Pages in the original are marked thus at the bottom: {page number}
Comments and descriptions are also set off by curly brackets {}
Comments and notes not in the original are identified with the initials of the source: e.g. WEH note = Bill Heidrick note, etc. Descriptions of illustrations are not so identified, but are simply in curly brackets. Spelling has been corrected by the original editor, without notation in the text.

(Addresses, offers and prices/charges below are not current but copied from the original text. The O.T.O. Newsletter is no longer published, but other Grand Lodge and Local O.T.O. periodicals exist. Thelema Lodge continues, but is no longer the Grand Lodge of O.T.O. For current status of publications, membership, etc. contact O.T.O. at the address provided above.)

The O.T.O. NEWSLETTER was published by Ordo Templi Orientis. from mid 1977 e.v. to 1980 e.v. The editor and printer was Bill Heidrick. The original edition was profusely illustrated after No. 1, but these illustrations are not reproduced here. The O.T.O. NEWSLETTER was replaced as the Grand Lodge periodical in January 1981 e.v. by THE MAGIC(K)AL LINK, which continues in publication at the time of this transcription.

Footnotes have been expanded at or near the point of citation within double angle brackets, e.g. <<footnote>>.

THE GREEK QABALAH

"A complete Dictionary of all sacred and important words and phrases given in the Books of the Gnosis and other important writings both in the Greek and the Coptic."

-- "from" The Curriculum of A.'. A.'.

This work has been lost for many years, and perhaps the greater part of it will remain lost for many more. The present form of Liber MCCLXIV, provided here, is a compilation made from a photocopy of the small slips of paper left by Crowley and Leah Hirsig. These slips have been preserved by Frater N, known otherwise as G. Y.<<WEH NOTE: Gerald Yorke.>> Many of them have been lost. Many more would have been written to complete the work. Some idea of the loss can be obtained through use of this work. References to items not found are frequent. Omissions are notable: GR:Theta-epsilon-lambda-eta-mu-alpha = 93, GR:Alpha-gamma-alpha-pi-eta = 93, GR:Alpha-Beta-Rho-Alpha-Sigma-Alpha-Xi = 365, to provide examples. The work does not go far toward its goal of dealing with the Gnosis in Greek or Coptic, but there are unannounced turns of emphasis that are most valuable. In particular, considerable labor has been expended on elucidating passages and words found in LIBER AL, and English words generally. Some Hebrew entries have been added.

The Greek Lexicon probably used by Crowley in this work survives, and contains many notes, including: "Began to mark words etc for the Greek Qabalah An. XV (1919) Sol in Gemini." 93 Press hopes to be able to sift this lexicon at some future date for additional entries to THE GREEK QABALAH. The reference is Liddell and Scott Greek Dictionary -- words lacking English meanings here would be best furnished them through use of that dictionary. The present editor has abstained from adding many of these English meanings owing to the likelihood of error in Crowley's emphasis. Notes on the more difficult entries will be found after the text. Very simple words, having obvious meanings, have been provided with English meanings in a distinctive type face. Where Crowley or Hirsig have provided the English meanings, these have been distinguished by the same type face used in this introduction. A summary of the meanings of the different type faces will be found just after this introduction.<<WEH NOTE: For reasons of compatibility with different electronic users, this electronic transcription will use a different convention. See below.>>

Crowley noted the following Principles of working on the fly leaf of his Liddell and Scott:

"1. Avoid compounds.

2. Collect prefixes, their numbers to be learnt by heart, so that people can add 'em on for trials and then use dict. "(most frequently forms of the definite article:

"GR:eta", "GR:omicron", "GR:tau-omicron", etc., to judge by Crowley's usage)."

3. Put genitives, futures etc in sub-line.

4. Make separate dictionary of roots.

"Could I refer to other numbers of same root: e.g. to Aion put the number of aionios aionobios k.t.l.?"

"I shall make it a rule to take no notice of any Greek Qabalah that is not fortified by exterior circumstances; i.e. of nothing purely potential."

