'anything scalelike, shingles', and cogn. with OSlav. skolika, 'mussel, shell', Russ. skala, 'rind, bark'; fr. I.-E. base *(s)qel-, 'to cut, cleave, split'. See scale, 'weighing instrument', and cp. words there referred to. Cp. also scaglia.

Derivatives: scale, tr. v., to clear of scales, scale-less, adj., scal-er, n., scal-ing, n., scal-y, adj., scal-i-ness, n.

scale, n., measure. — ME., 'ladder, staircase', fr. L. scālae (pl.) (either directly or through the medium of It. scala), 'ladder, staircase', fr. **scand-slā*, a derivative of scandere, 'to climb'. See scan and cp. escalade, escalator.

Derivatives: scale, tr. v., to climb up by a ladder, scal-er, n., scal-ing, n.

scalene, adj., having unequal sides (geom.) — Late L. scalēnus, fr. Gk. σκαληνός, 'limping, halting, uneven', which is rel. to σκέλος, 'leg' (lit. 'bending'), σκολιός, 'crooked, bent', σκώληξ, 'worm', fr. I.-E. base *(s)qel-, 'crooked, curved, bent, perverted'. See colon, 'punctuation mark', and cp. scelerat, scolex, scolion, scoliosis and the second element in isocetes, triskelion.

Derivatives: scalene, n., scalen-ous, adj.

scalenus, n., name of each of the muscles situated on either side of the neck (anat.) — Medical L., fr. Gk. σκαληνός, 'uneven; triangle having unequal sides'; see prec. word. — In its anatomical sense the word scalēnus was first used by the French anatomist Jean Riolan (Secundus) (1577-1657), who gave this name to the whole of these muscles, because they have the shape of a scalene triangle. See Joseph Hyrtl, Onomatologia Anatomica, pp. 462-463.

scall, n., scurf, esp. of the scalp. — ME., fr. ON. skalli, 'a bald head', whence also Swed. skallig, 'bald'; rel. to scale of balance and scale of fish. Cp. scald, 'scabby'.

scallion, n., shallot. — ME. scalyon, fr. ONF. escalogne, fr. L. Ascalōnia (caepa), '(onion) of Ascalon'. See shallot.

scallop, n., a bivalve mollusk (genus Pecten). — ME. scalop, fr. OF. escalope, 'shell', rel. to escale, 'cup, scale of fish, shell, husk'. See scale of fish and cp. scaglia, escalop.

Derivatives: scallop, tr. v., scallop-er, n., scallop-ing, n. and adj.

scalp, n., the skin of the top of the head, usually covered with its hair. — ME., of Scand. origin. Cp. ON. kālpr, 'sheath', dial. Dan. skalp, 'shell', and MDu. schelpe, Du. schelp, of s.m.; rel. to scale, 'weighing instrument', scale of fish. Derivatives: scalp, tr. v., scalp-er, n., scalp-ing, adj., scalp-less, n.

scalpel, n., a small surgical knife. — L. scalpellum, dimin. of scalprum, 'knife, chisel', fr. scalpere, 'to cut, carve, scrape', which is rel. to sculpere, 'to carve'. See shelf, 'horizontal slab', and cp. words there referred to.

scammony, n., a gum resin. — ME. scamonie, fr. L. scammōnia or scammōnium, fr. Gk. σκαμμωνία or σκαμμώνιον.

scamp, n., rogue, rascal. — Prob. back formation fr. scamper.

Derivatives: scamp-ish, scamp-y, adjs.

scamp, tr. v., to do (something) in a hasty, careless way. — Prob. a blend of scant and skimp.

scamper, intr. v., to run quickly. — Prob. fr. obsol. Du. schampen, 'to run away, flee', fr. ONF. eschamper, corresponding to OF. eschamper, 'to run away, flee', lit. 'to leave the field', fr. VL. **excampāre*, fr. 1st ex- and L. campus, 'field'. See camp and cp. scamp, 'rogue'. For sense development cp. decamp. The suff. -er in scamper is frequentative.

Derivatives: scamper, n., scamper-er, n.

scan, tr. v., 1) to analyze (verse) as to its metrical structure; 2) to examine carefully; intr. v., to verse. — L. scandere, 'to climb, mount, scan' (whence ascendere, 'to climb up, mount', dē-scendere, 'to come down, descend'), fr. I.-E. base **skand-*, 'to spring, leap', whence also OI. skándati, 'hastens, leaps, jumps', Gk. σκαίνδαλον (whence L. scandalum), 'stumbling block offense', Mlr. scaind, 'he sprang, jumped', scendim, 'I spring, jump', sceinnm, 'a bound, jump', W. cy-chwynnu, 'to jump up, start up'. The omission of the -d in E. scan (for scan-d) is prob. due to its having been confused with the suff. -ed. For a similar omission of the final -d cp. lawn, 'stretch of grass'. Cp. ascend, condescend, descend, descent, escalade, escalator, scale, 'measure', scandal, scandent, scansion, scantling, slander, transcend.

Derivatives: scann-able, adj., scann-er, n., scanning-ly, adv.

scandal, n. — F. scandale, fr. Late L. scandalum, 'cause of offense or stumbling', fr. Gk. σκαίνδαλον, 'stumbling block offense'. See scan and cp. slander, which is a doublet of scandal. Cp. also esclandre.

Derivatives: scandal, tr.v., scandalize (q.v.), scandalous (q.v.)

scandalize, tr. v. — F. scandaliser, fr. Late L. scandalizāre, fr. Gk. σκαίνδαλιζειν, 'to cause offense to', fr. σκαίνδαλον. See scandal and -ize. Derivatives: scandaliz-ation, n., scandaliz-er, n.

scandalous, adj. — F. scandaleux (fem. scandaleuse), fr. scandal. See scandal and -ous.

Derivatives: scandalous-ly, adv., scandalous-ness, n.

scandaroon, n., a carrier pigeon. — Fr. Scanderoon or Iskanderun, a town in Syria named after Alexander the Great. Accordingly, the original meaning of scandaroon was 'a pigeon from Scandaroon or Iskanderun'. (A regular pigeon-post service was established between this town and Aleppo in Syria).

scandent, adj., climbing (said esp. of a plant). — L. scandēns, gen. -entis, pres. part. of scandere, 'to climb'. See scan and -ent.

scandia, n., the oxide of scandium, Sc<sub>2</sub>O<sub>3</sub> (chem.) — ModL., coined by its discoverer, the Swedish physicist Lara Fredrik Nilson (1840-99) in 1879 fr. ML. Scandia, 'Scandinavia' (fr. L. Scandia, name of an island in Northern Europe). See Scandian, Scandinavia and cp. scandium.

Derivative: scandic, adj.

Scandian, adj. and n., Scandinavian. — Formed with suff. -an fr. L. Scandia, a collateral form of Scandināvia. See next word.

Scandināvia, n. — L. Sca(n)dināvia, name of an island in Northern Europe (prob. Zealand or Schonen), in ML. 'Scandinavia', from a Teut. form of ON. Skāney, name of a district in Southern Sweden, a compound word whose second element is identical with ON. ey, 'island'. Cp. OE. ēg, ig, ieg, 'island', the ending -ey in Jersey and in other names of islands, OHG. auwia, ouwa, 'island, damp meadow', and the first element in G. Ei-land, 'island', and see island. Cp. Scandian, scandium.

Derivatives: Scandinavi-an, adj. and n.

scandium, n., name of a metallic element belonging to the rare earth group (chem.) — ModL., coined by its discoverer Nilson in 1879. See scandia. Both scandia and scandium were discovered by Nilson in the same year, but the discovery of the former preceded that of the latter (see J. N. Friend, Man and the Chemical Elements, London, 1951, p. 172).

Scandix, n., a genus of plants, the Venus' comb (bot.) — ModL., fr. L. scandix, 'chervil', fr. Gk. σκανδιξ.

scansion, n., act or mode of scanning. — L. scānsiō, gen. -ōnis, 'a climbing; scanning', fr. scāns(um), pp. stem of scandere, 'to climb'. See scan and -ion.

Derivative: scansion-ist, n.

scansorial, adj., adapted for climbing (said of birds). — Formed with adj. suff. -al fr. L. scānsōrius, fr. scāns(um), pp. stem of scandere, 'to climb'. See scan.

scant, adj. — Late ME., fr. ON. skammt, skamt, neut. of skammr, 'short', which is rel. to ON. skemma, OHG. skemmēn, 'to shorten'; cp. scamp, 'to do in a hasty way', skimp. For a similar use of the ON. neut. suff. -t cp. want.

