the bag by firmly tying seven knots in its drawstring. You anoint the bag with seven drops of rose oil, and suffume it with the incense and candle smoke by holding it over them. As you do that, you focus on the exact type of love you want to attract, and repeat this incantation seven times:

*Honey, sugar, vanilla, mead,
Let this charm bring what I need.*

Still holding the mojo bag over the smoke, you invoke the goddess Venus. You speak to her sincerely, tell her what is in your heart, and ask her to empower your mojo bag with sufficient magick to attract it. Finally, you thank her, open the circle, ground the power that you raised, and clean up. You keep the bag close to you for the next few months, occasionally squeezing it as you repeat the incantation, until you meet the type of person that you want to meet. Once that happens, you again thank Venus and bury the mojo bag.

Seasonal Mojo Bags

You can make seasonal mojo bags for yourself, or as gifts for others. Each should be made at an auspicious time, enchanted to attract the specific blessings of that season, kept close at hand throughout the season, and then discarded.

Spring Mojo Bag: For Spring, you may make a green bag and fill it with dried flower petals, feathers from birds that are meaningful to you, and a small image of a dragon. The bag can be made at dawn on the morning of the first New Moon of Spring, and consecrated with rose oil. It may be empowered for awakening, beauty, fertility, growth, and/or renewal. This can be done in the smoke of jasmine incense, while invoking Maia or the Green Man.

Summer Mojo Bag: For Summer, you may make a red bag and fill it with dried carnation petals, sunflower seeds, pearl barley, and a small image of a sphinx. The bag can be made at noon on the first sunny day of Summer, and consecrated with clove oil. It may be empowered for courage, passion, protection, strength, and/or will. This can be done in the smoke of cinnamon incense, while invoking Urania or Khirkhib.

Autumn Mojo Bag: For Autumn, you may make a brown bag and fill it with dried fallen leaves, dried oakmoss and chrysanthemum petals, along with a piece of shed snake skin. The bag can be made in early Autumn, while the Moon is waning, at a time that is ruled by the house of Scorpio, and consecrated with drops of wine. It may be empowered for abundance, lust, maturity, money, transformation, and/or inner work. This can be done in the smoke of patchouli incense, while facing West and invoking Pomona or Tammuz.

Winter Mojo Bag: For Winter, you may make a white bag, draw or embroider snowflakes on it, and fill it with evergreen needles, rosemary, dried holly leaves or berries, and tiny pinecones. The bag can be made at sunset on the first snowy Winter day, and consecrated with melted snow. It may be empowered for banishing, grounding, meditation, dream work, and/or past-life work. This can be done while facing North in the smoke of myrrh incense, while invoking Skadi or Ullr.

Affirmations

An affirmation is a positive statement that you repeat. Affirmations can be used to bolster yourself, improve your mind-set, or modify your behavior. They are powerful tools for positive thinking, tools that can promote positive changes in you and transform your life.

Affirmations are not “one-size-fits-all.” We each have different needs and goals, that change as we move through life. It is useful to update your affirmations periodically. Here are some examples of how you can use this book to create personal affirmations for yourself.

Daily Affirmations

The unique energies and correspondences of days can empower affirmations that are used on those days. Whether you need to make something happen, reach a goal, or overcome an obstacle, heartfelt repetitions of the right affirmation on the right day can help you to achieve your objective.

This book can help you to create personal affirmations that are tailored to your needs. One way to do this is to identify what you would like to address. Next, refer to Days of the Week (p. 88). Read through them until you find an auspicious day for your intention, and use that day's correspondences to design your affirmation. Each day is appropriate for many different workings, so you may wish to include more than one thing in your affirmation. Here are some examples.

Sunday Affirmation: “I give myself permission to be happy, and have fun.” This can be repeated seven times on Sundays, perhaps while burning cinnamon incense.

Monday Affirmation: “I do not doubt myself.” This can be repeated as many times as needed on Mondays, perhaps after anointing yourself with jasmine oil.

Tuesday Affirmation: "I am strong. I can overcome anything." This can be repeated on Tuesdays as many times as needed, perhaps while holding a ceremonial dagger or sword.

Wednesday Affirmation: "I am intelligent and resourceful. I communicate my ideas clearly." This can be repeated five times on Wednesdays, perhaps with one hand on your throat chakra.

Thursday Affirmation: "I notice opportunities, and I act on them." This can be repeated on Thursdays as many times as needed, perhaps while burning sage incense.

