Thank you SO much! We will get the photo off widely.

Had a good meeting w Melinda Gates. They are ready to support our maternal and child health initiative. Your husband touched everyone here with his Haiti plea. We're making good progress on women's issues.

The secretary had her picture taken with the 4 women right before her press conference. She met them as she walked to the site, and then invited them to walk with her to the press conference. The four Afghan women sat together during the conference and the Secretary asked them to rise so she could acknowledge and applaud their courageous work promoting women's rights in Afghanistan. We will send some photos around. Cheers, P

Caroline and Ashley:

Saba Ghori (from the State Department's Office of Global Women's Issues covering Afghanistan) can be reached at [redacted] [redacted] She is in London and in contact with the 4 Afghan Civil Society Women representatives observing today's conference, and understands there is a possibility of a photo/pull aside for the Afghan women with the Secretary.

Of the Afghan women, three are at the media center, and one is at the civil society conference. Saba doesn't have a way to access the media center/Lancaster House. If the Secretary can do this photo opp/pull aside, someone would need to meet and escort the women. Two of the women have local cell numbers: [redacted] [redacted] Hope you can help to coordinate with Saba and 4 Afghan women.

Saba and Modi,

I have included the Secretary's press team Ashley Yehl and Caroline Adler on this chain. They are best placed to coordinate with Huma and Philippe on this. Sarah Jane-Mayhew, our official photographer, will be at the media center at about 1530.

Please note that Embassy blackberries are very slow. (I have this message on my desk top but it has not yet reached my bb) If Phil needs to take quick action on this please send him a text message at [redacted]

Matt,

This is the email chain regarding the a possibly opportunity for the 4 Afghan women civil society representatives to meet with the Secretary and take a photo. Three of the 4 are in the media center and Saba who has been travelling with them is Phil suggested she contact Huma. If you have other thoughts on who Saba can contact let me know and I'll pass that info along.

Saba is from the State Department's Office of Global Women's Issues covering Afghanistan for the U.S. Ambassador-at-Large for Global Women's Issues, Ambassador Melanne Vermeer.

Thanks,
Anjana

Saba,

Our press office says your best bet would be to work with Huma to see if this is possible. The logistics are a challenge. Huma's number is [redacted]

I haven't been able to get in. I emailed huma and she hasn't responded.

The conference is going on right now.

If the women could even meet with the Secretary for a few minutes, that would be great! Can you ask huma?

I have the nos of the women who are in the conf