Derivatives: scant, tr. v., scant-ly, adj., scant-ness, n., scant-i-ly, adv., scant-i-ness, n.

scantling, n., 1) a small quantity; 2) a small timber; 3) small timbers collectively. — Corruption of OF. escantillon (F. échantillon), 'sample, pattern', fr. earlier eschandillon, a dimin. whose primitive form occurs in OProvenc. escandil, 'measure of capacity', fr. L. scandere, 'to climb', used in the sense 'to measure the scale of something'. Cp. ML. scandilia, 'rungs of a ladder', scandalium, 'measure of capacity', and see scan. See Bloch-Wartburg, DELF., p. 200 s.v. échantillon.

scape, n., shaft, stem. — L. scāpus, 'stalk, shaft', which is cogn. with Gk. σκάπτος, 'staff', σκήπτρον, 'staff, scepter', σκήπτειν, 'to prop, support'. See shaft, 'stem, stock', and cp. words there referred to.

scape, n., scenery. — Back formation fr. landscape (as if it were a compound of land and scape); used to form new compounds; seascape, cloudscape, etc.

scape, n., an escape; tr. and intr. v., to escape. — Aphetic form of escape.

scapegoat, n. — For escape goat (see prec. word), hence lit. meaning 'a goat allowed to escape (into the wilderness)', coined by Tyndale to render Heb. ʾūzāzēl in Lev. 16:8, 10 and 26. This rendering is traceable to Luther (der ledige Bock), Sebastian Münster (caper abiturus), Jerome (caper emissarius), Symmachus (τράχος ἀπεργόμενος (16:8), resp. τράχος ἀφιέμενος (16:10)), and is based on a false derivation of Heb. ʾāzāzēl from ʾēz-ōzēl, 'a departing goat'. See scape, 'escape'.

scapegrace, n. — For escape grace, used in the sense of 'one who has escaped grace'.

scapho-, before a vowel scaph-, combining form meaning 'boat-shaped', as in scaphocephalic. — Gk. σκαφο-, σκαφ-, fr. σκάφη, 'boat', prob. meaning lit. 'dug out', and derived from the stem of σκάπτειν, 'to dig out'. See capon and cp. scyphus and the second element in bathyscaphe.

scaphocephalic, scaphocephalous, adj., having a boat-shaped head (anat.) — See scapho- and cephalic, resp. -cephalous.

scaphoid, adj., boat-shaped (said of bones). — Compounded of scaph- and Gk. -οειδής, 'like', fr. εἶδος, 'form, shape'. See -oid.

Derivative: scaphoid, n.

scapula, n., shoulder blade (anat. and zool.) — Late L., 'shoulder blade, shoulder', sing. of L. scapulae, 'shoulder blades, shoulders', which is of uncertain origin. It possibly meant orig. 'shovel', and is cogn. with Gk. σκάφειν, 'to dig out'; see scapho-. The change of meaning from 'shovel' to 'shoulder blades, shoulders', may be due either to the resemblance of these bones to shovels or to the use made of them by primitive man for digging and shoveling. See Walde-Hofmann. LEW., II, pp. 489-90 s.v. scapulae, and Ernout-Meillet, DELL., p. 600 s.v. scapulae.

scapular, adj., pertaining to the shoulder blade or shoulder. — Late L. scapulāris, fr. scapula. See prec. word and adj. suff. -ar.

Derivative: scapular, n.

scapular, scapulary, n., a short cloak worn by monks (Eccles.) — ME. scapulare, fr. ML. scapulāre, lit. 'anything worn over the shoulders', fr. L. scapulae, 'shoulders'. See scapula and -ar, resp. -ary.

scapus, n., 1) the shaft of a feather; 2) the basic foot of a polyp (zool.) — L. 'shaft, stem'. See scape, 'shaft'.

scar, n., mark left upon the skin after the healing of a wound. — ME. escare, scar, fr. OF. escare (F. escarre, eschare), fr. Late L. eschara, fr. Gk. ἔσχαρᾶ, 'hearth, brazier, scar', esp. 'scar caused by burning', which is of uncertain etymology; influenced in form by obsol. E. scar, 'cleft'. Cp. eschar.

Derivatives: scar, tr. and intr. v., scarr-ed, adj.; scarr-ing, n., scarr-y, adj.

scar, n., rock. — ME., fr. ON. sker, 'reef, cliff'. See skerry and cp. scaur.

scarab, n., a beetle, esp. the black dung beetle held sacred by the ancient Egyptians. — F. scarabée, fr. L. scarabaeus, fr. Gk. κάραβος, 'horned beetle; crayfish', a word of foreign (prob. Maced.) origin, as proved by the non-Greek suff. -bas (the Greek equivalent would have been -φος, fr. I.-E. *bho-). See Carabidae and cp. caravel, caracole, Caridea.

scarabaeid, n., any beetle belonging to the family Scarabaeidae — See next word.

Scarabaeidae, n. pl., a family of beetles (entomol.) — ModL., fr. L. scarabaeus. See scarab and -idae.

scarabaeoid, adj., resembling a scarab. — A hybrid coined fr. L. scarabaeus, 'scarab', and Gk. suff. -οειδής, 'like', fr. εἶδος, 'form, shape'. See scarab and -oid.

Scaramouch, n., 1) a stock character in the old Italian comedy; 2) (not cap.) a boastful poltroon. — F. Scaramouche, fr. It. Scaramuccia, a stock character in Italian farces, lit. 'the skirmisher'. See skirmish, n.

scarce, adj. — ME. scars, fr. ONF. escars, corresponding to OF. eschars, F. échars, 'scanty, scarce', fr. VL. **escarpus*, for L. excerptus, 'picked out, selected, rare', pp. of excerpere, 'to pick out, select'. See excerpt.

Derivatives: scarce-ly, adv., scarce-ness, n.

scarce, n., an offset in the wall (architecture). — Prob. formed from the obsol. verb scarce, 'to make less', fr. scarce, adj. See scarce and -ment.

Derivative: simmer, n.

simnel, n., a sweet cake. — ME. simenel, fr. OF. simenel, 'fine wheat flour', fr. VL. **siminellus*, dissimilated fr. **similellus*, masc. dimin. of simila [whence also OHG. semala, simila, 'the finest wheat flour' (MHG. semel, of s.m., G. Semmel, 'roll')], which, together with Gk. σεμιδάρις, is a Sem. loan word; cp. Akkad. samidu, Aram.-Syr. s<sup>h</sup>midhā, 'finest flour'. Cp. semolina, cymling.

Simon, masc. PN. — L., fr. Gk. Σίμων, fr. Heb. Shim'ôn, but influenced in form by the Greek PN. Σίμων, lit. 'snub-nosed' (fr. σίμος, of s.m.), whence the Talmudic name Simón. See Siméon.

Simon Pure, the right, genuine person. — Name of a Quaker in Susanna Centlivre's play A Bold Stroke for a Wife (1717). In part of the play Simon Pure is impersonated by another character (Colonel Feignwell) and the real Simon Pure is dealt with as an impostor and is believed only after he has proved his identity.

simoniac, n., one who practises simony; adj., pertaining to simony. — ML. simōniacus, fr. simōnia. See simony.

Derivatives: simoniac-al, adj., simoniac-al-ly, adv.

simony, n., the buying or selling of sacred things. — F. simonic, fr. ML. simōnia, fr. Simon Magus, who was rebuked by Peter when he offered him money for the gift of the Holy Ghost. — See Simon.

Derivatives: simoniac (q.v.), Simoni-an, n. and adj., siman-ist, n.

simoom, n., a hot dry desert wind. — Arab. samūm, 'a sultry wind', lit. 'poisonous', fr. samma, 'he poisoned', fr. sam, 'poison', a loan word fr. Aram. sammā, 'drug, poison', which is

rel. to Bibl. Heb. sam, 'spice', Mishnaic Heb. sam, 'drug, poison', and prob. also to Arab. shamma, 'smelled', mashmūm, 'any fragrant plant'.

simper, intr. v., to smile affectedly. — Prob. of Scand. origin. Cp. Swed., Norw. and dial. Dan. semper, 'affected'.