Friday Affirmation: "I set things in motion. I can change things." This can be repeated six times on Fridays, perhaps with one hand on your heart chakra.

Saturday Affirmation: "I am wise. I know my limits. I banish the people and things that are toxic to me." This can be repeated six times on Saturdays, perhaps while wearing a diamond ring.

Monthly Affirmations

The specific energies and correspondences of months can also be used to create and empower affirmations. Here are some examples, to use as guidelines for creating monthly affirmations of your own.

January Affirmation: "I have confidence in my goals, and will make them manifest." This can be repeated daily throughout the month as many times as needed, perhaps while holding a pinecone.

February Affirmation: "I clear from my home and my life all that weighs me down, holds me back, serves me ill, or is no longer needed." This can be repeated daily throughout the month, as many times as needed, perhaps while burning sage incense.

March Affirmation: "I am brave. I have the courage to change my life. I can achieve (or maintain) success." This can be repeated daily throughout the month, as many times as needed, perhaps while holding an image of Athena or the Morrigan.

April Affirmation: "I have confidence in myself. I notice opportunities, and take advantage of them." This can be repeated daily throughout the month, as many times as needed, perhaps while holding a hawk feather.

May Affirmation: "I bubble with creative energy. My passion is my strength. I can make things grow, achieve my visions, and inspire others." This can be repeated daily throughout the month, as many times as needed, perhaps after anointing yourself with rose oil.

June Affirmation: "I am strong and responsible. I make good decisions." This can be repeated six times, as often as needed throughout the month, perhaps while holding an image of Isis.

July Affirmation: "I open my arms and accept the blessings that the Universe offers me." This can be repeated daily throughout the month, as many times as needed, perhaps while burning frankincense.

August Affirmation: "I count my blessings, give thanks for them, and appreciate what I have." This can be repeated eight times daily throughout the month, perhaps while holding a sheaf or basket of grain.

September Affirmation: "I think deeply. I am wise. My spirituality grows and deepens." This can be repeated daily throughout the month, as many times as needed, perhaps while burning copal incense.

October Affirmation: "I am hopeful about the future. I release all my anger, resentments, hard feelings, and everything that limits me or holds me back." This can be repeated daily throughout the month, as many times as needed, perhaps while holding newly fallen leaves.

November Affirmation: "I am brave and flexible. I call upon my ancestors to guide me, as I prepare for my future." This can be repeated daily as many times as needed throughout the month, perhaps while holding something that represents your ancestors or their culture.

December Affirmation: "I give myself permission to emerge, and to shine." This can be repeated daily throughout the month, as many times as needed, perhaps while burning myrrh incense.

Seasonal Affirmations

Each season has specific energy that makes it auspicious for certain workings. You can use this book to access seasonal energy and correspondences in order to create many different affirmations. Examples follow, as guidelines.

Spring Affirmation: "I awaken. I am reborn. I am beautiful (or handsome). I feel alive. I grow and I thrive." This can be repeated daily during the Spring, as many times as needed, perhaps after anointing yourself with a floral cologne, perfume, or oil.

Summer Affirmation: "I am brave and passionate. I have infinite capacity for love. I wield the magical energy that flows through me." This can be repeated daily during the Summer, as many times as needed, perhaps while burning ginger incense.

Autumn Affirmation: "I deserve abundance. I deserve abundance. I am ready to harvest all the seeds that I have sown." This can be repeated daily throughout the Autumn, as many times as needed, perhaps while holding a chalice of water.

Winter Affirmation: "I am grounded. My feet are planted firmly. I build solid foundations for myself. I have vast inner resources, and can find my answers within." This can be repeated daily during the Winter, as many times as needed, perhaps while holding an evergreen branch.

Yearly Affirmations

The energies and correspondences of the two halves of the year are distinctly different—directly opposite, in many cases. You can use them to create powerful personal affirmations that address a wide variety of things. Examples are provided, as guidelines.

Waxing Year Affirmation: "I attract positive people and situations. I can overcome obstacles. I strengthen the relationships that are important to me. I invite positive changes in my circumstances." This can be repeated daily from Winter Solstice to Summer Solstice, as many times as needed, perhaps while wearing a crown of oak leaves.