It is the hope of this editor that persons will be found willing to enlarge this work through their own researches. Briefly, these are the most important classes and types of sources from which to draw the Greek: Classical: The works of Homer (most important of all sources). Platonic: The Timaeus, The Republic. Neoplatonic: works by Plotinus, Porphyry and Iamblichus. Gnostic: the Codex Brucianus (Bruce MS 96, Bod. Lib. Oxford) -- especially the portion published by Charlotte A. Baynes in 1933 e.v. as "A Coptic Gnostic Treatise Contained in the Codex Brucianus." Osirian: The New Testament and the Septuagint of Ptolemy II. Many other valuable sources abound; but these, in particular the Classic and the Gnostic examples, will be found to provide the most help. Where difficulty is experienced in finding Greek and English texts, consult Lynn Thorndike's History of Magic & Experimental Science, Columbia University Press, several editions.

Coptic texts and translations may be found in the library collections of the larger universities, the following table by Budge should help in determining the number values:

{This table of Egyptian and Coptic Numbers has been omitted from the electronic edition}.

Greek and Hebrew numeric equivalents will be found at the bottom of several pages in the text to follow.

Here are examples of the meanings of the different type faces used in this version of Crowley's The Greek Qabalah:

{In this electronic edition, prefatory abbreviations are used instead, as noted} alpha-beta-gamma-delta-lambda ... Alpha-Beta-Gamma-Delta-Lambda ... The Greek words and notes. In a few obvious cases, involving English transliterations, these have been added by the editor -- otherwise they are original.

HB:HDGBA ... Hebrew entries.

"HB:HDGBA" ... In text notes to the Hebrew entries.

...Arabic (one entry described) abcde ... ABCDE ... meanings to the entries written either by Crowley or Hirsig.

ED:abcde ... ED:ABCDE ... meanings added by the editor.

CH:abcde ... CH:ABCDE ... notes to the entries by Crowley or Hirsig.

[ED:abcde ... ED:ABCDE] similar notes added by the editor.

[NB:ABCDE ... NB:abcde...] English words from the original or from obvious Greek transliterations in the original.

(N1) (N2) (N3) (N4) ... Notes to be found in the back of the work.

Special symbols in the text:

*...This symbol is used to identify entries in which Crowley has counted the value 6 for Digamma (Stau) but written sigma-tau (500, the modern method of rendering the archaic letter Stau). In these instances, the form corresponding to the value taken has been used here.

@...Crowley has used an odd abbreviation, {ligature of two letters, an "o" trailing off to cross a Theta}, to represent the Greek letters alpha-kappa-alpha-theta in his original text. The value is 31<<WEH NOTE: Crowley gets this value by a complex way of thinking. Take Sigma-Taw over into Hebrew as Shin-Taw. Then take the numbers of the corresponding Tarot Major Trumps: XX & XXI. Add these: 20 + 21 = 31!>>, and the meaning is negation. These have been spelled out.

An example page from the photocopy of the index slips. The appearance here is about the average in quality and clarity for these pages. Let the user of this edition beware of a work made solely on the basis of such a source!

{Illustration on this page is of very nearly illegible slips of paper with Greek, numbers and sometimes English}

{14}

The editor would like to express his thanks to Fr. N, and to Brother Bill Breeze -- to the former for the preservation of this work, to the later for the photocopy used in this reconstruction.

-- Bill Heidrick, editor.

Computation Abnormalities

Items in this list are evident errors in calculation of numeric value. Rather than simply putting these entries in the places that match their correct number totals, they have been collected here. It is possible that Crowley saw some particular significance in these word-number associations, and that these errors may reflect something of value in regard to his ideas.

Technical Notes

1. Two numbers on the slip: 36 & 39.
2. This entry is in Greek on the slip, with the first letter like Nu. The numeration requires that this letter have the value 6. Because Nu has a shape quite close to the English V, I have assumed that the value 6 = HB:V = V is correct. By phonetic transliteration, the word then becomes "VITAL" -- which is given in the edited version here.
3. A small note on the slip appears to read:[lambda-omega-sigma] -- not clear.
4. There is some lack of clarity on the first two letters and the last. This slip was badly reproduced, heavily re-traced in pen, and appears to have caused speculation as to alpha-theta or sigma-theta for the first two letters long ago.
5. The Greek in the middle column is so difficult to read that it could be quite different -- only the apparent similarity of the main entry allows this interpretation.
6. The entry is as written in this edition. Analysis of the probable transliteration would combine Hebrew and Greek: HB:V GR:omicron-lambda-epsilon.
7. The sound of the W is part of the word, but not the English spelling. Again, this word should be combined Greek and Hebrew transliteration: HB:V GR:omicron-sigma-epsilon. It may be that a visual effect is desired by this, in that two Hebrew words having the value 13 mean "love" and "unity". These are: HB:AHBH and HB:AChD. These two were known to Crowley.
8. This entry is written on a slip which also contains other notes. The slip is torn and difficult. Reproduced as is at right {illustration in printed edition only}
9. The only original material here is the 160 + 8. This signifies that pi-alpha-lambda-alpha-mu-eta is to take the definite article GR:eta -- in other words, totals like this refer to the combination of their equivalent words or particles. Where this is obvious, no further note will be made. Where there is slight doubt, a note will be made. Where the doubt as to the words intended is great, no interpretation will be ventured in this edition.