Derivatives: simper, n., simper-er, n., simper-ing-ly, adv.

simple, adj. — ME., fr. OF. (= F.), fr. L. simpulus, 'simple', var. of simplex, of s.m., fr. I.-E. base **sem-*, 'one, together' (whence also semel, 'once') and **plac-*, '-fold'. For the first element see same and cp. similar. For the second element see ply, v., and cp. double and words there referred to. Derivatives: simple, n., simple-ness, n., simpl-y, adv., simplification (q.v.), simplify (q.v.)

simpleton, n., a fool. — Formed fr. simple with suff. -ton. (Cp. singleton, fr. single).

simpliciter, adv., simply; wholly. — L., 'simply, plainly, directly', adv. of the adj. simplex, gen. simplicis. See simple.

simplicity, n. — ME. simplicite, fr. OF. simplicite (F. simplicité), fr. L. simplicitātem, acc. of simplicitās, fr. simplex, gen. simplicis. See simple and -ity.

simplification, n. — MF. (= F.), fr. simplifier. See next word and -ation.

simplify, tr. v. — F. simplifier, fr. MF., fr. ML. simplificāre. See simple and -fy.

Derivative: simplifi-er, n.

simulacrum, n., 1) an image; 2) semblance; 3) a sham. — L., 'likeness, image, form, representation, portrait', dissimilated—because of the preceding l—fr. **simulāclom*, fr. simulāre, 'to make like'. See simulate.

simulant, adj. — L. simulāns, gen. -antis, pres. part. of simulāre. See next word and -ant.

simulate, tr. v., to feign. — L. simulātus, pp. of simulāre, 'to make like, imitate', fr. simul, 'at the same time, together'. See similar and cp. words there referred to. For the ending see verbal suff. -ate.

Derivatives: simulat-ive, adj., simulat-ive-ly, adv., simulat-or, n., simulat-ory, adj.

simulation, n. — ME. simulacion, fr. OF. (= F.) simulation, fr. L. simulātiōnem, acc. of simulātiō, gen. -ōnis, 'a false show, feigning, pretense', fr. simulātus, pp. of simulāre. See prec. word and -ion.

simultaneity, n. — See next word and -ity.

simultaneous, adj. — Late L. simultāneus, fr. L. simul, 'at the same time'. The t in simul-t-āneus is prob. due to the influence of mōmentāneus, instantāneus (in which, however, the t is organic). See similar and -aneous.

Derivatives: simultaneous-ly, adv., simultaneous-ness, n.

simurg, n., a gigantic bird in Persian mythology, prob. identical with the roc. — Pers. simurgh, rel. to Avestic saenā mereγō, 'eagle', OI. šyenāh, 'eagle', Arm. çin, 'kite'.

sin, n., transgression. — ME. sinne, fr. OE. synn, syn, 'wrong-doing, injury, hostility; sin', rel. to OS. sundia, MDu. sonde (Du. zonde), OHG. sunt(ea) (MHG., G. sünde). These words seem to be early loan words fr. L. sōns, gen. partis, 'guilty, criminal', which is prob. pres. part. of sum, esse, 'to be', and stands in gradational relationship to -sēns, gen. -sentis in compound verbs (as praesēns, from praeesse, 'to preside', see present). Accordingly the orig. meaning of sōns would have been 'that which is' whence arose the meaning 'that which is really true' and 'he whose guilt has been doubtless established.' See Kluge-Mitzka, EWDS., p. 765 s.v. Sünde, and Walde-Hofmann, II, p. 500, s.v. sōns. For other cognates of Ī. sōns see sooth. See also esse and cp. absent, present.

Derivatives: sin, v. (q.v.), sin-ful, adj., sin-ful-ly, adv., sin-ful-ness, n., sin-less, adj., sin-less-ly, adv., sin-less-ness, n.

sinapine, n., an alkaloid, C<sub>16</sub>H<sub>25</sub>O<sub>6</sub>N (chem.) — G. Sinapin, formed with suff. -in (see chem. suff. -ine) fr. L. sināpis, sināpi, 'mustard' (see sinapism); so called because this alkaloid is found in the seeds of the black mustard.

sinapism, n., a mustard plaster. — L. sināpismus, fr. Gk. σινάπισμός, fr. σινάπιζειν, 'to treat with a mustard plaster', fr. σινάπι, 'mustard', which is rel. to σίνπι, an earlier word of s.m., both being of Egyptian origin. L. nāpus, 'turnip', which is a Greek loan word, was borrowed into English in the form of nep. Cp. the second element in parsnip and in turnip. Cp. also thio-sinamine. For the ending see suff. -ism.

sine, adv. — ME. sins, sinnes, a contraction of sithens, formed with the adverbial gen. ending -es, -s (cp. besides) from sithen (often shortened into sin), fr. OE. siddan, 'after that, since, later', which stands for sīd dan, for sīd don, 'after that'. OE. sīd is rel. to OS. sith, 'after that, since', OHG. sīd, MHG. sit, G. seit, 'since', Goth. seiþus, 'late'. These words are derivatives of I.-E. base **sē(i)-*, 'to leave, leave off, be slow, come late', whence also OI. sāyām, 'in the evening', L. sērus, 'late'. See serotine and cp. site, sith. The second element in OE. siddan (for sīd dan, see above), is the instrumental case of þat. See demonstr. pron. that.

Derivatives: since, adj. and conj.

sincere, adj. — MF. (= F.) sincère, fr. L. sincērus,

'clean, pure, whole, genuine, sincere', which is of uncertain origin. It possibly stands for sine cārē in the sense of sine carīe, 'without decay'. For the first element see sine, 'without'. The second element is cogn. with Gk. Κήρ, 'the goddess of death; doom, destruction', κηραίνειν, 'to harm, destroy', ἀκέρατος, 'unhurt', L. cariēs, 'decay, rottenness'. See caries and cp. cerauno-. Derivatives: sincere-ly, adv., sincere-ness, n., sincerity (q.v.)

sincerity, n. — MF. (= F.) sincérité, fr. OF. sincerite, fr. L. sincēritātem, acc. of sincēritās, 'purity, soundness, wholeness', fr. sincērus. See prec. word and -ity.

sincipital, adj., pertaining to the sinciput. — Formed with adj. suff. -al fr. L. sinciput, gen. sincipitis, 'half a head'. See next word.

sinciput, n., the forepart of the head. — L., 'half a head, one of the smoked cheeks of a pig', contraction of **sēm(i)-caput*, 'half a head', fr. sēmi-, 'half', and caput, 'head'. See semi- and capital, adj., and cp. occiput.

Derivative: sincipit-al, adj.

sendon, n., a fine fabric of linen. — L., fr. Gk. σινδών, 'linen', lit. 'Indian stuff'. See sendal.

sine, n. (trigon.) — L. sinus, 'the fold of a garment; bosom; curve, gulf', in Late L., 'sine'; cogn. with Alb. ḡi-ri (for **gin-ri*), 'bosom, womb'. As a mathematical term, L. sinus was first used by Gherardo of Cremona in his translation from the Arabic (about the year 1150) to render Arab. jayb, 'chord of an arc; sine' (fr. OI. jīva-, 'bow-string'), which he confused with Arab. jayb, 'fold of garment'. Cp. cosine.

sine, prep., without (in Latin phrases). — L. sine, 'without', is an enlarged form of L. sēd, sē, 'without' and is cogn. with OI. sanitūh, 'without, outside', sanutār, 'far away', Gk. ἄτερ (for **sq-ter*), 'without', Goth. sundrō, 'alone, separate', OHG. suntar, MHG. sunder, 'aside, apart', OE. sundor, 'apart, asunder', MHG. sundern, G. sondern, 'but'. See sunder, and cp. se- and the first element in sincere and in sinecure. Cp. also sans.

sinecure, n., 1) benefice without a cure of souls; 2) an office with emolument, but with no duties. — Fr. L. sine curā, 'without a cure', a term used in Eccles. L. in the term beneficium sine curā, 'a benefice without (the duty of) curing (the souls)'. See sine, adv., and cure, 'care'.