Waning Year Affirmation: "I banish from my life all that is baneful to me. I will end my bad habits. I avert everything with negative energy. I keep clear my home and my life, so that I may thrive." This can be repeated daily from Summer Solstice to Winter Solstice, as many times as needed, perhaps while holding or regarding an image of the Horned God.

Guidance

The Spellcaster's Reference can also be used for guidance. Pinpoint your position on the Wheel of the Year, and open to that page. Ask your question, something like:

Where should my focus be?

What should I work on?

Why aren't I content?

What is the source of my problem?

How can I change things?

What am I missing?

What is my purpose in life?

How can I improve things?

Read the entry with an open, unfocused mind, and your answer should jump out at you. Nothing jumps? You've selected the wrong Wheel. Try another, such as the day or the season, and you should find your answer there.

Suppose that you ask how you can improve your life and choose the current lunar phase, which is Full Moon. You scan the entry and "dream work" jumps out at you. Thinking about it, you realize that you have not been sleeping well, or paying attention to your dreams. You resolve to improve your sleep habits, to actually block out eight hours for rest every night. You also buy a notebook, write Dream Journal on its cover, and place it beside your bed with a pen. By doing this, you have made arrangements to contact your subconscious and see what messages it may have for you. In a few weeks, when you see whether or not dream work and better sleep have improved the quality of your life, you will know if this was the answer you sought.

Now suppose that you ask what you should work on, and choose the current astrological phase, which is Pisces. You scan that entry and “reorganization” jumps out at you. That is obvious, as you sit at an untidy desk in a messy room. You realize that you can get your life in order by getting your files and finances in order. This is something that has been simmering at the back of your mind for some time, but now you’re actually ready to do it.

Now imagine asking the same question—“What should I work on?”—but choose the Wheel for the day of the week. When you scan that entry, “personal fulfillment” jumps out at you. It doesn’t make immediate sense to you why that should resonate so strongly, so you meditate on it. You are surprised when you realize that you have been putting others ahead of yourself for many years, and that this has left you with unfulfilled goals and dreams. You discover that better time-management may allow you to work on the most important of your goals, while still helping others.

Global Use of This Book

I live in the Northern Hemisphere. I write from that perspective, but The Spellcaster’s Reference can be used anywhere on this planet. Much of it can be used as written because the days, planetary hours, astrological year, and lunar phases influence magick the same way everywhere on Earth.

Certain parts of the book will need to be adapted or disregarded in some places. For example, there are locations near the poles where the Sun never sets, or never rises. The daily solar cycle information will need to be adjusted or ignored as seems best to practitioners living there. Many places do not experience four traditional seasons, so the same will need to be done with the seasonal information in those locales. That was how I practiced when I lived in Egypt, utilizing the summer information much of the year, but making scant use of other seasonal correspondences.

Many things in the Southern Hemisphere occur in an opposite way to those in the Northern Hemisphere. I’ve never been there, but practitioners in places like Australia, New Zealand and South America have told me how they work. These suggestions are based on that. Reverse the information about the months, to match the seasons as they occur: apply January's information to June, February's to July, and so on. Do the same with each month's Full Moon. Use information about the halves of the year when they happen: Waning Year from Winter Solstice to Summer Solstice, and Waxing Year from Summer Solstice to Winter Solstice.

Northern Hemisphere authors have written most works about magick. That is reflected in the correspondences found herein, but they are not the only ones. Mother Nature provides us with everything we need to work magick, provides it abundantly and in great diversity. Adjust the correspondences as needed, to reflect climate or other conditions, and incorporate local things. Be sensitive to your surroundings, and notice the effects of the Wheels of the Year on the natural world. There is magick in everything, from flora to fauna to the different types of sand and snow.

This book is best used in accord with personal practices or traditions, and local conditions. I have a great imagination, but I cannot truly know what the flow of energy feels like near the equator or in the Southern Hemisphere. I hope that all readers will trust their inner voices, harm none, and use this book in the ways that seem best to them. Adopt whatever works, and adapt or bypass the rest.

Glossary

I have drawn on widely varied sources, including ancient ones to create The Spellcaster's Reference. Because some of the words in this book may be unfamiliar to you, I have included an extensive Glossary at the end of the book.

Since plants often have a multitude of folk names, I have also provided a reference of the botanical names for the most unusual plants, along with many of their alternate folk names.