10. This particular Greek word may be misspelled. The GR:rho looks like GR:sigma on the slip, but the total of 176 on the slip requires GR:rho. A dictionary gives mu-epsilon-lambda-alpha-sigma = black = 276.

11. The slip is illegible with regard to the Greek word. Crowley has a tendency to write GR:gamma like GR:eta. What has been written here looks like eta-eta-sigma, by numeration would have to be either gamma-eta-sigma or eta-gamma-sigma; and cannot be identified via dictionary -- according to a note on the slip by another hand.

12. Some notes on this slip are not easily read. The slip is reproduced here at the right {illustration in printed edition only}. The material at the top in the square brackets appears to read "unseen anni.....Hades"; while the material in the rounded brackets at bottom may be either "kabs" or "kappa-alpha-rho-sigma". {41}

13. The Arabic given in the text of this edition follows the number value given for this entry by Crowley. What is written on the slip looks more like: {illustration in printed edition only}.

14. A note in either English or Greek (one word) is on this slip with the entry. It is illegible.

15. Again the Hebrew letter Vau has been introduced with the Greek to provide a "V" or "U" or "W" sound in transliteration. For reference to a similar practice by Crowley, see "Magick in Theory and Practice", Chapter V, page 31 to 35 (HB:VYAa'aV and FIAOF) and Liber Samekh, footnote to Point I, Section B. Crowley uses "F" in the English Alphabet to identify both Vau and digamma (also called "Stau"). Owing to the use of "F" for digamma-stau in this edition, the use of this letter to replace Vau has been avoided. To be sure, the letters make the same sound, and a Greek Dictionary could well have the "F" character in all these places. As a knowing caprice of the editor, this altered convention has been introduced. As an instructor in the use of Crowley's magical formulas, I am tired of hearing digamma or vau pronounced like "eff". By the trick of using Vau in text where Crowley has left out the actual transliteration, I hope to send the reader wandering into these notes. The nature of this trick should impress the memory of the reader, so that I may hope never again to hear F pronounced "eff" where it should be "u". I suppose this note is a bit unprofessional of me, but that doesn't bother me at all.

16. This entry provided part of the clue to the symbol mentioned in the note at the bottom of page 13. Another word is noted on this slip, but it is so illegible that it cannot be identified to the point of Greek or English.

17. Other words are on the slip, but cannot be identified.

18. This is most certainly intended to be Kephra, the other Hebrew portion is the name of an obscure Qabalist Rabi -- cited only on the off chance that some connection might materialize.

19. This word from LIBER AL, III:76 does not seem to have a clear relationship to the number 418 by Greek transliteration. What Crowley intended is obscure. It is possible that vowels were substituted on a model similar to that used for Enochian in EQUINOX I,7, and that digamma was used for both ST and V. Not enough information is on the slip to decide this matter.

20. Other words are on the slip that cannot be read beyond "easily h...".

21. This total must result from a spelling of the component letters in full: GR:delta = delta-epsilon-lambda-tau-alpha GR:Digamma = delta-iota-gamma-alpha-mu-mu-alpha (digamma). Elsewhere, Crowley spells GR:Digamma = sigma-tau-alpha-epsilon or Digamma-alpha-epsilon (Stau).

22. An unidentified English word is on the same slip.

23. All that is on the slip is: 370 + 128 = 498. The entry in this edition is a deduction by the editor.

24. The transliteration and the numeration of this entry are both unsure.

25. The second word means "is".

26. The meaning of this entry is unknown -- either a Greek word with this meaning or an unusual method of transliteration. {42}

27. The interpretation of "61" as xi-alpha is without basis other than simple expression of this number-value in Greek letters -- not on the slip.