Derivatives: sinecur-ism, n., sinecur-ist, n.

sine die, without a date fixed. — L. sine diē, lit. 'without a day', fr. sine, 'without', and diē, abl. of diēs, 'day'. See sine, prep., and dies non.

sine prole, without issue (law). — L., 'without offspring', fr. sine, 'without', and prōlē, abl. of prōlēs, 'offspring, descendant'. See sine, prep., and proletarian.

sine qua non, n., an indispensable condition. — L., short for conditiō sine quā nōn, lit. 'a condition without which not', fr. sine, 'without', quā, fem. abl. of the relative pron. quī, quae, quod,

'which' (see quod), and nōn, 'not'. See non. sinew, n. — ME. senewe, sinewe, fr. OE. seonu, sinu, rel. to OS. sinewa, ON. sin, sina, Norw. sin, Swed. senä, Dan. sene, OFris. sine, MDu. senuwe, senewe, Du. zenuw, OHG. senawa, MHG. senewe, senne, G. Sehne, fr. I.-E. base **sāi-*, **sēi-*, **sī-*, 'to bind', whence also Ol. snāvah, 'sinew', Avestic snāvar<sup>ē</sup>, of s.m., Ir. sin, 'chain', Lett. pa-sainis, 'cord, string'. Cp. seta.

sinfonia, n., a symphony. — It., fr. L. symphōnia. See symphony.

sing, intr. and tr. v. — ME. singen, fr. OE. singan, rel. to OS. singan, OFris. sionga, siunga, MDu. singhen, Du. zingen, OHG. singan, MHG., G. singen, ON. syngva, Dan. syng, Swed. sjunga, Goth. siggwan, and cogn. with Gk. ἄμφη (for **soyghwā*), 'voice, oracle'. Cp. song and the second element in meistersinger, minnesinger.

Derivatives: sing, n., sing-able, adj., sing-er, n., sing-ing, n. and adj., sing-ing-ly, adv.

singe, tr. and intr. v. — ME. sengen, fr. OE. sengan, 'to singe, scorch', rel. to OFris. of-senzda, MDu. singhen, senghen, Du. zengen, OHG. bi-sengan, MHG., G. sengen, 'to singe', MHG. senge, 'dryness', sinc, 'the act of singeing', and prob. cogn. with OSlav. prě-saciti, 'to dry'; not related to sing, as most lexicographers would have it.

Derivatives: singe, n., singe-ing, adj., singe-ing-ly, adv.

Singh, n., title of the Sikhs after their initiation ceremony. — Hind. siṅh, fr. Ol. siṅhah, 'lion'. Cp. next word.

Singhalese, also Sinhalese, adj., pertaining to Ceylon; n., a native of Ceylon. — Formed with suff. -ese fr. Ol. Siṅhala-, lit. 'of lions', fr. siṅhah, 'lion'. Cp. prec. word.

single, adj. — ME., fr. OF. sengle, fr. L. singulus (in classical L. used only in pl. singuli), 'one to each, separate, single', for I.-E. **sem-go-lo-*, fr. base **sem-*, 'one, together', and formative elements go- and lo-, which occur also in Goth. ain-ak-l-s, 'single'. See simple and cp. singular. Derivatives: single, n. and tr. v., single-ness, n., single-et, n., singleton (q.v.), singl-y, adv.

singlet, n., a man's undershirt (British). — Formed fr. single with suff. -et.

singleton, n., at whist, a single card of a suit in a hand. — Formed fr. single on analogy of simpleton. Cp. lushington.

singletree, n. — Corruption of swingletree, whose first element was mistaken for the adjective single.

singsong, n., adj. and tr. and intr. v. — Formed fr. sing and song.

Singspiel, n., a lyrical drama, in which dialogue and song alternate. — G., lit. 'a singing play', fr. singen, 'to sing', and Spiel, 'play'. See sing and spiel.

singular, adj. — ME. singular, fr. OF. singular (F. singulier), fr. L. singulāris, 'alone, single, solitary, singular', fr. singult, 'one to each, separate, single'; see single, adj., and -ar. E. singular was refashioned after L. singulāris.

Derivatives: singular, n., singular-ly, adv., singular-ism, n., singular-ist, n., singularity (q.v.) singular-ize, tr. v., singulari-iz-ation, n. singularity, n. — ME. singularite, fr. OF. singularite (F. singularité), fr. L. singulāritātem, acc. of singulāritās, 'a being alone', fr. singulāris. See prec. word and -ity.

Sinic, adj., Chinese. — ML. Sinicus, 'Chinese', fr. Sina, 'China', fr. Late L. Sinae (pl.), 'the Chinese'. See Sino- and -ic.

sinigrin, n., a crystalline glucoside (C<sub>10</sub>H<sub>16</sub>KNO<sub>6</sub>S<sub>2</sub>) (chem.) — Formed with suff. -in from the abbreviation of L. sinūpis nigra, 'black mustard'. See sinapism, Negro and -in.

sinister, adj., of evil omen; evil. — ME. sinistre, fr. L. sinister, 'left, on the left side'; 'favorable' (according to the ancient Roman custom); 'unfavorable' (according to the later Greek conception); prob. cognate with Ol. sāniyān, 'more profitable, more advantageous', sanōti, 'wins, acquires', Avestic hanaiti, of s.m., Gk. ἄνωμι, ἀνώω, 'I accomplish'. These words are traceable to I.-E. base **sen-*, 'to reach one's aim'. Accordingly the word sinister represents a euphemism. For the very reason that the left side was regarded as the side connected with evil, it was deliberately called the 'good' side. Cp. Ol. vāriyān, 'better', and Avestic vairya-, 'desirable', with Avestic vairyastāra-, 'to the left', Gk. ἄριστος, 'best', with ἀριστερός, 'left, on the left side', εὐώνυμος, 'left, on the left side', lit. 'of a good name', and OHG. wini, 'friend', with winstar, 'to the left'. For the suff. (originally a compar. suff.) cp. L. dexter, 'right, on the right side' (see dexter).

sink, intr. and tr. v. — ME. sincken, fr. OE. sincan (only used in an intransitive sense), rel. to OS. sinkun, ON. sökkva, Norw. sökka, Dan. synke, Swed. sjunka, MDu. sincken, Du. zinken, OHG. sinkan, MHG., G. sincken, Goth. siggan, prob. fr. I.-E. base **seng*<sup>w</sup>, 'to fall, sink', whence also Arm. ankanim, 'I fall, yield', Gk. ἐσάφθη (for **ἑσάφθη*), 'he sank'. Cp. sag.

Derivatives: sink, n., sink-age, n., sink-er, n., sink-ing, n., sink-y, adj.

Sino-, combining form meaning 'Chinese; Chinese and'. — Fr. Late L. Sinae (pl.), 'the Chinese', fr. Ptolemaic Gk. Σίναξ, of s.m., which derives ult. fr. Chin. Hs'in or Ch'in, name of the First Dynasty of China, which reigned 255-206 B.C.E. The name Hs'in or Ch'in lit. means 'man'. Cp. China.

soutane, n., a cassock worn by Roman Catholic priests. — F., fr. earlier sottane, fr. It. sottana, 'petticoat', lit. 'undergarment', which derives fr. sotto, 'under', fr. L. subtus, 'below', fr. sub, 'under'. See sub-. F. soutane (for sottane) owes its form to the influence of F. sous, 'under'.

souteneur, pimp; bully. — F., 'supporter, protector; bully', fr. soutenir, 'to sustain', fr. VL. **sustenire*, corresponding to L. sustinere. See sustain and cp sostenuto.

south, adv. — ME. suth, south, fr. OE. sūð, 'southward, in the south', formed—with compensatory lengthening of the vowel—fr. Old Teut. **sunþ-*, whence also OS., OFris. sūth, 'southward, in the south', MDu. suut, of s.m. (whence MHG. sūth, 'south wind', earlier New High German Sud, 'south'; G. Süd, 'south', goes back to a dial. Du. pronunciation with ū. Cp. the now more usual G. form Süden, 'south', which is also of Dutch origin, and the Modern Du. forms zuid, zuiden, 'south'). Cp. Old Teut. **sunþan*, 'from the south' (whence OE. sūðan, OHG. sundan), and Old Teut. **sunþ(r)a*, 'southward' (whence OS. sūthar, ON. sūðr, OHG. sundar). These words are possibly rel. to E. sun. Accordingly south would prop. mean 'the region of the sun'. For sense development cp. east. Others connect south, etc., with Teut. **suiŋa-*, 'strong; healthy; right' (see sound, 'healthy'). In the sense of this derivation south would prop. denote the region to the right of him who faces east (as at the time of prayer). For sense development cp. Heb. yāmīn, Arab. yāmīn, 'the right hand; the south'; cp. also north and the examples given there.