PART TWO

The Year

DEVISING WAYS TO MEASURE TIME is one of the things that defines us as human. At our least sophisticated, before we learned to write, we cut notches on sticks or made marks on cave walls to count the passages of the Moon. Different cultures eventually created various systems of time measurement and produced different calendars, many of which were repeatedly revised because they were unwieldy or simply didn't work.

Terrans finally settled on our present system of 365 days, divided into twelve months, with seven-day weeks composed of 24-hour days. We can utilize the various divisions of that calendar year in our magick and rituals.

Waxing Year, Waning Year

The most basic of the Wheels of the Year is the solar cycle that bisects the year at the solstices, into its waxing and waning halves. Sunlight increases from Winter Solstice to Summer Solstice, then decreases from Summer Solstice to Winter Solstice.

Waxing Year

The Waxing Year begins at Winter Solstice, when the Sun is least able to warm the Earth. The Sun is then "reborn." The light half of the year begins, and the hours of daylight start to lengthen. The dark or waning half of the year begins at Summer Solstice with the longest day; the waxing half of the year begins with the longest night.

In Wiccan terms, this is when the Child of Promise is reborn to the Mother Goddess. In mythological terms, tanists exchange places: Dionysus gives way to Apollo, Set to Osiris, Mot to Baal, John the Baptist to Jesus, the Holly King to the Oak King, the Green Knight to Sir Gawain, and so on. The rule of the Lord of Light supersedes that of the Dark Lord over the Wheel of the Year. Balance is maintained.

This half of the year, like the Waxing Moon and the Rising Sun, is a powerful time for deosil magick. It is a great time for constructive workings that attract, charge, improve, increase, invite, strengthen, and overcome. Examples are workings to attract love, charge magickal tools, improve living standards, increase income, invite success, strengthen relationships, and overcome darkness. It is also an auspicious time for workings that are related to light, manhood, masculinity, and warmth.

Waxing Year Correspondences

Sun/Male

Animal: ram, robin

Plant: mistletoe, oak

God: Adonis, Apollo, Baal, Byelobog, Green Man, Jesus, Lugh, Osiris

Evocation: Achilles, Diarmuid, Hercules, Oak King, Robin Redbreast, Robin Redman (King of the Waxing Year), Sir Gawain

Waning Year

The Waning Year begins at Summer Solstice, when the Sun “dies” and the hours of daylight begin to shorten. Summer Solstice marks the peak power of the Sun. Just as the light or waxing half of the year began at Winter Solstice with the longest night, the dark or waning half begins now at Summer Solstice with the longest day.

In Wiccan terms, the God stands in virile manhood beside the pregnant Goddess, and lovingly offers himself in sacrifice for the good of all. In mythological terms, tanists exchange places: Apollo gives way to Dionysus, Diarmuid to Finn Mac Cool, Lugh to Bran, Byelobog to Czarnobog, Robin Redbreast to Jenny Wren, Achilles to Agamemnon, and so on. The rule of the Dark Lord supersedes that of the Lord of Light over the Wheel of the Year. Balance is maintained.

This half of the year, like the Waning Moon and the Setting Sun, is a powerful time for widdershins magick. It is a great time for workings that avert, banish, clear, decrease, end, lessen, repel, and weaken. Examples include workings to avert evil, banish bad habits, clear entities, decrease loneliness, end illness, lessen financial problems, repel enemies, and weaken negative influences. It is also an auspicious time for workings that are related to darkness, femininity, and womanliness.

Waning Year Correspondences

Sun/Female

Animal: wren

Plant: holly, ivy

God: Balor, Beli, Bran, Czarnobog, Dionysus, Horned God, Mot, Set

Evocation: Agamemnon, Finn Mac Cool, Green Knight, Holly King, Jenny Wren, John the Baptist, Tityas

The Seasons

The seasons, which divide the year by four, are profound sources of magick. They constantly change, so their energy is a powerful force for making things happen.

The Astrological Year

Just as the annual calendar divides the year into twelve months, the Zodiac divides it into twelve houses. The zodiacal year is believed to have originated in Babylon, evolving from episodes in the Epic of Gilgamesh. The ancient stories of Gilgamesh, of Jason and the Argonauts, of the twelve labors of Hercules, and even the passion play of Isis and Osiris, may be read as the voyage of the year through the twelve houses of the Zodiac.

The astrological year begins in the spring with Aries, the Ram, and circles onward to Pisces, the Fish. Starting and ending dates for the various houses and signs are approximate, as you will find slightly different ones in various sources. Each sign runs from the latter part of a calendar month, to the latter part of the next calendar month. If you want to do a working near a cusp—when two signs come near or overlap—you can use correspondences from either of them, or from both.