28. Helios and Selene, Sun and Moon. The sigma-theta may refer to several things, but the total of these two letters is 209 (see this entry). The rendering of a similar structure as alpha-kappa-alpha-theta is not probable in this case. The letter name of Sigma means sign (see the next entry -- taken from this same index slip). Crowley may also be referring to the fact that Theta looks a bit like a sun symbol (circle with a dot in the middle), while Sigma is sometimes rendered as a crescent -- that is in fact the most probable explanation for the cryptic entry under the number 209. Thus, by shape: GR:Theta = Sun, GR:Sigma (GR:sigma, C) = Moon.<<WEH Note to electronic edition: Of course, Sigma-Theta can be pronounced "Set" and related to the last of the 231 gates of the "Sepher Yetzirah" -- see Crowley's notes to "Liber Reguli".>>

29. The entry is exactly as written: "666 x 1 = he".

30. At this point, a slip occurs with just this information; "671 Restriction (1165)". A counter slip is found under 1165 which simply reverses the numbers. Obviously, something is meant by this. The most likely is a transliteration into Greek from English for the word "Restriction". This would be rho-epsilon-sigma-tau-rho-iota-kappa-tau-iota-omicron-nu (1165) or rho-epsilon-digamma-rho-iota-kappa-tau-iota-omicron-nu (671). This example is made slightly more complex than the usual through both the absence of the transliteration in the original slip and the need for the use of the Stau (GR:Digamma = GR:sigma GR:tau = st) that has usually been noted by an asterisk in the edition of the text. This application of Stau is different from the application of Digamma by the letter Vau or the use of GR:Digamma without asterisk. In the latter case, Vau is used when the sound is to be rendered like "u", "V" or "w", and GR:Digamma without asterisk has been used when that has appeared as such on the index slips. The point noted here seemed too complex to pass over in a simple text entry.

31. This sum is found on a separate slip from the next entry. The next entry is in fact two words which are 70 + 774 -- This would appear to be an item of special interest, or a reference to yet another 774 word with the definite article "o".

32. This entry cannot be identified from the slip. The original was too light in photocopy, and the retracing of the entry in ink failed to distinguish the middle three or four letters. What appears to be sigma-theta.....upsilon-sigma can be distinguished, but no more by this editor {illustration in printed edition only}

33. This English word would most probably be transliterated as: psi-lambda-omicron-HB:V-epsilon-rho-sigma, with "HB:V" = Vau = Digamma or "GR:Digamma" with a "w" sound.

34. The original entry is probably incomplete. All we have is: sigma-tau. This does not match the value 955 in any way known to me.

35. The slip contains an additional note that is not clearly readable: "see to vanish" -- the most probable reading, with the doubt on the last word.

36. The Greek word here has a different spelling from the one on the slip. The letter "GR:rho" has been added by the editor -- required both by number total and by the dictionary. {43}

37. The transliteration is not known to this editor. Very probably, the "W" and the "f" would be rendered by Digamma, the "Th" by Theta and perhaps the "f" could instead be rendered by Psi, or Upsilon. The rest of the letters have conventional representations, but it doesn't seem to work.

38. The number value of this triplet of letters, obtained either by direct addition or through the addition of the numbers of the names of the letters spelled in full is so remote from the value in the text that the entry can only be considered incomplete.

39. The entry on the slip is as shown. 31 = none as alpha-kappa-alpha-theta. Also 31 = kappa-alpha-iota = and. 561 = None in English (see note #26). 474 = two as delta-epsilon-omicron. pi-alpha-nu = Pan = "everything".

40. The method of spelling in full is not known to the editor.

41. The means of relating this word to this number is not known to this editor.

42. This word probably means "second".

43. There are several possibilities as to the words intended by these numbers.

44. This is a reconstruction from the slip, which contains only: $1234 + 8 = 1190 + 532 (8 + 1)$. The slip also has some re-writing over the last digit and beneath it: $1/2$ {"8" over-strikes the "2"}.
45. All that appears on the slip is "in" or possibly "iota-epsilon".
46. This slip also contains a word or words in Greek. The last part is difficult to read, and the slip has been reproduced at right {illustration in printed edition only}
47. The slip also refers to 1158, which will be found on page 40 -- in the error column.
48. & 49. These slips are very difficult. They are reproduced below. {Illustrations only in printed edition}
50. Under this number, there is a curious slip. See right {illustration in printed edition only} {44}