(= F.) templier, fr. ML. templārius, formed with suff. -ārius, fr. L. templum, 'sanctuary, temple'. See temple, 'place of worship', and -ar. — This military order was so called because King Baldwin II of Jerusalem granted it quarters in his palace built near the site of the Temple of Solomon.

template, templet, n., model, pattern. — F. templet, templette, prop. dimin. of temple, fr. L. templum, 'place of observation, temple; small timber, purlin'. See temple, 'place of worship', and -et.

temple, n., place of worship. — ME., fr. OE. templ, tempel, (F. temple), fr. L. templum, 'an open place marked out by the augur for the observation of the sky, consecrated place, sanctuary, temple' (partly through the medium of F. temple). Templum orig. meant 'an extended place'. It is a derivative of I.-E. base **temp-*, 'to stretch, strain, extend', whence also Lith. tempiū, tempti, 'to stretch by drawing', timpā, 'sinew, tendon', OSlav. teptiva, of s.m., OSlav. tapū, 'blunt, thick', Arm. t<sup>h</sup>amb, 'saddle', prop. 'padded saddle', ON. þamb, 'swollen, pregnant, thick'. Cp. next word. Cp. also antenna, contemplate, Templar, temporal (in both senses), tempus. Cp. also tapestry and words there referred to. I.-E. **temp-* is a -p-enlargement of base **ten-*, 'to stretch'; see tend, 'to move in a certain direction'. This etymology is to be preferred to the one which derives L. templum, from I.-E. base **tem-*, 'to cut' (whence Gk. τέμνειν, 'to cut', see temenos).

Derivative: templ-ed, adj.

temple, n., side of the head. — ME., fr. OF. temple (F. tempe), fr. VL. **tempula*, **templa*, neut. pl. taken as fem. sing., corresponding to L. tempora, pl. of tempus, 'temple of the head', prop. 'the thin part' (i.e. that part of the head where the skin seems to be the thinnest), fr. I.-E. base **temp-*, 'to stretch, extend'; see prec. word. Accordingly L. tempus, 'temple of the head', and tempus, 'time', are derivatively identical. See temporary, 'pertaining to time', and cp. temporary, 'pertaining to the temples'. Theobroma, n., a genus of plants of the chocolate family (bot.) — ModL., coined by the Swedish botanist Carolus Linnaeus (1707-78) fr. theo- and Gk. βρώμα, 'food', which is rel. to βροῦν, 'food', and cogn. with L. vorāre, 'to devour'. See voracious and cp. devour. Cp. also Abroma. The name prop. refers to the cocoa as 'the food of the gods'.

theobromine, n., a bitter crystalline compound, C<sub>7</sub>H<sub>8</sub>N<sub>4</sub>O<sub>2</sub>, which occurs in cacao beans (chem.) — Coined fr. ModL. Theobroma (see prec. word) with chem. suff. -ine.

theocentric, adj., considering God as the center of all things. — Compounded of theo- and centric.

theocracy, n. — Gk. θεοκρατία, 'the rule of God', coined by the Jewish historian Josephus (cca 38-cca 100), fr. θεός (see theo-) and -κρατία, 'rule of', fr. κράτος, 'strength, power, rule'. See -cracy.

theocrat, n., one who rules under theocracy. — Compounded of theo- and -crat. Cp. prec. word.

theocratic, adj., pertaining to theocracy. — See theocracy and 1st -atic.

theodicean, adj., pertaining to theodicy. — Formed from next word with suff. -ean.

theodicy, n., vindication of divine justice. — F. théodicée, lit. 'justice of God', formed by the German philosopher, Baron Gottfried Wilhelm von Leibniz (1646-1716) in 1710 fr. theo- and Gk. δικη, 'justice', whence δικάζειν, 'to judge', δικαστής, 'judge'. See dicast.

theodolite, n., an instrument for measuring angles. — Of uncertain origin.

Theodora, n., fem. PN. — Gk. Θεοδώρα, fem. of Θεόδωρος. See next word.

Theodore, masc. PN. — L. Theodōrus, fr. Gk. Θεόδωρος, lit. 'gift of God', compounded of θεός (see theo-) and δῶρον, 'gift'. See donation and cp. prec. word and Dorothea. Cp. also Fedora.

Theodoric, masc. PN. — Late L. Theodōricus, a name of Gothic origin lit. meaning 'ruler of the people'. Cp. Goth. þiuda, 'people', and **reiks*, 'ruler', which is rel. to reiki, 'rule, empire, kingdom'. For the first element see Dutch and cp. words there referred to. For the second element see Reich.

Theodosia, fem. PN. — Gk. Θεοδοσία, lit. 'gift of God', compounded of θεο- (see theo-) and δόσις, 'gift'. See dose.

theogony, n., the origin of the gods in heathen theology. — Gk. θεογονία, 'origin of the gods', compounded of θεός, 'god', and -γονία, fr. γόνος, 'race, birth, descent', which stands in gradational relationship to γένος, 'race, descent'. See theo- and genus.

Derivatives: theogon-ic, theogon-ic-al, adjs.

theolatry, n., worship of a god. — Gk. θεολατρεία, compounded of θεός (see theo-) and -λατρεία, fr. λατρεία, 'service worship'. See -latry.

theologian, n. — MF. (= F.) théologien. fr. théologie, 'theology', fr. Eccles. L. theologia. See theology and -an.

theological, adj. — Eccles. L. theologicālis, fr. theologicus, fr. theologia. See theology and -ical. Derivatives: theological, n., theological-ly, adv. theologico-, combining form meaning 'theological and'. — See theological.

theologue, n., theologian (obsol. and colloq.) — Eccles. L. theologus. See theologian.

theology, n. — ME. theologie, fr. Eccles. L. theologia, fr. Gk. θεολογία, 'science of divine things', fr. θεολόγος, 'student of divine things', which is compounded of θεός (see theo-) and -λογία, fr. -λόγος, 'one who speaks (in a certain manner); one who deals (with a certain topic)'. See theo- and -logy.

theomachy, n., battle of, or with, the gods. — Gk. θεομαχία, compounded of θεός (see theo-) and -μαχία, fr. μάχη, 'battle'. See -machy.

theomorphic, adj., having the form of a god. — Formed with adj. suff. -ic fr. Gk. θεόμορφος, which is compounded of θεός (see theo-) and μορφή, 'form, shape'. See theo- and morpho-.

theophany, n., appearance of God to man. — Eccles. L. theophania, fr. Gk. θεοφάνεια, θεοφανία, 'manifestation of God', compounded of θεός (see theo-) and the stem of φαίνεσθαι, 'to appear'. See phantasm and cp. tiffany. For the ending see suff. -y (representing Gk. -εια, -ία).

Theophilus, masc. PN. — L., fr. Gk. Θεόφιλος, lit. 'loved by the gods', fr. θεός, 'god', and φίλος, 'loved, beloved'. See theo- and philo-.

theopneustic, adj., divinely inspired. — Formed with suff. -ic fr. Gk. θεόπνευστος, fr. θεός (see theo-) and -πνευστος, '-inspired', prop. verbal adj. of πνέειν, 'to breathe, inspire'. See pneuma.

theorbo, n., an obsolete kind of lute (mus.) — F. théorbe, téorbe, fr. earlier tuorbe, tiorbe, fr. It. tiorba, which is of unknown origin.

theorem, n., a general statement. — Late L. theorēma, fr. Gk. θεώρημα, 'sight, spectacle', fr. θεωρεῖν, 'to look at, behold', fr. θεωρός, 'spectator'. See theory and -ma.

theorematic, theorematical, adj. — Formed with suff. -ic, resp. -ical, fr. Gk. θεωρημα, gen. θεωρηματος. See prec. word.
Derivative: theorematical-ly, adv.

theory, n. — Late L. theōria, fr. Gk. θεωρία, 'spectacle, contemplation, consideration', fr. θεωρός, 'spectator', from the stem of θεᾶσθαι, 'to see, behold', whence also θέατρον, 'theater', lit. 'a place for seeing'. See theater and -y presenting Gk. -ία).