The Zodiac is sacred to the goddesses Cerridwen, Tanith, and Al Uzza. It has been called Ishtar's Girdle, The Bestiary, the Circle of Animals, the Girdle of Gaia, the Circle of the Sky, and Our Ladye's Way. The bull was originally a cow, the lion a lioness, the ram an ewe, and so on, until patriarchy supplanted matriarchy.

It is important to note that the astrological year is lunar as well as solar. The Sun transits through each of the twelve houses of the Zodiac for one month of the year, while the Moon transits through each house every month. An almanac or an astrological almanac can be used to track this. If, for example, it is July and you want to cast a spell that is best cast under Taurus, you need not wait until April or May of the next year. With the help of an almanac you can determine when the Moon will be in Taurus during July, and cast your spell then.

Tables of Planetary Hours

I have never had the patience to follow this, but perhaps you do. An almanac or other authoritative source is needed to determine the exact times of sunrise and sunset for each day of the year. Starting from those points, you take the daytime and nighttime hours and divide them by twelve to determine the time periods that are ruled by each planet. Except on the Spring and Autumn Equinoxes, the “hours” will not be sixty minutes long.

Just thinking about this gives me a headache, but if you have more patience and better math skills than I do, you can work it out. These traditional charts can be used to further empower your magick, as outlined in the preceding material.

PART THREE

Other Cycles

THE PLANETARY BODIES that we can most easily observe and experience are the Moon and Sun. They are fixtures in our sky, so we cannot help but notice their movements or feel their effects. Everyone has seen the Moon and been warmed by the Sun. Even those with no sense of wonder have been enchanted by moonbeams, moved by the beauty of moonlight sparkling on water, or filled with hope or joy when storm clouds parted and slants of sunlight revealed an arching rainbow.

Consider, then, how powerfully lunar and solar energies can be wielded by practitioners who are sensitive to them. To work white magick is to weave light. Use the information in this section of the book to boost the success of your workings with lunar or solar power.

Lunar Cycles

The Moon follows a regular cycle of 28 days every lunar month, and the wise practitioner makes strategic use of that in magick. There are two ways to do this. The first is simple, the second more esoteric, but they both work. The simple method is to regard the Moon as having three phases (Waxing, Full, Waning) and to work magick accordingly, as outlined below. The second method further categorizes the Moon's phases, counts the days, and provides additional opportunities for specific workings, as also outlined below.

You can use either method, a combination of the two, or even disregard the Moon altogether in deciding when to cast your spells, make magickal things, or hold your rituals. This is for you to decide, as is how you feel about working magick during the Dark Moon, or when the Moon is void of course.

New Moon

(also called Balsamic Moon;
the first three days that the Moon becomes visible)

*When the Lady's Moon is new,
Kiss thy hand to Her times two.*

—REDE OF THE WICCAE¹

The New Moon is a powerful time for meditation, raising, reclaiming, reflecting, releasing, and for workings that are related to agriculture, beauty, beginnings, birth, career, compassion, forgiveness, gardening, growth, healing, health, hunting, increase, initiation, joy, love, networking, optimism, rebirth, reflection, rejuvenation, renewal, romance, self-improvement, speech, stability, transformation, virginity, weddings, cyclical rebeginning, erotic dreams, fresh starts, new friendships, new ideas, new partnerships, new projects, new relationships, new ventures, personal growth, surreptitious advantage, states of ignorance, and clarity leading to wisdom.

The New Moon is also an auspicious time to begin workings that will take a long time to complete, and for workings to attract love, buy animals, destroy lies, end strife, make plans, begin anything new, consecrate new tools, find a job, create a shield of protection, and get a new angle on a problem.

It is also an auspicious time for workings to banish negative thoughts, clear negative vibrations, protect children, and work with ancestors. Depending on where you live, this may also be a good time for weather magick.

December's Full Moon

Names for December's Full Moon include Bear Moon, Baby Bear Moon, Big Winter Moon, Bitter Moon, Christmas Moon, Cold Moon, Elder Moon (11/25–12/22), Groundhog Mother's Moon, Moon before Yule, Moon of Long Nights or Long Night or Long Night's Moon, Moon of Popping Trees, Moon of Vision, Peach Moon, Rowan Moon, Snow Moon, Spirit Moon, Twelfth Moon, and Wolf Moon.