Derivatives: theor-ist, n., theor-ize, intr. and tr. v., theor-iz-ation, n., theoriz-er, n. theosophy, n. — ML. theosophia, fr. Late Gk. θεοσοφία, 'knowledge of divine things', which is compounded of Gk. θεός (see theo-) and σοφία, 'skill, wisdom', fr. σοφός, 'skilled, wise'. See sophist.

Derivatives: theosoph-ic, theosoph-ic-al, adjs., theosoph-ist, n.

-ther, suff. expressing comparison, alternative, etc., as in further, hither, thither, either. — Compar. suff., from I.-E. base **ter-, *tr-*, whence Ol. -tara, Gk. -τερος, L. -terus, lit. 'beyond'. Co. Ol. tōtra, 'there, thither', L. trāns, 'beyond', and see trans-. Cp. also allotrio-, alter, contra, deteriorate, deuterio-, dexter, either, esoteric, exoteric, exterior, hetero-, hinder, hither, hysteron proteron, inter-, iterate, magister, minister, neither, nostrum, other, presbyter, preter-, sinister, subter-, thither, ulterior, ultra-, whether.

theralite, n., name of a group of plutonic rocks (petrology). — Lit. 'the stone hunted after', fr. Gk. θηραῖν, 'to hunt, chase, to hunt after', and λίθος, 'stone'; it was so called because its discovery was expected. Gk. θηραῖν derives fr. θήρῃ, 'hunting of wild beasts, chase', fr. θήρ, 'beast of prey'; see theriac and cp. words there referred to. For Gk. λίθος, see litho-.

therapeutic, therapeutical, adj. — Gk. θεραπευτικός, lit. 'inclined to serve', hence 'attentive, on obedient, able to cure', fr. θεραπεύειν, 'to wait serve, attend, fr. θεράπων, 'servant, attendant', fr. θέραψ, gen. θεράπης, of s.m. The suff. -εύειν in θεραπεύειν is due to the analogy of verbs in which the diphthong eu belonged to the stem as e.g. in βασιλεύειν, 'to be king, to rule', fr. βα- σιλεύς, 'king', ιερεύειν, 'to be a priest, to offer, sacrifice', fr. ιερεύς, 'priest'. Gk. θέραψ is of uncertain origin. It possibly derives fr. I.-E. base **dher(ē)-*, 'to hold, support', which appears in Gk. θρόνος, 'seat, chair, throne', L. firmus, 'strong'. See firm, adj., and cp. words there referred to. For the ending see suff. -ic, resp. also -al.

Derivative: therapeutical-ly, adv.

therapeutics, n., that branch of medicine which deals with the treatment and cure of disease. — See prec. word and -ics.

-therapy, combining form meaning 'treatment, cure'. Fr. Gk. θεραπειᾶ, 'a waiting on, service, attendance', fr. θεράπων. See therapeutic and -y (representing Gk. -εία).

there, adv. — ME. thar, ther, fr. OE. þār, þēr, þēr, rel. to OFris. ther, OS. thār, ON. þar, Dan., Swed. der, Du. daar, OHG. dār, MHG. dār, dā, Goth. þar, 'there', and cogn. with Ol. tár-hi, 'then', fr. I.-E. **tar-*, 'there', enlargement of pron. base **to-, *ta-*. See the, art., and cp. words there referred to.

thereabouts, thereabout, adv. — ME. ther aboute, fr. OE. þær abūtan, 'about that'. See there and about.

thereafter, adv. — ME. therafter, fr. OE. þær æfter, 'after that'. See there and after.

thereat, adv. — ME., fr. OE. þær at, 'there'. See there and at.

thereby, adv. — ME. therby, fr. OE. þærbig, 'by that'. See there and by.

therefor, adv. — ME. therfor, therefore, therefor, therefore, 'for that'; ME. fore is a secondary form of for. See there and for and cp. next word. therefore, adv. — ME. therfor, etc. See prec. word. therefrom, adv. — ME. therfrom. See there and from. The orig. spelling was there from.

therein, adv. — ME. therin, fr. OE. þærin, fr. þær, 'there', and in, 'in'. See there and in, prep. thereof, adv. — ME. therof, fr. OE. þær of, 'of that'. See there and of.

thereon, adv. — ME. theron, fr. OE. þær on, 'on that'. See there and on.

thereout, adv. — ME. theoute, fr. OE. þærūt, þærūte, 'outside'. See there and out.

thereover, adv. — ME. ther over, fr. OE. þærofer, 'over that'. See there and over.

Theresa, also Teresa, fem. PN. — F. Thérèse, fr. L. Thērasia, Thēresia, which is prob. rel. to Thērasia, fr. Gk. Θηρασία, name of two islands one near Sicily (now called Vulcanello) the other near Crete (still called Θηρασία).

thereto, adv. — ME. therto, fr. OE. þærtō, 'to that'. See there and to.

thereunder, adv. — ME. therunder, fr. OE. þær- under, 'under that'. See there and under.

thereupon, adv. — ME. ther upon, fr. OE. þær uppan. See there and upon.

Thereva, n., the type genus of the stiletto flies (entomol.) — ModL., lit. 'hunter', fr. Gk. θηρεύειν, 'to hunt', fr. θήρ, 'beast'. See therio-.

Therevidae, n. pl., a family of flies, the stiletto flies (entomol.) — ModL., formed with suff. -idae from prec. word.

therewith, adv. — ME. therwith, fr. OE. þēr wīð, þēr wīð, 'with that'. See there and with.

therewithal, adv. — Compounded of there and withal.

theri-, form of therio- before a vowel.

theriac, n., an ancient antidote for poison. — L. thēriaca, fr. Gk. θηριακή, 'antidote' (for θηριακή ἀντίδοσις), fem. of θηριακός, 'pertaining to wild or poisonous animals', fr. θηρίον, 'beast', dimin. of θήρ (see therio- and cp. treacle). The name for antidote was coined by Andromachus, a native of Crete and contemporary of Nero; the antidote for snake poison, invented by him, was composed of 61 various ingredients, the most important of which was the dried flesh of vipers, whence the name of the antidote θηριακή (scil. ἀντίδοτος), lit. 'animal (antidote)'.

therianthropic, adj., combining human and animal form (as the centaur). — Formed with adj. suff. -ic fr. Gk. θηριάνθρωπος, 'beast man', fr. θηρίον, 'beast, animal', and ἄνθρωπος, 'man'. See therio- and anthropo-.

Theridiidae, n. pl., a family of spiders (entamol.) — ModL., formed with suff. -idae fr. Gk. θηρίδιον, dimin. of θηρίον, itself dimin. of θήρ, 'beast, animal'. See therio-.

therio-, before a vowel theri-, combining form meaning 'wild beast'. — Gk. θηριο-, θηρι-, fr. θηρίον, 'wild animal, beast, animal', formally a dimin. of θήρ, of s.m., which is rel. to Lesbian Gk. φῆρ, of s.m., from I.-E. base ǵhwer-, 'wild, wild animal', whence also L. ferus, 'wild'. See fierce and cp. words there referred to. Cp. also prec. word and the second element in Acera-therium, Dinotherium, Megatherium, Nyctereutes, Oenothera, paleothere.

theriomorphic, adj., having the form of an animal. — Formed with adj. suff. -ic fr. Gk. θηριόμορφος, which is compounded of θηρίον, 'animal', and μορφή, 'form, shape'. See therio- and morpho-.

theriomorphous, adj., theriomorphic. — See prec. word and -morphous.

therium, combining form denoting a genus of animals (conventionally mammals). — ModL., fr. Gk. θηρίον, 'animal'. See therio-.

therm, n., British thermal unit (physics). — Gk. θέρμη, 'heat', rel. to θερμός, 'warm', which stands for **ǵ<sup>w</sup>hermas*, fr. I.-E. base **ǵ<sup>w</sup>her-*, 'warm'. See warm and cp. thermae, Thermidor, thermion, thermo, athermancy, diathermancy, diathermic, hydrothermal, isother, isotherm.

thermae, n. pl., hot springs or baths. — L., fr. Gk. θέρματι, pl. of θέρμη, 'heat'. See prec. word.

thermal, adj., pertaining to thermae; pertaining to heat. — Formed with adj. suff. -al fr. L. thermae. See therm.

thermantidote, n., an apparatus for cooling the air. — Compounded of therm and antidote.

thermesthesia, thermaesthesia, n., sensitiveness to heat (physiol.) — Compounded of therm and esthesia.

-thermia, also -thermy, combining form denoting; 1) the state of heat; 2) generation or application of heat. — ModL. -thermia, formed fr. Gk. θέρμη, 'heat', with L. suff. -ia. See therm and -y (representing L. -ia).

thermic, adj., pertaining to heat. — Formed with adj. suff. -ic fr. Gk. θέρμη, 'heat'. See therm. Thermidor, n., the eleventh month (lasting fr. July 19th to Aug. 17th) of the French revolutionary calendar. — A word coined by Fabre d'Églantine in 1793 fr. Gk. θέρμη, 'heat', and δώρον, 'gift'; see therm and donation.

Thermidorian, n. (French hist.) — F. Thermidorien, lit. 'pertaining to Thermidor'. See prec. word and -ian.

thermion, n., an electrically charged particle emitted from an incandescent body (physics). — Coined by the English physicist Sir Owen Willans Richardson (1879-1959) fr. Gk. θέρμη, 'heat'. See therm and -ion.

Derivatives: thermion-ic, adj., thermionics (q.v.) thermionics, n. pl., that branch of physics which deals with the emission of electrons from heated bodies. — See prec. word and -ics.

thermit, n., a mixture of aluminum with an iron oxide (trade mark) — G., formed fr. Gk. θέρμη, 'heat' (see therm) with suff. -it, fr. Gk. -ίτης (see subst. suff. -ite); so called because of the great heat it produces when it is ignited.

thermo-, before a vowel therm-, combining form meaning 'heat'. — Gk. θερμο-, θερμ-, fr. θέρμη, 'heat'. See therm.

thermobarometer, n., a thermometer used for measuring the altitude by determining the boiling point of water. — Compounded of thermo- and barometer.

thermochemistry, n., that branch of chemistry which deals with the relation between heat and chemical action. — Compounded of thermo- and chemistry.

thermocouple, n., a thermoelectric couple. — Compounded of thermo- and couple.

thermodynamics, n., that branch of physics which deals with the reaction between heat and mechanical energy. — Compounded of thermo- and dynamics.

thermoelectric, adj., pertaining to thermoelectricity. — Compounded of thermo- and electric. Derivatives: thermoelectric-al, adj., thermoelectric-al-ly, adv.

thermoelectricity, n., electricity produced by heat. — Compounded of thermo- and electricity.

thermoelectrometer, n., an instrument for measuring the power of an electric current by the heat which it produces. — Compounded of thermo- and electrometer.

thermogenesis, n., the production of heat, esp. in the body. — Compounded of thermo- and genesis.

thermogenetic, adj., pertaining to thermogenesis. — Compounded of thermo- and genetic.

thermogenic, adj., relating to the production of heat. — Compounded of thermo- and -genic.

thermogeneous, adj., thermogenic. — Compounded of thermo- and -genous.

thermogram, n., the record produced by a thermograph. — Compounded of thermo- and Gk. γράμμα, 'that which is written'. See -gram.

thermograph, n., a self-registering thermometer. — Compounded of thermo- and Gk. -γράφος, fr. γράφειν, 'to write'. See -graph.

thermolabile, adj., unstable when subjected to moderate heat. — A hybrid coined fr. Gk. θέρμη, 'heat', and L. lābilis, 'unstable, wavering'. See therm and labile and cp. thermostable.

thermology, n., the study of heat. — Compounded of thermo- and Gk. -λογία, fr. -λόγος, 'one who speaks (in a certain manner); one who deals (with a certain topic)'. See -logy.

thermolysis, n., 1) dissociation by heat (chem.); 2) dispersion of heat from the body (physiol.) — G. Thermolyse, coined by the German pharmacist Karl Friedrich Mohr (1806-79) fr. thermo- and Gk. λύσις, 'a loosing, a setting free; dissolution', fr. λύειν, 'to loose, set free; to dissolve'. See lysis.

thermometer, n. — F. thermomètre, coined by the Jesuit Father Leiréon in 1624 fr. Gk. θέρμη, 'heat', and μέτρον, 'measure'. See therm and meter, 'poetical rhythm'.

thermometry, n., the measurement of heat. — Compounded of thermo- and Gk. -μετρία, 'a measuring of'. See -metry.

Derivatives: thermometr-ic, thermometr-ic-al, adjs., thermometr-ic-al-ly, adv.

thermophile, thermophilic, adj., 'heat loving' (said of certain bacteria). — Compounded of thermo- and Gk. φίλος, 'friend'. See philo-.

thermophore, n., an apparatus for conveying heat. — Gk. θερμοφόρος, 'boiler', compounded of θέρμη, 'heat', and -φόρος, 'carrying'. See therm and -phore.

thermopile, n., a thermoelectric battery. — A hybrid coined fr. Gk. θέρμη, 'heat', and L. pila, 'pillar'. See therm and pile, 'heap'.

thermoplegia, n., a heatstroke. — Compounded of thermo- and Gk. πληγή, 'blow, stroke', which is cogn. with L. plāga, 'stroke, wound'. See plague and 1st -ia.

thermos bottle, thermos flask. — Fr. Gk. θερμός, 'warm, hot', which is rel. to θέρμη, 'heat'. See therm.

thermoscope, n., an instrument for indicating differences in temperature without measuring them in degrees. — ModL. thermoscopium, compounded of thermo- and Gk. -σκοπῖον, fr. σκοπεῖν, 'to look at, examine'. See -scope.

Derivatives: thermoscop-ic, thermoscop-ic-al, adjs.

thermostable, adj., stable when subjected to a moderate degree of heat. — A hybrid coined fr. Gk. θέρμη, 'heat', and L. stabilis, 'stable'. See therm and stable, adj., and cp. thermolabile.

thermostat, n., a device for the automatic regulation of temperature. — Compounded of thermo- and Gk. στατός, 'placed, standing'. See static and cp. aerostat and words there referred to.

Derivative: thermostat-ic, adj.

thermostatics, n., the science that treats of the equilibrium of heat. — See prec. word and -ics. thermotaxic, adj., pertaining to thermotaxis. — See next word and adj. suff. -ic.

thermotaxis, n., the regulation of bodily heat (physiol.) — ModL., compounded of thermo- and Gk. τάξις, 'arrangement'. See taxis.

thermotensile, adj., pertaining to tensile force as affected by changes in temperature. — A hybrid coined fr. Gk. θέρμη, 'heat' (see therm), and tensile (q.v.), a word of Latin origin.

thermotherapy, n., the treatment of disease by heat. — Compounded of thermo- and -therapy.

thermotic, adj., pertaining to heat. — Gk. θερμοτικός, fr. θερμῶν, 'to make hot', fr. θερμός, 'hot'. See therm and -otic.

thermotics, n., the science of heat. — See prec. word and -ics.

thermotropic, adj., having the property of thermotropism. — See next word and adj. suff. -ic.

thermotropism, n., property of an organism of turning toward, or away from, heat (biol.) — Compounded of thermo- and tropism.

-thermy, combining form. — See -thermia.

thero-, before a vowel ther-, combining form meaning 'wild animal, beast'. — Gk. θηρο-, θηρ-, fr. θήρ, gen. θηρός, 'wild animal, beast, animal'. See therio-.

theroid, adj., resembling a beast. — Compounded of ther- and Gk. -οειδής, 'like', fr. εἶδος, 'form, shape'. See -oid.

therology, n., the study of mammals, mammalogy — Compounded of thero- and Gk. -λογία, fr. -λόγος, 'one who speaks (in a certain manner); one who deals (with a certain topic)'. See -logy.