It is a powerful time for banishing, divination, pathworking, astral projection, male magick, positive magick, vision quests, and for workings that are related to empowerment, endurance, healing, prosperity, transformation, wholeness, wisdom, and interpersonal connections. It is also an auspicious time for workings to free yourself from the control of others.

Disseminating Moon

(the third to seventh days after the Full Moon)

The Disseminating Moon is a powerful time for banishing, meditation (especially on your accomplishments), and workings that are related to addictions, creativity, decisions, decline, decrease, divorce, emotions, health, protection, sharing, and stress. It is also an auspicious time for workings to end strife.

Disseminating Moon Correspondences

Waning Moon

(also called Third Quarter Moon; the seventh to tenth days after the Full Moon)

*Widdershins go when the Moon doth wane,
An' the Werewolf howls by the dread Wolfsbane.*

—REDE OF THE WICCAE

The Waning Moon is a powerful time for averting, banishing, binding, clearing, divination, releasing, Crone magick, and workings that are related to balance, change, conclusion, darkness, death, decisions, decrease, divorce, endings, evaluation, intuition, justice, prophecy, protection, quarrels, rebirth, rejection, release, removal, resolution, reversal, reworking, self-criticism, separation, spirituality, transformation, weakness, wisdom, Crone power, deep secrets, inner secrets, old age, simple life, the Underworld, and death and resurrection.

In the body, this is an appropriate time for workings that are related to disease, menopause, chronic illness, loss of consciousness, and the power of healing. It is also a good time for workings to banish addictions, diminish aches and pains, and reduce obesity or high cholesterol. With respect to people, it's a great time for workings that are related to Crones, enemies, divorced people, the elderly, and post-menopausal women.

The Waning Moon is also an auspicious time to conjure spirits, purify an athame, and to banish, end, diminish, overcome, reduce, release, remove, stop, and winnow. Rid yourself of all that is baneful to you during the Waning Moon, such as in workings to overcome diseases, remove hexes, reverse fortune, stop losses, banish negative influences, winnow negative people, end problems or bad habits, and release negative attachments or situations.

Waning Crescent Moon

(the tenth day after the Full Moon until the Moon is no longer visible)

The horns of the Moon face right during the Waning Crescent Moon. It is a powerful time for banishing, clearing, meditation, inner work, and for workings that are related to decrease, diminishment, ebb, reduction, and understanding. Examples include workings to break habits or lose weight. Hair cut at this time will grow back slowly.

Waning Crescent Moon Correspondences

Waning Crescent/Night

Color: black, gray

Goddess: Hecate, Sesheta

Dark Moon

(also called Black Moon and Lost Moon;
the three days when the Moon cannot be seen, eleven to fourteen days after the Full Moon)

Some practitioners say that no magick should be performed at this time because of unpredictable results. They use Dark Moon energy for divination, deep meditation, dream work, vision quests, or to rest and recharge. Others consider the Dark Moon a powerful time for banishing, clearing, Crone magick, inner work, and for workings that are related to addiction(s), answers, change, darkness, death, doubt, endings, enemies, healing, illumination, intuition, invisibility, justice, loneliness, obstacles, quarrels, questions, separation, solitude, wisdom, inner strength, old age, personal matters, spiritual understanding, and the Mysteries. They also see it as an auspicious time for workings to battle attackers, impose justice, reject negativity, deal with anger, and understand your dark side.

Workings must be completed before the Dark Moon reaches its darkest point. It then becomes the New Moon, which has very different energies.

Void of Course Moon

(when it does not make aspects to planets)

The Void of Course Moon occurs every several days, and can last minutes, hours, or days. It fluctuates widely and ends when the Moon enters an astrological house, so an annual astrological almanac is needed to track it. This is a time that, in a sense, is not time, because the Moon is between realms. It is powerful for confusion, detachment, disconnection, fallibility, inconstancy, miscommunication, bad decisions, false starts, unexpected results, wasted efforts, and wrong answers. Some practitioners hold that you can overcome it by doubling magickal energy, but spells cast at this time will generally not manifest, and anything begun during this time will usually not succeed.

The Void of Course Moon is, instead, an auspicious time for meditation, astral projection, and inner work. It is also a good time to rest and recharge magickal batteries. The exception, say some, is when the Moon is void of course in the houses of Cancer, Pisces, Sagittarius, or Taurus. They consider that a powerful time for workings that correspond to those signs (see Astrological Year).