Theropoda, n. pl., a suborder of carnivorous dinosaurs (paleontol.) — ModL., compounded of thero- and -poda.

theropodous, adj., pertaining to the Theropoda. — See prec. word and -ous.

thersitical, adj., pertaining to, or resembling, Thersites; scurrilous. — Formed with the suffix -ical fr. L. Thersitēs, fr. Gk. Θερσίτης, name of the ugliest of the Greeks before Troy, a man notorious for his scurrility. The name lit. means 'bold', esp. 'bold of speech' (cp. θερσεπής, 'bold of speech'), fr. θέρσος, Aeol. equivalent of Ion., Old Att. θάρσος, Att. θάρρος, 'courage, audacity', and rel. to θαρσύς, θρασύς, 'bold, audacious', θαρσεῖν, Att. θαρρεῖν, 'to be bold', fr. I.-E. base **dhar-*, 'to dare, be courageous'. See dare and cp. thrasonical. For the ending of the name Θερσίτης see subst. suff. -ite.

thesaurus, n., a treasury; a treasury of words, lexicon. — L., fr. Gk. θησαυρός, 'treasure, treasure-house', a compound whose first element prob. derives fr. θη-, 'the stem of τιθέναι, to place, put' (see theme); the second element is of uncertain origin. Cp. treasure.

these, demonstr. pron. — ME. thise, these, fr. OE. þæs, 'these', a collateral form of þās, pl. of þes, 'this'. See this. OE. þās survives in E. those (q.v.)

thesis, n. — L., fr. Gk. θέσις, 'a placing, setting', fr. I.-E. **dh<sup>ē</sup>-ti-*, whence also OI. -(d)hitiḥ (only in compounds), 'a placing', Late L. con-diti-ō, 'a founding' (fr. L. conditus, pp. of condere, 'to found'). Gk. θέσις is verbal n. of τιθέναι, 'to put, place, set'. See theme and cp. deed. Cp. also next word.

thesmote, n., a legislator, orig. any of the six inferior archons in Athens (Greek antiq.) — Gk. θεσμοθέτης, compounded of θεσμός, 'that which is laid down, law', and θέτης, 'one who places'. Both θεσμός (Dor. τεθμός, Laconic, Argive and Locrian θεθμός) and θέτης derive from the stem of τιθέναι, 'to put, place, set'. See theme and cp. prec. word.

Thespesia, n., a genus of plants of the mallow family (bot.) — ModL., fr. Gk. θεσπέσιος, 'divinely sounding, divine'. See next word. For the ending see 1st suff. -ia.

Thespian, adj., pertaining to Thespis; pertaining to the drama. — Formed fr. L. Thespis, fr. Gk. Θέσπις, the founder of the Greek drama. The name derives fr. θέσπις, 'inspired by the gods', which is prob. a short form for θεσπέσιος, 'divinely sounding, divine', fr. **θέσ-σπετος*, compounded of θεσ-, lit. 'divinely uttered', fr. **θεσ-*, 'divine' and **σπέτος*, 'uttered' (cp. ἄσπετος, 'unspeakable, unutterable'). For the first element see theo-. The second element derives fr. try, tr. and intr. v. — ME. trien, 'to select', fr. AF. trier, fr. OF. (= F.) trier, 'to set apart, select', a word of doubtful origin. Its derivation fr. VL. **tritāre*, 'to rub down', freq. of terere, 'to rub, thresh, grind'—as suggested by most philologists—must be rejected not only because of the great difference in meaning between L. terere and F. trier but also because of phonetic reasons (VL. **tritāre* could not have become triar in OProvenç.) Cp. trial.

Derivatives: try, n., triable (q.v.), try-ing, adj., try-ing-ly, adv., try-ing-ness, n.

tryma, n., a drupaceous nut (bot.) — ModL., fr. Gk. τρῦμα, 'a hole', which is rel. to τρῆμα, of s.m., fr. I.-E. **tr-*, zero degree of base **ter-*, 'to rub, rub by turning, turn, twist; to bore, pierce'. See throw and -ma and cp. Trema.

Trypanosoma, n., a genus of parasitic protozoans (zool.) — ModL., fr. F. trypanosome, coined by Gruby of Paris in 1843 fr. Gk. τρῦπανον, 'gimlet, auger', and σῶμα, 'body': see trepan, n., and soma, 'body'. The genus was so called because of the spindlelike shape.

Trypanosomatidae, n. pl., a family of protozoans (zool.) — ModL., formed fr. prec. word with suff. -idae.

trypanosome, n., a parasite of the genus Trypanosoma (zool.) — See Trypanosoma.

Tryphena, fem. PN. — L. Tryphaena, fr. Gk. Τρύφαινα, lit. 'delicate', fr. τρυφή, 'softness, delicacy, daintiness', which is rel. to θρύπτειν, 'to break in pieces, enfeeble', and cogn. with Lett. drubaža, 'fragment'.

trypsin, n., an enzyme formed in the pancreatic juice (biochem.) — G. Trypsin, coined by the German physiologist Wilhelm Friedrich Kühne (1837-1900) in 1874, prob. fr. Gk. τρυβειν, 'to rub down, wear out', with the ending -psin, on analogy of pepsin, and so called by him because it was obtained (by Danilewsky in 1862) through rubbing down the pancreas with glycerin. Gk. τρυβειν is rel. to τέρυς, 'weak', lit. 'rubbed off', and to τίρειν (for **τέρειν*), 'to rub'; see throw. It is also possible that—in spite of the Gk. τρυβειν—the word Trypsin goes back to Gk. τρίψις, 'a rubbing', fr. τρίβειν, 'to rub', which is rel. to τίρειν, 'to rub' (see above).

trysail, n. (naut.) — Compounded of try and sail.

tryst, n., an appointment to meet, meeting. — ME. tryst, trist, tristre, fr. OF. triste, tristre, 'waiting or watching place', fr. ON. treystask, 'to depend upon, rely upon', refl. of treysta. See trust, v.

xenon, n., name of an inert gaseous element

(chem.) — ModL., lit. 'the strange, i.e. rare (element)', fr. Gk. ξένον, neut. of ξένος, 'stranger' (see xeno-); coined by the discoverers of this element, the Scottish chemist Sir William Ramsay (1852-1916) and the English chemist Morris William Travers (1872-1961) in 1898. Cp. krypton.

xenotime, n., a mineral consisting essentially of yttrium phosphate. — F. xénotime, coined by the French mineralogist and physicist François-Sulpice Beudant (1787-1852), apparently fr. Gk. ξένος, 'strange', and τιμή, 'honor' (see xeno- and timocracy). In reality, however, xenotime is a mis-spelling for cénotime, because Beudant himself, after giving the name xénotime, says that it derives fr. Gk. κενός, 'empty, vain' (see keno-), and τιμή, 'honor', and adds that the name is intended to recall the fact that the mineral was erroneously (i.e. 'vainly') supposed by Berzelius to contain a new metal.

xerafin, xerafin, n., a former silver coin of Portuguese India. — Sp., Port., fr. Arab. sharīfī, adj., formed fr. sharīf, 'shereef', with -ī a suff. meaning 'pertaining to'. See shereef and cp. words there referred to.

yom, n., day, a Hebrew word occurring in the names of feasts. — Heb. yōm, 'a day', rel. to Aram.-Syr. yōm, Ugar. ym, Arab. yaum, Akkad. ūmu, 'day', Ethiop. yōm, 'today', Aram. yēnāmō, Syr. imāmō, 'day', in contradistinction to 'night'.

Yom Kippur, the day of Atonement (Jewish Religion). — Mishnaic Heb. yōm kippūr (in Bibl. Heb. yōm kippūrīm), 'day of atonement', fr. yōm, 'day' (see yom), and kippūr, 'atonement, expiation', fr. Bibl. Heb. kippēr, 'they made atonement, made propitiation, forgave, appeased, pacified', from whose stem derive kōpher, 'ransom; fine', kappōreth, 'seat of Mercy, Propitiatory', Mishnaic Heb. kappārōh, 'atonement, expiation, forgiveness'. The orig. meaning of kippēr was prob. 'he covered' (cp. kissā al-āwōn, 'he covered iniquity', Neh. 3:37). It is rel. to Aram. kappēr, 'he wiped out, effaced, forgave, atoned for', Arab. kāfara, 'he covered, hid'. Some scholars connect Heb. kippēr with Akkad. kapāru, 'to wipe off', kuppuru, 'to wipe off; to expiate', Aram. kēphar, 'he washed away, wiped off'. However, as shown by the Aram. verbs kēphar and kappēr, the meanings 'to wash away, wipe off, cover, expiate', are interrelated, and, accordingly, all the above words are etymologically connected. For sense development cp. Arab. ghāfara, 'he covered; he forgave', dfā, 'he covered; he wiped out; he forgave'.

yom tob, yom tov, a Jewish holiday or festival. — Heb. yōm ṭōbh, lit. 'a good day', fr. yōm, 'day', and ṭōbh, 'good'. For the first word see prec. word, for the second see Tobiah.