Blue Moon

(also called Goal Moon and Hearth Moon; when a Full Moon appears twice in the same calendar month; or the third of four Full Moons occurring in the same quarter of a year)

A Blue Moon is a powerful time for divination, wish magick, and workings that are related to fertility, goals, love, prophecy, protection, the home, and the rare and unusual. It is also an auspicious time for workings to learn lessons, manifest truth, and improve your life. The moonlight of a Blue Moon is considered especially potent, and thought to have the power to speak to anything upon which it shines.

Blue Moon Correspondences

Color: blue (every shade)

Sidhe Moon

(also called Fairy Moon, Moon of the Other People, Black Moon, and Other Moon; the second New Moon occurring in one calendar month)

A Sidhe Moon is a powerful time for fairy magick and workings that are related to productivity, creative expression, fairy power, and the Other-world. It is also an auspicious time to find an animal or spirit guide.

Sidhe Moon Correspondences (see also Black Moon)

Animal: familiars

Plant: white flowers

Evocation: fairies

Dry Moon

(also called Cheshire Moon)

A Dry Moon can be seen in the northern hemisphere during Summer, when the horns of a Crescent Moon appear to tilt, so that the Moon looks like a vessel that could hold any liquid poured into it. In Hawaiian mythology, this was an explanation for dry weather.

A Dry Moon is an auspicious time for workings to hold on to things, such as money, possessions, or relationships.

Wet Moon

(also called Dripping Wet Moon)

A Wet Moon can be seen in the northern hemisphere during Winter, when the horns of the Crescent Moon appear to tilt, so that the Moon looks like a vessel that would spill any liquid poured into it. In Hawaiian mythology, this was an explanation for rain.

A Wet Moon is an auspicious time for releasing and for workings that are related to abundance, fertility, and rain.

Wet Moon Correspondences

Water

God: Kaelo (Water Bearer)

Black Moon

This term can be confusing because it has five meanings, in different traditions.

1. A second New Moon occurring in one calendar month.
2. The third of four New Moons occurring in one quarter of a year.
3. A time before the New Moon when the Moon cannot easily be seen with the naked eye.
4. A calendar month without a Full Moon. This usually happens in a February.
5. A calendar month without a New Moon or a Dark Moon. This usually happens in a February.

Black Moon Correspondences (see Dark Moon)

Daily Solar Cycles

Dawn and twilight are both potent with magickal energy because each is a time-between-time, neither light nor dark. Noon is the time of maximum solar energy. Midnight is the traditional “witching hour”—a time-between-time as one day becomes another. Some ancient Egyptian magickal texts called for workings to be repeated four times on the same day, at sunrise, noon, sunset, and midnight. That is something that you may wish to incorporate into your practice for major undertakings.

Sunrise

Dawn, like the Waxing Year and the New Moon, is a powerful time for deosil magick: constructive workings that attract, charge, improve, increase, invite, strengthen, and overcome. Like the New Moon, it is an auspicious time for workings that are related to beginnings, birth, growth, initiation, optimism, raising, rebirth, rejuvenation, renewal, cyclical rebeginning, erotic dreams, fresh starts, new ideas, new partnerships, new projects, new relationships, and new ventures. It is also a great time for chanting, meditation, releasing, visualization, Air magick/rituals/spells, and for workings that are related to ascent, awakening, crossroads, emergence, employment, healing, health, hope, light, love, modesty, opening, possibilities, purification, resurrection, return, romance, self-improvement, study, youth, auspicious beginnings, business success, morning light, nourishing dew, and the conscious mind.

Sunrise is also an appropriate time to begin spells, make offerings, say affirmations, gather magickal plants, kindle sacred fire, invoke or worship dawn deities, dispose of used liquid spell ingredients (by tossing them outdoors toward the East), and for workings to break addictions, banish or overcome darkness, perform satires over rulers, make solar charms and recipes, see that promises are kept, activate the potential of a new day, and get a new angle on a problem. A naked priestess can bless a field by circling it deosil at dawn.

Sunrise Correspondences

Sun/Rising Sun/Air/East/Male/Dawn/Spring

Color: gold, orange, peach, pink, rose

Charm: Orphic Cup (goat's milk with honey), scarab

Animal: baboon, white horse, platypus, rooster, all birds that sing near dawn, and all creatures that are active at sunrise

Plant: daffodil, ladies mantle (use dew found on the leaves at dawn as a charm for female problems), vervain, and all plants with flowers that open near sunrise

Goddess: Aja, Albina, Amaterasu (Great Shining Heaven), Atanea, Aurora (Golden Dawn, Herald of the Sun), Auska, Austrine, Aya, Bast (Lady of the East), Bezla, Chasca, Chun T'i, Dilbah (She Who Opens the Heavens in Her Supremacy), Eos (Dawn Maiden, She of the East), Etain, Gendenwitha, Hanwi, Hathor, Iris, Ishtar (Queen of the Rising of the Sun), Isis (Maker of the Sunrise, Mistress of the Dawn, Goddess of the Rosy Dawn), the Maiden, Marici, Mater Matuta, Ostara (Rising Light, Radiant Dawn), Rohini (Red One), Sengen-Sama, Tefnut (Dew of Dawn), Theia, Thesan, Ushas, Waka-Hiru-Me, Xoli-Kaltes, Yolkai Estsan (White Shell Woman), Dawn Zorya

God: Amon, Aruna, Auilix, Cautes, Dellinger, Enlil (Lord of Air), Harmakhis (Horus in the Horizon), Heimdall, Horus, Janus, Kephera (He Who Has Come Forth), Ku, Lucifer (Light-Bringer, Son of Morning), Mithras (Rising Sun), Nefertem, Ptah (Opener), Salim, Savitar, Shahar, Tlahuizcalpantecuhtli (Lord of the House of Dawn), Tlalchitonatiuh, Vohu Manah

Evocation: Bean Nighe, Gazardiel, Michael

Noon

As Full Moon is the time of maximum lunar power, noon is the time of maximum solar power. It is a great time for centering, solar magick, Fire magick/rituals/spells, and workings that are related to courage, energy, money, protection, and strength. It is also an auspicious time for all workings of the Sun, such as the making of solar charms and recipes.

Noon Correspondences

Sun/Fire/Center/Noon/Summer/Leo

Color: yellow, white

Goddess: Hemera (Queen of Day), the Mother

God: Mithras, Ra (Lord of Rays)

Sunset

Like the Waning Year and the Waning Moon, dusk is a power time for widershins magick: workings that avert, banish, clear, decrease, end, lessen, repel, or weaken. Twilight is also a great time for meditation, prayer, visualization, mirror magick, Water magick/rituals/spells, and workings that are related to closure, conclusion, darkness, death, endings, hopelessness, removal, resolution, reversal, sorrow, transformation, and weight loss.

Sunset Correspondences

Sun/Setting Sun/Water/West/Female/Dusk/Autumn/Winter

Color: blue, indigo, orange, pink, purple, red

Stone: amethyst

Animal: fox, lion, owl, platypus, all creatures that become active at dusk

Plant: all night-blooming plants and trees

Goddess: Annis, Atargatis, Bast, Breksta, the Crone, the Dark Goddess, Dysis, Hanwi, Nephthys, Sandhya, Sekhmet (Lady of the West, Mistress of the Evening Barque), Dusk Zorya

God: Amon (The Hidden One), Astraios, Atum (The Closer), Baal, Baal Qarnaim (Two-Horned Ba'al), Cautopates, Janus, Mithras, Osiris, Savi-tar, Set, Shalim, Tayau Sakaimoka

Evocation: Bean Nighe, Endymion, the Hesperides (the Westerly Ones, Daughters of the West)

Midnight

Midnight, the traditional witching hour, is prime time for magick. It is auspicious for any working, but specific for candle magick, sex magick, Earth magick/rituals/spells, and for workings that are related to cross-roads and truth.

Midnight Correspondences

Venus/Full Moon/Earth/North/Taurus

Color: black, midnight blue, dark green

Animal: bat, owl, toad

Goddess: Aeval, Hecate (Dark Mother, Goddess of Midnight), Midnight Zorya

God: Baal Zephon (Lord of the North)

Night Sun

It is easy to forget that the Sun is still there at night—still powerfully impacting the Earth and still available for magick. Night is a power time for solar workings that are related to cloaking, invisibility, underestimation, hidden power, and surreptitious advantage.

Night Sun Correspondences

Sun/Night

Color: black, clear

Animal: all nocturnal creatures

Plant: all night-blooming plants and trees
